8:23 The capture of the king of Ai was a symbolic act, because he had led the defeat of the earlier Israelite army sent out against him. Now his role as a defeated leader contrasted with the victorious role of Joshua.

8:24-27 The destruction of all the inhabitants of Ai fulfilled God's clear command in verse 2.

8:27 Joshua followed God's command in verse 2 about the cattle.

8:28 The word Ai means "ruin." Like Jericho, this defeated city would be a memorial to Israel's victory.

8:29 The focus on the king of Ai in chapter 8 corresponds to that of Rahab at the destruction of Jericho in chapter 6. Rahab was delivered from death because of her faith, whereas the king of Ai was put to death because of his antagonism toward Israel. The king of Ai also compares to Achan, as both were executed by Israel. The hanging of his body exposed it to shame. In Israel it was forbidden to allow a body to remain overnight so exposed (Dt 21:23; Jn 19:31).

8:30-31 Joshua's construction of an altar on Mount Ebal, north of Shechem, was a fulfillment of what Moses . . . had commanded in Dt 27:5. The burnt offerings and fellowship offerings were the same offerings required in the first law of the altar in Ex 20:24 and in instructions for this gathering on Mount Ebal in Dt 27:6-7.

8:32 Joshua's copying of the law of Moses was commanded in Dt 27:3. It resembled the actions of the king who had to make his own copy of the law (Dt 17:18).

8:33 In Dt 27:12-13 half of Israel was to stand in front of Mount Gerizim and half in front of Mount Ebal in order to pronounce the curses and blessings for obeying or disobeying the covenant. This account in Joshua included the foreigner as well as the citizen. Thus the entire nation and all who lived with Israel were present and standing around the ark of the LORD's covenant.

8:34 In both the writing and reading of the covenant with its curses and blessings Joshua represented Israel.

8:35 The perfect obedience of Joshua is underscored. Here again, the totality of Israel is emphasized, including women and children as well as the officers. Foreigners were also included.

9:1-2 The phrase when all the kings heard is identical to that in 5:1. There the kings heard about God's drying up the Jordan River, and it struck fear in their hearts. In 9:1 the text does not specify what the kings heard, but their reaction is different. Instead of fearing Israel, they formed a unified alliance to fight against the nation. What caused this change? It was the defeat of Israel at Ai that gave the Canaanites hope that they could defeat the people of God. The sin of Achan had far-reaching effects just as all sin does (Rm 5:12-14; 8:9-20). If Achan had not sinned, perhaps Israel's advance into the promised land would have been much easier and far less violent.

9:3 The inhabitants of Gibeon reacted differently, however. They did not seek to destroy Israel but to join it.

9:4-5 Because Israel had been commanded to destroy all peoples in Canaan (Dt 20:16-18), Gibeon wanted it to look like they did not live nearby.

9:6 Gilgal here may be different from the Gilgal of 4:19-20; and 5:9-10. It was probably located in the hill country, perhaps near Mount Ebal. Gibeon was a city north of Jerusalem in the territory of the tribe of Benjamin, a few hours journey by foot. The word for treaty (Hb berith) is the same as that for covenant; it recalls the experience of Joshua and the Israelites at Mount Ebal (8:30-35).

9:7 The connection of Gibeon with the Hivites implies that this group may have been a recent addition to the region, coming originally from north of Palestine in Syria (see note at 3:10).

9:8 The self-designation by the Gibeonites as Israel's servants implies that they accepted a relationship of a vassal nation to the people of God.

9:9-10 The confession of the Gibeonites most closely resembles that of Rahab in 2:9-11. Their expression of faith in God was based on God's historic acts of redemption toward His people. The Gibeonites mentioned the same acts of redemption as Rahab did—the work of God in Egypt and against Sihon and Og.

9:11 The governance of Gibeon by elders rather than a king implies a different form of rule than what was common in Canaan at the time, which may have been part of the deception.

9:14 The note that Israel did not seek the LORD's counsel, as well as absence of any mention of Joshua in the initial negotiations, all spell trouble.

9:15 That Joshua established peace with the Gibeonites demonstrates his own complicity in the actions. The reference to peace and the swearing of an oath by the leaders of the community bound Israel into a treaty relationship with the Gibeonites that could not be broken.

9:16 The phrase three days may suggest a literal three days such as seems to occur in 1:11; 2:16,22, or it may imply an indeterminate period of more than a second day.

9:17 Having discovered the ruse of the Gibeonites, the Israelites set out on the third day and reached the Gibeonite cities on that same day. Like Gibeon, Chephirah, Beeroth, and Kiriath-jearim lie a few miles north of Jerusalem and close by one another in the territory that would later be assigned to the tribe of Benjamin.

9:18-19 The two references to the oath that the leaders had made surround the statement that the whole community grumbled against the leaders. The verb "grumble" refers elsewhere almost exclusively to the complaints of the Israelites against Moses' leadership and against God. Its appearance here may suggest the same negative attitude of Israel as that in the wilderness generation. However, this grumbling against the leaders had a point because the present leadership did not seek God's counsel, and they thereby foolishly bound Israel to a treaty with a Canaanite people group.

9:20 The leaders were unwilling to violate their oath and thereby compound their wrongdoing with a second sin.

9:21 Deuteronomy 29:11 implied that aliens living in the land of Israel should fulfill the roles of woodcutters and water carriers.

9:22-23 Joshua pronounced a curse against the Gibeonites for causing Israel to disobey God's command to destroy all the inhabitants of Canaan who did not leave the land.

9:27 The deliverance of a people such as the Gibeonites is not unique to Joshua. In the ancient world, many peoples offered themselves as slaves rather than face extinction at the hands of a superior army. The establishment of the LORD's altar at the place He would choose duplicates Dt 12:5 and the command that Israel should worship God only at the place where He directed they should build an altar.

10:1 Adoni-zedek king of Jerusalem was the leader of the key city in the region of the Gibeonites. The name may mean "my lord is righteous." The second element of the name, (Hb) tsedeq, also occurs with Melchizedek king of (Jeru-)Salem in Genesis 14. Some have suggested here a dynastic name that is used of the leader of Jerusalem in succeeding generations.

10:2 Adoni-zedek had heard about Joshua's victory against Ai, and he and his people were greatly alarmed. This suggests that things had returned to what they were in 5:1, where all the Canaanites were fearful of Israel. Gibeon lay immediately north of Jerusalem, dominating the plateau and providing key strategic routes to the coastal plain on the west and to the Jordan Valley on the east. Gibeon's defection threatened Jerusalem's trade and contact with the north as well as the west and east. If all the men of Gibeon were warriors, this suggests a warlike town whose sole reason for being was to wage war and collect tribute from defeated enemies. If Gibeon joined Israel's side, it could no longer be counted upon to remain loyal to Jerusalem, so it posed a threat.

10:3 The names of the kings of these towns preserve authentic forms and elements of names found in Canaanite Palestine between 1500 and 1200 B.C. The towns themselves included three (Hebron . . . Lachish, and Eglon) that formed a line of towns south of Jerusalem and across the entire Judean hill country and desert. The town of Jarmuth, probably identified with modern Tel Yarmut, lay to the east of Jerusalem between the Sorek and Elah valleys that stretched east-west and formed major access routes between the coastal plain and the area of Jerusalem.

10:4 This verse recalls the only Canaanite correspondence between Canaanite kings in the Bible. The need to attack Gibeon was based on their peace treaty with Israel. The fact that local towns and cities had their own armies is known from the fourteenth century B.C. Amarna letters, where many of the towns were so defended. These local militias largely disappeared after the rise of the Israelite monarchy.

10:6 Gibeon's appeal to Joshua and the Israelites was based on their peace treaty of 9:15. This agreement, while requiring Gibeonites to serve Israel, also assumed that Gibeon would be protected from its enemies by the stronger party, Israel. Such was a common arrangement for suzerain-vassal treaties in the ancient Near East.

10:7-43 This section describes the battle by using a series of perspectives. There is often a summary description, such as here in verses 7-10, followed by more details in the text. The work of God, as Israel's leader in the war, is described first (vv. 11-15). Then there is consideration of the leaders of the enemy coalition (vv. 16-27) and details of battles with the towns in the southern coalition (vv. 28-40). Finally, there is a summary and a note on Israel's return to camp.

10:8 God's admonition to Joshua to not be afraid of them occurred previously in 8:1 in anticipation of the battle and victory over Ai. See also 1:9 and the promise that not one of them will be able to stand against you (cp. 1:5).

10:9 The idea of marching all night was not unprecedented in the ancient world, but it was not common because it could exhaust the soldiers and thus ruin their effectiveness.

10:10 As at the victory against Egypt at the exodus (Ex 14:24), God threw them into confusion before Israel. This tactic is characteristic of God's warfare against His enemies. God was responsible for a great slaughter at Gibeon. He chased the survivors westward through the pass of Beth-horon, the major access route for armies between the plateau of Gibeon and the coastal plain. As they fled westward they would reach Azekah, a site not far from Jarmuth, the hometown of one of the enemy armies. The site of Makkedah (modern Khirbet el-Qom) was close to Hebron, Lachish, and Eglon. Thus the two places represent the final stand of the enemy armies against Israel's God. Close to their homes, with their backs against the wall, they had nowhere to go.

10:11 The idea that God would use hailstones against Israel's enemy suggests a concern to communicate to Israel and the surrounding peoples that God was sovereign over all things and would even use nature against Israel's enemies.

10:12 Some argue that Joshua in his prayer addressed the sun and moon as deities. This is unlikely in context because in the three previous communications in the chapter (vv. 4, 6, and 8), the addressee is never named in the message itself, but only in the introduction. The same is true here. Instead of addressing the sun and moon as deities, Joshua addressed God and then was given the authority to command the sun and moon. The pass of Beth-horon leads westward into the Valley of Aijalon. It was here that Joshua wished to continue or otherwise to succeed in the battle.

10:13 Here is the confirmation of the preceding verse. Miraculously, the sun and moon ceased in their course across the sky. This enabled Israel to complete its destruction of the enemy. The Book of Jashar is also mentioned in 2Sm 1:18, where it introduces David's eulogy for Saul and Jonathan.

10:14 Verses 11-14 summarize how the LORD fought for Israel. God's part in the miracle was of primary significance. Had He not fought, Israel would not have won. Because He fought, Israel could not lose and needed only to follow up on the victory.

10:15 Israel's return to the camp at Gilgal anticipated the end of the war and the identical conclusion in verse 43. Thus verses 11-15 describe the activity of God as fighting for Israel while the remainder of the chapter focuses on the events of Israel and of its enemies.

10:16 Sometime before the end of the battle with the enemy armies, the five kings (v. 3) had hidden in the cave at Makkedah (v. 10).

10:18-20 When Joshua learned where the kings were hiding, he put a guard on the cave and ordered the army to continue pursuing the enemy so they could not escape to their fortified centers. The note that a few survivors ran away to the fortified cities anticipates verses 28-42 and the destruction of the various fortified centers.

10:22-24 Commands given by Joshua in verses 22 and 24a are followed word-for-word in verses 23 and 24b. The Israelite army was in complete unison and obedience to their leader, and a great victory was accomplished.

10:24 The act of the military commanders placing their feet on the necks of these kings signified the subjugation of the kings and their rule to the army of Israel (Jr 28:14; 30:8; Ezk 21:29).

10:25 Joshua repeated the words of encouragement that God had given to him in 1:5-9.

10:26-27 Joshua's actions toward the kings duplicate those toward the king of Ai (8:29) with execution, hanging on trees until sunset, and then "burial" in a cave with a pile of stones to mark the site.

10:28-40 The capture and destruction of Makkedah (v. 28), Libnah (vv. 29-30), Lachish (vv. 31-33), Eglon (vv. 34-35), Hebron (vv. 36-37), and Debir (vv. 38-39) followed in rapid sequence.

10:33 A fourth town in the sequence, Gezer, was not attacked but is mentioned as providing an army to fight against Israel at Lachish. The city of Lachish was strategically located. Egyptian inscriptions show that it was probably the base for Egypt's empire in southern Canaan. Its defeat would have been among the most important events of Joshua's entire southern campaign.

10:40 A summary of the victories by region is presented in this verse. The effect is to describe a complete destruction leaving no survivors. This is a stylized, hyperbolic statement celebrating the victorious southern campaign. The reality, however, is that many Canaanites did escape, as will be apparent in chapters 13 and in Judges 1. Here the emphasis is on the obedience of Joshua and Israel in following God's commands from Dt 20:16-18.

10:41 This summary defines all the towns in the south as far north as Gibeon. Goshen cannot refer to Egypt but must describe an otherwise unknown region (11:16). In 15:51 the town is associated with a district in the tribe of Judah.

10:43 The return of all Israel to the camp at Gilgal signaled the end of the campaign and the peace that resulted so Israel could rest.

11:1 The role of Jabin king of Hazor as the leader of the towns of the northern region, corresponded to the king of Jerusalem (10:3) in the south. Situated north of the Sea of Galilee, Hazor was the largest ancient site in Israel. It was the dominant city of the entire land and governed trade to the north where it is mentioned in texts as far away as cities on the Euphrates River. The initial phrase "When Jabin . . . heard" duplicates those in 5:1 and 9:1 and signals that there will be a battle against Israel. Madon is unknown. It may be a variant of Merom, found in the "Waters of Merom" in verses 5 and 7.

Shimron (modern Tel Shimron) was located in the foothills near the western end of the Jezreel Valley. It lay at the southern end of Galilee. Achshaph (modern Tell Keisan) was situated to the west in the Acco plain. If Madon/Merom is identified as modern Tel Qarnei Hittin, it lay to the east near the Sea of Galilee. The effect is to identify important sites scattered across the populated areas around the Sea of Galilee to the north and westward along the Jezreel Valley and over to the Acco Plain and the Mediterranean Sea.

11:2 Chinnereth (modern Tel Kinrot) was a site on the northwest end of the Sea of Galilee. Chinnereth was also the name of the sea at that time, so the southern portion of the area could include both the region around the sea and the Jordan Valley farther south. The Judean foothills translates "Shephelah," a word meaning only "low hills." Although the Bible often uses this term to describe the western foothills of Judah, here it probably refers to the foothills of Samaria, farther north and more in agreement with this description of lands and towns in the north. The Slopes of Dor is a translation of "Naphoth Dor," an otherwise unknown name.

11:3 The Hivites were previously associated with Gibeon, but here they are found farther north at the foot of Mount Hermon. The Jebusites, often associated with Jerusalem, are more generally located in the hill country. Apparently these were people groups who populated more than one location. The reference to Mizpah anticipates the Valley of Mizpeh to the east in verse 8. The modern Mount Hermon lies at the southern tip of the Anti-Lebanon range.

Mizpeh could refer to the southern end of the Beqa'a Valley where the Litani River flows south and then west to Tyre.

11:4 The huge number of the armies suggests a larger force than that of the southern coalition. As with Tyre (v. 1), these towns and cities tended to be more populous than those mentioned in chapter 10. The horses and chariots were the most sophisticated technology available in ancient warfare, used to move archers around the battlefield as a mobile firing platform.

11:5 Although there is a site known as Merom in upper Galilee, its location makes it unlikely as a strategic place for a battle. Modern Tel Qarni Hattin near the Horns of Hattin, a site famous for Crusader battles, seems more appropriate as the identification of Merom. It lay in the hills west of the Sea of Galilee and served as a dominating position for trade and armies coming south from Syria and for those coming east from the coast and the Jezreel Plain. The plan of these armies to attack Israel suggests that what follows would be a defensive war for Israel.

11:6 God promised to cause all of them to be killed before Israel. Again, He did the fighting and Israel reaped the benefits.

11:8 Great Sidon lay at the northwestern corner of Israel. Misrephoth-maim may have been at the northeastern end at the valley of the Litani River. Thus the attack began south of the Sea of Galilee and went westward and north to Sidon before turning eastward to Misrephoth-maim, where it turned south along the Valley of Mizpah (v. 3). Twice the text records how Israel struck them down as if to emphasize the complete success of the mission.

11:9 Joshua and Israel obeyed God's commands from verse 6.

11:10 The size and strategic location of Hazor made it the most important city in Palestine throughout the second millennium B.C.

11:11-13 Today's ruins in Hazor do have a destruction layer from the thirteenth century B.C. This may be the one associated with Joshua (if one accepts a late date for the exodus). The temples of this period were destroyed and the images broken. The destruction layer attests to the burning of the city. No other city in Palestine among those mentioned as destroyed in chapters 1-11 has clear evidence of a burn layer like this during the time of Joshua. This attests to the fact that Israel did not burn any of the cities . . . except Hazor.

11:14 The treatment of these captured towns, in which Israel killed all the people but plundered all the spoils, resembles that of Ai (8:2,27). Unlike Jericho, at Ai God allowed His people to keep the plunder. Apparently this practice continued elsewhere in the land.

11:15 The battle accounts themselves dramatize the purpose of showing how Joshua and the Israel of his generation were obedient to God's commands. Their faithfulness resulted in God's gift of the land.

11:16 The summary of Israel's battles and victories begins with the regions. Those in the south are followed by those in the north. The land of Goshen may refer to the region with the town of that name in 10:41, in Judah (15:51). Perhaps it is a variant for the kingdom of Geshur, north of the Sea of Galilee. However, see note at 13:13.

11:17 The summary turns to the boundaries of the newly acquired land. Mount Halak (modern Jebel Halaq) lay midway between Kadesh-barnea and the southern tip of the Dead Sea. It thus defined the southern border with Seir (Edom). The precise location of Baal-gad . . . at the foot of Mount Hermon is unknown. The Valley of Lebanon may refer to the Valley of Mizpah (vv. 3,8; see note at v. 8), or to both it and the Beqa'a—the entire region between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon mountain ranges.

11:19 On Gibeon, see notes at chapter 9. Hivites first appear in 3:10 and are associated with Gibeon in 9:6-7.

11:20 Exodus 4-14 repeats how God would harden the heart of Pharaoh. Here God treated the kings and warriors of Canaan in a similar manner. Thus the reason for the destruction as given here did not lie in other sins of Canaan or in their origins, but in their refusal to recognize Israel's God or to allow Israel access to the land.

11:21 The Anakim represent legendary warriors (Dt 2:10-11). By the time of Joshua they had lived for hundreds of years in Palestine, as attested in Egyptian sources. The three Anakim in Jos 14:15 may correspond to the three towns mentioned here, perhaps as rulers. Anab may refer to the site of 'Unnab ets-Tseghur about 15 miles southwest of Hebron. With Debir, these are all located in southern Palestine. When Joshua completely destroyed the three cities, he may have been represented by Caleb (15:14-15).

11:22 The remnants of the Anakim in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod anticipate the arrival of the Philistines and the presence of a giant such as Goliath (1Sm 17:4).

11:23 The inheritance that Joshua presented to Israel uses a word that occurs in Joshua for the first time, but it will occur dozens of times in the remainder of the book. It serves as a transition from the battles to the division of the inheritance.

12:1-6 A summary review of all the land acquired by Israel begins with the territories east of or "beyond the Jordan." The summary is given in terms of regions, outlined by towns. The conquest of this region took place while Moses remained alive (Nm 21:21-35).

12:1 The southern part of this section, the Arnon Valley, ran from the tableland of Moab westward into the Dead Sea. To the south was territory that belonged to Moab. To the north was the territory allotted Reuben. Gad and Manasseh received lands farther north that reached upward to the modern Golan Heights and to the base of Mount Hermon.

12:2-3 The border of the territory ruled by Sihon is given in the form of a series of towns. His capital of Heshbon was probably not modern Hesban, which was not occupied at that early period. It may be identified with another neighboring site that was inhabited (modern Tell Jalul or Tall al-'Umeiri). From the Arnon Valley in the south, the territory of Sihon reached to the Jabbok River in the north. Aroer (modern 'Ara'ir) and Beth-jeshimoth (modern Tell 'Azeimeh) were towns in the area. The Arabah was the eastern Jordan Valley extending from the Sea of Chinnereth (Sea of Galilee) to the Sea of the Arabah (the Dead Sea). The slopes of Pisgah represent the descent along the northwestern edge of the plateau of Moab. Gilead was apparently bisected by the Jabbok River.

12:8 The summary of the regions conquered resembles that already given in 10:40. This is followed by another list of the people groups conquered (3:10; 9:1; 11:3; 12:8).

12:9-24 The 31 kings listed cover the entire region, with those in verses 9-16 including the victories in the south described in chapters 6-10; and those in verses 17-24 summarizing the victories in the north as discussed in chapter 11. The structure of this list parallels many itineraries of Egyptian pharaohs that describe their conquests in Canaan between the fifteenth century B.C. and the tenth century B.C. The hieroglyphic writings show individual prisoners, one tied to the next with their hands bound behind them. On the bodies of each of these prisoners is written the name of one of the towns of Canaan. Each of these represents either a town in Canaan that the pharaoh defeated or an army from that town that was defeated. All these elements are found in the Israelite summary. Its resemblance to the Egyptian texts may have been intentional. As Egypt's New Kingdom empire declined and disappeared by 1150 B.C., Israel's presence and increasing power would replace and thus continue the defeat of Egypt, its gods, and its pharaoh. This process began with the plagues and the exodus.

Joshua's Cities of Conquest

13:1-21 : 45 Although some of the initial descriptions of the allotments consider regions, most of the divisions of the tribal territories in these chapters appear in two forms of literature: boundary descriptions and town lists. The boundary descriptions normally identify themselves by using the term "border" and verbs such as "turn," "ascend," "descend," "curve" and other terms linking one town or natural feature with another along the line of the border. In defining the lands, God further extended His relationship into the particulars of the blessing of the land that He had given the Israelites.

Town lists also appear in many tribal allotments as towns that belong to a tribe. Sometimes they are subdivided into regions of the tribe. This is true of the lengthiest town list in the allotment—that of Judah in 15:20-63. Such lists are common in administrative texts in the same period. These similarities suggest that this document had the importance and legal force of a treaty. As new towns were founded, they were added to the document throughout Israel's history. This procedure would retain the same boundaries but update the population centers in those tribal areas for as long as Israel possessed them. This was the literary embodiment of the physical witness that made up God's ongoing covenantal gift of the promised land to His people.

13:1 Joshua first appeared in Ex 17:9-13 where he was already the leader of Israel's armies. The chronology of the Pentateuch entails some 40 years of wandering in the wilderness and what Jos 11:18 describes as "a long time" of waging war before Joshua's death. In 24:29 Joshua died at 110. The expression getting on in years establishes Joshua as at the end of his active life and military leadership. Here he and Israel transitioned from military activity to allotment of the land. Despite the long list of towns and their kings who were defeated in chapter 12, the Lord confirmed that a great deal of the land remained to be possessed.

13:2-7 The regions not yet occupied include areas on the fringes of the promised land. The land of the Philistines is described in verse 3. The five towns of the Philistines appear here for the first time. The Shihor has been described as the Brook of Egypt (15:4). The word for rulers (Hb seren) is a term only applied to Philistines. This may be connected to the Gk tyrannos, with the meaning "tyrant, ruler." The Avvites appear as a people living south of the region of the Philistines (Dt 2:23). The Geshurites include those inhabiting the region north and east of the Sea of Galilee.

13:4 Arah is not otherwise known, but the region of the Sidonians includes coastal areas at the northern end of the region occupied by the 12 tribes. Aphek appeared earlier (12:18). It lay on the coastal plain between Joppa and Dor where the plain narrowed and the hill country (the border of the Amorites) reached closest to the Mediterranean Sea.

13:5 The land of the Gebalites was Byblos, an important coastal city north of Sidon in modern Lebanon. The entrance of Hamath, sometimes called Lebo-hamath, is the most northern place described. It is identified with modern Lebweh north of the Beqa'a. For the other place names, see 11:7-8.

13:6 God's promise to drive . . . out the remaining occupants of the land is followed by a command to distribute the land at this time. The land was not completely conquered, so Israel was still challenged to fulfill the command it had been given.

13:7 The command to divide this land is repeated, emphasizing its importance. The nine tribes and half the tribe of Manasseh exclude Reuben, Gad, and the other half of Manasseh, who received an allotment east of the Jordan River.

13:8-33 The territory described in this section is identical to the combined areas controlled by Sihon and Og as described in 12:1-5.

13:9 The text begins in the south along the Arnon Valley, the border with Moab. The Medeba plateau includes the tableland that rises east of the Dead Sea.

Dibon is perhaps not modern Tell Dhiban because the archaeological evidence for habitation from this period is lacking. Nevertheless, contemporary Egyptian scribes writing of campaigns in the area knew and identified the city of Dibon.

13:10 The border of the Ammonites lay to the east and north of Israel's inheritance and Sihon's previous kingdom. Its capital was Rabbah, modern Amman.

13:13 The presence of Geshur and Maacath as independent entities is attested during the time of David. He married the daughter of Geshur's king and fathered Absalom (2Sm 3:3).

13:14 In accord with Dt 18:1, the tribe of Levi received no inheritance of land. See, however, Jos 21.

13:15-23 Reuben's allotment also began at Aroer on the rim of the Arnon Valley. It is described through a town list (vv. 17-20).

13:21-22 For the deaths of Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur . . . Reba, and Balaam son of Beor, see Nm 31:8.

13:25 With Rabbah (modern Amman) as the Ammonite capital, this allotment took over half the land of the Ammonites.

13:26 This verse appears to designate towns along the border of Gad located in the higher plateau region inland toward the desert.

13:27 This verse provides a list of towns in the Jordan Valley extending as far north as the Sea of Chinnereth (Galilee). The identification of Succoth with modern Tell Deir ‘Alla is intriguing in light of verse 22 because at this site in 1967 archaeologists discovered fragmentary texts on white plaster that describe purported visions of Balaam son of Beor.

13:30 Jair’s Villages numbered 60 cities (here “city” is a term that can describe a small hamlet). A judge named Jair (Jdg 10:4) had 30 sons who ruled over half of them.

13:31 In 17:1 Machir son of Manasseh received Gilead and Bashan east of the Jordan. The other sons of Manasseh received inheritances west of that river.

13:33 As with the regional summary of verses 8-14, so the summary of specific allotments ends with a note about the absence of a portion for the tribe of Levi.

14:1 Eleazar was the son of Aaron, and his successor as well as the leader of the Levites (Ex 6:23-25; Nm 20:25-28; 26:60; Dt 10:6). He used the Urim (and Thummim) to determine God’s will and to allot the tribal lands (Nm 27:19-22; 34:17). The land of Canaan implies that the region east of the Jordan River, allotted in the previous chapter, was not part of Canaan.

14:2 The use of the lot for the distribution of the land is commanded in Nm 26:55-56; 33:54; 34:13; 36:2. The size of the tribe was also considered (Nm 33:54). The lot was not considered arbitrary but was directed by God (Pr 16:33).

14:3-4 This introduction mentions the absence of Levitical lands twice and explicitly anticipates the allotment of towns to that tribe in chapter 21. The absence of the Levites should reduce the number of eligible tribes to 11, but Joseph’s two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, each received a tribal inheritance.

14:6 Judah’s relative importance, if only because of its larger size than the other tribes, may give it the right to go first. Caleb was one of the two spies, along with Joshua, who were sent to spy out the promised land and returned with a good report (Nm 13-14). Caleb’s designation as a Kenizzite is otherwise unattested, but may be related to the name of Caleb’s brother, Kenaz (15:17).

14:7 Caleb’s age of 40 at the time of the first spying out of the land puts him with the first generation of Israel who left Egypt. He now spoke to the new generation and recounted what they might not know.

14:8 For Israel to melt with fear recalls the defeat at the first assault on Ai (7:5). The defeat made Israel “melt with fear,” just as the Canaanites had “melted with fear” when they learned of Israel’s victories (2:11; 5:1; Ex 15:15).

14:9 See Nm 14:24 and Dt 1:36 for the promise of God to Caleb through Moses.

14:10 Caleb’s reference to 45 years suggests that, following the wilderness wanderings of about 40 years, the time spent in the battles of chapters 1-12 amounted to about five years.

14:11 The ongoing strength of Caleb despite his old age compares with that of Moses (Dt 34:7). He was still capable of fighting for his land and settling on it.

14:13-14 When the spies searched the land, they traveled its length. However, the description of their activity focused on Hebron and the nearby Valley of Eshcol (Nm 13:22-24). These were located in the southern hill country of Judah. This would have been among the closest major inland towns in Canaan from their base at Kadesh-barnea. Thus the gift of land to Caleb involved the area of Hebron where he had visited and spent more time than anywhere else (Dt 1:36).

14:15 The note about Hebron's name recalls the mighty Anakim (11:21) who were there, and it anticipates Caleb's defeat of them in 15:14. Kiriath-arba is a second and earlier name for Hebron. The first part of the name means "city." Thus the note suggests the meaning, "city of Arba," where Arba is the name of the greatest man among the Anakim. This would predate Israel's appearance because none of the Anakim that Caleb fought (15:14) bore this name. The note that the land had rest from war indicates success for Caleb.

15:1-12 The account of Caleb in 14:6-15 is a general one in which only one town is mentioned and the occupation of Caleb's inheritance is summarized. The same is true of the first account of Judah's allotment. It describes the contours of the land in terms of its borders, identified mostly by natural formations. The descriptions move counterclockwise beginning with the south border.

15:8 The border arches to the south to go around Jerusalem, which at the time was populated by the Jebusites and was not part of Israel.

15:13-19 These verses continue the account of 14:6-15. Here the details appear with the names of specific places within Caleb's inheritance and the bequeathing of these to his children. Thus the general part is followed by the specific part. This anticipates the allotment of Judah. Joshua 15:1-12 constituted the general places, describing only the borders of the land. While verses 20-63 will deal with the specific places within those borders. Caleb's allotment represents the premier example of all the allotments of Judah. It is so important because it is the allotment of the most faithful Judahite of his generation. It also describes the acquisition of Hebron, David's first capital (2Sm 2:1-11).

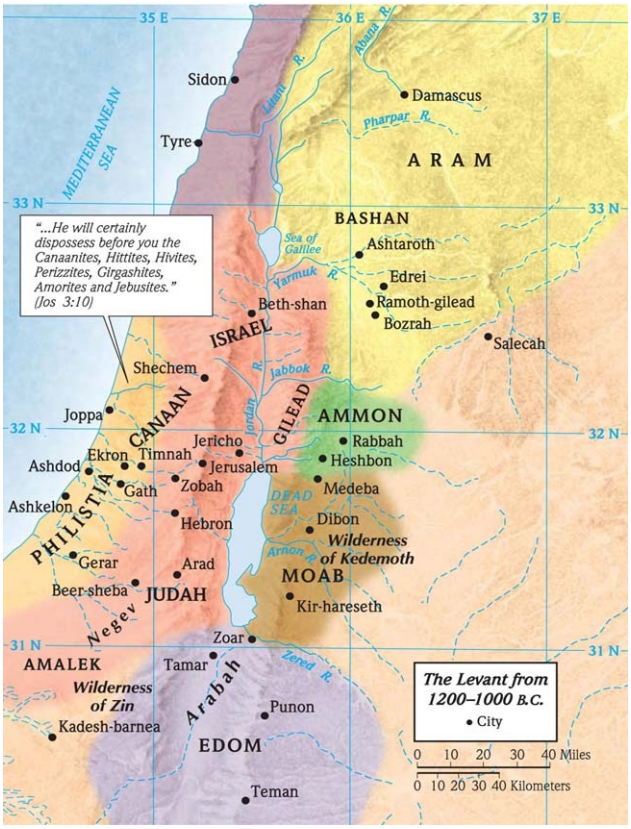
15:14 The three sons of Anak: Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai, whom Caleb drove out, have personal names that are distinctive to the second millennium B.C. and are not found after the tenth century B.C. This suggests that the account in Joshua accurately reflects a second millennium context. The mention of these three names elsewhere (Nm 13:22; Jdg 1:10) suggests that the incident recounted here was well known.

15:17 The capture by Othniel of the city of Debir led to his marriage to Caleb's daughter. He and the first judge may be one and the same (Jdg 3:9-11). This anticipates David's capture of Jerusalem, where he also started out from Hebron and also offered a reward to the person who succeeded in defeating the enemy (2Sm 5:6-15).

15:18-19 The request of Achsah was to increase her dowry and receive a full inheritance that included the necessary water sources for land to be usable in the Judean desert.



15:20-62 This section contains the most detailed town list of any of the allotments. It reflects the large tract of land given to Judah in comparison with the other tribes. The Hebrew text preserves 11 districts: the Negev (vv. 21-32); the western foothills with towns in the north (vv. 33-36), the south (vv. 37-41), and the center (vv. 42-44); the coastal plain (vv. 45-47); four regions in the hill country (vv. 48-51, vv. 52-54, vv. 55-57, vv. 58-59); a fifth hill country region west of Jerusalem (v. 60); and the Judean wilderness (vv. 61-62).

15:63 This note makes explicit what the note at verse 8 suggests—that Jerusalem remained unconquered.

16:1-3 These verses describe the southern border of the Joseph tribes, that is, the southern boundary of Ephraim.

16:1 The Jordan at Jericho to the waters of Jericho may mean "the Jordan River at Jericho which is also called the waters of Jericho," or else "the waters of Jericho" refers to the spring now known as 'Ain es-Sultan.

16:2 The Archites are not otherwise known. The Arkites of Gn 10:17 and 1Ch 1:15 are not the same people, as their name is spelled with a Hebrew qof instead of a khet as here. David's friend Hushai, who brought Absalom's plans to ruin, was called an Archite (2Sm 15:32; 16:16; 17:5,14; 1Ch 27:33).

16:3 The Japhletites are otherwise unknown. A Japhlet of the tribe of Asher is mentioned in 1Ch 7:32-33.

16:9 Additional towns located in the territory of Manasseh were added to the allotment of Ephraim.

16:10 As at the end of Judah's allotment (15:63), so at the end of Ephraim's inheritance, there is a note of towns that were not fully conquered. The forced laborers (Hb mas) identifies a practice used by the Canaanite city-states before the arrival of Israel, and by Solomon for his building activities (1Kg 4:6; 9:21).

17:1 On allotting Gilead and Bashan to Machir, see 13:29-31. The connection between the Transjordan region and the name of Machir's son, both given as "Gilead," introduces the tendency in Manasseh for town names to follow the names of individuals.

17:2 Several clans in West Manasseh are named in this verse and are also attested as towns in the southern and western parts of West Manasseh's allotment. The names of some of these towns such as Shechem appear in the Bible. Others occur on merchandise receipts found in Samaria dating from the eighth century B.C.

17:3 The five daughters of Zelophehad were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. These were also names of towns in northern and eastern areas of West Manasseh that are attested on the eighth century B.C. receipts from the northern kingdom's capital.

17:4-6 Although daughters did not normally inherit land (they received a dowry instead), the absence of any sons allowed Moses to make this special stipulation (Nm 36:1-13). He required only that these women marry within their tribe so the land would not pass out of it.

17:7-13 A border description (vv. 7-9a) is followed by a note about towns of Ephraim that were in Manasseh's territory (v. 9b) and by other tribes and bodies of water that bordered this tribe (vv. 9c-10). The towns of Manasseh that were located within the tribal borders of Issachar and Asher (v. 11) were not occupied for a while because of the strength of the Canaanites (v. 12). On imposing forced labor, see note at 16:10.

17:14-18 The allocation of additional land was necessary due to the large population among Joseph's descendants who lived in the central hill country of Israel. The land of the Perizzites and the Rephaim seems to be identical to the hill country and its forest. In Gn 34:30 the area around Shechem belonged to the Canaanites and Perizzites, thus it may refer to this region of Manasseh. The Canaanites in the valley had iron chariots, which caused the Ephraimites to doubt their ability to conquer them, but Joshua, a man of faith, encouraged them (v. 18; cp. Jdg 1:19; 4:3,13).

18:1-4 This is the first mention of the tent of meeting in the book of Joshua. Shiloh (modern Khirbet Seilun) lay to the south of Shechem and was situated in the middle of the earliest settlement of Israel in the hill country. It would remain a center for Israel's worship until the time of Samuel (1Sm 1-4). From this secure area, mapmakers were sent out. The proximity to the tent of meeting, the symbol of the presence of God, suggests that all was done in agreement with the Lord's will. The recurrence of the tent of meeting at the end of these allotments (Jos 19:51) implies that God's will was upheld in this activity.

18:5-7 Mention of the five tribes who had already received their inheritance meant that seven tribes remained. Levi, who did not receive such an inheritance, is again mentioned in anticipation of chapter 21.

18:8-10 The ability of these scouts to write down a description of the land meant that they prepared a document that resembled chapters 18-19 with seven sections, one for each of the remaining tribes. In 7:16-18 lots had been used to identify the guilty person and separate him from the rest of Israel. Here they were used to connect each parcel of land with its tribe. The borders probably followed natural topographic boundaries that had already been used by Canaanite city-states and their regional control.

19:1-9 The allotment of the tribe of Simeon has no boundaries. It is a list of towns (vv. 2-8) located within the southern territory of Judah. This was given to Simeon because the share for Judah's descendants was too large for them. The town list subdivides into an eastern (vv. 2-6) and a western (vv. 7-8) list. This area around the Beer-sheba Valley was already inhabited. Therefore, Simeon's settlement would assist in giving the region an Israelite identity. It would also provide a defense against encroachment by Edomite tribes to the south and east.

19:10-16 The allotment for Zebulun consists of a boundary description, beginning with the southern border (vv. 10-11), moving to the eastern border

(vv. 12-13), and concluding with the northern boundary (vv. 14-15). The western border is Asher's eastern border. Zebulun lay in the southwest corner of the hills of Galilee, between the Jezreel Valley to the south and the Bet Netofa Valley northward in Galilee.

19:17-23 Issachar's allotment preserves a town list that included 16 cities in the Jezreel Valley around Mount Tabor and those in the southeastern hills of Galilee.

19:24-31 Asher's allotment consists of a boundary list that began in the south (vv. 25-26), turned east along Zebulun (vv. 27-28), and reached north to Great Sidon before turning south along the coast (vv. 29-30). Cabul and the area around it was later given by Solomon to Hiram king of Tyre in payment for his assistance in constructing the temple of Jerusalem (1Kg 9:11-13).

19:32-39 Naphtali's tribe received the largest area among the seven remaining allotments. However, it was perhaps the worst agriculturally, located in upper Galilee where the heights prevented much cultivation. The southern boundary (vv. 33-34) is supplemented with a town list (vv. 35-38). Its eastern boundaries stretched to the Jordan River and the Sea of Galilee, including the rich and powerful centers of Chinnereth . . . Kedesh, and especially Hazor (chap. 11).

19:40-48 The territory of the Danites consists of a town list including eastern (vv. 41-44) and western towns (vv. 45-47). Its location alongside the Canaanite and Philistine coastal towns threatened its peace and prosperity. Dan lost part or all of this territory (v. 47) and migrated north to the town of Leshem which they captured and renamed Dan (Jdg 17-18).

19:49-51 As with Caleb, the other faithful spy of the exodus generation, Joshua, received a special allotment in his tribal territory—Timnath-serah (modern Khirbet Tibnah), southwest of Shechem. As Caleb received the first allotment in the promised land (14:6-15), Joshua received the last. His humility and commitment to complete his God-given responsibilities is evident as he waited until all the other tribes and people had received their inheritance before accepting his own.

20:2 In this chapter some of the land or towns given to Israel are set aside for a specific purpose. On the significance of the cities of refuge, see Ex 21:12-14; Nm 35:9-15,22-28; Dt 4:41-43; 19:1-10. These passages indicate that there were to be six towns—three east and three west of the Jordan River.

20:3 Someone who killed another person unintentionally or accidentally could find refuge in one of these towns from a form of blood vengeance in which the dead person's nearest kin was to seek the death of the killer in order to remove any blood guilt from their family.

20:4 The elders of that city functioned as the judges who heard all important disputes within the community.

20:6 The trial before the assembly was presumably a legal trial in his hometown where the killing occurred (Nm 35:22-28). Even if he was acquitted of premeditated murder, he remained in the city of refuge until the death of the high priest serving at that time. Presumably the avenger was to accept the high priest's death as a substitute for the guilt incurred by the shedding of innocent blood. The killer was free to return home.

20:7 Three cities of refuge were originally envisioned west of the Jordan River (Nm 35:9-15). Perhaps the size of the population led Joshua and the leadership to appoint six cities and name them here. They were located across the land so that a person was never far from such a place of refuge.

20:8 These cities of refuge located east of the Jordan River had been designated and named by Moses (Dt 4:41-43).

21:1-42 As Israel was given its inheritance in the preceding chapters, so it now gave back to God some of that inheritance for the use of the Levites. Their responsibility for the holy things of God meant they did not have time for the major occupation of the other Israelites—farming their land. See 1Ch 6:54-81 for a duplicate of this list of cities.

21:1-2 Eleazar at Shiloh recalls 18:1-10 and the distribution of the tribal allotments. This would be the Levites' allotment.

21:2 The Lord's command through Moses about the Levitical cities occurs in Nm 35:1-8, where the towns are not named.

21:4 Those Levites who were descendants of Aaron the priest would receive the cities closest to Jerusalem because their responsibilities required them to be close to the temple (Nm 18:1-6). These cities are listed in Jos 21:9-19.

21:5 The descendants of Kohath, second son of Levi (Gn 46:11), received their inheritance in the hill country, at that time the location of the ark, for which they were responsible in the wilderness (Nm 3:1; 4:15-20; 7:9). These cities are listed in Jos 21:20-26.

21:6 The descendants of Gershon, first son of Levi, had been responsible for the tabernacle's coverings and other textiles (Nm 3:25-26; 4:24-26). They received cities in the northern tribal areas, listed in Jos 21:27-33.

21:7 Merari's descendants, from Levi's third son, guarded the tabernacle and transported its frames (Nm 1:47-53; 3:33-37; 4:29-33). They were given the Transjordanian and Zebulun Levitical cities, listed in Jos 21:34-40.

21:9-42 The 48 Levitical cities are listed and subdivided into four groups, with occasional notes. These are further subdivided by tribes with numerical totals after each grouping. This is characteristic of a longer town list (15:20-63).

21:43-44 The Lord fulfilled His promises. He gave Israel the land He had promised to them and their ancestors (1:3). God also gave the Israelites rest on every side just as He had promised (1:13).

21:45 The conclusion that everything was fulfilled shows how God kept His promises and how all the enemies of Israel that they fought against were defeated. Israel did not drive out all the inhabitants of the land, but this was not God's responsibility. He kept His part of the covenant.

22:1-6 These verses bring to fruition 1:12-18 and the promise made by the two and a half tribes from east of the Jordan River to follow Joshua wherever he led. They had been faithful to their oath, so Joshua sent them home with his blessing.

22:5 Joshua dismissed the Transjordanian tribes with one condition: to fully obey God's revealed instruction. To serve God with all your heart and all your soul repeats Dt 6:5.

22:8 The people received material blessings even though this was not the main motivation for assisting their fellow tribes.

22:10 The tribes on the eastern side of the Jordan River built a large, impressive altar by the river. The altar that these tribes constructed is in Hebrew, mizbeach, a word that means "slaughter." This is what caused the concern of the other tribes: animal sacrifice would take place on this altar.

22:12 Because the altar was beside the Jordan River and was so large, the ten tribes could probably see it. The rest of Israel assembled against the two and a half tribes to war against them from their base at Shiloh.

22:13 How much later this took place is not clear, but Phinehas son of Eleazar was now the acting priest. He had last appeared in Nm 31:6 where he took articles from the sanctuary into battle.

22:16-19 The 10 representatives of the remaining tribes objected because the altar was considered a competitor to the true altar of the LORD our God.

22:17 The sin of Peor refers to the time when Israel joined Midian in worshiping the Baal or god of the region of Peor, east of the Jordan River. In Nm 25:1-13 Phinehas executed God's judgment for this sin by killing an Israelite man and a Midianite woman who were engaged in this carnal ritual.

22:20 Mention of Achan son of Zerah (8:1-29) explains the concern of the 10 tribes. They feared that God's judgment for what the Transjordanian tribes had done would also fall on them all.

22:24 The two and a half tribes explained they had built the altar as a way to maintain the unity of all the tribes in future generations.

22:26,29 Repeatedly the Transjordanian tribes denied any intent to use the altar as a place of sacrifice.

22:27-28 The altar bore witness that those on both sides of it worshiped the same God at the same tabernacle. When Abram first came into the promised land, he built altars from north to south as a testimony that the land belonged to God and was His to give to Abram and his descendants (Gn 12:6-8; 13:18). Now the Transjordanian tribes had done the same thing. Although their land was not part of the promised land, they wanted to identify with the God of the promised land and to show that their land was a place where God was worshiped.

22:34 With the conflict resolved, the altar was named in recognition of the confession of the Transjordanian tribes.

23:1 The note that Joshua was old repeats the words from 13:1, just as the theme of rest from all the enemies carries forward the sense of 21:44. Joshua had completed his life's mission.

23:4 The land currently occupied by the remaining nations had already been parceled out as an inheritance; the Israelites merely had to conquer it with God's help.

23:5 Israel was to remain faithful and watch as God would force them back on your account. This is not unlike what had already occurred. Israel had observed God fighting against their enemies and had merely followed after Him to experience the victory.

23:6 The requirement for Israel to continue to enjoy success was that they obey all that is written in the book of the law of Moses. This is what Joshua was commanded to do in 1:9-11. His obedience and that of Israel had brought victory.

23:7 The way to obey God is to worship Him alone and refuse to be lured into association with other deities or the nations who worship them. This was God's most basic command for Israel (Ex 20:3-6; Dt 5:7-10).

23:10 God wins the victories and enables Israel to succeed.

23:12 This warning against association or intermarriage with other nations is repeated in 24:20.

23:13 Disobedience would result in God withdrawing His strength so that Israel would not fully possess the land. This compromise would lead to a trap for Israel and ultimately, in anticipation of the exile centuries later, to the tribes of Israel disappearing from the promised land.

23:14 The way of all the earth is death, since everything on earth eventually dies (Ec 9:3; Rm 5:12; Heb 9:27).

23:16 Joshua's warning, If you break the covenant, uses the same verb (Hb 'avar) as the opening chapters of Joshua where it describes the crossing of the Jordan River (1:2). The same God who enabled Israel to benefit from great miracles can also turn against a faithless nation. The breaking of God's covenant by worshiping other gods would cause the loss of the land.

24:1-27 In this final chapter of the book, Joshua enacted a covenant renewal ceremony with Israel.

24:1 Joshua brought together all the tribes and their leaders to stand before God at Shechem, just as he had at Mount Ebal, next to Shechem, in 8:30-35.

24:2a Joshua's report began by introducing the sovereign God who was LORD over Israel and thus capable of making a covenant with them.

24:2b-13 This is the historical review section of the treaty/covenant. Its purpose is to demonstrate God's acts of protection and deliverance toward Israel in the past and to motivate Israel to remain faithful to God in the present. Terah, the father of Abraham, lived beyond the Euphrates River in Ur and Haran (Gn 11:26-32). Nahor, Terah's son, also lived in Ur. Their worship of other gods is not mentioned in Genesis, but archaeology shows that it was common there.

24:3 The history introduces the manner in which God delivered Abraham from the land of many gods and brought him to Canaan.

24:4 Already in the generation of Jacob and Esau, God was granting lands to peoples. So He gave Seir or Edom to Esau. Since it was not yet time for Jacob to obtain his inheritance, he went south to Egypt, away from the land that was to be his (Gn 46:6).

24:5 As God had brought Abraham out of a pagan land (v. 3), so He brought the nation of Israel out of Egypt through Moses and Aaron and the plagues.

24:6-7 The exodus was another of God's miracles by which He protected His people. Although note is made of how Israel lived in the wilderness a long time, no mention is made of their sin. The purpose of this history was not to repeat Israel's failures but to highlight God's successes at preserving the nation in order to encourage them to worship Him.

24:8 The Transjordanian victories against the Amorites continue the theme of God's powerful deliverance.

24:9-10 Balaam was mentioned in 13:22 as a sorcerer. Here his being hired by Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab to curse Israel was just another opportunity for God to deliver His people.

24:11 And again God handed . . . over the nations that the present generation fought (chaps. 6-12). God alone was responsible for the protection and blessing of His people Israel from the very beginning.

24:12 The hornet was promised in Ex 23:28 and in Dt 7:20 as the means by which God would drive out the inhabitants of the land. God fulfilled His promise.

24:13 God's gift of a land you did not labor for, and cities you did not build recalls His promise to Israel in Dt 6:10-11. That promise was immediately followed by a warning not to forget God and worship other deities.

24:14-15 These are God's demands—the laws or stipulations by which Israel should live. The key is for the people to choose to worship the Lord only. Joshua gave Israel a choice to worship the gods of their ancestors or those of the Amorites. He affirmed the God of Israel as his own choice. So if Israel would follow Joshua in peace as they did in war, they must choose the true God.

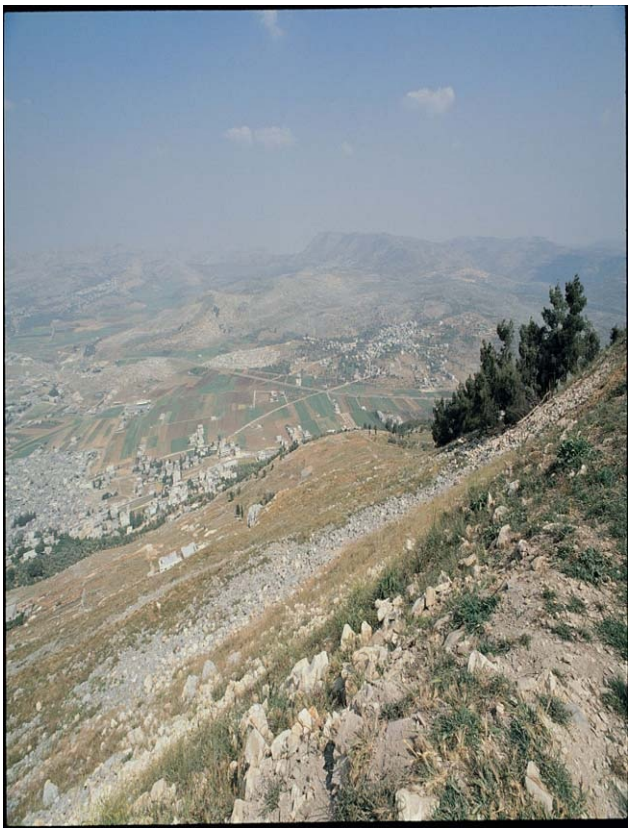
24:19 After the people promised to worship God alone, Joshua warned them that it would be difficult. The people must not choose lightly or in a moment of good feeling about God, a holy God . . . a jealous God.

24:20 If the people chose now for God and changed their minds later, God would completely destroy them, just as they did their enemies in lands they now inhabited (2:10). This warning is the closest chapter 24 comes to pronouncing curses. For a vassal to enter into a treaty obligation and later to break it was considered an act of treason worthy of death. So it is here for Israel.



Shechem, viewed from Mount Gerazim, where Joshua placed a standing stone to commemorate the covenant.

24:23 Joshua charged Israel to get rid of the foreign gods that are among you. The people made their promises, but the report does not indicate that they did away with their gods, unlike their ancestor Jacob. He buried the gods in his possession at Shechem, the same place where his descendants now stood (Gn 35:2-4).

24:26-27 Joshua declared that this covenant would be written in the book of the law of God. This suggests that the covenant was preserved in the most sacred and holy place possible. It would never be changed. The stone that Joshua erected, like those at the crossing of the Jordan (4:1-7,20-24), would stand as a witness for future generations of all the people agreed to at this place. Israel might be tempted to change, but the stone would always stand as a reminder to the nation of its commitment to the one true God.

24:29-30 These verses are identical to Jdg 2:9-10, where the story of the judges begins as a continuation to that of Joshua and his generation. Joshua is here called the LORD's servant. Just like Moses, who was given this name only at his death, Joshua's honor of receiving it indicates a life of faithfulness (1:1; Dt 34:5). The age of Joseph at his death was also 110 (Gn 50:22,26), which also suggests a life of faithfulness. As Joseph preserved Israel in a time of famine, so Joshua preserved her amid the challenge of taking the land. For Joshua's inheritance and burial site, see note at Jos 19:49-51.

24:31 Despite some uncertainty about their degree of commitment (v. 23), Israel remained faithful to God during the lifetime of Joshua and the elders who had experienced God's miracles and guidance. The following generation would be different as Jdg 2:10-13 attests.

24:32 The mention of Joseph, already hinted at in the age of Joshua's death at 110 (v. 29), is here connected with his bones (Gn 50:24-26) and the purchase of the burial place (Gn 33:18-20). This ties together the generation that left the promised land with the one that returned and settled there.

24:33 Both Eleazar son of Aaron and his son Phinehas had been instrumental in the division of the land (14:1; 17:4; 19:51; 21:1; 22:13,30-32). Eleazar represented the religious leadership of the priesthood. He was of Joshua's generation. Phinehas represented the next generation (he would next appear in Jdg 20:28 in a very different context). Unlike Joshua, whose family is not mentioned and who had no successor in leadership, the priestly line was to continue. It would remain a witness of God to His people, the Israelites.

Word Studies nuach Hebrew Pronunciation [NEW ahkh]

HCSB Translation rest Uses in Joshua 9
Uses in the OT 140
Focus Passage Joshua 1:13,15

Nuach means rest (Ex 23:12) or come to rest (Gn 8:4). Locusts settle (Ex 10:14). Rest from enemies means getting rid of them (Est 9:16). Nuach connotes wait (1Sm 25:9), reside (Pr 14:33), remain (Ps 125:3), abide (Ec 7:9), or be calm (Is 14:7). Causally, nuach signifies give rest or comfort (Jos 1:13; Pr 29:17). Nuach describes settling people (Jos 6:23). It means leave something (Gn 19:16) or, with a preposition, leave alone (Ex 32:10). It suggests place (Gn 2:15), set down (Jos 4:3), store (Dt 14:28), or deposit (Nm 19:9). One lets hands slip or rest (Ec 7:18; 11:6). Letting rest conveys allowing (Ps 105:14) or tolerating (Est 3:8). With objects like wrath or spirit, nuach denotes vent (Ezk 5:13), satisfy (Ezk 16:42), or pacify (Zch 6:8). Guards are stationed (2Ch 1:14). The infinitive indicates relief (Neh 9:28).

HCSB Translation shout Uses in Joshua 7
Focus Passage Joshua 6:5,10,16,20

The verb does not occur in other Semitic languages, except perhaps in later Arabic. Heriy‘a means shout, with connotation depending on context. It suggests shout loudly (Zph 3:14) and raise a war/battle cry (2Ch 13:15; Jr 50:15). It implies insulting shouts (Jb 30:5) or fearful crying out (Jdg 7:21). It connotes shout triumphantly or in triumph (Ps 95:1-2; Zch 9:9). It conveys shout for joy or joyfully (Ps 66:1; Is 16:10). With reference to trumpets, heriy‘a means sound the alarm (Jl 2:1) or sound short blasts (Nm 10:7). Heriy‘a occurs (6x) with related teru‘ah (shout, blast) as give/raise a shout (Jos 6:5; 1Sm 4:5), or sound a charge (2Ch 13:12). Heriy‘a appears (7x) with nearly synonymous ranan (“shout, shout for joy”), but ranan does not signify giving war cries. Re‘a (3x) indicates shouting (Ex 32:17) and thunder (Jb 36:33), appearing as loudly (Mc 4:9).

charam Hebrew Pronunciation [khah RAM]
HCSB Translation set apart for destruction, devote, completely destroy Uses in Joshua 14
Uses in the OT 50
Focus Passage Joshua 10:1,28,25,27,39-40

Charam, closely associated with God, negatively implies judicial punishment that sets people or things apart for destruction (Is 34:2). It means completely destroy (Nm 21:2) or annihilate (Dn 11:44). The context was usually warfare, but such punishment might overtake an individual (Ex 22:20). Positively, Israelites could permanently set possessions apart to the Lord as holy (Lv 27:28). They devoted spoils of war to the Lord (Mc 4:13). The passive may connote forfeit (Ezr 10:8). Cherem (29x) occurs three times with charam (Lv 27:28,29; Jos 6:18). Cherem involves what is devoted (1Ch 2:7) or set apart (Lv 27:29) for destruction. Both people (Jos 6:18) and things (Jos 7:13) can be set apart. Cherem signifies total destruction (Is 43:28), curse of destruction (Zch 14:11), or curse (Mal 4:6). It also indicates things, animals, or people permanently dedicated (Nm 18:14) or set apart (Lv 27:28) to God as holy. These things became the priests' property (Ezk 44:29).

Chalaq, a homonym of chalaq meaning "be smooth," denotes divide (Gn 49:27) or share (Pr 17:2). It signifies endow (Jb 39:17), appoint (2Ch 23:18), be a partner (Pr 29:24), or provide (Dt 4:19). Intensives imply divide up (Jl 3:2), disperse (Gn 49:7), allot (Mc 2:4), apportion (Jb 21:17), assign (Neh 9:22), or distribute (Jos 18:10). People allot (give, claim) as a portion (Is 34:17; Jr 37:12). Cheleq (66x) means portion (Gn 31:14), section, or share. It represents fate (Is 17:14), lot (Jb 20:29), or reward (Ec 2:10). It is plot of land (2Kg 9:10), allotted land (Mc 2:4), land, or field (Hs 5:7). It connotes association (Ps 50:18) and what one knows (Jb 32:17). Machaloqeth (42x) is division (Neh 11:36), allotment, portion, and tour of duty. Chelqah (23x) indicates field and portion (Dt 33:21), section, plot, piece, or parcel of land. Chaluqqah means distribution (2Ch 35:5).

goral Hebrew Pronunciation [goh RAHL]
HCSB Translation lot Uses in Joshua 26
Uses in the OT 77
Focus Passages Joshua 21:4-6,8,10,20,40

The lot was an article cast to decipher God's will, since God revealed His plans to Israel that way (Pr 16:33). Other nations also employed the practice (Jnh 1:7). The lot was usually used for public decision-making, and various techniques for casting existed. Lots could settle disputes (Pr 18:18) or assign goods and services. The lot selected arrangements for priestly duties (1Ch 24:5), responsibilities for providing altar firewood (Neh 10:34), and a goat on the Day of Atonement (Lv 16:8-10). Victors cast the lot to divide war spoils (Ob 11), so it figured prominently when Joshua distributed tribal lands and assigned Levitical cities (Jos 18-19; 21:4-40). The high priest used special lots, the Urim and Thummim, to learn God's will (Ex 28:30). Goral may indicate the allotment or object allotted (Jos 15:1; 21:20). It figuratively indicates one's lot (Pr 1:14; Is 17:14) or destiny (Dn 12:13) in life.

Judah's Leadership against the Canaanites

1 After the death of Joshua, [a] the Israelites inquired of the LORD, [b] "Who will be the first to fight for us against the Canaanites?"

2 The LORD answered, "Judah [c] is to go. [d] I have handed the land over to him." [e]

3 Judah said to his brother Simeon, "Come with me to my territory, and let us fight against the Canaanites. I will also go with you to your territory." So Simeon went with him.

4 When Judah attacked, the LORD handed the Canaanites and Perizzites [f] over to them. They struck down 10,000 men in Bezek. [g] 5 They found Adoni-bezek in Bezek, fought against him, and struck down the Canaanites and Perizzites.

6 When Adoni-bezek fled, they pursued him, seized him, and cut off his thumbs and big toes. [h] 7 Adoni-bezek said, "Seventy kings with their thumbs and big toes cut off used to pick up scraps [A] under my table. God has repaid me for what I have done." They brought him to Jerusalem, and he died there.

8 The men of Judah fought against Jerusalem and captured it. They put the city to the sword and set it on fire. 9 Afterward, the men of Judah marched down to fight against the Canaanites who were living in the hill country, the •Negev , and the Judean foothills. [B] 10 Judah also marched against the Canaanites who were living in Hebron [i] (Hebron was formerly named Kiriath-arba [j]). They struck down Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai. [k] 11 From there they marched against the residents of Debir [l] (Debir was formerly named Kiriath-sepher).

12 Caleb [m] said, "Whoever strikes down and captures Kiriath-sepher, I will give my daughter Achsah [n] to him as a wife." 13 So Othniel [o] son of Kenaz, Caleb's youngest brother, captured it, and Caleb gave his daughter Achsah to him as his wife.

14 When she arrived, she persuaded Othniel [p] to ask her father for a field. As she got off her donkey, Caleb asked her, [q] "What do you want?" 15 She answered him, "Give me a blessing. Since you have given me land in the Negev, [r] give me springs of water also." So Caleb gave her both the upper and lower springs. [s, t]

16 The descendants of the Kenite, Moses' father-in-law, [u] had gone up with the men of Judah from the City of Palms [v, w] to the Wilderness of Judah, which was in the Negev of Arad. [x] They went to live among the people.

17 Judah went with his brother Simeon, struck the Canaanites who were living in Zephath, and •completely destroyed the town. So they named the town Hormah. [y] 18 Judah captured Gaza and its territory, Ashkelon and its territory, and Ekron and its territory. [z] 19 The LORD was with [a] Judah and enabled them to take possession of the hill country, but they could not drive out [b] the people who were living in the valley because those people had iron chariots. [c, d]

20 Judah gave Hebron to Caleb, just as Moses had promised. [e] Then Caleb drove out the three sons of Anak [f] who lived there. [g]

Benjamin's Failure

21 At the same time the Benjaminites did not drive out the Jebusites who were living in Jerusalem. The Jebusites have lived among the Benjaminites in Jerusalem to this day. [h]

Success of the House of Joseph 22 The house of Joseph also attacked Bethel, and the LORD was with [i] them. 23 They sent spies to Bethel (the town was formerly named Luz [j]). 24 The spies saw a man coming out of the town and said to him, "Please show us how to get into town, and we will treat you well." [k] 25 When he showed them the way into the town, they put the town to the sword but released the man and his entire family. 26 Then the man went to the land of the Hittites, built a town, and named it Luz. That is its name to this day.

Failure of the Other Tribes 27 At that time Manasseh failed to take possession of Beth-shean [l, m] and its villages, [n] or Taanach [o] and its villages, or the residents of Dor [p] and its villages, or the residents of Ibleam [q, r] and its villages, or the residents of Megiddo [s] and its villages; the Canaanites refused to leave [t] this land. [u] 28 When Israel became stronger, they made the Canaanites serve as forced labor but never drove them out completely. [v]

29 At that time Ephraim failed to drive out the Canaanites who were living in Gezer, so the Canaanites have lived among them in Gezer. [w, x]

30 Zebulun failed to drive out the residents of Kitron or the residents of Nahalol, [y] so the Canaanites lived among them and served as forced labor.

31 Asher failed to drive out the residents of Acco [z] or of Sidon, or Ahlab, Achzib, Helbah, Aphik, or Rehob. 32 The Asherites lived among the Canaanites who were living in the land, because they failed to drive them out.

33 Naphtali did not drive out the residents of Beth-shemesh or the residents of Beth-anath. They lived among the Canaanites who were living in the land, but the residents of Beth-shemesh and Beth-anath served as their forced labor.

34 The Amorites [a] forced the Danites into the hill country and did not allow them to go down into the valley. 35 The Amorites refused to leave [C] Har-heres, Aijalon, [b] and Shaalbim. When the house of Joseph got the upper hand, [D] the Amorites [c] were made to serve as forced labor. 36 The territory of the Amorites extended from the Ascent of Akrabbim, [d] that is from Sela [e] upward.

Pattern of Sin and Judgment

2 The Angel of the LORD [a] went up from Gilgal to Bochim [b] and said, "I brought you out of Egypt and led you into the land [c] I had promised to your fathers. [d] I also said: I will never break My covenant with you. 2 You are not to make a covenant [e] with the people who are living in this land, and you are to tear down their altars. [f, g] But you have not obeyed Me. What is this you have done? 3 Therefore, I now say: I will not drive out these people before you. [h] They will be thorns [i, A] in your sides, [j] and their gods will be a trap for you." [k] 4 When the Angel of the LORD had spoken these words to all the Israelites, the people wept loudly. 5 So they named that place Bochim [B] and offered sacrifices there to the LORD.

Joshua's Death

6 Joshua sent the people away, and the Israelites went to take possession of the land, each to his own inheritance. [l] 7 The people worshiped the LORD throughout Joshua's lifetime and during the lifetimes of the elders who outlived [C] Joshua. They had seen all the LORD's great works [m] He had done for Israel.

8 Joshua son of Nun, the servant of the LORD, died at the age of 110. 9 They buried him in the territory of his inheritance, in Timnath-heres, in the hill country of Ephraim, [n] north of Mount Gaash. 10 That whole generation was also gathered to their ancestors. After them another generation rose up who did not know the LORD [o] or the works He had done for Israel.

11 The Israelites did what was evil in the LORD's sight. [p] They worshiped the •Baals [q] 12 and abandoned the LORD, the God of their fathers, who had brought them out of Egypt. They went after other gods from the surrounding peoples [r] and bowed down to them. They infuriated the LORD, [s] 13 for they abandoned Him and worshiped Baal and the •Ashtoreths . [t]

14 The LORD's anger burned against Israel, and He handed them over to marauders who raided them. He sold [u] them to [D] the enemies around them, and they could no longer resist their enemies. 15 Whenever the Israelites went out, the LORD [E] was against them [v] and brought disaster on them, just as He had promised and sworn to them. [w] So they suffered greatly.

16 The LORD raised up [x] judges, who saved them from the power of their marauders, 17 but they did not listen to their judges. Instead, they prostituted [y] themselves with other gods, bowing down to them. They quickly turned from the way [z] of their fathers, who had walked in obedience to the LORD's commands. They did not do as their fathers did. 18 Whenever the LORD raised up a judge for the Israelites, the LORD was with [a] him and saved the people from the power of their enemies while the judge was still alive. [F] The LORD was moved to pity whenever they groaned because of those who were oppressing and afflicting them. 19 Whenever the judge died, the Israelites would act even more corruptly [b] than their fathers, going after other gods to worship and bow down to them. They did not turn from their evil practices or their obstinate [c] ways.

20 The LORD's anger burned against Israel, and He declared, "Because this nation has violated My covenant [d] that I made with their fathers [e] and disobeyed Me, 21 I will no longer drive out before them any of the nations Joshua left [f] when he died. [g] 22 I did this to test Israel and to see whether they would keep the LORD's way [h] by walking in it, as their fathers had." [i] 23 The LORD left these nations and did not drive them out immediately. He did not hand them over to Joshua.

The LORD Tests Israel

3 These are the nations the Lord left in order to test Israel, since the Israelites had fought none of these in [A] any of the wars with Canaan. [a] [2] This was to teach the future generations of the Israelites how to fight in battle, especially those who had not fought before. [B] [3] These nations included: the five rulers [b] of the Philistines [c] and all of the Canaanites, the Sidonians, [d] and the Hivites [e] who lived in the Lebanese mountains [f] from Mount Baal-hermon as far as the entrance to Hamath. [C] [4] The Lord left them to test Israel, to determine if they would keep the Lord's commands He had given their fathers through [D] Moses. [g] [5] But they settled among the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites. [6] The Israelites took their daughters as wives for themselves, gave their own daughters to their sons, and worshiped their gods. [h]

Othniel, the First Judge [7] The Israelites did what was evil in the Lord's sight;
they forgot the Lord their God [i] and worshiped the •Baals and the •Asherahs .
[8] The Lord's anger burned against Israel, and He sold them to [E] Cushan- rishathaim [F] king of Aram-naharaim, [j, k] and the Israelites served him eight years.

[9] The Israelites cried out to the Lord. [l] So the Lord raised up Othniel son of Kenaz, Caleb's youngest brother [m] as a deliverer [n] to save the Israelites. [10] The Spirit of the Lord came on him, and he judged Israel. Othniel went out to battle, and the Lord handed over Cushan-rishathaim king of Aram to him, so that Othniel overpowered him. [11] Then the land was peaceful [o] 40 years, and Othniel son of Kenaz died.

Ehud

12 The Israelites again did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He gave Eglon king of Moab [p] power over Israel, because they had done what was evil in the LORD's sight. 13 After Eglon convinced the Ammonites and the Amalekites to join forces with him, he attacked and defeated Israel and took possession of the City of Palms. [q, r] 14 The Israelites served Eglon king of Moab 18 years.

15 Then the Israelites cried out to the LORD, and He raised up Ehud son of Gera, a left-handed [s] Benjaminite, [t] as a deliverer for them. The Israelites sent him to Eglon king of Moab with tribute [u] money.

16 Ehud made himself a double-edged sword 18 inches long. [G] He strapped it to his right thigh under his clothes 17 and brought the tribute to Eglon king of Moab, who was an extremely fat man. 18 When Ehud had finished presenting the tribute, he dismissed the people who had carried it. 19 At the carved images near Gilgal he returned and said, "King Eglon, I have a secret message for you."
The king called for silence, and all his attendants left him. 20 Then Ehud approached him while he was sitting alone in his room upstairs where it was cool. Ehud said, "I have a word from God for you," and the king stood up from his throne. [v] 21 Ehud [w] reached with his left hand, took the sword from his right thigh, and plunged it into Eglon's belly. 22 Even the handle went in after the blade, and Eglon's fat closed in over it, so that Ehud did not withdraw the sword from his belly. And Eglon's insides came out. 23 Ehud escaped by way of the porch, closing and locking the doors of the upstairs room behind him.

24 Ehud was gone when Eglon's servants came in. They looked and found the doors of the upstairs room locked and thought he was relieving himself [H] in the cool room. 25 The servants waited until they became worried and saw that he had still not opened the doors of the upstairs room. So they took the key and opened the doors — and there was their lord lying dead on the floor!

26 Ehud escaped while the servants waited. He crossed over the Jordan near the carved images and reached Seirah. 27 After he arrived, he sounded the ram's horn throughout the hill country of Ephraim. The Israelites came down with him from the hill country, and he became their leader. 28 He told them, "Follow me, because the LORD has handed over your enemies, the Moabites, to you." So they followed him, captured the fords of the Jordan leading to Moab, and did not allow anyone to cross over. [x] 29 At that time they struck down about 10,000 Moabites, all strong and able-bodied men. Not one of them escaped. 30 Moab became subject to Israel that day, and the land was peaceful 80 years.

Shamgar

31 After Ehud, Shamgar son of Anath became judge. He delivered Israel by striking down 600 Philistines with an oxgoad.

Deborah and Barak

4 The Israelites again did what was evil in the sight of the LORD after Ehud had died. 2 So the LORD sold them into the hand of Jabin [a] king of Canaan, who reigned in Hazor. [b] The commander of his forces was Sisera [c] who lived in Harosheth of the Nations. [A] 3 Then the Israelites cried out [d] to the LORD, because Jabin had 900 iron chariots, and he harshly oppressed them 20 years.

4 Deborah, a woman who was a prophetess [e] and the wife of Lappidoth, was judging Israel at that time. 5 It was her custom to sit under the palm tree of Deborah between Ramah and Bethel in the hill country of Ephraim, and the Israelites went up to her for judgment. [f]

6 She summoned Barak son of Abinoam from Kedesh in Naphtali and said to him, “Hasn’t the LORD, the God of Israel, [g] commanded you: ‘Go, deploy the troops on Mount Tabor, [h] and take with you 10,000 men from the Naphtalites [i] and Zebulunites? [j] 7 Then I will lure Sisera commander of Jabin’s forces, his chariots, and his army at the •Wadi Kishon [k] to fight against you, and I will hand him over to you.’ ” [l]

8 Barak said to her, “If you will go with me, I will go. But if you will not go with me, I will not go.”

9 “I will go with you,” she said, “but you will receive no honor on the road you are about to take, because the LORD will sell Sisera into a woman’s hand.”
So Deborah got up and went with Barak to Kedesh. 10 Barak summoned Zebulun and Naphtali to Kedesh; 10,000 men followed him, and Deborah also went with him.

11 Now Heber the Kenite had moved away from the Kenites, the sons of Hobab, [m] Moses’ father-in-law, [n] and pitched his tent beside the oak tree of Zaanannim, [o] which was near Kedesh.

12 It was reported to Sisera that Barak son of Abinoam had gone up Mount Tabor. 13 Sisera summoned all his 900 iron chariots and all the people who were with him from Harosheth of the Nations [B] to the Wadi Kishon. 14 Then Deborah said to Barak, “Move on, for this is the day the LORD has handed Sisera over to you. Hasn’t the LORD gone before you? ” So Barak came down from Mount Tabor with 10,000 men following him.

15 The LORD threw Sisera, all his charioteers, and all his army into confusion [p] with the sword before Barak. Sisera left his chariot and fled on foot. 16 Barak pursued the chariots and the army as far as Harosheth of the Nations, [C] and the whole army of Sisera fell by the sword; not a single man was left.

17 Meanwhile, Sisera had fled on foot to the tent of Jael, the wife of Heber the Kenite, because there was peace between Jabin king of Hazor and the family of Heber the Kenite. 18 Jael went out to greet Sisera and said to him, “Come in, my lord. Come in with me. Don’t be afraid.” So he went into her tent, and she covered him with a rug. 19 He said to her, “Please give me a little water to drink for I am thirsty.” She opened a container of milk, gave him a drink, and covered him again. 20 Then he said to her, “Stand at the entrance to the tent. If a man comes and asks you, ‘Is there a man here? ’ say, ‘No.’ ” 21 While he was sleeping from exhaustion, Heber’s wife Jael took a tent peg, grabbed a hammer, and went silently to Sisera. She hammered the peg into his temple and drove it into the ground, and he died.

22 When Barak arrived in pursuit of Sisera, Jael went out to greet him and said to him, “Come and I will show you the man you are looking for.” So he went in with her, and there was Sisera lying dead with a tent peg through his temple!

23 That day God subdued Jabin king of Canaan before the Israelites. 24 The power of the Israelites continued to increase against Jabin king of Canaan until they destroyed him.

Deborah’s Song

5 On that day Deborah and Barak son of Abinoam sang:
2 When the leaders lead [A] in Israel, when the people volunteer,
praise the LORD.
3 Listen, kings! Pay attention, princes!
I will sing to the LORD;
I will sing praise to the LORD God of Israel.
4 LORD, when You came from Seir, [a] when You marched from the fields of Edom, the earth trembled, [b]
the heavens poured [c] rain, and the clouds poured water.
5 The mountains melted before the LORD, even Sinai [B] before the LORD, the God of Israel. [d]

6 In the days of Shamgar [e] son of Anath, in the days of Jael, [f]
the main ways were deserted because travelers kept to the side roads.
7 Villages were deserted, [C]
they were deserted in Israel, until I, Deborah, [D] arose, a mother in Israel.
8 Israel chose new gods,
then war was in the gates.
Not a shield or spear was seen among 40,000 in Israel.
9 My heart is with the leaders of Israel, with the volunteers of the people.
Praise the LORD!
10 You who ride on white [E] donkeys, who sit on saddle blankets,
and who travel on the road, give praise!
11 Let them tell the righteous acts [g] of the LORD, the righteous deeds of His warriors in Israel, with the voices of the singers at the watering places. [F]

Then the LORD's people went down to the gates.

12 “Awake! Awake, Deborah!
Awake! Awake, sing a song!
Arise, Barak,
and take hold of your captives, son of Abinoam! ”
13 The survivors [h] came down to the nobles; [i] the LORD’s people came down to me [j] with the warriors.
14 Those with their roots in Amalek [k] came from Ephraim;
Benjamin came with your people after you.
The leaders came down from Machir, [l] and those who carry a marshal’s staff came from Zebulun.
15 The princes of Issachar were with Deborah;
Issachar was with Barak.
They set out at his heels [m] in the valley.
There was great searching [n] of heart
among the clans of Reuben.
16 Why did you sit among the sheepfolds listening to the playing of pipes for the flocks?
There was great searching of heart
among the clans of Reuben.
17 Gilead [o] remained beyond the Jordan.
Dan, why did you linger at the ships?
Asher remained at the seashore and stayed in his harbors.
18 Zebulun was a people risking their lives,
Naphtali also, on the heights of the battlefield.

19 Kings came and fought.
Then the kings of Canaan fought at Taanach by the waters of Megiddo, but they took no spoil of silver.
20 The stars fought from the heavens;
the stars fought with Sisera from their courses.
21 The river Kishon swept them away, [p]
the ancient river, the river Kishon.
March on, my soul, in strength!
22 The horses’ hooves then hammered — the galloping, galloping of his [q] stallions.

23 “Curse Meroz,” says the Angel of the LORD, “Bitterly curse her inhabitants, for they did not come to help the LORD,
to help the LORD against the mighty warriors.”

24 Jael is most blessed of women, the wife of Heber the Kenite;
she is most blessed among tent-dwelling women.
25 He asked for water; she gave him milk.
She brought him curdled milk [r] in a majestic bowl.
26 She reached for a tent peg, her right hand, for a workman’s mallet.
Then she hammered Sisera — she crushed his head;
she shattered and pierced his temple.
27 He collapsed, he fell, he lay down at [G] her feet;
he collapsed, he fell at her feet;
where he collapsed, there he fell — dead.

28 Sisera’s mother looked through the window;
she peered through the lattice, crying out:
“Why is his chariot so long in coming?
Why don’t I hear the hoofbeats of his horses? ” [H] 29 Her wisest princesses answer her;
she even answers herself: [I] 30 “Are they not finding and dividing the spoil — a girl or two for each warrior, the spoil of colored garments for Sisera,
the spoil of an embroidered garment or two for my neck? ” [J]

31 LORD, may all your enemies perish as Sisera did. [K]
But may those who love Him be like the rising of the sun in its strength.

And the land was peaceful 40 years.

Midian Oppresses Israel

6 The Israelites did what was evil in the sight of the Lord. So the Lord handed [a] them over to Midian seven years, 2 and they oppressed Israel. [b] Because of Midian, the Israelites made hiding places [c] for themselves in the mountains, caves, and strongholds. 3 Whenever the Israelites planted crops, the Midianites, Amalekites, and the Qedemites [d] came and attacked them. 4 They encamped against them and destroyed the produce of the land, even as far as Gaza. They left nothing for Israel to eat, as well as no sheep, ox or donkey. 5 For the Midianites came with their cattle and their tents like a great swarm of locusts. They and their camels were without number, and they entered the land to waste it. 6 So Israel became poverty-stricken because of Midian, and the Israelites cried out to the Lord.

7 When the Israelites cried out to Him because of Midian, 8 the Lord sent a prophet [e] to them. He said to them, "This is what the Lord [f] God of Israel says: 'I brought you out of Egypt and out of the place of slavery. [g] 9 I delivered you from the power of Egypt and the power of all who oppressed [h] you. I drove them out before you and gave you their land. 10 I said to you: I am •Yahweh your God. Do not fear the gods of the Amorites whose land you live in. But you did not obey Me.' "

The Lord Calls Gideon 11 The Angel [A] of the Lord [i] came, and He [B] sat under the oak that was in Ophrah, which belonged to Joash, the Abiezrite. His son Gideon was threshing wheat in the wine vat in order to hide it from the Midianites. 12 Then the Angel of the Lord appeared to him and said: "The Lord is with you, mighty warrior."

13 Gideon said to Him, "Please Sir, [C] if the Lord is with us, why has all this happened? [D] And where are all His wonders that our fathers told us about? They said, 'Hasn't the Lord brought us out of Egypt? ' But now the Lord has abandoned us and handed us over to Midian."

14 The Lord [j] turned to him and said, "Go in the strength you have and deliver Israel from the power of Midian. Am I not sending you? "

15 He said to Him, "Please, Lord, how can I deliver Israel? Look, my family is the weakest in Manasseh, and I am the youngest in my father's house."

16 "But I will be with you," [k] the Lord said to him. "You will strike Midian down as if it were one man."

17 Then he said to Him, "If I have found favor in Your sight, [l] give me a sign [m] that You are speaking with me. 18 Please do not leave this place until I return to You. Let me bring my gift and set it before You."

And He said, “I will stay until you return.”

19 So Gideon went and prepared a young goat and unleavened bread from a half bushel [E] of flour. He placed the meat in a basket and the broth in a pot. He brought them out and offered them to Him under the oak.

20 The Angel of God [n] said to him, “Take the meat with the unleavened bread, put it on this stone, and pour the broth on it.” And he did so.

21 The Angel of the LORD extended the tip of the staff that was in His hand and touched the meat and the unleavened bread. Fire came up from the rock and consumed the meat and the unleavened bread. Then the Angel of the LORD vanished from his sight.

22 When Gideon realized that He was the Angel of the LORD, he said, “Oh no, Lord GOD! [o] I have seen the Angel of the LORD face to face! ” [p]

23 But the LORD said to him, “Peace to you. Don’t be afraid, for you will not die.” 24 So Gideon built an altar to the LORD there and called it Yahweh Shalom. [q] It is in Ophrah of the Abiezrites until today.

Gideon Tears Down a Baal Altar 25 On that very night the LORD said to him, “Take your father’s young bull and a second bull seven years old. Then tear down the altar of •Baal [r] that belongs to your father and cut down the •Asherah pole beside it. 26 Build a well-constructed altar to the LORD your God on the top of this rock. [s] Take the second bull and offer it as a •burnt offering with the wood of the Asherah pole you cut down.” 27 So Gideon took 10 of his male servants and did as the LORD had told him. But because he was too afraid of his father’s household and the men of the city to do it in the daytime, he did it at night.

28 When the men of the city got up in the morning, they found Baal’s altar torn down, the Asherah pole beside it cut down, and the second bull offered up on the altar that had been built. 29 They said to each other, “Who did this? ” After they made a thorough investigation, they said, “Gideon son of Joash did it.”

30 Then the men of the city said to Joash, “Bring out your son. He must die, because he tore down Baal’s altar and cut down the Asherah pole beside it.”

31 But Joash said to all who stood against him, “Would you plead Baal’s case for him? Would you save him? Whoever pleads his case will be put to death by morning! If he is a god, let him plead his own case because someone tore down his altar.” 32 That day, Gideon’s father called him Jerubbaal, saying, “Let Baal plead his case with him,” because he tore down his altar.

The Sign of the Fleece [33] All the Midianites, Amalekites, and Qedemites gathered together, crossed over the Jordan, and camped in the Valley of Jezreel. [t]

[34] The Spirit of the LORD took control of [F] Gideon, and he blew the ram's horn and the Abiezrites rallied behind him. [35] He sent messengers throughout all of Manasseh, who rallied behind him. He also sent messengers throughout Asher, Zebulun, and Naphtali, who also came to meet him.

[36] Then Gideon said to God, "If You will deliver Israel by my hand, as You said, [37] I will put a fleece of wool here on the threshing floor. If dew is only on the fleece, and all the ground is dry, I will know that You will deliver Israel by my strength, as You said." [38] And that is what happened. When he got up early in the morning, he squeezed the fleece and wrung dew out of it, filling a bowl with water.

[39] Gideon then said to God, "Don't be angry with me; let me speak one more time. Please allow me to make one more test with the fleece. Let it remain dry, and the dew be all over the ground." [40] That night God did as Gideon requested: only the fleece was dry, and dew was all over the ground.

God Selects Gideon's Army

7 Jerubbaal (that is, Gideon) and everyone who was with him, got up early and camped beside the spring of Harod. The camp of Midian was north of them, below the hill of Moreh, in the valley. 2 The LORD said to Gideon, "You have too many people for Me to hand the Midianites over to you, [A] or else Israel might brag: [B] 'I did it myself.' 3 Now announce in the presence of the people:
'Whoever is fearful and trembling may turn back and leave Mount Gilead.' " [a]
So 22,000 of the people turned back, but 10,000 remained.

4 Then the LORD said to Gideon, "There are still too many people. Take them down to the water, and I will test them for you there. If I say to you, 'This one can go with you,' he can go. But if I say about anyone, 'This one cannot go with you,' he cannot go." 5 So he brought the people down to the water, and the LORD said to Gideon, "Separate everyone who laps water with his tongue like a dog.
Do the same with everyone who kneels to drink." 6 The number of those who lapped with their hands to their mouths was 300 men, and all the rest of the people knelt to drink water. 7 The LORD said to Gideon, "I will deliver you with the 300 men who lapped and hand the Midianites over to you. But everyone else is to go home." 8 So Gideon sent all the Israelites to their tents but kept the 300, who took [C] the people's provisions and their trumpets. The camp of Midian was below him in the valley.

Gideon Spies on the Midianite Camp 9 That night the LORD said to him, "Get up and go into the camp, for I have given it into your hand. 10 But if you are afraid to go to the camp, go with Purah your servant. 11 Listen to what they say, and then you will be strengthened to go to the camp." So he went with Purah his servant to the outpost of the troops [D] who were in the camp.

12 Now the Midianites, Amalekites, and all the Qedemites had settled down in the valley like a swarm of locusts, and their camels were as innumerable as the sand on the seashore. 13 When Gideon arrived, there was a man telling his friend about a dream. He said, "Listen, I had a dream: [b] a loaf of barley bread came tumbling into the Midianite camp, struck a tent, and it fell. The loaf turned the tent upside down so that it collapsed."

14 His friend answered: "This is nothing less than the sword of Gideon son of Joash, the Israelite. God has handed the entire Midianite camp over to him."

Gideon Attacks the Midianites 15 When Gideon heard the account of the dream and its interpretation, he bowed in worship. He returned to Israel's camp and said, "Get up, for the LORD has handed the Midianite camp over to you." 16 Then he divided the 300 men into three companies and gave each of the men a trumpet in one hand and an empty pitcher with a torch inside it in the other.

17 "Watch me," he said, [E] "and do the same. When I come to the outpost of the camp, do as I do. 18 When I and everyone with me blow our trumpets, you are also to blow your trumpets all around the camp. Then you will say, 'For •Yahweh and for Gideon! ' "

19 Gideon and the 100 men who were with him went to the outpost of the camp at the beginning of the middle watch after the sentries had been stationed. They blew their trumpets and broke the pitchers that were in their hands. 20 The three companies blew their trumpets and shattered their pitchers. They held their torches in their left hands, their trumpets [F] in their right hands, and shouted, "A sword for Yahweh and for Gideon! " 21 Each Israelite took his position around the camp, and the entire Midianite army fled, and cried out as they ran. 22 When Gideon's men blew their 300 trumpets, the LORD set the swords of each man in the army against each other. They fled to Beth-shittah in the direction of Zererah as far as the border of Abel-meholah [c] near Tabbath. 23 Then the men of Israel were called from Naphtali, Asher, and Manasseh, and they pursued the Midianites.

The Men of Ephraim Join the Battle 24 Gideon sent messengers throughout the hill country of Ephraim with this message: "Come down to intercept the Midianites and take control of the watercourses ahead of them as far as Beth-barah and the Jordan." So all the men of Ephraim [d] were called out, and they took control of the watercourses as far as Beth-barah and the Jordan. 25 They captured Oreb and Zeeb, the two princes of Midian; they killed Oreb at the rock of Oreb and Zeeb at the winepress of Zeeb, while they were pursuing the Midianites. They brought the heads of Oreb and Zeeb to Gideon across the Jordan.

8 The men of Ephraim said to him, “Why have you done this to us, not calling us when you went to fight against the Midianites? ” And they argued with him violently.
2 So he said to them, “What have I done now compared to you? Is not the gleaning [a] of Ephraim better than the vintage [b] of Abiezer? 3 God handed over to you Oreb and Zeeb, the two princes of Midian. What was I able to do compared to you? ” When he said this, their anger against him subsided.

Gideon Pursues the Kings of Midian 4 Gideon and the 300 men came to the Jordan and crossed it. They were exhausted but still in pursuit. 5 He said to the men of Succoth, [c] “Please give some loaves of bread to the people who are following me, [A] because they are exhausted, for I am pursuing Zebah and Zalmunna, the kings of Midian.” 6 But the princes of Succoth asked, “Are [B] Zebah and Zalmunna now in your hands that we should give bread to your army? ” 7 Gideon replied, “Very well, when the LORD has handed Zebah and Zalmunna over to me, I will trample [C] your flesh on thorns and briers from the wilderness! ” 8 He went from there to Penuel and asked the same thing from them. The men of Penuel [d] answered just as the men of Succoth had answered.
9 He also told the men of Penuel, “When I return in peace, I will tear down this tower! ”
10 Now Zebah and Zalmunna were in Karkor, and with them was their army of about 15,000 men, who were all those left of the entire army of the Qedemites. Those who had been killed were 120,000 warriors. [D] 11 Gideon traveled on the caravan route [E] east of Nobah [e] and Jogbehah and attacked their army while the army was unsuspecting. 12 Zebah and Zalmunna fled, and he pursued them. He captured these two kings of Midian and routed the entire army.
13 Gideon son of Joash returned from the battle by the Ascent of Heres. 14 He captured a youth from the men of Succoth and interrogated him. The youth wrote down for him the names of the 77 princes and elders of Succoth. 15 Then he went to the men of Succoth and said, “Here are Zebah and Zalmunna. You taunted me about them, saying, ‘Are [F] Zebah and Zalmunna now in your power that we should give bread to your exhausted men? ’ ” 16 So he took the elders of the city, and he took some thorns and briers from the wilderness, and he disciplined the men of Succoth with them. 17 He also tore down the tower of Penuel and killed the men of the city.

18 He asked Zebah and Zalmunna, “What kind of men did you kill at Tabor? ”
“They were like you,” they said. “Each resembled the son of a king.”
19 So he said, “They were my brothers, the sons of my mother! As the LORD lives, if you had let them live, I would not kill you.” 20 Then he said to Jether, his firstborn, “Get up and kill them.” The youth did not draw his sword, for he was afraid because he was still a youth.
21 Zebah and Zalmunna said, “Get up and kill us yourself, for a man is judged by his strength.” So Gideon got up, killed Zebah and Zalmunna, and took the crescent ornaments that were on the necks of their camels.

Gideon’s Legacy

22 Then the Israelites said to Gideon, “Rule over us, you as well as your sons and your grandsons, for you delivered us from the power of Midian.” 23 But Gideon said to them, “I will not rule over you, and my son will not rule over you; the LORD will rule over you.” 24 Then he said to them, “Let me make a request of you: Everyone give me an earring from his plunder.” Now the enemy had gold earrings because they were Ishmaelites.
25 They said, “We agree to give them.” So they spread out a mantle, and everyone threw an earring from his plunder on it. 26 The weight of the gold earrings he requested was about 43 pounds [G] of gold, in addition to the crescent ornaments and ear pendants, the purple garments on the kings of Midian, and the chains on the necks of their camels. 27 Gideon made an ephod [f] from all this and put it in Ophrah, his hometown. Then all Israel prostituted themselves with it there, and it became a snare to Gideon and his household.
28 So Midian was subdued before the Israelites, and they were no longer a threat. [H] The land was peaceful 40 years during the days of Gideon. 29 Jerubbaal (that is, Gideon) son of Joash went back to live at his house.
30 Gideon had 70 sons, his own offspring, since he had many wives. 31 His concubine who was in Shechem [g] also bore him a son, and he named him Abimelech. 32 Then Gideon son of Joash died at a ripe old age and was buried in the tomb of his father Joash in Ophrah of the Abiezrites.
33 When Gideon died, the Israelites turned and prostituted themselves with the •Baals and made Baal-berith [I] their god. 34 The Israelites did not remember the LORD their God who had delivered them from the power of the enemies around them. 35 They did not show kindness [h] to the house of Jerubbaal (that is, Gideon) for all the good he had done for Israel.

Abimelech Becomes King

9 Abimelech son of Jerubbaal went to his mother's brothers at Shechem and spoke to them and to all his maternal grandfather's clan, saying, 2 "Please speak in the presence of all the lords of Shechem, 'Is it better for you that 70 men, all the sons of Jerubbaal, [a] rule over you or that one man rule over you? ' Remember that I am your own flesh and blood." [A] 3 His mother's relatives spoke all these words about him in the presence of all the lords of Shechem, and they were favorable to Abimelech, for they said, "He is our brother." 4 So they gave him 70 pieces of silver from the temple of Baalberith. [B] Abimelech hired worthless and reckless men with this money, and they followed him. 5 He went to his father's house in Ophrah and killed his 70 brothers, the sons of Jerubbaal, on top of a large stone. But Jotham, the youngest son of Jerubbaal, survived, because he hid himself. 6 Then all the lords of Shechem and of Beth-millo gathered together and proceeded to make Abimelech king at the oak of the pillar in Shechem.

Jotham's Parable

7 When they told Jotham, he climbed to the top of Mount Gerizim, [b] raised his voice, and called to them:

Listen to me, lords of Shechem, and may God listen to you:
8 The trees set out to anoint a king over themselves.
They said to the olive tree, "Reign over us."
9 But the olive tree said to them,
"Should I stop giving my oil that honors both God and man, and rule [C] over the trees? "

10 Then the trees said to the fig tree,
"Come and reign over us."
11 But the fig tree said to them,
"Should I stop giving my sweetness and my good fruit, and rule [D] over trees? "

12 Later, the trees said to the grapevine,
"Come and reign over us."
13 But the grapevine said to them,
"Should I stop giving my wine that cheers both God and man, and rule [E] over trees? ”

14 Finally, all the trees said to the bramble,
“Come and reign over us.”
15 The bramble said to the trees,
“If you really are anointing me as king over you,
come and find refuge in my shade.
But if not,
may fire come out from the bramble and consume the cedars of Lebanon.”

16 “Now if you have acted faithfully [c] and honestly [d] in making Abimelech king, if you have done well by Jerubbaal and his family, and if you have rewarded him appropriately for what he did — 17 for my father fought for you, risked his life, and delivered you from the hand of Midian, 18 and now you have attacked my father’s house today, killed his 70 sons on top of a large stone, and made Abimelech, the son of his slave, king over the lords of Shechem ‘because he is your brother’ — 19 if then you have acted faithfully and honestly with Jerubbaal and his house this day, rejoice in Abimelech and may he also rejoice in you. 20 But if not, may fire come from Abimelech and consume the lords of Shechem and Beth-millo, and may fire come from the lords of Shechem and Beth-millo and consume Abimelech.” 21 Then Jotham fled, escaping to Beer, and lived there because of his brother Abimelech.

Abimelech’s Punishment

22 When Abimelech had ruled over Israel three years, 23 God sent an evil spirit [e] between Abimelech and the lords of Shechem. They treated Abimelech deceitfully, 24 so that the crime against the 70 sons of Jerubbaal might come to justice and their blood would be avenged on their brother Abimelech, who killed them, and on the lords of Shechem, who had helped him kill his brothers. 25 The lords of Shechem rebelled against him by putting people on the tops of the mountains to ambush [f] and rob everyone who passed by them on the road. So this was reported to Abimelech.

26 Gaal son of Ebed came with his brothers and crossed into Shechem, and the lords of Shechem trusted him. 27 So they went out to the countryside and harvested grapes from their vineyards. They trampled the grapes and held a celebration. [g] Then they went to the house of their god, and as they ate and drank, they cursed Abimelech. 28 Gaal son of Ebed said, “Who is Abimelech and who is Shechem that we should serve him? Isn’t he the son of Jerubbaal, and isn’t Zebul his officer? You are to serve the men of Hamor, the father of Shechem. [h] Why should we serve Abimelech? 29 If only these people were in my power, I would remove Abimelech.” So he said [i] to Abimelech, “Gather your army and come out.”

30 When Zebul, the ruler of the city, heard the words of Gaal son of Ebed, he was angry. 31 So he sent messengers secretly to Abimelech, saying, “Look, Gaal son of Ebed, with his brothers, have come to Shechem and are turning the city against you. [F] 32 Now tonight, you and the people with you are to come wait in ambush in the countryside. 33 Then get up early, and at sunrise charge the city.
When he and the people who are with him come out against you, do to him whatever you can.” [G] 34 So Abimelech and all the people with him got up at night and waited in ambush for Shechem in four units.
35 Gaal son of Ebed went out and stood at the entrance of the city gate. Then Abimelech and the people who were with him got up from their ambush.
36 When Gaal saw the people, he said to Zebul, “Look, people are coming down from the mountaintops! ” But Zebul said to him, “The shadows of the mountains look like men to you.”
37 Then Gaal spoke again, “Look, people are coming down from the central part of the land, [j] and one unit is coming from the direction of the Diviners’ Oak.” 38 Zebul replied, [H] “Where is your mouthing off now? You said, ‘Who is Abimelech that we should serve him? ’ Aren’t these the people you despised?
Now go and fight them! ”
39 So Gaal went out leading the lords of Shechem and fought against Abimelech, 40 but Abimelech pursued him, and Gaal fled before him. Many wounded died [k] as far as the entrance of the gate. 41 Abimelech stayed in Arumah, and Zebul drove Gaal and his brothers from Shechem.
42 The next day when the people went into the countryside, this was reported to Abimelech. 43 He took the people, divided them into three companies, and waited in ambush in the countryside. He looked, and the people were coming out of the city, so he arose against them and struck them down. 44 Then Abimelech and the units that were with him rushed forward and took their stand at the entrance of the city gate. The other two units rushed against all who were in the countryside and struck them down. 45 So Abimelech fought against the city that entire day, captured it, and killed the people who were in it. Then he tore down the city and sowed it with salt.

46 When all the lords of the Tower of Shechem heard, they entered the inner chamber [I] of the temple of El-berith. [l] 47 Then it was reported to Abimelech that all the lords of the Tower of Shechem had gathered together. 48 So Abimelech and all the people who were with him went up to Mount Zalmon. Abimelech took his ax in his hand and cut a branch from the trees. He picked up the branch, put it on his shoulder, and said to the people who were with him, “Hurry and do what you have seen me do.” 49 Each person also cut his own branch and followed Abimelech. They put the branches against the inner chamber and set it on fire around the people, and all the people in the Tower of Shechem died — about 1,000 men and women.

50 Abimelech went to Thebez, [m] camped against it, and captured it. 51 There was a strong tower inside the city, and all the men, women, and lords of the city fled there. They locked themselves in and went up to the roof of the tower.
52 When Abimelech came to attack the tower, he approached its entrance to set it on fire. 53 But a woman threw the upper portion of a millstone on Abimelech’s head and fractured his skull. 54 He quickly called his armor-bearer and said to him, “Draw your sword and kill me, or they’ll say about me, ‘A woman killed him.’ ” So his armor-bearer thrust him through, and he died. 55 When the Israelites saw that Abimelech was dead, they all went home.

56 In this way, God turned back on Abimelech the evil that he had done against his father, by killing his 70 brothers. 57 And God also returned all the evil of the men of Shechem on their heads. So the curse of Jotham son of Jerubbaal came on them. [n]

Tola and Jair

10 After Abimelech, Tola son of Puah, son of Dodo became judge and began to deliver Israel. He was from Issachar and lived in Shamir in the hill country of Ephraim. 2 Tola judged Israel 23 years and when he died, was buried in Shamir.
3 After him came Jair the Gileadite, [a] who judged Israel 22 years. 4 He had 30 sons who rode on 30 donkeys. They had 30 towns [b] in Gilead, which are called Jair's Villages [A] to this day. 5 When Jair died, he was buried in Kamon.

Israel's Rebellion and Repentance 6 Then the Israelites again did what was evil in the sight of the LORD. [c] They worshiped the •Baals and the •Ashtoreths , the gods of Aram, Sidon, and Moab, and the gods of the Ammonites and the Philistines. [d] They abandoned •Yahweh and did not worship Him. [e] 7 So the LORD*'s anger burned against Israel, and He sold them to* [B] the Philistines and the Ammonites. 8 They shattered and crushed the Israelites that year, and for 18 years they did the same to all the Israelites who were on the other side of the Jordan [f] in the land of the Amorites [g] in Gilead. 9 The Ammonites also crossed the Jordan to fight against Judah, Benjamin, and the house of Ephraim. Israel was greatly oppressed, 10 so they cried out to the LORD*, saying, "We have sinned* against You. [h] We have abandoned our God and worshiped the Baals." 11 The LORD said to the Israelites, "When the Egyptians, [i] Amorites, Ammonites, Philistines, 12 Sidonians, Amalekites, and Maonites [j, k] oppressed you, and you cried out to Me, did I not deliver you from their power? 13 But you have abandoned Me and worshiped other gods. Therefore, I will not deliver you again. 14 Go and cry out to the gods you have chosen. [l] Let them deliver you in the time of your oppression." 15 But the Israelites said, "We have sinned. Deal with us as You see fit; [C] only deliver us [m] today! " 16 So they got rid of the foreign gods [n] among them and worshiped the LORD, [o] and He became weary [p] of Israel's misery.
17 The Ammonites were called together, and they camped in Gilead. So the Israelites assembled and camped at Mizpah. [q] 18 The rulers [D] of Gilead said to one another, "Which man will lead the fight against the Ammonites? He will be the leader of all the inhabitants of Gilead."

Jephthah Becomes Israel's Leader

11 Jephthah [a] the Gileadite was a great warrior, [b] but he was the son of a prostitute, and Gilead was his father. 2 Gilead's wife bore him sons, and when they grew up, they drove Jephthah out and said to him, "You will have no inheritance in our father's house, because you are the son of another woman." 3 So Jephthah fled from his brothers and lived in the land of Tob. [c] Then some lawless men joined Jephthah and traveled with him.

4 Some time later, the Ammonites fought against Israel. 5 When the Ammonites made war with Israel, the elders of Gilead went to get Jephthah from the land of Tob. 6 They said to him, "Come, be our commander, and let's fight against the Ammonites."

7 Jephthah replied to the elders of Gilead, "Didn't you hate me and drive me from my father's house? Why then have you come to me now when you're in trouble? "

8 They answered Jephthah, "Since that's true, we now turn to you. Come with us, fight the Ammonites, and you will become leader of all the inhabitants of Gilead."

9 So Jephthah said to them, "If you are bringing me back to fight the Ammonites and the LORD gives them to me, I will be your leader."

10 The elders of Gilead said to Jephthah, "The LORD is our witness if we don't do as you say." 11 So Jephthah went with the elders of Gilead. The people put him over themselves as leader and commander, and Jephthah repeated all his terms in the presence of the LORD at Mizpah.

Jephthah Rejects Ammonite Claims 12 Jephthah sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites, saying, "What do you have against me that you have come to fight against me in my land? "

13 The king of the Ammonites said to Jephthah's messengers, "When Israel came from Egypt, they seized my land from the Arnon to the Jabbok [d] and the Jordan. Now restore it peaceably."

14 Jephthah again sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites 15 to tell him, "This is what Jephthah says: Israel did not take away the land of Moab or the land of the Ammonites. 16 But when they came from Egypt, Israel traveled through the wilderness to the •Red Sea and came to Kadesh. 17 Israel sent messengers to the king of Edom, saying, 'Please let us travel through your land,' but the king of Edom would not listen. They also sent messengers to the king of Moab, but he refused. So Israel stayed in Kadesh.

18 "Then they traveled through the wilderness and around the lands of Edom and Moab. They came to the east side of the land of Moab and camped on the other side of the Arnon but did not enter into the territory of Moab, for the Arnon was the boundary of Moab.

19 “Then Israel sent messengers to Sihon king of the Amorites, king of Heshbon. [e] Israel said to him, ‘Please let us travel through your land to our country,’ 20 but Sihon would not trust Israel to pass through his territory. Instead, Sihon gathered all his people, camped at Jahaz, and fought with Israel. 21 Then the Lord God of Israel handed over Sihon and all his people to Israel, and they defeated them. So Israel took possession [f] of the entire land of the Amorites who lived in that country. 22 They took possession of all the territory of the Amorites from the Arnon to the Jabbok and from the wilderness to the Jordan.

23 “The Lord God of Israel has now driven out the Amorites before His people Israel, and will you now force us out? 24 Isn’t it true that you may possess whatever your god Chemosh drives out for you, and we may possess everything the Lord our God drives out before us? 25 Now are you any better than Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab? Did he ever contend with Israel or fight against them? 26 While Israel lived 300 years in Heshbon and its villages, in Aroer and its villages, and in all the cities that are on the banks of the Arnon, why didn’t you take them back at that time? 27 I have not sinned against you, but you have wronged me by fighting against me. Let the Lord who is the Judge [g] decide today between the Israelites and the Ammonites.” 28 But the king of the Ammonites would not listen to Jephthah’s message that he sent him.

Jephthah’s Vow and Sacrifice 29 The Spirit of the Lord came on Jephthah, who traveled through Gilead and Manasseh, and then through Mizpah of Gilead. He crossed over to the Ammonites from Mizpah of Gilead. 30 Jephthah made this vow [h] to the Lord: “If You will hand over the Ammonites to me, 31 whatever comes out of the doors of my house to greet me when I return in peace from the Ammonites will belong to the Lord, and I will offer it as a •burnt offering.” [i]

32 Jephthah crossed over to the Ammonites to fight against them, and the Lord handed them over [j] to him. 33 He defeated 20 of their cities with a great slaughter from Aroer all the way to the entrance of Minnith and to Abel-keramim. So the Ammonites were subdued [k] before the Israelites.

34 When Jephthah went to his home in Mizpah, there was his daughter, coming out to meet him with tambourines and dancing! [l] She was his only child; he had no other son or daughter besides her. 35 When he saw her, he tore his clothes and said, “No! Not my daughter! You have devastated me! You have brought great misery on me. [A] I have given my word to the LORD and cannot take it back."

[36] Then she said to him, "My father, you have given your word to the LORD. Do to me as you have said, for the LORD brought vengeance on your enemies, the Ammonites." [37] She also said to her father, "Let me do this one thing: Let me wander two months through the mountains with my friends and mourn my virginity."

[38] "Go," he said. And he sent her away two months. So she left with her friends and mourned her virginity as she wandered through the mountains. [39] At the end of two months, she returned to her father, and he kept the vow he had made about her. And she had never been intimate with a man. Now it became a custom in Israel [40] that four days each year the young women of Israel would commemorate the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite.

Conflict with Ephraim

12 The men of Ephraim were called together and crossed the Jordan to Zaphon. [a] They said to Jephthah, “Why have you crossed over to fight against the Ammonites but didn’t call us to go with you? We will burn your house down with you in it! ”

2 Then Jephthah said to them, “My people and I had a serious conflict with the Ammonites. So I called for you, but you didn’t deliver me from their power.
3 When I saw that you weren’t going to deliver me, I took my life in my own hands and crossed over to the Ammonites, and the LORD handed them over to me. Why then have you come [A] today to fight against me? ”

4 Then Jephthah gathered all of the men of Gilead. They fought and defeated Ephraim, because Ephraim had said, “You Gileadites are Ephraimite fugitives in the territories of Ephraim and Manasseh.” 5 The Gileadites captured the fords of the Jordan leading to Ephraim. Whenever a fugitive from Ephraim said, “Let me cross over,” the Gileadites asked him, “Are you an Ephraimite? ” If he answered, “No,” 6 they told him, “Please say Shibboleth.” If he said, “Sibboleth,” because he could not pronounce it correctly, they seized him and killed him at the fords of the Jordan. At that time 42,000 from Ephraim died.

7 Jephthah judged Israel six years, and when he died, he was buried in one of the cities of Gilead. [b]

Ibzan, Elon, and Abdon 8 Ibzan, who was from Bethlehem, [c] judged Israel after Jephthah 9 and had 30 sons. He gave his 30 daughters in marriage to men outside the tribe and brought back 30 wives for his sons from outside the tribe.
Ibzan judged Israel seven years, 10 and when he died, he was buried in Bethlehem.

11 Elon, who was from Zebulun, judged Israel after Ibzan. He judged Israel 10 years, 12 and when he died, he was buried in Aijalon in the land of Zebulun.

13 After Elon, Abdon son of Hillel, who was from Pirathon, [d] judged Israel.
14 He had 40 sons and 30 grandsons, who rode on 70 donkeys. Abdon judged Israel eight years, 15 and when he died, he was buried in Pirathon in the land of Ephraim, in the hill country of the Amalekites. [e]

Birth of Samson, the Last Judge

13 The Israelites again did what was evil in the Lord's sight, [a] so the Lord handed them over to the Philistines 40 years. [2] There was a certain man from Zorah, [b] from the family of Dan, whose name was Manoah; his wife was unable to conceive and had no children. [3] The Angel of the Lord appeared to the woman and said to her, "It is true that you are unable to conceive and have no children, but you will conceive and give birth to a son. [4] Now please be careful not to drink wine or beer, [c] or to eat anything •unclean ; [d] [5] for indeed, you will conceive and give birth to a son. You must never cut his hair, [A] because the boy will be a Nazirite [e] to God from birth, and he will begin to save Israel from the power of the Philistines."

6 Then the woman went and told her husband, "A man of God came to me. He looked like the awe-inspiring Angel of God. I didn't ask Him where He came from, and He didn't tell me His name. 7 He said to me, 'You will conceive and give birth to a son. Therefore, do not drink wine or beer, and do not eat anything unclean, because the boy will be a Nazirite to God from birth until the day of his death.' "

8 Manoah prayed [f] to the Lord and said, "Please Lord, let the man of God you sent come again to us and teach us what we should do for the boy who will be born."

9 God listened [g] to [B] Manoah, and the Angel of God came again to the woman. She was sitting in the field, and her husband Manoah was not with her. 10 The woman ran quickly to her husband and told him, "The man who came to me today has just come back! "

11 So Manoah got up and followed his wife. When he came to the man, he asked, "Are You the man who spoke to my wife? "

"I am," He said.

12 Then Manoah asked, "When Your words come true, what will the boy's responsibilities and mission [C] be? "

13 The Angel of the Lord answered Manoah, "Your wife needs to do everything I told her. 14 She must not eat anything that comes from the grapevine or drink wine or beer. And she must not eat anything unclean. Your wife must do everything I have commanded her."

15 "Please stay here," Manoah told Him, "and we will prepare a young goat [h] for You."

16 The Angel of the Lord said to him, "If I stay, I won't eat your food. But if you want to prepare a •burnt offering, offer it to the Lord." For Manoah did not know He was the Angel of the LORD.

17 Then Manoah said to Him, “What is Your name, so that we may honor You when Your words come true? ”

18 “Why do you ask My name,” the Angel of the LORD asked him, “since it is wonderful.” [i]

19 Manoah took a young goat and a •grain offering and offered them on a rock to the LORD, and He did a wonderful thing [j] while Manoah and his wife were watching. 20 When the flame went up from the altar to the sky, the Angel of the LORD went up in its flame. When Manoah and his wife saw this, they fell facedown on the ground. 21 The Angel of the LORD did not appear again to Manoah and his wife. Then Manoah realized that it was the Angel of the LORD.

22 “We’re going to die,” he said to his wife, “because we have seen God! ” [k]

23 But his wife said to him, “If the LORD had intended to kill us, He wouldn’t have accepted the burnt offering and the grain offering from us, and He would not have shown us all these things or spoken to us now like this.”

24 So the woman gave birth to a son and named him Samson. [l] The boy grew, [m] and the LORD blessed him. 25 Then the Spirit of the LORD began to direct him in the Camp of Dan, [D] between Zorah and Eshtaol. [n]

Samson’s Riddle

14 Samson went down to Timnah [a] and saw a young Philistine woman there.
2 He went back and told his father and his mother: “I have seen a young Philistine woman in Timnah. Now get her for me as a wife.”
3 But his father and mother said to him, “Can’t you find [A] a young woman among your relatives or among any of our people? Must you go to the uncircumcised Philistines for a wife? ”
But Samson told his father, “Get her for me, because I want her.” [B] 4 Now his father and mother did not know this was from the Lord, [b] who was seeking an occasion against the Philistines. At that time, the Philistines were ruling over Israel.
5 Samson went down to Timnah with his father and mother and came to the vineyards of Timnah. Suddenly a young lion came roaring at him, 6 the Spirit of the Lord took control of [C, c] him, and he tore the lion apart with his bare hands as he might have torn a young goat. But he did not tell his father or mother what he had done. 7 Then he went and spoke to the woman, because Samson wanted her. [D] 8 After some time, when he returned to get her, he left the road to see the lion’s carcass, and there was a swarm of bees with honey in the carcass. 9 He scooped some honey into his hands and ate it as he went along. When he returned to his father and mother, he gave some to them and they ate it. But he did not tell them that he had scooped the honey from the lion’s carcass. [d] 10 His father went to visit the woman, and Samson prepared a feast there, as young men were accustomed to do. 11 When the Philistines saw him, they brought 30 men to accompany him.
12 “Let me tell you a riddle,” [e] Samson said to them. “If you can explain it to me during the seven days of the feast and figure it out, I will give you 30 linen garments and 30 changes of clothes. 13 But if you can’t explain it to me, you must give me 30 linen garments and 30 changes of clothes.”
“Tell us your riddle,” they replied. [E] “Let’s hear it.”
14 So he said to them:

Out of the eater came something to eat, and out of the strong came something sweet.

After three days, they were unable to explain the riddle. 15 On the fourth [f] day they said to Samson’s wife, “Persuade your husband to explain the riddle to us, or we will burn you and your father’s household to death. Did you invite us here to rob us? ”

16 So Samson’s wife came to him, weeping, and said, “You hate me and don’t love me! g You told my people the riddle, but haven’t explained it to me.” “Look,” he said, F “I haven’t even explained it to my father or mother, so why should I explain it to you? ” 17 She wept the whole seven days of the feast, and at last, on the seventh day, he explained it to her, because she had nagged him so much. Then she explained it to her people. 18 On the seventh day, before sunset, the men of the city said to him:

What is sweeter than honey?
What is stronger than a lion?

So he said to them:

If you hadn’t plowed with my young cow,
you wouldn’t know my riddle now!

19 The Spirit of the LORD took control of him, and he went down to Ashkelon and killed 30 of their men. He stripped them and gave their clothes to those who had explained the riddle. In a rage, Samson returned to his father’s house, 20 and his wife was given to one of the men who had accompanied him.

Samson's Revenge

15 Later on, during the wheat harvest, [a] Samson took a young goat as a gift and visited his wife. “I want to go to my wife in her room,” he said. But her father would not let him enter.
2 “I was sure you hated her,” her father said, “so I gave her to one of the men who accompanied you. Isn’t her younger sister more beautiful than she is? Why not take her instead? ”
3 Samson said to them, “This time I won’t be responsible [b] when I harm the Philistines.” 4 So he went out and caught 300 foxes. [c] He took torches, turned the foxes tail-to-tail, and put a torch between each pair of tails. 5 Then he ignited the torches and released the foxes into the standing grain of the Philistines. He burned up the piles of grain and the standing grain as well as the vineyards and olive groves. [d]
6 Then the Philistines asked, “Who did this? ”
They were told, “It was Samson, the Timnite’s son-in-law, because he has taken Samson’s wife and given her to another man.” So the Philistines went to her and her father and burned them to death.
7 Then Samson told them, “Because you did this, I swear that I won’t rest until I have taken vengeance on you.” 8 He tore them limb from limb [A] with a great slaughter, and he went down and stayed in the cave at the rock of Etam.
9 The Philistines went up, camped in Judah, and raided Lehi. 10 So the men of Judah said, “Why have you attacked us? ” They replied, “We have come to arrest Samson and pay him back for what he did to us.”
11 Then 3,000 men of Judah went to the cave at the rock of Etam, and they asked Samson, “Don’t you realize that the Philistines rule over us? [e] What have you done to us? ”
“I have done to them what they did to me,” he answered. [B] 12 They said to him, “We’ve come to arrest you and hand you over to the Philistines.”
Then Samson told them, “Swear to me that you yourselves won’t kill me.” 13 “No,” they said, [C] “we won’t kill you, but we will tie you up securely and hand you over to them.” So they tied him up with two new ropes [f] and led him away from the rock.
14 When he came to Lehi, the Philistines came to meet him shouting. The Spirit of the Lord took control of [D] him, and the ropes that were on his arms became like burnt flax and his bonds fell off his wrists. 15 He found a fresh jawbone of a donkey, reached out his hand, took it, and killed 1,000 men with it.

16 Then Samson said:

With the jawbone of a donkey
I have piled them in a heap.
With the jawbone of a donkey
I have killed 1,000 men.

17 When he finished speaking, he threw away the jawbone and named that place Ramath-lehi. g 18 He became very thirsty and called out to the LORD: “You have accomplished this great victory through E Your servant. Must I now die of thirst and fall into the hands of the uncircumcised? ” 19 So God split a hollow place in the ground at Lehi, and water came out of it. After Samson drank, his strength returned, and he revived. h That is why he named it En-hakkore, i which is in Lehi to this day. 20 And he judged Israel 20 years in the days of the Philistines.

Samson and Delilah

16 Samson went to Gaza, [a] where he saw a prostitute and went to bed with her. 2 When the Gazites heard that Samson was there, they surrounded the place and waited in ambush for him all that night at the city gate. While they were waiting quietly, [A] they said, “Let us wait until dawn; then we will kill him.” 3 But Samson stayed in bed until midnight when he got up, took hold of the doors of the city gate along with the two gateposts, and pulled them out, bar and all. He put them on his shoulders and took them to the top of the mountain overlooking Hebron.

4 Some time later, he fell in love with a woman named Delilah, who lived in the Sorek Valley. 5 The Philistine leaders [b] went to her and said, “Persuade him to tell you [B] where his great strength comes from, so we can overpower him, tie him up, and make him helpless. Each of us will then give you 1,100 pieces of silver.”

6 So Delilah said to Samson, “Please tell me, where does your great strength come from? How could someone tie you up and make you helpless? ”

7 Samson told her, “If they tie me up with seven fresh bowstrings that have not been dried, I will become weak and be like any other man.”

8 The Philistine leaders brought her seven fresh bowstrings that had not been dried, and she tied him up with them. 9 While the men in ambush were waiting in her room, she called out to him, “Samson, the Philistines are here! ” [C] But he snapped the bowstrings as a strand of yarn snaps when it touches fire. The secret of his strength remained unknown.

10 Then Delilah said to Samson, “You have mocked me and told me lies!
Won’t you please tell me how you can be tied up? ”

11 He told her, “If they tie me up with new ropes that have never been used, [c] I will become weak and be like any other man.”

12 Delilah took new ropes, tied him up with them, and shouted, “Samson, the Philistines are here! ” [D] But while the men in ambush were waiting in her room, he snapped the ropes off his arms like a thread.

13 Then Delilah said to Samson, “You have mocked me all along and told me lies! Tell me how you can be tied up.”

He told her, “If you weave the seven braids on my head with the web of a loom — ” [d]

14 She fastened the braids with a pin and called to him, “Samson, the Philistines are here! ” [E] He awoke from his sleep and pulled out the pin, with the loom and the web.

15 “How can you say, ‘I love you,’ ” [e] she told him, “when your heart is not with me? This is the third time you have mocked me and not told me what makes your strength so great! ”

16 Because she nagged him day after day and pleaded with him until she wore him out, F 17 he told her the whole truth and said to her, “My hair has never been cut, G because I am a Nazirite [f] to God from birth. If I am shaved, my strength will leave me, and I will become weak and be like any other man.”

18 When Delilah realized that he had told her the whole truth, she sent this message to the Philistine leaders: “Come one more time, for he has told me the whole truth.” The Philistine leaders came to her and brought the money with them.

19 Then she let him fall asleep on her lap and called a man to shave off the seven braids on his head. In this way, she made him helpless, [g] and his strength left him. 20 Then she cried, “Samson, the Philistines are here! ” H When he awoke from his sleep, he said, “I will escape as I did before and shake myself free.” But he did not know that the LORD had left him. [h]

Samson’s Defeat and Death 21 The Philistines seized him and gouged out his eyes. They brought him down to Gaza and bound him with bronze shackles, and he was forced to grind grain in the prison. 22 But his hair began to grow back after it had been shaved.

23 Now the Philistine leaders gathered together to offer a great sacrifice to their god Dagon. [i] They rejoiced and said:

Our god has handed over our enemy Samson to us.

24 When the people saw him, they praised their god [j] and said:

Our god has handed over to us our enemy who destroyed our land and who multiplied our dead.

25 When they were drunk, I they said, “Bring Samson here to entertain us.” So they brought Samson from prison, and he entertained them. They had him stand between the pillars.

26 Samson said to the young man who was leading him by the hand, “Lead me where I can feel the pillars supporting the temple, so I can lean against them.” 27 The temple was full of men and women; all the leaders of the Philistines were there, and about 3,000 men and women were on the roof watching Samson entertain them. 28 He called out to the LORD: “Lord GOD, please remember me. [k]

Strengthen me, God, just once more. With one act of vengeance, let me pay back the Philistines for my two eyes.” 29 Samson took hold of the two middle pillars supporting the temple and leaned against them, one on his right hand and the other on his left. 30 Samson said, “Let me die with the Philistines.” He pushed with all his might, and the temple fell on the leaders and all the people in it. And the dead he killed at his death were more than those he had killed in his life.

31 Then his brothers and his father’s family came down, carried him back, and buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol in the tomb of his father Manoah. So he judged Israel 20 years.

Micah’s Priest

17 There was a man from the hill country of Ephraim named Micah. 2 He said to his mother, “The 1,100 pieces of silver taken from you, and that I heard you utter a curse about — here, I have the silver with me. I took it. So now I return it to you.” [a]

Then his mother said, “My son, you are blessed by the LORD! ” [b]

3 He returned the 1,100 pieces of silver to his mother, and his mother said, “I personally consecrate [c] the silver to the LORD for my son’s benefit to make a carved image overlaid with silver.” [A] 4 So he returned the silver to his mother, and she took five pounds of silver and gave it to a silversmith. He made it into a carved image overlaid with silver, [B] and it was in Micah’s house.

5 This man Micah had a shrine, and he made an •ephod and household idols, [d] and installed one of his sons to be his priest. 6 In those days there was no king in Israel; [e] everyone did whatever he wanted. [C]

7 There was a young man, a Levite from Bethlehem in Judah, who resided within the clan of Judah. [f] 8 The man left the town of Bethlehem in Judah to settle wherever he could find a place. On his way he came to Micah’s home in the hill country of Ephraim.

9 “Where do you come from? ” Micah asked him.

He answered him, “I am a Levite from Bethlehem in Judah, and I’m going to settle wherever I can find a place.”

10 Micah replied, [D] “Stay with me and be my father [g] and priest, and I will give you four ounces of silver a year, along with your clothing and provisions.”
So the Levite went in 11 and agreed to stay with the man, and the young man became like one of his sons. 12 Micah consecrated the Levite, and the young man became his priest [h] and lived in Micah’s house. 13 Then Micah said, “Now I know that the LORD will be good to me, because a Levite has become my priest.”

Dan’s Invasion and Idolatry

18 In those days, there was no king in Israel, [a] and the Danite tribe was looking for territory to occupy. Up to that time no territory had been captured by them among the tribes of Israel. 2 So the Danites sent out five brave men [b] from all their clans, from Zorah and Eshtaol, [c] to scout [d] out the land and explore it. They told them, "Go and explore the land."

They came to the hill country of Ephraim as far as the home of Micah and spent the night there. 3 While they were near Micah's home, they recognized the speech of the young Levite. So they went over to him and asked, "Who brought you here? What are you doing in this place? What is keeping you here? " 4 He told them what Micah had done for him and that he had hired him as his priest.

5 Then they said to him, "Please inquire of God so we will know if we will have a successful journey."

6 The priest told them, "Go in peace. The LORD is watching over the journey you are going on."

7 The five men left and came to Laish. They saw that the people who were there were living securely, in the same way as the Sidonians, quiet and unsuspecting. There was nothing lacking [A] in the land and no oppressive ruler. They were far from the Sidonians, having no alliance with anyone. [e]

8 When the men went back to their clans at Zorah and Eshtaol, their people asked them, "What did you find out? "

9 They answered, "Come on, let's go up against them, for we have seen the land, and it is very good. Why wait? Don't hesitate to go and invade and take possession of the land! 10 When you get there, you will come to an unsuspecting people and a spacious land, for God has handed it over to you. It is a place where nothing on earth is lacking." [f] 11 Six hundred Danites departed from Zorah and Eshtaol armed with weapons of war. 12 They went up and camped at Kiriath-jearim [g] in Judah. This is why the place is called the Camp of Dan [B] to this day; it is west of Kiriath-jearim. 13 From there they traveled to the hill country of Ephraim and arrived at Micah's house.

14 The five men who had gone to scout out the land of Laish told their brothers, "Did you know that there are an •ephod , household gods, and a carved image overlaid with silver [C] in these houses? Now think about what you should do." 15 So they detoured there and went to the house of the young Levite at the home of Micah and greeted him. 16 The 600 Danite men were standing by the entrance of the gate, armed with their weapons of war. 17 Then the five men who had gone to scout out the land went in and took the carved image overlaid with silver, [D] the ephod, and the household idols, while the priest was standing by the entrance of the gate with the 600 men armed with weapons of war.

18 When they entered Micah's house and took the carved image overlaid with silver, [E] the ephod, and the household idols, the priest said to them, "What are you doing? "

19 They told him, "Be quiet. Keep your mouth shut. [F, h] Come with us and be a father and a priest to us. Is it better for you to be a priest for the house of one person or for you to be a priest for a tribe and family in Israel? " 20 So the priest was pleased and took his ephod, household idols, and carved image, and went with the people. 21 They prepared to leave, putting their small children, livestock, and possessions in front of them.

22 After they were some distance from Micah's house, the men who were in the houses near it mobilized and caught up with the Danites. 23 They called to the Danites, who turned to face them, and said to Micah, "What's the matter with you that you mobilized the men? "

24 He said, "You took the gods I had made and the priest, and went away. What do I have left? How can you say to me, 'What's the matter with you? ' "

25 The Danites said to him, "Don't raise your voice against us, or angry men will attack you, and you and your family will lose your lives." 26 The Danites went on their way, and Micah turned to go back home, because he saw that they were stronger than he was.

27 After they had taken the gods Micah had made and the priest that belonged to him, they went to Laish, to a quiet and unsuspecting people. They killed them with their swords and burned down the city. [i] 28 There was no one to rescue them because it was far from Sidon and they had no alliance with anyone. It was in a valley that belonged to Beth-rehob. They rebuilt the city and lived in it. 29 They named the city Dan, after the name of their ancestor Dan, who was born to Israel. The city was formerly named Laish.

30 The Danites set up the carved image for themselves. Jonathan son of Gershom, son of Moses, [j] and his sons were priests for the Danite tribe until the time of the exile from the land. [k] 31 So they set up for themselves Micah's carved image that he had made, and it was there as long as the house of God was in Shiloh.

Outrage in Benjamin

19 In those days, when there was no king in Israel, [a] a Levite living in a remote part of the hill country of Ephraim acquired a woman from Bethlehem in Judah as his concubine. 2 But she was unfaithful to [b] him and left him for her father's house in Bethlehem in Judah. She was there for a period of four months. 3 Then her husband got up and went after her to speak kindly to her [A,] [c] and bring her back. He had his servant with him and a pair of donkeys.
So she brought him to her father's house, and when the girl's father saw him, he gladly welcomed him. 4 His father-in-law, the girl's father, detained him, and he stayed with him for three days. They ate, drank, and spent the nights there.

5 On the fourth day, they got up early in the morning and prepared to go, but the girl's father said to his son-in-law, "Have something to eat to keep up your strength [d] and then you can go." 6 So they sat down and the two of them ate and drank together. Then the girl's father said to the man, "Please agree to stay overnight and enjoy yourself." [e] 7 The man got up to go, but his father-in-law persuaded him, so he stayed and spent the night there again. 8 He got up early in the morning of the fifth day to leave, but the girl's father said to him, "Please keep up your strength." So they waited until late afternoon and the two of them ate. 9 The man got up to go with his concubine and his servant, when his father-in-law, the girl's father, said to him, "Look, night is coming. Please spend the night. See, the day is almost over. Spend the night here, enjoy yourself, then you can get up early tomorrow for your journey and go home."

10 But the man was unwilling to spend the night. He got up, departed, and arrived opposite Jebus (that is, Jerusalem [f]). The man had his two saddled donkeys and his concubine with him. 11 When they were near Jebus and the day was almost gone, the servant [g] said to his master, "Please, why not [B] let us stop at this Jebusite city and spend the night here? "

12 But his master replied to him, "We will not stop at a foreign city where there are no Israelites. Let's move on to Gibeah." [h] 13 "Come on," he said, [C]
"let's try to reach one of these places and spend the night in Gibeah or Ramah."
14 So they continued on their journey, and the sun set as they neared Gibeah in Benjamin. 15 They stopped [D] to go in and spend the night in Gibeah. The Levite went in and sat down in the city square, but no one took them into their home to spend the night.

16 In the evening, an old man came in from his work in the field. He was from the hill country of Ephraim [i] but was residing in Gibeah, and the men of that place were Benjaminites. 17 When he looked up and saw the traveler in the city square, the old man asked, "Where are you going, and where do you come from? ”

18 He answered him, “We’re traveling from Bethlehem in Judah to the remote hill country of Ephraim, where I am from. I went to Bethlehem in Judah, and now I’m going to the house of the LORD. [j] No one has taken me into his home, 19 although we have both straw and feed for our donkeys, and bread and wine for me, your female servant, and the young man with your servant. [k] There is nothing we lack.”

20 “Peace to you,” said the old man. “I’ll take care of everything you need.
Only don’t spend the night in the square.” 21 So he brought him to his house and fed the donkeys. Then they washed their feet and ate and drank. [l] 22 While they were enjoying themselves, all of a sudden, •perverted men of the city [m] surrounded the house and beat on the door. They said to the old man who was the owner of the house, “Bring out the man who came to your house so we can have sex with him! ”

23 The owner of the house went out and said to them, “No, don’t do this evil, my brothers. After all, this man has come into my house. Don’t do this horrible thing. [n] 24 Here, let me bring out my virgin daughter [o] and the man’s concubine now. Use them [p] and do whatever you want [E] to them. But don’t do this horrible thing to this man.”

25 But the men would not listen to him, so the man seized his concubine and took her outside to them. They raped [F] her and abused her all night until morning. At daybreak they let her go. 26 Early that morning, the woman made her way back, and as it was getting light, she collapsed at the doorway of the man’s house where her master was.

27 When her master got up in the morning, opened the doors of the house, and went out to leave on his journey, there was the woman, his concubine, collapsed near the doorway of the house with her hands on the threshold. 28 “Get up,” he told her. “Let’s go.” But there was no response. [q] So the man put her on his donkey and set out for home.

29 When he entered his house, he picked up a knife, took hold of his concubine, cut her into 12 pieces, limb by limb, and then sent her throughout the territory of Israel. 30 Everyone who saw it said, “Nothing like this has ever happened or has been seen since the day the Israelites came out of the land of Egypt to this day. [r] Think it over, discuss it, and speak up! ”

War against Benjamin

20 All the Israelites from Dan to Beer-sheba [a] and from the land of Gilead came out, and the community assembled as one body before the LORD at Mizpah. [b] 2 The leaders [c] of all the people and of all the tribes of Israel presented themselves in the assembly of God's people: 400,000 armed foot soldiers. 3 The Benjaminites heard that the Israelites had gone up to Mizpah.

The Israelites asked, "Tell us, how did this outrage occur? "

4 The Levite, the husband of the murdered woman, answered: "I went to Gibeah in Benjamin with my concubine to spend the night. 5 Citizens of Gibeah ganged up on me and surrounded the house at night. They intended to kill me, but they raped my concubine, and she died. 6 Then I took my concubine and cut her in pieces, and sent her throughout Israel's territory, because they committed a horrible shame [d] in Israel. 7 Look, all of you are Israelites. Give your judgment and verdict here and now."

8 Then all the people stood united and said, "None of us will go to his tent or return to his house. 9 Now this is what we will do to Gibeah: we will go against it by lot. 10 We will take 10 men out of every 100 from all the tribes of Israel, and 100 out of every 1,000, and 1,000 out of every 10,000 to get provisions for the people when they go to Gibeah in Benjamin to punish them for all the horror they did in Israel."

11 So all the men of Israel gathered united against the city. 12 Then the tribes of Israel sent men throughout the tribe of Benjamin, saying, "What is this outrage that has occurred among you? 13 Hand over the •perverted men in Gibeah so we can put them to death and eradicate evil from Israel." But the Benjaminites would not obey their fellow Israelites. 14 Instead, the Benjaminites gathered together from their cities to Gibeah to go out and fight against the Israelites. 15 On that day the Benjaminites rallied 26,000 armed men [e] from their cities, besides 700 choice men rallied by the inhabitants of Gibeah. 16 There were 700 choice men who were left-handed among all these people; all could sling a stone at a hair and not miss.

17 The Israelites, apart from Benjamin, rallied 400,000 armed men, every one an experienced warrior. 18 They set out, went to Bethel, and inquired of God. [f]
The Israelites asked, "Who is to go first to fight for us against the Benjaminites? "

And the LORD answered, "Judah will be first."

19 In the morning, the Israelites set out and camped near Gibeah. 20 The men of Israel went out to fight against Benjamin and took their battle positions against Gibeah. 21 The Benjaminites came out of Gibeah and slaughtered 22,000 men of Israel on the field that day. 22 But the Israelite army rallied and again took their battle positions in the same place where they positioned themselves on the first day. 23 They went up, wept [g] before the LORD until evening, and inquired of Him: “Should we again fight against our brothers the Benjaminites? ”

And the LORD answered: “Fight against them.”

24 On the second day the Israelites advanced against the Benjaminites. 25 That same day the Benjaminites came out from Gibeah to meet them and slaughtered an additional 18,000 Israelites on the field; all were armed men.

26 The whole Israelite army went to Bethel where they wept and sat before the LORD. [h] They fasted that day until evening and offered •burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings to the LORD. 27 Then the Israelites inquired of the LORD. In those days, the ark of the covenant [i] of God was there, 28 and Phinehas son of Eleazar, son of Aaron, was serving before it. The Israelites asked: “Should we again fight against our brothers the Benjaminites or should we stop? ”

The LORD answered: “Fight, because I will hand them over to you tomorrow.” [j] 29 So Israel set up an ambush [k] around Gibeah. 30 On the third day the Israelites fought against the Benjaminites and took their battle positions against Gibeah as before. 31 Then the Benjaminites came out against the people and were drawn away from the city. [l] They began to attack the people as before, killing about 30 men of Israel on the highways, one of which goes up to Bethel and the other to Gibeah through the open country. 32 The Benjaminites said, “We are defeating them as before.”

But the Israelites said, “Let’s flee and draw them away from the city to the highways.” 33 So all the men of Israel got up from their places and took their battle positions at Baal-tamar, while the Israelites in ambush charged out of their places west of [m] Geba. [n] 34 Then 10,000 choice men from all Israel made a frontal assault against Gibeah, and the battle was fierce, but the Benjaminites did not know that disaster was about to strike them. 35 The LORD defeated Benjamin in the presence of Israel, and on that day the Israelites slaughtered 25,100 men of Benjamin; all were armed men. 36 Then the Benjaminites realized they had been defeated.

The men of Israel had retreated before Benjamin, because they were confident in the ambush they had set against Gibeah. 37 The men in ambush had rushed quickly against Gibeah; they advanced and put the whole city to the sword. 38 The men of Israel had a prearranged signal with the men in ambush: when they sent up a great cloud of smoke from the city, 39 the men of Israel would return to the battle. When Benjamin had begun to strike them down, killing about 30 men of Israel, they said, “They’re defeated before us, just as they were in the first battle.” [o] 40 But when the column of smoke began to go up from the city, Benjamin looked behind them, and the whole city was going up in smoke.

[A] 41 Then the men of Israel returned, and the men of Benjamin were terrified when they realized that disaster had struck them. 42 They retreated before the men of Israel toward the wilderness, [p] but the battle overtook them, and those who came out of the cities [q] slaughtered those between them. 43 They surrounded the Benjaminites, pursued them, and easily overtook them near Gibeah toward the east. 44 There were 18,000 men who died from Benjamin; all were warriors. 45 Then Benjamin turned and fled toward the wilderness to the rock of Rimmon, [r] and Israel killed 5,000 men on the highways. They overtook them at Gidom and struck 2,000 more dead.

46 All the Benjaminites who died that day were 25,000 armed men; all were warriors. 47 But 600 men escaped into the wilderness to the rock of Rimmon and stayed there four months. 48 The men of Israel turned back against the other Benjaminites and killed them with their swords — the entire city, the animals, and everything that remained. They also burned down all the cities that remained.

Brides for Benjamin

21 The men of Israel had sworn an oath at Mizpah: “None of us will give his daughter to a Benjaminite in marriage.” [a] 2 So the people went to Bethel and sat there before God [b] until evening. They wept loudly and bitterly, 3 and cried out, “Why, LORD God of Israel, has it occurred [A] that one tribe is missing in Israel today? ” 4 The next day the people got up early, built an altar there, [c] and offered •burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings. 5 The Israelites asked, “Who of all the tribes of Israel didn’t come to the LORD with the assembly? ” For a great oath had been taken that anyone who had not come to the LORD at Mizpah would certainly be put to death.

6 But the Israelites had compassion on their brothers, the Benjaminites, and said, “Today a tribe has been cut off from Israel. 7 What should we do about wives for the survivors? We’ve sworn to the LORD not to give them any of our daughters as wives.” 8 They asked, “Which city among the tribes of Israel didn’t come to the LORD at Mizpah? ” It turned out that no one from Jabesh-gilead had come to the camp and the assembly. 9 For when the people were counted, no one was there from the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead.

10 The congregation sent 12,000 brave warriors [B] there and commanded them:
“Go and kill the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead with the sword, [d] including women and children. 11 This is what you should do: •Completely destroy every male, as well as every female who has slept with a man.” 12 They found among the inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead 400 young women, who had not had sexual relations with a man, and they brought them to the camp at Shiloh in the land of Canaan.

13 The whole congregation sent a message of peace [e] to the Benjaminites who were at the rock of Rimmon. 14 Benjamin returned at that time, and Israel gave them the women they had kept alive from Jabesh-gilead. But there were not enough for them.

15 The people had compassion on Benjamin, because the LORD had made this gap in the tribes of Israel. 16 The elders of the congregation said, “What should we do about wives for those who are left, since the women of Benjamin have been destroyed? ” 17 They said, “There must be heirs for the survivors of Benjamin, so that a tribe of Israel will not be wiped out. 18 But we can’t give them our daughters as wives.” For the Israelites had sworn, “Anyone who gives a wife to a Benjaminite is cursed.” 19 They also said, “Look, there’s an annual festival to the LORD in Shiloh, [f] which is north of Bethel, east of the highway that goes up from Bethel to Shechem, and south of Lebonah.”

20 Then they commanded the Benjaminites: “Go and hide in the vineyards.
21 Watch, and when you see the young women of Shiloh come out to perform the dances, [g] each of you leave the vineyards and catch a wife for yourself from the young women of Shiloh, and go to the land of Benjamin. 22 When their fathers or brothers come to us and protest, we will tell them, ‘Show favor to them, since we did not get enough wives for each of them in the battle. You didn’t actually give the women to them, so [C] you are not •guilty of breaking your oath.’ ”

23 The Benjaminites did this and took the number of women they needed from the dancers they caught. They went back to their own inheritance, rebuilt their cities, [h] and lived in them. 24 At that time, each of the Israelites returned from there to his own tribe and family. Each returned from there to his own inheritance.

25 In those days there was no king in Israel; [i] everyone did whatever he wanted. [D]

JUDGES

Introduction

Mount Tabor played an important role during the conquest. It served as a boundary point for the tribes of Naphtali, Issachar, and Zebulun (Jos 19), where the tribes worshiped early on (Dt 33:18-19). Barak and Deborah gathered an army at Mount Tabor to defend against Sisera (Jdg 4:6).

The book of Judges is the second of the historical books in the Old Testament (Jos-Est). In the Hebrew Bible, these books are called the Former Prophets; the theological and spiritual concerns found in the Pentateuch and the Prophets take precedence over simply recording historical facts. The book derives its name from the Hebrew designation of the principal characters, shophetim (2:18), which could also be translated as "governors." These judges were the Lord's agents of deliverance. The Lord is both the central character and the hero of Judges.

Circumstances of Writing Author: No author is named in the book of Judges, nor is any indication given of the writer or writers who are responsible for it. The three divisions of the book are on a different footing regarding the sources from which they are drawn. The historical introduction presents a form of the traditional narrative of the conquest of Palestine that is parallel to the book of Joshua. The main portion of the book, comprising the narratives of the judges, appears to be based on oral or written traditions of a local observer.

Background: The period of the Israelite judges lay between the conquest of the promised land under Joshua and the rise of the monarchy with Saul and David. The events described are thus to be dated from the end of the fifteenth century B.C. to the latter part of the eleventh century B.C., a period of around 300 years. This was a time of social and religious anarchy, characterized by the repeated refrain, "In those days there was no king in Israel; everyone did whatever he wanted" (17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25).

We cannot ascertain exactly when the book of Judges was composed. The reference in 18:30 to the fate of Dan at "the time of the exile from the land" suggests a date of final editing after the exile of the northern kingdom by Assyria around 722 B.C. Meanwhile, the suggestion that readers could visit the site of Gideon's altar at Ophrah in 6:24 suggests a date prior to the exile of the southern kingdom, Judah, in 586 B.C. Its message would have resonated strongly at several points of Israel's history, and it has been argued that it fits well during the dark days of Manasseh (686-642 B.C.; 2Kg 21:1-18). However, it is not possible to date Judges with precision.

Message and Purpose The book of Judges chronicles the moral and spiritual descent of Israel from the relative high point at the beginning of the book through a series of downward spirals to the depths of degradation in chapters 17-21. Though God raised up a sequence of deliverers—the judges—they were unable to reverse this trend and some even became part of the problem themselves. By the end of the book, Israel had become as pagan and defiled as the Canaanites they had displaced. If this trend continued, it would only be a matter of time before the land would vomit them out, as it had the Canaanites before them (Lv 18:28).

Human depravity: The book of Judges demonstrates what happens to the Lord's people when everyone does whatever they want. It shows that Israel cannot presume upon God's grace, and neither can we. If we abandon His commandments and pursue the idols of our own imagination, the result will be moral and spiritual chaos. This is where we would all end up if the Lord left us to ourselves.

The grace of God: The book of Judges offers a profound commentary on the grace of God. Left to their own devices, the Israelites would surely have destroyed themselves. Only by the repeated gracious intervention of God did they emerge from the dark premonarchic period as a people and nation distinguishable in lifestyle and beliefs from surrounding pagan groups.

The need for God's leadership: While it is possible that the repeated refrain "there was no king in Israel" (17:6; 18:1; 19:1; 21:25) paints this book as an appeal for a monarchy, it is better to see it as a call to return to God as their King. Rather than lifting up the kings as an ideal above the confusion of this period, the addition of “everyone did whatever he wanted” (17:6; 21:25) reduced the population to the moral and spiritual level of Israel’s kings in later years. In other words, rebellion against God is democratized. Israel did not need a king to lead them into sin; they could fall into immorality all on their own. The Israelites had abandoned the God of the covenant to follow the fertility gods of the land. The writer, by exposing this problem, sought to wake up his own generation. This is an appeal to the covenant people to abandon all forms of paganism and return to Yahweh.

Contribution to the Bible The book of Judges shows us that the nation of Israel survived the dark days of the judges entirely by the grace of God. In mercy He sent oppressors as reminders of their rebellion. In mercy He responded to their cries and raised up deliverers. Judges also illustrates the fundamental problem of the human heart. When God’s people forget His saving acts, they go after other gods. Judges also illustrates the link between spiritual commitments and ethical conduct. In the end the book of Judges illustrates the eternal truth: the Lord will build His kingdom, in spite of our sin and rebellion.

Structure The book falls into three parts. There is a prologue (1:1-3:6) that deals with the failure of the second generation to press on with the conquest of Canaan. This is followed by a sixfold cycle of sin and salvation (3:7-16:31), which forms the bulk of the book. Finally, there is an appendix (chaps. 17-21) that shows the full effects of total depravity let loose upon the people. This structure demonstrates not only the repetition of patterns of sin and judgment but also negative progress. The midpoint of the narrative is the linked episode involving Gideon and Abimelech, which serves to highlight further the significance of the issue of kingship.

Study Notes 1:1 After the death of Joshua links the book of Judges with the preceding account of the conquest of Canaan in the book of Joshua and sets the agenda for what follows. This is the story of the generations following Joshua's death, who failed to continue the legacy of his faithfulness to the charge Moses gave him. God had commanded His people to destroy the Canaanites during their conquest or the Canaanites would certainly lead the Israelites astray into false worship (Dt 20:16-18). The subsequent story demonstrates the validity of that concern.

1:3 Judah and Simeon covenanted together to fight against the Canaanites, providing a positive example of how the tribes could work together to possess the land.

1:4-7 The victory at Bezek is a positive beginning that heightens all the more the tragedy of Israel's subsequent failure. Yet the treatment of the leader of the Canaanites, Adoni-bezek, injects an ambiguous note into their triumph. The Israelites cut off his thumbs and big toes, emphasizing how dramatic a victory the Judahites and Simeonites had won with God's help. Seventy kings could not defeat Adoni-bezek, but the Lord brought him down effortlessly, and even the defeated king recognized God's hand at work. Yet according to the Lord's command in Dt 7:1-2 to destroy completely the Canaanites and Perizzites, Adoni-bezek should have been put to death immediately. Instead, in adopting Adoni-bezek's own strategy of punishment, the Israelites seem to have become exactly like the immoral Canaanites they were supposed to drive out. This sort of failure is a persistent problem throughout the book of Judges.

1:8 The Judahites captured and destroyed Jerusalem in accordance with the rules of holy war, but they did not occupy it at this point or, if they did, they were soon driven out again (v. 21; 1Ch 11:4-9).

1:13 Othniel would later become the first of Israel's judges (3:7-11). The story illustrates Othniel's credentials for that position, both as a warrior and through his kinship to Caleb, Joshua's faithful companion on the spying trip in Numbers 13-14. Othniel, who was the younger brother or nephew of Caleb, captured Kiriath-sepher (Debir), and thereby gained the right to marry Caleb's daughter, Achsah.

1:14-15 Achsah was not only well-connected, she was a woman of faith and spirit. She and her husband had been given land in the Negev, the dry southern region of Judah, but they needed water for the land. She therefore sought and received springs from her father. Her request, and the faith that drove it, is reminiscent of the daughters of Zelophehad in Numbers 27 who asked for an inheritance in the promised land even though it had not then been won from enemy hands.

1:16 The descendants of the Kenite were descended from Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses. They also traveled with the Judahites from Jericho (the City of Palms). Far from driving out the inhabitants of the land, they went to live among the people.

1:17-20 Initial success on the part of Judah and Simeon was followed by jarring failure. After a string of victories at Hormah . . . Gaza . . . Ashkelon, and Ekron, Judah took possession of the hill country because the Lord was with them. Yet they were unable to drive out the people living in the valley because they had iron chariots. Iron was a relatively new discovery, and the Canaanites had the technological edge. Yet the Lord would prove again and again more than equal to the task of defeating superior forces, even those equipped with chariots (chap. 4; Jos 17:18). Implicit in Judah's failure to conquer the people of the valleys is the removal of the Lord's blessing on their warfare. This stands in stark contrast to Caleb's success at Hebron (mentioned already in 1:10), where he defeated the sons of Anak who had so terrified his contemporaries in the days of Moses (Nm 13:33).

1:21 Failure after failure is recorded in the subsequent verses. The city of Jerusalem was on the boundary between the territory of Judah and Benjamin; the campaign against it by Judah in verse 8 was only a short-lived success. The Benjaminites come first after Judah in the litany of failure, perhaps foreshadowing their negative role in the final chapters of the book.

1:22-26 The house of Joseph (the Ephraimites) had a mixed experience at Bethel. The similarities and differences to the assault on Jericho under Joshua are striking (Jos 2; 6). As with Jericho, spies were sent out to explore the city, where they found one of the inhabitants willing to help them, in return for the lives of himself and his family. The city was captured, because the LORD was with them, but unlike Rahab, the man did not become a member of the covenant community. Instead, he left to recreate his pagan lifestyle in another country.

1:27-33 As the chapter unfolds, conquest is replaced by cohabitation. Manasseh failed to take possession of the villages in its territory. Even when the Manassites became stronger than the Canaanites, they failed to drive them out, instead using them as forced labor. The same approach was followed by Ephraim . . . Zebulun . . . Asher, and Naphtali. The universality of this failure is underscored by the use of the inclusive title Israel in verse 28.

1:34-35 The worst situation of all was that of the Danites, who were shut up in the hill country by the Amorites who refused to leave their cities. Apparently, the inhabitants of the land were more determined to stay there than God's people were to obey the Lord's command to drive them out.

2:1 The Angel of the LORD frequently represents God Himself, bringing His word to His people (6:11-24) and protecting them from their enemies (Ex 14:19). The reference to Gilgal may be to His previous appearance there to Joshua as commander of the Lord's army (Jos 5:13-15). Now after Israel's inadequate attempts to "go up" (in warfare) against the inhabitants of Canaan, the Angel of the Lord went up against them.

2:4-5 The people wept loudly and offered sacrifices, the outward signs of repentance. They even memorialized their response in the name given to the place, Bochim ("weeping"). Yet their actions in the rest of the chapter cast serious doubt on the authenticity of their repentance.

2:6-13 This paragraph is a flashback summarizing the beginning of the book of Judges. Baal was the Canaanite god of storm and rain, while Ashtoreth (also known as Astarte) was his consort, the goddess of love and fertility. Both of these deities were worshiped under a variety of local manifestations and were perceived as the key to agricultural success in the land of Canaan.

2:14-15 The consequence of Israel's covenant unfaithfulness was the covenant curse (Dt 28:48). Instead of the Lord fighting for Israel and handing their enemies over into their power, the Lord gave them over into the hand of their enemies, and they suffered greatly.

2:16-19 Because of their distress, the Lord raised up judges for Israel, and they saved them from the power of their marauders. There is no mention of repentance by the people; the judges were raised up as the result of the Lord's pity on their groaning. In relenting from the punishment He had imposed on His people, the Lord showed Himself to be "a compassionate and gracious God, slow to anger and rich in faithful love and truth" (Ex 34:6). The judges typically governed Israel (or part of it) and sought to lead them in the ways of the Lord during their lifetime—a ministry that is most evident in the life of the final judge, Samuel. Yet their influence on the people was limited, and after each judge died Israel invariably reverted to their idolatrous ways. This period of Israel's history was a downward spiral, with each generation acting more corruptly than their fathers. The judges slowed rather than stemmed the rising tide of iniquity.

2:20-23 It was a mark of the Lord's anger that He no longer referred to Israel as "my people" but as this nation. Since they refused to drive out the Canaanites, the Lord would leave the Canaanites among Israel as a test of their faithfulness. Each generation would now have to demonstrate its own faithfulness to the Lord in a hostile environment.

3:1-4 All the various inhabitants of the land of Canaan were intended to serve as a testing ground for God's people. The list in verse 3 encompasses the whole of the promised land: the southwest (Philistines), northwest (Sidonians), northeast (Hivites), and southeast (Canaanites). The Lord allowed these peoples to remain in the land to enable His people to learn warfare and to see the Lord's faithfulness first hand, as well as to test their commitment to serve Him alone.

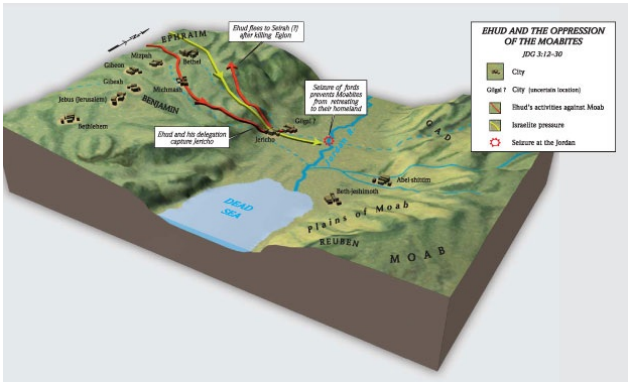
3:7-11 The judgeship of Othniel sets the pattern against which to compare all of the subsequent judges. Here Baal is linked with his more common consort in Canaanite literature, Asherah, rather than Astarte (see note at 2:6-13). Asherah was a fertility goddess often represented in the form of a tree. As a result of Israel's unfaithfulness, the Lord handed them over into the power of an oppressor, Cushan-rishathaim ("Cushan the Doubly Wicked"). The area of Aram of the Two Rivers (v. 8) was north of Israel in Mesopotamia (Gn 24:10). For an Aramean king to oppress the whole land of Israel as far south as Judea was a mark of his military might. After eight years of subjugation, Israel cried out to the Lord, who then raised up and empowered Othniel, who as Caleb's nephew had the credentials to deliver Israel (vv. 9-10; see note at 1:13). After delivering Israel, Othniel continued to lead them, and Israel was at peace for 40 years. However, after his death, the cycle of sin and judgment started all over again.

3:12-14 This time the enemy was Eglon, the king of Moab, with the assistance of the Ammonites and Amalekites. These tribes lived east of Israel, in Transjordan, so the City of Palms (Jericho) would have been a natural base from which to govern their conquered territory. It took longer than during the first cycle for Israel to learn their lesson: they endured 18 years of suffering before they cried out for release.



3:15-17 When Israel cried to the Lord, He again provided a deliverer, Ehud, a left-handed man. Left-handedness seems to have been relatively common among Benjaminites (20:15), which is ironic since the name means "son of the right hand." The unusual idiom used here (lit "hindered in the right hand") suggests that left-handedness may have been viewed as a defect, and that Israel's second deliverer lacked the perfect appearance of the first. Ehud also adopted a different approach to delivering Israel, assassinating the oppressor through deceit and cunning rather than engaging in straightforward battle. For that task, he made a relatively short sword and hid it on his right thigh, the opposite side from that preferred by a right-handed man. Eglon's name means "calf," a feature that resonates with the emphasis throughout the narrative on his "fatness." This was normally a positive characterization in the OT, where physical size was evidence of great wealth. Together with Eglon's name, however, it marked him out as the fattened calf, ripe for slaughter.

3:18-22 Ehud had been sent to Eglon to deliver Israel's tribute to the oppressor, a task that he completed and then returned to Israelite territory. Significantly, the landmark that identified Israelite territory was the carved images near Gilgal, a telling pointer to the state of Israelite worship in those days. Ehud then dismissed the rest of his party, returning alone to meet with Eglon. He appealed to Eglon's vanity by claiming I have a secret message for you. The Hebrew word translated "message" can also mean "word" or "thing." The original readers would have recognized the nature of the "secret" long before Eglon got the point. Once alone, Ehud delivered God's "message" for Eglon by running him through with the concealed sword. Apparently, Eglon was so fat that the entire 18 inches, including the handle, could be contained by his belly. Eglon's insides (or perhaps more precisely, the contents of his intestines) came out, a final humiliation for Israel's defeated enemy.

3:24-26 The dimwittedness of Eglon's servants would have been humorous to the first readers of Judges. The odor might have contributed to the servants' supposition that the king was "occupied." The contents of their master's bowels were indeed being emptied, but not in the manner they imagined.

3:27-30 Ehud then sounded the ram's horn, summoning Ephraim to holy war against the leaderless Moabites. He gave due credit to the Lord's involvement in the battle, and he led his people in a successful assault on the fords of the Jordan. This would have cut off the Moabite retreat and separated them from any possible reinforcements. About 10,000 . . . able-bodied . . . Moabites may be a way of affirming an overwhelming victory, according to the conventions of ancient literature. The result of the victory was 80 years of peace.

3:31 This brief note introduces Shamgar, sometimes called a "minor judge," though never explicitly said to judge Israel. His name is extraordinary on two counts: the form "Shamgar" is not that of a normal Hebrew name, and the ascription son of Anath suggests that he was (or had been) a follower of Anath, the Canaanite goddess of war. This foreigner apparently delivered Israel by striking down 600 Philistines with an oxgoad. The Philistines, or Sea Peoples, were not native to Canaan but arrived there in the twelfth to eleventh centuries

B.C. from Anatolia and Crete. From their bases in the coastal plain, the Philistines became an increasing problem for the Israelites as they pressed eastward into the foothills of Israel. An oxgoad was a sharp stick up to eight feet long tapering to a sharp point, which may have been tipped with metal (1Sm 13:21). This is the first in a series of unusual instruments of deliverance in the book of Judges—from Jael's hammer (Jdg 4:21), to Gideon's pitchers and torches (7:19-20), to Samson's donkey jawbone (15:15).

4:1-3 A new cycle is introduced with the standard formula of Israelite rebellion (cp. 3:7,12). In this instance the enemy was Jabin, a Canaanite king from Hazor, in the north of Israel. An earlier Jabin had been defeated by Joshua at Hazor about a century earlier (Jos 11:1-15); this suggests that Jabin may have been a dynastic name. Hazor was destroyed by Joshua, but as was the case with Jerusalem in Jdg 1:8, the destruction did not prevent some form of reoccupation at a later date. Israel's failure to complete the occupation of the land once again came back to haunt them. The source of Jabin's strength, humanly speaking, lay in his 900 iron chariots. These gave him an enormous technological edge over the Israelites on flat ground. But his real power over Israel lay in the fact that the Lord, seeking to punish His people, had sold them into his hand.

4:4-5 Given their patriarchal culture, it is a measure of the poor state to which Israel had been reduced that they were being judged by a woman—a point emphasized in the Hebrew text, which piles up four feminine nouns at the beginning of the sentence (Deborah, a woman, a prophetess, the wife of Lappidoth). She could be found seated under the palm tree of Deborah, a location that may reflect a connection with her earlier namesake, Rebekah's nurse (Gn 35:8).

4:6-7 As God's appointed representative, Deborah summoned Barak to take the lead in the fighting. She also gave him the Lord's plan of battle, deploying 10,000 men of Naphtali and Zebulun on Mount Tabor, a strategic location at the northeast corner of the Jezreel Valley. Further, she assured him of the Lord's victory over Israel's enemies.

4:8-10 Although Barak's name means "lightning," his response was slow. Deborah agreed to accompany him to Kedesh as a sign that the Lord was indeed with him, and he successfully raised an army of 10,000 men. As the story unfolds, the men will have less to do with the victory than a single woman.

4:11 What seems at first sight to be an irrelevant note introduces the key character in what follows. Heber the Kenite was one of those Kenites descended from Moses' father-in-law, who were mentioned in 1:16 as settling among the people. In keeping with the prominent role of women in this chapter, the key character is not Heber, whom we never meet, but his wife Jael, who has not yet been mentioned.

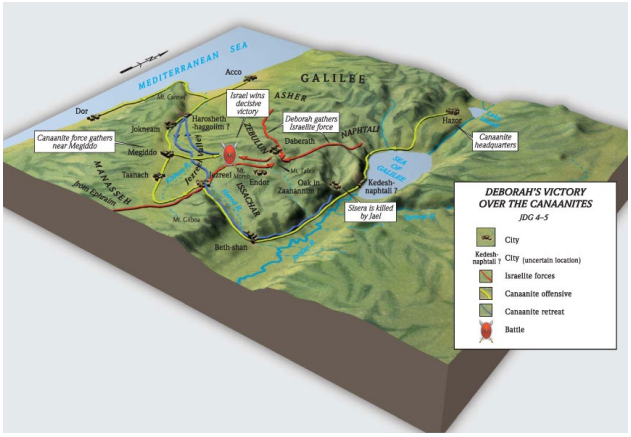
4:12-16 Sisera responded to Barak's movements by summoning his entire force of 900 iron chariots to the Wadi Kishon, the exact place where the Lord had earlier promised to lure him. This was the signal for Israel to prepare for action, a call that significantly came from Deborah rather than Barak. Barak responded to the Lord's call and found that the Lord had gone in front of him, just as He had done with the Egyptian forces at the time of the exodus (Ex 14:24). All that was left for Barak to do was the mopping-up operation.

4:17-21 Sisera himself fled on foot. Since Heber had allied himself to Jabin, his camp should have been a place of safety for Sisera. However, he had reckoned without Jael, Heber's wife. Her approach seemed innocent enough. She went out to greet Sisera, welcomed him in with words of peace and safety, and brought him milk, like a mother caring for a small child (vv. 19-20). But once Sisera fell asleep, Jael drove a tent peg through his temple . . . into the ground, just as Ehud had driven his dagger into Eglon's belly (3:21).

4:22-24 When Barak finally arrived, Sisera was already dead. Jael's own rationale for her actions is not clear. Jael's murder of Sisera was in violation of her husband's treaty with Jabin, as well as normal standards of ancient Near Eastern hospitality. Nor was she a member of the Israelite community. Perhaps the only explanation for her actions was the Lord's sovereign will to hand Sisera over to a woman.

5:1 When God intervenes decisively in the lives of His people, their response is to sing His praise (Ex 15). Here Deborah and Barak together led the people in a song of celebration and thanksgiving that focused on the Lord as the central character, while not ignoring the heroism of the human participants.

5:4-5 Deborah described the Lord's presence in the battle in the form of a theophany in which the Lord marched out from Mount Seir in Edom, bringing a mighty rainstorm. This storm not only served the practical function of bogging down Sisera's chariots and neutralizing his technological edge, it also depicts the Lord—not Baal—as the true God of the storm who marches out from His mountain home with the clouds and rain. The Lord alone controls the cosmic elements.



5:6 The state of Israel before the battle is graphically evoked. By calling these the days of Shamgar son of Anath and the days of Jael, Deborah highlighted the lack of leadership at this time. The Lord had to use two foreigners to rescue His people, including one whose name celebrates a pagan goddess. In those days the main ways were deserted, either because of fear of attack by bandits or excessive tolls imposed by the Canaanites, pushing what traffic there was onto the hidden trails that only local people knew about.

5:7-8 Life in the unwalled villages became impossible, so they were deserted. Only when Deborah arose did things begin to change. She became a mother in Israel, a title that not only expresses the respect with which she was viewed as a prophetess, but also highlights her femininity and the absence of a similar male figure as “father” at this time. The reason for this negative set of circumstances was simple: Israel had chosen new gods.

5:9-11 Deborah renewed her call to praise the Lord, this time addressing the rich Canaanite merchants, who travel on the road on which the Israelites were afraid to walk. These men were summoned to join the ordinary Israelites in celebrating the righteous acts of the LORD and of His warriors at the locale for conversation and the sharing of news, the watering places. These acts are righteous in the sense that the victory over Sisera vindicated the Lord’s power and validated Israel as His chosen people.

5:14-18 The response to God’s call to arms shows that Israel was not united. Ephraim . . . Benjamin . . . Machir (Manasseh), Zebulun . . . Issachar, and Naphtali came eagerly, but Reuben . . . Gilead (Gad), Dan, and Asher remained behind.

5:19-21 The climax of the song brings into view the battle itself. Defeating Jabin was in effect a defeat for all the kings of Canaan. Earthly kings were no match for the Lord’s heavenly host, the stars of the heavens, who fought on Israel’s side. Divine intervention was evidenced by a sudden storm that swelled the river Kishon, normally little more than a brook, into a raging torrent, and made Sisera's horses and chariots useless.

5:23 Meroz cannot be precisely identified. Most likely, they were an Israelite group who had adopted the ways of the Canaanites and remained outside the conflict, thereby earning a curse from the Angel of the Lord.

5:24-27 The curse on Meroz forms a contrast with the blessing on Jael, a non-Israelite who came "to help the Lord against the mighty warriors" (v. 23). She is lauded for her resourcefulness and cunning. A comparison to Eglon's fatal encounter with Ehud is invited by a key comparison: Instead of a left-handed assassin, Jael did her work with her right hand. The end result for the oppressor is the same—the details of the death repeated with gory redundancy.

5:28-30 From the bloody murder scene, the song moves poignantly to the image of Sisera's mother, waiting vainly for his return. Her ladies reassured her that what was delaying her son was just the time involved in dividing the spoil. Each soldier would need to select some choice garments for themselves and their ladies, and a girl or two, or more literally, a "womb or two," highlighting the sexual and reproductive functions the captive women were expected to provide.

5:31 Reinforcing the theme that obedience to the Lord leads to rest and disobedience to death, the final note of the chapter is that the land was peaceful (lit "had rest") for 40 years.

6:1-6 The second main section of the story of the judges, covering the fourth through the sixth major judges (Gideon, Jephthah, Samson), is introduced with a repetition of the rebellion formula from 3:7. The result was predictable: the Lord handed them over to an oppressor. The Midianites were semi-nomads who lived in the Sinai Peninsula and western Arabia. They allied themselves with the Amalekites and the eastern peoples (Qedemites) into a loose confederation. These raiders from the east swept across the country seasonally, plundering it like a great swarm of locusts. Although they entered the land from the east, they traveled as far as Gaza on the western coast, leaving nothing behind them. The Israelites were reduced to an animal-like existence in caves, without any livestock of their own.

6:7-10 As in chapter 4, when Israel cried out to the Lord, he sent them a prophet, who used the standard messenger formula, This is what the LORD God of Israel says, to identify himself, and then delivered his message. Israel had been disobedient. Calling on the Lord presupposed a relationship with Him as the One who brought them out of Egypt; they could not live on the faith of their fathers if they did not listen to their fathers' God.

6:11-12 The prophetic speech ends abruptly. It is followed neither by repentance nor judgment but, surprisingly, by the provision of another deliverer. The Angel of the LORD —the Lord's personal representative who spoke with His full authority—appeared to Gideon at Ophrah, a town probably located in the Jezreel Valley. Gideon's name means "the one who hacks or cuts down," a fitting name for the man whose first task in the Lord's service would be to cut down Baal's altar. Other aspects of Gideon's demeanor are less promising. In view of the threat of the Midianites, he was threshing wheat in a wine vat, a shallow depression in the rock, a safer location than the more exposed threshing floor. Gideon's natural reserve will emerge again as the narrative unfolds, and it is in sharp contrast to the title given to Gideon by the angel—mighty warrior.

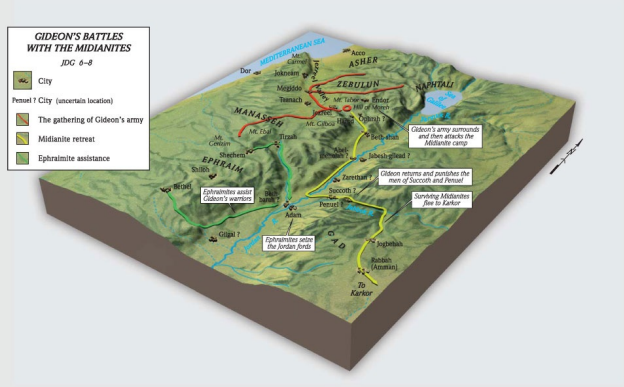
6:13-16 Gideon's response challenged both aspects of the Angel's greeting. First, he cast doubt on the Lord's presence with Israel. The Angel of the Lord did not appear to hear Gideon's objection. Instead, he commissioned him to be the mighty warrior that God had named him. This provoked Gideon to challenge this aspect of the Angel's greeting as well. Gideon claimed that he was doubly unsuited for this task. Yet the rest of the story casts doubt on Gideon's assertions: His father was a substantial landowner in the city, with the resources to build and maintain an altar to Baal, and Gideon was able to call on 10 servants to assist him in pulling down the altar. These were hardly the signs of a man whose family was of no importance. All of Gideon's protestations were useless beside the single fact that the Lord would be with him.



6:17-21 Even with this reassurance, Gideon was not satisfied. The increasing downgrade in the quality of the judges is evident. Othniel, Ehud, and Shamgar obeyed the Lord's call without dissent. Barak placed one stipulation on going—that Deborah would go with him. Gideon was an even more reluctant hero, not content with the assurance that the Lord Himself would go with him. In addition, he demanded a sign. He prepared an offering the size of which indicates that this was not just human hospitality but an offering to God. When Gideon brought the elements back, the Angel of God graciously condescended to perform the requested sign.

6:22-24 Realizing the true identity of his visitor, Gideon became convinced he was doomed to die (Ex 33:20). Again, the Lord spoke to reassure him. This time the Lord's message seems to have been heeded by Gideon, who built an altar to the Lord and named it Yahweh Shalom, "the Lord is peace." This altar to the Lord erected by Gideon in Ophrah at the beginning of his service contrasts sharply with the ephod idol that he set up there toward the end of his life (8:27).

6:25-27 Before Gideon could take on the Midianites, he first had to confront the idolatry within his own family by tearing down his father's altar of Baal and the Asherah pole beside it. An Asherah pole was a stylized tree that represented the fertility goddess Asherah, Baal's consort. It was a frequent feature of Canaanite cult installations. Gideon was to reclaim the area for the Lord by building a new altar to God there, on which he was to offer his father's . . . bull. The wood of the Asherah pole would provide fuel for the fire, as if to underline the foolishness of worshiping a piece of wood (Is 44:19). Gideon did this at once, though it is clear that his earlier timidity had not disappeared. He gathered 10 of his father's servants to help him, illustrating a trust in numbers rather than trust in the Lord. He also committed this action at night rather than in broad daylight because he was . . . afraid, so no one would know who was responsible.

6:28-32 The response of the men of the city to Gideon's actions reveals clearly where their loyalties lay. They wanted the sentence of death that ought to have been imposed on idolaters (Dt 13:6-10) carried out on Gideon instead. What is surprising is that Gideon's father, Joash, who owned this altar to Baal, defended his son. Did Baal need the men of the city to save him? Normally, a man expected his god to save him, not vice versa. From this intervention, Gideon acquired another name, Jerubbaal, which means "let Baal contend." Gideon's continued existence was living proof of Baal's inability to defend his honor.

6:33-34 Gideon's initial success was soon followed by a greater challenge. Israel's oppressors crossed over the Jordan River for another seasonal pillaging expedition. The Spirit of the LORD enveloped (lit "put on") Gideon, empowering him for action to deliver the Lord's people.

6:36-40 The gathering of the tribes should have been sufficient evidence of God's presence with Gideon, but he wanted a sign that God would do what He had promised. He doubted that God would deliver Israel by His strength, even though that was what God had promised. As a result, Gideon put God to the test. In the first test, God did as Gideon asked, but it was not enough; Gideon may have thought that it could have been a fluke. So Gideon, showing his timidity, demanded a second test. Displaying great patience, the Lord graciously gave him a confirmatory sign.

7:1-3 Having proven to Gideon's satisfaction that He was present, the Lord emphasized the point that His presence was all Gideon needed. The army was strategically camped at the spring of Harod, where water supply would not be an issue. The name of this particular spring means “Spring of Trembling,” which describes the state of Gideon’s army. Yet from the Lord’s perspective, there were too many people there. If an army of this size won, even against the innumerable hordes of the Midianites, Israel might be tempted to take credit for the victory. To show that the victory was entirely His, the Lord reduced the size of Gideon’s army.

7:4-8 The Lord gave Gideon an additional test to reduce the size of his army further, by taking them down to the water to drink. It appears that those chosen scooped water up in their hands and lapped it from there, while those who got down on all fours and drank directly from the river like a dog were rejected. Gideon’s army now numbered just 300. Nothing must detract from the truth that the Lord can save as easily by using a few as by using many (1Sm 14:6).

Spring of Harod at Ainharod at the foot of the Gilboa Mountain Range. This is where Gideon’s men were tested on how they drank water. This test enabled Gideon to identify those who were qualified to fight against the Midianites (7:4-8).

7:9-14 The army was now sufficiently small, so the Lord commanded Gideon to get up and begin the action against the camp of the Midianites. Yet instead of immediate action, there was further delay while Gideon's continuing fears were addressed. The Lord told Gideon that if he was afraid to go against the Midianite camp, he should secretly visit it and listen to what the Midianites were saying. He crept down to where he could see the Midianites, Amalekites, and . . . Qedemites (the "eastern peoples," 6:3) spread out like a swarm of locusts, with innumerable . . . camels. Visually nothing had changed since the opening verses of chapter 6. Yet what Gideon heard told a different story—God had given members of the enemy force a dream that was utterly demoralizing. It is ironic that the Midianites were quick to grasp the significance of a dream, while Gideon was slow to believe repeated signs and direct messages from the Lord.

7:15-16 Eavesdropping on this conversation at last had the desired effect on Gideon. In response, he bowed in worship, acknowledging the truth of the Lord's words, now that he had heard them repeated by pagans. He returned to Israel's camp and finally delivered to his men the instruction he had received from the Lord in verse 9. Gideon divided his small army into three divisions and "armed" them with a ram's-horn trumpet, an empty pitcher, and a torch. Clearly, unless the Lord fought for them they would have no chance of victory.

7:17-18 Gideon's earlier hesitancy was now gone. He led his men to the battle, instructing them to follow his example. When they came to the outpost at the edge of the Midianite camp, they were to blow their trumpets and to shout as their battle cry, For Yahweh and for Gideon. The pairing of the Lord's name with that of Gideon strikes a discordant note. After all, this was a battle that the Lord had taken great pains to make clear would be won by His might alone, greatly reducing the size of the Israelite army so that they would not be able to boast (v. 3).

7:19-25 The strategy worked out exactly as planned. The beginning of the middle watch would be midnight. Gideon's three groups, spread out surrounding the camp, would sound like a much larger army. The element of surprise, combined by a divinely induced fear, sent the Midianites fleeing for their lives and fighting one another in the confusion. The victory was not just the result of successful psychological tactics. It was the LORD who set the Midianites' swords . . . against each another. The surviving Midianites fled toward the Jordan River, though the exact locations of the places mentioned in verse 22 are uncertain.

At this point, with victory assured, Gideon called out the men of Naphtali, Asher, and Manasseh—presumably the remainder of his original army of 30,000—to join in the pursuit. He also called out the men of Ephraim to seize the fording places over the Jordan to cut off any retreat for the remnant of the Midianites. It seems discordant with the spirit of holy war for Gideon to call in reinforcements after the Lord had already won the victory with the smaller force. This was perhaps a sign of Gideon's growing self-confidence. Oreb and Zeeb were Midianite princes, or military commanders.

8:1-3 With liberation achieved, the cycle normally concludes with a summary statement of peace and harmony during the judge's lifetime, a summary that is delayed until verse 28. The first complication was a complaint by the Ephraimites that Gideon did not call them out to battle against the Midianites. This is surprising because elsewhere, the problem was persuading the tribes to become involved in conflict, not dissuading them. And since Gideon's task once he assembled his army was to reduce them in size, it is hard to see how the Ephraimites could have played a useful part in the battle. Their complaint shows the weak and fractured nature of the Israelite tribal alliance at this period. Gideon's response was a masterpiece of diplomacy. He downplayed his own standing and role in the victory by saying, Is not the gleaning (the grapes left behind after the initial harvesting) of Ephraim better than the vintage (the pick of the grapes) of Abiezer? Gideon belonged to the clan of Abiezer. Moreover, the Ephraimites achieved the crowning moment of the victory when God handed over to them Oreb and Zeeb, the two princes of Midian. This reply defused the Ephraimites' anger.

8:4-9 It is worth noting that the Lord is no longer mentioned as an active party in what follows. The Midianite kings, Zebah and Zalmunna, escaped across the Jordan River. In view of this pursuit, it appears that Gideon was not merely being diplomatic when he compared himself deprecatingly with the Ephraimites. He was angry that God had given Oreb and Zeeb into the hands of the Ephraimites, while he himself had no comparable triumph to show for his efforts. His damaged ego was the driving force behind the fanatical pursuit of the escaped kings. Succoth and Penuel were towns in Transjordan under Israelite control. The men of these cities might have been expected to give Gideon aid on his quest, but they refused his appeal for food because they were skeptical of Gideon's ability to thoroughly defeat the Midianites. Gideon took their refusal personally. In contrast to his diplomacy with the Ephraimites, Gideon threatened revenge on those who failed to assist him.

8:10-12 Gideon finally caught up with Zebah and Zalmunna at Karkor, about 100 miles east of the Dead Sea. A sizeable remnant of their original army of 120,000 warriors was with them, numbering around 15,000 men. Gideon and his force of 300 caught them by surprise, routed them, and captured Zebah and Zalmunna, the two kings of Midian. There is no mention of the Lord's involvement in this battle.

8:13-17 On his return to Succoth and Penuel, Gideon wasted no time in carrying out his earlier threats. He captured a youth from Succoth, just as he had earlier captured the Midianite kings, and forced him to write down the names of the elders of Succoth, whom Gideon then rounded up and thrashed with a switch. Israelites who failed to do Gideon's will were treated as enemies of the state.

8:18-21 Gideon then accused the two Midianite kings, Zebah and Zalmunna, of atrocities at Mount Tabor, not far from his home in the Jezreel Valley. Their response drew a comparison between Gideon and royalty—probably a desperate attempt at flattery. Gideon replied that the men whom the kings slaughtered were his own close relatives, revealing that the motivation for his pursuit of the Midianites was personal vengeance, not obedience to the Lord's call. Gideon instructed his son Jether to kill the Midianite kings, but Jether did not do so because he was afraid. Gideon's son resembled Gideon himself. Gideon was no longer afraid. He killed Zebah and Zalmunna and took for himself their crescent symbols of royalty.

8:22-27 The Israelites recognized the significance of Gideon's behavior. They asked him to rule over them as the founder of a dynastic line. Though they carefully avoided the word "king," it is clear that they were offering Gideon that office. The rationale that the people gave is telling: For you delivered us from the power of Midian. The Lord's work in raising Gideon as deliverer had become obscured. Gideon's response was orthodox. He replied that neither he nor his sons would rule over them; the Lord would rule over them. Even as he formally refused the status of king, however, he failed to contradict their assertion that it was he who had saved them from the Midianites. He also proceeded to act precisely as a king would. He asked for a royal share of the plunder, gold earrings from every man, representing a symbolic token of submission to him. As in Exodus 32, where earrings were used in the making of the golden calf, so Gideon used these earrings to manufacture an idol in the form of an ephod, a garment worn by the priests and used as a means of determining God's will. The amount of gold suggests that the garment included an idolatrous image. Gideon's intent was to glorify himself, founding his own cult like the Canaanite kings. The result was spiritually disastrous, ensnaring all Israel in prostituting themselves.

8:28-32 The narrative ends where it started—at Ophrah—suggesting that nothing had changed. Baal had changed his shape, but the idolatry continued. The oppressive Midianite kings had been replaced by Gideon, who was acting like the worst kind of king. Along with supporting idolatry, Gideon married many wives and had 70 sons, a family structure forbidden to kings in Dt 17:17.

He also intermarried with the local population, taking a concubine from Canaanite Shechem, with whom he had a son named Abimelech, which literally means "my father is king." Positively, the land was peaceful 40 years during Gideon's lifetime, but from this point on in the Judges narrative, Israel never again attained rest. This negative portrayal of kingship suggests that the phrase "In those days there was no king in Israel; everyone did whatever he wanted" (17:6) did not portray an earthly monarchy as the solution to Israel's problems.

8:33-35 After Gideon's death, Israel went from bad to worse and prostituted themselves in the worship of the Baals. Baal was worshiped in many local manifestations, including Baal-berith ("Baal of the covenant"), who was the patron deity of Shechem. It is ironic that in worshiping a god whose name includes the word for "covenant," Israel forgot the covenant faithfulness of their own God, Yahweh, who had delivered them from the power of their enemies. The place where this Baal was worshiped, Shechem, was where the people renewed their covenant with the Lord at the end of the book of Joshua when the people swore never to worship the gods of the land (Jos 24). Nor did they show kindness to the house of Gideon after his death. The word "kindness" (Hb chesed) is often used in covenantal contexts, and it suggests that Israel forgot Gideon's acts of deliverance as swiftly as they forgot the Lord's. The irony of Israel's return to Baal worship is heightened by the use of Gideon's other name, Jerubbaal, "let Baal contend."

9:1-6 The account of Abimelech is a deviation from the main storyline of the book of Judges, showing the complete Canaanization of the land during this period. Gideon may have formally declined kingship, but Abimelech (whose name means "My father is king") had no such scruples. He went to his mother's family in Shechem, in the center of Israel, and sought the support of the lords of Shechem in a coup that would place him on the throne. The principle of dynastic succession that Gideon denied in 8:23 is taken for granted in Abimelech's speech. Either he would rule or the other 70 sons of Gideon would rule. The value of having a relative in power was readily perceived by the lords of Shechem. They gave 70 pieces of silver, one for each of Gideon's other sons, with which Abimelech hired mercenaries to eliminate his rivals. Israel was so thoroughly corrupt that the money was from a pagan temple and the mercenaries were worthless and reckless men. Beth-millo may be another way of referring to Shechem's leaders. The location of the coronation may have been the same prominent oak where Joshua years before had set up a pillar as a witness of the people's covenant renewal with God (Jos 24:25-27).

9:7-15 Jotham, the sole son of Gideon to escape the massacre, went to the top of Mount Gerizim, which overlooked Shechem. In addition to being a safe place, it was a place with a history. Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal were the locations where the people of Israel recited the blessings and curses of the covenant when they had first entered the land (Dt 27:12-13). On this occasion, Mount Gerizim would host a curse (Jdg 9:57) rather than a blessing. From the mountain, Jotham proclaimed a fable, a story involving plants or animals that teaches a moral lesson. In Jotham's fable, the various trees sought to find a king. Each of the first three trees was reluctant to give up its profitable activity in favor of such an unprofitable office. The fourth and final candidate, the bramble, had no useful function but was a perpetual nuisance for farmers. But this plant accepted their offer of kingship. He invited the other trees to come and find refuge in my shade, though the low spreading bramble provides no real shade. If they would not submit to him, he issued a threat that fiery judgment would come from him and consume the cedars of Lebanon, the most exalted of trees.

9:16-21 Jotham himself provided the interpretation of the fable. First, he facetiously wondered whether they had acted faithfully and honestly (vv. 16-19). Then he invoked a curse that the people would get what they deserve; he also went beyond the fable to make the curse reciprocal: May fire . . . consume Abimelech. Jotham then fled, hiding out at a place named Beer ("well").

9:22-25 Abimelech's reign lasted only three years. The translation evil spirit does not necessarily imply demonic activity, since the Hebrew word ra'ah can simply mean "bad." The focus is on the fact that God replaced the harmony between Abimelech and the lords of Shechem with a spirit of distrust and disagreement. As a result, the lords of Shechem broke faith with Abimelech by ambushing those who passed by on the roads.

9:26-29 Gaal may have been a Shechemite who had gone into exile to escape Abimelech. His return was welcomed by the lords of Shechem who harvested grapes in order to throw a party for him. The grape harvest was often a time of riotous celebration and drunkenness. On this occasion, after eating and drinking a little too much, the participants cursed Abimelech—an action that could incur the death penalty (Ex 22:28; 1Kg 21:13). In a speech whose forthrightness seems emboldened by alcohol, Gaal claimed that if he were king he could do a better job of running Shechem than Abimelech.

9:30-41 Zebul, Abimelech's governor in Shechem, called Gaal's bluff, informing Abimelech of Gaal's insubordination, and forcing Gaal to lead the lords of Shechem against Abimelech's army.

9:42-49 Abimelech took excessive revenge against Shechem. He massacred the inhabitants of the city and tore down its buildings. He also scattered salt over it. Since salt is a preservative, this act symbolized the eternal and unchanging nature of this destruction. Those who escaped fled to the temple of El-berith

9:50-57 Encouraged by his success at Shechem, Abimelech sought to repeat it at Thebez, a town not far from Shechem. Instead, he was killed when a woman dropped a millstone on his head. Like Sisera, he met his end at the hand of a woman, even though his armor bearer struck the final blow. Abimelech's fire thus consumed himself, as Jotham's curse was fulfilled by the Lord.

10:1-5 After Abimelech, there were a pair of minor judges, Tola and Jair. Both "judged" Israel administratively, like Deborah, without being involved in direct conflict. The description of Tola recalls the days of the good judges. However, Jair the Gileadite sounds more like a "minor Gideon," with his 30 pampered sons. "Thirty sons" suggests multiple wives, while 30 donkeys and towns implies a tendency to accumulate personal wealth. Like Abimelech, there is no mention that they were raised up by the Lord or empowered for their task by Him. Yet they form part of the total number of 12 judges in the book of Judges. This suggests that they were also part of God's provision for His people.

10:6-9 Israel now plumbed the depths of idolatry, serving no fewer than seven false gods. Seven was the number of completeness, just as there were seven nations listed that Israel needed to drive out of the land of Canaan (Dt 7:1). In accordance with the pattern of Judges 2, the LORD's anger burned and He sold them to an oppressor: the Philistines occupied the coastal plain west of Israel while the Ammonites occupied the Transjordanian region to the east.

Since the Ammonites were the oppressors in the Jephthah narrative (chap. 11) while the Philistines were the enemy with whom Samson had to deal (chaps. 13-16), this description of spiritual unfaithfulness seems to introduce both of these episodes, which may have been contemporaneous. The Lord's anger with Israel was so great that He afflicted them with two oppressors at once. They crushed Israel, just as Dt 28:33 had predicted. The initial focus is on the Ammonites, who for 18 years oppressed the Israelites living east of the Jordan River in the land of Gilead. The affliction was not limited to the part of Israel closest to the Ammonite homeland. They went further afield, crossing the Jordan and fighting against Judah, Benjamin, and . . . Ephraim.

10:10-18 When under pressure, Israel cried out to the LORD , confessing their sin of abandoning Him. Before, the Lord had sent a prophet to rebuke them (6:7-10), but this time He confronted them Himself. Though the Israelites called him our God, the Lord refused to accept their claim of a relationship to Him. He had in the past delivered them from seven oppressors, a number that matched the number of other gods they had been worshiping (v. 6). Now He would no longer deliver them. If they wanted the Lord to help them in their hour of distress, they should have served Him also in the good times. At this, the Israelites "repented" once more. They got rid of their foreign gods and worshiped the LORD . Was their repentance real, or was it just another attempt to manipulate God into delivering them again? The Lord declared that His patience with Israel's suffering was exhausted. In the face of their repentance, there was no word of any deliverer to come. The only sound was the impending arrival of the Ammonites camping for war in Gilead. Far from receiving a deliverer from the Lord, the Gileadites were left leaderless. As a result, instead of seeking a man empowered by the Spirit of God, they sought to motivate someone—anyone—to step forward with the promise of human reward: leadership over all the inhabitants of Gilead.

11:1-3 The candidate that the Gileadites were seeking soon emerged. Jephthah is described as a great warrior, the same epithet the Angel of the Lord used to address Gideon in 6:12. Yet Jephthah was also a social outcast, the son of a prostitute. Driven from his home, Jephthah lived the life of a bandit in the land of Tob, where he was joined by lawless men. This is the same phrase used to describe Abimelech's mercenaries in 9:4. Jephthah was a man without a home, a family, or a future.

11:4-6 When the Ammonites waged war against Israel, the elders of Gilead invited Jephthah to be their commander. There is a parallel between Israel's sudden interest in the Lord when the Ammonites attacked them in chapter 10 and the Gileadites' sudden interest in Jephthah. Both appeals seem prompted by desperation rather than a genuine change of heart. In 10:18 the Gileadites had offered their own citizens the position of leader (Hb ro'sh), which implied long-term leadership over the tribe, but they offered to make Jephthah a military commander (Hb qatsin), which was a lesser position.

11:7-11 Jephthah was not immediately won over by this appeal. Earlier, the leaders of Gilead had been happy to send him elsewhere; now, in their hour of need, they wanted his help. In response, the elders of Gilead increased their offer to Jephthah, saying they would indeed make him leader (Hb ro'sh; v. 8). Jephthah brought the Lord's name into the discussion as he conditionally accepted their offer. The elders of Gilead made a vow in the Lord's presence and made him their leader and commander. Both the elders and Jephthah seemed to be using the Lord's name in support of their own interests.

11:12-13 As the new leader, Jephthah acted in king-like fashion, speaking to the king of the Ammonites as an equal and claiming that the land of Gilead was his own personal property (my land). The king of the Ammonites contested this claim, arguing that the region east of the Jordan, from the Arnon River in the south to the Jabbok River in the north, belonged to him and had been illegally seized when Israel came from Egypt. This claim was false. At the time Israel came up from Egypt, the land was occupied by the Amorites, not the Ammonites (Nm 21:21-35).

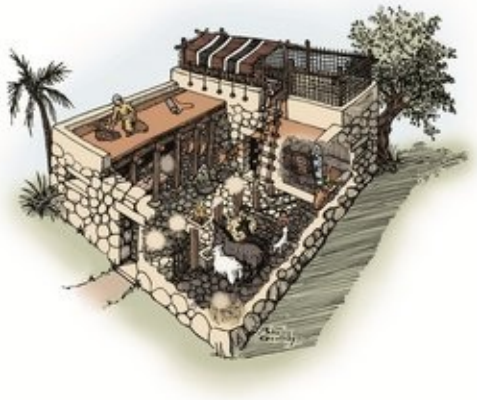
11:14-22 Negotiations went through another stage, as Jephthah sent more messengers to the king. They introduced their communication with the standard royal ambassadorial address, "This is what Jephthah says." They said that the land of Gilead had never belonged either to Moab, Ammon's southern neighbor, or to Ammon. Rather, when Israel came up out of Egypt, they were careful to respect the territorial boundaries of Edom and Moab. But when Sihon king of the Amorites attacked them, they had no choice but to engage him. The Lord then gave Israel Sihon's land, which is the land that the king of the Ammonites had described (vv. 21-22; cp. v. 13).

11:23-27 It was commonly understood in that day that whatever land your god gave you belonged to you. Since the LORD God of Israel had driven out the Amorites, it was Israel's to possess. If Chemosh, the god of the Ammonites, had real power, he could take the land for them. In this speech, Jephthah seems, either accidentally or deliberately, to have confused the deities of Moab and Ammon. Elsewhere in the Bible, Chemosh is the god of Moab, while Molech is the god of Ammon. Balak earlier had tried to curse Israel by means of the prophet Balaam, but he was unable to do so (Nm 22-24). The LORD would be the ultimate Judge of their dispute. At this point diplomacy was over, and the war began.



Israelite four-room house. Some interpreters believe Jephthah lived in a four-room house that was common in Israel during the Iron Age. Many such houses had a room for the family's animals. If Jephthah lived in such a house, his vow (11:30) may have been based on the assumption that one of his animals would be the first to greet him when he returned from victory over the Ammonites. For a different view, see the note at 11:29-33.

11:29-33 The spirit of the LORD came on Jephthah, empowering him for action. He toured Gilead and Manasseh to muster his troops and headed out against the Ammonites. The Lord in turn gave him victory over the Ammonites, from Aroer all the way to . . . Minnith and to Abel-keramim—three towns that defined the traditional border between Israel and Ammon. In between empowerment and victory, though, there was an intervening episode that undermined Jephthah's triumph. Jephthah sought to ensure the Lord's favor by vowing to sacrifice as a whole burnt offering whatever (or whoever) came out of the doors of his house to greet him after he had won his victory.

It seems probable that Jephthah had a human sacrifice in mind, since animals do not normally come out to greet the returning troops. Just as he confused Chemosh and Molech in the previous section, so now he confused the Lord with Chemosh and Molech. The gods of the Moabites and Ammonites accepted human burnt offerings as a sign of total dedication (2Kg 3), but such offerings were an abomination to the Lord. The Lord would have delivered Israel anyway, even without Jephthah's rash vow.

11:34-35 After the victory, Jephthah's vow came back to haunt him. The one coming out to meet him was his daughter, with tambourines and dancing, the traditional greeting for a returning hero. She was his only daughter and so sacrificing her left him childless. Jephthah tore his clothes and mourned her loss, though his mourning was not so much for her but for himself.

11:36-40 Jephthah's daughter was very different from her father. She had no recriminations for him, only an exhortation to fulfill his vow, just as the Lord had fulfilled the conditions. Unlike Abraham, whose faithfulness to God's demand resulted in a multitude of descendants, Jephthah's "faithfulness" issued in the complete cutting off of his line. That is part of what made the fact that she would die a virgin something to be mourned. She died unfulfilled because she would never get married and have children. Such a fate would normally condemn someone to be numbered among the unremembered in Israel. However, though Jephthah's daughter has no name in the text, the young women of Israel honored her memory year after year.

12:1-3 In a replay of the explosive situation that Gideon had faced and successfully defused in chapter 8, the men of Ephraim came out and complained to Jephthah about not being invited to the battle against the Ammonites. They threatened to burn his house down with him in it. Ironically, in sacrificing his only daughter, Jephthah had already destroyed his own "house." Jephthah claimed that he called them and they didn't come to deliver him, whereupon he took his life in his hands and the Lord gave the Ammonites into his hands. Jephthah's claim is not confirmed by the text and may be a convenient fabrication. Significantly, he was not willing to place this dispute in the hands of God, as he was with the Ammonites (11:27); the Lord's name appears in Jephthah's argument only as a means of furthering his claims.

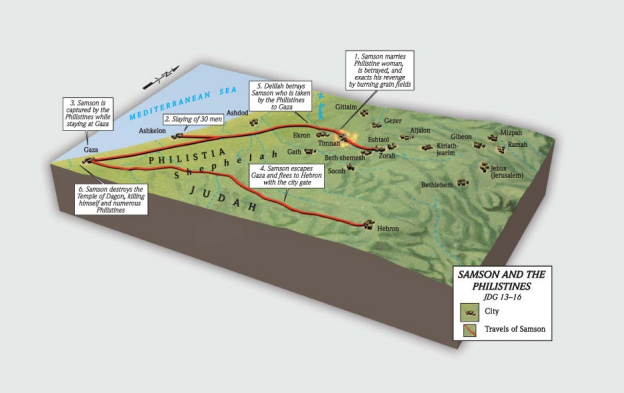
12:4-7 Jephthah took action against the Ephraimites because they questioned the legitimacy of Gilead. The illegitimate son who had achieved social acceptability could not tolerate this insult, so he called out the troops once more, this time against a tribe from his own people. There is no mention of the Spirit of the Lord coming on him or giving his enemies into his hand in this conflict. Those who escaped (in a neat twist, the true "fugitives of Ephraim") and attempted to get back across the Jordan River to Ephraim were met at the fords with a test question, Please say Shibboleth. The Hebrew word shibboleth has no clear meaning, but in the Ephraimite dialect, it was apparently pronounced sibboleth. In view of this kin-group strife that caused 42,000 deaths, it is not surprising that though Jephthah judged Israel six years, there is no mention of the land experiencing any rest during his tenure.

12:8-15 After Jephthah, there were three minor judges, Ibzan . . . Elon, and Abdon. Ibzan had 30 sons and 30 daughters, in contrast to Jephthah's lost daughter, while Abdon had 40 sons and 30 grandsons, where Jephthah had no grandchildren. They practiced polygamy and acquired wealth (cp. 8:28-32). The summary description of the lives of these judges contrasts with the earlier part of the book. Before Gideon, the cycle concluded with "and the land had rest for __ years." After Gideon, the cycles conclude "and __ judged Israel __ years." In place of saviors, these men were mere office bearers; in place of rest, there was mere stability.

13:1 The story of the final judge, Samson, is introduced with the familiar pattern of doing evil and being handed over to an enemy for a period of time. Based in the coastal plain, the Philistines were constantly seeking to expand their territory into the foothills of Israel. They were already a problem for Israel in 3:31, and they continued to be the chief threat to Israel during the time of Samuel and Saul. There is no mention on this occasion of Israel crying out for deliverance, yet the Lord would still send them a deliverer—of a sort.



13:2-5 The opening of Samson's story, There was a certain man, exactly matches that of Samuel, inviting comparison of these two sons born to formerly barren women. The name of his father, Manoah, means "rest," which is what Israel lacked. The description of his wife as unable to conceive and having no children echoes the description of Sarah in Gn 11:30, raising expectations of a child who would be of great significance for God's plans. Their personal tragedy mirrored the pitiable state of the nation as a whole.

A Nazirite made a vow to abstain from wine and other alcoholic beverages, to remain separate from corpses and other sources of defilement, and to leave his hair uncut (Nm 6). Since the dietary restriction not to . . . eat anything unclean should have been observed by all Israelites all the time, it suggests that general standards of holiness were low during this period. The baby that she would bear would be called to begin to save Israel from the power of the Philistines, though others would finish the work.

The Lord's design for Samson paralleled His design for Israel. Israel was intended to be a holy people, because their Lord was holy (Lv 11:45). Their subsequent history and lack of faithfulness to their calling was matched by Samson's career as he disobeyed every single one of the vows made on his behalf. From the womb on, Samson is a picture of Israel—chosen for holiness, but defiled by his sinful actions.

13:8 The woman's husband, Manoah, prayed for a return visit from the angelic figure, presumably so they might receive additional instructions on how to raise this child. In reality, there was nothing more Manoah needed to know. Possibly he was jealous of the fact that the Angel appeared to his wife rather than to him.

13:9-14 God graciously responded to Manoah's request, though it is significant that when the Angel appeared again it was initially to the woman alone. Learning of the appearance, Manoah sought to question the Angel about his identity and the mission of the boy. The Angel simply repeated the instructions earlier given to his wife. There was nothing required of Manoah, only of his wife.

13:15-18 Manoah's invitation to a meal may have been an act of hospitality, but the effect of his actions is unwittingly made clear by his words Please stay here, which literally meant, "Let us detain you." The Angel declined Manoah's offer, instead inviting him to present it as a burnt offering to the Lord. Manoah asked the Angel's name. Apparently, he was still unable to put the clues together and recognize the Angel of the Lord. The Angel refused to answer his question, affirming that his name was wonderful—"extraordinary" or "beyond understanding." In the OT, the Hebrew word translated "wonderful" is almost invariably used to describe God, not human experiences. If the formation of every child in the womb is "wonderful" (Ps 139:14), a work of God, how much more must this be true of a barren woman who would conceive?

13:19-21 Still Manoah failed to grasp the obvious. It was only when the heavenly messenger ascended in the flames going up from the altar that Manoah finally understood who this messenger was.

13:22-23 Manoah's wife understood God better than her husband. Once he recognized the Angel of the Lord, Manoah thought both he and his wife would die. This was indeed the standard penalty for seeing God (Ex 33:20). As Manoah's wife noted, God obviously had other intentions.

13:24-25 So Samson was born as a result of the miraculous intervention of God. As he grew, the Spirit of the LORD began to direct him. These elements raise the expectation that he would be used by God powerfully to deliver His people—expectations that would be partially fulfilled but mostly unmet in what followed.

14:1-2 After Samson's empowering by the Spirit in 13:25, his next action should have been calling out the Lord's people to battle the Philistines. Instead, he wanted to marry a Philistine woman whom he saw in Timnah. This city was only six miles west of Zorah, Samson's hometown (13:2), but it was in the hands of the Philistines. To get there involved going down, both physically and spiritually.

14:3-4 Samson's parents asked him in vain if there were no women among his relatives whom he could marry. Intermarriage with the Philistines was a denial of Samson's calling as a Nazirite, and his choice of a bride contrasts strongly with the "ideal" wife of Othniel, the first judge, who married Caleb's daughter. Samson said of the woman he "saw" (v. 1), I want her, which is literally, "she is right in my eyes." In this he represented Israel, where each citizen "did whatever he wanted" (17:6; 21:25), literally, "what was right in his eyes." Yet the Lord would use even Samson's sinful desires to accomplish His purposes. The text literally says his father and his mother did not know that she was from the LORD . This Philistine woman would be the means God would use to stir up Samson to begin a conflict with the Philistines, who were ruling Israel at this time. Again, the absence of any mention of Israel crying out to the Lord is striking.

14:5-6 On another occasion, Samson was going down to Timnah with his parents when a young lion rushed at him. This attack happened as he came to the vineyards of Timnah, an odd place for a Nazirite to be, since he was required to avoid all contact with grape products. The ease with which Samson disposed of the lion raises questions about why he had not yet begun to dispense with the enemies of the Lord—the Philistines.

14:8-9 Some time later, as Samson traveled the same road, he turned aside to see the lion's carcass. As a Nazirite, he was supposed to remain distant from corpses, yet here he not only went to see the lion's carcass but also scooped out of it some honey. Not only did Samson defile himself, he also defiled his parents by bringing them some of the honey but not informing them of its source. He gave some to them and they ate it uses the same vocabulary as when Eve gave Adam the fruit.

14:10-13 Having broken his Nazirite vow by deliberately touching the carcass of the lion, Samson then proceeded to despise it further by hosting a drinking party (the Hebrew word "feast" comes from the word "to drink") for his new pagan friends. As the drinking party progressed, Samson proposed a riddle that would cost every one of his 30 companions a suit of clothing—an outer garment and a tunic—if they lost and would cost him 30 suits if they were able to solve it before the end of the feast.

14:14-15 Without the interpretive key of Samson's experience with the lion, his riddle was unsolvable. On the fourth day, realizing this, the young men blackmailed Samson's betrothed wife. They feared that Samson's riddle would rob them or, more precisely, "dispossess" them. The verb "dispossess" is often used of the Israelite conquests in the land, which highlights the Lord's hand in this dispute.

14:16-17 The woman then emotionally blackmailed Samson, claiming that, if he wouldn't tell her the answer to his riddle, then he didn't love her. Their exchange highlights a key issue. She referred to the Philistines as my people, while he regarded his parents as the primary circle of his intimacy. They belonged to two different peoples, with naturally opposed loyalties. In the end, under the pressure of her nagging, Samson relented.

14:18-20 The Philistines' answer not only solved Samson's riddle, but spoke of the current situation at the wedding: though Samson had proved himself stronger than a lion, the sweetness of a woman's love was more powerful still. Samson's response is another miniature poem. As well as a denunciation of their cheating, this reply was also a sharp insult to his Philistine bride. Samson vented his anger by killing 30 Philistines in Ashkelon to acquire the suits of clothing necessary to pay his debt. This act was triggered by the Spirit of the LORD rushing on him, which shows that his act of personal vengeance was used by the Lord to begin to execute judgment against the Philistines. Samson returned to his father's house in Zorah, still angry, while his Philistine father-in-law gave his daughter to one of the 30 young men who had been guarding Samson.

15:1-3 Though Samson left Timnah in anger, it was not his intent to call off the wedding. He returned a few weeks later, during the wheat harvest in May, with a conventional hospitality gift—a young goat—intending to go to his wife's room to consummate the marriage. The father had interpreted Samson's anger as a definitive breach in the relationship, and he had given his daughter to one of the other young men. Nonetheless, he tried to placate Samson by offering him his younger and more attractive daughter. Samson was not so easily pacified. Instead, he vowed to harm the Philistines, thus executing the Lord's purpose in 14:4.

15:4-8 Like Gideon, Samson took on the Lord's enemies with an army of 300, along with some torches. His army was made up of foxes (or perhaps jackals, which were more common in this area) rather than fellow Israelites because Samson always fought alone. He then fixed burning torches to the animals' tails and sent them among the fields that were ready for harvesting, damaging all of the Philistines' major crops at a crucial point in the agricultural cycle. The Philistines retaliated by burning Samson's wife and her father, fulfilling the threat they had made earlier (14:15). Samson escalated the cycle of violence by slaughtering another batch of Philistines. The meaning of the idiom, literally, "he struck them hip on thigh" is uncertain, but it clearly reflects a violent manner of death—as in tearing them limb from limb.

15:9-11 The Philistines then camped in Judah. With the other judges, this would have been the cue for the judge to lead out the armies of the Lord against them. However, the Judahites showed no sign of wanting to be delivered. Nor was Samson motivated by a desire to deliver his people; his actions were aimed at gaining revenge for himself.

15:12-17 The Judahites were determined to hand Samson over to the Philistines, as evidence of their good faith submission. Samson, confident in his own strength, was quite content to be handed over. When the Philistines came to meet him shouting, their approach was reminiscent of that of the roaring lion in the previous chapter. So too was their fate: Samson seized the fresh jawbone of a donkey and promptly dispatched 1,000 of the opposition. The word "fresh" emphasizes Samson's neglect of his Nazirite vows—this time by plundering the corpse of an animal for his weapon. Samson's response was to give himself all the glory for the slaughter (cp. Gn 4:23). Whereas Deborah's song praised God for giving His people the victory (Jdg 5), Samson's song praised himself for making a heap (or "a donkey"; the Hebrew words are identical) out of his enemies. He also renamed the location Ramath-lehi ("High Place of the Jawbone") in honor of his feat.

15:18-19 Samson calling out to the LORD for a drink is once again a vivid picture of Israel, ascribing his victories to himself and only crying out to the Lord in time of trouble. When he found himself in need, the orthodox vocabulary reasserted itself. He was now "the Lord's servant." When in need, Samson sought the Lord's deliverance, but as soon as the crisis was over, he returned to his old ways. The parallel between Samson and Israel is highlighted by the echoes of Israel's wilderness experience of Exodus 17, where the Lord had made water come out of the rock for His people. Typically, instead of naming the spring that revived him after the Lord, Samson named it after himself, calling it En-hakkore, "The Spring of the Caller."

15:20 In this way, Samson judged Israel 20 years. Normally this notice comes at the end of the story of a judge. In this case, there is another chapter in the story in which Samson is operating on his own strength, abandoned by God, a tragedy waiting to happen.

16:1-3 The opening verse parallels 14:1. Samson went to a Philistine town and saw a woman. Like the history of Israel, the spiral in Samson's life is downwards. This time he didn't want to marry her, he just wanted to sleep with her. Gaza was the most distant city of the Philistines from Samson's home, which symbolizes how far from God Samson had gone. When the Philistines heard that he was there, they surrounded the city and waited for him at the only exit, the city gate. Yet such was Samson's enormous strength that the Philistines were unable to trap him. His vast show of strength in uprooting the city gate and carrying it roughly 40 miles uphill to the mountain overlooking Hebron heightens the irony of his subsequent weakness in the hands of a woman.

16:4-5 Women were Samson's problem all along, yet his encounter with Delilah is the only case where love is mentioned. Once again, his heart was set on a Philistine woman. Delilah's name sounds like the Hebrew word for "night," in keeping with the darkness that was about to descend on Samson. The Philistine leaders, the rulers of the five city-states that made up that region (1Sm 6:17-18), sought to persuade Delilah to determine the secret of Samson's strength by promising her an enormous sum of money—1,100 pieces of silver from each leader. In comparison, the price of an ordinary slave was 30 pieces of silver (Ex 21:32).

16:6-9 Bowstrings were made from the sinews of animals, so fresh bowstrings would come directly from an animal's corpse. As with the earlier incidents with honey from a lion and the jawbone of the donkey, Samson displayed a disdain for his Nazirite vow of separation from corpses. Since seven was seen as the number of completeness in the ancient Near East, the idea of being weakened by seven bowstrings wrongly suggested that the source of Samson's strength lay in magic rather than in the Lord.

16:10-12 This time Samson told Delilah to use new ropes to bind him. This was the same technique that the Israelites used to bind Samson in 15:13, so it is no surprise that the attempt was unsuccessful.

16:13-14 The third time Delilah sought the secret of his strength, he told her to weave . . . seven braids of his hair into a fabric. This attempt, while also unsuccessful, was more ominous than the previous ones. Not only did Samson point to the connection between his hair and his strength, but the image of a woman standing over a sleeping man with a pin in her hands is reminiscent of Jael approaching the sleeping form of Sisera.

16:15-17 Finally Samson told Delilah the whole truth (lit "everything of his heart"), that his strength came from his Nazirite vow, symbolized by his uncut hair. In fact, this was the only part of his Nazirite vow that he had not yet broken, and this revelation shows how lightly he took it.

16:18-20 Delilah realized that this time she had the secret, so rather than just saying, "The Philistines are here!" (vv. 9,12,14), she actually summoned the Philistine leaders, and they shaved Samson's head. With the final element of his Nazirite vow gone, his power was lost.

16:21-22 Samson was carried off to exile in Gaza, the city of his earlier exploits in verses 1-3. His eyes, which had caused so many of his problems, were removed by the Philistines, and his strength was put to work in their service, grinding grain. In the midst of his hopeless situation, there was a ray of hope: his hair began to grow back.

16:23-27 The name Dagon is related to the word for "grain," which suggests an agricultural role for this deity to which the Philistines also ascribed a role in capturing their tormentor, Samson. In fact, Samson's capture was possible only because the Lord had left him (v. 20). As the party progressed, they summoned Samson to entertain them, presumably by being the butt of their mocking humor. In the process, they brought him to the center of the temple, whose roof was probably supported by cedar pillars.

16:28-31 Samson called out to the LORD, just as he had in 15:18, asking the Lord to remember him. In the OT, to "remember" means not simply to think about someone but to act on their behalf (see note at Gn 8:1). His motivation was still self-centered: he wanted to pay them back for the loss of his eyes. In the process of destroying the building, he fulfilled his destiny: he began "to save Israel from the power of the Philistines" (Jdg 13:5). Yet the task was left unfinished at his death. His body was retrieved to be buried with his family, but his period of leadership achieved no rest for the people.

17:1-4 This section begins with Micah ("Who is like Yahweh?") confessing to his mother that he had stolen from her 1,100 pieces of silver (a fortune in that time). Fear of the curse she had uttered against the thief drove Micah to return it. His mother responded in orthodox fashion: My son, you are blessed by the LORD . By this she sought to cancel out the earlier curse. Yet she then consecrated this same silver to the Lord to be made into a carved image. In addition, having vowed to dedicate all the silver to the Lord, she only gave five pounds, or two hundred shekels, of the silver to the silversmith for the idol.

17:5-6 Centers of personal devotion like Micah's shrine were outlawed in Deuteronomy 12. The ephod is reminiscent of the idol that Gideon constructed at Ophrah (Jdg 8:27). The household idols, or "teraphim," were often associated with divination (Zch 10:2) and were portable objects of veneration throughout the ancient Near East, although their exact form is unknown. Micah also installed one of his sons to be his priest, in opposition to the officially authorized Levitical priesthood. In those days everyone did whatever he wanted (lit "what was right in his own eyes," a lifestyle exemplified by Samson). The author may have been saying the lawlessness was because there was no king in Israel. Alternatively the author—who was writing this much later, and had seen how immorally Israel could function under a wicked king—may have been saying that even without a king to lead them astray, the people behaved atrociously all on their own.

17:7-8 At this point, a Levite arrived, a member of the priestly tribe. He was a young man, and therefore he would not have been qualified to serve as a priest in the orthodox worship of the Lord, which began at age 30 (Nm 4:3). He was also from Bethlehem in Judah, at the opposite end of Israel from Ephraim. The author does not name the young Levite until 18:30 (see note there). According to Dt 18:6-8, Levites who were residing in any of the clans of Israel were allowed to leave their homes and go to the place the Lord had chosen to join in His service there. This Levite, however, was seeking any place that he could find. His behavior is symptomatic of the general tendency in Israel at this time for each man to do "whatever he wanted" (Jdg 17:6).

17:10-13 Seizing the opportunity to have a priest with a legitimate genealogy, Micah engaged this Levite to be his father and priest. "Father" is a title of honor that reflects the role of the priest in communicating God's law to Israel (Dt 33:10) and thus shaping their behavior. Instead of the priestly terms of employment prescribed in Numbers 18, Micah promised him his clothing and lodging and four ounces of silver a year, a miserly sum in comparison to the amount of silver that was at his family's disposal (Jdg 18:2). Micah also personally consecrated the "priest" to his office (v. 12), emphasizing the Levite's subordinate nature in Micah's household. From Micah's statement in verse 13, it is clear that he viewed this Levite essentially as another idol, an attempted means of ensuring the Lord's blessing upon himself.

18:1-2 During this same period of apostasy, a group of Danites were also on the move. Like the Levite in Judges 17, they were not content with the situation assigned them by the Lord and were looking for something better. They had earlier captured the cities of Zorah and Eshtaol, on the border between their territory and that of Judah, but they had been unable to conquer the rest of the territory allotted to them in Jos 19:40-48 (see Jdg 1:34). Instead of seeking the Lord's help in their struggle, they sent out spies in a reenactment of Nm 13-14, seeking a new land for themselves.

18:3-4 The spies came to Micah's house, where they encountered the Levite. Their questions exposed the underlying issue: "What is a Levite doing in a house of idolatry?" The Levite's reply revealed his mercenary motives. Micah had hired him, so the Levite was serving as his priest.

18:5-7 The spies asked the Levite to inquire of God whether their trip would be successful. It is significant that they used the generic description "God" rather than the personal, covenant name "the Lord." In response, without any effort to consult God, the Levite declared that their journey would be a success, because the LORD was watching over them. Since the Lord had assigned the Danites different territory, the Levite was misusing the Lord's name (Ex 20:7) to tell the Danites what they wanted to hear. Indeed, their mission was a success—in their terms. Laish was located in a productive agricultural area at the foot of Mount Hermon. Its inhabitants were living . . . in the same way as the Sidonians, which likely means that they viewed themselves as under the protection of Sidon. However, Sidon was a long way off, on the coast near Tyre.

18:8-13 The spies brought home a positive response about their journey, a report that contrasts starkly with that of the majority of the spies about the real promised land (Nm 13-14). Six hundred Danites responded, and they set up a staging post near Kiriath-jearim, which became known as the Camp of Dan. This was the same place where Samson started out in 13:25, which invites comparison between the Danites' self-centered conquests and those of Samson.

18:14-21 On the way to their new homeland, the Danites visited the home of Micah. The spies reported Micah's idolatry and invited a response. The right response would have been to destroy the idols and the shrine, to root out the sin from their midst. Instead, supported by the 600 men armed with weapons of war, the spies went into the house and took the carved image, the ephod, and the household idols. When the young Levite objected, they bribed him to join them, offering him the prospect of being a father and a priest to an entire tribe rather than a single family. The party then formed up for travel again, with the most vulnerable members, the small children and livestock, positioned at the front, in case of reprisals by Micah.

18:22-26 When Micah mobilized (lit "cried out") his neighbors and pursued the Danites, the Danites asked him why he had done this. "Mobilized" is the same verb used to describe Israel's cry to the Lord when harassed by enemies. Here the Israelites had become their own oppressors. Micah had made his own gods and appointed his own priest, concluding that "Now I know the Lord will be good to me" (17:13). In fact, his gods could be carried off by a passing band of brigands, and the priest he had appointed for money could be lured away by a higher salary. He was left with nothing except his own life, and the Danites were quick to threaten that as well as the lives of his family. The silver he stole at the outset was now stolen from him; his mother's curse in 17:2 was fulfilled.

18:27-29 Laish was in a valley that belonged to Beth-rehob, a name that links this conquest by the Danites once again with the spying mission of Numbers 13-14, where Rehob was the northern limit of the land (Nm 13:21). They renamed Laish Dan, after their ancestor, and established it as the primary center for their idolatrous cult. Later, Jeroboam would locate one of his two golden calves in Dan, continuing the city's tradition of idolatry (1Kg 12:29).

18:30-31 The idol set up by the Danites served as a rival for the true worship of God, which was conducted where the ark was, in Shiloh. The Levite, introduced in 17:7, is finally named and is revealed to have an illustrious ancestry. He is Jonathan, the grandson of Moses. Later scribes who wrote out copies of the book of Judges naturally disdained the corrupt "Jonathan" and wished to show that he had greater affinity with the later idolatrous King Manasseh than he did with Moses. Thus they placed the Hebrew letter nun in the middle of the name "Moses," making it read "Manasseh" instead. In this way they passed judgment on the false priest, linking him to evil Manasseh rather than righteous Moses. Since the scribes were careful to superscript the letter nun above the rest of the text, making it clear that it was not original to the text, we are not left in doubt that the original reading is "Moses."

Such an idolatrous cult as the Danites, even when served by a priesthood that enjoyed an exalted ancestry, could only have a negative outcome, as the reference to an exile makes clear. The mention of the exile suggests that the final editing of Judges occurred some time after the exile of the northern kingdom in 722 B.C.

19:1 The opening line of this chapter anticipates the story's direction. Like the Levite in the last story, this one was living in the hill country of Ephraim, and he was connected to Bethlehem in Judah (17:7,9), this time through marriage to a concubine, a lower-status wife. The Levite is nameless, as is almost every character in this story. This highlights the fact that this episode is not unique but was characteristic of these lawless times.

19:2-4 The Levite's concubine was unfaithful to him, a broad term that would cover sexual immorality and more general desertion. There was no provision in ancient Israel for a woman to divorce a man; nevertheless she left him and returned to her father's house. Finally after four months, the Levite went to try to persuade her to go back with him. The girl's father was glad to see him and gave him a warm welcome. As was typical in the ancient Near East, the requirements of hospitality took several days of feasting to fulfill.

19:5-9 On the morning of the fourth day, the Levite was eager to go on his way, but his host detained him with further offers of hospitality that would have been rude to decline in that culture. As a result, he was persuaded to stay another night. In an almost comic scene, the next day followed an identical pattern, with the host insisting on further hospitality and the Levite seeking to make his departure. In these exchanges, the concubine is nowhere to be seen.

19:10-12 As a result of this profuse hospitality, it was late in the day by the time the Levite and his party got underway. By the time they had arrived at the city of Jerusalem, a mere six miles journey from Bethlehem, the day was almost over. The Levite's servant proposed seeking shelter for the night in the city. At this time, Jerusalem was still in the hands of the Jebusites, and the Levite was reluctant to seek hospitality from non-Israelites. The Levite's fear is doubly ironic. First, if the Israelites had pressed forward with the conquest at the outset, Jerusalem would already have been in Israelite hands by this time. Second, the treatment they would experience at the hands of fellow Israelites in Gibeah was to be far worse than anything they could have expected from the Jebusites.

19:13-15 The Levite decided to press on another six miles or so to the Israelite cities of Gibeah or Ramah. By the time they reached Gibeah, the sun had already set. They sat down in the city square where, according to ancient Near Eastern custom, strangers might expect to receive hospitality. No offers of hospitality were forthcoming, unlike their experience in Bethlehem.

19:16-21 Finally, an old man came in from his work. Like the Levite, he was from the hill country of Ephraim and merely lived in Gibeah, which perhaps explains his greater hospitality. Custom demanded hospitality should be shown to every stranger, but the Levite would not have been a burdensome guest. He could provide food for his own party and his animals. The Levite's statement that he was going to the house of the LORD seems odd in this context, since the temple had not yet been built. Most likely, a scribe misunderstood the final letter in the Hebrew word "my house" as an abbreviation for the name of the Lord. The old man's insistence that they should come to his home and not spend the night in the square suggests that he knew things were not as they ought to be in Gibeah. The square, inside the town walls, should have been a safe location.

19:22-24 The echoes of the story of Sodom and Gomorrah in Gn 19 were already present in the preceding verses, in which strangers arrived in the town square in the evening and found lodging with one of the town's inhabitants. These echoes now become a virtual reenactment. The scene of peaceful hospitality was shattered by the arrival of perverted men (lit "men of Belial," or "worthless men"; cp. 9:4). The old man appealed to them as his brothers, but he characterized their request for sex with his male guest as an offense against hospitality and morality. It would be a horrible thing, a phrase that characterizes an act that cries out for retributive justice (20:6; Gn 34:7; Dt 22:21). Yet the alternative that the old man proposed is equally abhorrent.

19:25-28 The similarities with the narrative of Sodom and Gomorrah heighten the differences. The perpetrators were not pagans but Israelites. There were no angels to step in and rescue the innocent parties. There was no judgment from heaven at daybreak as with Sodom and Gomorrah. In the morning, the Levite got up from his rest and opened the doors of the house to leave on his journey, as if nothing had happened the previous night.

19:29-30 There is no mention of the concubine's death in the story, which raises the question of whether she was dead when the Levite found her, or even at the point when he cut her into 12 pieces. Her unresponsiveness to his commands suggests she was dead. At the very least, the Levite's action goes against the normal respect shown to a dead body in Israel, carving it up as if it were the carcass of an animal and sending the pieces to the 12 tribes of Israel as a call to arms. The similar passage in 1Sm 11:7, where Saul cut up a pair of oxen into 12 parts and distributed them among the tribes, shows that this act included an implied curse. Those who failed to respond to the muster could expect to meet a similar fate. Everyone who saw the grisly message agreed that such an outrage demanded a response.

20:1-3 The message conveyed by the carved-up body of the Levite's concubine achieved a remarkable unity among the tribes of Israel. All of the Israelites from the northern border town of Dan to the southern border town of Beer-sheba came out as one—an achievement that surpassed anything accomplished by the judges raised up by the Lord. Mention of the land of Gilead shows that even the Transjordanian tribes responded. A total of 400,000 armed foot soldiers assembled, a vast army by the standards of the book of Judges. The meeting took place at Mizpah, on the border between Benjamin and Ephraim, just north of Jerusalem and only a few miles away from Gibeah. The Benjaminites, however, did not take part in this assembly.

20:4-7 The Levite presented his own version of the facts to the assembly, carefully leaving out anything that might show him in a bad light. He failed to mention taking his concubine outside, giving her to the men, and then going to bed. Instead, he simply said, they raped my concubine, and she died. He termed this act a horrible shame in Israel—a gross sin that demanded a response. All the people therefore determined to take united action against Gibeah.

20:12-17 Before engaging in military action, the Israelites sent messengers among the Benjaminites, appealing to them to hand over the guilty men. The tribe of Benjamin was more concerned about tribal solidarity than national solidarity or justice, and so the appeal to put these men to death fell on deaf ears. As a result, instead of Israel against Gibeah, the conflict became Israel against Benjamin. The Benjaminites rallied their forces for war—26,000 armed men, including 700 from Gibeah. This was a significant army, even if outnumbered by the Israelite's 400,000 . . . experienced warriors. There was also a special contingent of 700 men who, like the Benjaminite judge Ehud, were left-handed, and who were remarkable marksmen, able to hit the smallest of targets with their slings.

20:18-21 The Israelites assembled for war at Bethel, northwest of Mizpah, where God had revealed Himself to Jacob (Gn 28). There the Israelites inquired of God not about whether they should fight their brothers, but about who should go first against the Benjaminites, and the Lord answered Judah. The language is virtually identical to 1:1-2, except here they call on 'Elohim, the generic Hebrew name of God, rather than Yahweh, the personal, covenant name. The connection to 1:1-2 highlights the fact that the Benjaminites had taken the place of the Canaanites as Israel's enemy. Having shared in the sin of the Canaanites, now they must share in their punishment. Yet when the Israelites went out against the Benjaminites, the Israelites were immediately defeated. The Benjaminites inflicted almost as many casualties on Israel as they had soldiers.

20:22-25 In spite of this initial setback, Israel persisted in the conflict. They sought the Lord again and wept before Him, as they had in 2:4-5. They asked for confirmation of their course: Should we again fight against our brothers the Benjaminites? The answer was affirmative, but once again they were defeated by the Benjaminites.

20:26-28 A third time, they went to the Lord. This time, in addition to weeping, they fasted and made offerings in recognition that their covenant relationship with God was broken and needed to be restored. They had also apparently brought the ark of the Lord from Shiloh, where the tabernacle was at this time, to Bethel, perhaps as a good-luck charm (cp. 1Sm 4). The high priest at this time was Phinehas, grandson of Aaron, a detail which suggests that the events described in this chapter took place at an early stage of the period of the judges. The Lord once again responded to their request for guidance, telling Israel that on the next day he would hand Benjamin over to them.

20:29-35 This time, Israel's strategy was more complex, including a head-on assault, a tactic borrowed from the attack on Ai in Joshua 8. The main battle proceeded as before, with the Benjaminites coming out of the city to attack the Israelites and succeeding in inflicting casualties upon them. The Benjaminites believed that another victory lay in front of them. Like Samson, they assumed that nothing had changed, not knowing that the Lord was about to hand them over to their fate. However, the Israelite strategy was to absorb these losses and retreat before the Benjaminites, drawing them away from the city. Once they had successfully lured them away, they took up battle positions at Baal-tamar, an otherwise unknown location. Meanwhile, the Israelites who were hidden in ambush emerged, and 10,000 of them assaulted Gibeah. The Benjaminites continued to fight, but they were defeated, and this time the casualties were all on the Benjaminite side.

20:36-41 The ambush at Gibeah was a complete success, and the whole city was put to the sword. A great cloud of smoke signaled the Israelites' success and announced the doom of the Benjaminites. Finally, when it was too late, the Benjaminites realized that disaster had struck them.

20:42-48 The defeated Benjaminites fled east, toward the wilderness, but there was no escape. Caught between the Israelite army and the troops emerging from Gibeah, Benjamin's army suffered a total of 25,000 casualties (vv. 44-45). A tiny remnant of 600 men escaped and hid at the rock of Rimmon, where there were many caves in which to hide. Meanwhile, the Israelite army returned to Benjamin and carried out a war of total destruction against its remaining occupants, human and animal, like those waged against the Canaanite population of the land. The tribe of Benjamin was almost completely destroyed.

21:1-9 Before the battle, all the tribes had sworn an oath not to allow their daughters to marry a Benjaminite. Since the Benjaminite women were wiped out in execution of the holy war and only the 600 men of Benjamin were left in the wilderness, it seemed that the tribe was destined for extinction. The seriousness with which Israel viewed their vow against giving their daughters to the Benjaminites is in marked contrast with their failure to remain separate from the Canaanite tribes, as the Lord had demanded. Seeking a solution, the people went to Bethel. Again they wept and offered burnt offerings and fellowship offerings, just as in 20:26. However, this time they relied on their own wisdom rather than the wisdom of the Lord. Their solution was to make a scapegoat out of anyone who had failed to show up for the muster at Mizpah, when they had taken an oath to impose the death penalty on anyone who refused to fight against the Benjaminites.

21:10-12 No reason is given for the failure of Jabesh-gilead to send soldiers, nor were the inhabitants given an opportunity to explain themselves. Instead, a force of 12,000 brave warriors was sent to wipe out the men of Jabesh-gilead, along with the married women and male children, while sparing the young virgins, who could provide wives for the remaining 600 Benjaminites and thus allow the rest of the Israelites to keep their vow not to give their daughters in marriage. This arrangement provided a solution to their dilemma by means of a cynically selective application of the rules of holy war. The narrator signals his opinion by describing Shiloh as located in the land of Canaan. Even though Shiloh had been in Israelite hands for many years, by their behavior the Israelites had demonstrated that they were no better than the people they replaced.

21:13-14 The whole congregation, representing all of Israel, sent an offer of peace to the Benjaminites, and they returned to the fold. However, the 400 young virgins taken from Jabesh-gilead were not enough to provide wives for the 600 remaining Benjaminites.

21:19-25 The Israelites proposed a second strategy to provide wives for the Benjaminites, involving the annual festival to the LORD in Shiloh. It is not specified which of the three annual festivals is in view here, though the reference to vineyards (v. 21) suggests the Feast of Tabernacles. The fact that the Israelites needed detailed directions to find Shiloh (v. 19) suggests that for some time they had not been fulfilling their obligation to appear before the Lord at the tabernacle there three times per year. When the young women came out to dance, as would have been typical of such festivals, the Benjaminites would catch wives for themselves. This strategy, which resulted in women being taken against their will or the will of their parents, technically absolved the Israelites of breaking their vow not to give their daughters to the Benjaminites. Obviously this came at the cost of still more violence against women. In effect, the elders (Hb zaqenim) of Israel proposed a solution similar to that suggested by the old man (Hb zaqen) in Gibeah in 19:24, sacrificing virgin daughters for the good of the men.

Then the Benjaminites went home and rebuilt their cities, a further deviation from the laws of holy war, which specified that the cities that were destroyed should remain in ruins forever (Dt 13:16). These final chapters of the book give graphic demonstration of the depravity that resulted in Israel from the refusal of the people to recognize the Lord as King.

Word Studies lacham Hebrew Pronunciation [lah KHAHM]

HCSB Translation fight, attack, wage war Uses in Judges 31
Uses in the OT 171
Focus Passage Judges 1:1,3,5,8-9

Lacham has its greatest use in war narratives and does not appear in Genesis, Leviticus, Ezra, Esther, Ruth, or Ezekiel. It appears in the Wisdom literature only in Psalms (5x), and in the Minor Prophets only in Zechariah. Lacham regularly means fight (Jdg 1:1) but sometimes attack (Jos 10:31) or wage (go to, make) war (1Kg 14:19). The fighting may involve a siege (Jr 32:24). Lacham takes prepositions like “with,” “against,” or “for,” and occurs 19 times in the same verse with related milchamah (“war, battle”; 1Sm 8:20). Individuals, peoples, or nations can fight. Yahweh also fights (Ex 14:14,25) and enlists nature to fight (Jdg 5:20). God usually fought for Israel but could fight against them (Is 63:10) or command others to do so (Jr 34:22). His presence was important for Israelite victory (Dt 1:41-42; 20:4). He will someday fight for Israel against all nations (Zch 14:3).

za‘aq Hebrew Pronunciation [zah AK]
HCSB Translation cry out, summon Uses in Judges 13
Uses in the OT 74
Focus Passage Judges 6:6-7,34-35

Za‘aq means cry out (Ex 2:23), cry, call (Jdg 12:2), or scream (1Sm 28:12). It may involve weeping (2Sm 13:19). Armies and gatherings are summoned (Jos 8:16) or mobilized (Jdg 18:22). They rally (Jdg 6:34) or assemble (1Sm 14:20).

"Cry out and say" signifies issue a decree (Jnh 3:7). Za'aq denotes make appeal (2Sm 19:28). Ze'aqah (18x) means cry (Is 15:5), outcry (Gn 18:20), crying, shout (Ec 9:17), and lamentation (Est 9:31). Tza'aq (55x) sounds like za'aq and denotes cry out (Gn 4:10). Soldiers are summoned (1Sm 13:4), called, called out, or called together (Jdg 10:17). People cry loudly (Is 33:7), call out (Dt 26:7), and appeal (2Kg 8:3). Tse'aqah (21x) means cry, outcry, crying out, and wailing (Ex 12:30). The verbs often describe prayer, imply distress, occur alongside "wail," take their related nouns as objects, and appear together (Ps 107:6,13,19,28).

HCSB Translation pass, travel, cross, violate Uses in Judges 23
Uses in the OT 553
Focus Passage Judges 11:17,19-20,29,32

'Avar basically means pass, although this idea may not be obvious in translation. Often the word denotes move (Jos 6:7) or go on (Gn 32:16). Borders proceed (Nm 34:4). 'Avar refers to traveling through (Jdg 11:17) and to crossing the Jordan (Dt 9:1). Violate (Jdg 2:20) implies passing limits (Jb 14:5). God passes over sin (Mc 7:18). 'Avar suggests overlook (Pr 19:11), ignore (Is 40:27), or spare (Am 7:8). Water can overwhelm (Nah 1:8) and flood (Is 54:9). To excel (Jr 5:28) is to "pass beyond." 'Avar can indicate sweep through (Is 8:8) or pass through (Lm 3:44), depart (Mc 1:11) or enter (Dt 29:12). The participle refers to passersby (1Kg 9:8), flowing myrrh (Sg 5:5), or drifting chaff (Jr 13:24). 'Avar in the causative can signify remove (Zch 13:2), bring across (Ps 78:13), present (Ex 13:12), or banish (1Kg 15:12). One circulates proclamations (Ezr 10:7) and sounds trumpets (Lv 25:9).

HCSB Translation angel, messenger Uses in Judges 31
Uses in the OT 213
Focus Passage Judges 13:3,6,9,13,15-18,20-21

Mal'ak refers to divine and human messengers. Mal'ak can mean angel and messenger in the same verse (2Kg 1:3). When indicating a divine manifestation, the phrase "mal'ak of the Lord" (58x) is translated Angel of the Lord (40x; Ex 3:2) or Him (2x). Otherwise the words (14x) imply a regular angel (1Kg 19:7). "Mal'ak of God" is synonymous with "mal'ak of the Lord" (Jdg 13:3,9). It identifies God (Gn 31:11) as One known to Israel (Jdg 13:6). It also indicates ordinary angels (1Sm 29:9). Mal'ak describes God elsewhere according to context (Gn 48:16). It can also describe prophets (Hg 1:13), priests (Mal 2:7), or ordinary messengers (1Sm 23:27). It can mean envoy (2Sm 5:11) or ambassador (Ezk 17:15). Mal'ak can denote agents (1Sm 19:11), even when rendered men (Jos 6:17). Winds and divine judgments are figuratively called messengers (Ps 78:49; 104:4).

pa'am Hebrew Pronunciation [PA am] HCSB Translation foot, time, step Uses in Judges 13
Uses in the OT 118
Focus Passage Judges 16:15,18,20,28

Ugaritic and Punic each had two similar words that seem combined in pa'am, which means foot (Ex 25:12) and time (Gn 29:35). Pa'am with the article implies at last (Gn 2:23), one time (Gn 18:32), once, or this time. The dual means twice, and the plural with numerals means times. Pa'am implies occasion (Dt 9:19), instant, or now (Pr 7:12). "As pa'am by pa'am" implies as on previous occasions (Nm 24:1), as before, or as usual. Pa'am specifies hoofbeats (Jdg 5:28), human feet (Is 37:25) or steps (Ps 57:6), and furniture feet or corners (1Kg 7:30). Pa'am means anvil (Is 41:7). Context suggests campaign (Jos 10:42) and tiers (1Kg 7:4). The verb pa'am (5x) means direct (Jdg 13:25). Passive and reflexive forms signify be disturbed, troubled (Gn 41:8), or anxious. Pa'amon (7x) means bell (Ex 28:33). A common denominator of these words may be striking action.

Naomi's Family in Moab

1 During the time [A] of the judges, [a] there was a famine in the land. [b] A man left Bethlehem [c, d] in Judah with his wife and two sons to live in the land of Moab for a while. 2 The man's name was Elimelech, [e] and his wife's name was Naomi. [f] The names of his two sons were Mahlon [g] and Chilion. [h] They were Ephrathites [i] from Bethlehem in Judah. They entered the land of Moab and settled there. 3 Naomi's husband Elimelech died, and she was left with her two sons. 4 Her sons took Moabite women as their wives: one was named Orpah and the second was named Ruth. After they lived in Moab about 10 years, 5 both Mahlon and Chilion also died, and Naomi was left without her two children and without her husband.

Ruth's Loyalty to Naomi

6 She and her daughters-in-law prepared to leave the land of Moab, because she had heard in Moab that the LORD had paid attention to His people's need by providing them food. [j] 7 She left the place where she had been living, accompanied by her two daughters-in-law, and traveled along the road leading back to the land of Judah.

8 She said to them, "Each of you go back to your mother's home. [k] May the LORD show faithful love to you as you have shown to the dead and to me. 9 May the LORD enable each of you to find security [l] in the house of your new husband." She kissed them, and they wept loudly.

10 "No," they said to her. "We will go with you to your people."

11 But Naomi replied, "Return home, my daughters. Why do you want to go with me? Am I able to have any more sons [B] who could become your husbands? [m] 12 Return home, my daughters. Go on, for I am too old to have another husband. Even if I thought there was still hope for me to have a husband tonight and to bear sons, 13 would you be willing to wait for them to grow up?
Would you restrain yourselves from remarrying? [C] No, my daughters, my life is much too bitter for you to share, [D] because the LORD's hand has turned against me." [n] 14 Again they wept loudly, and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, but Ruth clung to her. 15 Naomi said, "Look, your sister-in-law has gone back to her people and to her god. [E, o] Follow your sister-in-law."

16 But Ruth replied:

Do not persuade me to leave you or go back and not follow you.
For wherever you go, I will go,
and wherever you live, I will live;

your people will be my people, and your God will be my God.
17 Where you die, I will die, and there I will be buried.
May •Yahweh punish me, [p, q]
and do so severely,
if anything but death separates you and me.
18 When Naomi saw that Ruth was determined to go with her, she stopped trying to persuade her.

19 The two of them traveled until they came to Bethlehem. When they entered Bethlehem, the whole town was excited about their arrival [F, r] and the local women exclaimed, “Can this be Naomi? ”

20 “Don’t call me Naomi. Call me Mara,” [s] she answered, [G] “for the •Almighty [t] has made me very bitter. [u] 21 I went away full, but the LORD has brought me back empty. [v] Why do you call me Naomi, since the LORD has pronounced judgment on [w] me, and the Almighty has afflicted me? ”

22 So Naomi came back from the land of Moab with her daughter-in-law Ruth the Moabitess. They arrived in Bethlehem at the beginning of the barley harvest. [x]

Ruth and Boaz Meet

2 Now Naomi had a relative on her husband's side named Boaz. He was a prominent man of noble character [a] from Elimelech's family.
2 Ruth the Moabitess asked Naomi, "Will you let me go into the fields and gather fallen grain [b] behind someone who allows me to? " Naomi answered her, "Go ahead, my daughter." 3 So Ruth left and entered the field to gather grain behind the harvesters. She happened [c] to be in the portion of land belonging to Boaz, who was from Elimelech's family.
4 Later, when Boaz arrived from Bethlehem, he said to the harvesters, "The LORD be with you." [d]
"The LORD bless you," [e] they replied.
5 Boaz asked his servant who was in charge of the harvesters, "Whose young woman is this? "
6 The servant answered, "She is the young Moabite woman who returned with Naomi from the land of Moab. 7 She asked, 'Will you let me gather fallen grain among the bundles behind the harvesters? ' She came and has remained from early morning until now, except that she rested a little in the shelter." [f] 8 Then Boaz said to Ruth, "Listen, my daughter. [A] Don't go and gather grain in another field, and don't leave this one, but stay here close to my female servants. 9 See which field they are harvesting, and follow them. Haven't I ordered the young men not to touch you? [g] When you are thirsty, go and drink from the jars the young men have filled." 10 She bowed with her face to the ground [h] and said to him, "Why are you so kind to notice me, although I am a foreigner? " 11 Boaz answered her, "Everything you have done for your mother-in-law since your husband's death has been fully reported to me: how you left your father and mother and the land of your birth, and how you came to a people you didn't previously know. 12 May the LORD reward you for what you have done, [i] and may you receive a full reward from the LORD God of Israel, under whose wings you have come for refuge." [j] 13 "My lord," she said, "you have been so kind to me, for you have comforted and encouraged [B] your slave, although I am not like one of your female servants."
14 At mealtime Boaz told her, "Come over here and have some bread and dip it in the vinegar sauce." So she sat beside the harvesters, and he offered her roasted grain. She ate and was satisfied and had some left over.
15 When she got up to gather grain, Boaz ordered his young men, "Let her even gather grain among the bundles, and don't humiliate her. 16 Pull out some stalks from the bundles for her and leave them for her to gather. Don’t rebuke her.” 17 So Ruth gathered grain in the field until evening. She beat out what she had gathered, and it was about 26 quarts [C] of barley. 18 She picked up the grain and went into the town, where her mother-in-law saw what she had gleaned. Then she brought out what she had left over from her meal and gave it to her.

19 Then her mother-in-law said to her, “Where did you gather barley today, and where did you work? May the LORD bless the man who noticed you.” [k]

Ruth told her mother-in-law about the men she had worked with and said, “The name of the man I worked with today is Boaz.”

20 Then Naomi said to her daughter-in-law, “May he be blessed by the LORD, [l] who has not forsaken his [D] kindness to the living or the dead.” [m] Naomi continued, “The man is a close relative. He is one of our •family redeemers.” [n]

21 Ruth the Moabitess said, “He also told me, ‘Stay with my young men until they have finished all of my harvest.’ ”

22 So Naomi said to her daughter-in-law Ruth, “My daughter, it is good for you to work [E] with his female servants, so that nothing will happen to you in another field.” 23 Ruth stayed close to Boaz’s female servants and gathered grain until the barley and the wheat harvests were finished. [o] And she lived with [p] her mother-in-law.

Ruth’s Appeal to Boaz

3 Ruth's mother-in-law Naomi said to her, "My daughter, shouldn't I find security for you, so that you will be taken care of? 2 Now isn't Boaz our relative? [a] Haven't you been working with his female servants? This evening he will be winnowing barley on the threshing floor. 3 Wash, put on perfumed oil, and wear your best clothes. Go down to the threshing floor, but don't let the man know you are there until he has finished eating and drinking. 4 When he lies down, notice the place where he's lying, go in and uncover his feet, and lie down. Then he will explain to you what you should do."

5 So Ruth said to her, "I will do everything you say." [b] 6 She went down to the threshing floor and did everything her mother-in-law had instructed her. 7 After Boaz ate, drank, and was in good spirits, [A] he went to lie down at the end of the pile of barley. Then she went in secretly, uncovered his feet, and lay down.

8 At midnight, Boaz was startled, turned over, and there lying at his feet was a woman! 9 So he asked, "Who are you? "

"I am Ruth, your slave," she replied. "Spread your cloak [B] over me, [c] for you are a •family redeemer." [d]

10 Then he said, "May the LORD bless you, [e] my daughter. You have shown more kindness now than before, [C] because you have not pursued younger men, whether rich or poor. 11 Now don't be afraid, my daughter. I will do for you whatever you say, [f] since all the people in my town [D] know that you are a woman of noble character. [g] 12 Yes, it is true that I am a family redeemer, but there is a redeemer closer than I am. 13 Stay here tonight, and in the morning, if he wants to redeem you, that's good. [h] Let him redeem you. But if he doesn't want to redeem you, as the LORD lives, [i] I will. Now lie down until morning."

14 So she lay down at his feet until morning but got up while it was still dark. [E] Then Boaz said, "Don't let it be known that a [j] woman came to the threshing floor." 15 And he told Ruth, "Bring the shawl you're wearing and hold it out." When she held it out, he shoveled six measures of barley into her shawl, and she [k] went into the town.

16 She went to her mother-in-law, Naomi, who asked her, "How did it go, [F] my daughter? "

Then Ruth told her everything the man had done for her. 17 She said, "He gave me these six measures of barley, because he said, [l] 'Don't go back to your mother-in-law empty-handed.' "

18 Naomi said, "My daughter, wait until you find out how things go, for he won't rest unless he resolves this today."

Ruth and Boaz Marry

4 Boaz went to the •gate of the town [a] and sat down there. Soon the •family redeemer Boaz had spoken about came by. Boaz called him by name and said, “Come [A] over here and sit down.” So he went over and sat down. 2 Then Boaz took 10 men of the town’s elders [b] and said, “Sit here.” And they sat down. 3 He said to the redeemer, “Naomi, who has returned from the land of Moab, is selling a piece of land that belonged to our brother Elimelech. [c] 4 I thought I should inform you: [B] Buy it back in the presence of those seated here and in the presence of the elders of my people. If you want to redeem it, do so. But if you do [d] not want to redeem it, tell me so that I will know, because there isn’t anyone other than you to redeem it, and I am next after you.”

“I want to redeem it,” he answered.

5 Then Boaz said, “On the day you buy the land from Naomi, you will also acquire [e] Ruth the Moabitess, the wife of the deceased man, to perpetuate the man’s name on his property.” [f]

6 The redeemer replied, “I can’t redeem it myself, or I will ruin my own inheritance. Take my right of redemption, because I can’t redeem it.”

7 At an earlier period in Israel, a man removed his sandal [g] and gave it to the other party in order to make any matter legally binding concerning the right of redemption or the exchange of property. This was the method of legally binding a transaction in Israel.

8 So the redeemer removed his sandal and said to Boaz, “Buy back the property yourself.”

9 Boaz said to the elders and all the people, “You are witnesses today that I am buying from Naomi everything that belonged to Elimelech, Chilion, and Mahlon. 10 I will also acquire Ruth the Moabitess, Mahlon’s widow, as my wife, to perpetuate the deceased man’s name on his property, so that his name will not disappear among his relatives or from the gate of his home. You are witnesses today.”

11 The elders and all the people who were at the gate said, “We are witnesses. May the LORD make the woman who is entering your house like Rachel and Leah, [h] who together built the house of Israel. May you be powerful in Ephrathah and famous in Bethlehem. 12 May your house become like the house of Perez, the son Tamar bore to Judah, [i] because of the offspring the LORD will give you by this young woman.”

13 Boaz took Ruth and she became his wife. When he was intimate with her, the LORD enabled her to conceive, and she gave birth to a son. 14 Then the women said to Naomi, “Praise the LORD, who has not left you without a family redeemer today. May his name become well known in Israel. 15 He will renew your life and sustain you in your old age. Indeed, your daughter-in-law, who loves you and is better to you than seven sons, [j] has given birth to him.” 16 Naomi took the child, placed him on her lap, and took care of him. 17 The neighbor women said, “A son has been born to Naomi,” and they named him Obed. [k] He was the father of Jesse, the father of David.

RUTH

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies

Introduction

Field of Boaz near Bethlehem (2:1-3) The book of Ruth gets its name from one of its principle characters, a Moabite woman named Ruth who was the ancestor of David and Jesus. After reading the book of Judges, which paints a dark and depressing picture of Israel, the reader is relieved to encounter Ruth. Although the book is relatively short, it is rich in examples of kindness, faith, and patience. It is one of the five scrolls that was to be read during the Jewish festivals, in particular the Festival of Weeks.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The Talmud attributes the authorship of Ruth to Samuel, but the book itself offers no hint of the identity of its author. We can only speculate about who might have written the book of Ruth, and its provenance and date must be deduced from the internal evidence—language and style, historical allusions, and themes. The genealogy at the end and the explanation of archaic customs requires a date during or later than the reign of King David (1011-971 B.C.), though it could have been written as late as after the exile, when the issue of the inclusion of Gentiles once again became pressing.

Background: The book of Ruth is set "during the time of the judges" (1:1), a period of social and religious disorder when "everyone did whatever he wanted" (Jdg 17:6). Historically, this era bridged the time between the conquest of the land under Joshua and the rise of King David, whose genealogy forms the conclusion of the book. It is not clear exactly when during the time of the judges the book belongs, but it opens with a famine in the land, which may have been the result of Israel's idolatry.

Message and Purpose Grace: Naomi thought that the Lord's hand of judgment was upon her after she and her husband left the promised land in search of food and married their sons to Moabite women in search of offspring (1:21). She underestimated God's grace. Her daughter-in-law, Ruth the Moabitess, turned out to be the means by which the Lord would meet her needs for food and offspring to carry on the family name. Ruth's choice of a place to glean, which seemed to be a matter of chance, turned out to be a divine appointment with Boaz, the man who would fulfill the role of family redeemer for Naomi and Ruth.

The book of Ruth resembles the parable of the lost son (Lk 15:11-32) in two strands. The family of Elimelech wandered away from the land where the Lord had promised to bless His people in search of fullness. As a result, however, Naomi ended up empty and alone. Yet the Lord's judgment on her was designed to bring her back home and to replace her emptiness with a new fullness. Similarly, the book of Ruth opens with the Lord's people experiencing the trials of the days of the judges, when general disobedience led to famine. Yet the Lord graciously provided food for His hungry people and a king to meet their needs for leadership. These are lessons that speak to us as well. We too have gone astray from the Lord and need to receive His grace and mercy.

God's providence: The genealogy of David at the end of the book shows that the Lord worked through this story to provide for His people's need of a king. Even though the Lord's actions are mainly concealed, there are two specific events attributed directly to Him—providing food for His people (1:6) and conception for Ruth (4:13). In these ways, the Lord provided for all of His people's needs.

Faithful love: The book of Ruth demonstrates how the Lord shows His covenant faithfulness to His undeserving people, often in surprising ways. In the course of the narrative, each of the main characters proved to be a person of extraordinary courage and covenant love (Hb chesed; "lovingkindness, faithfulness, loyalty," is the key word in the book: 1:8; 2:20; 3:10). These are people whose spiritual commitment is demonstrated clearly in godly living.

The family redeemer: The book of Ruth provides a great example of a family member who used his power under Jewish law to redeem. Boaz demonstrated one of the duties of the family member—that of marrying the widow of a deceased family member. A correlation is sometimes made between the redemption of Ruth by Boaz and the redemption of sinners by Christ. Because of God's covenant faithfulness, He has provided the Redeemer that we all need in Jesus Christ. Jesus is the true King toward whom the genealogy of David will ultimately extend (Mt 1:5-6), and He is the Redeemer in whom His wandering people find rest. In Him, the Gentiles too are incorporated into the people of God by faith and granted a place in the family of promise.

Contribution to the Bible Ruth's covenantal faithfulness to Naomi and her God provided a model showing that those who were not ethnic Israelites could be incorporated into the people of God through faith. If Moabites who joined themselves to the Lord could be accepted, there was hope for other Gentiles as well (Is 56:3-7). The book also effectively answered questions that may have been raised over the legitimacy of the Davidic line, given his Moabite roots.

Structure The book of Ruth is a delightful short story with a classical plot that moves from crisis to complication to resolution. The narrator draws the reader into the minds of the characters (successively Naomi, Ruth, and Boaz), inviting us to identify with their personal anxieties and joys and in the end to celebrate the movement from emptiness and frustration to fulfillment and joy.

David (4:17-22) Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 During the time of the judges identifies the events of this story as taking place during a time when “everyone did whatever he wanted” (lit “what was right in his own eyes”), when “there was no king in Israel” (Jdg 21:25). During the time of the judges, a famine in the land probably would have been part of God’s judgment on His people for their apostasy from Him, pursuing the Baals and Ashtoreths (Jdg 2:11-15). This famine even affected Bethlehem, whose Hebrew name means “house of bread.” As a result, one family from that city did what was right in their own eyes and left the promised land, going to live in the pagan land of Moab, where economic prospects seemed brighter. Somewhere along the way, that temporary move turned into a permanent stay.

1:2 Elimelech means “My God is king,” which heightens the irony of his behavior in doing “whatever he wanted” because in those days “there was no king in Israel” (Jdg 21:25). His wife’s name, Naomi, means “Pleasant,” which evokes Ps 16:6: “The boundary lines have fallen for me in pleasant places.” In contrast, she and her husband were dissatisfied with the boundary lines assigned them by God. The names of their sons, Mahlon and Chilion, seem related to words for sickness and mortality.

1:3-5 In the land of Moab, Naomi’s husband died and she was left with her two sons. The Hebrew verb “left” is related to the word “remnant” and often describes those who survive an outpouring of God’s wrath. Her sons then took Moabite women as their wives, contrary to the law that forbade marrying women from nations that served other gods (Dt 7:3-4). Moabite women in particular had a reputation for leading Israelites astray after other gods (Nm 25). It must have seemed evident that the hand of the Lord was against Naomi in judgment.

1:6-9 Naomi had little choice but to leave Moab and return home, a move encouraged by the news that the LORD was providing . . . food there. This points to repentance on the part of the Hebrews and their restoration. Naomi asked the Lord’s blessing upon her daughters-in-law in the form of His faithful love (Hb chesed) . This is a covenantal term that combines love and faithfulness, mercy and grace—all the positive aspects of committed relationship. It is a remarkable request that the Lord’s favor should be shown in this way to covenant outsiders like these foreign women. The women were sad to part. They wept loudly as they embraced.

1:10-14 Orpah and Ruth repeated their desire to return to Israel with Naomi. Once again, however, Naomi pressed them both to return, on the grounds that the best prospect of remarriage lay among their own people. Naomi assumed that no other family in Bethlehem would be interested in marrying Moabite women, and she emphasized the certainty of there being no other children from her own line. She was probably at least 50 years old at this time. Even if she were to have more children at once, by the time they grew up Orpah and Ruth would be too old to have children. Besides, Naomi argued, she was herself under a curse: the LORD’s hand had turned against her. There is no hint of Naomi taking any personal responsibility or expressing repentance for her own actions in leaving the promised land. Convinced by Naomi’s arguments, Orpah took her leave of Naomi, but Ruth clung to her—the same word used in Gn 2:24 to describe the marriage bond.

1:15-18 The intensity of Naomi’s attempts to dissuade her Moabite daughters-in-law from accompanying her back to Bethlehem suggests that she was not completely motivated by concern for their well-being. Their presence would have been a constant and embarrassing reminder of her tragic sojourn in Moab. Yet Ruth was not so easily dissuaded. In a crescendo of commitment, she bound herself to go with Naomi and to live with her. In fact, she would even die and be buried where Naomi was—the greatest possible commitment in the ancient world. She sealed her commitment with a self-imprecatory oath, taken in the personal name of Naomi's God, Yahweh. Naomi's response to this moving speech was remarkably curt. Literally, the Hebrew in verse 18 says, "She stopped talking to her."

1:19-22 The townswomen's question, Can this be Naomi? pointedly and deliberately ignored Ruth's presence. In response, Naomi urged them to rename her Mara since the Lord had made her bitter rather than "pleasant," which is the meaning of "Naomi." It was at Marah that the Israelites found only bitter water to drink on their way out of Egypt, and so they grumbled against the Lord (Ex 15:23-24). Naomi's heart was similarly turned against the Lord, yet the connection also raised hope that the Lord would heal her bitterness and bring her to a place of rest, just as he did for Israel. Naomi had returned physically to Bethlehem from Moab, but would she similarly return to the Lord in repentance?

2:1-3 The practice of gleaning allowed the poor to go through the fields after the harvesters, picking up the grain that was left behind, along with the grain that landowners were required to leave at the edges of their fields (Lv 19:9-10). The phrase translated man of noble character could designate Boaz as possessing wealth and property, but it becomes clear as the story unfolds that Boaz is also a man of integrity. The family connection was unknown to Ruth. Humanly speaking, she just happened to end up gleaning in his field, but there are no coincidences in God's program, and this divine appointment proved that the Lord was not against Naomi, as she thought (1:20-21).

2:4-7 Boaz's noble character was displayed in his care for his workers. Even his greeting to them was in the name of the Lord, and he knew them well enough to recognize a stranger in their midst. His question did not seek Ruth's name but her relationships: Whose young woman is this? The servant's answer twice highlighted her foreignness. He also offered an unsolicited testimony to her diligent hard work in the hot sun.

2:8-10 Boaz's noble character is again on display in his kind words to Ruth. Gl eaning could be dangerous, especially for a young foreign woman, and Boaz issued instructions to ensure her safety. He also allowed her to drink the water his young men had brought, saving her the lengthy trip to the well. Ruth's response was to prostrate herself as a mark of respect for a social superior. As a Moabitess, she could easily have been ignored by Boaz, but he had noticed her and shown kindness to her.

2:11-13 The death of a husband exhausted a daughter-in-law's obligations, as Naomi herself had made clear (1:11). Yet Ruth had remained with Naomi, leaving her own land and people, which meant entrusting her future to the favor of the deity of the new land. Boaz asked the Lord, the God of Israel, to reward Ruth's faithfulness to Naomi and to shelter her under His protecting wings, as a mother bird shelters her young. Ruth responded with an expression of thanks for Boaz's kind and encouraging words to her, even though she had no claim on him, not even that of a maidservant in his employment.

2:14-16 As an impoverished gleaner, Ruth would normally have had little or nothing to eat while out in the fields. Boaz, however, invited her to eat with him and his harvesters. In contrast to Naomi's declaration in 1:21 that she went out full and came back empty, Ruth went out empty and came back full. There is no hint of romantic interest in Boaz's actions. He was simply demonstrating his compassion and generosity to Ruth who, even though a foreigner, was linked to him through Naomi. He went so far as to instruct his harvesters deliberately to leave some grain for her to pick up, an action that went far beyond the demands of the law of Moses.

2:17-20 The measure of Boaz's generosity and Ruth's hard work is demonstrated in the remarkable quantity of grain that she gathered—an ephah (about 26 quarts) of barley. This was enough grain to feed a working man for several weeks. Boaz's generosity was evidence for Naomi that the Lord has not forsaken his kindness to the living or the dead. This represents a change in Naomi's attitude toward the Lord from 1:21. The judgment that the family had experienced was not His final word for them.

Family redeemers (Hb go'el; v. 20) were relatives who were obliged to buy back family members from debt-slavery or to redeem their field if they had to sell it (Lv 25:25-30). The family redeemer would also receive restitution on behalf of a deceased family member or pursue his killer to ensure that justice was served (Nm 5:8; 35:12). He might also raise up a child for the dead relative in order to maintain the connection between the clan and its hereditary property (Dt 25:5-10), though Boaz had no legal obligation to act in this way.

2:21-23 Naomi's approval of Boaz's invitation for Ruth to remain until the end of the harvest demonstrates a concern for Ruth's safety not evident in verse 2. However, the concern may also reflect Naomi's growing awareness of her own culpability in the fate of her own family. Her earlier journey to the fields of Moab was an attempt to glean food "in the field of another" instead of seeking refuge under the wings of the Lord as she should have done. Boaz's generosity may have provided food, but Ruth's need of a home with a husband of her own is still real.

3:1-3 In view of Boaz's relationship to the family and his kindness and generosity thus far to Ruth, perhaps he could be persuaded to take the further step of marriage. At the end of the barley harvest, in late May or June, the barley had to be winnowed, tossed into the air with a fork allowing the wind to carry away the lighter chaff while the heavier grain fell to the ground. At night, someone would guard the grain against being stolen or eaten by animals. Apparently, this was Boaz's night to be on duty. Dressing as Naomi instructed would not only enhance Ruth's attractiveness to Boaz but would symbolize an end to her period of mourning for her husband (2Sm 12:20), signaling her willingness to remarry.

3:4-7 Naomi instructed Ruth to go to Boaz when he was asleep and uncover his feet, or, more precisely, "uncover the place of his feet." By this act Ruth was inquiring about Boaz's willingness to fulfill the role of family redeemer, to take her as wife and provide for her (see note at 4:5-8).

3:8-9 Whereas her mother-in-law had anticipated Boaz taking the initiative in the conversation, Ruth responded to Boaz's question about her identity with a clarification of her purpose. She asked him to spread the corner of his robe over her as a symbolic statement of a marriage commitment (Ezk 16:8). The request also involved a wordplay, since spread your cloak over me literally means "spread your wing over me," inviting Boaz to become the answer to his own prayer in 2:12 that she might find refuge under the wings of the Lord.

3:10-11 Boaz's first words, my daughter, showed he had not been misled by the potential ambiguity of the situation. He declared himself willing to pay the social and financial costs of welcoming this despised outsider into his family. Boaz rightly saw Ruth's proposal as another act of covenant faithfulness (Hb chesed) on Ruth's part. Just as she had left her own household and her own family to be with Naomi, so now she was subordinating her own interests to those of Naomi. In the Hebrew ordering of the OT, the book of Ruth comes immediately after the book of Proverbs, which closes with a description of a woman of noble character (Pr 31:10).

3:12-13 Even though Boaz was a near relative of Naomi, there was another who had a prior claim to act as redeemer. Yet Boaz reassured Ruth that, one way or another, she (and Naomi) would be redeemed.

3:14-15 If it became widely known that Ruth had visited Boaz that night, people would wrongly assume that Boaz had taken Ruth as wife or that they were guilty of sexual impropriety. Boaz was unwilling to preempt his close relative who had first right of refusal to Ruth, so getting Ruth home before daylight kept wrong impressions from being formed. To seal his commitment (and perhaps also to provide Ruth with an excuse for being out so early), Boaz gave her six measures of barley. If the unspecified measures are seahs, then that would be around 80 pounds, an enormous load. Yet the lack of a measure may be intended to focus attention on the number six, which often represents incompleteness in the OT. Even this generous gift is incomplete. Ruth still awaited the final installment of "seed" that would accomplish her rest.

3:16-18 On Ruth's return, Naomi asked her literally, "Who are you, my daughter?" This is the same question that Boaz asked in 3:8. Was Ruth merely an awkward and embarrassing duty to Naomi, or was she the one who would provide Naomi with an enduring place in the genealogies of Israel through the provision of a son? The answer depended on what transpired overnight. This was the real nature of Naomi's question, as evidenced by Ruth's answer.

4:1-2 Boaz immediately went to the gate of the town, the place where important legal and social matters were transacted in the presence of the town elders. When Boaz summoned the other redeemer, he literally said, Come over here (Hb) poloni 'almoni, a rhyming phrase equivalent to our "Mr. So-and-So." Boaz gathered a quorum of 10 elders as official witnesses.

4:3-4 As a widow Naomi could not sell Elimelech's land; however, she could assign someone else the right to use that land until the next Jubilee Year. Rather than have control over the land go (or remain) outside the family, Boaz requested an intervention in the spirit of the family redeemer laws to buy . . . back the use of the land. Since "Mr. So-and-So" was the primary relative entitled to redeem that property, Boaz was bringing the matter to his attention. If he did not redeem the property, Boaz himself was willing to act.

4:5-8 Along with the financial cost of redeeming the land, there was a social cost. The transaction also included a commitment to marry Ruth the Moabitess and thereby to seek to perpetuate the dead man's name on his property. This is a reference back to the practice of levirate marriage in Dt 25:5-10, by which the brother of a man who died without male offspring was required to marry his widow and raise up a family in the name of the dead man. In this case, there was no legal obligation on either "Mr. So-and-So" or on Boaz, yet Boaz asserted a moral obligation to do so. At this, "Mr. So-and-So" backed away from his earlier enthusiasm. Ironically, his concern to protect his own name rather than committing to raise up heirs to the name of Elimelech led to him being left nameless. In seeking to serve self first, he inadvertently undermined his best interests. It is instead Boaz whose name would become famous (Ru 4:11) in Bethlehem. His decision was confirmed by a legal gesture that was archaic even at the time of the writing of the book—the removal of a sandal, which was given to the other party.

4:9-12 By receiving the sandal, Boaz committed himself to redeem Naomi's property, to marry Ruth, and to perpetuate the names of Elimelech and Mahlon on their patrimony. The blessing of the elders (vv. 11-12) may simply have been conventional for married couples in Bethlehem, but it had a greater significance for Boaz and Ruth. Through Ruth, Boaz would indeed become famous and have his name remembered in Bethlehem. The link with Perez, the son Tamar bore to Judah, invites a comparison and contrast between Ruth and Tamar, two foreign women who became part of Judah's genealogy through very different means.

4:13-17 Although for 10 years in Moab, Ruth had been unable to bear a son for Mahlon, through the Lord's direct intervention she immediately conceived and bore a son for Boaz. The child would be a comfort for Naomi in her old age (lit "would sustain her grey hair"); he would be her family redeemer who would provide for her needs in her declining years. He was named Obed, a short form of Obadiah, which means "servant of the LORD." Though no one could bring back Naomi's husband or sons, now she had a daughter-in-law whom all recognized as better to you than seven sons—an astonishing accolade in the ancient world.

4:18-22 The story concludes with a linear genealogy linking the child, Obed, backwards and forwards. It traces his roots back to Perez, the child born in Genesis 38 out of the dubious relationship between Judah and a foreign woman, Tamar. It also traces his progeny on to King David, who is highlighted not simply because he was a great king but also because he was the Lord's answer for the anarchy of the days of the judges, in which this story took place (1:1). The genealogy thus shows us that the Lord had been pursuing bigger plans than just bringing together two worthy individuals or restoring the emptiness of a Judean widow. Their story formed part of the bigger plan to provide the Redeemer, Christ Jesus, whom Israel needed.

Focus Passage Ruth 1:9

Menuchah, from nuach (rest), denotes rest (Jr 45:3). Often menuchah signifies resting place as a dwelling place: a homestead (Is 32:18), campsite (Nm 10:33), temple (1Ch 28:2), tribal inheritance (Gn 49:15), or nation (Mc 2:10). Menuchah means home (Is 66:1). It is resting place as a land affected by God's word that comes to rest there (Zch 9:1). Menuchah indicates rest from enemies (1Ch 22:9), relief from anxiety (2Sm 14:17), or familial security (Ru 1:9). It functions adjectivally as quiet (Ps 23:2) or adverbially as easily (Jdg 20:43). A quartermaster is a "master of rest," supplying troops with physical necessities (Jr 51:59). Menuchah describes Canaan as a restful home for Israel (Dt 12:9).

HCSB Translation redeem, avenge Uses in Ruth 22

Focus Passage Ruth 4:1,3-4,6,8,14

Ga'al occurs only in biblically related usage. The original sense may have been "restore, repair." Once ga'al implies reclaim (Jb 3:5). Four times each it is parallel with padah ("ransom"; Jr 31:11) or yasha' ("save"; Ps 106:10). A legal duty to redeem fell on relatives (Lv 25:49), and participles connote relative (Nm 5:8) or kinsman (1Kg 16:11). Land, houses, livestock, and people could be redeemed from another's possession by payment (Lv 25:25; 27:28). Avengers of blood were relatives responsible to slay murderers of family members (Nm 35:19,21). God is the Redeemer (Is 49:26), rescuing people from slavery (Ex 6:6), transgressions (Is 44:22), harm (Gn 48:16), enemies (Ps 107:2), captivity (Is 43:14), and death (Hs 13:14). Ga'al with ge'ullah (14x) suggests take the right of redemption (Ru 4:6).

Hannah’s Vow

1 There was a man from Ramathaim-zophim [a] in [A] the hill country of Ephraim. [b] His name was Elkanah [c] son of Jeroham, son of Elihu, son of Tohu, son of Zuph, an Ephraimite. 2 He had two wives, [d] the first named Hannah [e] and the second Peninnah. Peninnah had children, but Hannah was childless. 3 This man would go up from his town every year [f] to worship and to sacrifice [g] to the LORD of •Hosts at Shiloh, [h] where Eli's two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, were the LORD's priests.
4 Whenever Elkanah offered a sacrifice, he always gave portions of the meat [i] to his wife Peninnah and to each of her sons and daughters. 5 But he gave a double [B] portion [j] to Hannah, for he loved her even though the LORD had kept her from conceiving. 6 Her rival would taunt her severely just to provoke her, because the LORD had kept Hannah from conceiving. 7 Whenever she went up to the LORD's house, [k] her rival taunted her in this way every year. Hannah wept and would not eat. 8 "Hannah, why are you crying? " her husband Elkanah asked. "Why won't you eat? Why are you troubled? Am I not better to you than 10 sons? " [l]
9 Hannah got up after they ate and drank at Shiloh. [m] Eli the priest was sitting on a chair by the doorpost of the LORD's tabernacle. [n] 10 Deeply hurt, Hannah prayed to the LORD and wept with many tears. [o] 11 Making a vow, [p] she pleaded,
"LORD of Hosts, if You will take notice of Your servant's affliction, [q] remember and not forget me, and give Your servant a son, [C] I will give him to the LORD all the days of his life, and his hair will never be cut." [D, r] 12 While she continued praying in the LORD's presence, Eli watched her lips.
13 Hannah was praying silently, [E, s] and though her lips were moving, her voice could not be heard. Eli thought she was drunk 14 and scolded her, "How long are you going to be drunk? [t] Get rid of your wine! " 15 "No, my lord," Hannah replied. "I am a woman with a broken heart. I haven't had any wine or beer; I've been pouring out my heart before the LORD. [u] 16 Don't think of me as a wicked woman; [v] I've been praying from the depth of my anguish and resentment." [w] 17 Eli responded, "Go in peace, [x] and may the God of Israel grant the petition you've requested from Him." [y] 18 "May your servant find favor with you," [z] she replied. Then Hannah went on her way; she ate and no longer looked despondent. [F, a]

Samuel's Birth and Dedication 19 The next morning Elkanah and Hannah got up early to bow in worship before the LORD. Afterward, they returned home to Ramah. [b] Then Elkanah was intimate with his wife Hannah, and the LORD remembered her. [c] [20] After some time, [G] Hannah conceived and gave birth to a son. She named him Samuel, [d] because she said, "I requested him from the LORD."

[21] When Elkanah and all his household went up to make the annual sacrifice [e] and his vow offering to the LORD, [22] Hannah did not go and explained to her husband, "After the child is weaned, I'll take him to appear in the LORD's presence [f] and to stay there permanently." [g]

[23] Her husband Elkanah replied, "Do what you think is best, [H,] [h] and stay here until you've weaned him. May the LORD confirm your [i] word." [j] So Hannah stayed there and nursed her son until she weaned him. [24] When she had weaned him, she took him with her to Shiloh, as well as a three-year-old bull, [k] half a bushel [I] of flour, and a jar of wine. [l] Though the boy was still young, [J] she took him to the LORD's house at Shiloh. [m] [25] Then they slaughtered the bull and brought the boy to Eli.

[26] "Please, my lord," she said, "as sure as you live, [n] my lord, I am the woman who stood here beside you praying to the LORD. [27] I prayed for this boy, [o] and since the LORD gave me what I asked Him for, [p] [28] I now give the boy to the LORD. For as long as he lives, he is given to the LORD." [q] Then he [r] bowed in worship to the LORD there. [s]

Hannah’s Triumphant Prayer

2 Hannah prayed: [a]

My heart rejoices in the LORD; [b]
my •horn is lifted up by the LORD.
My mouth boasts over my enemies, because I rejoice in Your salvation. [c]
2 There is no one holy like the LORD. [d]
There is no one besides You! [e]
And there is no rock like our God. [f] 3 Do not boast so proudly, or let arrogant words come out of your mouth,
for the LORD is a God of knowledge, and actions are weighed by Him. [g] 4 The bows of the warriors are broken, [h] but the feeble are clothed with strength. [i] 5 Those who are full hire themselves out for food, but those who are starving hunger no more.
The woman who is childless gives birth to seven, [j]
but the woman with many sons pines away. [k]
6 The LORD brings death and gives life; [l]
He sends some to •Sheol , and He raises others up. [m]
7 The LORD brings poverty and gives wealth; [n]
He humbles and He exalts. [o]
8 He raises the poor from the dust [p] and lifts the needy from the garbage pile. [q]
He seats them with noblemen [r] and gives them a throne of honor. [s]
For the foundations of the earth are the LORD's; [t]
He has set the world on them. [u] 9 He guards the steps [A] of His faithful ones, [v] but the wicked perish in darkness, [w] for a man does not prevail by his own strength. [x] 10 Those who oppose the LORD will be shattered; [y, z]
He will thunder in the heavens against them. [a]
The LORD will judge the ends of the earth. [b]
He will give power to His king;
He will lift up the horn of His anointed. [c]

11 Elkanah went home to Ramah, [d] but the boy served the LORD in the presence of Eli the priest. [e]

Eli's Family Judged

12 Eli's sons were •wicked men; [f] they had no regard for the LORD [g] 13 or for the priests' share of the sacrifices from the people. When any man offered a sacrifice, the priest's servant would come with a three-pronged meat fork while the meat was boiling 14 and plunge it into the container or kettle or cauldron or cooking pot. [h] The priest would claim for himself whatever the meat fork brought up. This is the way they treated all the Israelites who came there to Shiloh. 15 Even before the fat was burned, [i] the priest's servant would come and say to the man who was sacrificing, "Give the priest some meat to roast, because he won't accept boiled meat from you — only raw." 16 If that man said to him,
"The fat must be burned first; then you can take whatever you want for yourself," [j] the servant would reply, "No, I insist that you hand it over right now.
If you don't, I'll take it by force! " 17 So the servants' sin was very severe in the presence of the LORD, because they treated the LORD's offering with contempt. [k]

18 The boy Samuel served in the LORD's presence [l] and wore a linen ephod. [m] 19 Each year his mother made him a little robe [n] and took it to him when she went with her husband to offer the annual sacrifice. [o] 20 Eli would bless Elkanah and his wife: [p] "May the LORD give you children by this woman in place of the one she [q] has given to the LORD." [r] Then they would go home.

21 The LORD paid attention to Hannah's need, [s] and she conceived and gave birth to three sons and two daughters. Meanwhile, the boy Samuel grew up in the presence of the LORD. [t]

22 Now Eli was very old. He heard about everything his sons were doing to all Israel [u] and how they were sleeping with the women who served at the entrance to the tent of meeting. [v] 23 He said to them, "Why are you doing these things? I have heard about your evil actions from all these people. 24 No, my sons, the report I hear from the LORD's people is not good. 25 If a man sins against another man, God can intercede for him, but if a man sins against the LORD, who can intercede for him? " [w] But they would not listen to their father, since the LORD intended to kill them. [x] 26 By contrast, the boy Samuel grew in stature and in favor with the LORD and with men. [y]

27 A man of God came to Eli and said to him, [z] "This is what the LORD says:
'Didn't I reveal Myself to your ancestral house when it was in Egypt and belonged to Pharaoh's palace? [a] 28 Out of all the tribes of Israel, I selected your house [B] to be priests, to offer sacrifices on My altar, to burn incense, and to wear an •ephod in My presence. [b] I also gave your house all the Israelite fire offerings. 29 Why, then, do all of you despise My sacrifices and offerings that I require at the place of worship? [c] You have honored your sons more than Me, [d] by making yourselves fat with the best part of all of the offerings of My people Israel.'

30 "Therefore, this is the declaration of the LORD, the God of Israel:

'Although I said
your family and your ancestral house would walk before Me forever, [e]
the LORD now says, "No longer! "
I will honor those who honor Me, [f]
but those who despise Me will be disgraced. [g]

31 " 'Look, the days are coming when I will cut off your strength and the strength of your ancestral family, so that none in your family will reach old age. [h] 32 You will see distress in the place of worship, [i] in spite of all that is good in Israel, and no one in your family will ever again reach old age. [j] 33 Any man from your family I do not cut off from My altar will bring grief [C] and sadness to you. All your descendants will die violently. [k,] [D] 34 This will be the sign that will come to you concerning your two sons Hophni and Phinehas: [l] both of them will die on the same day. [m]

35 " 'Then I will raise up a faithful priest [n] for Myself. He will do whatever is in My heart and mind. I will establish a lasting dynasty for him, [o] and he will walk before My anointed one for all time. [p] 36 Anyone who is left in your family will come and bow down to him for a piece of silver or a loaf of bread. He will say: Please appoint me to some priestly office so I can have a piece of bread to eat.' "

Samuel's Call

3 The boy Samuel served the LORD in Eli's presence. [a] In those days the word of the LORD was rare and prophetic visions were not widespread. [b] 2 One day Eli, whose eyesight was failing, [c] was lying in his room. 3 Before the lamp of God had gone out, [d] Samuel was lying down in the tabernacle of the LORD, where the ark of God was located.
4 Then the LORD called Samuel, [e] and he answered, "Here I am." 5 He ran to Eli and said, "Here I am; you called me."
"I didn't call," Eli replied. "Go back and lie down." So he went and lay down.
6 Once again the LORD called, "Samuel! "
Samuel got up, went to Eli, and said, "Here I am; you called me."
"I didn't call, my son," he replied. "Go back and lie down."
7 Now Samuel had not yet experienced the LORD, because the word of the LORD had not yet been revealed to him. 8 Once again, for the third time, the LORD called Samuel. He got up, went to Eli, and said, "Here I am; you called me."
Then Eli understood that the LORD was calling the boy. 9 He told Samuel, "Go and lie down. If He calls you, say, 'Speak, LORD, for Your servant is listening.' "
So Samuel went and lay down in his place.
10 The LORD came, stood there, and called as before, "Samuel, Samuel! "
Samuel responded, "Speak, for Your servant is listening." 11 The LORD said to Samuel, "I am about to do something in Israel that everyone who hears about it will shudder. [f] 12 On that day I will carry out against Eli everything I said about his family, from beginning to end. [g] 13 I told him that I am going to judge his family forever because of the iniquity he knows about: his sons are defiling the sanctuary, [h] and he has not stopped them. [i] 14 Therefore, I have sworn to Eli's family: The iniquity of Eli's family will never be wiped out by either sacrifice or offering." [j] 15 Samuel lay down until the morning; then he opened the doors of the LORD's house. He was afraid to tell Eli the vision, 16 but Eli called him and said, "Samuel, my son."
"Here I am," answered Samuel.
17 "What was the message He gave you? " Eli asked. "Don't hide it from me.
May God punish you and do so severely if you hide anything from me that He told you." [k] 18 So Samuel told him everything and did not hide anything from him. Eli responded, "He is the LORD. He will do what He thinks is good." [A, l] 19 Samuel grew, [m] and the LORD was with him, [n] and He fulfilled everything Samuel prophesied. [B, o] 20 All Israel from Dan to Beer-sheba knew that Samuel was a confirmed prophet of the LORD. [p] [21] The LORD continued to appear in Shiloh, because there He revealed Himself to Samuel by His word. [q]

4 And Samuel's words came to all Israel.

The Ark Captured by the Philistines Israel went out to meet the Philistines in battle and [a] camped at Ebenezer [b] while the Philistines camped at Aphek. [c] 2 The Philistines lined up in battle formation against Israel, and as the battle intensified, Israel was defeated by the Philistines, who struck down about 4,000 men on the battlefield.

3 When the troops returned to the camp, the elders of Israel asked, "Why did the LORD let us be defeated today by the Philistines? [d] Let's bring the ark of the LORD's covenant from Shiloh. Then it [A] will go with us and save us from the hand of our enemies." [e] 4 So the people sent men to Shiloh to bring back the ark of the covenant of the LORD of •Hosts , who dwells between the •cherubim . [f] Eli's two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, were there with the ark of the covenant of God. 5 When the ark of the covenant of the LORD entered the camp, all the Israelites raised such a loud shout that the ground shook. [g]

6 The Philistines heard the sound of the war cry and asked, "What's this loud shout in the Hebrews' camp? " When the Philistines discovered that the ark of the LORD had entered the camp, 7 they panicked. "The gods have entered their camp! " they said. "Woe to us, nothing like this has happened before. [B] 8 Woe to us, who will rescue us from the hand of these magnificent gods? These are the gods that slaughtered the Egyptians with all kinds of plagues in the wilderness. 9 Show some courage and be men, Philistines! [h] Otherwise, you'll serve the Hebrews just as they served you. [i] Now be men and fight! "

10 So the Philistines fought, and Israel was defeated, [j] and each man fled to his tent. [k] The slaughter was severe — 30,000 of the Israelite foot soldiers fell.
11 The ark of God was captured, and Eli's two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, died.

Eli's Death and Ichabod's Birth 12 That same day, a Benjaminite man ran [m] from the battle and came to Shiloh. His clothes were torn, [n] and there was dirt on his head. 13 When he arrived, there was Eli sitting on his chair beside the road watching, [o] because he was anxious about the ark of God. When the man entered the city to give a report, the entire city cried out.

14 Eli heard the outcry and asked, "Why this commotion? " The man quickly came and reported to Eli. 15 At that time Eli was 98 years old, and his gaze was fixed [C] because he couldn't see. [p]

16 The man said to Eli, "I'm the one who came from the battle. [q] I fled from there today.”

“What happened, my son? ” [r] Eli asked.

17 The messenger answered, “Israel has fled from the Philistines, and also there was a great slaughter among the people. Your two sons, Hophni and Phinehas, are both dead, and the ark of God has been captured.” 18 When he mentioned the ark of God, Eli fell backward off the chair by the city gate, [s] and since he was old and heavy, his neck broke and he died. Eli had judged Israel 40 years.

19 Eli’s daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinehas, was pregnant and about to give birth. When she heard the news about the capture of God’s ark and the deaths of her father-in-law and her husband, she collapsed and gave birth because her labor pains came on her. 20 As she was dying, [t] the women taking care of her said, “Don’t be afraid. You’ve given birth to a son! ” [u] But she did not respond or pay attention. 21 She named the boy Ichabod, [v] saying, “The glory has departed from Israel,” [w] referring to the capture of the ark of God [x] and to the deaths of her father-in-law and her husband. 22 “The glory has departed from Israel,” she said, “because the ark of God has been captured.”

The Ark in Philistine Hands

5 After the Philistines had captured the ark of God, they took it from Ebenezer
[a] to Ashdod, [b] 2 brought it into the temple of Dagon [c, d] and placed it next to his statue. [A] 3 When the people of Ashdod got up early the next morning, there was Dagon, fallen with his face to the ground before the ark of the LORD. [e] So they took Dagon and returned him to his place. 4 But when they got up early the next morning, there was Dagon, fallen with his face to the ground before the ark of the LORD. This time, both Dagon's head and the palms of his hands were broken off and lying on the threshold. Only Dagon's torso remained. [f] 5 That is why, to this day, the priests of Dagon and everyone who enters the temple of Dagon in Ashdod do not step on Dagon's threshold.

6 The LORD's hand was heavy on the people of Ashdod, [g] terrorizing [h] and afflicting the people of Ashdod and its territory with tumors. [i, j, k] 7 When the men of Ashdod saw what was happening, they said, "The ark of Israel's God must not stay here with us, because His hand is strongly against us and our god Dagon." 8 So they called all the Philistine rulers together [l] and asked, "What should we do with the ark of Israel's God? "

"The ark of Israel's God should be moved to Gath," they replied. So the men of Ashdod moved the ark. 9 After they had moved it, the LORD's hand was against the city of Gath, [m] causing a great panic. He afflicted the men of the city, from the youngest to the oldest, with an outbreak of tumors. [n]

10 The Gittites then sent the ark of God to Ekron, but when it got there, the Ekronites cried out, "They've moved the ark of Israel's God to us to kill us and our people! " [o]

11 The Ekronites called all the Philistine rulers together. [p] They said, "Send the ark of Israel's God away. It must return to its place so it won't kill us and our people! " [q] For the fear of death pervaded the city; God's hand was oppressing them. [r] 12 The men who did not die were afflicted with tumors, and the outcry of the city went up to heaven. [s]

The Return of the Ark

6 When the ark of the LORD had been in the land of the Philistines for seven months, 2 the Philistines summoned the priests and the diviners [a] and pleaded, "What should we do with the ark of the LORD*? Tell us how we can send* it back to its place."

3 They replied, "If you send the ark of Israel's God away, you must not send it without an offering. [b] You must send back a restitution offering to Him, [c] and you will be healed. Then the reason His hand hasn't been removed from you will be revealed." [d]

4 They asked, "What restitution offering should we send back to Him? "

And they answered, "Five gold tumors and five gold mice [e] corresponding to the number of Philistine rulers, [f] since there was one plague for both you [g] and your rulers. 5 Make images of your tumors and of your mice that are destroying the land. Give glory to Israel's God, [h] and perhaps He will stop oppressing you, A, [i] your gods, and your land. [j] 6 Why harden your hearts as the Egyptians and Pharaoh hardened theirs? [k] When He afflicted them, didn't they send Israel away, and Israel left? [l]

7 "Now then, prepare one new cart and two milk cows that have never been yoked. [m] Hitch the cows to the cart, but take their calves away and pen them up.
8 Take the ark of the LORD, place it on the cart, and put the gold objects that you're sending Him as a restitution offering in a box [n] beside the ark. [o] Send it off and let it go its way. 9 Then watch: If it goes up the road to its homeland toward Beth-shemesh, [p] it is the LORD who has made this terrible trouble for us.
However, if it doesn't, we will know that it was not His hand that punished [q] us — it was just something that happened to us by chance."

10 The men did this: They took two milk cows, hitched them to the cart, and confined their calves in the pen. 11 Then they put the ark of the LORD on the cart, along with the box containing the gold mice and the images of their tumors. 12
The cows went straight up the road to Beth-shemesh. [r] They stayed on that one highway, [s] lowing as they went; they never strayed to the right or to the left. The Philistine rulers were walking behind them to the territory of Beth-shemesh.

13 The people of Beth-shemesh were harvesting wheat in the valley, and when they looked up and saw the ark, they were overjoyed to see it. 14 The cart came to the field of Joshua of Beth-shemesh and stopped there near a large rock. The people of the city chopped up the cart and offered the cows as a •burnt offering to the LORD. [t] 15 The Levites [u] removed the ark of the LORD, along with the box containing the gold objects, and placed them on the large rock. That day the men of Beth-shemesh offered burnt offerings and made sacrifices to the LORD. 16 When the five Philistine rulers [v] observed this, they returned to Ekron that same day.

17 As a restitution offering to the LORD, the Philistines had sent back one gold tumor for each city: [w] Ashdod, Gaza, Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron. 18 The number of gold mice also corresponded to the number of Philistine cities of the five rulers, the fortified cities and the outlying villages. [x] The large rock [y, z] on which the ark of the LORD was placed is in the field of Joshua of Beth-shemesh to this day.

19 God struck down the men of Beth-shemesh because they looked inside the ark of the LORD. [a, b] He struck down 70 men out of 50,000 men. [c] The people mourned because the LORD struck them with a great slaughter. 20 The men of Beth-shemesh asked, “Who is able to stand in the presence of this holy LORD God? [d] Who should the ark go to from here? ”

21 They sent messengers to the residents of Kiriath-jearim, [e] saying, “The Philistines have returned the ark of the LORD. Come down and get it.” [B]

7 So the men of Kiriath-jearim came for the ark of the LORD and took it to Abinadab's house on the hill. [a] They consecrated his son Eleazar to take care of it.

Victory at Mizpah

2 Time went by until 20 years had passed since the ark had been taken to Kiriath-jearim. Then the whole house of Israel began to seek the LORD. 3 Samuel told them, "If you [b] are returning to the LORD [c] with all your heart, [d] get rid of the foreign gods [e] and the •Ashtoreths that are among you, dedicate yourselves to [A] the LORD, and worship only Him. [f] Then He will rescue you from the hand of the Philistines." 4 So the Israelites removed the •Baals and the Ashtoreths [g] and only worshiped the LORD.

5 Samuel said, "Gather all Israel at Mizpah, [h] and I will pray to the LORD on your behalf." [i] 6 When they gathered at Mizpah, they drew water and poured it out in the LORD's presence. [j] They fasted that day, [k] and there they confessed, "We have sinned against the LORD." [l] And Samuel judged the Israelites at Mizpah.

7 When the Philistines heard that the Israelites had gathered at Mizpah, their rulers marched up toward Israel. When the Israelites heard about it, they were afraid because of the Philistines. 8 The Israelites said to Samuel, "Don't stop crying out to the LORD our God for us, so that He will save us from the hand of the Philistines."

9 Then Samuel took a young lamb [m] and offered it as a whole •burnt offering to the LORD. He cried out to the LORD on behalf of Israel, and the LORD answered him. [n] 10 Samuel was offering the burnt offering as the Philistines drew near to fight against Israel. The LORD thundered loudly [o] against the Philistines that day and threw them into such confusion that they fled before Israel. [p] 11 Then the men of Israel charged out of Mizpah and pursued the Philistines striking them down all the way to a place below Beth-car.

12 Afterward, Samuel took a stone and set it upright [q] between Mizpah and Shen. He named it Ebenezer, [r] explaining, "The LORD has helped us to this point." 13 So the Philistines were subdued [s] and [t] did not invade Israel's territory again. [u] The LORD's hand was against the Philistines all of Samuel's life. 14 The cities from Ekron to Gath, which they had taken from Israel, were restored; Israel even rescued their surrounding territories from Philistine control. There was also peace between Israel and the Amorites.

15 Samuel judged Israel throughout his life. [v] 16 Every year he would go on a circuit to Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpah and would judge Israel at all these locations. 17 Then he would return to Ramah [w] because his home was there, he judged Israel there, and he built an altar to the LORD there.

Israel's Demand for a King

8 When Samuel grew old, he appointed his sons as judges over Israel. [a] 2 His firstborn son's name was Joel and his second was Abijah. They were judges in Beer-sheba. [b] 3 However, his sons did not walk in his ways — they turned toward dishonest gain, took bribes, and perverted justice. [c]

4 So all the elders of Israel gathered together and went to Samuel at Ramah. [d] 5 They said to him, "Look, you are old, and your sons do not follow your example. Therefore, appoint a king to judge us the same as all the other nations have." [e]

6 When they said, "Give us a king to judge us," Samuel considered their demand sinful, so he prayed to the LORD. 7 But the LORD told him, "Listen to the people and everything they say to you. They have not rejected you; they have rejected Me as their king. [f] 8 They are doing the same thing to you that they have done to Me, [g] since the day I brought them out of Egypt until this day, abandoning Me and worshiping other gods. 9 Listen to them, but you must solemnly warn them [h] and tell them about the rights of the king who will rule over them."

10 Samuel told all the LORD's words to the people who were asking him for a king. 11 He said, "These are the rights of the king who will rule over you: He will take your sons and put them to his use in his chariots, on his horses, or running in front of his chariots. 12 He can appoint them for his use as commanders of thousands or commanders of fifties, [i] to plow his ground or reap his harvest, or to make his weapons of war or the equipment for his chariots. 13 He can take your daughters to become perfumers, cooks, and bakers. 14 He can take your best fields, vineyards, and olive orchards and give them to his servants. [j] 15 He can take a tenth of your grain and your vineyards and give them to his officials and servants. 16 He can take your male servants, your female servants, your best young men, [k] and your donkeys and use them for his work. 17 He can take a tenth of your flocks, and you yourselves can become his servants. 18 When that day comes, you will cry out because of the king you've chosen for yourselves, [l] but the LORD won't answer you on that day." [m]

19 The people refused to listen to Samuel. "No! " they said. "We must have a king over us. 20 Then we'll be like all the other nations: our king will judge us, go out before us, [n] and fight our battles."

21 Samuel listened to all the people's words and then repeated them to the LORD. [A] 22 "Listen to them," the LORD told Samuel. "Appoint a king for them." [o]

Then Samuel told the men of Israel, “Each of you, go back to your city.”

Saul Anointed King

9 There was an influential man of Benjamin named Kish [a] son of Abiel, son of Zeror, son of Becorath, son of Aphiah, son of a Benjaminite. 2 He had a son named Saul, an impressive young man. [b] There was no one more impressive among the Israelites than he. He stood a head taller than anyone else. [A, c] 3 One day the donkeys of Saul's father Kish wandered off. Kish said to his son Saul, "Take one of the attendants with you and go look for the donkeys." 4 Saul and his attendant went through the hill country of Ephraim [d] and then through the region of Shalishah, [e] but they didn't find them. They went through the region of Shaalim [f] — nothing. Then they went through the Benjaminite region but still didn't find them.
5 When they came to the land of Zuph, [g] Saul said to the attendant who was with him, "Come on, let's go back, or my father will stop worrying about the donkeys and start worrying about us." [h] 6 "Look," the attendant said, "there's a man of God [i] in this city who is highly respected; everything he says is sure to come true. [j] Let's go there now. Maybe he'll tell us which way we should go." [k] 7 "Suppose we do go," Saul said to his attendant, "what do we take the man?
The food from our packs is gone, and there's no gift to take to the man of God. [l]
What do we have? "
8 The attendant answered Saul: "Here, I have a piece [B] of silver. I'll give it to the man of God, and he will tell us our way." 9 Formerly in Israel, a man who was going to inquire of God would say, "Come, let's go to the seer," for the prophet of today was formerly called the seer. [m]
10 "Good," Saul replied to his attendant. "Come on, let's go." So they went to the city where the man of God was. 11 As they were climbing the hill to the city, they found some young women coming out to draw water [n] and asked, "Is the seer here? " 12 The women answered, "Yes, he is ahead of you. Hurry, he just now came to the city, because there's a sacrifice [o] for the people at the •high place [p] today.
13 If you go quickly, you can catch up with him before he goes to the high place to eat. The people won't eat until he comes because he must bless the sacrifice; after that, the guests can eat. Go up immediately — you can find him now." 14
So they went up toward the city.
Saul and his attendant were entering the city when they saw Samuel coming toward them on his way to the high place. 15 Now the day before Saul's arrival, the LORD had informed Samuel, [C,] [q] 16 "At this time tomorrow I will send you a man from the land of Benjamin. Anoint him ruler over My people Israel. [r] He will save them from the hand of the Philistines because I have seen the affliction of My people, [s] for their cry has come to Me." 17 When Samuel saw Saul, the LORD told him, "Here is the man I told you about; [t] he will rule over My people." 18 Saul approached Samuel in the gate area and asked, "Would you please tell me where the seer's house is? " 19 "I am the seer," Samuel answered. [D] "Go up ahead of me to the high place and eat with me today. When I send you off in the morning, I'll tell you everything that's in your heart. 20 As for the donkeys that wandered away from you three days ago, [u] don't worry about them because they've been found. And who does all Israel desire [v] but you and all your father's family? " 21 Saul responded, "Am I not a Benjaminite [w] from the smallest of Israel's tribes and isn't my clan the least important of all the clans of the Benjaminite tribe? [x] So why have you said something like this to me? " 22 Samuel took Saul and his attendant, brought them to the banquet hall, and gave them a place at the head of the 30 [y] or so men who had been invited. 23 Then Samuel said to the cook, "Get the portion of meat that I gave you and told you to set aside."

24 The cook picked up the thigh [z] and what was attached to it and set it before Saul. Then Samuel said, "Notice that the reserved piece is set before you. Eat it because it was saved for you for this solemn event at the time I said, 'I've invited the people.' " So Saul ate with Samuel that day. 25 Afterward, they went down from the high place to the city, and Samuel spoke with Saul on the roof. [a, b]
26 They got up early, and just before dawn, Samuel called to Saul on the roof, "Get up, and I'll send you on your way! " Saul got up, and both he and Samuel went outside. 27 As they were going down to the edge of the city, Samuel said to Saul, "Tell the attendant to go on ahead of us, but you stay for a while, and I'll reveal the word of God to you." So the attendant went on.

10 Samuel took the flask of oil, [a] poured it out on Saul's head, [b] kissed him, and said, "Hasn't the LORD anointed you [c] ruler over His inheritance? [d, e] 2 Today when you leave me, you'll find two men at Rachel's Grave [f] at Zelzah in the land of Benjamin. They will say to you, 'The donkeys you went looking for have been found, [g] and now your father has stopped being concerned about the donkeys and is worried about you, asking: What should I do about my son? ' 3 "You will proceed from there until you come to the oak of Tabor. [h] Three men going up to God at Bethel [i] will meet you there, one bringing three goats, one bringing three loaves of bread, and one bringing a skin of wine. 4 They will ask how you are and give you two loaves [j] of bread, which you will accept from them.
5 "After that you will come to the Hill of God [A, k] where there are Philistine garrisons. [B] When you arrive at the city, you will meet a group of prophets [l] coming down from the •high place prophesying. [m] They will be preceded by harps, tambourines, flutes, and lyres. 6 The Spirit of the LORD will control you, [n] you will prophesy with them, [o] and you will be transformed into a different person. [p] 7 When these signs have happened to you, do whatever your circumstances require [C, q] because God is with you. 8 Afterward, go ahead of me to Gilgal. I will come to you to offer •burnt offerings and to sacrifice •fellowship offerings. Wait seven days until I come to you and show you what to do."
9 When Saul turned around [D] to leave Samuel, God changed his heart, [E] and all the signs came about that day. 10 When Saul and his attendant arrived at Gibeah, a group of prophets met him. Then the Spirit of God took control of him, and he prophesied along with them.
11 Everyone who knew him previously and saw him prophesy with the prophets asked each other, "What has happened to the son of Kish? Is Saul also among the prophets? " [r]
12 Then a man who was from there asked, "And who is their father? " [s]
As a result, "Is Saul also among the prophets? " became a popular saying. 13
Then Saul finished prophesying and went to the high place.
14 Saul's uncle [t] asked him and his attendant, "Where did you go? "
"To look for the donkeys," Saul answered. "When we saw they weren't there, we went to Samuel." [u]
15 "Tell me," Saul's uncle asked, "what did Samuel say to you? " 16 Saul told him, "He assured us the donkeys had been found." However, Saul did not tell him what Samuel had said about the matter of kingship.

Saul Received as King

17 Samuel summoned the people to the LORD at Mizpah [v] 18 and said to the Israelites, "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: [w] 'I brought Israel out of Egypt, and I rescued you from the power of the Egyptians and all the kingdoms that were oppressing you.' 19 But today you have rejected your God, [x] who saves you from all your troubles and afflictions. You said to Him, 'You [y] must set a king over us.' [z] Now therefore present yourselves before the LORD by your tribes and clans." [a]

20 Samuel had all the tribes of Israel come forward, and the tribe of Benjamin was selected. 21 Then he had the tribe of Benjamin come forward by its clans, and the Matrite clan was selected. [b] Finally, Saul son of Kish was selected. [c] But when they searched for him, they could not find him. 22 They again inquired of the LORD, [d] "Has the man come here yet? "

The LORD replied, "There he is, hidden among the supplies."

23 They ran and got him from there. When he stood among the people, he stood a head taller than anyone else. [F, e] 24 Samuel said to all the people, "Do you see the one the LORD has chosen? [f] There is no one like him among the entire population."

And all the people shouted, [g] "Long live the king! " [h]

25 Samuel proclaimed to the people the rights of kingship. [i] He wrote them on a scroll, which he placed in the presence of the LORD. [j] Then Samuel sent all the people away, each to his home.

26 Saul also went to his home in Gibeah, [k] and brave men whose hearts God had touched went with him. 27 But some •wicked men said, "How can this guy save us? " They despised him and did not bring him a gift, [l] but Saul said nothing. [m, G]

Saul's Deliverance of Jabesh-gilead

11 Nahash [a, b] the Ammonite came up and laid siege to Jabesh-gilead. [c] All the men of Jabesh said to him, “Make a treaty [d] with us, and we will serve you.”

2 Nahash the Ammonite replied, “I’ll make one with you on this condition: that I gouge out everyone’s right eye [e] and humiliate all Israel.” [f]

3 “Don’t do anything to us for seven days,” the elders of Jabesh said to him, “and let us send messengers throughout the territory of Israel. If no one saves us, we will surrender to you.”

4 When the messengers came to Gibeah, [g] Saul’s hometown, and told the terms to [A] the people, all wept aloud. [h] 5 Just then Saul was coming in from the field behind his oxen. “What’s the matter with the people? Why are they weeping? ” Saul inquired, and they repeated to him the words of the men from Jabesh.

6 When Saul heard these words, the Spirit of God suddenly took control of him, [i] and his anger burned furiously. 7 He took a team of oxen, cut them in pieces, [j] and sent them throughout the land of Israel by messengers who said, “This is what will be done to the ox of anyone who doesn’t march behind Saul and Samuel.” [k] As a result, the terror of the LORD fell on the people, and they went out united. [l]

8 Saul counted them at Bezek. [m] There were 300,000 [n, o] Israelites and 30,000 [p] men from Judah. 9 He told the messengers who had come, “Tell this to the men of Jabesh-gilead: ‘Deliverance will be yours tomorrow by the time the sun is hot.’ ” So the messengers told the men of Jabesh, and they rejoiced.

10 Then the men of Jabesh said to Nahash, “Tomorrow we will come out, and you can do whatever you want [B] to us.”

11 The next day Saul organized the troops into three divisions. [q] During the morning watch, they invaded the Ammonite camp and slaughtered them until the heat of the day. There were survivors, but they were so scattered that no two of them were left together.

Saul’s Confirmation as King 12 Afterward, the people said to Samuel, “Who said that Saul should not [r] reign over us? [s] Give us those men so we can kill them! ” [t]

13 But Saul ordered, “No one will be executed this day, for today the LORD has provided deliverance in Israel.” [u]

14 Then Samuel said to the people, “Come, let’s go to Gilgal, so we can renew the kingship there.” 15 So all the people went to Gilgal, and there in the LORD’s presence [v] they made Saul king. There they sacrificed •fellowship offerings [w] in the LORD’s presence, and Saul and all the men of Israel greatly rejoiced.

Samuel's Final Public Speech

12 Then Samuel said to all Israel, “I have carefully listened to everything you said to me and placed a king over you. [a] 2 Now you can see that the king is leading you. As for me, I’m old and gray, and my sons are here with you. I have led you from my youth until today. 3 Here I am. Bring charges against me before the LORD and His anointed: Whose ox or donkey have I taken? [b] Whom have I wronged or mistreated? From whose hand have I taken a bribe to overlook something? [c, A], [d] I will return it to you.”

4 “You haven’t wronged us, you haven’t mistreated us, and you haven’t taken anything from anyone’s hand,” they responded.

5 He said to them, “The LORD is a witness against you, and His anointed is a witness today that you haven’t found anything [e] in my hand.” [f]

“He is a witness,” they said.

6 Then Samuel said to the people, “The LORD, who appointed Moses and Aaron [g] and who brought your ancestors up from the land of Egypt, is a witness. [h] 7 Now present yourselves, so I may confront you before the LORD about all the righteous acts He has done for you and your ancestors.

8 “When Jacob went to Egypt, [i] your ancestors cried out to the LORD, [j] and He sent them Moses and Aaron, who led your ancestors out of Egypt and settled them in this place. [k] 9 But they forgot the LORD their God, so He handed them over to Sisera [l] commander of the army of Hazor, to the Philistines, and to the king of Moab. [m] These enemies fought against them. 10 Then they cried out to the LORD and said, ‘We have sinned, for we abandoned the LORD and worshiped the •Baals and the •Ashtoreths . Now deliver us from the power of our enemies, [n] and we will serve You.’ 11 So the LORD sent Jerubbaal, [o] Barak, [p, q] Jephthah, [r] and Samuel. [s] He rescued you from the power of the enemies around you, and you lived securely. 12 But when you saw that Nahash king of the Ammonites was coming against you, you said to me, ‘No, we must have a king rule over us’ — even though the LORD your God is your king.

13 “Now here is the king you’ve chosen, [t] the one you requested. [u] Look, this is the king the LORD has placed over you. 14 If you •fear the LORD, [v] worship and obey Him, and if you don’t rebel against the LORD’s command, then both you and the king who rules over you will follow the LORD your God. 15 However, if you disobey the LORD [w] and rebel against His command, the LORD’s hand will be against you [x] and against your ancestors. [y, z]

16 “Now, therefore, present yourselves and see this great thing that the LORD will do before your eyes. [a] 17 Isn’t the wheat harvest today? [b] I will call on the LORD and He will send thunder and rain, so that you will know and see what a great evil you committed in the LORD's sight by requesting a king for yourselves." [c] 18 Samuel called on the LORD, and on that day the LORD sent thunder and rain. As a result, all the people greatly feared the LORD and Samuel. [d]

19 They pleaded with Samuel, "Pray to the LORD your God for your servants, [e] so we won't die! For we have added to all our sins the evil of requesting a king for ourselves." [f]

20 Samuel replied, "Don't be afraid. Even though you have committed all this evil, don't turn away from following the LORD. [g] Instead, worship the LORD with all your heart. 21 Don't turn away to follow worthless [h] things that can't profit or deliver you; they are worthless. [i] 22 The LORD will not abandon His people, [j] because of His great name and because He has determined to make you His own people. [k]

23 "As for me, I vow that I will not sin against the LORD by ceasing to pray for you. [l] I will teach you the good and right way. 24 Above all, fear the LORD and worship Him faithfully with all your heart; consider the great things He has done for you. [m] 25 However, if you continue to do what is evil, both you and your king will be swept away." [n]

Saul's Failure

13 Saul was 30 years [a] old when he became king, and he reigned 42 years [b] over Israel. [c] 2 He chose 3,000 men from Israel for himself: 2,000 were with Saul at Michmash [d] and in Bethel's hill country, and 1,000 were with Jonathan in Gibeah [e] of Benjamin. He sent the rest of the troops away, each to his own tent.

3 Jonathan attacked the Philistine garrison [A, f] that was in Geba, [g] and the Philistines heard about it. So Saul blew the ram's horn throughout the land [h] saying, "Let the Hebrews hear! " [i, j] 4 And all Israel heard the news, "Saul has attacked the Philistine garrison, [B] and Israel is now repulsive to the Philistines."
Then the troops were summoned to join Saul at Gilgal.

5 The Philistines also gathered to fight against Israel: 3,000 [k] chariots, 6,000 horsemen, and troops as numerous as the sand on the seashore. [l] They went up and camped at Michmash, east of Beth-aven. [m, n]

6 The men of Israel saw that they were in trouble because the troops were in a difficult situation. They hid in caves, thickets, among rocks, and in holes and cisterns. [o] 7 Some Hebrews even crossed the Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead.

Saul, however, was still at Gilgal, and all his troops were gripped with fear. [8]
He waited seven days for the appointed time that Samuel had set, [p] but Samuel didn't come to Gilgal, and the troops were deserting him. 9 So Saul said, "Bring me the •burnt offering and the •fellowship offerings." Then he offered the burnt offering.

10 Just as he finished offering the burnt offering, Samuel arrived. So Saul went out to greet him, 11 and Samuel asked, "What have you done? "

Saul answered, "When I saw that the troops were deserting me and you didn't come within the appointed days and the Philistines were gathering at Michmash, 12 I thought: The Philistines will now descend on me at Gilgal, and I haven't sought the LORD's favor. So I forced myself to offer the burnt offering."

13 Samuel said to Saul, "You have been foolish. [q] You have not kept the command which the LORD your God gave you. [r] It was at this time that the LORD would have permanently established your reign over Israel, [s] 14 but now your reign will not endure. [t] The LORD has found a man loyal to Him, [C, u] and the LORD has appointed him as ruler over His people, because you have not done what the LORD commanded." 15 Then Samuel went [v] from Gilgal to Gibeah in Benjamin. Saul registered the troops who were with him, about 600 men.

16 Saul, his son Jonathan, and the troops who were with them were staying in Geba [w] of Benjamin, and the Philistines were camped at Michmash. 17 Raiding parties [x] went out from the Philistine camp in three divisions. One division headed toward the Ophrah [y] road leading to the land of Shual. 18 The next division headed toward the Beth-horon [z] road, and the last division headed down the border road that looks out over the Valley of Zeboim [a] toward the wilderness.

19 No blacksmith could be found in all the land of Israel, [b] because the Philistines had said, "Otherwise, the Hebrews will make swords or spears." 20 So all the Israelites went to the Philistines to sharpen their plows, mattocks, axes, and sickles. [c] 21 The price was two-thirds of a •shekel [D] for plows and mattocks, and one-third of a shekel for pitchforks and axes, and for putting a point on an oxgoad. 22 So on the day of battle not a sword or spear could be found in the hand of any of the troops who were with Saul [d] and Jonathan; only Saul and his son Jonathan had weapons.

Jonathan's Victory over the Philistines 23 Now a Philistine garrison [e] took control of the pass at Michmash.

14 That same day Saul's son Jonathan said to the attendant who carried his weapons, "Come on, let's cross over to the Philistine garrison on the other side." However, he did not tell his father.
2 Saul was staying under the pomegranate tree in Migron [a] on the outskirts of Gibeah. [b, c] The troops with him numbered about 600. [d] 3 Ahijah, [e] who was wearing an •ephod , [f] was also there. He was the son of Ahitub, the brother of Ichabod [g] son of Phinehas, son of Eli the LORD's priest at Shiloh. [h] But the troops did not know that Jonathan had left.
4 There were sharp columns [A] of rock on both sides of the pass [i] that Jonathan intended to cross to reach the Philistine garrison. One was named Bozez and the other Seneh; 5 one stood to the north in front of Michmash and the other to the south in front of Geba. 6 Jonathan said to the attendant who carried his weapons, "Come on, let's cross over to the garrison of these uncircumcised men. [j] Perhaps the LORD will help us. Nothing can keep the LORD from saving, whether by many or by few." [k] 7 His armor-bearer responded, "Do what is in your heart. You choose. I'm right here with you whatever you decide." 8 "All right," Jonathan replied, "we'll cross over to the men and then let them see us. 9 If they say, 'Wait until we reach you,' then we will stay where we are and not go up to them. 10 But if they say, 'Come on up,' then we'll go up, because the LORD has handed them over to us — that will be our sign." 11 They let themselves be seen by the Philistine garrison, and the Philistines said, "Look, the Hebrews are coming out of the holes where they've been hiding! " 12 The men of the garrison called to Jonathan and his armor-bearer.
"Come on up, and we'll teach you a lesson! " they said.
"Follow me," Jonathan told his armor-bearer, "for the LORD has handed them over to Israel." [l] 13 Jonathan climbed up using his hands and feet, with his armor-bearer behind him. Jonathan cut them down, and his armor-bearer followed and finished them off. 14 In that first assault Jonathan and his armor-bearer struck down about 20 men in a half-acre field.

A Defeat for the Philistines 15 Terror spread through the Philistine camp and the open fields to all the troops. Even the garrison and the raiding parties [m] were terrified. The earth shook, [n] and terror spread from God. [B, o] 16 When Saul's watchmen in Gibeah of Benjamin looked, they saw the panicking troops scattering in every direction. 17 So Saul said to the troops with him, "Call the roll and determine who has left us." They called the roll and saw that Jonathan and his armor-bearer were gone.

18 Saul told Ahijah, “Bring the ark of God,” for it was with the Israelites [p] at that time. 19 While Saul spoke to the priest, [q] the panic in the Philistine camp increased in intensity. So Saul said to the priest, “Stop what you’re doing.” [C] 20 Saul and all the troops with him assembled and marched to the battle, and there, the Philistines were fighting against each other in great confusion! [r] 21
There were Hebrews from the area who had gone earlier into the camp to join the Philistines, but even they joined the Israelites [s] who were with Saul and Jonathan. 22 When all the Israelite men who had been hiding in the hill country of Ephraim [t] heard that the Philistines were fleeing, they also joined Saul and Jonathan in the battle. 23 So the LORD saved Israel that day. [u]

Saul’s Rash Oath

The battle extended beyond Beth-aven, 24 and the men of Israel were worn out that day, for Saul had [v] placed the troops under an oath: [w] “The man who eats food before evening, before I have taken vengeance on my enemies is cursed.”
So none of the troops tasted any food.
25 Everyone [D] went into the forest, and there was honey on the ground. 26
When the troops entered the forest, they saw the flow of honey, but none of them ate any of it [E] because they feared the oath. 27 However, Jonathan had not heard his father make the troops swear the oath. He reached out with the end of the staff he was carrying and dipped it into the honeycomb. [x] When he ate the honey, [F] he had renewed energy. [y] 28 Then, one of the troops said, “Your father made the troops solemnly swear, ‘The man who eats food today is cursed,’ and the troops are exhausted.” 29 Jonathan replied, “My father has brought trouble to the land. [z] Just look at how I have renewed energy because I tasted a little honey. 30 How much better if the troops had eaten freely today from the plunder they took from their enemies!
Then the slaughter of the Philistines would have been much greater.” 31 The Israelites struck down the Philistines that day from Michmash [a] all the way to Aijalon. [b] Since the Israelites were completely exhausted, 32 they rushed to the plunder, [c] took sheep, cattle, and calves, slaughtered them on the ground, and ate meat with the blood still in it. 33 Some reported to Saul: “Look, the troops are sinning against the LORD by eating meat with the blood still in it.” [d] Saul said, “You have been unfaithful. Roll a large stone over here at once.” 34 He then said, “Go among the troops and say to them, ‘Each man must bring me his ox or his sheep. Do the slaughtering here and then you can eat. Don’t sin against the LORD by eating meat with the blood in it.' " So every one of the troops brought his ox that night and slaughtered it there. 35 Then Saul built an altar to the LORD; it was the first time he had built an altar to the LORD. [e]

36 Saul said, "Let's go down after the Philistines tonight and plunder them until morning. Don't let even one remain! "

"Do whatever you want," [G] the troops replied.

But the priest [f] said, "We must consult God here." [g]

37 So Saul inquired of God, [h] "Should I go after the Philistines? Will You hand them over to Israel? " But God did not answer him that day. [i]

38 Saul said, "All you leaders of the troops, come here. Let us investigate how this sin has occurred today. 39 As surely as the LORD lives who saves Israel, even if it is because of my son Jonathan, he must die! " Not one of the troops answered him.

40 So he said to all Israel, "You will be on one side, and I and my son Jonathan will be on the other side."

And the troops replied, "Do whatever you want." [H]

41 So Saul said to the LORD, "God of Israel, give us the right decision." [j, k] Jonathan and Saul were selected, and the troops were cleared of the charge.

42 Then Saul said, "Cast the lot between me and my son Jonathan," and Jonathan was selected. 43 Saul commanded him, "Tell me what you did." [l]

Jonathan told him, "I tasted a little honey [m] with the end of the staff I was carrying. I am ready to die! "

44 Saul declared to him, "May God punish me and do so severely [n] if you do not die, Jonathan! "

45 But the people said to Saul, "Must Jonathan die, who accomplished such a great deliverance for Israel? No, as the LORD lives, not a hair of his head will fall to the ground, [o] for he worked with God's help today." [p] So the people redeemed Jonathan, and he did not die. 46 Then Saul gave up the pursuit of the Philistines, and the Philistines returned to their own territory.

Summary of Saul's Kingship 47 When Saul assumed the kingship over Israel, he fought against all his enemies in every direction: against Moab, the Ammonites, [q] Edom, the kings of Zobah, [r] and the Philistines. Wherever he turned, he caused havoc. [s] 48 He fought bravely, defeated the Amalekites, [t] and delivered Israel from the hand of those who plundered them.

49 Saul's sons [u] were Jonathan, Ishvi, and Malchishua. The names of his two daughters were: Merab, [v] his firstborn, and Michal, [w] the younger. 50 The name of Saul’s wife was Ahinoam daughter of Ahimaaz. The name of the commander of his army was Abner son of Saul’s uncle Ner. [x] 51 Saul’s father was Kish. [y] Abner’s father was Ner son of Abiel.

52 The conflict with the Philistines was fierce all of Saul’s days, so whenever Saul noticed any strong or brave man, he enlisted him. [z]

Saul Rejected as King

15 Samuel told Saul, “The Lord sent me to anoint you as king over His people Israel. [a] Now, listen to the words of the Lord. 2 This is what the Lord of •Hosts says: ‘I witnessed [b] what the Amalekites did to the Israelites when they opposed them along the way as they were coming out of Egypt. [c] 3 Now go and attack the Amalekites and •completely destroy everything they have. [d] Do not spare them. Kill men and women, children and infants, oxen and sheep, camels and donkeys.’ ” [e] 4 Then Saul summoned the troops and counted them at Telaim: 200,000 foot soldiers and 10,000 men from Judah. 5 Saul came to the city of Amalek and set up an ambush in the •wadi . 6 He warned the Kenites, [f] “Since you showed kindness to all the Israelites when they came out of Egypt, [g] go on and leave!
Get away from the Amalekites, or I’ll sweep you away with them.” So the Kenites withdrew from the Amalekites.
7 Then Saul struck down the Amalekites [h] from Havilah [i] all the way to Shur, [j] which is next to Egypt. 8 He captured Agag [k] king of Amalek alive, but he completely destroyed all the rest of the people with the sword. [l] 9 Saul and the troops spared Agag, and the best of the sheep, cattle, and choice animals, [A] as well as the young rams and the best of everything else. They were not willing to destroy them, but they did destroy all the worthless and unwanted things.
10 Then the word of the Lord came to Samuel, 11 “I regret that I made Saul king, [m] for he has turned away from following Me and has not carried out My instructions.” [n] So Samuel became angry and cried out to the Lord all night. [o] 12 Early in the morning Samuel got up to confront Saul, but it was reported to Samuel, “Saul went to Carmel [p] where he set up a monument for himself. Then he turned around and went down to Gilgal.” [q] 13 When Samuel came to him, Saul said, “May the Lord bless you. [r] I have carried out the Lord’s instructions.”
14 Samuel replied, “Then what is this sound of sheep [B] and cattle I hear? ” 15 Saul answered, “The troops brought them from the Amalekites and spared the best sheep and cattle in order to offer a sacrifice to the Lord your God, [s] but the rest we destroyed.” [t] 16 “Stop! ” exclaimed Samuel. “Let me tell you what the Lord said to me last night.”
“Tell me,” he replied.
17 Samuel continued, “Although you once considered yourself unimportant, [u] have you not become the leader of the tribes of Israel? The Lord anointed you king over Israel 18 and then sent you on a mission and said: ‘Go and completely destroy the sinful Amalekites. Fight against them until you have annihilated them.’ 19 So why didn’t you obey the LORD? Why did you rush on the plunder [v] and do what was evil in the LORD’s sight? ” 20 “But I did obey the LORD! ” Saul answered. [C] “I went on the mission the LORD gave me: I brought back Agag, king of Amalek, and I completely destroyed the Amalekites. 21 The troops took sheep and cattle from the plunder — the best of what was •set apart for destruction — to sacrifice to the LORD your God at Gilgal.” [w]

22 Then Samuel said:

Does the LORD [x] take pleasure in •burnt offerings and sacrifices as much as in obeying the LORD?

Look: to obey is better than sacrifice, to pay attention is better than the fat of rams. [y] 23 For rebellion is like the sin of •divination , [z] and defiance is like wickedness [a] and idolatry.
Because you have rejected the word of the LORD,
He has rejected you as king. [b]

24 Saul answered Samuel, “I have sinned. [c] I have transgressed the LORD’s command [d] and your words. Because I was afraid of the people, I obeyed them.
25 Now therefore, please forgive my sin [e] and return with me so I can worship the LORD.”
26 Samuel replied to Saul, “I will not return with you. Because you rejected the word of the LORD, [f] the LORD has rejected you from being king over Israel.”
27 When Samuel turned to go, Saul grabbed the hem of his robe, and it tore. 28 Samuel said to him, “The LORD has torn the kingship of Israel away from you today [g] and has given it to your neighbor who is better than you. [h] 29 Furthermore, the Eternal One of Israel [i] does not lie or change His mind, for He is not man who changes his mind.” [j] 30 Saul said, “I have sinned. Please honor me [k] now before the elders of my people and before Israel. Come back with me so I can bow in worship to the LORD your God.” [l] 31 Then Samuel went back, following Saul, and Saul bowed down to the LORD.
32 Samuel said, “Bring me Agag king of Amalek.” Agag came to him trembling, [D] for he thought, “Certainly the bitterness of death has come.” [m, E]

33 Samuel declared:

As your sword has made women childless,
so your mother will be childless among women. [n]

Then he hacked Agag to pieces before the LORD at Gilgal.

34 Samuel went to Ramah, [o] and Saul went up to his home in Gibeah [p] of Saul. 35 Even to the day of his death, Samuel never again visited Saul. [q] Samuel mourned for Saul, [r] and the LORD regretted He had made Saul king over Israel.

Samuel Anoints David

16 The LORD said to Samuel, “How long are you going to mourn for Saul, [a] since I have rejected him as king over Israel? [b] Fill your horn with oil [c] and go. I am sending you to Jesse of Bethlehem [d] because I have selected a king from his sons.”

2 Samuel asked, “How can I go? Saul will hear about it and kill me! ”

The LORD answered, “Take a young cow with you and say, ‘I have come to sacrifice to the LORD.’ [e] 3 Then invite Jesse to the sacrifice, and I will let you know what you are to do. [f] You are to anoint for Me the one I indicate to you.” [g]

4 Samuel did what the LORD directed and went to Bethlehem. [h] When the elders of the town met him, they trembled [A] and asked, “Do [i] you come in peace? ” [j]

5 “In peace,” he replied. “I’ve come to sacrifice to the LORD. Consecrate yourselves [k] and come with me to the sacrifice.” [l] Then he consecrated Jesse and his sons and invited them to the sacrifice. 6 When they arrived, Samuel saw Eliab [m] and said, “Certainly the LORD’s anointed one is here before Him.”

7 But the LORD said to Samuel, “Do not look at his appearance or his stature, because I have rejected him. Man does not see what the LORD sees, [n] for man sees what is visible, [B] but the LORD sees the heart.” [o]

8 Jesse called Abinadab [p] and presented him to Samuel. “The LORD hasn’t chosen this one either,” Samuel said. 9 Then Jesse presented Shammah, [q] but Samuel said, “The LORD hasn’t chosen this one either.” 10 After Jesse presented seven of his sons to him, Samuel told Jesse, “The LORD hasn’t chosen any of these.” 11 Samuel asked him, “Are these all the sons you have? ”

“There is still the youngest,” [r] he answered, “but right now he’s tending the sheep.” Samuel told Jesse, “Send for him. We won’t sit down to eat until he gets here.” 12 So Jesse sent for him. He had beautiful eyes and a healthy, [C] handsome appearance. [s]

Then the LORD said, “Anoint him, for he is the one.” [t] 13 So Samuel took the horn of oil, anointed him [u] in the presence of his brothers, and the Spirit of the LORD took control of David from that day forward. [v] Then Samuel set out and went to Ramah.

David in Saul’s Court 14 Now the Spirit of the LORD had left Saul, [w] and an evil spirit sent from the LORD began to torment him, 15 so Saul’s servants said to him, “You see that an evil spirit from God is tormenting you. 16 Let our lord command your servants here in your presence to look for someone who knows how to play the lyre. Whenever the evil spirit from God troubles you, that person can play the lyre, and you will feel better.” [x]

17 Then Saul commanded his servants, “Find me someone who plays well and bring him to me.”

18 One of the young men answered, “I have seen a son of Jesse of Bethlehem who knows how to play the lyre. He is also a valiant man, [y] a warrior, eloquent, handsome, and the LORD is with him.” [z]

19 Then Saul dispatched messengers to Jesse and said, “Send me your son David, who is with the sheep.” 20 So Jesse took a donkey loaded with bread, a skin of wine, and one young goat and sent them by his son David to Saul. [a] 21
When David came to Saul [b] and entered his service, Saul admired him greatly, and David became his armor-bearer. 22 Then Saul sent word to Jesse: “Let David remain in my service, for I am pleased with him.” 23 Whenever the spirit from God troubled Saul, [c] David would pick up his lyre and play, and Saul would then be relieved, feel better, and the evil spirit would leave him.

David versus Goliath

17 The Philistines [a] gathered their forces for war at Socoh in Judah and camped between Socoh [b] and Azekah [c] in Ephes-dammim. [d] 2 Saul and the men of Israel gathered and camped in the Valley of Elah; [e] then they lined up in battle formation to face the Philistines.
3 The Philistines were standing on one hill, and the Israelites were standing on another hill with a ravine between them. 4 Then a champion named Goliath, from Gath, [f] came out from the Philistine camp. He was nine feet, nine inches tall [g, A] 5 and wore a bronze helmet [B] and bronze scale armor that weighed 125 pounds. [C] 6 There was bronze armor on his shins, and a bronze sword [h] was slung between his shoulders. 7 His spear shaft [i] was like a weaver's beam, and the iron point of his spear weighed 15 pounds. [D] In addition, a shield-bearer [j] was walking in front of him.
8 He stood and shouted to the Israelite battle formations: "Why do you come out to line up in battle formation? " He asked them, "Am I not a Philistine and are you not servants of Saul? [k] Choose one of your men and have him come down against me. 9 If he wins in a fight against me and kills me, we will be your servants. But if I win against him and kill him, then you will be our servants and serve us." [l] 10 Then the Philistine said, "I defy the ranks of Israel today. [m] Send me a man so we can fight each other! " 11 When Saul and all Israel heard these words from the Philistine, they lost their courage and were terrified.
12 Now David was the son of the Ephrathite [n] from Bethlehem of Judah named Jesse. Jesse had eight sons [o] and during Saul's reign was already an old man. 13 Jesse's three oldest sons had followed Saul to the war, and their names [p] were Eliab, the firstborn, Abinadab, the next, and Shammah, the third, 14 and David was the youngest. [q] The three oldest had followed Saul, 15 but David kept going back and forth from Saul [r] to tend his father's flock in Bethlehem.
16 Every morning and evening for 40 days the Philistine came forward and took his stand. 17 One day Jesse had told his son David: "Take this half-bushel [E] of roasted grain along with these 10 loaves of bread [s] for your brothers and hurry to their camp. 18 Also take these 10 portions of cheese to the field commander. [F]
Check on the welfare of your brothers [t] and bring a confirmation from them. 19
They are with Saul and all the men of Israel in the Valley of Elah fighting with the Philistines."
20 So David got up early in the morning, left the flock with someone to keep it, loaded up, and set out as Jesse had instructed him.
He arrived at the perimeter of the camp [u] as the army was marching out to its battle formation shouting their battle cry. 21 Israel and the Philistines lined up in battle formation facing each other. 22 David left his supplies in the care of the quartermaster [v] and ran to the battle line. When he arrived, he asked his brothers how they were. 23 While he was speaking with them, suddenly the champion named Goliath, the Philistine from Gath, came forward from the Philistine battle line and shouted his usual words, [w] which David heard. 24 When all the Israelite men saw Goliath, they retreated from him terrified.

25 Previously, an Israelite man had declared: “Do you see this man who keeps coming out? He comes to defy Israel. The king will make the man who kills him very rich and will give him his daughter. [x] The king will also make the household of that man’s father exempt from paying taxes in Israel.” [y] 26 David spoke to the men who were standing with him: “What will be done for the man who kills that Philistine and removes this disgrace from Israel? [z] Just who is this uncircumcised Philistine [a] that he should defy the armies [b] of the living God? ” [c] 27 The people told him about the offer, concluding, “That is what will be done for the man who kills him.” [d] 28 David’s oldest brother Eliab listened as he spoke to the men, and became angry with him. [e] “Why did you come down here? ” he asked. “Who did you leave those few sheep with in the wilderness? I know your arrogance and your evil heart — you came down to see the battle! ” 29 “What have I done now? ” protested David. “It was just a question.”
30 Then he turned from those beside him to others in front of him and asked about the offer. The people gave him the same answer as before. [f] 31 What David said was overheard and reported to Saul, so he had David brought to him. 32 David said to Saul, “Don’t let anyone be discouraged by [G] him; [g] your servant will go [h] and fight this Philistine! ” 33 But Saul replied, “You can’t go fight this Philistine. You’re just a youth, and he’s been a warrior since he was young.”
34 David answered Saul: “Your servant has been tending his father’s sheep.
Whenever a lion or a bear came and carried off a lamb from the flock, 35 I went after it, struck it down, and rescued the lamb from its mouth. [i] If it reared up against me, I would grab it by its fur, [j] strike it down, and kill it. 36 Your servant has killed lions and bears; this uncircumcised Philistine will be like one of them, for he has defied the armies of the living God.” 37 Then David said, “The LORD who rescued me from the paw of the lion and the paw of the bear will rescue me from the hand of this Philistine.” [k]

Saul said to David, “Go, and may the LORD be with you.” [l]

38 Then Saul had his own military clothes put on David. He put a bronze helmet on David’s head and had him put on armor. 39 David strapped his sword on over the military clothes and tried to walk, but he was not used to them. “I can’t walk in these,” David said to Saul, “I’m not used to them.” So David took them off. 40 Instead, he took his staff in his hand [m] and chose five smooth stones from the •wadi and put them in the pouch, in his shepherd’s bag. Then, with his sling in his hand, he approached the Philistine.

41 The Philistine came closer and closer to David, with the shield-bearer in front of him. 42 When the Philistine looked and saw David, he despised him [n] because he was just a youth, healthy [H, o] and handsome. 43 He said to David, “Am I a dog [p] that you come against me with sticks? ” [q] Then he cursed David by his gods. [r] 44 “Come here,” the Philistine called to David, “and I’ll give your flesh to the birds of the sky and the wild beasts! ” [s]

45 David said to the Philistine: “You come against me with a dagger, spear, and sword, but I come against you in the name of •Yahweh of •Hosts , the God of Israel’s armies — you have defied Him. [t] 46 Today, the LORD will hand you over to me. Today, I’ll strike you down, cut your head off, and give the corpses [u] of the Philistine camp to the birds of the sky and the creatures of the earth.
Then all the world will know that Israel has a God, [v] 47 and this whole assembly will know that it is not by sword or by spear that the LORD saves, [w] for the battle is the LORD’s. [x] He will hand you over to us.”

48 When the Philistine started forward to attack him, David ran quickly to the battle line to meet the Philistine. [y] 49 David put his hand in the bag, took out a stone, slung it, and hit the Philistine on his forehead. The stone sank into his forehead, and he fell on his face to the ground. 50 David defeated the Philistine with a sling and a stone. Even though David had no sword, he struck down the Philistine and killed him. 51 David ran and stood over him. He grabbed the Philistine’s sword, [z] pulled it from its sheath, and used it to kill him. Then he cut off his head. When the Philistines saw that their hero was dead, they ran. [a] 52
The men of Israel and Judah rallied, shouting their battle cry, and chased the Philistines to the entrance of the valley and to the gates of Ekron. [b, c] Philistine bodies were strewn all along the Shaaraim road [d] to Gath and Ekron.

53 When the Israelites returned from the pursuit of the Philistines, they plundered their camps. 54 David took Goliath’s [I] head and brought it to Jerusalem, but he put Goliath's weapons in his own tent.

55 When [e] Saul had seen David going out to confront the Philistine, he asked Abner the commander of the army, "Whose son is this youth, Abner? " [f]

"My king, as surely as you live, I don't know," Abner replied.

56 The king said, "Find out whose son this young man is! "

57 When David returned from killing the Philistine, Abner took him and brought him before Saul with the Philistine's head still in his hand. [g] 58 Saul said to him, "Whose son are you, young man? "

"The son of your servant Jesse of Bethlehem," [h] David answered.

David's Success

18 When David had finished speaking with Saul, Jonathan committed himself to David, and loved him as much as he loved himself. [a] 2 Saul kept David with him from that day on and did not let him return to his father's house.
3 Jonathan made a covenant with David [b] because he loved him as much as himself. 4 Then Jonathan removed the robe he was wearing and gave it to David, [c] along with his military tunic, his sword, his bow, and his belt.
5 David marched out with the army and was successful in everything Saul sent him to do. Saul put him in command of the soldiers, which pleased all the people and Saul's servants as well.
6 As the troops were coming back, when David was returning from killing the Philistine, the women came out from all the cities of Israel to meet King Saul, [d] singing and dancing with tambourines, with shouts of joy, and with three-stringed instruments. 7 As they celebrated, the women sang:

Saul has killed his thousands,
but David his tens of thousands. [e]

8 Saul was furious and resented this song. [A] "They credited tens of thousands to David," he complained, "but they only credited me with thousands. What more can he have but the kingdom? " [f] 9 So Saul watched David jealously from that day forward.

Saul Attempts to Kill David 10 The next day an evil spirit sent from God took control of Saul, [g] and he began to rave [B] inside the palace. David was playing the lyre as usual, [h] but Saul was holding a spear, [i] 11 and he threw it, thinking,
"I'll pin David to the wall." [j] But David got away from him twice.
12 Saul was afraid of David, [k] because the LORD was with David [l] but had left Saul. [m] 13 Therefore, Saul reassigned David and made him commander over 1,000 men. David led the troops [n] 14 and continued to be successful in all his activities because the LORD was with him. [o] 15 When Saul observed that David was very successful, he dreaded him. 16 But all Israel and Judah loved David [p] because he was leading their troops. 17 Saul told David, "Here is my oldest daughter Merab. I'll give her to you as a wife, [q] if you will be a warrior for me and fight the LORD's battles." [r] But Saul was thinking, "My hand doesn't need to be against him; let the hand of the Philistines be against him." [s] 18 Then David responded, "Who am I, [t] and what is my family or my father's clan in Israel that I should become the king's son-in-law? " 19 When it was time to give Saul's daughter Merab to David, she was given to Adriel the Meholathite

as a wife. [u]

David's Marriage to Michal [20] Now Saul's daughter Michal [v] loved David, and when it was reported to Saul, it pleased him. [C] [21] "I'll give her to him," Saul thought. "She'll be a trap for him, and the hand of the Philistines will be against him." [w] So Saul said to David a second time, "You can now be my son-in-law." [x]

[22] Saul then ordered his servants, "Speak to David in private and tell him, 'Look, the king is pleased with you, and all his servants love you. Therefore, you should become the king's son-in-law.' "

[23] Saul's servants reported these words directly to David, [D] but he replied, "Is it trivial in your sight to become the king's son-in-law? I am a poor man who is common." [y]

[26] When the servants reported these terms to David, he was pleased [E] to become the king's son-in-law. Before the wedding day arrived, [F] [27] David and his men went out and killed 200 [c] Philistines. He brought their foreskins and presented them as full payment to the king to become his son-in-law. Then Saul gave his daughter Michal to David as his wife. [d] [28] Saul realized that the LORD was with David and that his daughter Michal loved him, [29] and he became even more afraid of David. As a result, Saul was David's enemy from then on.

[30] Every time the Philistine commanders came out to fight, [e] David was more successful than all of Saul's officers. [f] So his name became well known.

David Delivered from Saul

19 Saul ordered his son Jonathan and all his servants to kill David. [a] But Saul's son Jonathan liked David very much, [b] 2 so he told him: "My father Saul intends to kill you. Be on your guard in the morning and hide in a secret place and stay there. 3 I'll go out and stand beside my father in the field where you are and talk to him about you. When I see what he says, I'll tell you." [c]

4 Jonathan spoke well of David to his father Saul. He said to him: "The king should not sin against his servant David. [d] He hasn't sinned against you; in fact, his actions have been a great advantage to you. 5 He took his life in his hands when he struck down the Philistine, [e] and the LORD brought about a great victory for all Israel. [f] You saw it and rejoiced, so why would you sin against innocent blood by killing David for no reason? " [g]

6 Saul listened to Jonathan's advice and swore an oath: "As surely as the LORD lives, David will not be killed." 7 So Jonathan summoned David and told him all these words. Then Jonathan brought David to Saul, and he served him as he did before. [h]

8 When war broke out again, David went out and fought against the Philistines. He defeated them with such a great force that they fled from him.

9 Now an evil spirit sent from the LORD [i] came on Saul as he was sitting in his palace holding a spear. [j] David was playing the lyre, [k] 10 and Saul tried to pin David to the wall with the spear. [l] As the spear struck the wall, David eluded Saul, ran away, and escaped that night. 11 Saul sent agents to David's house to watch for him and kill him in the morning. [m] But his wife Michal [n] warned David, "If you don't escape tonight, you will be dead tomorrow! " 12 So she lowered David from the window, and he fled and escaped. [o] 13 Then Michal took the household idol and put it on the bed, placed some goat hair on its head, and covered it with a garment. 14 When Saul sent agents to seize David, Michal said, "He's sick." [p]

15 Saul sent the agents back to see David and said, "Bring him on his bed so I can kill him." 16 When the messengers arrived, to their surprise, the household idol was on the bed with some goat hair on its head.

17 Saul asked Michal, "Why did you deceive me like this? You sent my enemy away, and he has escaped! "

She answered him, "He said to me, 'Let me go! Why should I kill you? ' "

18 So David fled and escaped and went to Samuel at Ramah [q] and told him everything Saul had done to him. Then he and Samuel left and stayed at Naioth.
[r]

19 When it was reported to Saul that David was at Naioth in Ramah, 20 he sent agents to seize David. [s] However, when they saw the group of prophets prophesying [t] with Samuel leading them, the Spirit of God came on Saul's agents, and they also started prophesying. 21 When they reported to Saul, he sent other agents, and they also began prophesying. [u] So Saul tried again and sent a third group of agents, and even they began prophesying. 22 Then Saul himself went to Ramah. He came to the large cistern at Secu, looked around, and asked,
"Where are Samuel and David? "

"At Naioth in Ramah," someone said.

23 So he went to Naioth in Ramah. The Spirit of God also came on him, [v] and as he walked along, he prophesied until he entered Naioth in Ramah. 24 Saul then removed his clothes and also prophesied before Samuel; he collapsed and lay naked [w] all that day and all that night. That is why they say, "Is Saul also among the prophets? " [x]

Jonathan Protects David

20 David fled from Naioth in Ramah and came to Jonathan and asked, “What have I done? [a] What did I do wrong? How have I sinned against your father so that he wants to take my life? ”

2 Jonathan said to him, “No, you won’t die. Listen, my father doesn’t do anything, great or small, without telling me. [A] So why would he hide this matter from me? This can’t be true.”

3 But David said, “Your father certainly knows that you have come to look favorably on me. He has said, ‘Jonathan must not know of this, or else he will be grieved.’ ” David also swore, “As surely as the LORD lives and as you yourself live, there is but a step between me and death.” [b]

4 Jonathan said to David, “Whatever you say, I will do for you.”

5 So David told him, “Look, tomorrow is the New Moon, [c] and I’m supposed to sit down and eat with the king. [d] Instead, let me go, and I’ll hide in the field until the third night. [e] 6 If your father misses me at all, say, ‘David urgently requested my permission to quickly go to his town Bethlehem [f] for an annual sacrifice [g] there involving the whole clan.’ 7 If he says, ‘Good,’ then your servant is safe, but if he becomes angry, you will know he has evil intentions. 8 Deal faithfully with your servant, for you have brought me into a covenant with you before the LORD. [h] If I have done anything wrong, [i] then kill me yourself;
why take me to your father? ”

9 “No! ” Jonathan responded. “If I ever find out my father has evil intentions against you, wouldn’t I tell you about it? ”

10 So David asked Jonathan, “Who will tell me if your father answers you harshly? ”

11 He answered David, “Come on, let’s go out to the field.” So both of them went out to the field. 12 “By the LORD, the God of Israel, I will sound out my father by this time tomorrow or the next day. If I find out that he is favorable toward you, will I not send for you and tell you? [B] 13 If my father intends to bring evil on you, may God punish Jonathan and do so severely [j] if I do not tell you [C] and send you away so you may go in peace. May the LORD be with you, [k] just as He was with my father. 14 If I continue to live, treat me with the LORD’s faithful love, but if I die, 15 don’t ever withdraw your faithful love from my household — not even when the LORD cuts off every one of David’s enemies from the face of the earth.” [l] 16 Then Jonathan made a covenant with the house of David, [m] saying, “May the LORD hold David’s enemies accountable.” [D, n] 17 Jonathan once again swore to David [o] in his love for him, because he loved him

as he loved himself. [p]

18 Then Jonathan said to him, “Tomorrow is the New Moon; [q] you’ll be missed because your seat will be empty. 19 The following day hurry down and go to the place where you hid on the day this incident began and stay beside the rock Ezel. 20 I will shoot three arrows beside it as if I’m aiming at a target. 21
Then I will send the young man and say, ‘Go and find the arrows! ’ Now, if I expressly say to the young man, ‘Look, the arrows are on this side of you — get them,’ then come, because as the LORD lives, it is safe for you and there is no problem. 22 But if I say this to the youth: ‘Look, the arrows are beyond you! ’ [r] then go, for the LORD is sending you away. 23 As for the matter you and I have spoken about, [s] the LORD will be a witness [t] between you and me forever.” [u] 24 So David hid in the field.

At the New Moon, the king sat down to eat the meal. 25 He sat at his usual place on the seat by the wall. Jonathan sat facing him [v] and Abner took his place beside Saul, but David’s place was empty. [w] 26 Saul did not say anything that day because he thought, “Something unexpected has happened; he must be ceremonially •unclean — yes, that’s it, he is unclean.” [x]

27 However, the day after the New Moon, the second day, David’s place was still empty, and Saul asked his son Jonathan, “Why didn’t Jesse’s son come to the meal either yesterday or today? ”

28 Jonathan answered, “David asked for my permission to go to Bethlehem. [y] 29 He said, ‘Please let me go because our clan is holding a sacrifice in the town, and my brother has told me to be there. So now, if you are pleased with me, let me go so I can see my brothers.’ That’s why he didn’t come to the king’s table.”

30 Then Saul became angry with Jonathan and shouted, “You son of a perverse and rebellious woman! Don’t I know that you are siding with Jesse’s son to your own shame and to the disgrace of your mother? [E] 31 Every day Jesse’s son lives on earth you and your kingship are not secure. Now send for him and bring him to me — he deserves to die.” [z]

32 Jonathan answered his father back: “Why is he to be killed? What has he done? ” [a]

33 Then Saul threw his spear at Jonathan to kill him, [b] so he knew that his father was determined to kill David. [c] 34 He got up from the table in fierce anger and did not eat any food that second day of the New Moon, for he was grieved because of his father’s shameful behavior toward David.

35 In the morning Jonathan went out to the field for the appointed meeting with David. A small young man was with him. 36 He said to the young man,

“Run and find the arrows I’m shooting.” [d] As the young man ran, Jonathan shot an arrow beyond him. 37 He came to the location of the arrow that Jonathan had shot, but Jonathan called to him and said, “The arrow is beyond you, isn’t it? ” [e] 38 Then Jonathan called to him, “Hurry up and don’t stop! ” Jonathan’s young man picked up the arrow and returned to his master. 39 He did not know anything; only Jonathan and David knew the arrangement. 40 Then Jonathan gave his equipment to the young man who was with him and said, “Go, take it back to the city.”

41 When the young man had gone, David got up from the south side of the stone Ezel, fell with his face to the ground, and bowed three times. [f] Then he and Jonathan kissed each other and wept with each other, though David wept more.
[g]

42 Jonathan then said to David, “Go in the assurance the two of us pledged in the name of the LORD when we said: The LORD will be a witness between you and me and between my offspring and your offspring forever.” [h, i] Then David left, and Jonathan went into the city.

David Flees to Nob

21 David went to Ahimelech [a] the priest at Nob. [b] Ahimelech was afraid to meet David, so he said to him, “Why are you alone and no one is with you? ”

2 David answered Ahimelech the priest, “The king gave me a mission, but he told me, ‘Don’t let anyone know anything about the mission I’m sending you on or what I have ordered you to do.’ I have stationed my young men at a certain place. 3 Now what do you have on hand? Give me five loaves of bread or whatever can be found.”

4 The priest told him, “There is no ordinary bread on hand. However, there is consecrated bread, [c] but the young men may eat it [d] only if they have kept themselves from women.” [e]

5 David answered him, “I swear that women are being kept from us, as always when I go out to battle. [f] The young men’s bodies [A] are consecrated [g] even on an ordinary mission, so of course their bodies are consecrated today.” 6 So the priest gave him the consecrated bread, [h] for there was no bread there except the •bread of the Presence [i] that had been removed from the presence of the LORD.
When the bread was removed, it had been replaced with warm bread.

7 One of Saul’s servants, detained before the LORD, was there that day. His name was Doeg the Edomite, [j] chief of Saul’s shepherds.

8 David said to Ahimelech, “Do you have a spear or sword on hand? I didn’t even bring my sword or my weapons since the king’s mission was urgent.”

9 The priest replied, “The sword of Goliath the Philistine, [k] whom you killed in the Valley of Elah, is here, wrapped in a cloth behind the •ephod . If you want to take it for yourself, then take it, for there isn’t another one here.”

David Flees to Gath

10 David fled that day from Saul's presence and went to King Achish of Gath.
[l] 11 But Achish's servants said to him, "Isn't this David, the king of the land?
Don't they sing about him during their dances:

Saul has killed his thousands,
but David his tens of thousands? " [m]

12 David took this to heart [B] and became very afraid of King Achish of Gath, 13 so he pretended to be insane in their presence. [n] He acted like a madman around them, [C] scribbling [o] on the doors of the gate and letting saliva run down his beard.

14 "Look! You can see the man is crazy," Achish said to his servants. "Why did you bring him to me? 15 Do I have such a shortage of crazy people that you brought this one to act crazy around me? Is this one going to come into my house? " [p]

Saul's Increasing Paranoia

22 So David left Gath and took refuge in the cave of Adullam. [a] When David's brothers and his father's whole family heard, they went down and joined him there. [2] In addition, every man who was desperate, in debt, or discontented rallied around him, and he became their leader. About 400 men were with him. [b]

[3] From there David went to Mizpeh of Moab where he said to the king of Moab, "Please let my father and mother stay with you until I know what God will do for me." [4] So he left them in the care of the king of Moab, and they stayed with him the whole time David was in the stronghold.

[5] Then the prophet Gad [c] said to David, "Don't stay in the stronghold. Leave and return to the land of Judah." So David left and went to the forest of Hereth.

[6] Saul heard that David and his men had been discovered. At that time Saul was in Gibeah, sitting under the tamarisk tree [d] at the •high place. His spear was in his hand, and all his servants were standing around him. [7] Saul said to his servants, "Listen, men of Benjamin: Is Jesse's son going to give all of you fields and vineyards? Do you think he'll make all of you commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds? [e] [8] That's why all of you have conspired against me! Nobody tells me [A] when my own son makes a covenant with Jesse's son. [f] None of you cares about me [g] or tells me [B] that my son has stirred up my own servant to wait in ambush for me, as is the case today."

[9] Then Doeg the Edomite, [h] who was in charge of Saul's servants, answered: "I saw Jesse's son come to Ahimelech son of Ahitub at Nob. [i] [10] Ahimelech inquired of the LORD for him [j] and gave him provisions. [k] He also gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine." [l]

Slaughter of the Priests [11] The king sent messengers to summon Ahimelech the priest, son of Ahitub, and his father's whole family, who were priests in Nob. All of them came to the king. [12] Then Saul said, "Listen, son of Ahitub! "

"I'm at your service, [m] my lord," he said.

[13] Saul asked him, "Why did you and Jesse's son conspire against me? You gave him bread and a sword and inquired of God for him, so he could rise up against me and wait in ambush, as is the case today." [n]

[14] Ahimelech replied to the king: "Who among all your servants is as faithful as David? [o] He is the king's son-in-law, captain of your bodyguard, and honored in your house. [15] Was today the first time I inquired of God for him? [p] Of course not! Please don't let the king make an accusation against your servant or any of my father's household, for your servant didn't have any idea [C] about all this."

16 But the king said, "You will die, Ahimelech — you and your father's whole family! "

17 Then the king ordered the guards standing by him, "Turn and kill the priests of the LORD [q] because they sided with David. For they knew he was fleeing, but they didn't tell me." [D] But the king's servants would not lift a hand to execute the priests of the LORD.

18 So the king said to Doeg, "Go and execute the priests! " So Doeg the Edomite went and executed the priests himself. On that day, he killed 85 men [r] who wore linen •ephods . [s] 19 He also struck down Nob, the city of the priests, with the sword — both men and women, children and infants, oxen, donkeys, and sheep. [t]

20 However, one of the sons of Ahimelech son of Ahitub escaped. His name was Abiathar, [u] and he fled to David. [v] 21 Abiathar told David that Saul had killed the priests of the LORD. 22 Then David said to Abiathar, "I knew that Doeg the Edomite [w] was there that day and that he was sure to report to Saul. I myself am responsible for [x] the lives of everyone in your father's family. 23 Stay with me. Don't be afraid, for the one who wants to take my life wants to take your life. [y] You will be safe with me."

Deliverance at Keilah

23 It was reported to David: “Look, the Philistines are fighting against Keilah [a] and raiding the threshing floors.”

2 So David inquired of the Lord: [b] “Should I launch an attack against these Philistines? ”

The Lord answered David, “Launch an attack against the Philistines and rescue Keilah.”

3 But David’s men said to him, “Look, we’re afraid here in Judah; how much more if we go to Keilah against the Philistine forces! ”

4 Once again, David inquired of the Lord, and the Lord answered him: “Go at once to Keilah, for I will hand the Philistines over to you.” [c] 5 Then David and his men went to Keilah, fought against the Philistines, drove their livestock away, and inflicted heavy losses on them. So David rescued the inhabitants of Keilah. 6 Abiathar son of Ahimelech fled to David at Keilah, and he brought an •ephod with him.

7 When it was reported to Saul that David had gone to Keilah, he said, “God has handed him over to me, for he has trapped himself by entering a town with barred gates.” 8 Then Saul summoned all the troops to go to war at Keilah and besiege David and his men.

9 When David learned that Saul was plotting evil against him, he said to Abiathar the priest, [d] “Bring the ephod.” [e]

10 Then David said, “Lord God of Israel, Your servant has heard that Saul intends to come to Keilah and destroy the town because of me. 11 Will the citizens of Keilah hand me over to him? Will Saul come down as Your servant has heard? Lord God of Israel, please tell Your servant.”

The Lord answered, “He will come down.”

12 Then David asked, “Will the citizens of Keilah hand me and my men over to Saul? ”

“They will,” [f] the Lord responded.

13 So David and his men, numbering about 600, [g] left Keilah at once and moved from place to place. [h] When it was reported to Saul that David had escaped from Keilah, he called off the expedition. 14 David then stayed in the wilderness strongholds and in the hill country of the Wilderness of Ziph. [i] Saul searched for him every day, but God did not hand David over to him. [j]

A Renewed Covenant

15 David was in the Wilderness of Ziph in Horesh when he saw that Saul had come out to take his life. 16 Then Saul's son Jonathan came to David in Horesh and encouraged him in his faith in God, [k] 17 saying, "Don't be afraid, for my father Saul will never lay a hand on you. You yourself will be king over Israel, [l] and I'll be your second-in-command. Even my father Saul knows it is true." [m] 18
Then the two of them made a covenant in the LORD's presence. [n] Afterward, David remained in Horesh, while Jonathan went home.

David's Narrow Escape

19 Some Ziphites [o] came up to Saul at Gibeah and said, "David is [A] hiding among us in the strongholds in Horesh on the hill of Hachilah south of Jeshimon.
20 Now, whenever the king wants to come down, let him come down. Our part will be to hand him over to the king." [p]

21 "May you be blessed by the LORD," replied Saul, "for you have taken pity on me. [q] 22 Go and check again. Investigate and watch carefully where he goes [B] and who has seen him there; they tell me he is extremely cunning. 23 Look and find out all the places where he hides. Then come back to me with accurate information, and I'll go with you. If it turns out he really is in the region, I'll search for him among all the clans [C] of Judah." 24 So they went to Ziph ahead of Saul.

Now David and his men were in the wilderness near Maon [r] in the •Arabah south of Jeshimon, 25 and Saul and his men went to look for him. When David was told about it, he went down to the rock and stayed in the Wilderness of Maon. Saul heard of this and pursued David there.

26 Saul went along one side of the mountain and David and his men went along the other side. Even though David was hurrying to get away from Saul, Saul and his men were closing in on David and his men to capture them. [s] 27 Then a messenger came to Saul saying, "Come quickly, because the Philistines have raided the land! " 28 So Saul broke off his pursuit of David and went to engage the Philistines. Therefore, that place was named the Rock of Separation. 29 [t] From there David went up and stayed in the strongholds of En-gedi. [u]

David Spares Saul

24 When Saul returned from pursuing the Philistines, [a] he was told, “David is in the wilderness near En-gedi.” [b] 2 So Saul took 3,000 of Israel’s choice men [c] and went to look for David and his men in front of the Rocks of the Wild Goats. 3 When Saul came to the sheep pens along the road, a cave was there, and he went in to relieve himself. [A, d] David and his men were staying in the back of the cave, [e] 4 so they said to him, “Look, this is the day the Lord told you about:
‘I will hand your enemy over to you so you can do to him whatever you desire.’ ” Then David got up and secretly cut off the corner of Saul’s robe.

5 Afterward, David’s conscience bothered [B, f] him because he had cut off the corner of Saul’s robe. [g] 6 He said to his men, “I swear before the Lord: I would never do such a thing to my lord, the Lord’s anointed. [h] I will never lift my hand against him, since he is the Lord’s anointed.” [i] 7 With these words David persuaded [C] his men, and he did not let them rise up against Saul.

Then Saul left the cave and went on his way. 8 After that, David got up, went out of the cave, and called to Saul, “My lord the king! ” When Saul looked behind him, David bowed to the ground in homage. [j] 9 David said to Saul, “Why do you listen to the words of people who say, ‘Look, David intends to harm you’? 10 You can see with your own eyes that the Lord handed you over to me today in the cave. [k] Someone advised me to kill you, [l] but I [m, D] took pity on you and said: I won’t lift my hand against my lord, since he is the Lord’s anointed. 11 See, my father! [n] Look at the corner of your robe in my hand, for I cut it off, but I didn’t kill you. Look and recognize that there is no evil or rebellion in me. I haven’t sinned against you even though you are hunting me down to take my life. [o]

12 “May the Lord judge between you and me, and may the Lord take vengeance on you for me, but my hand will never be against you. [p] 13 As the old proverb says, ‘Wickedness comes from wicked people.’ [q] My hand will never be against you. 14 Who has the king of Israel come after? What are you chasing after? A dead dog? A flea? [r] 15 May the Lord be judge and decide between you and me. May He take notice and plead my case and deliver [E] me from you.” [s]

16 When David finished saying these things to him, Saul replied, “Is that your voice, David my son? ” [t] Then Saul wept aloud 17 and said to David, “You are more righteous than I, for you have done what is good to me though I have done what is evil to you. [u] 18 You yourself have told me today what good you did for me: when the Lord handed me over to you, you didn’t kill me. [v] 19 When a man finds his enemy, does he let him go unharmed? [F, w] May the Lord repay you with good for what you've done for me today.

20 "Now I know for certain you will be king, and the kingdom of Israel will be established G in your hand. x 21 Therefore swear to me by the LORD that you will not cut off my descendants or wipe out my name from my father's family." y 22 So David swore to Saul. Then Saul went back home, and David and his men went up to the stronghold. z

David, Nabal, and Abigail

25 Samuel died, [a] and all Israel assembled to mourn for him, [b] and they buried him by his home in Ramah. [c] David then went down to the Wilderness of Paran. [d, e]

2 A man in Maon [f] had a business in Carmel; [g] he was a very rich man with 3,000 sheep and 1,000 goats and was shearing his sheep in Carmel. 3 The man's name was Nabal, and his wife's name, Abigail. The woman was intelligent and beautiful, but the man, a Calebite, [h] was harsh and evil in his dealings.

4 While David was in the wilderness, he heard that Nabal was shearing sheep, 5 so David sent 10 young men instructing them, "Go up to Carmel, and when you come to Nabal, greet him in my name. [A] 6 Then say this: 'Long life to you, [B] and peace to you, to your family, and to all that is yours. [i] 7 I hear that you are shearing. [C] When your shepherds were with us, we did not harass them, and nothing of theirs was missing the whole time they were in Carmel. [j] 8 Ask your young men, and they will tell you. So let my young men find favor with you, for we have come on a feast [D] day. [k] Please give whatever you can afford to your servants and to your son David.' "

9 David's young men went and said all these things to Nabal on David's behalf, [E] and they waited. [l] 10 Nabal asked them, "Who is David? [m] Who is Jesse's son? Many slaves these days are running away from their masters. 11 Am I supposed to take my bread, my water, and my meat that I butchered for my shearers and give them to these men? I don't know where they are from."

12 David's men retraced their steps. When they returned to him, they reported all these words. 13 He said to his men, "All of you, put on your swords! " So David and all his men put on their swords. About 400 men followed David while 200 stayed with the supplies. [n]

14 One of Nabal's young men informed Abigail, Nabal's wife: "Look, David sent messengers from the wilderness to greet our master, [o] but he yelled at them.
15 The men treated us well. When we were in the field, we weren't harassed [p] and nothing of ours was missing the whole time we were living among them.
16 They were a wall around us, both day and night, [q] the entire time we were herding the sheep. 17 Now consider carefully what you must do, because there is certain to be trouble for our master and his entire family. He is such a worthless fool nobody can talk to him! "

18 Abigail hurried, taking 200 loaves of bread, two skins of wine, five butchered sheep, a bushel [F] of roasted grain, 100 clusters of raisins, and 200 cakes of pressed figs, and loaded them on donkeys. [r] 19 Then she said to her male servants, “Go ahead of me. I will be right behind you.” [s] But she did not tell her husband Nabal.

20 As she rode the donkey down a mountain pass hidden from view, she saw David and his men coming toward her and met them. 21 David had just said, “I guarded everything that belonged to this man in the wilderness for nothing. He was not missing anything, yet he paid me back evil for good. 22 May God punish me [t] and do so severely [u] if I let any of his men [G] survive until morning.” [v]

23 When Abigail saw David, she quickly got off the donkey and fell with her face to the ground in front of David. [w] 24 She fell at his feet and said, “The •guilt is mine, my lord, but please let your servant speak to you directly. Listen to the words of your servant. 25 My lord should pay no attention to this worthless man Nabal, for he lives up to his name: [H] His name is Nabal, [x] and stupidity is all he knows. [I] I, your servant, didn’t see my lord’s young men whom you sent. 26 Now my lord, as surely as the Lord lives and as you yourself live, it is the Lord who kept you from participating in bloodshed and avenging yourself [y] by your own hand. May your enemies and those who want trouble for my lord be like Nabal. [z] 27 Accept this gift [a] your servant has brought to my lord, and let it be given to the young men who follow my lord. 28 Please forgive your servant’s offense, [b] for the Lord is certain to make a lasting dynasty for my lord [c] because he fights the Lord’s battles. [d] Throughout your life, may evil [J] not be found in you. [e]

29 “When someone pursues you and attempts to take your life, my lord’s life will be tucked safely in the place [K] where the Lord your God protects the living. However, He will fling away your enemies’ lives like stones from a sling. [f] 30 When the Lord does for my lord all the good He promised and appoints you ruler over Israel, [g] 31 there will not be remorse or a troubled conscience for my lord because of needless bloodshed or my lord’s revenge. And when the Lord does good things for my lord, may you remember me your servant.” [h]

32 Then David said to Abigail, “Praise to the Lord God of Israel, [i] who sent you to meet me today! 33 Your discernment is blessed, and you are blessed. Today you kept me from participating in bloodshed and avenging myself by my own hand. [j] 34 Otherwise, as surely as the Lord God of Israel lives, who prevented me from harming you, if you had not come quickly to meet me, Nabal wouldn’t have had any men [L] left by morning light.” 35 Then David accepted what she had brought him and said, “Go home in peace. [k] See, I have heard what you said and have granted your request.” [l]

36 Then Abigail went to Nabal, and there he was in his house, holding a feast fit for a king. [m] Nabal was in a good mood [M] and very drunk, so she didn't say anything [N] to him [n] until morning light.
37 In the morning when Nabal sobered up, [O] his wife told him about these events. Then he had a seizure [P] and became paralyzed. [Q] 38 About 10 days later, the LORD struck Nabal dead. [o] 39 When David heard that Nabal was dead, he said, "Praise the LORD who championed my cause against Nabal's insults [p] and restrained His servant from doing evil. [q] The LORD brought Nabal's evil deeds back on his own head." [r] Then David sent messengers to speak to Abigail about marrying him. 40 When David's servants came to Abigail at Carmel, they said to her, "David sent us to bring you to him as a wife." 41 She stood up, then bowed her face to the ground [s] and said, "Here I am, your servant, to wash the feet of my lord's servants." [t] 42 Then Abigail got up quickly, and with her five female servants accompanying her, rode on the donkey following David's messengers. [u] And so she became his wife.
43 David also married Ahinoam of Jezreel, [v] and the two of them became his wives. 44 But Saul gave his daughter Michal, David's wife, to Palti [w] son of Laish, who was from Gallim. [x]

David Again Spares Saul

26 Then the Ziphites came to Saul at Gibeah saying, “David is hiding on the hill of Hachilah opposite Jeshimon.” [a] 2 So Saul, accompanied by 3,000 of the choice men of Israel, [b] went to the Wilderness of Ziph to search for David there. 3 Saul camped beside the road at the hill of Hachilah [c] opposite Jeshimon. David was living in the wilderness and discovered Saul had come there after him. [d] 4 So David sent out spies and knew for certain that Saul had come. 5 Immediately, David went to the place where Saul had camped. He saw the place where Saul and Abner son of Ner, [e] the general of his army, were lying down. Saul was lying inside the inner circle of the camp with the troops camped around him. 6 Then David asked Ahimelech the Hittite [f] and Joab’s brother Abishai [g] son of Zeruiah, “Who will go with me into the camp [h] to Saul? ”

“I’ll go with you,” answered Abishai.

7 That night, David and Abishai came to the troops, and Saul was lying there asleep in the inner circle of the camp with his spear stuck in the ground by his head. Abner and the troops were lying around him. 8 Then Abishai said to David, “Today God has handed your enemy over to you. Let me thrust the spear through him into the ground just once. I won’t have to strike him twice! ”

9 But David said to Abishai, “Don’t destroy him, for who can lift a hand against the LORD’s anointed and be blameless? ” [i] 10 David added, “As the LORD lives, the LORD will certainly strike him down: [j] either his day will come and he will die, or he will go into battle and perish. 11 However, because of the LORD, I will never lift my hand against the LORD’s anointed. [k] Instead, take the spear and the water jug by his head, and let’s go.”

12 So David took the spear and the water jug by Saul’s head, and they went their way. No one saw them, no one knew, and no one woke up; they all remained asleep because a deep sleep from the LORD [l] came over them. 13 David crossed to the other side and stood on top of the mountain at a distance; there was a considerable space between them. 14 Then David shouted to the troops and to Abner son of Ner: “Aren’t you going to answer, Abner? ”

“Who are you who calls to the king? ” Abner asked.

15 David called to Abner, “You’re a man, aren’t you? Who in Israel is your equal? So why didn’t you protect your lord the king when one of the people came to destroy him? 16 What you have done is not good. As the LORD lives, all of you deserve to die since you didn’t protect your lord, the LORD’s anointed. [m] Now look around; where are the king’s spear and water jug that were by his head? ”

17 Saul recognized David's voice and asked, "Is that your voice, my son David? " [n]

"It is my voice, my lord and king," David said. 18 Then he continued, "Why is my lord pursuing his servant? What have I done? What evil is in my hand? [o] 19 Now, may my lord the king please hear the words of his servant: If it is the LORD who has incited you against me, [p] then may He accept an offering. [q] But if it is people, [r] may they be cursed in the presence of the LORD, for today they have driven me away from sharing in the inheritance of the LORD saying, [s] 'Go and worship other gods.' 20 So don't let my blood fall to the ground far from the LORD's presence, for the king of Israel has come out to search for a flea, [t] like one who pursues a partridge in the mountains."

21 Saul responded, "I have sinned. [u] Come back, my son David, I will never harm you again because today you considered my life precious. I have been a fool! I've committed a grave error."

22 David answered, "Here is the king's spear; have one of the young men come over and get it. 23 May the LORD repay every man for his righteousness [v] and his loyalty. I wasn't willing to lift my hand against the LORD's anointed, even though the LORD handed you over to me today. [w] 24 Just as I considered your life valuable today, so may the LORD consider my life valuable [x] and rescue me from all trouble." [y]

25 Saul said to him, "You are blessed, my son David. You will certainly do great things and will also prevail." [z] Then David went on his way, and Saul returned home. [a]

David Flees to Ziklag

27 David said to himself, “One of these days I’ll be swept away by Saul.
There is nothing better for me than to escape immediately to the land of the Philistines. [a] Then Saul will stop searching for me everywhere in Israel, and I’ll escape from him.” 2 So David set out with his 600 men [b] and went to Achish son of Maoch, [c] the king of Gath. 3 David and his men stayed with Achish in Gath. Each man had his family with him, [d] and David had his two wives:
Ahinoam of Jezreel and Abigail of Carmel, [e] Nabal’s widow. 4 When it was reported to Saul that David had fled to Gath, he no longer searched for him.

5 Now David said to Achish, “If I have found favor with you, let me be given a place in one of the outlying towns, so I can live there. Why should your servant live in the royal city with you? ” 6 That day Achish gave Ziklag [f] to him, and it still belongs to the kings of Judah today. 7 The time that David stayed in the Philistine territory amounted to a year and four months. [g]

8 David and his men went up and raided the Geshurites, [h] the Girzites, [i] and the Amalekites. [j] From ancient times they had been the inhabitants of the region through Shur [k] as far as the land of Egypt. 9 Whenever David attacked the land, he did not leave a single person alive, either man or woman, but he took flocks, herds, donkeys, camels, and clothing. [l] Then he came back to Achish, 10 who inquired, “Where did you raid today? ” [m, n]

David replied, “The south country of Judah,” “The south country of the Jerahmeelites,” [o] or “Against the south country of the Kenites.” [p]

11 David did not let a man or woman live to be brought to Gath, for he said, “Or they will inform on us and say, ‘This is what David did.’ ” This was David’s custom during the whole time he stayed in the Philistine territory. 12 So Achish trusted David, thinking, “Since he has made himself detestable to his people Israel, he will be my servant forever.”

Saul and the Medium

28 At that time, the Philistines [a] brought their military units together into one army to fight against Israel. So Achish said to David, “You know, of course, that you and your men must march out in the army [b] with me.”

2 David replied to Achish, “Good, you will find out what your servant can do.”

So Achish said to David, “Very well, I will appoint you as my permanent bodyguard.” [c]

3 By this time Samuel had died, [d] and all Israel had mourned for him and buried him in Ramah, his city, [e] and Saul had removed the mediums and spiritists from the land. [f] 4 The Philistines came together and camped at Shunem. So Saul gathered all Israel, and they camped at Gilboa. 5 When Saul saw the Philistine camp, he was afraid and trembled violently. 6 He inquired of the Lord, but the Lord did not answer him in dreams or by the •Urim or by the prophets. [g] 7 Saul then said to his servants, “Find me a woman who is a medium, so I can go and consult her.”

His servants replied, “There is a woman at En-dor [h] who is a medium.” [i]

8 Saul disguised himself [j] by putting on different clothes and set out with two of his men. They came to the woman at night, and Saul said, “Consult a spirit for me. [k] Bring up for me the one I tell you.” [l]

9 But the woman said to him, “You surely know what Saul has done, [m] how he has killed the mediums and spiritists in the land. Why are you setting a trap for me to get me killed? ”

10 Then Saul swore to her by the Lord: “As surely as the Lord lives, nothing bad will happen to you because of this.”

11 “Who is it that you want me to bring up for you? ” the woman asked.

“Bring up Samuel for me,” he answered.

12 When the woman saw Samuel, she screamed, and then she asked Saul, “Why did you deceive me? You are Saul! ”

13 But the king said to her, “Don’t be afraid. What do you see? ”

“I see a spirit form [A] coming up out of the earth,” the woman answered.

14 Then Saul asked her, “What does he look like? ”

“An old man is coming up,” she replied. “He’s wearing a robe.” [n] Then Saul knew that it was Samuel, and he bowed his face to the ground and paid homage. [o]

15 “Why have you disturbed me by bringing me up? ” Samuel asked Saul.

“I’m in serious trouble,” replied Saul. “The Philistines are fighting against me and God has turned away from me. [p] He doesn’t answer me anymore, [q] either through the prophets or in dreams. So I’ve called on you to tell me what I should do.”

16 Samuel answered, “Since the Lord has turned away from you and has become your enemy, why are you asking me? 17 The Lord has done [r] exactly what He said through me: The Lord has torn the kingship out of your hand and given it to your neighbor David. [s] 18 You did not obey the Lord and did not carry out His burning anger against Amalek; [t] therefore the Lord has done this to you today. 19 The Lord will also hand Israel over to the Philistines along with you. Tomorrow you and your sons will be with me, [u,] [v] and the Lord will hand Israel’s army over to the Philistines.”
20 Immediately, Saul fell flat on the ground. He was terrified by Samuel’s words and was also weak because he hadn’t had any food all day and all night.
21 The woman came over to Saul, and she saw that he was terrified and said to him, “Look, your servant has obeyed you. I took my life in my hands [w] and did what you told me to do. 22 Now please listen to your servant. Let me set some food in front of you. Eat and it will give you strength so you can go on your way.”
23 He refused, saying, “I won’t eat,” but when his servants and the woman urged him, he listened to them. [x] He got up off the ground and sat on the bed. [y] 24 The woman had a fattened calf at her house, and she quickly slaughtered it.
[z] She also took flour, kneaded it, and baked unleavened bread. 25 She served it to Saul and his servants, and they ate. Afterward, they got up and left that night.

Philistines Reject David

29 The Philistines [a] brought all their military units together at Aphek [b] while Israel was camped by the spring in Jezreel. [c] 2 As the Philistine leaders were passing in review with their units of hundreds and thousands, David and his men [d] were passing in review behind them with Achish. 3 Then the Philistine commanders asked, “What are these Hebrews doing here? ”

Achish answered the Philistine commanders, “That is David, servant of King Saul of Israel. He has been with me a considerable period of time. [A] From the day he defected until today, I’ve found no fault with him.” [e]

4 The Philistine commanders, however, were enraged with Achish and told him, “Send that man back and let him return to the place you assigned him. [f] He must not go down with us into battle only to become our adversary during the battle. [g] What better way could he regain his master’s favor than with the heads of our men? 5 Isn’t this the David they sing about during their dances:

Saul has killed his thousands,
but David his tens of thousands? ” [h]

6 So Achish summoned David and told him, “As the LORD lives, you are an honorable man. I think it is good [B] to have you working [C] with me in the camp, because I have found no fault in you from the day you came to me until today. [i]
But the leaders don’t think you are reliable. 7 Now go back quietly and you won’t be doing anything the Philistine leaders think is wrong.”

8 “But what have I done? ” [j] David replied to Achish. “From the first day I was with you until today, what have you found against your servant to keep me from going along to fight against the enemies of my lord the king? ”

9 Achish answered David, “I’m convinced that you are as reliable as the Angel of God. [k] But the Philistine commanders have said, ‘He must not go into battle with us.’ [l] 10 So get up early in the morning, you and your masters’ servants who came with you. [m, n] When you’ve all gotten up early, go as soon as it’s light.” 11 So David and his men got up early in the morning to return to the land of the Philistines. And the Philistines went up to Jezreel.

David's Defeat of the Amalekites

30 David and his men [a] arrived in Ziklag [b] on the third day. The Amalekites [c] had raided the •Negev and attacked and burned down Ziklag. 2 They also had kidnapped the women and everyone [d] in it from the youngest to the oldest.
They had killed no one but had carried them off [e] as they went on their way.
3 When David and his men arrived at the town, they found it burned down.
Their wives, sons, and daughters had been kidnapped. 4 David and the troops with him wept loudly until they had no strength left to weep. 5 David's two wives, [f] Ahinoam the Jezreelite and Abigail the widow of Nabal the Carmelite, had also been kidnapped. 6 David was in a difficult position because the troops talked about stoning him, [g] for they were all very bitter over the loss of their sons and daughters. But David found strength in the LORD his God. [h] 7 David said to Abiathar the priest, son of Ahimelech, "Bring me the •ephod
." [i] So Abiathar brought it to him, 8 and David asked the LORD: [j] "Should I pursue these raiders? Will I overtake them? " [k]
The LORD replied to him, "Pursue them, for you will certainly overtake them and rescue the people." [l] 9 David and the 600 men with him [m] went as far as the •Wadi Besor, where 200 men who were to remain behind would stop. [n] 10 They stopped because they were too exhausted to cross the Wadi Besor. David and 400 of the men
11 They found an Egyptian in the open country and brought him to David.
They gave him some bread to eat and water to drink. 12 Then they gave him some pressed figs and two clusters of raisins. After he ate he revived, [o] for he hadn't eaten food or drunk water for three days and three nights.
13 Then David said to him, "Who do you belong to? Where are you from? "
"I'm an Egyptian, the slave of an Amalekite man," he said. "My master abandoned me when I got sick three days ago. 14 We raided the south country of the Cherethites, [p] the territory of Judah, and the south country of Caleb, [q] and we burned down Ziklag." [r]
15 David then asked him, "Will you lead me to these raiders? "
He said, "Swear to me by God that you won't kill me or turn me over to my master, and I will lead you to them." 16 So he led him, and there were the Amalekites, spread out over the entire area, eating, drinking, and celebrating because of the great amount of plunder [s] they had taken from the land of the Philistines and the land of Judah. 17 David slaughtered them from twilight until the evening of the next day. [t] None of them escaped, except 400 young men who got on camels and fled. [u]

18 David recovered everything the Amalekites had taken; he also rescued his two wives. 19 Nothing of theirs was missing from the youngest to the oldest, including the sons and daughters, of all the plunder the Amalekites had taken. David got everything back. [v] 20 He took all the sheep and cattle, which were driven ahead of the other livestock, and the people shouted, "This is David's plunder! " [w]

21 When David came to the 200 men who had been too exhausted to go with him and had been left at the Wadi Besor, [x] they came out to meet him and to meet the troops with him. When David approached the men, he greeted them, 22 but all the corrupt and •worthless men among those who had gone with David argued, "Because they didn't go with us, we will not give any of the plunder we recovered to them except for each man's wife and children. They may take them and go."

23 But David said, "My brothers, you must not do this with what the LORD has given us. He protected us and handed over to us the raiders who came against us. 24 Who can agree to your proposal? The share of the one who goes into battle is to be the same as the share of the one who remains with the supplies. They will share equally." [y] 25 And it has been so from that day forward. David established this policy as a law and an ordinance for Israel and it continues to this very day.

26 When David came to Ziklag, he sent some of the plunder to his friends, the elders of Judah, saying, "Here is a gift for you [z] from the plunder of the LORD's enemies." [a] 27 He sent gifts to those in Bethel, [b] in Ramoth of the Negev, [c] and in Jattir; [d] 28 to those in Aroer, [e] in Siphmoth, [f] and in Eshtemoa; [g] 29 to those in Racal, in the towns of the Jerahmeelites, [h] and in the towns of the Kenites; [i] 30 to those in Hormah, [j] in Bor-ashan, [k] and in Athach; 31 to those in Hebron, [l] and to those in all the places where David and his men had roamed. [m]

The Death of Saul and His Sons

31 The Philistines fought against Israel, [a] and Israel's men fled from them.
Many were killed on Mount Gilboa. [b] 2 The Philistines overtook Saul and his sons and killed his sons, Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malchishua. 3 When the battle intensified against Saul, [c] the archers caught up with him and severely wounded him. [d] 4 Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, [e] "Draw your sword and run me through with it, or these uncircumcised men [f] will come and run me through and torture me." But his armor-bearer would not do it because he was terrified. Then Saul took his sword and fell on it. [g] 5 When his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his own sword and died with him. 6 So on that day, Saul died together with his three sons, his armor-bearer, and all his men.

7 When the men of Israel on the other side of the valley and on the other side of the Jordan saw that Israel's men had run away and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned the cities and fled. So the Philistines came and settled in them.

8 The next day when the Philistines came to strip the dead, they found Saul and his three sons dead on Mount Gilboa. 9 They cut off Saul's head, stripped off his armor, and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines to spread the good news [h] in the temples of their idols [i] and among the people. 10
Then they put his armor in the temple of the •Ashtoreths [j] and hung his body [k] on the wall of Beth-shan. [l]

11 When the residents of Jabesh-gilead [m] heard what the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 all their brave men [n] set out, journeyed all night, and retrieved the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons from the wall of Beth-shan. When they arrived at Jabesh, they burned the bodies there. [o] 13 Afterward, they took their bones and buried them under the tamarisk tree [p] in Jabesh [q] and fasted seven days.

1 SAMUEL

Introduction

Valley of Elah where David killed the Philistine, Goliath (1Sm 17:2,19) The books of 1 and 2 Samuel highlight a significant transition time in Israel's history. As 1 Samuel begins, Israel is a loosely organized tribal league living under poor spiritual leadership. God's plan for His people nonetheless continued as He raised up Samuel to guide Israel's transition from a theocracy to a monarchy. Saul's kingship constitutes the remainder of 1 Samuel, while David's kingship is largely the focus of 2 Samuel.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Early tradition suggests 1 and 2 Samuel were originally one book. Some scholars believe Samuel was largely responsible for the material up to 1 Samuel 25, and that the prophets Nathan and Gad gave significant input to the rest (based on 1Ch 29:29). This proposal, however, must remain speculative because the books name no authors. First Samuel 27:6 suggests the book was not completed until perhaps a few generations after the division of the kingdom around 930 B.C.

Background: After Israel's conquest of the land during the days of Joshua, Israel entered a time of apostasy. The book of Judges describes recurrences of a cycle with predictable phases. First, the people sinned against the Lord and fell into idolatry. Second, the Lord raised up an adversary to afflict them and turn them back to Him. Third, the people cried out to the Lord in repentance. Fourth, the Lord brought deliverance for them through a judge whom He raised up. The book of Judges' famous verse, "In those days there was no king in Israel; everyone did whatever he wanted" (Jdg 21:25), aptly describes the period. The book of 1 Samuel picks up the historical record toward the end of those stormy days.

Message and Purpose Leadership: The books of 1 and 2 Samuel provide numerous examples of good and bad leadership. When leaders focused their attention on the Lord and saw their leadership roles as instruments for His glory, they flourished; when they abandoned the Lord and used their offices for their own gain, they failed. The lives of Eli and his sons, plus the lives of Samuel, Saul, David, and others consistently illustrate these principles.

God's sovereignty: The books of 1 and 2 Samuel highlight God's provision at Israel's every turn. He provided good spiritual leadership through Samuel, and He provided Israel its first king, though kingship was not His perfect will for His people at that time. He provided His people the leaders and resources they needed to defeat their enemies and to live out His purpose in the land, though both people and leaders often failed Him.

Sin's consequences: The books of 1 and 2 Samuel take sin seriously, describing in detail the awful consequences of sin—even forgiven sin. Saul's disobedience of God led to his estrangement from his son Jonathan and from David, and ultimately led to his death in battle. David's sin with Bathsheba, though forgiven, brought consequences that haunted David the rest of his life.

Covenant: The books of 1 and 2 Samuel describe God's relationship with His covenant people and His faithful response to the terms of that covenant. The Lord also established a special covenant with David, a covenant that ultimately would find its fulfillment in the Lord Jesus Christ.

Contribution to the Bible The books of 1 and 2 Samuel describe Israel's transition from a loosely organized tribal league under God (a theocracy) to centralized leadership under a king who answered to God (a monarchy). Samuel's life and ministry greatly shaped this period of restructuring as he consistently pointed people back to God.

Saul's rule highlighted the dangers to which the Israelites fell victim as they clamored for a king to lead them. Samuel's warnings fell on deaf ears (1Sm 8:10-20) because God's people were intent on becoming like the nations around them. In the end, they got exactly what they asked for, but they paid a terrible price. Saul's life stands as a warning to trust God's timing for life's provisions.

David's rule testified to the amazing works the Lord could and would do through a life yielded to Him. Israel's second king seemed quite aware of God's blessing on his life and displayed a tender heart toward the things of God (2Sm

5:12; 7:1-2; 22:1-51; 23:1-7). Later generations would receive blessing because of David's life (Is 37:35). God's special covenant with David (2Sm 7:1-29) found its ultimate fulfillment in Jesus, the son of David (Lk 1:32-33). The consequences of David's sin with Bathsheba, however, stand as a warning to all who experience sin's attraction. God holds His children accountable for their actions, and even forgiven sin can have terrible consequences.

Structure The first seven chapters of 1 Samuel describe Samuel's birth, call, and initial ministry among the Israelites. Chapter 8 is a major turning point as the people ask for a king to rule them "the same as all the other nations have" (1Sm 8:5). Chapters 9-12 then describe Saul's selection—at God's direction, yet not His perfect will for the time (1Sm 12:16-18).

First Samuel 13-31 describes Saul's victories and failures. Saul was a king with great physical stature and military skill (1Sm 14:47-52), but his heart was not one with the Lord (1Sm 13:14). His unwillingness to obey the Lord's commands ultimately outweighed his accomplishments, and chapters 16-31 describe his reign's downward spiral. During this time God raised up David and was preparing him for the day he would succeed Saul—a fact Saul gradually realized (1Sm 15:28; 24:20-21; 28:17).

Second Samuel 1-4 describes the struggle for Israel's throne that began with Saul's death. David was anointed king by the men of Judah (2Sm 2:4), but Abner anointed Ish-bosheth, Saul's oldest surviving son, as king over Israel (2Sm 2:8-9). A two-year civil war resulted in Ish-bosheth's death and in David's becoming king over all Israel.

Second Samuel 5-24 presents highlights of David's reign. God established a special covenant with David, promising to establish the throne of his kingdom forever (2Sm 7:1-29). David's sin with Bathsheba, however, brought disastrous consequences to his reign and became a turning point in 2 Samuel. In the end, David's repentance confirmed his designation as a man after God's heart, but his sin showed that even the king is not above God's laws.

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 The exact location of Ramathaim-zophim is not known, but it is distinct from Ramah, located in the tribal territory of Benjamin (v. 19). It probably designates Elkanah’s ancestral home. The name Elkanah means “God has acquired.” Ephraimite denotes Elkanah’s place of residence, not his tribal background, which was that of Levi (1Ch 6:25-28).

1:2 The name Hannah means “grace.” She was childless, a condition often viewed with disfavor or even anguish (Gn 16:4-5; 30:1; Lk 1:24-25).

1:3 Shiloh was centrally located about 30 miles north of Jerusalem. It was the place from which Joshua divided the land among the tribes (Jos 18:1-10).

1:5 The double portion was the amount of the inheritance the firstborn received (Dt 21:17). Here it probably denotes Elkanah’s special love for Hannah.

The words the LORD had kept her from conceiving is literally, “Yahweh had closed her womb” (cp. v. 6).

1:6 The rivalry between Hannah and Peninnah finds parallels in the accounts of Sarah and Hagar (Gn 16:4-5) and Leah and Rachel (Gn 30:14-16).

1:10 The words deeply hurt can be more literally rendered “bitter of soul,” using the same Hebrew word that Naomi used (mara; Ru 1:20).

1:11 If God would give Hannah a son, she vowed to give him back to God according to the law of the Nazirite (Nm 6:1-21).

1:12-14 Eli misread Hannah’s anguish as drunkenness and scolded her for her apparent disregard of the holy place.

1:15-16 Hannah immediately clarified the situation with Eli. The depth (lit “abundance”) of Hannah’s anguish and resentment over her situation had come to the surface.

1:18 The Hebrew word for favor with which Hannah replied was a shortened form of her own name.

1:19 Ramah lay along the major north-south highway five miles north of Jerusalem in the territory of Benjamin. The tender words the LORD remembered her remind the reader that ultimately it is God who brings new life within the womb. In the OT, to “remember” means not simply to think about someone but to act on their behalf (see note at Gn 8:1).

1:20 The name Samuel may be a wordplay meaning “requested from God.” A second possibility is the meaning “heard by God.”

1:21 The expression annual sacrifice literally means “sacrifice of the days” and probably designates one of the three required festivals—Passover, the Festival of Weeks, or the Festival of Booths (Dt 16:16). The word vow may denote a separate vow that Elkanah had made, or perhaps it designates Hannah’s vow that Elkanah then shared with her when he heard of it (Nm 30:10-15).

1:22 The apocryphal book of 2 Maccabees (7:27) suggests Israelite children were weaned at around age three, a custom not unusual in societies where homes lacked running water and where the purity of drinking water was difficult to maintain.

1:23 The Hebrew verb translated confirm literally means “cause to stand.” Elkanah wanted God’s blessing to remain on the young boy Samuel.

1:24 The Masoretic Text, overall the most reliable Hebrew manuscript tradition, reads “three bulls” here. The HCSB adopted three-year-old bull because of the reference to a single bull in verse 25 and because of the testimony of other early manuscripts. If the Masoretic Text is correct, however, it may be that the one bull constituted Elkanah’s sacrifice of thanksgiving for Samuel’s birth, while the other two were part of his usual sacrifice, and hence were not mentioned in verse 25.

1:25 On bull, see note at verse 24.

1:26-27 Hannah thought it important to testify to Eli, Israel's high priest, how God had answered her prayer.

1:28 The Hebrew words translated give and given are related to the Hebrew word for "requested," which also has to do with the meaning of Samuel's name (v. 20). They literally mean "to give over" or "to grant" what was requested. Hannah had received the son she requested; she now grants him to the LORD for His service.

2:1 A lifted up horn provides a picture of a proud animal with its head held high. Enemies may allude to Peninnah (1:6-7) and perhaps to others who had spoken cruelly to Hannah during her time of barrenness.

2:2 The twofold occurrence of no one emphasizes God's uniqueness. Rock denotes an immovable, jutting cliff, not a mere stone. This word commonly occurs in the Bible to describe God's support and defense of His people (Ps 18:2; 95:1; Is 44:8).

2:3 Arrogant words might come from people who did not realize God's ways were higher than theirs (Is 55:8-9).

2:4 Warriors are broken . . . feeble are clothed. These images are not surprising from God's perspective, where poor become rich and rich become poor (2Co 8:9; Jms 2:5), the first become last and the last first (Mt 19:30; 20:16), and those who seek to save their lives lose them while others who willingly lose their lives gain life (Lk 9:24-25).

2:5 Full . . . starving . . . childless . . . many sons. As in verse 4, life often brings unexpected turnabouts, especially since the Lord can intervene to overrule the expected.

2:6-7 God is sovereign; nothing happens apart from His control.

2:8 The argument of this verse is from the greater to the lesser; if God controls the earth's foundations, He controls the status of its citizens.

2:9 The Lord not only sees people's actions, but He knows His faithful ones (cp. Nah 1:7) and the hearts of the wicked, and He blesses or judges them accordingly.

2:10 The Hebrew word behind oppose has a legal connotation; no one has a case against the LORD. The mention of God's king and His anointed may anticipate the establishment of the kingship in Israel. Some interpreters have suggested that Hannah spoke prophetically of God's everlasting kingdom under the Messiah.

2:11 The term served is not used of slaves, and it often denotes a higher level of service (Jos 1:1), including priestly service (Dt 10:8; 1Kg 8:11).

2:12 The phrase wicked men means literally "sons of worthlessness." The expression commonly denotes morally corrupt individuals; Hannah used the feminine form of the expression as she implored Eli not to consider her a daughter of worthlessness (1:16). Had no regard for means literally "did not know."

2:13-14 The priests' share of the sacrifices was specifically prescribed in the law of Moses (Lv 7:32-34). A three-pronged meat fork was nowhere stipulated; rather, Eli's sons were making their own rules for sacrifice, presumably to secure more for themselves.

2:15-16 The fat was the Lord's portion of the sacrifice (Lv 3:3-5). The text implies Eli's sons were also eating the fat of the sacrificial animals. The warning that the fat must be burned first—a warning that went unheeded—indicates the common people had a greater moral conscience than Eli's sons did.

2:17 The Hebrew verb translated treated . . . with contempt indicates strong displeasure or disdain; it also would later describe David's sin with Bathsheba (2Sm 12:14). It is often translated "despise" (Nm 14:11; Is 1:4; 5:24).

2:18 On served, see note at verse 11. Samuel's linen ephod was a vest-like garment that priests or the high priest wore (Ex 28:6-13). It contained special embroidery and 12 stones as a visible reminder of Israel's 12 tribes.

2:19 The little robe that Hannah made for Samuel may be linked with the one prescribed for the priests (Ex 28:31; Lv 8:7). Samuel was gone from Hannah's home but not from her heart.

2:20 The one she has given is literally "request she requested" or "grant she granted" (cp. 1:28), and it reinforces the special nature of Samuel's birth and dedication.

2:21 The Lord paid attention to Hannah's need is literally "Yahweh visited Hannah." The same Hebrew expression occurs in reference to Abraham's wife Sarah when she conceived Isaac, another child of promise (Gn 21:1). Hannah is abundantly blessed, but her three sons and two daughters are nonetheless contrasted with the boy Samuel, who grew up in the presence of the LORD.

2:22 The words very old probably hint at Eli's lack of strength to stop his sons from their sins, which the text now mentions also included sexual immorality.

2:25 In a dispute between two men, God might intercede, but if someone's sin was directly against the LORD, no intercession was possible—only condemnation. The words since the LORD intended to kill them reveal that much like Pharaoh in Moses' day (Ex 4:21; 5:2; 7:13), the persistent unbelief of Hophni and Phinehas led to God's giving them over to judgment.

2:26 The phrase grew in stature and in favor with the LORD and with men is strikingly similar to the description of Jesus as a child (Lk 2:52).

2:27 Ancestral house . . . in Egypt recalls God's choice of Aaron (Ex 4:14-16).

2:28 The responsibilities listed were strictly limited to the priests, whom the law of Moses designated as the sons of Aaron (Ex 28:1-5; Lv 8-9).

2:30 With the words no longer, God indicated that He had not set aside His promise to Aaron's line. The words I will honor those who honor Me reveal that God had judged Eli's house unfit to serve as priests among Aaron's sons.

2:31-32 God in His grace did not destroy Eli's house, but drastically reduced its strength.

2:34 As the chief sinners, Hophni and Phinehas would be the first to die—and on the same day.

2:35 Some suggest Samuel is intended by the phrase a faithful priest, but Samuel did not have a lasting dynasty (8:1-5). The term may denote the priestly line of Zadok, who eventually succeeded Eli's line (1Kg 2:27), or any and all priests who followed the Lord faithfully. My anointed one designates the line of David, for whom God also built a lasting dynasty (2Sm 7:11-16).

2:36 This verse suggests that Eli's descendants would not even partake of the sacrificial portions reserved for the priests (Lv 2:3; 5:13; 7:7-10).

3:1 On served, see note at 2:11. Prophetic visions were not widespread because of the general corruption of the time. God might withhold His word from people who showed by their conduct they did not want to receive it.

3:3 The lamp of God was to burn from evening until morning (Ex 27:21), so the wording suggests a time just before dawn.

3:4-6 When the LORD called Samuel, the youth confused the voice with that of Eli.

3:7 The text now gives a reason why Samuel did not recognize God's call—no prior vision or voice had come to him.

3:8 After the third time, Eli surmised that Samuel might be hearing God's voice. Perhaps no one else was present in the tabernacle complex.

3:9 Eli's suggested words to Samuel, Speak, LORD , for Your servant is listening, provide a model prayer for those who seek to follow God's will.

3:10 The twofold Samuel, Samuel may indicate urgency, as it did with Abraham on Mount Moriah (Gn 22:11), with Moses at the burning bush (Ex 3:4), or with Saul of Tarsus on the road to Damascus (Ac 9:4).

3:11 The phrase everyone who hears about it will shudder means literally "the two ears of everyone who hears about it will tingle (or ring or quiver)," indicating a response to a horrific report (2Kg 21:12; Jr 19:3).

3:13 Eli did try to stop his sons (2:23-25), but apparently his words came after he had let their abuses continue too long.

3:14 The phrase wiped out might be translated “atoned for.”

3:15 Samuel was afraid to tell Eli the vision, probably because Eli had served as Samuel’s guardian and mentor and Samuel did not want to bring him bad news.

3:16-17 Eli’s words sound harsh, but they were probably intended to encourage Samuel to share the full details of his revelation. This was the standard form of an oath (cp. 2Sm 3:35).

3:18 The Lord’s word to Samuel confirmed the earlier word that Eli had received from the man of God (2:27-36).

3:20 The cities of Dan and Beer-sheba essentially marked the northern and southern borders of Israel, respectively, spanning a distance of about 110 miles (2Sm 3:10; 24:2).

3:21 Samuel had demonstrated a willingness to receive and follow God’s word, so the LORD continued to appear in Shiloh, whereas He had not done so during the unfaithfulness of Eli’s day (v. 1).

4:1 The Philistines migrated to the Judean coastline during the twelfth century B.C. and began threatening Israel during the days of the judges (chaps. 13-16). The Israelites camped at Ebenezer about 20 miles west of Shiloh, while the Philistines camped at Aphek across the plain to the west. Israel’s enemies had pushed far north from their home along Israel’s southern coastline and now threatened the central territory.

4:3 Why did the LORD let us be defeated? is literally “Why did the Lord strike us?” The people associated the ark of the LORD ’s covenant (Ex 25:10-22) with God’s presence, and they assumed taking the ark into battle would guarantee victory over their enemies. This is the equivalent of trying to manipulate God through a magical talisman.

4:4 The phrase dwells between the cherubim is a reference to God’s dwelling in the cloud over the mercy seat of the ark (Lv 16:2). Ironically, despite their priestly office, Hophni and Phinehas were probably the two least worthy individuals to carry the ark.

4:5 The loud shout as the ark . . . entered the camp further emphasizes the Israelites’ incorrect association of God’s presence with the ark. God’s blessing did not automatically come because of the ark’s presence.

4:7 The gods have may possibly be translated “God has.” Either way, the Philistines feared for their lives.

4:8 The Philistines either incorrectly assumed the Israelites worshiped many gods, or they had seen Israel’s idolatry and drawn that conclusion.

4:9 Show some courage is literally “strengthen yourselves.” The language may suggest the Philistines currently had control over the Israelites and feared losing it.

4:12 A Benjaminite was a man from the tribal territory of Benjamin to the south. Shiloh was part of Ephraim's territory. Clothes were torn . . . dirt on his head were expressions of mourning (2Sm 1:2).

4:13 "Keeping vigil" might be a better translation than watching since Eli was now blind (v. 15). The Hebrew word translated cried out always has a negative connotation, as does the related word "outcry" in the next verse.

4:14 In his haste, this man had run by Israel's former high priest. Now he returned to report to Eli and apprise him of the battle.

4:16 The words I'm the one suggest the man was a designated messenger to bring the news of the battle (v. 17; cp. 2Sm 18:19-23).

4:19 Eli's daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinehas, had lost three family members—her father-in-law . . . husband, and brother-in-law—and that news, coupled with the news of the capture of God's ark, suddenly brought her labor pains.

4:21 Ichabod means "where is the glory?" with the clear implication, as she then said, that the glory has departed from Israel.

4:22 The wife of Phinehas incorrectly associated God's glorious presence with the presence of the ark of God. However, she was right in the sense that she believed life apart from God's presence was not worth living.

5:1 The trip from Ebenezer to Ashdod was about 19 miles. Ashdod—along with Ashkelon, Ekron, Gaza, and Gath—was one of Philistia's five major cities.

5:2 Dagon was originally an agricultural and/or storm god of Canaan and Mesopotamia, but the Philistines made him head of their pantheon. Perhaps the Philistines thought they should place the ark next to his statue as a symbolic gesture of Dagon's defeat of the Lord in battle.

5:4 Dagon's head and the palms of his hands were broken off (lit "cut off"), suggesting Dagon's fall was no accident. The positioning of head and palms on the threshold nearby also ruled out an accident.

5:5 From then on the priests of Dagon and all his worshipers avoided stepping on Dagon's threshold—a threshold that marked the place of his defeat before God.

5:6 The Lord now oppressed the people of Ashdod, plaguing them as He had plagued the Egyptians (4:8). Tumors (Dt 28:27) probably describe symptoms of bubonic plague, a disease spread by rodents (1Sm 6:4). Others believe the term describes boils or hemorrhoids.

5:8 Perhaps Gath, located more than 20 miles away at the mouth of the Elah Valley, was on friendlier terms with Israel (21:10; 27:3; 2Sm 15:18; 1Kg 2:39), prompting relocation of the ark.

5:9 The Philistines' plan failed as God then brought the tumors to Gath.

5:10 The Philistine citizens of Ekron, located 10 miles north of Gath, cried out (see note at 4:13) in fear of their lives when the ark of . . . God came to their city.

5:12 On outcry, see note at 4:13.

6:1 The allusion to seven months dates the battle that resulted in the ark's capture to around late October, since the wheat harvest (v. 13) typically occurred around late May.

6:2 Priests and . . . diviners represented the Philistines' religious authorities. Diviners were prohibited by the law of Moses (Dt 18:10,14) because they attempted to discern the will of the divine apart from the methods God had prescribed.

6:3 A restitution offering applied to situations where holy things (here the ark) became defiled (Lv 5:15).

6:4 The five gold tumors and five gold mice do not correspond to the items the law of Moses required for guilt offerings (Lv 5:14-6:7). However, fashioning an offering in the shape of the thing from which a people wanted to be delivered is well attested in the ancient world (Nm 21:6-9).

6:6 The Philistines knew Israel's history and what God had done in Egypt (4:8). They were determined to learn their spiritual lesson quicker than the Egyptians had.

6:7-8 The Philistines put forth this one final test with a cart and two cows to make sure the plagues had come from the Lord's hand. Nonetheless, they were certain they needed to send the ark of the LORD away. Untrained cows would not normally know how to work together to pull a cart on a road, and they would not normally leave their calves behind, so when that's what happened, they knew it was from God.

6:9 Beth-shemesh lay in the Sorek Valley a short distance from Timnah, which was controlled by the Philistines (Jdg 14:1).

6:12 The text emphasizes how the cows' path left no room for doubt about God's guidance. The Philistine rulers followed the cart to the territory of Beth-shemesh, which probably marked the beginning of Israelite-controlled land.

6:13 Harvesting wheat was typically done around late May. The Festival of Weeks, called shavu'oth in Hebrew (Nm 28:26-31; Dt 16:16), marked this time of ingathering and included Pentecost (Lv 23:15-16; Ac 2:1).

6:14 The text does not suggest that the people sinned in offering the cows as a burnt offering, though such offerings normally required a male without blemish (Lv 1).

6:15 Beth-shemesh was a city appointed for the Levites (Jos 21:16).

6:16 The five Philistine rulers recognized God's hand in their troubles of the past seven months. They returned to Ekron, where presumably they reported what had happened.

6:17-18 On the Philistine cities, see note at 5:1. The expression to this day refers to the time 1 Samuel was written, probably early in the days of the divided kingdom.

6:19 The Hebrew words translated out of 50,000 men do not occur in many early manuscripts, and Beth-shemesh could not have supported such a large population. The reading 70 men, on the other hand, is undisputed. The phrase looked inside the ark may also be translated "looked at the ark" in the sense of unholy staring or gazing. The Levites should have covered the ark as soon as possible and treated it more reverently.

6:20 The men of Beth-shemesh realized their own unholiness in the presence of the holy LORD God. The Philistines had sent the ark away; the citizens of Beth-shemesh now determined to do the same.

6:21 Kiriath-jearim was a city in Judah's territory about 15 miles to the east. Sending the ark there instead of to Shiloh suggests the Philistines may have overrun Shiloh after they captured the ark. Archaeological evidence indicates the city was destroyed about this time.

7:1 Eleazar was a common priestly name (Ex 6:23; 1Ch 9:20; 23:21; Ezr 8:33), and the verb consecrated also may hint at the family's Levitical connection.

7:2 The verb translated seek contains the connotation of mourning. Genuine heartfelt repentance seems to have arrived at last.

7:3 Samuel instructed the people to demonstrate the genuineness of their repentant words (the Hb word translated returning carries the idea of repentance) with action. Foreign gods certainly included Baal, chief of the Canaanite gods and a constant object of worship during Israel's days of compromise (Jdg 2:11; 3:7). Ashtoreths were representations of Baal's consort.

7:4 Removal of the Baals and the Ashtoreths must have required some time—though certainly not 20 years, the period of spiritual dormancy following the ark's return (v. 2).

7:5 Samuel took an active role in confirming Israel's rededication to God. Mizpah was located seven miles north of Jerusalem; during the judges period, the tribes had gathered there for intertribal war against Benjamin (Jdg 20:1). Some interpreters have identified the site with modern Nebi Samwil, approximately five miles northwest of Jerusalem. The site afforded Israel the opportunity to renew the covenant and to prepare for war with the Philistines.

7:6 The phrase drew water and poured it out is probably a symbolic allusion to the people's hearts being poured out like water before the Lord (2Sm 14:14; Lm

2:19). The phrase Samuel judged the Israelites at Mizpah shows that he was acting more prominently than he had before.

7:7 The Philistines heard of Israel's gathering and appear to have understood it as preparation for war, because their rulers marched up toward Israel.

7:8 The Israelites' impassioned request to Samuel reveals the level of trust they had in his spiritual leadership.

7:9 Samuel cried out to the LORD, who answered his prayer by bringing Israel deliverance.

7:10 The phrase as the Philistines drew near suggests urgency; Samuel raced to offer the sacrifice as the enemy approached, knowing that God's favor was essential for victory. The LORD . . . threw them into . . . confusion as He had done with His enemies in other battles (Ex 14:24; Jos 10:10). That they fled (lit "were struck down") before Israel highlights the Philistines' defeat.

7:11 The exact site of Beth-car is unknown; the Israelites probably chased the Philistines back down the ridge route toward Philistine territory (v. 7).

7:12 The location of Shen (lit "the tooth," perhaps referring to some sharp crag or cliff) is unknown. Ebenezer (Hb "stone of help") marks the extent of the Israelite victory and is a different place from the site of Israel's earlier encampment (4:1).

7:14 Such cities as Ekron and Gath were open to attack because they lay along Israelite-Philistine border territory. Amorites probably denotes Canaanite remnant populations in the land.

7:15 Samuel judged Israel throughout his life, though his ministry seemed to decline somewhat (at his own initiative) following the appointment of Saul as Israel's king (chap. 12).

7:16 The cities of Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpah lay in the territory of Benjamin. Bethel's location is identified with modern Ramallah north of Jerusalem. Gilgal sat in the Jordan Valley near Jericho and was Israel's base camp during the days of Joshua's conquest (Jos 4:19). On Mizpah, see note at 1Sm 7:5.

7:17 The name Ramah is preserved in the name el-Aram, an Arab village located on the site of ancient Ramah five miles north of Jerusalem. Samuel's establishment of an altar to the LORD further suggests Shiloh had been destroyed. Deuteronomy 12:13-14 had warned against building local altars.

8:2 The sons' location in Beer-sheba at Israel's southern edge suggests Samuel did not intend to abdicate his role in Ramah just because he had appointed his sons.

8:5 The elders still appreciated Samuel's leadership; in fact, they wanted him to appoint a king for Israel. However, Samuel was old and they knew they could not count on his leadership much longer. The words as all the other nations contradicted God's desire that Israel be distinct (Lv 20:26; Dt 4:6-8), though the law of Moses did allow for the establishment of a king (Dt 17:14-20).

8:6 Samuel probably considered their demand sinful because it appeared motivated by a desire to conform to the pattern of other nations. Nonetheless, he prayed for the Lord's answer.

8:7 Samuel felt personal hurt and rejection because of the people's desire for a king, but God informed him the issue was much deeper.

8:8 Israel's rejection of Samuel's leadership was the logical outcome of centuries of the nation's rejection of God's leadership. They didn't want God to rule them, so they wouldn't want God's servant to rule them.

8:9 The words solemnly warn could also be translated "strongly testify"; they sound a somber note in the midst of a message of acquiescence. Explaining the rights of the king denotes a challenge to count the high cost the kingship would bring the people.

8:11 On rights of the king, see note at verse 9. Chariots is actually singular both times, suggesting the duties mentioned in this verse pertain more to the king's personal honor guard.

8:12 The king would also need a strong military, and he would draft into service the sons of his subjects.

8:13 Daughters likewise would assume roles, oftentimes demeaning, that would support the royal lifestyle.

8:14 Subjects could expect to lose some of their assets to support the king's servants.

8:15 The law of Moses commanded tithes to support the priests and Levites, but a king would demand that much or more to meet his needs.

8:16 The king would want the best of human resources to accomplish his work (e.g., his various building projects), and he would take what he wanted.

8:17 The king's additional desire for a tenth of the people's flocks would impact the shepherds of the land as well as the farmers (v. 15). The heavy burden the people would have to bear to support the monarchy might well leave them feeling like servants instead of citizens.

8:18 On cry out, see note at 4:13.

8:19 To listen to could be translated "to obey." The people had heard Samuel's words, but they would not heed them. They were determined to have a king.

8:20 The words like all the other nations (see note at v. 5) again sound ominous. Furthermore, the people's expectation of their leader was too grandiose —they thought a king would do everything for them. They saw the potential benefit, but they had not counted the cost.

8:22 The Lord told Samuel to appoint a king over the people. The Lord's judge and prophet instructed everyone to return home to wait for God's leading on the matter.

9:1 The men in Saul's genealogy are not widely attested or known in Scripture apart from their relationship to Saul. Nonetheless, the careful way the text traces the family tree through five generations suggests Saul came from an influential family in the tribe of Benjamin, Saul's comment in verse 21 notwithstanding.

9:2 As someone who stood a head taller than anyone else, Saul looked impressive—seemingly good leadership material according to human perception.

9:4 The hill country of Ephraim lay north of Benjamin and boasted fertile ground. Shalishah and Shaalim were districts northeast of Gibeah.

9:5 Zuph lay about five miles north of Gibeah, Saul's hometown.

9:6 The man of God was Samuel, though the text does not reveal this until verse 14. Saul's attendant described him as highly respected (lit "honored") and as one whose word consistently proved true. The text may subtly suggest that Saul really did not know about Samuel, whereas his attendant and all Israel did. Some interpreters identify the city as Ramah, but this is uncertain.

9:7-8 Saul felt it inappropriate to approach the man of God without a gift. After all, the prophet's good counsel might result in the discovery of the lost donkeys, leading to his father's financial gain. Or perhaps Saul thought Samuel might expect a reward. At any rate, the attendant offered his own piece of silver (lit "quarter of a shekel").

9:9 Seer (Hb ro'eh) describes a person who sees the things of God; prophet (Hb navi') means "called one" (i.e., by God). The text clarifies that the term "prophet" eventually replaced "seer," but the two terms described the same office.

9:11 Social customs restricted the amount of public contact between men and women; however, such a question was appropriate. The meeting of the women as they were coming out to draw water suggests a late afternoon or early evening time.

9:12 The women suggested the men hurry because of the impending sacrifice that Samuel would oversee. (Some interpreters see a connection between the high place and the altar Samuel built in 7:17.) Saul and his attendant would want to meet Samuel before the beginning of that ceremony.

9:13 Blessing the sacrifice was part of Samuel's priestly role.

9:14 The phrase entering the city is literally "coming into the midst of the city." The language may suggest Saul and his attendant were already inside the city rather than at the gate (v. 18) when they saw Samuel coming.

9:15 The word informed is literally "uncovered the ear," a common idiomatic expression (20:12, “tell”; 2Sm 7:27, “revealed”).

9:16 Anointing depicted setting someone apart for God’s appointed service, especially kings (10:1; 16:13), priests (Lv 4:3), and prophets (1Kg 19:16). Ruler was an early term used to describe Saul (10:1), David (13:14), and Solomon (1Kg 1:34), though it also denoted others in authority (1Ch 9:11; 2Ch 31:13, “chief official”). The phrases I have seen the affliction of My people and their cry has come to Me recall God’s remembrance of Israel in bondage in Egypt, just before He used Moses to free them (Ex 2:25; 3:7). These phrases suggest God was beginning another day of redemption.

9:17 The Hebrew verb behind rule normally means “restrain” or “retain,” and it may hint at the future negative consequences of Saul’s kingship. Others suggest the term may imply Saul would gather a fairly scattered and disjointed group of Israelites into a nation.

9:18 Saul approached Samuel but did not recognize him, as his question reveals. The text may again provide a hint at the negative direction Saul’s kingdom would take. All Israel knew Samuel was a prophet of the Lord (3:20), but Saul didn’t even recognize him.

9:19 Go up ahead of me was a way of showing honor and respect. Everything that’s in your heart was probably much more than Saul anticipated hearing; he had just wanted to see Samuel to inquire about the lost donkeys.

9:20 Who does all Israel desire but you may also be translated, “For whom is every desired thing in Israel? Is it not for you?” (The Hb word here translated “desire” is translated “treasures” in Hg 2:7.) 9:21 Whichever rendering is best in verse 20, the language was far more affirming than Saul anticipated. Smallest of Israel’s tribes well described Benjamin, which occupied a relatively small territory and furthermore faced potential extinction after war with Israel’s other tribes in the days of the judges (Jdg 21:1-3). Least important also may mean “smallest in size”; this may be the better sense in light of verse 1.

9:22 The banquet hall was probably a room connected with the high place for sacrificial meals.

9:23 At Samuel’s direction, the cook had set aside a choice portion of meat for a guest whom Samuel would designate.

9:24 The Hebrew term behind thigh also means “leg,” and either way would constitute a large, choice portion of meat.

9:25 Presumably this was the home where Samuel was staying. The roof was typically flat, and it was a place where people could enjoy cool evening breezes. The subject of conversation is not known. The LXX adds the words “they prepared a bed for Saul on the roof, and he slept,” a natural thing for a host to arrange for his guest.

9:26 Samuel would send his guests on their way, probably with a blessing.

9:27 As the three walked together to the edge of the city, Samuel revealed to Saul that he had a particular message for him. Perhaps Saul anticipated some sort of prophetic send-off in light of Samuel's words in verse 19.

10:1 The act of anointing Saul with oil was anticipated in 9:16. The rhetorical question hasn't the LORD anointed you implies an affirmative answer. For other examples of such questions, see Ex 4:14; Jos 1:9. On ruler, see note at 9:16.

10:2 Samuel provided Saul a series of signs that would help Saul validate in his own mind that God had indeed chosen him to lead Israel. Rachel's Grave seems to have been located near the border of Ephraim. Based on a misunderstanding of Gn 35:19, a Crusader tradition located the tomb near Bethlehem, where a shrine is dedicated to her.

10:3 The site of the oak of Tabor is uncertain, except that it was near Bethel in Benjamin. Going up to God probably is a reference to Bethel as the place where God appeared to Jacob (Gn 28:15), and hence a religious shrine where others hoped to meet Him as well.

10:5 The Hill of God (Hb giv'ath ha-'elohim) is probably Gibeah, Saul's hometown and eventually his capital city (v. 10). The presence of Philistine garrisons meant Israel's enemies were encroaching seriously on Israel's territory. If the Philistines controlled Benjamin, they could cut off Israel's communication between north and south and seriously restrict a major access route to the Mediterranean coast.

10:6 Control you could be translated "rush upon you," a meaning that might better fit the context. Transformed aptly describes a life God has changed (Rm 12:2).

10:7 Samuel's words do whatever your circumstances require indicate that when the signs came true, Saul would know what to do (Mk 13:11).

10:8 Gilgal lay in the Jordan Valley near Jericho. It was the site of Israel's base camp during the days of the conquest (Jos 4:19). Later it became a place where illicit sacrifice was offered (Am 4:4; 5:5).

10:9 The words God changed his heart demonstrate the beginning of God fulfilling Samuel's prophetic word. The confirmation of all the signs . . . that day further emphasize the truth of Samuel's word to Saul.

10:10 On the Spirit of God took control of him, see note at verse 6.

10:11 The phrase everyone who knew him previously describes the citizens of Gibeah, probably Saul's family and friends. Their question, Is Saul also among the prophets? reflects their amazement, since they had never known him to prophesy before.

10:12 The unnamed man's question, And who is their father? reminded those who were puzzled by Saul's prophesying that it was God, not man, who determined who would be His prophet. The Spirit of God empowered the prophets (including Saul) for their ministry; their ancestry was irrelevant.

10:13 The high place was the place of worship from which the band of prophets had just come (v. 5).

10:14 Saul's uncle may be Ner (14:50), father of Abner, who later became Saul's general, but the text does not say for sure.

10:15-16 Saul was reluctant to share Samuel's words about the matter of kingship when he first returned home. Perhaps he felt relatives and friends would have a harder time believing he would be their new leader.

10:17 On Mizpah, see note at 7:5.

10:18 Samuel did not bring his own words, but the words of God. I brought Israel out of Egypt recalled God's dramatic deliverance of His people through the exodus (Ex 14). The kingdoms that were oppressing you described many peoples or nations that Israel encountered on the way to Canaan, plus all the enemies who continued to challenge Israel's right to the land.

10:19 Samuel suggested the people's request for a king was really a rejection of God's faithful care in favor of a human leader. The law of Moses established the terms for choosing a king (Dt 17:14-20), but Samuel's speech made it clear the people had sinned by asking for one at this time in their history. His command present yourselves called the people to stand together before the LORD so He could reveal His choice for Israel's leader.

10:20-21 These verses probably describe the casting of lots. God's guidance of the process would verify to the people and again to Saul His choice for Israel's king.

10:22 Interpreters generally believe the question, Has the man come here yet? was a request for Saul's whereabouts. Others suggest the phrase be translated, "Is anyone else here?" Hidden among the supplies probably suggests a place at the perimeter. Saul had been hesitant to reveal his destiny to his own uncle (v. 16), and now he appeared slow to accept the responsibility of the kingship.

10:23 On stood a head taller than anyone else, see note at 9:2. On the other hand, taller people were often viewed elsewhere in Scripture as threats (17:4-5; Nm 13:28).

10:24 At least according to the standards for kingship the nation entertained, Saul seemed like the right choice. The people's enthusiastic, Long live the king! signified the instant acceptance Saul received from many.

10:25 The phrase rights of kingship recalled Samuel's warning to the people about the cost of having a king (8:11-18). Samuel wrote them on a scroll as a lasting testimony or covenant between the people and Saul. Placing the scroll in the presence of the LORD meant in the tabernacle (Ex 40:20; Dt 31:26; Jos 24:26), which emphasized God's oversight of the process; He would hold Israel accountable for this decision.

10:26 Saul's hometown, Gibeah, then became Israel's capital. Brave men whose hearts God had touched were the beginning of Saul's army; the Lord was providing Saul the resources he needed to rule Israel.

10:27 The expression wicked men also describes Hophni and Phinehas (2:12). Although the text condemns their attitude, these individuals doubted Saul's abilities—probably because he appeared too timid to accept the kingship (10:22-23). They did not bring him a gift as custom dictated when approaching the king. The phrase Saul said nothing is literally "Saul was as one deaf," suggesting he chose to pretend his critics' objections had not been voiced. Others would remember the negative comments, however (11:12).

11:1 Nahash the Ammonite controlled Ammon east of Israel beyond the Jordan River. He later may have been on friendlier terms with David than he was with Saul (2Sm 10:1-2), although David controlled his territory (2Sm 8:11-12). Jabesh-gilead was located about 20 miles south of the Sea of Galilee and just east of the Jordan River. Thus, Nahash's incursion went deep into Israelite territory. Nonetheless, the city's citizens asked Nahash to offer terms of peace, which might include taxation or tribute paid at designated intervals.

11:2 Nahash's proposal that he gouge out everyone's right eye would allow Jabesh-gilead's citizens to see to function for daily tasks, but with their depth perception ruined by the loss of an eye, they would be at a great disadvantage in combat.

11:3 Nahash, of course, had everything to lose and nothing to gain by granting the elders' request for seven days to send messengers. Perhaps out of foolishness or arrogance, he did so.

11:5 Saul had been named king, but the monarchy may still have been in its formational period, so he was farming.

11:6 On the Spirit of God suddenly took control of him, see note at 10:6. This was the second such experience for Israel's new king (10:10).

11:7 Saul's team of oxen became part of his stern admonition for the Israelites to rally behind their new king against the Ammonites (cp. note at Jdg 19:29-30). His strategy worked; the Israelites went out united because the terror of the LORD came upon them. The mention of Saul and Samuel together reflects Samuel's continuing leadership role during the new monarchy.

11:8 Bezek was located in Manasseh west of the Jordan River, about 10 miles west of Jabesh-gilead (Jdg 1:4). The distinction between Israelites and the men from Judah may reflect the existence of a separation between the two groups that would later become formalized after Solomon's death (1Kg 12).

11:9 The phrase the time the sun is hot refers to noon.

11:10 The men of Jabesh now delivered false information to Nahash, promising to come out (surrender) to him the next day. The information may have given the Ammonite king and his army a false confidence; consequently, they were unprepared for Saul's surprise attack (v. 11).

11:11 Three divisions allowed Saul to attack the Ammonite camp from three directions at once. The invasion occurred during the morning watch—just before sunrise, surprising and scattering the Ammonite forces.

11:12 In the aftermath of an incredible victory that confirmed Saul's call as king, the people asked Samuel to help round up and execute those who had doubted God's choice of Saul as king.

11:13 Saul's order that no one . . . be executed refocused the people's attention on the Lord's victory rather than on the evil of Saul's detractors.

11:14 Samuel instructed the people to go to Gilgal (see notes at 7:16 and 10:8) to reconfirm Saul as king, now that he had demonstrated God's hand on him through the victory over Ammon. This time, no doubt remained—Saul was God's choice.

12:1 Samuel spoke to all Israel, that is, to all who gathered at Gilgal. In light of Israel's king now being in place and Samuel's advancing age, God's prophet may have decided this was the time to begin wrapping up his leadership. At the same time, Samuel's speech was powerful, calling Israel to remember its past failures and to live in light of God's covenant in the days ahead.

12:2 Samuel's tenure of service had begun when he was a boy serving Eli (1:24-28). Now Saul was doing (leading) what Samuel had done (led). The kingship was in place and would bring a new and more comprehensive administration than Israel had known under Samuel's leadership.

12:3 Samuel called the people to bring before God and the new king any complaint about Samuel's lack of integrity. Samuel wished to settle any wrongs publicly, with God and Saul as his witnesses, before all the people.

12:4 The people's reply concerning Samuel provides believers a standard for which we can strive as we seek to finish our lives faithful to the Lord.

12:5 The people's reply, He is a witness, expressed their agreement with Samuel's statement.

12:6 Samuel's identification of the LORD as the one who appointed Moses and Aaron and brought your ancestors up from the land of Egypt reminded the people of God's central role in making them the people they were.

12:7 Samuel's command present yourselves is the same command he gave the people in 10:19, when they gathered to see God's choice for king. This time Samuel wanted to declare to them all the righteous acts God had performed in their lives personally and in the lives of their ancestors.

12:8 Over four centuries separated Jacob's trip to Egypt and the exodus. In the end, after Moses and Aaron died, God settled them in the promised land. As they considered the awesome truth of this one verse, the Israelites should have realized that God was their all-sufficient King. But Samuel had much more history to recount.

12:9 The period of the judges saw Israel repeat a four-stage cycle: sin, suffering, supplication, and salvation. The people sinned, then suffered at the hands of their enemies for a time: Deborah's and Barak's army battled Sisera (Jdg 4-5), Samson battled the Philistines (Jdg 13-16), and Ehud battled Moab (Jdg 3:15-30).

12:10 The third of the four stages (see note at v. 9) involved supplication as the people confessed their sin. They agreed to lay aside the Baals and the Ashtoreths (see note at 7:3) so they might serve the Lord alone.

12:11 Samuel recited some of the judges whom God had used to bring salvation, the fourth stage in the cycle (see note at v. 9). The Lord also used others, but Samuel mentioned these four leaders (including himself) to drive home his point. God faithfully defended His people whenever they followed Him fully.

12:12 Samuel rebuked the people for desiring a human king. When Nahash threatened them, they forgot the Lord's past acts of deliverance and clamored to be like the other nations.

12:13 The words the king you've chosen, the one you requested emphasize that ultimately Saul was the people's choice. The LORD guided the process and put him in command, but only in response to the people's denial of His kingship.

12:14 To fear the LORD includes an attitude of reverence and awe toward God. Worship literally means "serve" in this verse.

12:16 On present yourselves, see note at verse 7. The Lord was about to perform a heavenly sign to confirm that the people had sinned grievously by asking for a king.

12:17 The wheat harvest normally occurred around late May, and it was officially marked by the Festival of Weeks (Hb shavu'oth; Nm 28:26-31). Thunder and rain normally do not come in Israel from about late April to sometime in October. Their coming would function as a sign of a great evil the people had committed . . . by requesting a king.

12:18 The Israelites realized the miraculous nature of what was happening and greatly feared the Lord and Samuel. Such an amazing sign could only mean they had offended God.

12:19 The people pleaded with Samuel because he was clearly God's representative. The words we have added to all our sins seem to indicate a certain depth of repentance, to which Samuel responded in the next verse.

12:20 Samuel agreed the people had committed . . . evil by asking for a king. However, what was done was done, and now a king was God's will for Israel. The commands don't be afraid and don't turn away emphasize immediacy. The people were afraid and were considering turning away in light of God's judgment. Rather than fear or flight, Samuel instructed, they should worship (or "serve") the LORD wholeheartedly.

12:21 The command, Don't turn away is different in structure from the command in verse 20. Here it emphasizes a general prohibition—"Don't ever turn away." The Hebrew word translated worthless things and worthless is tohu (Gn 1:2, "formless") and here probably designates the worthlessness of following false gods. False gods are likened to "emptiness" in Is 41:29, and "nothing" in Is 44:9.

12:22 God's honor was at stake because He had entered into covenant with the Israelites and determined to make them His own people. He would keep His word so the whole world might know His faithful and gracious character.

12:23 The words I vow could also be translated "far be it from me." Samuel's assurance to the people was expressed in the strongest terms. Samuel had been the people's shepherd leader, and ceasing to pray on their behalf was sin in his eyes.

12:24 Samuel's concluding words summarized commands he already had given the people. Remembering God's past faithfulness would guide them in living for Him in the present and into the future.

12:25 Disastrous consequences awaited both ruler and people if they persisted in doing evil. God's covenant with His people might continue, but a rebellious generation could not presume on His blessing.

13:1 Ancient manuscripts differ on exactly how many years Saul reigned. Based on a comparison of these manuscripts and Ac 13:21, where Paul gives the round number of 40 years, 42 years seems the most likely.

13:2 Israel's new king began to establish a standing military presence for his kingdom. In light of the army's larger size mentioned earlier (11:8), the 3,000 men from Israel may have represented an elite fighting force to protect the king and local interests. Michmash lay about four and one-half miles northeast of Gibeah of Benjamin, Saul's hometown and new capital. Bethel's hill country describes the rugged terrain around the ancient site of Jacob's dream (Gn 28:10-22). Jonathan was one of Saul's sons who would befriend David and become significant later in the narrative (18:1-3; 19:1-3; 20:1-42; 23:16-18).

13:3 The presence of a Philistine garrison . . . in Geba less than three miles from Gibeah posed a significant threat to Israel's heartland and to Saul's kingdom. News of their defeat at the hands of Jonathan quickly reached the coast, and Saul blew the ram's horn to alert Israel that a larger battle was certainly coming.

13:4 More troops joined the king at Gilgal (see notes at 7:16 and 10:8) to ready themselves for a Philistine counter offensive.

13:5 The Philistines responded with chariots and horsemen. Saul's departure from Michmash (vv. 1-4) left the area open for his enemies again.

13:6 The men of Israel . . . were in trouble. The Philistines controlled the high ground—a clear military advantage. Further, their push to Michmash meant they controlled much of the central Benjamin plateau, effectively cutting Israel in half and limiting Saul's access to the coast. Saul's decision to retreat to Gilgal gave his enemies control of this region; the situation was indeed serious.

13:7 Many of Saul's citizens even crossed the Jordan River and moved northward to the land of Gad and Gilead. They calculated that the Philistines would be content with the territory west of the Jordan River.

13:8 Samuel had told Saul to wait seven days at Gilgal at which time he would come and provide further instructions (10:8). Saul, however, looked around and saw the troops were deserting him as morale weakened.

13:9 Saul offered the burnt offering himself—a task Samuel should have done as Israel's priest. Years later, King Uzziah also would usurp the priest's duties and receive God's judgment for his act (2Ch 26:16-21).

13:11 Samuel's ominous question What have you done? recalls God's questions to Eve and to Cain (Gn 3:13; 4:10) as well as the sailors' terrified question to Jonah (Jnh 1:10).

13:12 Saul rightly estimated the seriousness of the Philistine threat. If they reached Gilgal, they would control territory from the Mediterranean Sea to the Jordan River. However, the LORD's favor did not come through sacrifice but through faithfulness, a fact Samuel would later drive home to Saul (15:22).

13:13 Foolish is a word that also would describe later kings who failed to put their trust in the Lord (2Sm 24:10; 2Ch 16:9).

13:14 God's purposes would continue for Israel despite Saul's failures because the Lord had found a man loyal to Him. The phrase the LORD has appointed him as ruler indicates how from God's perspective, His work was already moving ahead and was as good as done, even though David would not become king for several years.

13:15 From Gilgal to Gibeah was a distance of about 15 miles upward—a gain in elevation of about 3,000 feet. Meanwhile, only 600 men (cp. v. 2) remained with the king.

13:16 On Geba of Benjamin, see note at verse 3. Only about two miles separated Saul's forces from the Philistines . . . at Michmash.

13:17-18 Raiding parties secured the access roads to Michmash. The Ophrah road ran northwest of Michmash. Beth-horon lay to the west, an important ridge route toward the coast. The Valley of Zeboim was located to the east toward the wilderness region leading to the Jordan Valley.

13:19 The presence of Philistine-imposed restrictions on metalworking, which limited weapons to those made of wood or stone, shows the extent of their domination in Israel's heartland.

13:20-21 The Philistines also controlled the maintenance of the Israelites' farming tools and charged the people high prices.

13:22 The phrase only Saul and his son Jonathan had weapons paints a dismal picture of Israel's situation. The people desperately needed good leadership to answer the Philistine challenge.

13:23 Controlling the pass at Michmash cut off Israel's advance northward toward that city. A large group of Philistines controlled territory only a few miles from Saul's capital.

14:1 This chapter begins to show a consistent contrast between Saul and his son Jonathan. To this point, Saul had largely retreated from the Philistines, but Jonathan decided to challenge them.

14:2 The exact location of the pomegranate tree in Migron on the outskirts of Gibeah is unknown. Perhaps Saul's palace had not yet been established. Assuming Saul stationed his troops on Gibeah's north side, he was about an hour's march away from the Philistines at Geba.

14:3 Ahijah, a descendant of Eli, was present, wearing his priestly ephod (Ex 28:4). Thus, God's counsel was available if Saul was willing to ask for it.

14:4 This verse identifies a portion of the Wadi Suweinit south of Michmash. The meanings of Bozez and Seneh are uncertain.

14:6 With his words, Nothing can keep the LORD from saving, Jonathan demonstrated faith beyond that of his father, who remained at Gibeah with about 600 men (v. 2).

14:8-10 Jonathan proposed they cross over into the Philistines' view and seek a sign from the LORD. An invitation to come on up to the Philistines' location may have indicated they did not have the courage to relinquish the high ground to fight against only two Israelites.

14:11 The phrase the Hebrews are coming out of the holes where they've been hiding is probably a sarcastic statement mocking the Israelites' weakened position.

14:12 We'll teach you a lesson is literally "we'll make something known to you." The HCSB translation captures the sense of the Philistines' challenge. Jonathan, however, who had entrusted even the Philistines' words into the Lord's hand, had the confirming sign he needed that victory was his to claim.

14:13 The two Israelites were vulnerable to Philistine attack as they climbed to the Philistines' position. Probably the overconfident Philistines feared little.

14:14 Jonathan's success in the first assault indicated God's hand.

14:15 Terror spread as news of the assault came from the survivors. Terror . . . from God came upon them, meaning the Philistines may have feared they had come too far inland and incurred the wrath of the Israelites' God as they had done when they captured the ark (5:6-12).

14:17 Taking an account of those present by calling the roll would help Saul know if Israelite troops might have been responsible for the Philistine retreat.

14:18 Saul apparently intended to inquire of the Lord about what was happening in the Philistine camp by conferring with the priests who carried the ark of God.

14:19 Stop what you're doing is literally "Withdraw your hand." Saul decided he might lose the opportunity to rout the Philistines if he delayed, and he told the priest to stop inquiring of the Lord. Perhaps the Lord had already revealed His will for Saul through the panic in the Philistine camp. Another possibility is that the text reveals yet another example of Saul's refusal to follow the Lord's guidance.

14:21 The Philistines' incursion into Israel had led many Israelites to defect to the Philistines, but now the defectors switched back as they sensed the Philistine panic. Their doing so meant the Philistines now found themselves on the battlefield with Israelites of whose allegiance they were unsure. They would not make the mistake of joining forces with any Israelites again (29:2-11).

14:22 The hill country of Ephraim lay directly north of the central Benjamin plateau where the battle was occurring.

14:23 After giving many details about human participants in the battle, the text gives God, not Saul, credit for the incredible victory. The Philistines fled beyond Beth-aven (Bethel) as they tried to get back westward across the plateau to the Aijalon Valley (v. 31), which led to their coastal home.

14:24 Many have questioned the wisdom of Saul's placing his troops under an oath. Going into battle did not require abstinence from food; perhaps Saul thought such a vow would secure the Lord's favor. Consequently, however, the men of Israel were worn out because they had eaten nothing to sustain them while expending much energy.

14:26 The flow of honey probably originated from broken nests of wild bees.

14:27 Saul may have made the troops swear the oath by having them respond "Amen!" to his statement (v. 24; cp. Dt 27:15). However, Jonathan had not heard the oath and therefore ate the honey (lit "put his hand to his mouth") and had renewed energy (lit "his eyes brightened").

14:29 The Hebrew word behind trouble (Hb 'akar) was used of Achan, the man who kept some of Jericho's spoil for himself and brought trouble to Israel during Joshua's time (Jos 7:25-26). Jonathan suggested his father the king had likewise hurt Israel's cause. On I have renewed energy, see note at verse 27.

14:31 From Michmash . . . to Aijalon was a distance of about 15 miles, stretching from one side of the central Benjamin plateau to the other. That day may hint that as the day ended, the people were free from Saul's rash vow (v. 24).

14:32 Sheep, cattle, and calves were clean animals according to the Mosaic law (Lv 11:3-8), but the law also prohibited eating meat with the blood still in it (Lv 17:10-14).

14:33-34 To Saul's credit, he acted to prevent people from sinning against the Lord by eating meat with the blood still in it.

14:35 The law of Moses normally condemned such an altar (Dt 12:13-14), though Samuel also had built one (1Sm 7:17). Perhaps Saul's altar was intended only to commemorate the Lord's victory.

14:36 The elevation dropped down over 2,000 feet from the central Benjamin plateau to the Philistine coastal cities. Saul suggested the people continue pursuing their enemies through the night and bring complete destruction on them, an idea his army supported. Saul's priest, however, suggested they should consult God before proceeding.

14:37 God not answering suggests three responses were possible when someone inquired of the Lord—yes, no, or silence (28:6).

14:38 Saul was convinced that sin was present in the camp and that it was preventing the divine answer.

14:39 Saul swore an oath that the guilty party must die. Not one of his warriors answered him, although many knew who had violated Saul's curse.

14:40 Saul's first step was to determine if the blame for God's silence lay with his house or with someone in his army.

14:41 Jonathan and Saul were selected shows that Saul now knew one of them was responsible.

14:42 Jonathan was selected, and so Saul now knew his son Jonathan was the cause of God's silence.

14:43 Jonathan had not promised to fast that day, but as he confessed eating, he willingly offered to place himself under his father's oath and suffer the consequences.

14:44 With the words May God punish me . . . severely, Saul invoked a curse on himself if Jonathan did not die.

14:45 The people insisted Jonathan should not die when God had brought such a great deliverance for Israel through him. Saul had not uttered his original oath with divine authority, and Jonathan had not violated it anyway since he had not heard it. Saul's rash curse and oath had put him in a difficult situation—either he would have to execute his son, or he would have to go back on his oath (this is comparable to Jephthah in the chaotic period of the judges; Jdg 11:29-40). He gave in to the people's wishes and ignored his oath (cp. "the people" in 1Sm 15:24, "the troops" in 13:11; 15:21, and "his servants" in 28:23). This whole episode (14:23-46) points up Saul's impulsiveness and lack of discernment. The reader may be grateful that innocent Jonathan did not die because of Saul's foolish vow, but it is clear that Israel's king is a man of shifting and defective moral character.

14:46 This period of quiet between Israel and the Philistines would not last (v. 52; 28:1).

14:47 Moab lay to Israel's southeast, east of the Dead Sea. The Ammonites were east of the Jordan River to Israel's east and northeast. Edom was located south of the Dead Sea. Zobah was an Aramean city-state in Syria. The verse suggests that at least for a time, Saul secured all Israel's borders.

14:48 The Amalekites were a nomadic group known for their marauding bands (15:2-3; 30:1-2; Ex 17:8-15).

14:49-50 Two other members of Saul's family besides Jonathan would figure prominently in biblical history: Michal (18:20-29; 19:11-17; 25:44; 2Sm 3:13-16; 6:16,20-23) and Abner (2Sm 2:8-9; 3:6-27).

14:52 The constancy of the Philistine threat required that Saul maintain the strongest army he could muster, just as Samuel had warned a king would do (8:11).

15:1 Saul's power and purpose lay in God's anointing; Israel was His people, not Saul's. Therefore, Saul needed to heed the divine instructions that Samuel now was giving him.

15:2 On the Amalekites, see note at 14:48. Exodus 17:8-16 records Israel's initial victory over Amalek under Joshua's leadership. At that time, God promised to oppose the Amalekites continually.

15:3 The phrase destroy everything they have describes the practice of the ban, wherein Israel would destroy everything in a town that had breath, including humans and animals. God had authority over when all life began and ended. In the battle of Jericho (Jos 6:17-21), the plunder went into the Lord's treasury; at other times, the people were allowed to keep it (Jos 8:27).

15:4 Telaim was probably located in the Negev of Judah (Jos 15:21-24). The men from Judah are again listed separately (see note at 11:8).

15:5 The city of Amalek may designate the place the Amalekites were living rather than a city, since the group was nomadic.

15:6 Saul's warning to the Kenites rewarded earlier friendly terms with them (Jdg 1:16; 4:11). The kindness to all the Israelites is only mentioned here, but clearly this was part of Israel's memory in a land where people had long memories (2Ch 20:10-11).

15:7 This extensive campaign covered a broad region, from Arabia almost to Egypt's border, whose inhabitants included many descendants of Ishmael (Gn 25:18).

15:8 The phrase captured Agag . . . alive hints at Saul's coming disobedience to what God had commanded (v. 3).

15:9 The Hebrew text emphasizes that Saul was the one primarily responsible for sparing Agag. The people also spared . . . the best of everything else, another violation of God's command (v. 3). Of course, destroying all the worthless and unwanted things was no great sacrifice.

15:11 The verb regret with God as its subject occurs only here and in Gn 6:7, where it denotes God's regrets over making humanity and His ultimate decision to bring the great flood. In both cases, people made wrong moral choices, and God's foreknowledge meant He knew what people would do. Nonetheless, it pained Him to see the disobedience come to pass. The word translated turned away commonly means "repent" when it speaks of turning away from sin, but here it describes Saul's conscious decision to cease following the Lord. Samuel was frustrated by Saul's failing kingship, particularly as he remembered he had anointed him (10:1). Saul had indeed turned out to be a king just like the ones of "all the other nations" (8:5,20), but the people had persisted in their request despite his sober warnings (8:11-18). On cried out, see note at 4:13.

15:12 Perhaps God had told Samuel to get up early during Samuel's intense prayer the previous night (v. 11). Ironically, Saul had gone to Carmel, a town about seven miles south of Hebron in Judah's hill country (Jos 15:55), to erect a monument for himself. This monument presumably would remind the Carmelites of the peace that came to their region because of Saul's victory over Amalek. Gilgal had great historical significance (see notes at 7:16 and 10:8); it lay about 15 miles east of Gibeah, Saul's capital.

15:13 On I have carried out the LORD's instructions, see note at verse 11. God did not share Saul's perspective on this matter.

15:14 The sound of sheep and cattle was proof that Saul had failed to execute God's command.

15:15 Saul's reference to the LORD your God (not "my God" or "our God") sounds an ominous tone but aptly fits the situation because Saul did not appear to have much of a relationship with the Lord.

15:16 Stop!—The prophet had had enough of Saul's excuses and cut him off, an action most subjects would not dare take with their king.

15:17 God had taken Saul from relatively unimportant status as a common citizen (cp. Saul's own words in 9:21) to king over Israel. The word you is emphasized in the text with respect to Saul to heighten the intensity of Samuel's words.

15:18 On completely destroy, see note at verse 3. The presence of any survivors (in this case, King Agag and the best of the flocks and herds) was a violation of God's command.

15:19 The verbal idea in the phrase rush on the plunder is related to the word for "bird of prey," in this case swooping down on the spoils of war.

15:20 Saul's own description of his actions condemned him because he admitted to sparing Agag and to putting to death only the Amalekites and not their domesticated property as God had commanded (v. 3).

15:21 Sacrifice . . . at Gilgal would not substitute for obedience on Saul's part; further, God had already claimed the animals and given orders for their destruction (vv. 2-3). On the LORD your God, see note at verse 15.

15:22 Samuel's words to obey is better than sacrifice drove home the point that partial obedience of God was really disobedience, and full obedience of God mattered more than any human-concocted alternatives.

15:23 The Mosaic law prohibited divination, the attempt to tap into demonic powers (Dt 18:10,14). Samuel compared both rebellion and defiance (lit "pushing back," here, at God) as just as wicked. In its basic sense, idolatry is exalting something or someone (including one's own will) above God.

15:24 Saul's half-hearted repentance came only after it was too late, since Samuel had already pronounced the Lord's verdict. Saul feared the people more than he feared God.

15:25 Saul wanted Samuel's forgiveness and the endorsement of his kingship that Samuel's staying with him would bring.

15:26 Samuel truly sought God's will for his life; consequently, he could not support Saul's kingship over Israel.

15:27 The words Saul grabbed the hem of Samuel's robe may suggest that Saul had been kneeling before Samuel.

15:28 The words has given it to your neighbor suggest that in God's mind the transfer of power to Israel's new king was already accomplished, but Samuel would not learn the identity of the next king until chapter 16.

15:29 God's eternal, constant character can be trusted. The word translated change His mind occurs in a totally different sense in verse 11 ("regret"). The Lord had expressed regret over Saul's failures, but He would not change His verdict about Saul's kingship.

15:30 Saul confessed his sin a second time. Note again the words the LORD your God (see note at v. 15).

15:31 Saul's persistence paid off as Samuel went back and helped the king save face before his troops.

15:32 The Hebrew word behind trembling is obscure and may also mean "in bonds" or "confidently." Certainly the bitterness of death has come may also be translated "Certainly the bitterness of death has turned aside" and if so, may represent Agag's attempt to keep Samuel from killing him. Context suggests the HCSB rendering is correct.

15:33 The prophet, not Saul, now finished God's command. The Hebrew verb translated hacked . . . to pieces is shasaph , the sound of a whirring sword.

15:34 The two leaders, Samuel and Saul, parted company once and for all, even though their two cities were only two miles apart.

15:35 Samuel never again visited Saul is literally "Samuel did not again see Saul." Technically, Samuel did see Saul, but it was not a prearranged official visit (19:24). The words the LORD regretted He had made Saul king (see note at 15:11) highlight the seriousness with which God takes the failures of His leaders (2Sm 11:27; 12:7-12; Heb 13:7).

16:1 How much time had passed since the end of chapter 15 is unknown. At any rate, God wanted to move ahead with His plan. The command Fill your horn with oil meant God had someone in mind for Samuel to anoint as king. Jesse appears here for the first time in the book. His connection with Bethlehem is spelled out in the book of Ruth (Ru 4:17,22).

16:2 Samuel had told Saul that God had rejected his kingship and had chosen another to lead Israel. Consequently, Samuel's travels would be of great interest to Saul. Samuel feared Saul would consider it treason if Samuel anointed another man as king. A young cow might be sacrificed in a region where an unsolved murder had occurred (Dt 21:1-9). It is also possible that bringing a sacrifice to the LORD merely provided a pretext for Samuel to hide the primary purpose of his journey.

16:3 The presence of Jesse was crucial since one of his sons was to succeed

Saul.

16:4 The trembling of the elders of the town may indicate they feared Saul's wrath if they gave support to Samuel.

16:5 Consecrate means to set oneself apart to God. It involved entering into ritual cleanness. No set "consecration checklist" appears in Scripture, though bathing, putting on clean garments, avoiding contact with a dead body, and suspension of sexual relations are mentioned in various consecration contexts. He consecrated Jesse and his sons probably means Samuel oversaw their consecration at their home.

16:6 Jesse's son Eliab later served in Saul's army (17:13,28); he apparently looked like kingly material.

16:7 Saul also had appearance and stature, but he had proved unworthy.

16:8-9 Jesse's sons Abinadab and Shammah also served in Saul's army (17:13).

16:11 The task of tending the sheep often fell to the youngest. In Bedouin cultures, such work was often the task of young girls (Gn 29:9), but David's sister Zeruiah (1Ch 2:16) is not mentioned in the narrative.

16:12 The Hebrew word behind healthy is related to the word for "red" and may describe either David's reddish-toned hair or skin. Beautiful eyes and a . . . handsome appearance might help a king's credibility, but ultimately God looks at the heart.

16:13 Despite God's choice of David through Samuel, apparently at least Eliab doubted David's heart (17:28). It is also possible that Samuel did not reveal to David's brothers the mission to which God was calling David. The Spirit of the Lord took control of David just as He had done with Saul earlier (10:6,10; 11:6), empowering David for God's service. Samuel's route from Bethlehem to Ramah would have normally taken him directly past or through Gibeah.

16:14 The theological difficulty of the expression evil spirit . . . from the LORD may be resolved in one of two ways. God may have intended the evil spirit as redemptive—designed to turn Saul to repentance. Or God may have intended the evil spirit as His instrument of judgment against the rebellious king. God is completely righteous, hates evil, and never does anything unjust, yet He makes use of demons (against their evil intention) to accomplish His good purposes (cp. Jb 1:6-12).

16:18 One of the young men of Saul's court apparently knew David well, because he described several good qualities beyond David's musical skill. Warrior may be anticipatory (suggesting David seemed to have the qualities that would make a good warrior) since it does not seem that at this stage of life David was accustomed to fighting in battle (17:14-15). The LORD is with him describes David's spiritual qualifications, which would prove important as the drama unfolded.

16:20 The items donkey . . . bread . . . wine, and goat were either Jesse's gift to Saul or a contribution to David's sustenance in the royal court. No biblical evidence indicates when Saul initiated a national tax system for providing the palace's needs, but such taxes are assumed in 17:25.

16:21 David became King Saul's armor-bearer, a position that would keep him closer to Saul, who admired (lit "loved") him greatly.

16:23 Being close to Saul also meant David could pick up his lyre quickly and play if the king felt troubled. Meanwhile, God was continuing to prepare David for the day he would become king.

17:1 -2 The heartland of Benjamin and Judah was approachable from the coast through six valleys. The Philistines already had come up the Aijalon Valley (13:23). During the days of Samson (Jdg 13-16), they had come up the Sorek Valley. Now they were coming up the Valley of Elah and already controlled Socoh and Azekah. If they got much farther up the valley, they could come up the ridge route into the hill country and threaten Bethlehem, Hebron, and Saul's capital, Gibeah. The situation was desperate for Saul and his army.

17:3 The word translated "valley" in verse 2 designates a broad, flat valley. The word translated ravine denotes a narrower, more sharply defined valley or wadi. Today, the valley pinches in a bit east of Socoh, perhaps marking the site of the ancient conflict.

17:4 Recent archaeological finds at Tel es-Safi, the site of ancient Gath, confirm that the name Goliath was used among the Philistines around this period. Two other early manuscripts (LXX, DSS) state that Goliath was "six feet, nine inches tall." However, the description of Goliath's combat gear appears to support the larger height of nine feet, nine inches tall. At either height, Goliath would have towered over the much smaller Israelites.

17:5-7 The sheer spectacle of Goliath's armor and weapons frightened the Israelite army. At the same time, their weight would have restricted Goliath's agility. He probably assumed he would not have a prolonged fight with anyone.

17:8-9 Goliath challenged and taunted the Israelites. With his words Choose one of your men, Goliath suggested representative combat—the army of the losing combatant would become servants of the army of the victorious combatant.

17:10 The Hebrew word translated defy first came from Goliath's mouth, but it occurs four other times in the account (vv. 25,26,36,45), with the last three emphasizing Goliath's mocking of God's honor.

17:11 The Israelites needed their leader to articulate a plan of response, but King Saul had none.

17:12 The feminine name Ephrath(ah) occurs in Judah's genealogical lists, and her son Hur is called Bethlehem's father (1Ch 2:19; 4:4). First Chronicles 2:13 says seven rather than eight sons, but perhaps one died at an early age and therefore was not noted by the Chronicler.

17:13 Eliab . . . Abinadab, and Shammah were the three sons of Jesse other than David mentioned by name in the account of Samuel's anointing of David. If the Philistines made their way up the Valley of Elah, Bethlehem would soon face attack, so these men were defending their own homeland.

17:14 The text's second mention of the fact that David was the youngest (16:11) highlights how God's choice often overrides human logic.

17:15 David's primary role was tending his father's flock in Bethlehem about 15 miles east of the battle site, but he kept going back and forth to take his brothers food and to update his father on the battle.

17:16 Such a long standoff period as 40 days would cause problems if it came at a time when fighting men needed to be home working their land.

17:17 Families of soldiers normally provided their sustenance on the battlefields.

17:18 Field commander is literally "commander of the thousand." Confirmation probably refers to a report from David's brothers.

17:19 Jesse's words to David suggest either that this was David's first trip to look after his brothers (unlikely in view of v. 15) or that David had been keeping the sheep outside Bethlehem and had just returned when Jesse sent him to Saul's camp.

17:20 David must have left very early in order to have made the 15-mile journey in time to see the army . . . marching out.

17:21 It appeared perhaps another day of standoff with the giant Goliath was forthcoming.

17:23 Came forward is literally "was going up." The expression may suggest Goliath approached a bit closer than before, actually coming part way up the ravine (v. 3). David heard Goliath's taunts—a subtle turning point in the account.

17:25 The victorious warrior would become Saul's son-in-law (18:18,23) and would enjoy privileges as part of the royal family.

17:26 David's words indicate he had not heard the announcement from Saul's assistant (v. 25). The word disgrace is related to defy (vv. 10,25-26,36). Uncircumcised denotes someone outside God's covenant. David saw the threat as not merely political (cp. v. 8) but theological. The armies of the living God, ironically, were terrified, but to David God's honor was at stake.

17:28 Eliab, along with his brothers Abinadab and Shammah, were serving in Saul's army (vv. 13-14). Eliab misread the intentions of his brother David and became angry—thus confirming for the reader God's rejection of him as a possible successor of Saul (16:6-7).

17:31 King Saul apparently heard of David's question and David's interest in the reward for fighting Goliath and summoned the young man.

17:32 David's words your servant was a polite way of referring to oneself before a superior (vv. 34,36; 2Sm 7:19-20).

17:33 Saul rejected David's bold offer because David was just a youth, and because Goliath had been in training as a warrior from his youth.

17:34 Wild animals such as a lion or a bear were always threats to a lamb from the flock, and the shepherd's fighting ability was the lamb's only defense.

17:36 Lions and bears (lit "the lion and the bear") probably best gives the sense of the translation. David was probably describing his various encounters with wild animals rather than identifying two specific incidents. This uncircumcised Philistine would suffer the same fate as these animals for his defiance of the Lord (see note at v. 26).

17:37 The word rescued is the same word that appeared in verse 35; David rescued the sheep, and God rescued him. Now, God would rescue His flock Israel. Encouraged by David's faith, Saul found the courage to invoke God's name in the blessing, May the LORD be with you.

17:38-39 Saul brought his own military clothes for David to wear, a fact that suggests that although he was the youngest, David may not have been smaller than the king. David tried on the bronze helmet and other armor, but he was not accustomed to wearing them, so he took them off. Ironically, it would not be the last time David wore a king's clothes.

17:40 Rather than wearing royal armor, David took weapons with which he was most familiar. The five smooth stones he chose would have been roughly the size of tennis balls and would fly straighter than jagged stones. As a shepherd, he had likely become proficient with his sling, which would also enable him to attack Goliath from a distance instead of in close combat, where the giant would have a big advantage.

17:42 Goliath saw David as an unfit challenge to his skill as a warrior. He was just a youth, and his features did not show that he had battle experience.

17:43 Goliath began his psychological warfare ("trash talk") against David by suggesting the staff David carried was fit only to beat a dog. The statement he cursed David by his gods further slants the account toward describing a battle between the gods of the Philistines and the God of Israel rather than just a battle between two men.

17:45 David's response to Goliath highlights the contrast in battle strategy. The Philistine relied on his dagger, spear, and sword (or sword, spear, and javelin), but David fought in the name of (as the representative of and with the authority of) Yahweh of Hosts, who was the God of Israel's armies. Goliath had defied Him, but now the Lord would triumph over him through His servant.

17:46 Hand you over to me is literally "shut you into my hand," or leave no way of escape. David's reference to the Philistine camp meant the outcome of their personal battle would have implications for the Philistine army. Birds of the sky and the creatures of the earth mimicked Goliath's mocking taunt (v. 44). David insisted that when victory was his, all the world would know that Israel had a God mighty enough to rescue in seemingly impossible situations. David's concern was that the nations would also know the power of Yahweh.

17:47 This whole assembly probably designates Israel's army, but it may include all who were present that day. David testified that the Lord saves, but not by sword or by spear. Since the battle was His, He would fight and win His way.

17:49 After a lengthy anticipation of the battle in the narrative, the battle was over almost as soon as it began. The words fell on his face describe Goliath falling face-forward. The force of the stone's impact likely rocked him backward initially, but then he either lurched forward again to complete his fall or spun around face first as he continued to fall back (away from David) to the ground.

17:50 This emphasizes the unlikelihood of David's victory, which gives glory to God. And killed him is a summary statement of the whole event. David landed the actual death blow not with a stone but with Goliath's own sword (v. 51).

17:51 Goliath was badly wounded but was yet living when David reached him. Unwilling to stop short of finishing his task, David used Goliath's own sword to kill him and cut off his head. Seeing that their official representative in this death match was dead, the Philistines turned and ran back down the valley toward Gath.

17:52 On the men of Israel and Judah, see note at 11:8. Inspired by the Lord's victory through David, Israel's army pursued the Philistines all the way to the gates of Ekron, a leading Philistine city (5:1,10) over 10 miles away. The Shaaraim road runs north to south right next to Azekah (v. 1); as panic set in, the Philistines tried every avenue possible to escape the Israelites.

17:54 Why David took Goliath's head to Jerusalem is unclear, since Jerusalem was controlled by the Jebusites at the time. One possibility is that David intended it to frighten the Jebusites and other enemies of Israel. Another is that Jerusalem was a central place where even non-Jebusites could come to divide, barter, and display the spoils of war. A third possibility is that the text was recording what David ultimately did with Goliath's head years later when David conquered Jerusalem (2Sm 5:7), though 17:57 may weigh against this suggestion. See R. D. Bergen, 1, 2 Samuel for further commentary on options. The giant's sword ended up at the city of Nob, from which David retrieved it years later (1Sm 21:8-9).

17:55 Either Saul's busy schedule, coupled with his torment from the evil spirit (16:14), resulted in his not recognizing David as his personal lyre player (16:15-23), or Saul knew David but did not know who his father was (see note at 17:58).

17:57 A comparison of the details of this verse with those of verse 54 does not require the meeting of Saul and David to have been in Jerusalem, though nothing precludes this possibility.

17:58 Perhaps the king asked for clarification of David's identity so he could reward Jesse with tax-exempt status as he had promised to whoever defeated Goliath (v. 25).

18:1 Jonathan committed himself to David is literally "Jonathan's life was bound together with David's." The same expression occurs in Gn 44:30 in reference to Jacob and his son, Benjamin. Both David and Jonathan were valiant warriors who had taken stands of faith against incredible opposition (1Sm 14:6-14; 17:31-51), so it is not surprising they would become close friends. As much as he loved himself could also be translated "as much as he loved his own life." The phrase is repeated in verse 3 and 20:17.

18:2 Before the victory over the Philistines, David would sometimes return to his father's house in Bethlehem to look after family matters. Now, the king wanted David to remain constantly with him.

18:3 On he loved him as much as himself, see note at verse 1.

18:4 The covenant between Jonathan and David may have included the giving of special gifts to David, the new warrior hero. David thus secured not only Goliath's sword (17:54), but the robe . . . military tunic . . . sword . . . bow, and belt of Israel's prince, showing that God was preparing him for his royal role.

18:5 David enjoyed success with the army wherever Saul sent him, so the king made him head of the army. The expression Saul's servants probably designate either the king's military officers or his closest advisers.

18:6 The phrase David was returning from killing the Philistine probably refers to a later time of battle than David's original battle with Goliath because verse 5 mentions David's promotion, implying some passage of time. Earlier traditions of women . . . singing and dancing to celebrate military victories were well known (Ex 15:21; Jdg 5:1-31). The cities of Israel were safe from the Philistine threat, and that was reason to celebrate.

18:7 The words Saul has killed his thousands, but David his tens of thousands are the only ones preserved from the women's singing. They were not necessarily contrasting Saul's conquests with David's and exalting David over Saul. The Hebrew word translated "but" also may mean "and," and the words "thousands" and "ten thousands" occur elsewhere as a word pair in poetry (Dt 32:30; Ps 91:7; Mc 6:7). In fact, the women may have intended to praise Saul by what they affirmed about David—the king had made an excellent choice by naming David his commander.

18:8 Whatever the women intended by their song, Saul resented what he perceived as their lower assessment of his fighting ability. Perhaps Saul also remembered Samuel's words about God already having chosen his successor (13:14; 15:28). Saul's words, What more can he have but the kingdom? reveal the depth of his suspicion.

18:9 The Hebrew word for jealously is related to the word for "eye" and suggests that Saul kept a close eye on David from that day forward.

18:10 On evil spirit sent from God, see note at 16:14. The Hebrew term translated rave literally means "prophesy," but the word also is used of false prophets (1Kg 18:29; 22:10). In this context it may refer more to Saul's excited, agitated state. Jeremiah 29:26 may also denote this latter sense.

18:11 The evil spirit's influence, combined with Saul's jealousy, may have led him to hurl his spear. The allusion to David's twofold escape suggests he remained after Saul's first throw, perhaps to reason with the king and help him through his tormented state.

18:13 Saul reassigned David to military duty to get him out of his presence.

18:15 Saul's fear of David increased in proportion to David's successes.

18:16 The fact that all Israel and Judah (see note at 11:8) loved David put Saul in a more difficult position, since the people would not understand why Saul removed someone as effective as David.

18:17 Saul tried a new strategy to rid himself of David. He proposed that David marry Saul's oldest daughter Merab in exchange for David's increased role as a warrior. Saul knew David's chances of death increased the more time he spent in war; perhaps the Philistines would kill him and end Saul's problem.

18:18 David's reluctance came from his recognition of his lower social standing in comparison to Saul's more influential background (9:1).

18:19 Merab eventually married and had five sons, all of whom the Gibeonites later put to death because of Saul's sin against them (2Sm 21:8-9).

18:20 Michal, another daughter of Saul, loved David. The text may imply that Merab, by contrast, had no feelings for David.

18:21 Perhaps Saul thought Michal would be a trap because she might distract David's attention from his military duties, or that the bride price Saul intended to request (v. 25) would put David in a life-threatening situation. Yet another possibility is that Saul thought Michal would lead David away from the Lord. First Samuel 19:13 has been cited to support this, but the context is uncertain.

18:23 David again protested becoming the king's son-in-law by pointing out his humble ancestry (v. 18).

18:25 To pay the bride price David had to kill 100 Philistines.

18:26 David was pleased (lit "it was right in David's eyes") that Saul would put character and valor above ancestral bloodline. Before the wedding day arrived (lit "The days were not full") is perhaps a reference to the time Saul had given David to secure the bride price.

18:27 David and his men secured twice the payment required—further evidence of David's desire to please Saul regardless of the risk.

18:28 Saul realized (lit "Saul saw and knew") too late what perhaps he should have realized earlier (vv. 13-14)—the LORD was with David. Further, perhaps Saul had anticipated Michal's loyalties would remain with him, her father, but now he saw that Michal loved David. Through David's friendship with Jonathan (vv. 1-3) and now through his marriage to Michal, he was firmly established as part of the royal family.

18:29 Tragically, jealousy and Saul's tormented spirit nullified any family bond or loyalty his son-in-law David showed him.

18:30 Saul's officers certainly included some of Saul's relatives (17:55), thus heightening the tension between David and Saul. As David's name became well known, many people probably began to speculate that he would become Saul's successor.

19:2 Jonathan made sure David knew about Saul's plan. Ironically, Jonathan, as King Saul's oldest son, had the most to gain by David's death.

19:3 If David did not overhear the conversation between Jonathan and Saul from his hiding place, Jonathan would inform him later.

19:4-5 Jonathan spoke well of David and suggested that his father Saul should spare him for three reasons. First, David was innocent of any sin against Saul. Second, the Lord had used David to bring a great victory for all Israel. Third, killing David for no reason would make Saul guilty of shedding innocent blood.

19:6 The phrase As surely as the LORD lives was a common way of introducing an oath (1Kg 17:1).

19:7 It is not clear whether the expression served him as he did before denotes David's lyre-playing or leading the military. Perhaps both are intended since both appear in the immediate context (vv. 8-9).

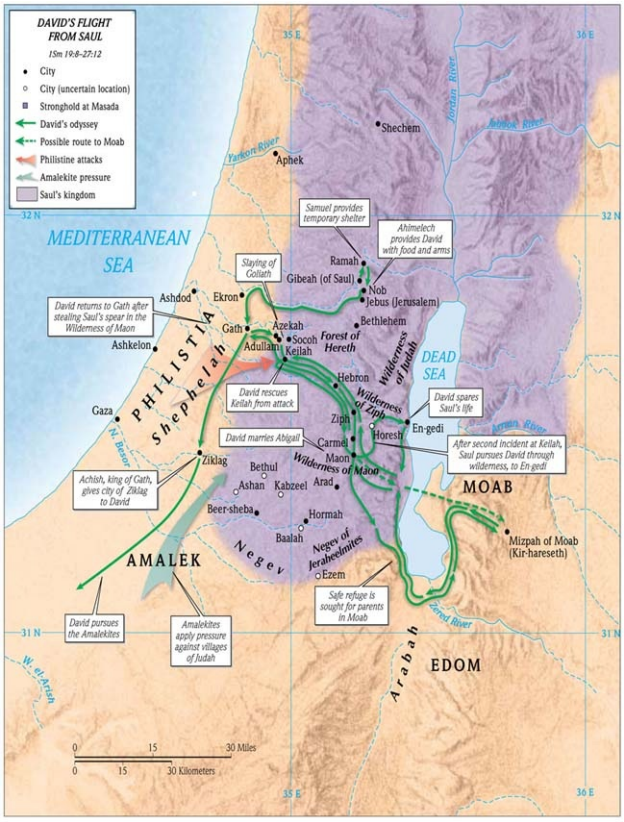
19:9 Holding a spear while sitting in his palace may suggest Saul's extreme paranoia. David was playing the lyre to soothe Saul's tormented mind (16:23).

19:10 David eluded Saul . . . and escaped, perhaps because he was more wary after the previous incident (18:10-11). He did not provide the king a second opportunity to strike him down, but fled to his home.

19:11 Michal discovered her father's intentions to murder David and warned him that delay in fleeing would bring his death.



19:12 Again, a member of Saul's family helped David escape Saul's death sentence.

19:13 The household idol (Hb teraphim) was apparently large enough that it would appear as though David's body lay on the bed under a garment. Such idols also could be smaller in size (Gn 31:19,34). No explanation is given for why such a thing was in David's house.

19:15 Saul's agents apparently did not want to challenge Michal's word about David's illness (v. 14), so they returned to the king without him.

19:16 The messengers arrived at David's house a second time, only to discover what Michal had done. By then, David had escaped.

19:17 When Saul challenged his daughter Michal about her deception, she replied that David had threatened to kill her if she did not cooperate. Saul could not prove she was lying since no witnesses were present.

19:18 David fled three miles to Samuel at Ramah. The prophet also knew fear of Saul (16:2), and the two of them went to Naioth, perhaps a designation of dwellings for prophets in Ramah (vv. 19,22).

19:20 As the king's agents encountered a group of prophets prophesying with Samuel, God's divine touch overrode their human intentions and they also started prophesying. This also happened with the next two groups that Saul sent (v. 21).

19:22 The large cistern at Secu is mentioned only here, but it may be alluded to in 9:11.

19:23 The Spirit of God overruled Saul's intentions just as He had done with the king's agents. The one who sought to kill God's servant now spoke God's praises.

19:24 The king laid aside his royal clothes, perhaps as a sign that he was soon to lay aside the kingship. He lay naked, an act of further humiliation for anyone, but especially for someone of such high rank. The proverb, Is Saul also among the prophets? (see 10:11), once again pointed to actions that were out of character for Saul.

20:1 David came to Jonathan, probably at a secret meeting place because Saul's men would have been watching for David around Gibeah.

20:2 Jonathan reassured David that as eldest son and army commander he knew everything, great or small, that his father planned. He did not believe Saul would hide this matter or any other matter from him.

20:3 David, however, had keener insight into the situation. Saul knew about Jonathan's and David's covenant and friendship. David suspected the king did not want Jonathan to be grieved by the struggle between him and David, though in the end Jonathan would be (v. 34). Yet, David knew he was potentially close to death if Saul could capture him.

20:5 The New Moon refers to a monthly festival (Nm 28:11-15) commemorated by the blowing of trumpets (Nm 10:10). David knew Saul would expect his presence at the meal, but he did not want to risk his life by coming to the palace until he knew Saul's intentions.

20:6 Jonathan would tell his father why David was not there if Saul asked about David's absence. The annual sacrifice to which Jonathan referred could have been some kind of offering the whole clan had determined to offer.

20:7 David trusted that God could reveal Saul's heart through the king's response to Jonathan's words.

20:8 David reminded Jonathan of the covenant they had made before the LORD

. David's passionate request If I have done anything wrong, then kill me yourself revealed the depth of his desire for integrity.

20:9 The text emphasizes Jonathan's loyalty to his friend David despite the fact that with David dead, Jonathan would most likely succeed Saul as king.

20:11 The two men probably went out to the field so no one would overhear their plan.

20:12-13 Jonathan swore an oath and invited God's punishment on himself if he did not report to David everything Saul intended to do. Jonathan's words of blessing, May the LORD be with you, affirm what the text has revealed—that God was with David (16:13,18; 18:12,28). Jonathan's words as He was with my father suggest he knew the Lord's Spirit had departed from Saul (16:14).

20:15 Jonathan asked David never to withdraw his faithful love from his house. Many new kings ordered the death of the former king's family to eliminate contenders for the throne. The Lord might judge every one of David's enemies, but David had nothing to fear from Jonathan. After Jonathan's death, David honored Jonathan's request (2Sm 9).

20:16 Jonathan now established a covenant with the house of David, not with David alone. God Himself would hold David's enemies accountable for their actions against His chosen servant.

20:17 On he loved him as he loved himself, see note at 18:1.

20:19 The Hebrew word translated rock also means "stone," but Ezel, though unknown outside this verse, was large enough to be known and to have its own name.

20:21-22 Jonathan proposed code language to alert David about Saul's intentions. Calling the young man back toward Jonathan to retrieve the three arrows meant that all was safe. Telling him to seek the arrows beyond him meant David should flee at once.

20:23 Jonathan invoked the Lord's oversight on his and David's agreement and their relationship.

20:25 Saul's seat by the wall offered greater security since no one could approach him from behind.

20:26 Saul's assumption that David was ceremonially unclean rested on his knowledge of David's faith, which would have prohibited him from partaking of the meal (Lv 7:20-21).

20:27 Saul became suspicious on the second day, when uncleanness would not have required David's absence.

20:28-29 Jonathan explained David's absence along the basic lines the two of them had agreed on (v. 6).

20:30 Saul's words, son of a perverse and rebellious woman, were an insult to Jonathan by defaming the character of his mother Ahinoam (14:50).

20:31 Saul's reference to your kingship reveals that he intended for Jonathan to succeed him, despite Samuel's pronouncement against his house (13:13-14). Send for him and bring him to me indicated Saul believed Jonathan knew David's whereabouts.

20:32 Jonathan cared about justice, not about the personal gain his father suggested might be in store for him. He would show loyalty to David, no matter what.

20:33 Saul threw his spear at Jonathan because he had sided with the king's enemy.

20:34 Jonathan was angry and sad over what had happened. It was his father's shameful behavior toward David that pained Jonathan more than having to dodge his father's spear.

20:37-38 Jonathan's words, The arrow is beyond you, signaled trouble for David (v. 22). He knew that David needed to flee as quickly as possible.

20:40 Though the coded signal had been sent and Jonathan could have departed, perhaps he could not bear to leave without talking with David first, so he sent the young man away. The yearning for a personal farewell led them to abandon the caution afforded them by their system of signals.

20:41 David's position shows the stone Ezel probably lay south of Gibeah, so that when Jonathan came out with his servant, they would not immediately see him. David bowed three times as a sign of his respect and admiration for Jonathan, and they kissed each other—a common sign of greeting and farewell among close friends in that culture. They wept because both sensed they might not see each other again.

20:42 Go in the assurance is literally "Go in peace." Jonathan could say this to David because of what they pledged in the name of the Lord—on His authority and with Him as a witness. The two of them would always remain friends, and they would do all they could to ensure their friendship extended to their offspring. David then left, heading southward (21:1), while Jonathan went into the city, where soon he would have to face his father again.

21:1 Ahimelech is mentioned for the first time here; some identify him with Ahijah (14:3). Nob lay approximately two miles south of Gibeah. Ahimelech was afraid, probably because he had heard of Saul's pursuit of David, a fact that would explain his questioning of David.

21:2 Though David said that the king had given him a mission, Saul in fact had not. David did not want to reveal his real circumstances to Ahimelech, lest Saul accuse the priest of aiding a fugitive (22:13).

21:4 Consecrated bread, also known as the bread of the Presence (v. 6), came from the tabernacle, where 12 loaves representing Israel's 12 tribes were exchanged weekly (Lv 24:5-9). Normally only priests ate this bread, but Ahimelech was willing to share it with ordinary soldiers if they were not ceremonially unclean due to sexual relations (Lv 15:18).

21:6 Jesus referred to this account in condemning the religious leaders for their rigid interpretation of the Mosaic law (Mt 12:1-4).

21:7 Perhaps Doeg the Edomite was a captive servant of Saul after Saul's campaign against Edom (14:47). The words detained before the LORD may mean Doeg lingered at the tabernacle to offer further sacrifices and prayers; other interpreters have suggested he was paying some form of penance or facing punishment for an offense.

21:9 The text does not explain how the sword of Goliath ended up in the tabernacle when David had earlier put it in his own tent (17:54). Perhaps David later had dedicated it to the Lord as some kind of offering.

21:10 The leading Philistine city, Gath, was located at the mouth of the Valley of Elah (17:1). King Achish ruled there, seemingly as chief among the Philistine lords (27:2-7; 29:2-4). David probably fled from Saul by going westward into the Sorek Valley to Beth-shemesh (6:9,12-13), then along a diagonal highway that connected Judah's valleys to Azekah (17:1), from whence he could proceed down the Valley of Elah.

21:11 Achish's servants were aware of David's fame among his own people, and they reported it to him. The tens of thousands David had killed included many Philistines.

21:12 David became afraid when he realized how much the Philistines knew about him.

21:13 In the ancient world, insane people were considered afflicted by the gods and generally left alone. David's letting saliva run down his beard brought further disgrace and confirmation of his affliction to Achish (Nm 12:14; Dt 25:9; Jb 17:6; 30:10).

21:15 Achish's statement Do I have . . . a shortage of crazy people probably was intended sarcastically, though other people with unusual physical features were also associated with Gath (17:4; 2Sm 21:20).

22:1 Adullam was located east of Socoh (17:1) approximately 10 miles into the Valley of Elah. David's retreat thus moved him back into Saul's territory. Probably David's brothers and his father's family met him in the cave because they feared Saul's reprisal against them.

22:2 Discontentment with the status quo under Saul influenced many people to join forces with David.

22:3 The exact location of Mizpeh of Moab is unknown, though the book of Ruth documents David's ancestral connections there (Ru 4:17-22).

22:4 The king of Moab may have been gracious to David because of his ancestral connections (Ru 1:4; 4:17-22) and as a favor to another enemy of Saul. The stronghold probably designates Mizpeh of Moab (v. 3), since the next verse suggests it was not in Judah.

22:5 Gad had contact with David at key points in his life (2Sm 24:11-14; 1Ch 29:29). Land of Judah probably designates Judah's hill country, since Adullam was also part of Judah.

22:7 Saul's rhetorical questions challenged his closest soldiers' loyalty. They should not think that David, a member of the tribe of Judah, would reward them with positions of power and authority if he took the kingship.

22:8 The king's words my son has stirred up my own servant to wait in ambush for me could not have been further from the truth; Jonathan, though he loved David, would later die fighting alongside his father (31:2).

22:9 Doeg the Edomite (21:7) now revealed he had seen David at Nob.

22:10 The earlier account of David and Ahimelech (21:1-9) does not say that Ahimelech inquired of the LORD for him, though verse 15 suggests he did.

22:13 Saul's question assumed that Ahimelech was guilty of conspiracy. The king made no attempt to investigate the matter thoroughly.

22:14 Ahimelech's rhetorical question to the king implied no one was as faithful as David, a suggestion Saul already had heard from Jonathan (19:4-5) and did not want to hear again.

22:15 David regularly inquired of God through His prophets and priests, while Saul did not. Ahimelech claimed he didn't have any idea about David's alleged conspiracy against the king (21:1-2,8). David would have kept Ahimelech ignorant of the real purpose of his visit so the priest could claim ignorance.

22:16 Saul ignored Ahimelech's words and passed the death sentence on the priest's entire household, a decree that further revealed his obsession to kill David.

22:17 Even the king's servants—probably his most trusted soldiers—would not . . . execute the priests because it was unclear if they were guilty of anything worthy of death.

22:18-19 Eighty-five priests died, along with every other living thing in Nob, because of Saul's misguided wrath.

22:20 Abiathar may have caught up with David at Keilah (23:6). He would later serve as priest before David (2Sm 20:25), though he did side with Adonijah, David's oldest son, when Adonijah tried to take the throne without David's blessing (1Kg 1:7; 2:26-27).

22:22 David had his suspicions that Doeg would report to Saul about David's visit to Nob, but had failed to deal with Doeg when he had the opportunity.

22:23 David suggested that he and Abiathar could trust each other because they had a common enemy (Saul) from whom they needed to protect themselves. Thus David aligned himself with the priests of the Lord, even as Saul further alienated himself from God.

23:1 Keilah was a town of Judah located about two miles south of Adullam. Raiding the threshing floors meant the Philistines were waiting until Keilah's citizens had harvested and threshed their grain, then they stole it from them.

23:2-4 God's instructions to launch an attack against the Philistines seemed too dangerous to David's men, who apparently felt that having one enemy, Saul, was risky enough. David's second inquiry confirmed God's command to rescue Keilah. Go at once is literally "Arise, go down," indicating David was probably still at the forest of Hereth (22:5) or even higher into the Judean hill country.

23:5 David and his men drove their livestock away to keep the cattle from eating all the grain on the threshing floors or to keep the Philistines from using them to carry off Israelite plunder.

23:6 On Abiathar's relationship to David, see note at 22:20.

23:7 Saul saw an opportunity to kill David because the town's barred gates would prevent his escape.

23:8 Saul's strategy was probably to besiege Keilah in the hope that its citizens would hand David over to them to avoid destruction (v. 12).

23:9 David wanted to inquire of the Lord again by consulting the ephod.

23:10 Saul had already destroyed one town because of David (22:19), so David thought he might destroy another.

23:11-12 Through David's inquiry, the Lord warned him that the citizens of Keilah would deliver him over to Saul, just as Saul had calculated (v. 8).

23:13 The number of David's sympathizers had grown by 50 percent (22:2). Perhaps Saul called off the expedition because he was reluctant to conduct a lengthy military campaign in Judah, David's own tribal territory.

23:14 The Wilderness of Ziph (Jos 15:55) was located about four and one-half miles southeast of Hebron, deep in Judah's hill country. Wilderness strongholds offered David high vantage points from which his watchmen could detect Saul's approach.

23:15 Horesh means "wooded height," but its exact location is unknown.

23:16 Somehow, perhaps through Saul's intelligence reports, Jonathan knew David's whereabouts. Jonathan came to David and encouraged him in his faith (lit "strengthened his hand") in God.

23:17 Jonathan's words were partly correct, because David would indeed be king over Israel. Jonathan, despite his humble willingness, would never become David's second-in-command because he would die in battle (31:2). Jonathan also suggested that his father Saul knew David would succeed him, a fact that would have made Saul's mental state all the more painful (24:20-21).

23:18 David and Jonathan made a covenant again, as they had done before (18:3; 20:14-16).

23:19-20 The Ziphites informed Saul of David's position in their territory and offered to hand him over to the king. Perhaps these Judahites feared Saul might do to them what he had done at Nob (22:18-19) and what he had considered doing at Keilah (23:7-8).

23:23 Saul apparently was willing to hunt David among all the clans of Judah if the Ziphites gave him information specific enough that Saul did not have to wage a long, protracted battle with his own people.

23:24 David and his men had moved near Maon about five miles south. Arabah means a desert or wilderness area with sparse vegetation, yet enough to sustain those accustomed to the life of a shepherd.

23:25 Rock denotes a large rock formation, perhaps a large cliff.

23:26 David may have hurried because he was outnumbered. On the other hand, he was Israel's most skilled warrior and he occupied the advantageous high ground. Perhaps David and his men were trying to avoid a bloody civil war.

23:28 Saul's desire to pursue David deep into the Judean wilderness gave the Philistines the opportunity to push into Israel's heartland again. Israel's enemies were capitalizing on Saul's internal troubles.

23:29 Located about 15 miles northeast of the Wilderness of Maon near the Dead Sea's north-south midpoint, En-gedi provided David's men with shelter and spring water.

24:1 The phrase returned from pursuing the Philistines probably means Saul pushed them back down into their territory and secured Israel's border again.

24:4 David cut off the corner of Saul's robe. This proved he was so close that he could have killed the king.

24:5-6 David immediately regretted his action against the king. Saul was still his lord and was still the LORD's anointed, although he had lost the presence of the Lord (16:14).

24:10 David encouraged the king to consider his action in sparing his life rather than relying on what others were saying about him.

24:11 With his words my father, David even appealed to his son-in-law relationship with Saul. He contrasted his own lack of evil or rebellion against the king with the king's ruthless campaign against him.

24:12 David invited the LORD to judge Saul and once again pledged he would not retaliate against Saul.

24:13 David cited what was probably a well-known saying at the time—Wickedness comes from wicked people (cp. Pr 18:3)—to illustrate he was not wicked because he had spared Saul's life when he could have killed him.

24:14 By comparing himself to a dead dog or a flea, David suggested that Saul was squandering precious manpower and resources. David was not worth going after since he was a loyal subject.

24:16 At David's words Saul wept aloud with tears of repentance, but his repentance would be short-lived (26:1-2).

24:20 Saul confessed full knowledge of God's plan. Samuel had told him part of it earlier (13:14; 15:26-28), and Saul now realized that David would succeed him.

24:21 Saul asked David not to cut off his descendants or wipe out his name. Succeeding kings often did this to eliminate potential rivals or family reprisals (1Kg 15:29; 16:11).

24:22 David swore to Saul as the king had requested in an attempt to prove his loyalty yet again.

25:1 Samuel's death marked the end of a significant era for all Israel. His faithful leadership helped the nation make the transition from theocracy to monarchy. The Wilderness of Paran (Gn 21:21; Nm 10:12; 13:3) lay beyond Judah's southern edge.

25:2-3 Maon and Carmel were only about a mile apart on the edge of the Judean wilderness. Nabal was descended from Caleb, a friend of Joshua (Nm 13:6; Jos 14:6-14).

25:4 Shearing sheep was normally a festive occasion (Gn 38:12) since wool was a valuable commodity (2Kg 3:4).

25:7-8 David reminded Nabal of a time when he and his men provided protection for Nabal's livestock. David now asked Nabal to return the favor and provide him and his men with whatever he could afford from his profits.

25:10-11 Nabal's response was arrogant and insulting. He compared David to a runaway slave, insinuating that he was a nobody who was running from Saul.

25:13 David planned to execute vengeance on Nabal with his soldiers.

25:14 One of Nabal's young men realized the folly of Nabal's action and told Abigail, Nabal's wife, about her husband's offensive action toward David.

25:17 The words consider carefully what you must do from Nabal's employees show they had probably come to Abigail on other occasions to cover Nabal's bad decisions. They would not have referred to him as such a worthless fool unless he had a history of poor judgment.

25:18 The provisions listed represented a sizable and thoughtful gift, though it would not have been enough to sustain 600 men and their families.

25:19 Abigail's servants would run ahead to David and tell him that she was bringing provisions for his men.

25:20 Since Abigail descended through a mountain pass hidden from view, she may have thought it all the more important to let David know she was coming.

25:21-22 David was so disgusted with Nabal that he did not even mention his name. He referred to him as this man, a translation of one Hebrew syllable (zeh). When David expected gratitude and hospitality, he received insults. Consequently, David had vowed to kill all the men in Nabal's household.

25:23 Abigail bowed to David, treating him as a superior and humbling herself before him. Ironically, David had earlier humbled himself before Nabal (v. 8) but to no avail.

25:25-26 Though Abigail referred to her husband as worthless, she interceded with David to save his life. She suggested she was the Lord's agent in heading off needless bloodshed, the act of which might bring guilt on David and serious damage to his reputation in Israel.

25:28 The expression your servant's offense refers to Abigail, not to Nabal, and it designates a serious transgression. Again, she took responsibility for Nabal's sin even as she spoke of what she saw as David's future—a lasting dynasty. Perhaps Abigail implied the LORD 's battles should not include a skirmish with Nabal.

25:29 Some interpreters believe the expression tucked safely in the place may designate the Book of Life (Php 4:3; Rv 3:5; 22:19), but the expression at least denotes God's sovereign protection of His righteous ones. The imagery of God flinging away David's enemies like stones from a sling was well chosen in light of David's use of a sling against Goliath (17:49-51).

25:31 Abigail didn't want David to suffer remorse or a troubled conscience after he became king because he had slaughtered Nabal's household needlessly. The words remember me your servant must have seemed a bit peculiar to David since Abigail was married, but time would prove her words true (v. 39).

25:32-35 David confirmed Abigail's role as God's instrument of deliverance for her husband and her household. He told her, I have . . . granted your request (lit "I have lifted up your face").

25:36 Nabal's drunken state showed that he had no idea how much danger he faced barring Abigail's intervention. The phrase until morning light refers to the time by which he and his servants would have been killed (v. 34).

25:37 Nabal had a seizure and became paralyzed is literally "His heart died within him and he became a stone."

25:39 David praised the Lord for two things: (1) intervening for him, and (2)

protecting him from doing evil. In the final analysis, God brought judgment against Nabal.

25:40 Some interpreters believe David was playing the role of the family redeemer to Abigail (Dt 25:5-6), though the text does not suggest this and biblical genealogical lists (1Ch 2:3-17; 4:15-20) do not support it.

25:41 Abigail's humble response was typical of her culture, though she fully expected David to take her as his wife, not as someone to wash the feet of his servants.

25:42 Marrying Abigail gave David control of a sizable estate in Judah and gained him valuable resources for his cause.

25:43 The biblical text says about Ahinoam of Jezreel only that she bore Amnon, David's firstborn (2Sm 3:2). Jezreel probably designates the Judahite city (Jos 15:56), not the more famous city in the Jezreel Valley.

25:44 The text does not clarify whether Saul gave his daughter Michal, who was already David's wife (18:27), to another man at her request or as punishment for her support of David against her father (19:17).

26:1 The Ziphites (see note at 23:19) came to Saul at Gibeah with a report that David had returned to his earlier hiding place in Judah.

26:3 If Saul was on the hill of Hachilah, it would mean he had chosen high ground for his camp, which provided him better protection.

26:5 David's place designates a safe vantage point (probably higher—see note at v. 6) from which David could see Saul and Abner inside the inner circle of the camp.

26:6 Ahimelech is described as a Hittite (i.e., foreigner), but his name is Hebrew or at least related to Hebrew. Joab's brother Abishai is introduced here; he would play an active role in David's kingship (2Sm 10:10; 18:2-3; 23:18). Go is literally "go down," implying David was at a higher point than Saul and thus at an advantage.

26:8 Abishai must have whispered to David since he stood with him in the midst of Saul's army (but see 26:12).

26:9 On lift a hand against the LORD's anointed, see note at 24:6.

26:10 David was content to leave Saul's life in the Lord's hands, a lesson that had just been reinforced in his dealings with Nabal (25:39).

26:11 The spear and the water jug would provide evidence that David had been close enough to kill Saul.

26:12 This deep sleep from the LORD was His specific intervention so He could teach Saul a further lesson about David's loyalty.

26:13 The words on top of the mountain at a distance means this was a safe distance from Saul, but it provided good acoustics so David could call to the king.

26:15 The phrase one of the people came to destroy him may refer to Abishai, who wanted to destroy Saul (v. 8), or hypothetically to David himself, who could have destroyed Saul as he stood over him.

26:19 David could identify only two sources of Saul's desire to kill him—the LORD or the people. If the Lord, David wanted Saul to allow him to sacrifice a freewill offering to restore the broken fellowship between himself, God, and Saul. But if people had falsely accused him, David called on them to be cursed. Their false accusations had the effect of driving David away from the inheritance of the LORD, treating him as if he were not an Israelite.

26:20 David compared himself to a flea or a partridge (see note at 24:14) to suggest Saul's pursuit of him was a waste of resources.

26:21 Saul's words sounded repentant, but Saul's past actions raised serious doubts in David's mind about their genuineness.

26:22 David's suggestion that one of the young men of Saul retrieve the king's spear was a tactful way of saying he was not returning with Saul.

26:23-24 David called on the Lord to repay those involved (especially him and Saul) as God saw their hearts. David didn't ask for Saul to consider his life valuable; he asked for the Lord to do so.

26:25 Saul's words appear to be an admission that God had great things in store for his son-in-law. The two went on their way, having spoken the last words they would ever say to each other.

27:2 On 600 men, see note at 23:13. This number did not include the men's families, who traveled with them (27:3). David earlier had feared Achish (21:10-15), but now he determined to join him. On Gath, see note at 21:10.

27:3 Achish granted David and his men refuge in accord with the principle, "The enemy of my enemy is my friend." On Ahinoam, see note at 25:43. On Abigail, see various notes at 25:14-42.

27:5 David's request that he receive one of the outlying towns may have helped Achish's reputation with his own people, since some Philistines may have wondered why their king harbored a noted Israelite warrior in Gath, the royal city. David probably also desired the safety that a little distance from the Philistine capital provided.

27:6 The city of Ziklag was located approximately 25 miles southwest of Gath. It originally was allotted to both the tribes of Simeon (Jos 19:5) and Judah (Jos 15:31), but Israel never conquered it. Now Ziklag came under Israelite control without a fight. The phrase it still belongs to the kings of Judah today designates the time of the writing of the books of 1 and 2 Samuel (see note at 6:17-18).

27:7 Many scholars have dated the time designated by a year and four months to around 1012 B.C.

27:8 The Geshurites (Jos 13:1-2), the Girzites, and the Amalekites (Ex 17:15-16; Dt 25:17-19) were three non-Israelite groups under God's sentence of judgment. The Girzites occupied territory that overlapped with the promised land.

27:9 David's action against these groups fulfilled God's earlier command to Israel during the days of Joshua to wipe out the land's evil inhabitants (Jos 13:1-7). It also left no witnesses who could relay word to Achish (v. 11).

27:10 David's claim to have raided the south country of Judah was technically correct, and he did fight people in the region of the Jerahmeelites and Kenites, two Judahite clans. Achish thought David meant he had destroyed many Israelites in the process.

27:12 Though Achish trusted David and assumed he would be Achish's servant forever, David was actually eliminating future rivals in Judah's territory.

28:1 Achish's words to David present a serious tension in the narrative. If David's forces were to march with the Philistines, he would end up fighting against his own people as he fought against Saul's army.

28:3 The law of Moses prohibited consulting with mediums and spiritists (Lv 19:31; 20:27; Dt 18:10-11), so Saul's effort to rid the land of them was commendable.

28:4 The Philistines camped at Shunem deep into the Jezreel Valley at the foot of Mount Moreh. Saul camped at Gilboa at the valley's southeastern edge, a vantage point from which he could observe the enemy army.

28:5 Jonathan, Saul's son, knew the Lord was not limited by the size of Israel's army (14:6), but Saul trembled violently when he saw the numbers in the Philistine camp.

28:6 Saul inquired of the LORD for direction. Urim (lit "lights") denoted the device the priest used for discerning God's will (Ex 28:30; Nm 27:21), but Saul may not have had that available to him since Abiathar had taken the ephod to David (23:6). The prophets likewise gave Saul no answer, perhaps because Saul had cut himself off from them through his clash with Samuel (15:34-35).

28:7 Desperate to find spiritual guidance of any kind about war with the Philistines, Saul turned to the very avenue he knew was wrong and had tried to destroy. Traveling to En-dor would present some risk, since it lay about six miles northeast and two miles beyond the Philistine camp.

28:8 Saul disguised himself to avoid being recognized by Philistines who might be patrolling the valley. Traveling with only two of his men put the king in a high-risk situation, but they also looked less “official” than a large group.

28:9 The medium knew about Saul’s cleansing Israel of spiritism and suspected the king of setting a trap for her.

28:10 The king swore that she would suffer no harm—an oath by the very LORD who condemned divination.

28:12 The text suggests that the spirit of Samuel actually appeared and alluded to events in which Samuel had participated (vv. 15-19); the tone of his speech sounds just like Samuel. Perhaps the woman recognized Saul in the light of Samuel’s appearance, or perhaps the king pulled back his hood to look closer at the spirit who appeared before them.

28:16 Since Samuel was the Lord’s servant and spoke as God’s representative, it didn’t make sense for Saul to ask for guidance from Samuel since God had refused to answer him. In the next three verses, however, Samuel would give Saul his answer, though it wasn’t the answer Saul wanted to hear.

28:17 The spirit of Samuel specifically named Saul’s successor as David, whereas before he had only alluded to him (13:14; 15:28).

28:18 The words of Samuel’s spirit, You did not obey the LORD, is a reference to 15:1-3,7-9—Saul’s miserable failure regarding Amalek, whom God had commanded Saul to destroy.

28:19 The nation’s defeat would come at God’s hands. The words of Samuel’s spirit, you and your sons will be with me, was an unmistakable verdict of death on Saul and his house.

28:20 The content of Samuel’s words, along with Saul’s weariness from traveling six miles, the stress of impending battle, and his fasting all day and all night (cp. 14:24,28), left the king totally exhausted.

28:23 Saul’s initial refusal to eat may have been because he did not wish to break his vow of fasting (cp. 14:24), but the people around him prevailed upon him to take some nourishment (see note at 14:45).

28:24 A fattened calf was a very nice dinner in a land where meat was not eaten very often. Unleavened bread could be prepared quickly (Ex 12:34).

28:25 The six-mile return journey would bring more stress on Saul, and he would also get little rest to prepare for the battle the next day.

29:1 The text now flashes back to 28:1-2, a time prior to the armies gathering at Shunem and Gilboa (28:4). Aphek was located along the Yarkon River; it marked the site where the Philistines had gathered years earlier to fight Israel during the days of Eli the high priest (4:1). The spring in Jezreel probably refers to a spring in the valley near the town. By camping at Jezreel, Israel gave the Philistines full access to the valley where Philistine chariots would be more effective.

29:2 David and his men joined Achish and the Philistine leaders as they prepared for battle. David's position behind them meant that if he turned traitor, Philistine forces could be trapped between Saul and David (vv. 4-5).

29:3 In response to the concerns of the Philistine commanders, Achish affirmed David's loyalty to him during the considerable period of time (16 months, 27:7) that David had served him.

29:4 The Philistine commanders refused to accept Achish's explanation. If David should become their adversary during the battle, they could suffer heavy casualties. They also suspected that David, as one of Saul's former generals, might choose just such a time to regain his master's favor. The words heads of our men may recall the Goliath episode (17:51).

29:6 With his words, as the LORD lives, Achish recognized the power of God in David's life.

29:7 The Philistine leaders were not ready to kill David and his men, but they couldn't bring themselves to trust him in a battle against his own people.

29:9 Achish affirmed his faith in David, but he felt compelled to follow the counsel of his Philistine commanders.

29:10 Achish commanded David to leave early in the morning so he wouldn't hinder the Philistine advance northward. Your master's servants designated David's men who had defected from Saul to David.

29:11 David's departure providentially prevented him from participating in the battle that would claim Saul's life. Meanwhile, the Philistines went up to Jezreel (perhaps a reference to the valley rather than the town), where they soon would face off against Saul.

30:1 On Ziklag, see note at 27:6. The town was still under Philistine control (29:11). The Amalekites whom Saul should have destroyed (15:1-3) had raided the Negev (the southern region) and burned the city down.

30:2 Though Saul had nearly destroyed the Amalekites (15:7-9), they did not retaliate in kind. Rather, they kidnapped the women and everyone in the city.

30:5 David's two wives did not escape the Amalekite attack, so he shared personally in the grief that others experienced.

30:6 The pain the troops felt over the loss of their sons and daughters led some to blame David for their troubles. Nonetheless, David found strength (lit "strengthened himself") in the LORD his God, a testimony to his faith in difficult times.

30:7 David summoned Abiathar the priest to inquire of the Lord through the ephod (see note at 14:3).

30:9 The Wadi Besor lay about 15 miles south of Ziklag.

30:10 A third of David's warriors were too exhausted to continue farther because of: (1) their 55-mile journey from Aphek to Ziklag over three days (29:11-30:1), (2) the emotional pain of seeing Ziklag destroyed and their families gone, and (3) the 15-mile trek from Ziklag to the Wadi Besor.

30:14 The Cherethites lived along the coast near the Philistines (Ezk 25:16). The south country of Caleb denoted the region around Hebron (Jos 14:13-14; 15:13-15). The words we burned down Ziklag implicated the Egyptian in the battle; at the same time, it provided David a potential opportunity.

30:15 David asked whether the man now had more loyalty to those who had saved his life than to those who had left him for dead. The man's reply shows he realized he was in a difficult situation. He had implicated himself in the battle at Ziklag, so he wanted some assurance that David would not cast him aside as his master had.

30:16 The language emphasizes how the Amalekites were not expecting any kind of retaliation from either the Philistines or Judah, but they underestimated David's resolve.

30:17 Despite the long journey David and his men had undertaken, they received renewed energy from finding their families alive and from discovering the Amalekites so vulnerable.

30:18-19 The Lord's hand on David's army was evident as David recovered everything the Amalekites had taken, including all the people.

30:20 The phrase all the sheep and cattle designates additional animals not part of the people's assets at Ziklag, since it was called David's plunder.

30:21 On the 200 exhausted men, see note at verse 10.

30:22 Normally the victorious soldiers would divide the spoils of the battle. Some of those who had fought did not want to share any of the plunder with those who were too tired to proceed past the Wadi Besor.

30:23 David's reply revealed his character. He emphasized that the Lord had protected them and brought the victory. Who could have imagined the rescue of absolutely everything they lost with no loss of life?

30:24 David's insistence that warriors and keepers of the supplies would share equally in the spoils parallels the concept of the unity of the body of Christ described in the NT (Rm 12:3-8).

30:25 David's decision about the equitable distribution of plunder became a law and an ordinance for future generations. The specific mention of Israel anticipates David's reign over the entire country. On to this very day, see note at 6:17-18.

30:26 The plunder of the LORD's enemies came most recently from the Amalekites, but it may have included property that the elders of Judah would recognize as formerly taken from them in Amalekite raids.

30:27 The exact location of most of the places in Judah mentioned in verses 27-31 is uncertain. Ramoth of the Negev is mentioned in Jos 19:8. Jattir was a Levitical city (Jos 21:14), designated for the Levites with its surrounding pasture lands.

30:28 Eshtemoa was also a Levitical city (Jos 21:14).

30:29 The Jerahmeelites and Kenites lived in the areas where David had fought and destroyed Israel's enemies (27:10).

30:30 Hormah was a place that the Israelites had fought and conquered at least three times (Nm 21:3; Jos 12:14; Jdg 1:17).

30:31 Hebron, Judah's natural capital, lay about 19 miles south of Jerusalem in the Judean hill country. Hebron was conquered by Caleb during Joshua's time (Jos 14:13-14), and it became both a Levitical city (Jos 21:13) and a city of refuge (Jos 20:7). After Saul's death, the city became David's capital for seven and one-half years (2Sm 5:5).

31:1 The account now shifts to the Jezreel Valley. Israel's men fled from them; that is, Israel lost the battle (4:17). On Mount Gilboa, see note at 28:4.

31:2 Kings and princes normally shielded themselves from the risks associated with the battlefield (2Sm 18:2-4; 21:15-17), but in this battle, the Philistines overtook Saul and his sons.

31:3 Archers provided the advantage of inflicting potentially fatal injuries from a distance; raining arrows on Saul's position proved effective.

31:4 Saul feared the Philistines would capture him alive and perhaps treat him as they had treated Samson in the judges period (Jdg 16:21). Saul's armor-bearer, however, was paralyzed with fear and could not bring himself to obey the king's request (run me through). So Saul took his own sword and fell on it. On the discrepancy between these words and 2Sm 1:6-10, see the notes at those verses.

31:7 News of the Philistine victory spread quickly throughout the region. Israelites living on the other side of the valley . . . abandoned the cities, as did those directly down the Harod Valley (also called the Beth-shan Valley) and beyond the Jordan River. The Philistine settlements in this region marked the enemy's deepest penetration into Israel's heartland, but after David became king, he subdued them and restricted them to the Judean coastal region.

31:8 Part of plundering the enemy involved returning to strip the dead of their valuables. The Philistine victory had been so complete that no Israelites had dared try to rescue the bodies of Saul and his three sons.

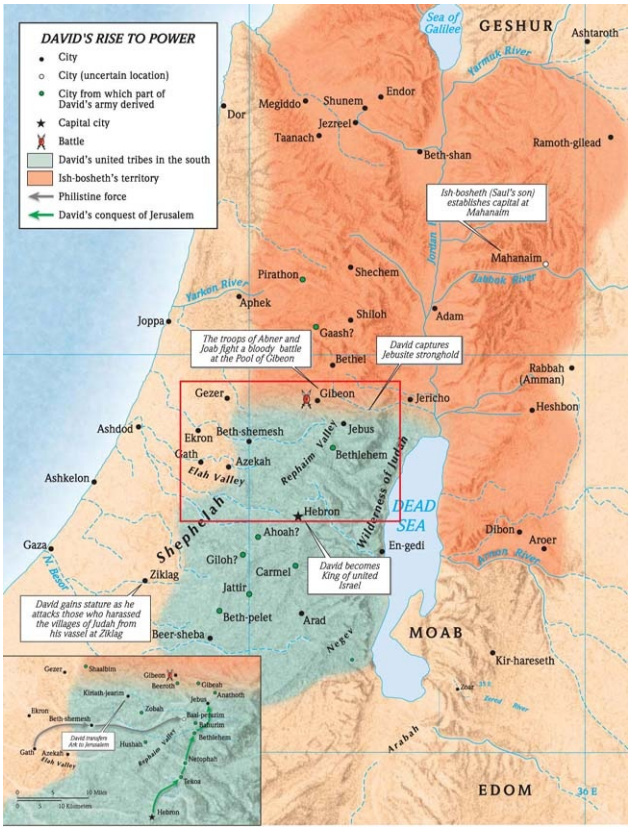
31:9 First Chronicles 10:10 notes that Saul's head was placed in the temple of Dagon, perhaps at Ashdod (1Sm 5:1-2), symbolizing Dagon's victory over Israel's king.

31:10 Ashtoreths designated images of the Canaanite goddess Ashtoreth, consort of Baal (7:3-4; 12:10). Beth-shan was an Israelite city at the mouth of the valley near the Jordan River, probably abandoned by the Israelites in the wake of the Philistine victory (v. 7).

31:11 Jabesh-gilead was a city east of the Jordan River whose citizens Saul rescued from Nahash, king of Ammon (11:1-11).

31:12 Retrieving the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons would have been risky since the Philistines occupied the valley, but Jabesh-gilead's brave men did so—probably under cover of darkness. At Jabesh, they burned the bodies, not to ashes, but on a funeral pyre to remove the flesh, probably to protect them from further abuse by wild animals. They had not been able to repay the king for saving them during his life, but they would do what they could now to honor his memory.

31:13 Fasting was a sign of mourning out of deep respect for Saul and his sons.



Mount Gilboa (31:8) Word Studies beliyya‘al Hebrew Pronunciation [beh liy YAH al]

HCSB Translation worthless, wicked, destruction Uses in 1 Samuel 6
Uses in the OT 27
Focus Passage 1 Samuel 10:27

Beliyya‘al, a strongly derogatory noun, may be formed from beliy (not) and ya‘al (profit). It is sometimes used alone, meaning the wicked (2Sm 23:6). It later became the devil’s name Belial (2Co 6:15). Beliyya‘al modifies ben (“son”; 9x) and ’iysh (“man”; 5x), both phrases occurring synonymously in 1Kg 21:13. Beliyya‘al describes worthless (Jb 34:18), wicked (1Sm 2:12), and perverted (Jdg 19:22) men. A “son/daughter of beliyya‘al” is a worthless fool (1Sm 25:17) or wicked woman (1Sm 1:16). Such people are like thorns (2Sm 23:6), rebellious (2Ch 13:7) false accusers (1Kg 21:10) who lie (Pr 6:12), encourage idolatry (Dt 13:13), and plot evil against God (Nah 1:11). Beliyya‘al with davar (“word, thing”) implies wicked thought (Dt 15:9), anything worthless (Ps 101:3), or lethal poison (Ps 41:8).

nacham Hebrew Pronunciation [nah KHAHM]
HCSB Translation relent, comfort, repent Uses in 1 Samuel 4
Uses in the OT 108
Focus Passage 1 Samuel 15:11,29,35

Nacham means change one’s mind (Ex 13:17). God regrets (Gn 6:6) or relents (1Ch 21:15). Sinners repent (Jr 31:19). One takes words back (Ps 110:4). Nacham often entails reaching a positive condition; one finishes mourning (Gn 38:12), is moved to pity (Jdg 2:18), or is satisfied (Is 57:6). Nacham implies having (Jdg 21:6) or showing (Jr 15:6) compassion. Intensive forms denote console (2Sm 10:2), comfort (Gn 37:35), or bring relief (Gn 5:29). Intensive participles suggest comforters (Ps 69:20) or men with condolences (2Sm 10:3). Reflexive-passive verbs signify console oneself (Gn 27:42), find comfort (Ps 119:52), be appeased (Ezk 5:13), or have compassion (Dt 32:36). God does not change His mind (Nm 23:19).

’adon Hebrew Pronunciation [ah DOAN]
HCSB Translation lord, Lord Uses in 1 Samuel 38
Uses in the OT 335
Focus Passage 1 Samuel 25:10,14,17,24-31,41

’Adon may derive from a word meaning “father” and is related to the Greek deity Adonis. In the OT, it refers to human lords of all kinds about 300 times and to the divine Lord about 30 times. This count excludes the divine name ’Adonai, which is a special development of the word ’adon, although it is also translated “Lord.” ’Adon is also commonly translated master (Gn 24:9) and can be sir (Gn 31:35). It is especially frequent as a title of respect for people in the phrase my lord (Ex 32:22). ’Adon can refer to other positions of authority such as owner (1Kg 16:24), supervisor (Neh 3:5), or husband (Am 4:1). It sometimes appears in the plural of majesty in relation to God (Neh 8:10), and in compound names for God. The phrases Lord of all the earth (Jos 3:11) and Lord of lords (Dt 10:17) reflect ’adon.

Responses to Saul’s Death

1 After the death of Saul, [a] David returned from defeating the Amalekites [b] and stayed at Ziklag two days. 2 On the third day a man with torn clothes and dust on his head [c] came from Saul's camp. When he came to David, he fell to the ground and paid homage.
3 David asked him, "Where have you come from? "
He replied to him, "I've escaped from the Israelite camp."
4 "What was the outcome? Tell me," David asked him.
"The troops fled from the battle," he answered. "Many of the troops have fallen and are dead. Also, Saul and his son Jonathan are dead." [d] 5 David asked the young man who had brought him the report, "How do you know Saul and his son Jonathan are dead? " 6 "I happened to be on Mount Gilboa," [e] he replied, "and there was Saul, leaning on his spear. At that very moment the chariots and the cavalry were closing in on him. 7 When he turned around and saw me, he called out to me, so I answered: I'm at your service. 8 He asked me, 'Who are you? ' I told him: I'm an Amalekite. [f] 9 Then he begged me, 'Stand over me and kill me, for I'm mortally wounded, [g] but my life still lingers.' [h] 10 So I stood over him and killed him because I knew that after he had fallen he couldn't survive. I took the crown that was on his head and the armband that was on his arm, and I've brought them here to my lord." 11 Then David took hold of his clothes and tore them, [i] and all the men with him did the same. 12 They mourned, wept, and fasted until the evening [j] for those who died by the sword — for Saul, his son Jonathan, the LORD's people, and the house of Israel.
13 David inquired of the young man who had brought him the report, "Where are you from? "
"I'm the son of a foreigner," he said. "I'm an Amalekite."
14 David questioned him, "How is it that you were not afraid to lift your hand to destroy the LORD's anointed? " [k] 15 Then David summoned one of his servants and said, "Come here and kill him! " The servant struck him, and he died. [l] 16 For David had said to the Amalekite, "Your blood is on your own head [m] because your own mouth testified against you by saying, 'I killed the LORD's anointed.' " 17 David sang the following lament [n] for Saul and his son Jonathan, 18 and he ordered that the Judahites be taught The Song of the Bow. It is written in the Book of Jashar: [A,] [o]

19 The splendor of Israel lies slain on your heights.
How the mighty have fallen!
20 Do not tell it in Gath, don't announce it in the marketplaces of Ashkelon, or the daughters of the Philistines will rejoice, [p]
and the daughters of the uncircumcised will gloat.
21 Mountains of Gilboa, let no dew or rain be on you,
or fields of offerings, [q]
for there the shield of the mighty was defiled [r] —
the shield of Saul, no longer anointed with oil. [s] 22 Jonathan's bow never retreated, Saul's sword never returned unstained, [B] from the blood of the slain, from the bodies of the mighty.
23 Saul and Jonathan, loved and delightful,
they were not parted in life or in death.
They were swifter than eagles, stronger than lions.
24 Daughters of Israel, weep for Saul, who clothed you in scarlet, with luxurious things, who decked your garments with gold ornaments. [t]
25 How the mighty have fallen in the thick of battle!
Jonathan lies slain on your heights.
26 I grieve for you, Jonathan, my brother.
You were such a friend to me.
Your love for me was more wonderful than the love of women. [u] 27 How the mighty have fallen and the weapons of war have perished!

David, King of Judah

2 Some time later, David inquired of the LORD: [a] “Should I go to one of the towns of Judah? ”

The LORD answered him, “Go.”

Then David asked, “Where should I go? ”

“To Hebron,” [b] the LORD replied.

2 So David went there with his two wives, Ahinoam the Jezreelite and Abigail, the widow of Nabal the Carmelite. [c] 3 In addition, David brought the men who were with him, each one with his household, and they settled in the towns near Hebron. [d] 4 Then the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah. [e] They told David: “It was the men of Jabesh-gilead who buried Saul.” [f]

5 David sent messengers to the men of Jabesh-gilead and said to them, “The LORD bless you, because you have shown this kindness to Saul your lord when you buried him. 6 Now, may the LORD show kindness and faithfulness to you, and I will also show the same goodness to you because you have done this deed. 7 Therefore, be strong and courageous, for though Saul your lord is dead, the house of Judah has anointed me king over them.”

8 Abner son of Ner, commander of Saul’s army, [g] took Saul’s son Ish-bosheth [h, i] and moved him to Mahanaim. 9 He made him king over Gilead, Asher, Jezreel, Ephraim, Benjamin — over all Israel. 10 Saul’s son Ish-bosheth was 40 years old when he began his reign over Israel; he ruled for two years. The house of Judah, however, followed David. 11 The length of time that David was king in Hebron over the house of Judah was seven years and six months. [j]

12 Abner son of Ner and soldiers of Ish-bosheth son of Saul marched out from Mahanaim to Gibeon. 13 So Joab son of Zeruiah and David’s soldiers marched out and met them by the pool of Gibeon. [k] The two groups took up positions on opposite sides of the pool.

14 Then Abner said to Joab, “Let’s have the young men get up and compete in front of us.”

“Let them get up,” Joab replied.

15 So they got up and were counted off — 12 for Benjamin and Ish-bosheth son of Saul, and 12 from David’s soldiers. 16 Then each man grabbed his opponent by the head and thrust his sword into his opponent’s side so that they all died together. So this place, which is in Gibeon, is named Field of Blades. [A]

17 The battle that day was extremely fierce, and Abner and the men of Israel were defeated by David’s soldiers. 18 The three sons of Zeruiah were there:

Joab, Abishai, and Asahel. [l] Asahel was a fast runner, like one of the wild gazelles. [m] 19 He chased Abner and did not turn to the right or the left in his pursuit of him. 20 Abner glanced back and said, “Is that you, Asahel? ”

“Yes it is,” Asahel replied.

21 Abner said to him, “Turn to your right or left, seize one of the young soldiers, and take whatever you can get from him.” But Asahel would not stop chasing him. 22 Once again, Abner warned Asahel, “Stop chasing me. Why should I strike you to the ground? How could I ever look your brother Joab in the face? ” [n]

23 But Asahel refused to turn away, so Abner hit him in the stomach with the end of his spear. The spear went through his body, and he fell and died right there. When all who came to the place where Asahel had fallen and died, they stopped, 24 but Joab and Abishai pursued Abner. By sunset, they had gone as far as the hill of Ammah, which is opposite Giah on the way to the wilderness of Gibeon.

25 The Benjaminites rallied to Abner; they formed a single unit and took their stand on top of a hill. 26 Then Abner called out to Joab: “Must the sword devour forever? Don’t you realize this will only end in bitterness? How long before you tell the troops to stop pursuing their brothers? ”

27 “As God lives,” Joab replied, “if you had not spoken up, the troops wouldn’t have stopped pursuing their brothers until morning.” [o] 28 Then Joab blew the ram’s horn, and all the troops stopped; they no longer pursued Israel or continued to fight. 29 So Abner and his men marched through the •Arabah all that night. They crossed the Jordan, marched all morning, [B] and arrived at Mahanaim. [p]

30 When Joab had turned back from pursuing Abner, he gathered all the troops. In addition to Asahel, 19 of David’s soldiers were missing, 31 but they had killed 360 of the Benjaminites and Abner’s men. 32 Afterward, they carried Asahel to his father’s tomb in Bethlehem and buried him. Then Joab and his men marched all night and reached Hebron at dawn.

Civil War

3 The war between the house of Saul and the house of David was long and drawn out, with David growing stronger and the house of Saul becoming weaker.
2 Sons were born to David in Hebron:

his firstborn was Amnon,
by Ahinoam [a] the Jezreelite; 3 his second was Chileab, by Abigail, the widow of Nabal the Carmelite;
the third was Absalom, son of Maacah the daughter of King Talmai of Geshur; [b] 4 the fourth was Adonijah, [c] son of Haggith;
the fifth was Shephatiah,
son of Abital;
5 the sixth was Ithream,
by David's wife Eglah.

These were born to David in Hebron. [d]
6 During the war between the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner kept acquiring more power in the house of Saul. [e] 7 Now Saul had a concubine whose name was Rizpah [f] daughter of Aiah, and Ish-bosheth questioned Abner,
"Why did you sleep with my father's concubine? "
8 Abner was very angry about Ish-bosheth's accusation. "Am I a dog's head [g, h] who belongs to Judah? " he asked. "All this time I've been loyal to the house of your father Saul, to his brothers, and to his friends and haven't handed you over to David, but now you accuse me of wrongdoing with this woman! 9 May God punish Abner and do so severely if I don't do for David what the LORD swore to him: 10 to transfer the kingdom from the house of Saul and establish the throne of David over Israel and Judah [i] from Dan to Beer-sheba." 11 Ish-bosheth could not answer Abner because he was afraid of him.
12 Abner sent messengers as his representatives to say to David, "Whose land is it? Make your covenant with me, and you can be certain I am on your side to hand all Israel over to you." 13 David replied, "Good, I will make a covenant with you. However, there's one thing I require of you: Do not appear before me unless you bring Saul's daughter Michal [j] here when you come to see me."

14 Then David sent messengers to say to Ish-bosheth son of Saul, “Give me back my wife, Michal. I was •engaged to her for the price of 100 Philistine foreskins.” [k]

15 So Ish-bosheth sent someone to take her away from her husband, Paltiel son of Laish. [l] 16 Her husband followed her, weeping all the way to Bahurim. Abner said to him, “Go back.” So he went back.

The Assassination of Abner

17 Abner conferred with the elders of Israel: “In the past you wanted David to be king over you. 18 Now take action, because the LORD has spoken concerning David: ‘Through My servant David I will save My people Israel from the power of the Philistines and the power of all Israel’s enemies.’ ” 19 Abner also informed the Benjaminites and went to Hebron to inform David about all that was agreed on by Israel and the whole house of Benjamin. [m] 20 When Abner and 20 men came to David at Hebron, David held a banquet for him and his men.
21 Abner said to David, “Let me now go and I will gather all Israel to my lord the king. They will make a covenant with you, [n] and you will rule over all you desire.” So David dismissed Abner, and he went in peace.
22 Just then David’s soldiers and Joab returned from a raid and brought a large amount of plundered goods with them. Abner was not with David in Hebron because David had dismissed him, and he had gone in peace. 23 When Joab and all his army arrived, Joab was informed, “Abner son of Ner came to see the king, the king dismissed him, and he went in peace.” 24 Joab went to the king and said, “What have you done? Look here, Abner came to you. Why did you dismiss him? Now he’s getting away. 25 You know that Abner son of Ner came to deceive you and to find out about your activities and everything you’re doing.” 26 Then Joab left David and sent messengers after Abner. They brought him back from the well [A] of Sirah, but David was unaware of it. 27 When Abner returned to Hebron, Joab pulled him aside to the middle of the gateway, as if to speak to him privately, and there Joab stabbed him in the stomach. So Abner died in revenge for the death of Asahel, [B] Joab’s brother. [o] 28 David heard about it later and said: “I and my kingdom are forever innocent before the LORD concerning the blood of Abner son of Ner. 29 May it hang over Joab’s head and his father’s whole house, and may the house of Joab never be without someone who has a discharge or a skin disease, [p] or a man who can only work a spindle, [q] or someone who falls by the sword or starves.” 30 Joab and his brother Abishai killed Abner because he had put their brother Asahel to death in the battle at Gibeon. [r] 31 David then ordered Joab and all the people who were with him, “Tear your clothes, put on •sackcloth , [s] and mourn over Abner.” And King David walked behind the funeral procession. [C] 32 When they buried Abner in Hebron, the king wept aloud at Abner’s tomb.

All the people wept, 33 and the king sang a lament for Abner: [t]

Should Abner die as a fool dies?
34 Your hands were not bound, your feet not placed in bronze shackles.
You fell like one who falls victim to criminals.

And all the people wept over him even more.

35 Then they came to urge David to eat bread while it was still day, but David took an oath: “May God punish me and do so severely if I taste bread or anything else before sunset! ” [u] 36 All the people took note of this, and it pleased them. In fact, everything the king did pleased them. 37 On that day all the troops and all Israel were convinced that the king had no part in the killing of Abner son of Ner.

38 Then the king said to his soldiers, “You must know that a great leader has fallen in Israel today. 39 As for me, even though I am the anointed king, I have little power today. These men, the sons of Zeruiah, are too fierce for me. [v] May the LORD repay the evildoer according to his evil! ” [w]

The Assassination of Ish-bosheth

4 When Saul's son Ish-bosheth heard that Abner had died in Hebron, his courage failed, and all Israel was dismayed. 2 Saul's son had two men who were leaders of raiding parties: one named Baanah and the other Rechab, sons of Rimmon the Beerothite of the Benjaminites. Beeroth is also considered part of Benjamin, 3 and the Beerothites fled to Gittaim and still live there as foreigners to this very day.

4 Saul's son Jonathan had a son whose feet were crippled. He was five years old when the report about Saul and Jonathan came from Jezreel. The one who had nursed him [A] picked him up and fled, but as she was hurrying to flee, he fell and became lame. His name was Mephibosheth. [a]

5 Rechab and Baanah, the sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, set out and arrived at Ish-bosheth's house during the heat of the day while the king was taking his midday nap. 6 They entered the interior of the house as if to get wheat and stabbed him in the stomach. Then Rechab and his brother Baanah escaped. 7
They had entered the house while Ish-bosheth was lying on his bed in his bedroom and stabbed and killed him. Then they beheaded him, took his head, and traveled by way of the •Arabah [b] all night. 8 They brought Ish-bosheth's head to David at Hebron and said to the king, "Here's the head of Ish-bosheth son of Saul, your enemy who intended to take your life. Today the LORD has granted vengeance to my lord the king against Saul and his offspring."

9 But David answered Rechab and his brother Baanah, sons of Rimmon the Beerothite, "As the LORD lives, the One who has redeemed my life from every distress, [c] 10 when the person told me, 'Look, Saul is dead,' he thought he was a bearer of good news, but I seized him and put him to death at Ziklag. [d] That was my reward to him for his news! 11 How much more when wicked men kill a righteous man in his own house on his own bed! So now, should I not require his blood from your hands and wipe you off the earth? " [e]

12 So David gave orders to the young men, and they killed Rechab and Baanah. They cut off their hands and feet and hung their bodies by the pool in Hebron, but they took Ish-bosheth's head and buried it in Abner's tomb in Hebron. [f]

David, King of Israel

5 All the tribes of Israel came to David at Hebron [a] and said, “Here we are, your own flesh and blood. [A, b] 2 Even while Saul was king over us, you were the one who led us out to battle and brought us back. [c] The LORD also said to you, ‘You will shepherd My people Israel and be ruler over Israel.’ ” 3 So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron. King David made a covenant with them [d] at Hebron in the LORD’s presence, and they anointed David king over Israel.
4 David was 30 years old when he began his reign; [e] he reigned 40 years. 5 In Hebron he reigned over Judah seven years and six months, and in Jerusalem he reigned 33 years over all Israel and Judah.
6 The king and his men marched to Jerusalem against the Jebusites [f] who inhabited the land. The Jebusites had said to David: “You will never get in here.
Even the blind and lame can repel you,” thinking, “David can’t get in here.”
7 Yet David did capture the stronghold of •Zion , that is, the city of David. [g] 8
He said that day, “Whoever attacks the Jebusites must go through the water shaft to reach the lame and the blind who are despised by David.” [h] For this reason it is said, “The blind and the lame will never enter the house.” [B] 9 David took up residence in the stronghold, which he named the city of David. He built it up all the way around from the supporting terraces inward. 10 David became more and more powerful, [i] and the LORD God of •Hosts was with him. [j] 11 King Hiram of Tyre sent envoys to David; he also sent cedar logs, carpenters, and stonemasons, [k] and they built a palace for David. 12 Then David knew that the LORD had established him as king over Israel and had exalted his kingdom for the sake of His people Israel.
13 After he arrived from Hebron, David took more concubines and wives from Jerusalem, and more sons and daughters were born to him. 14 These are the names of those born to him in Jerusalem: Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, [l] Solomon, 15 Ibhar, Elishua, Nepheg, Japhia, 16 Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet.
[m]
17 When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over Israel, [n] they all went in search of David, but he heard about it and went down to the stronghold. [o] 18 So the Philistines came and spread out in the Valley of Rephaim.
19 Then David inquired of the LORD: [p] “Should I go to war against the Philistines? Will you hand them over to me? ”
The LORD replied to David, “Go, for I will certainly hand the Philistines over to you.”

20 So David went to Baal-perazim and defeated them there and said, “Like a bursting flood, the LORD has burst out against my enemies before me.” q Therefore, he named that place the Lord Bursts Out. C 21 The Philistines abandoned their idols there, and David and his men carried them off.
22 The Philistines came up again and spread out in the Valley of Rephaim. 23
So David inquired of the LORD, and He answered, “Do not make a frontal assault. Circle around behind them and attack them opposite the balsam trees. 24
When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, act decisively, for then the LORD will have marched out ahead of you to attack the camp of the Philistines.” r 25 So David did exactly as the LORD commanded him, and he struck down the Philistines all the way from Geba to Gezer.

David Moves the Ark

6 David again assembled all the choice men in Israel, [a] 30,000. [2] He and all his troops set out [b] to bring the ark of God from Baale-judah. [c] The ark is called by the Name, the name of •Yahweh of •Hosts who dwells between the •cherubim . [d] [3] They set the ark of God on a new cart and transported it from Abinadab's house, which was on the hill. Uzzah and Ahio, [A] sons of Abinadab, were guiding the cart [e] [4] and brought it with the ark of God from Abinadab's house on the hill. Ahio walked in front of the ark. [5] David and the whole house of Israel were celebrating before the LORD with all kinds of fir wood instruments, [f] lyres, harps, tambourines, sistrums, [g] and cymbals. [h]

[6] When they came to Nacon's threshing floor, Uzzah reached out to the ark of God and took hold of it because the oxen had stumbled. [7] Then the LORD's anger burned against Uzzah, [i] and God struck him dead on the spot for his irreverence, [j] and he died there next to the ark of God. [8] David was angry because of the LORD's outburst against Uzzah, so he named that place an Outburst Against Uzzah, [B] as it is today. [9] David feared the LORD that day and said, "How can the ark of the LORD ever come to me? " [10] So he was not willing to move the ark of the LORD to the city of David; [k] instead, he took it to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite. [11] The ark of the LORD remained in his house three months, and the LORD blessed Obed-edom [l] and his whole family.

[12] It was reported to King David: "The LORD has blessed Obed-edom's family and all that belongs to him because of the ark of God." So David went and had the ark of God brought up from Obed-edom's house to the city of David with rejoicing. [m] [13] When those carrying the ark of the LORD advanced six steps, he sacrificed an ox and a fattened calf. [n] [14] David was dancing [C] with all his might before the LORD wearing a linen •ephod . [o] [15] He and the whole house of Israel were bringing up the ark of the LORD with shouts and the sound of the ram's horn. [16] As the ark of the LORD was entering the city of David, [p] Saul's daughter Michal looked down from the window and saw King David leaping and dancing before the LORD, and she despised him in her heart.

[17] They brought the ark of the LORD and set it in its place inside the tent David had set up for it. [q] Then David offered •burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings in the LORD's presence. [18] When David had finished offering the burnt offering and the fellowship offerings, he blessed the people in the name of Yahweh of Hosts. [19] Then he distributed a loaf of bread, a date cake, and a raisin cake to each one in the entire Israelite community, both men and women. [r] Then all the people left, each to his own home.

20 When David returned home to bless his household, [s] Saul's daughter Michal came out to meet him. "How the king of Israel honored himself today! " she said. "He exposed himself today in the sight of the slave girls of his subjects like a vulgar person would expose himself." 21 David replied to Michal, "I was dancing [t] before the LORD who chose me over your father and his whole family to appoint me ruler over the LORD's people Israel. [u] I will celebrate before the LORD, 22 and I will humble myself even more and humiliate myself. [v, D] I will be honored by the slave girls you spoke about."
23 And Saul's daughter Michal had no child to the day of her death.

The LORD's Covenant with David

7 When the king had settled into his palace [a] and the LORD had given him rest on every side from all his enemies, [2] the king said to Nathan the prophet,
"Look, I am living in a cedar house while the ark of God sits inside tent curtains." [b]

3 So Nathan told the king, "Go and do all that is on your heart, for the LORD is with you."

4 But that night the word of the LORD came to Nathan: 5 "Go to My servant David and say, 'This is what the LORD says: Are you to build a house for Me to live in? [c] 6 From the time I brought the Israelites out of Egypt until today I have not lived in a house; instead, I have been moving around with a tent as My dwelling. [d] 7 In all My journeys with all the Israelites, have I ever asked anyone among the tribes of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd My people Israel: Why haven't you built Me a house of cedar? '

8 "Now this is what you are to say to My servant David: 'This is what the LORD of •Hosts says: I took you from the pasture and from following the sheep to be ruler over My people Israel. [e] 9 I have been with you wherever you have gone, and I have destroyed all your enemies before you. I will make a name for you like that of the greatest in the land. [f] 10 I will establish a place for My people Israel and plant them, [g] so that they may live there and not be disturbed again. Evildoers will not afflict them as they have done 11 ever since the day I ordered judges to be over My people Israel. [h] I will give you rest from all your enemies.

" 'The LORD declares to you: The LORD Himself will make a house for you. 12 When your time comes and you rest with your fathers, I will raise up after you your descendant, who will come from your body, and I will establish his kingdom. [i] 13 He will build a house for My name, [j] and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. [k] 14 I will be a father to him, and he will be a son to Me. [l] When he does wrong, I will discipline him with a human rod and with blows from others. 15 But My faithful love will never leave him [m] as I removed it from Saul; I removed him from your way. [n] 16 Your house and kingdom will endure before Me [o] forever, [p] and your throne will be established forever.' " [q]

17 Nathan spoke all these words and this entire vision to David.

David's Prayer of Thanksgiving [18] Then King David went in, [r] sat in the LORD*'s* presence, and said,

Who am I, Lord GOD*, and what is my house that You have brought me this* far? 19 What You have done so far [A] was a little thing to You, Lord God, for You have also spoken about Your servant's house in the distant future. And this is a revelation [B] for mankind, Lord God. 20 What more can David say to You? You know Your servant, [s] Lord God. 21 Because of Your word and according to Your will, You have revealed all these great things to Your servant.

22 This is why You are great, [t] Lord God. There is no one like You, and there is no God besides You, [u] as all we have heard confirms. 23
And who is like Your people Israel? God came to one nation on earth in order to redeem a people for Himself, to make a name for Himself, and to perform for them [v] great and awesome acts, driving out nations and their gods before Your people You redeemed for Yourself from Egypt. [w] 24 You established Your people Israel to be Your own people forever, and You, Lord, have become their God. [x]

25 Now, Lord God, fulfill the promise forever that You have made to Your servant and his house. Do as You have promised, 26 so that Your name will be exalted forever, when it is said, "The Lord of Hosts is God over Israel." The house of Your servant David [y] will be established before You 27 since You, Lord of Hosts, God of Israel, have revealed this to Your servant when You said, "I will build a house for you." Therefore, Your servant has found the courage to pray this prayer to You. 28 Lord God, You are God; Your words are true, and You have promised this grace to Your servant. 29 Now, please bless Your servant's house so that it will continue before You forever. For You, Lord God, have spoken, and with Your blessing Your servant's house will be blessed forever. [z]

David's Victories

8 After this, David defeated the Philistines, [a] subdued them, and took Methegammah [A] from Philistine control. [b, c] 2 He also defeated the Moabites, and after making them lie down on the ground, he measured them off with a cord. He measured every two cord lengths of those to be put to death and one length of those to be kept alive. So the Moabites became David's subjects and brought tribute. [d]

3 David also defeated Hadadezer [e] son of Rehob, king of Zobah, who went to restore his control at the Euphrates River. 4 David captured 1,700 horsemen [f] and 20,000 foot soldiers from him, and he hamstrung all the horses [g] and kept 100 chariots. [B]

5 When the Arameans of Damascus [h] came to assist King Hadadezer of Zobah, David struck down 22,000 Aramean men. 6 Then he placed garrisons in Aram of Damascus, and the Arameans became David's subjects and brought tribute. The LORD made David victorious wherever he went. [i]

7 David took the gold shields of Hadadezer's officers and brought them to Jerusalem. [j] 8 King David also took huge quantities of bronze from Betah [k] and Berothai, Hadadezer's cities.

9 When King Toi of Hamath [l] heard that David had defeated the entire army of Hadadezer, 10 he sent his son Joram to King David to greet him and to congratulate him because David had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him, for Toi and Hadadezer had fought many wars. Joram had items of silver, gold, and bronze with him. 11 King David also dedicated these to the LORD, along with the silver and gold he had dedicated from all the nations he had subdued [m] — 12 from Edom, [n] Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, the Amalekites, and the spoil of Hadadezer son of Rehob, king of Zobah.

13 David made a reputation for himself when he returned from striking down 18,000 Edomites [o] in the Valley of Salt. [p, q] 14 He placed garrisons throughout Edom, and all the Edomites were subject to David. [r] The LORD made David victorious wherever he went.

15 So David reigned over all Israel, administering justice and righteousness for all his people.

16 Joab son of Zeruiah was over the army;
Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was court historian;
17 Zadok son of Ahitub
and Ahimelech son of Abiathar were priests;

Seraiah was court secretary;
18 Benaiah son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and the Pelethites; [s] and David's sons were chief officials. [t]

David's Kindness to Mephibosheth

9 David asked, “Is there anyone remaining from Saul’s family I can show kindness to because of Jonathan? ” [a] 2 There was a servant of Saul’s family named Ziba. They summoned him to David, and the king said to him, “Are you Ziba? ”

“I am your servant,” he replied.

3 So the king asked, “Is there anyone left of Saul’s family that I can show the kindness of God to? ”

Ziba said to the king, “There is still Jonathan’s son who was injured in both feet.” [b]

4 The king asked him, “Where is he? ”

Ziba answered the king, “You’ll find him in Lo-debar at the house of Machir son of Ammiel.” 5 So King David had him brought from the house of Machir son of Ammiel in Lo-debar.

6 Mephibosheth son of Jonathan son of Saul came to David, bowed down to the ground and paid homage. David said, “Mephibosheth! ”

“I am your servant,” he replied.

7 “Don’t be afraid,” David said to him, “since I intend to show you kindness because of your father Jonathan. I will restore to you all your grandfather Saul’s fields, and you will always eat meals at my table.”

8 Mephibosheth bowed down and said, “What is your servant that you take an interest in a dead dog like me? ”

9 Then the king summoned Saul’s attendant Ziba and said to him, “I have given to your master’s grandson all that belonged to Saul and his family. 10 You, your sons, and your servants are to work the ground for him, and you are to bring in the crops so your master’s grandson will have food to eat. But Mephibosheth, your master’s grandson, is always to eat at my table.” Now Ziba had 15 sons and 20 servants.

11 Ziba said to the king, “Your servant will do all my lord the king commands.”

So Mephibosheth ate at David’s [c] table just like one of the king’s sons. 12 Mephibosheth had a young son whose name was Mica. [d] All those living in Ziba’s house were Mephibosheth’s servants. 13 However, Mephibosheth lived in Jerusalem because he always ate at the king’s table. His feet had been injured.

War with the Ammonites

10 Some time later the king of the Ammonites died, and his son Hanun became king in his place. [a] 2 Then David said, “I’ll show kindness to Hanun son of Nahash, just as his father showed kindness to me.”

So David sent his emissaries to console Hanun concerning his father.
However, when they arrived in the land of the Ammonites, 3 the Ammonite leaders said to Hanun their lord, “Just because David has sent men with condolences for you, do you really believe he’s showing respect for your father?
Instead, hasn’t David sent his emissaries in order to scout out the city, spy on it, and demolish it? ” [b] 4 So Hanun took David’s emissaries, shaved off half their beards, cut their clothes in half at the hips, and sent them away. [c]

5 When this was reported to David, he sent someone to meet them, since they were deeply humiliated. The king said, “Stay in Jericho until your beards grow back; then return.”

6 When the Ammonites realized they had become repulsive to David, they hired 20,000 foot soldiers from the Arameans of Beth-rehob and Zobah, 1,000 men from the king of Maacah, and 12,000 men from Tob.

7 David heard about it and sent Joab and all the fighting men. 8 The Ammonites marched out and lined up in battle formation at the entrance to the city gate while the Arameans of Zobah and Rehob and the men of Tob and Maacah were in the field by themselves. 9 When Joab saw that there was a battle line in front of him and another behind him, he chose some men out of all the elite troops of Israel and lined up in battle formation to engage the Arameans. 10
He placed the rest of the forces under the command of his brother Abishai who lined up in battle formation to engage the Ammonites.

11 “If the Arameans are too strong for me,” Joab said, “then you will be my help. However, if the Ammonites are too strong for you, I’ll come to help you. 12 Be strong! We must prove ourselves strong for our people and for the cities of our God. [d] May the LORD’s will be done.” [A]

13 Joab and his troops advanced to fight against the Arameans, and they fled before him. 14 When the Ammonites saw that the Arameans had fled, they too fled before Abishai and entered the city. So Joab withdrew from the attack against the Ammonites and went to Jerusalem.

15 When the Arameans saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they regrouped. 16 Hadadezer sent messengers to bring the Arameans who were across the Euphrates River, and they came to Helam with Shobach, commander of Hadadezer’s army, leading them.

17 When this was reported to David, he gathered all Israel, crossed the Jordan, and went to Helam. Then the Arameans lined up in formation to engage David in battle and fought against him. 18 But the Arameans fled before Israel, and David killed 700 of those chariots and 40,000 foot soldiers. e He also struck down Shobach commander of their army, who died there. 19 When all the kings who were Hadadezer's subjects saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with Israel and became their subjects. After this, the Arameans were afraid to ever help the Ammonites again.

David's Adultery with Bathsheba

11 In the spring when kings march out to war, David sent Joab with his officers and all Israel. They destroyed the Ammonites and besieged Rabbah, but David remained in Jerusalem. [a]

2 One evening David got up from his bed and strolled around on the roof of the palace. From the roof he saw a woman bathing — a very beautiful woman. 3
So David sent someone to inquire about her, and he reported, “This is Bathsheba, [b] daughter of Eliam and wife of Uriah [c] the Hittite.” [d]

4 David sent messengers to get her, and when she came to him, he slept with her. Now she had just been purifying herself from her uncleanness. [e] Afterward, she returned home. 5 The woman conceived and sent word to inform David: “I am pregnant.”

6 David sent orders to Joab: “Send me Uriah the Hittite.” So Joab sent Uriah to David. 7 When Uriah came to him, David asked how Joab and the troops were doing and how the war was going. 8 Then he said to Uriah, “Go down to your house and wash your feet.” So Uriah left the palace, and a gift from the king followed him. 9 But Uriah slept at the door of the palace with all his master’s servants; he did not go down to his house.

10 When it was reported to David, “Uriah didn’t go home,” David questioned Uriah, “Haven’t you just come from a journey? Why didn’t you go home? ”

11 Uriah answered David, “The ark, Israel, and Judah are dwelling in tents, and my master Joab and his soldiers [A] are camping in the open field. How can I enter my house to eat and drink and sleep with my wife? As surely as you live and by your life, I will not do this! ” [f]

12 “Stay here today also,” David said to Uriah, “and tomorrow I will send you back.” So Uriah stayed in Jerusalem that day and the next. 13 Then David invited Uriah to eat and drink with him, and David got him drunk. He went out in the evening to lie down on his cot with his master’s servants, but he did not go home.

Uriah’s Death Arranged

14 The next morning David wrote a letter to Joab and sent it with Uriah. 15 In the letter he wrote:

> Put Uriah [g] at the front of the fiercest fighting, then withdraw from > him so that he is struck down and dies.

16 When Joab was besieging the city, he put Uriah in the place where he knew the best enemy soldiers were. 17 Then the men of the city came out and attacked

Joab, and some of the men from David's soldiers fell in battle; Uriah the Hittite also died.

18 Joab sent someone to report to David all the details of the battle. 19 He commanded the messenger, "When you've finished telling the king all the details of the battle — 20 if the king's anger gets stirred up and he asks you, 'Why did you get so close to the city to fight? Didn't you realize they would shoot from the top of the wall? 21 At Thebez, who struck Abimelech son of Jerubbesheth? [h, i] Didn't a woman drop an upper millstone on him from the top of the wall so that he died? [j] Why did you get so close to the wall? ' — then say, 'Your servant Uriah the Hittite is dead also.' " 22 Then the messenger left.

When he arrived, he reported to David all that Joab had sent him to tell. 23 The messenger reported to David, "The men gained the advantage over us and came out against us in the field, but we counterattacked right up to the entrance of the gate. 24 However, the archers shot down on your soldiers from the top of the wall, and some of the king's soldiers died. Your servant Uriah the Hittite is also dead."

25 David told the messenger, "Say this to Joab: 'Don't let this matter upset you because the sword devours all alike. Intensify your fight against the city and demolish it.' Encourage him."

26 When Uriah's [k] wife heard that her husband Uriah had died, she mourned for him. B 27 When the time of mourning ended, David had her brought to his house. She became his wife and bore him a son. However, the LORD considered what David had done to be evil. [l]

Nathan’s Parable and David’s Repentance

12 So the LORD sent Nathan to David. [a] When he arrived, he said to him:

There were two men in a certain city, one rich and the other poor.
2 The rich man had a large number of sheep and cattle,
3 but the poor man had nothing except one small ewe lamb that he had bought. He raised it, and it grew up, living with him and his children. It shared his meager food and drank from his cup; it slept in his arms, and it was like a daughter to him.
4 Now a traveler came to the rich man, but the rich man could not bring himself to take one of his own sheep or cattle to prepare for the traveler who had come to him. Instead, he took the poor man's lamb and prepared it for his guest. [A]

5 David was infuriated with the man and said to Nathan: "As the LORD lives, the man who did this deserves to die!
6 Because he has done this thing and shown no pity, he must pay four lambs for that lamb." [b]

7 Nathan replied to David, "You are the man! This is what the LORD God of Israel says: 'I anointed you king over Israel, [c] and I delivered you from the hand of Saul.
8 I gave your master's house to you and your master's wives into your arms, [B] and I gave you the house of Israel and Judah, and if that was not enough, I would have given you even more.
9 Why then have you despised the command of the LORD by doing what I consider [d] evil? [e] You struck down Uriah [f] the Hittite with the sword and took his wife as your own wife — you murdered him with the Ammonite's sword.
[g] 10 Now therefore, the sword will never leave your house [h] because you despised Me and took the wife of Uriah the Hittite to be your own wife.'

11 "This is what the LORD says, [i] 'I am going to bring disaster on you from your own family: I will take your wives and give them to another [C] before your very eyes, and he will sleep with them publicly.
[D] 12 You acted in secret, but I will do this before all Israel and in broad daylight.' " [E]

13 David responded to Nathan, "I have sinned against the LORD." [j]

Then Nathan replied to David, "The LORD has taken away your sin; you will not die.
[k] 14 However, because you treated [l] the LORD with such contempt in this matter, the son born to you will die." [m] 15 Then Nathan went home.

*The Death of Bathsheba's Son The LORD struck the baby that Uriah's [n] wife had borne to David, and he became ill.
16 David pleaded with God for the boy. He fasted, went home, and spent the night lying on the ground.
[o] 17 The elders of his* house stood beside him to get him up from the ground, but he was unwilling and would not eat anything with them.

18 On the seventh day the baby died. But David's servants were afraid to tell him the baby was dead. They said, "Look, while the baby was alive, we spoke to him, and he wouldn't listen to us. So how can we tell him the baby is dead? He may do something desperate."

19 When David saw that his servants were whispering to each other, he guessed that the baby was dead. So he asked his servants, "Is the baby dead? "

"He is dead," they replied.

20 Then David got up from the ground. He washed, anointed himself, changed his clothes, went to the LORD's house, and worshiped. Then he went home and requested something to eat. So they served him food, and he ate.

21 His servants asked him, "What did you just do? While the baby was alive, you fasted and wept, but when he died, you got up and ate food."

22 He answered, "While the baby was alive, I fasted and wept because I thought, 'Who knows? The LORD may be gracious to me and let him live.' 23 But now that he is dead, why should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I'll go to him, but he will never return to me." p

The Birth of Solomon

24 Then David comforted [q] his wife Bathsheba; he went and slept with her.
She gave birth to a son and named [r] him Solomon. [s, t] The LORD loved him, 25 and He sent a message through Nathan the prophet, who named [F] him Jedidiah, [u] because of the LORD.

Capture of the City of Rabbah 26 Joab fought against Rabbah of the Ammonites
[v] and captured the royal fortress. 27 Then Joab sent messengers to David to say, “I have fought against Rabbah and have also captured the water supply. 28 Now therefore, assemble the rest of the troops, lay siege to the city, and capture it.
Otherwise I will be the one to capture the city, and it will be named after me.”
29 So David assembled all the troops and went to Rabbah; he fought against it and captured it. 30 He took the crown from the head of their king, [w] and it was placed on David’s head. The crown weighed 75 pounds [G] of gold, and it had a precious stone in it. In addition, David took away a large quantity of plunder from the city. 31 He removed the people who were in the city and put them to work with saws, iron picks, and iron axes, and to labor at brickmaking. [x] He did the same to all the Ammonite cities. Then he and all his troops returned to Jerusalem.

Amnon Rapes Tamar

13 Some time passed. David's son Absalom [a] had a beautiful sister named Tamar, [b] and David's son Amnon [c] was infatuated with her. 2 Amnon was frustrated to the point of making himself sick over his sister Tamar because she was a virgin, but it seemed impossible to do anything to her. 3 Amnon had a friend named Jonadab, a son of David's brother Shimeah. [d] Jonadab was a very shrewd man, 4 and he asked Amnon, "Why are you, the king's son, so miserable every morning? Won't you tell me? "

Amnon replied, "I'm in love with Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister."

5 Jonadab said to him, "Lie down on your bed and pretend you're sick. When your father comes to see you, say to him, 'Please let my sister Tamar come and give me something to eat. Let her prepare food in my presence so I can watch and eat from her hand.' "

6 So Amnon lay down and pretended to be sick. When the king came to see him, Amnon said to him, "Please let my sister Tamar come and make a couple of cakes in my presence so I can eat from her hand."

7 David sent word to Tamar at the palace: "Please go to your brother Amnon's house and prepare a meal for him."

8 Then Tamar went to his house while Amnon was lying down. She took dough, kneaded it, made cakes in his presence, and baked them. 9 She brought the pan and set it down in front of him, but he refused to eat. Amnon said, "Everyone leave me! " And everyone left him. 10 "Bring the meal to the bedroom," Amnon told Tamar, "so I can eat from your hand." Tamar took the cakes she had made and went to her brother Amnon's bedroom. 11 When she brought them to him to eat, he grabbed her and said, [A] "Come sleep with me, my sister! "

12 "Don't, my brother! " she cried. "Don't humiliate me, for such a thing should never be done in Israel. [e] Don't do this horrible thing! 13 Where could I ever go with my disgrace? And you — you would be like one of the immoral men in Israel! Please, speak to the king, for he won't keep me from you." 14 But he refused to listen to her, and because he was stronger than she was, he raped her.

15 After this, Amnon hated Tamar with such intensity that the hatred he hated her with was greater than the love he had loved her with. "Get out of here! " he said.

16 "No," she cried, [B] "sending me away is much worse than the great wrong you've already done to me! " But he refused to listen to her. 17 Instead, he called to the servant who waited on him: "Throw this woman out and bolt the door behind her! ” 18 Amnon’s servant threw her out and bolted the door behind her.

Now Tamar was wearing a long-sleeved [C] garment, because this is what the king’s virgin daughters wore. 19 Tamar put ashes on her head and tore the longsleeved garment she was wearing. She put her hand on her head [f] and went away crying out.
20 Her brother Absalom said to her: “Has your brother Amnon been with you?
Be quiet for now, my sister. He is your brother. Don’t take this thing to heart.”
So Tamar lived as a desolate woman [g] in the house of her brother Absalom.

Absalom Murders Amnon

21 When King David heard about all these things, he was furious. [h] 22 Absalom didn't say anything to Amnon, either good or bad, because he hated Amnon since he disgraced his sister Tamar.

23 Two years later, Absalom's sheepshearers were at Baal-hazor near Ephraim, and Absalom invited all the king's sons. 24 Then he went to the king and said, "Your servant has just hired sheepshearers. Will the king and his servants please come with your servant? "

25 The king replied to Absalom, "No, my son, we should not all go, or we would be a burden to you." Although Absalom urged him, he wasn't willing to go, though he did bless him.

26 "If not," Absalom said, "please let my brother Amnon go with us."

The king asked him, "Why should he go with you? " 27 But Absalom urged him, so he sent Amnon and all the king's sons. [i]

28 Now Absalom commanded his young men, "Watch Amnon until he is in a good mood from the wine. When I order you to strike Amnon, then kill him. Don't be afraid. Am I not the one who has commanded you? Be strong and courageous! " [j] 29 So Absalom's young men did to Amnon just as Absalom had commanded. Then all the rest of the king's sons got up, and each fled on his mule.

30 While they were on the way, a report reached David: "Absalom struck down all the king's sons; not even one of them survived! " 31 In response the king stood up, tore his clothes, and lay down on the ground, and all his servants stood by with their clothes torn. [k]

32 But Jonadab, son of David's brother Shimeah, [l] spoke up: "My lord must not think they have killed all the young men, the king's sons, because only Amnon is dead. In fact, Absalom has planned this [D] ever since the day Amnon disgraced his sister Tamar. 33 So now, my lord the king, don't take seriously the report that says all the king's sons are dead. Only Amnon is dead."

34 Meanwhile, Absalom had fled. When the young man who was standing watch looked up, there were many people coming from the road west of him from the side of the mountain. [m] 35 Jonadab said to the king, "Look, the king's sons have come! It's exactly like your servant said." 36 Just as he finished speaking, the king's sons entered and wept loudly. Then the king and all his servants also wept bitterly.

37 Now Absalom fled and went to Talmai son of Ammihud, king of Geshur. [n]

And David mourned for his son [o] every day. [38] Absalom had fled and gone to Geshur where he stayed three years. [39] Then King David [p] longed to go to Absalom, for David had finished grieving over Amnon's death.

Absalom Restored to David

14 Joab son of Zeruiah observed that the king's mind was on Absalom. [2] So Joab sent someone to Tekoa [a] to bring a clever [b] woman from there. He told her, "Pretend to be in mourning: dress in mourning clothes and don't put on any oil. [c] Act like a woman who has been mourning for the dead for a long time. [3] Go to the king and speak these words to him." Then Joab told her exactly what to say.

[4] When the woman from Tekoa came [d] to the king, she fell with her face to the ground in homage and said, "Help me, my king! "

[5] "What's the matter? " the king asked her.

"To tell the truth, I am a widow; my husband died," she said. [e] [6] "Your servant had two sons. They were fighting in the field with no one to separate them, and one struck the other and killed him. [7] Now the whole clan has risen up against your servant and said, 'Hand over the one who killed his brother so we may put him to death for the life of the brother he murdered. We will destroy the heir! ' They would extinguish my one remaining ember by not preserving my husband's name or posterity on earth."

[8] The king told the woman, "Go home. I will issue a command on your behalf."

[9] Then the woman of Tekoa said to the king, "My lord the king, may any blame be on me [f] and my father's house, and may the king and his throne be innocent."

[10] "Whoever speaks to you," the king said, "bring him to me. He will not trouble you again! "

[11] She replied, "Please, may the king invoke the LORD your God, so that the avenger of blood will not increase the loss, and they will not eliminate my son! " [g]

"As the LORD lives," he vowed, "not a hair of your son will fall to the ground." [h]

[12] Then the woman said, "Please, may your servant speak a word to my lord the king? "

"Speak," he replied.

[13] The woman asked, "Why have you devised something similar against the people of God? When the king spoke as he did about this matter, he has pronounced his own •guilt . The king has not brought back his own banished one. [14] We will certainly die [i] and be like water poured out on the ground, which can't be recovered. But God would not take away a life; He would devise plans so that the one banished from Him does not remain banished.

15 “Now therefore, I’ve come to present this matter to my lord the king because the people have made me afraid. Your servant thought: I must speak to the king. Perhaps the king will grant his servant’s request. 16 The king will surely listen in order to rescue his servant from the hand of this man who would eliminate both me and my son from God’s inheritance. 17 Your servant thought:
May the word of my lord the king bring relief, for my lord the king is able to discern the good and the bad like the Angel of God. May the LORD your God be with you.”

18 Then the king answered the woman, “I’m going to ask you something;
don’t conceal it from me! ”

“Let my lord the king speak,” the woman replied.

19 The king asked, “Did Joab put you up to [A] all this? ”

The woman answered. “As you live, my lord the king, no one can turn to the right or left from all my lord the king says. Yes, your servant Joab is the one who gave orders to me; he told your servant exactly what to say. 20 Joab your servant has done this to address the issue indirectly, [B] but my lord has wisdom like the wisdom of the Angel of God, knowing everything on earth.”

21 Then the king said to Joab, “I hereby grant this request. Go, bring back the young man Absalom.”

22 Joab fell with his face to the ground in homage and praised the king.
“Today,” Joab said, “your servant knows I have found favor with you, my lord the king, because the king has granted the request of your servant.”

23 So Joab got up, went to Geshur, and brought Absalom [j] to Jerusalem. 24 However, the king added, “He may return to his house, but he may not see my face.” So Absalom returned to his house, but he did not see the king. [C]

25 No man in all Israel was as handsome and highly praised as Absalom. From the sole of his foot to the top of his head, he did not have a single flaw. 26 When he shaved his head — he shaved it every year because his hair got so heavy for him that he had to shave it off — he would weigh the hair from his head and it would be five pounds [D] according to the royal standard.

27 Three sons were born to Absalom, and a daughter named Tamar, who was a beautiful woman. 28 Absalom resided in Jerusalem two years but never saw the king. 29 Then Absalom sent for Joab in order to send him to the king, but Joab was unwilling to come. So he sent again, a second time, but he still wouldn’t come. 30 Then Absalom said to his servants, “See, Joab has a field right next to mine, and he has barley there. Go and set fire to it! ” So Absalom’s servants set the field on fire. [k]

31 Then Joab came to Absalom's house and demanded, "Why did your servants set my field on fire? "

32 "Look," Absalom explained to Joab, "I sent for you and said, 'Come here. I want to send you to the king to ask: Why have I come back from Geshur? I'd be better off if I were still there.' So now, let me see the king. If I am guilty, let him kill me."

33 Joab went to the king and told him. So David summoned Absalom, who came to the king and bowed down with his face to the ground before him. Then the king kissed Absalom.

Absalom's Revolt

15 After this, Absalom got himself a chariot, horses, and 50 men to run before him. [a] 2 He would get up early and stand beside the road leading to the city •gate . [b] Whenever anyone had a grievance to bring before the king for settlement, Absalom called out to him and asked, “What city are you from? ” If he replied, “Your servant is from one of the tribes of Israel,” 3 Absalom said to him, “Look, your claims are good and right, but the king does not have anyone to listen to you.” 4 He added, “If only someone would appoint me judge in the land. Then anyone who had a grievance or dispute could come to me, and I would make sure he received justice.” 5 When a person approached to bow down to him, Absalom reached out his hand, took hold of him, and kissed him.
6 Absalom did this to all the Israelites who came to the king for a settlement. So Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

7 When four [c] years had passed, Absalom said to the king, “Please let me go to Hebron to fulfill a vow I made to the LORD. 8 For your servant made a vow when I lived in Geshur of Aram, [d] saying: If the LORD really brings me back to Jerusalem, I will worship the LORD in Hebron.” [e, f]

9 “Go in peace,” the king said to him. [g] So he went to Hebron.

10 Then Absalom sent messengers throughout the tribes of Israel with this message: “When you hear the sound of the ram’s horn, you are to say, ‘Absalom has become king in Hebron! ’ ” [h]

11 Two hundred men from Jerusalem went with Absalom. They had been invited and were going innocently, for they knew nothing about the whole matter. 12 While he was offering the sacrifices, Absalom sent for David’s adviser Ahithophel the Gilonite, [i] from his city of Giloh. So the conspiracy grew strong, and the people supporting Absalom continued to increase.

13 Then an informer came to David and reported, “The hearts of the men of Israel are with Absalom.”

14 David said to all the servants with him in Jerusalem, “Get up. We have to flee, or we will not escape from Absalom! [j] Leave quickly, or he will soon overtake us, heap disaster on us, and strike the city with the edge of the sword.”

15 The king’s servants said to him, “Whatever my lord the king decides, we are your servants.” 16 Then the king set out, and his entire household followed him. But he left behind 10 concubines to take care of the palace. 17 So the king set out, and all the people followed him. They stopped at the last house 18 while all his servants marched past him. Then all the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and the Gittites — 600 men who came with him from Gath [k] — marched past the king.

19 The king said to Ittai the Gittite, [l] "Why are you also going with us? Go back and stay with the new king since you're both a foreigner and an exile from your homeland. 20 Besides, you only arrived yesterday; should I make you wander around with us today while I go wherever I can? Go back and take your brothers with you. May the LORD show you kindness and faithfulness." 21 But in response, Ittai vowed to the king, "As the LORD lives and as my lord the king lives, wherever my lord the king is, whether it means life or death, your servant will be there! " 22 "March on," David replied to Ittai. So Ittai the Gittite marched past with all his men and the children who were with him. 23 Everyone in the countryside was weeping loudly while all the people were marching past. As the king was crossing the Kidron Valley, all the people were marching past on the road that leads to the desert.
24 Zadok was also there, and all the Levites with him were carrying the ark of the covenant of God. They set the ark of God down, and Abiathar offered sacrifices [A] until the people had finished marching past. [m] 25 Then the king instructed Zadok, "Return the ark of God to the city. [n] If I find favor in the LORD's eyes, He will bring me back and allow me to see both it and its dwelling place. [o] 26 However, if He should say, 'I do not delight in you,' then here I am — He can do with me whatever pleases Him." [B, p] 27 The king also said to Zadok the priest, [q] "Look, [r] return to the city in peace and your two sons with you: your son Ahimaaz and Abiathar's son Jonathan. 28 Remember, I'll wait at the fords of the wilderness until word comes from you to inform me." 29 So Zadok and Abiathar returned the ark of God to Jerusalem and stayed there.
30 David was climbing the slope of the Mount of Olives, weeping as he ascended. His head was covered, and he was walking barefoot. [s] Each of the people with him covered their heads and went up, weeping as they ascended.
31 Then someone reported to David: "Ahithophel is among the conspirators with Absalom."
"LORD," David pleaded, "please turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness! " [t]
32 When David came to the summit where he used to worship God, Hushai the Archite [u] was there to meet him with his robe torn and dust on his head.
33 David said to him, "If you go away with me, you'll be a burden to me, 34 but if you return to the city and tell Absalom, 'I will be your servant, my king!
Previously, I was your father's servant, but now I will be your servant,' then you can counteract Ahithophel's counsel for me. 35 Won't Zadok and Abiathar the priests be there with you? Report everything you hear from the king's palace to Zadok and Abiathar the priests. 36 Take note: their two sons, Zadok's son Ahimaaz and Abiathar's son Jonathan, are there with them. Send me everything you hear through them." 37 So Hushai, [v] David's personal adviser, entered Jerusalem just as Absalom was entering the city.

Ziba Helps David

16 When David had gone a little beyond the summit, [a] Ziba, Mephibosheth's servant, [b] was right there to meet him. He had a pair of saddled donkeys loaded with 200 loaves of bread, 100 clusters of raisins, 100 bunches of summer fruit, and a skin of wine. 2 The king said to Ziba, "Why do you have these? "

Ziba answered, "The donkeys are for the king's household to ride, the bread and summer fruit are for the young men to eat, and the wine is for those to drink who become exhausted in the desert."

3 "Where is your master's grandson? " the king asked.

"Why, he's staying in Jerusalem," Ziba replied to the king, "for he said, 'Today, the house of Israel will restore my grandfather's kingdom to me.' "

4 The king said to Ziba, "All that belongs to Mephibosheth is now yours! " [c]

"I bow before you," Ziba said. "May you look favorably on me, my lord the king! "

Shimei Curses David

5 When King David got to Bahurim, a man belonging to the family of the house of Saul was just coming out. His name was Shimei son of Gera, [d] and he was yelling curses as he approached. 6 He threw stones at David and at all the royal [A] servants, the people and the warriors on David's right and left. 7 Shimei said as he cursed: "Get out, get out, you worthless murderer! 8 The LORD has paid you back for all the blood of the house of Saul in whose place you became king, and the LORD has handed the kingdom over to your son Absalom. Look, you are in trouble because you're a murderer! "

9 Then Abishai son of Zeruiah said to the king, "Why should this dead dog [e] curse my lord the king? [f] Let me go over and cut his head off! "

10 The king replied, "Sons of Zeruiah, do we agree on anything? [g] He curses [h] me this way because the LORD [i] told him, 'Curse David! ' Therefore, who can say, 'Why did you do that? ' " 11 Then David said to Abishai and all his servants, "Look, my own son, my own flesh and blood, [B] intends to take my life [j] — how much more now this Benjaminite! Leave him alone and let him curse me; the LORD has told him to. 12 Perhaps the LORD will see my affliction [k] and restore goodness to me instead of Shimei's curses today." 13 So David and his men proceeded along the road as Shimei was going along the ridge of the hill opposite him. As Shimei went, he cursed David, and threw stones and dirt at him. 14 Finally, the king and all the people with him arrived [l] exhausted, so they rested there.

Absalom's Advisers

15 Now Absalom and all the Israelites came to Jerusalem. Ahithophel was also with him. 16 When David's friend Hushai the Archite came to Absalom, Hushai said to Absalom, "Long live the king! Long live the king! " [m]

17 "Is this your loyalty to your friend? " Absalom asked Hushai. "Why didn't you go with your friend? "

18 "Not at all," Hushai answered Absalom. "I am on the side of the one that the LORD, the people, and all the men of Israel have chosen. I will stay with him.
19 Furthermore, whom will I serve if not his son? As I served in your father's presence, I will also serve in yours." [n]

20 Then Absalom said to Ahithophel, "Give me your advice. What should we do? "

21 Ahithophel replied to Absalom, "Sleep with your father's concubines he left to take care of the palace. [o] When all Israel hears that you have become repulsive to your father, everyone with you will be encouraged.” [22] So they pitched a tent for Absalom on the roof, and he slept with his father’s concubines in the sight of all Israel. [p]

[23] Now the advice Ahithophel gave in those days was like someone asking about a word from God [q] — such was the regard that both David and Absalom had for Ahithophel’s advice.

17 Ahithophel said to Absalom, “Let me choose 12,000 men, and I will set out in pursuit of David tonight. 2 I will attack him while he is weak and weary, throw him into a panic, and all the people with him will scatter. I will strike down only the king 3 and bring all the people back to you. When everyone returns except the man you’re seeking, all [a] the people will be at peace.” 4 This proposal seemed good to Absalom and all the elders of Israel.
5 Then Absalom said, “Summon Hushai the Archite also. Let’s hear what he has to say as well.”
6 So Hushai came to Absalom, and Absalom told him: “Ahithophel offered this proposal. Should we carry out his proposal? If not, what do you say? ” 7 Hushai replied to Absalom, “The advice Ahithophel has given this time is not good.” 8 Hushai continued, “You know your father and his men. They are warriors and are desperate like a wild bear robbed of her cubs. Your father is an experienced soldier who won’t spend the night with the people. 9 He’s probably already hiding in one of the caves [A] or some other place. If some of our troops fall [B] first, someone is sure to hear and say, ‘There’s been a slaughter among the people who follow Absalom.’ 10 Then, even a brave man with the heart of a lion [b] will melt because all Israel knows that your father and the valiant men with him are warriors. 11 Instead, I advise that all Israel from Dan to Beer-sheba — as numerous as the sand by the sea — be gathered to you and that you personally go into battle. 12 Then we will attack David wherever we find him, and we will descend on him like dew on the ground. Not even one will be left of all the men with him. 13 If he retreats to some city, all Israel will bring ropes to that city, and we will drag its stones into the valley until not even a pebble can be found there.” 14 Since the LORD had decreed [c] that Ahithophel’s good advice be undermined [d] in order to bring about Absalom’s ruin, Absalom and all the men of Israel said, “The advice of Hushai the Archite is better than Ahithophel’s advice.”

David Informed of Absalom’s Plans 15 Hushai then told the priests Zadok and Abiathar, “This is what [C] Ahithophel advised Absalom and the elders of Israel, and this is what [D] I advised. 16 Now send someone quickly and tell David, ‘Don’t spend the night at the wilderness ford of the Jordan, [e] but be sure to cross over, or the king and all the people with him will be destroyed.’ ”

17 Jonathan and Ahimaaz were staying at En-rogel, where a servant girl would come and pass along information to them. They in turn would go and inform King David, because they dared not be seen entering the city. 18 However, a young man did see them and informed Absalom. So the two left quickly and came to the house of a man in Bahurim. He had a well in his courtyard, and they climbed down into it. 19 Then his wife took the cover, placed it over the mouth of the well, and scattered grain on it so nobody would know anything.

20 Absalom's servants came to the woman at the house and asked, "Where are Ahimaaz and Jonathan? "

"They passed by toward the water," E the woman replied to them. The men searched but did not find them, so they returned to Jerusalem.

21 After they had gone, Ahimaaz and Jonathan climbed out of the well and went and informed King David. They told him, "Get up and immediately ford the river, for Ahithophel has given this advice against you." 22 So David and all the people with him got up and crossed the Jordan. By daybreak, there was no one who had not crossed the Jordan. 23 When Ahithophel realized that his advice had not been followed, he saddled his donkey and set out for his house in his hometown. He set his affairs in order F and hanged himself. So he died and was buried in his father's tomb.

24 David had arrived at Mahanaim by the time Absalom crossed the Jordan with all the men of Israel. 25 Now Absalom had appointed Amasa f over the army in Joab's place. Amasa was the son of a man named Ithra G the Israelite; g, h Ithra had married Abigail daughter of Nahash. i Abigail was a sister to Zeruiah, Joab's mother. 26 And Israel and Absalom camped in the land of Gilead. 27 When David came to Mahanaim, Shobi son of Nahash j from Rabbah k of the Ammonites, Machir son of Ammiel from Lo-debar, l and Barzillai the Gileadite from Rogelim m 28 brought beds, basins, n and pottery items. They also brought wheat, barley, flour, roasted grain, beans, lentils, o 29 honey, curds, sheep, and cheese H from the herd for David and the people with him to eat. They had reasoned, "The people must be hungry, exhausted, and thirsty in the desert."

Absalom's Defeat

18 David reviewed his troops and appointed commanders of hundreds and of thousands over them. 2 He then sent out the troops, a third under Joab, a third under Joab's brother Abishai son of Zeruiah, and a third under Ittai the Gittite. The king said to the troops, "I will also march out with you."
3 "You must not go! " [a] the people pleaded. "If we have to flee, they will not pay any attention to us. Even if half of us die, they will not pay any attention to us because you are worth [b] 10,000 of us. Therefore, it is better if you support us from the city."
4 "I will do whatever you think is best," the king replied to them. So he stood beside the gate while all the troops marched out by hundreds and thousands. 5
The king commanded Joab, Abishai, and Ittai, "Treat the young man Absalom gently for my sake." All the people heard the king's orders to all the commanders about Absalom.
6 Then David's forces marched into the field to engage Israel in battle, which took place in the forest of Ephraim. 7 The people of Israel were defeated by David's soldiers, and the slaughter there was vast that day — 20,000 casualties.
8 The battle spread over the entire region, and that day the forest claimed more people than the sword.

Absalom's Death

9 Absalom was riding on his mule when he happened to meet David's soldiers.
When the mule went under the tangled branches of a large oak tree, Absalom's head was caught fast in the tree. The mule under him kept going, so he was suspended in midair. [A] 10 One of the men saw him and informed Joab. He said,
"I just saw Absalom hanging in an oak tree! " 11 "You just saw him! " Joab exclaimed. [B] "Why didn't you strike him to the ground right there? I would have given you 10 silver pieces [c] and a belt! " 12 The man replied to Joab, "Even if I had the weight of 1,000 pieces of silver [d] in my hand, I would not raise my hand against the king's son. For we heard the king command you, Abishai, and Ittai, 'Protect the young man Absalom for me.' [e, f] 13 If I had jeopardized my own [g] life — and nothing is hidden from the king — you would have abandoned me." 14 Joab said, "I'm not going to waste time with you! " He then took three spears in his hand and thrust them into Absalom's heart while he was still alive in the oak tree, 15 and 10 young men who were Joab's armor-bearers surrounded Absalom, struck him, and killed him.
16 Afterward, Joab blew the ram's horn, and the troops broke off their pursuit of Israel because Joab restrained them. 17 They took Absalom, threw him into a large pit in the forest, and piled a huge mound of stones over him. [h] And all Israel fled, each to his tent. [i]

18 When he was alive, Absalom had set up a pillar [j] for himself in the King's Valley, [k] for he had said, "I have no son [l] to preserve the memory of my name." So he gave the pillar his name. It is still called Absalom's Monument today.

19 Ahimaaz son of Zadok [m] said, "Please let me run and tell the king the good news that the LORD has delivered him from his enemies."

20 Joab replied to him, "You are not the man to take good news today. You may do it another day, but today you aren't taking good news, because the king's son is dead." 21 Joab then said to the •Cushite , "Go tell the king what you have seen." The Cushite bowed to Joab and took off running.

22 However, Ahimaaz son of Zadok persisted and said to Joab, "No matter what, please let me also run behind the Cushite! "

Joab replied, "My son, why do you want to run since you won't get a reward? "

23 "No matter what I want to run! "

"Then run! " Joab said to him. So Ahimaaz ran by way of the plain and outran the Cushite.

24 David was sitting between the two gates [n] when the watchman went up to the roof of the gate and over to the wall. [o] The watchman looked out and saw a man running alone. 25 He called out and told the king.

The king said, "If he's alone, he bears good news."

As the first runner came closer, 26 the watchman saw another man running. He called out to the gatekeeper, "Look! Another man is running alone! "

"This one is also bringing good news," said the king.

27 The watchman said, "The way the first man runs looks to me like the way Ahimaaz son of Zadok runs." [p]

"This is a good man; he comes with good news," [q] the king commented.

28 Ahimaaz called out to the king, "All is well," and then bowed down to the king with his face to the ground. He continued, "May the LORD your God be praised! He delivered up the men who rebelled against my lord the king."

29 The king asked, "Is the young man Absalom all right? "

Ahimaaz replied, "When Joab sent the king's servant and your servant, I saw a big disturbance, but I don't know what it was."

30 The king said, "Move aside and stand here." So he stood to one side.

31 Just then the Cushite came and said, "May my lord the king hear the good news: today the LORD has delivered you from all those rising up against you! ”

32 The king asked the Cushite, “Is the young man Absalom all right? ”

The Cushite replied, “May what has become of the young man happen to the enemies of my lord the king and to all who rise up against you with evil intent.” r

33 s The king was deeply moved and went up to the gate chamber and wept. As he walked, he cried, “My son Absalom! My son, my son Absalom! If only I had died instead of you, Absalom, my son, my son! ” t

David's Kingdom Restored

19 It was reported to Joab, “The king is weeping. He’s mourning over Absalom.” 2 That day’s victory was turned into mourning for all the troops because on that day the troops heard, “The king is grieving over his son.” 3 So they returned to the city quietly that day like people come in when they are humiliated after fleeing in battle. 4 But the king hid his face [a] and cried out at the top of his voice, “My son Absalom! Absalom, my son, my son! ”

5 Then Joab went into the house to the king and said, “Today you have shamed all your soldiers — those who rescued your life and the lives of your sons and daughters, your wives, and your concubines. 6 You love your enemies and hate those who love you! Today you have made it clear that the commanders and soldiers mean nothing to you. In fact, today I know that if Absalom were alive and all of us were dead, it would be fine with you! [A]

7 “Now get up! Go out and encourage [B] your soldiers, for I swear by the LORD that if you don’t go out, not a man will remain with you tonight. [b] This will be worse for you than all the trouble that has come to you from your youth until now! ”

8 So the king got up and sat in the •gate , [c] and all the people were told:
“Look, the king is sitting in the gate.” Then they all came into the king’s presence.

Meanwhile, each Israelite had fled to his tent. [d] 9 All the people among all the tribes of Israel were arguing: “The king delivered us from the grasp of our enemies, [e] and he rescued us from the grasp of the Philistines, [f] but now he has fled from the land because of Absalom. [g] 10 But Absalom, the man we anointed over us, has died in battle. So why do you say nothing about restoring the king? ”

11 King David sent word to the priests, Zadok and Abiathar: [h] “Say to the elders of Judah, ‘Why should you be the last to restore the king to his palace?
The talk of all Israel has reached the king at his house. 12 You are my brothers, my flesh and blood. [i] So why should you be the last to restore the king? ’ 13 And tell Amasa, [j] ‘Aren’t you my flesh and blood? May God punish me and do so severely if you don’t become commander of the army from now on instead of Joab! ’ ”

14 So he won over [C] all the men of Judah, and they sent word to the king:
“Come back, you and all your servants.” 15 Then the king returned. When he arrived at the Jordan, Judah came to Gilgal to meet the king and escort him across the Jordan.

16 Shimei son of Gera, [k] a Benjaminite from Bahurim, hurried down with the men of Judah to meet King David. 17 There were 1,000 men from Benjamin with him. Ziba, an attendant from the house of Saul, [l] with his 15 sons and 20 servants also rushed down to the Jordan ahead of the king. 18 They forded the Jordan to bring the king's household across and do whatever the king desired. D

When Shimei son of Gera crossed the Jordan, he fell down before the king 19 and said to him, "My lord, don't hold me •guilty , and don't remember your servant's wrongdoing on the day my lord the king left Jerusalem. [m] May the king not take it to heart. 20 For your servant knows that I have sinned. But look!
Today I am the first one of the entire house of Joseph to come down to meet my lord the king."

21 Abishai son of Zeruiah asked, "Shouldn't Shimei be put to death for this, because he cursed the LORD's anointed? " [n]

22 David answered, "Sons of Zeruiah, do we agree on anything? [o] Have you become my adversary today? Should any man be killed in Israel today? Am I not aware that today I'm king over Israel? " 23 So the king said to Shimei, "You will not die." Then the king gave him his oath. [p]

24 Mephibosheth, [q] Saul's grandson, also went down to meet the king. He had not taken care of his feet, trimmed his mustache, or washed his clothes from the day the king left until the day he returned safely. 25 When he came from Jerusalem to meet the king, the king asked him, "Mephibosheth, why didn't you come with me? "

26 "My lord the king," he replied, "my servant Ziba betrayed me. Actually your servant said: 'I'll saddle the donkey for myself [r] so that I may ride it and go with the king' — for your servant is lame. [s] 27 Ziba slandered your servant to my lord the king. [t] But my lord the king is like the Angel of God, [u] so do whatever you think best. E 28 For my grandfather's entire family deserves death from my lord the king, but you set your servant among those who eat at your table. [v] So what further right do I have to keep on making appeals to the king? "

29 The king said to him, "Why keep on speaking about these matters of yours?
I hereby declare: you and Ziba are to divide the land." [w]

30 Mephibosheth said to the king, "Instead, since my lord the king has come to his palace safely, let Ziba take it all! "

31 Barzillai the Gileadite [x] had come down from Rogelim and accompanied the king to the Jordan River to see him off at the Jordan. 32 Barzillai was a very old man — 80 years old — and since he was a very wealthy man, he had provided for the needs of the king while he stayed in Mahanaim. [y]

33 The king said to Barzillai, “Cross over with me, and I’ll provide for you [z] at my side in Jerusalem.”

34 Barzillai replied to the king, “How many years of my life are left that I should go up to Jerusalem with the king? 35 I’m now 80 years old. [a] Can I discern what is pleasant and what is not? Can your servant taste what he eats or drinks? Can I still hear the voice of male and female singers? Why should your servant be an added burden to my lord the king? [b] 36 Since your servant is only going with the king a little way across the Jordan, why should the king repay me with such a reward? 37 Please let your servant return so that I may die in my own city near the tomb of my father and mother. But here is your servant Chimham: [c] let him cross over with my lord the king. Do for him what seems good to you.” [F]

38 The king replied, “Chimham will cross over with me, and I will do for him what seems good to you, [G] and whatever you desire from me I will do for you.” 39 So all the people crossed the Jordan, and then the king crossed. The king kissed Barzillai and blessed him, and Barzillai returned to his home.

40 The king went on to Gilgal, and Chimham went with him. All the troops of Judah and half of Israel’s escorted the king. 41 Suddenly, all the men of Israel came to the king. They asked him, “Why did our brothers, the men of Judah, take you away secretly and transport the king and his household across the Jordan, along with all of David’s men? ”

42 All the men of Judah responded to the men of Israel, “Because the king is our relative. Why does this make you angry? Have we ever eaten anything of the king’s or been honored at all? ” [d]

43 The men of Israel answered the men of Judah: “We have 10 shares in the king, [e] so we have a greater claim to David than you. Why then do you despise us? Weren’t we the first to speak of restoring our king? ” [f] But the words of the men of Judah were harsher than those of the men of Israel.

Sheba's Revolt

20 Now a •wicked man, a Benjaminite named Sheba son of Bichri, happened to be there. He blew the ram's horn and shouted:
We have no portion in David,
no inheritance in Jesse's son.
Each man to his tent, Israel!
2 So all the men of Israel deserted David and followed Sheba son of Bichri, but the men of Judah from the Jordan all the way to Jerusalem remained loyal to their king. [a] 3 When David came to his palace in Jerusalem, he took the 10 concubines he had left to take care of the palace and placed them under guard. [b] He provided for them, but he was not intimate with them. They were confined until the day of their death, living as widows.
4 The king said to Amasa, "Summon the men of Judah to me within three days and be here yourself." 5 Amasa went to summon Judah, but he took longer than the time allotted him. 6 So David said to Abishai, "Sheba son of Bichri will do more harm to us than Absalom. Take your lord's soldiers and pursue him, or he will find fortified cities and elude us." [A] 7 So Joab's men, the Cherethites, the Pelethites, and all the warriors marched out under Abishai's command; [B] they left Jerusalem to pursue Sheba son of Bichri. 8 They were at the great stone in Gibeon when Amasa joined them. Joab was wearing his uniform and over it was a belt around his waist with a sword in its sheath. As he approached, the sword fell out. 9 Joab asked Amasa, "Are you well, my brother? " Then with his right hand Joab grabbed Amasa by the beard to kiss him. [c] 10 Amasa was not on guard against the sword in Joab's hand, and Joab stabbed him in the stomach with it and spilled his intestines out on the ground. Joab did not stab him again for Amasa was dead. [d] Joab and his brother Abishai pursued Sheba son of Bichri.
11 One of Joab's young men had stood over Amasa saying, "Whoever favors Joab and whoever is for David, follow Joab! " 12 Now Amasa was writhing in his blood in the middle of the highway, and the man had seen that all the people stopped. So he moved Amasa from the highway to the field and threw a garment over him because he realized that all those who encountered Amasa were stopping. 13 When he was removed from the highway, all the men passed by and followed Joab to pursue Sheba son of Bichri.
14 Sheba passed through all the tribes of Israel to Abel of Beth-maacah. All the Berites [e] came together and followed him. 15 Joab's troops came and besieged Sheba in Abel of Beth-maacah. They built an assault ramp against the outer wall of the city. While all the troops with Joab were battering the wall to make it collapse, 16 a wise woman called out from the city, “Listen! Listen! Please tell Joab to come here and let me speak with him.”

17 When he had come near her, the woman asked, “Are you Joab? ”

“I am,” he replied.

“Listen to the words of your servant,” she said to him.

He answered, “I’m listening.”

18 She said, “In the past they used to say, ‘Seek counsel in Abel,’ and that’s how they settled disputes. 19 I am a peaceful person, one of the faithful in Israel, but you’re trying to destroy a city that is like a mother in Israel. Why would you devour the LORD’s inheritance? ”

20 Joab protested: “Never! I do not want to destroy! 21 That is not my intention. There is a man named Sheba son of Bichri, from the hill country of Ephraim, who has rebelled against King David. Deliver this one man, and I will withdraw from the city.”

The woman replied to Joab, “All right. His head will be thrown over the wall to you.” 22 The woman went to all the people with her wise counsel, [f] and they cut off the head of Sheba son of Bichri and threw it to Joab. So he blew the ram’s horn, and they dispersed from the city, each to his own tent. Joab returned to the king in Jerusalem.

23 Joab commanded the whole army of Israel; [g] Benaiah son of Jehoiada was over the Cherethites and Pelethites; 24 Adoram [h] was in charge of forced labor; Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was court historian; 25 Sheva was court secretary; Zadok and Abiathar were priests; 26 and in addition, Ira the Jairite was David’s priest.

Justice for the Gibeonites

21 During David's reign there was a famine for three successive years, so David inquired of the LORD. The LORD answered, "It is because of the blood shed by Saul and his family when he killed the Gibeonites."

2 The Gibeonites were not Israelites but rather a remnant of the Amorites. The Israelites had taken an oath concerning them, [a] but Saul had tried to kill them in his zeal for the Israelites and Judah. So David summoned the Gibeonites and spoke to them. 3 He asked the Gibeonites, "What should I do for you? How can I make atonement so that you will bring a blessing on [A] the LORD's inheritance? "

4 The Gibeonites said to him, "We are not asking for money from [B] Saul or his family, [b] and we cannot put anyone to death in Israel." [c]

"Whatever you say, I will do for you," he said.

5 They replied to the king, "As for the man who annihilated us and plotted to destroy us so we would not exist within the whole territory of Israel, 6 let seven of his male descendants be handed over to us so we may hang [C] them in the presence of the LORD [d] at Gibeah of Saul, [e] the LORD's chosen." [f]

The king answered, "I will hand them over."

7 David spared Mephibosheth, the son of Saul's son Jonathan, because of the oath of the LORD that was between David and Jonathan, Saul's son. [g] 8 But the king took Armoni and Mephibosheth, who were the two sons whom Rizpah [h] daughter of Aiah had borne to Saul, and the five sons whom Merab [i, j] daughter of Saul had borne to Adriel son of Barzillai the Meholathite 9 and handed them over to the Gibeonites. They hanged [D] them on the hill in the presence of the LORD; the seven of them died together. They were executed in the first days of the harvest at the beginning of the barley harvest. [k]

The Burial of Saul's Family 10 Rizpah, Aiah's daughter, took •sackcloth and spread it out for herself on the rock from the beginning of the harvest [l] until the rain poured down from heaven on the bodies. She kept the birds of the sky from them by day and the wild animals by night.

11 When it was reported to David what Saul's concubine Rizpah, daughter of Aiah, had done, 12 he went and got the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan from the leaders of Jabesh-gilead. They had stolen them from the public square of Beth-shan where the Philistines had hung the bodies the day the Philistines killed Saul at Gilboa. [m] 13 David had the bones brought from there. They gathered up the bones of Saul's family who had been hung [E] 14 and buried the bones of Saul and his son Jonathan at Zela in the land of Benjamin in the tomb of Saul's father Kish. They did everything the king commanded. After this, God answered prayer for the land. [n]

The Philistine Giants

15 The Philistines again waged war against Israel. David went down with his soldiers, and they fought the Philistines, but David became exhausted. 16 Then Ishbi-benob, one of the descendants of the giant, [F] whose bronze spear weighed about eight pounds [G] and who wore new armor, intended to kill David. 17 But Abishai son of Zeruiah came to his aid, struck the Philistine, and killed him. Then David's men swore to him: "You must never again go out with us to battle. You must not extinguish the lamp of Israel." [o]

18 After this, [p] there was another battle with the Philistines at Gob. At that time Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph, who was one of the descendants of the giant. [H]

19 Once again there was a battle with the Philistines at Gob, and Elhanan son of Jaare-oregim the Bethlehemite killed [q] Goliath the Gittite. The shaft of his spear was like a weaver's beam. [r]

20 At Gath there was still another battle. A huge man was there with six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot — 24 in all. He, too, was descended from the giant. [I] 21 When he taunted Israel, Jonathan, son of David's brother Shimei, killed him.

22 These four were descended from the giant [J] in Gath and were killed by David and his soldiers.

David's Song of Thanksgiving

22 David spoke the words of this song to the LORD on the day the LORD rescued him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul. 2
He said: [a]

The LORD is my rock, my fortress, [b] and my deliverer, 3 my God, my mountain [c] where I seek refuge.
My shield, the •horn of my salvation, [d] my stronghold, [e] my refuge, [f]
and my Savior, You save me from violence.
4 I called to the LORD, who is worthy of praise, [g]
and I was saved from my enemies.
5 For the waves of death engulfed me; [h]
the torrents of destruction terrified me.
6 The ropes of •Sheol entangled me;
the snares of death confronted me. [i]

7 I called to the LORD in my distress;
I called to my God. [j]
From His temple He heard my voice, and my cry for help reached His ears.
8 Then the earth shook and quaked;
the foundations of the heavens [k] trembled; [l]
they shook because He burned with anger. [m] 9 Smoke rose from His nostrils, and consuming fire came from His mouth;
coals were set ablaze by it. [A] 10 He parted the heavens and came down, [n] a dark cloud beneath His feet.
11 He rode on a cherub and flew, soaring [o] on the wings of the wind.
12 He made darkness a canopy around Him, a gathering [B] of water and thick clouds. [p] 13 From the radiance of His presence, flaming coals were ignited.
14 The LORD thundered from heaven;
the •Most High projected His voice. [q]
15 He shot arrows and scattered them; [r]
He hurled lightning bolts and routed them. [s]

16 The depths of the sea became visible, the foundations of the world were exposed at the rebuke of the LORD, at the blast of the breath [t] of His nostrils. [u]

17 He reached down from heaven and took hold of me;
He pulled me out of deep waters. [v]
18 He rescued me from my powerful enemy and from those who hated me, for they were too strong for me.
19 They confronted me in the day of my distress, but the LORD was my support.
20 He brought me out to a spacious place; [w]
He rescued me because He delighted in me.

21 The LORD rewarded me
according to my righteousness; [x]
He repaid me
according to the cleanness of my hands. [y] 22 For I have kept the ways of the LORD [z] and have not turned from my God to wickedness.
23 Indeed, I have kept all His ordinances [a] in mind [C] and have not disregarded His statutes.
24 I was blameless before Him and kept myself from sinning.
25 So the LORD repaid me
according to my righteousness, according to my cleanness [b] in His sight.

26 With the faithful
You prove Yourself faithful;
with the blameless man
You prove Yourself blameless;
27 with the pure
You prove Yourself pure, but with the crooked
You prove Yourself shrewd.
28 You rescue an afflicted people, [c]

but Your eyes are set against the proud —
You humble them. [d]
29 LORD, You are my lamp;
the LORD illuminates my darkness. [e] 30 With You I can attack a barrier, D and with my God I can leap over a wall. [f] 31 God — His way is perfect; [g]
the word of the LORD is pure. [h]
He is a shield to all who take refuge in Him.

32 For who is God besides the LORD?
And who is a rock? Only our God.
33 God is my strong refuge; [i]
He makes my way perfect. [j] 34 He makes my feet like the feet of a deer and sets me securely on the [k] heights. E 35 He trains my hands for war; [l]
my arms can bend a bow of bronze.
36 You have given me the shield of Your salvation; [m]
Your help [n] exalts me.
37 You widen a place beneath me for my steps, and my ankles do not give way.
38 I pursue my enemies and destroy them;
I do not turn back until they are wiped out.
39 I wipe them out and crush them, and they do not rise;
they fall beneath my feet.
40 You have clothed me with strength for battle;
You subdue my adversaries beneath me. [o]
41 You have made my enemies retreat before me; F
I annihilate those who hate me.
42 They look, but there is no one to save them — they look to the LORD, but He does not answer them. [p] 43 I pulverize them like dust of the earth;
I crush them and trample them like mud in the streets. [q]

44 You have freed me from the feuds among my people; [r]
You have appointed me the head of nations;

a people I had not known serve me. [s] 45 Foreigners submit to me grudgingly;
as soon as they hear, they obey me.
46 Foreigners lose heart and come trembling from their fortifications. [t]

47 The LORD lives — may my rock be praised!
God, the rock of my salvation, [u] is exalted.
48 God — He gives me vengeance and casts down peoples under me. [v] 49 He frees me from my enemies.
You exalt me above my adversaries;
You rescue me from violent men. [w]

50 Therefore I will praise You, LORD, among the nations;
I will sing about Your name. [x]
51 He is a tower of salvation for [y] His king;
He shows loyalty to His anointed, to David and his descendants forever. [z]

David’s Last Words

23 These are the last words of David:

The declaration of David son of Jesse, [a] the declaration of the man raised on high, [A] the one anointed by the God of Jacob, [b]
the favorite singer of Israel:
2 The Spirit of the LORD spoke through me,
His word was on my tongue. [c] 3 The God of Israel spoke;
the Rock of Israel said to me,
"The one who rules the people with justice, who rules in the •fear of God, [d] 4 is like the morning light when the sun rises on a cloudless morning,
the glisten of rain on sprouting grass."

5 Is it not true my house is with God?
For He has established an everlasting covenant [e] with me, ordered and secured in every detail. [f] Will He not bring about my whole salvation and my every desire?
6 But all the wicked are like thorns raked aside;
they can never be picked up by hand.
7 The man who touches them must be armed with iron and the shaft of a spear.
They will be completely burned up on the spot.

Exploits of David's Warriors

8 These are the names of David's warriors: [g]

Josheb-basshebeth the Tahchemonite was chief of the officers. [h] He wielded his spear [i] against 800 men that he killed at one time.

9 After him, Eleazar son of Dodo son of an Ahohite was among the three warriors with David when they defied the Philistines. The men of Israel retreated in the place they had gathered for battle, 10 but Eleazar stood his ground and attacked the Philistines until his hand was tired and stuck to his sword. The LORD brought about a great victory that day. Then the troops came back to him, but only to plunder the dead.

11 After him was Shammah son of Agee the Hararite. The Philistines had assembled in formation where there was a field full of lentils. The troops fled from the Philistines, 12 but Shammah took his stand in the middle of the field, defended it, and struck down the Philistines. So the LORD brought about a great victory.

13 Three of the 30 leading warriors went down at harvest time and came to David at the cave of Adullam, [j] while a company of Philistines was camping in the Valley of Rephaim. 14 At that time David was in the stronghold, [k] and a Philistine garrison was at Bethlehem. 15 David was extremely thirsty [B] and said, "If only someone would bring me water to drink from the well at the city gate of Bethlehem! " 16 So three of the warriors broke through the Philistine camp and drew water from the well at the gate of Bethlehem. They brought it back to David, but he refused to drink it. Instead, he poured it out to the LORD. 17 David said, "LORD, I would never do such a thing! Is this not the blood of men who risked their lives? " So he refused to drink it. Such were the exploits of the three warriors.

18 Abishai, Joab's brother and son of Zeruiah, [l] was leader of the Three. [m] He raised his spear against 300 men and killed them, gaining a reputation among the Three. 19 Was he not more honored than the Three? He became their commander even though he did not become one of the Three. [n]

20 Benaiah son of Jehoiada [o] was the son of a brave man from Kabzeel, a man of many exploits. Benaiah killed two sons [p] of Ariel [C] of Moab, and he went down into a pit on a snowy day and killed a lion. 21 He also killed an Egyptian, a huge man. Even though the Egyptian had a spear in his hand, Benaiah went down to him with a club, snatched the spear out of the Egyptian's hand, and then killed him with his own spear. 22 These were the exploits of Benaiah son of Jehoiada, who had a reputation among the three warriors. 23 He was the most honored of the Thirty, but he did not become one of the Three. David put him in charge of his bodyguard.

24 Among the Thirty were:

Joab's brother Asahel, [q]
Elhanan son of Dodo of Bethlehem,
25 Shammah the Harodite, Elika the Harodite,
26 Helez the Paltite,
Ira son of Ikkesh the Tekoite,

27 Abiezer the Anathothite,
Mebunnai the Hushathite,
28 Zalmon the Ahohite,
Maharai the Netophathite,
29 Heleb son of Baanah the Netophahite,
Ittai son of Ribai from Gibeah of the Benjaminites,
30 Benaiah the Pirathonite,
Hiddai from the •wadis of Gaash, D
31 Abi-albon the Arbathite, Azmaveth the Barhumite, 32 Eliahba the Shaalbonite,
the sons of Jashen,
Jonathan son of r 33 Shammah the Hararite,
Ahiam son of Sharar the Hararite,
34 Eliphelet son of Ahasbai son of the Maacathite, Eliam son of Ahithophel the Gilonite, s
35 Hezro the Carmelite,
Paarai the Arbite,
36 Igal son of Nathan from Zobah, Bani the Gadite,
37 Zelek the Ammonite,
Naharai the Beerothite, the armor-bearer for Joab son of Zeruiah, 38 Ira the Ithrite, Gareb the Ithrite,
39 and Uriah t the Hittite. u

There were 37 in all.

David's Military Census

24 The LORD’s anger burned against Israel again, and He stirred up David against them to say: “Go, count the people of Israel and Judah.” [a] 2 So the king said to Joab, the commander of his army, “Go through all the tribes of Israel from Dan to Beer-sheba and register the troops so I can know their number.” [b]
3 Joab replied to the king, “May the LORD your God multiply the troops 100 times more than they are [c] — while my lord the king looks on! But why does my lord the king want to do this? ”
4 Yet the king’s order prevailed over Joab and the commanders of the army.
So Joab and the commanders of the army left the king’s presence to register the troops of Israel.
5 They crossed the Jordan and camped in Aroer, [d] south of the town in the middle of the valley, and then proceeded toward Gad and Jazer. 6 They went to Gilead and to the land of the Hittites [e] and continued on to Dan-jaan and around to Sidon. 7 They went to the fortress of Tyre and all the cities of the Hivites and Canaanites. Afterward, they went to the •Negev of Judah at Beer-sheba.
8 When they had gone through the whole land, they returned to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and 20 days. 9 Joab gave the king the total of the registration of the troops. There were 800,000 fighting men from Israel and 500,000 men from Judah. [f] 10 David’s conscience troubled him [g] after he had taken a census of the troops. He said to the LORD, “I have sinned greatly in what I’ve done. Now, LORD, because I’ve been very foolish, [h] please take away Your servant’s •guilt .”

David’s Punishment

11 When David got up in the morning, a revelation from the LORD had come to the prophet Gad, [i] David’s seer: [j] 12 “Go and say to David, ‘This is what the LORD says: I am offering you three choices. Choose one of them, and I will do it to you.’ ”
13 So Gad went to David, told him the choices, and asked him, “Do you want three [k] years of famine to come on your land, to flee from your foes three months while they pursue you, or to have a plague in your land three days? Now, think it over and decide what answer I should take back to the One who sent me.” 14 David answered Gad, “I have great anxiety. Please, let us fall into the LORD’s hands because His mercies are great, [l] but don’t let me fall into human hands.”

15 So the LORD sent a plague on Israel from that morning until the appointed time, and from Dan to Beer-sheba 70,000 men died. 16 Then the angel extended his hand toward Jerusalem to destroy it, [m] but the LORD relented concerning the destruction [n] and said to the angel who was destroying [o] the people, “Enough, withdraw your hand now! ” The angel of the LORD was then at the threshing floor of Araunah [p] the Jebusite. [q] 17 When David saw the angel striking the people, he said to the LORD, “Look,
I am the one who has sinned; I am the one [r] who has done wrong. But these sheep, what have they done? Please, let Your hand be against me and my father’s family.”

David’s Altar

18 Gad came to David that day and said to him, “Go up and set up an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.” 19 David went up in obedience to Gad’s command, just as the LORD had commanded. 20 Araunah looked down and saw the king and his servants coming toward him, so he went out and bowed to the king with his face to the ground.
21 Araunah said, “Why has my lord the king come to his servant? ”
David replied, “To buy the threshing floor from you in order to build an altar to the LORD, so the plague on the people may be halted.” [s] 22 Araunah said to David, “My lord the king may take whatever he wants [A] and offer it. Here are the oxen for a •burnt offering and the threshing sledges and ox yokes for the wood. [t] 23 My king, Araunah gives everything here to the king.”
Then he said to the king, “May the LORD your God accept you.” 24 The king answered Araunah, “No, I insist on buying it from you for a price, for I will not offer to the LORD my God burnt offerings that cost me nothing.” David bought the threshing floor and the oxen for 20 ounces [B] of silver. 25 He built an altar to the LORD there and offered burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings. Then the LORD answered prayer on behalf of the land, [u] and the plague on Israel ended.

Study Notes

1:1 The historical account of the first kings of Israel continues following the description of the death of Saul in 1Sm 31. No doubt David and his men needed some rest, so they stayed at Ziklag. In addition, Ziklag needed to be rebuilt (1Sm 30:1).

1:2 By the third day, Saul had been dead a few days, but David had been occupied elsewhere. Torn clothes and dust on his head were signs of mourning, so David immediately knew bad news was forthcoming.

1:4 The words the troops fled indicate that Israel had lost the battle (1Sm 4:17; 17:24; 31:1). Saul and . . . Jonathan are dead was terrible news, but also news that required further verification.

1:6 Mount Gilboa was the site of the battle, so the messenger's word placed him at the scene. Saul, leaning on his spear gives the sense that an eyewitness was speaking. The mention of chariots and . . . cavalry was consistent with Philistine warfare, especially in a valley where the chariots had plenty of room to maneuver.

1:8 Ironically, the man was an Amalekite, part of the group Saul had been commanded to destroy (1Sm 15:1-3).

1:9 Saul's alleged words could square with the circumstances of 1Sm 31:3-4; see the next note.

1:10 With his words I stood over him and killed him, the Amalekite claimed responsibility for killing King Saul. Further, the man's possession of Saul's crown and armband provided proof of the Amalekite's presence at Gilboa and that Saul was dead. Two possibilities exist on harmonizing this verse with 1Sm 31:4. The first is to assume Saul fell on his sword, did not die immediately, and so asked the Amalekite to help bring about a quicker death. The second and more likely is that the Amalekite arrived on the scene after Saul had died but before the Philistines arrived. He saw an opportunity to receive a reward from David, so he took the crown and armband to David and lied about the way Saul died. Perhaps David detected the Amalekite's deceit, which in part would explain his command in verse 15.

1:11-12 Throughout his life, David had remained as loyal as possible to Saul's house. The king of Israel lay dead, so David and all with him mourned, wept, and fasted.

1:14 David's reference to Saul as the Lord's anointed (1Sm 24:6) highlights the respect he had for God's hand on his former king, despite the struggles he had experienced with Saul.

1:15-16 By ordering the Amalekite's death, David further distanced himself from participation in or endorsement of Saul's death.

1:17 The lengthiest example of a lament in the Bible is the book of Lamentations, though many psalms also are so classified (Pss 3; 22; 137).

1:18 David commanded that Judahites everywhere should learn this lament. Such an order provided further indication of the depth of his sorrow and the respect he had for Saul and Jonathan. The Book of Jashar (or "Book of the Upright") is also mentioned in Jos 10:13. It has never been discovered, but it appears to have been a collection of some of God's great works among His people.

1:19 Splendor also may be translated as "gazelle," describing Saul as a majestic animal. Gazelles often inhabited the heights, so the image fits well.

1:20 David did not want Israel's enemies to rejoice, but they were already doing so (1Sm 31:9). Gath and Ashkelon were two leading Philistine cities (see note at 1Sm 5:1).

1:21 David called to the mountains of Gilboa, the site of Saul's death, to participate in the mourning by lacking dew and rain, two kinds of moisture much more common in the north where Gilboa was located rather than in the south where David was. The Hebrew seems to reflect the depth of David's extreme emotion. The phrase the shield of Saul, no longer anointed with oil perhaps indicates the cleaning and polishing of Saul's weapons. The concept of anointing was fitting for Saul, God's anointed one.

1:22 David praised the king and prince for their bravery and lack of retreat in the face of serious danger.

1:23 David also praised the relationship that Saul and Jonathan had. First Samuel reveals Jonathan's strained relationship with his father, as Jonathan tried to be both a loyal son to Saul and a loyal friend to David. David affirmed the mutual commitment of Saul and Jonathan in that they died fighting beside each other.

1:24 The phrase clothed you in scarlet shows that Saul's military victories had provided stability and perhaps even prosperous times for many Israelites.

1:26 David called Jonathan his brother and friend. His relationship with Jonathan included a covenant bond of deep mutual respect and loyalty (1Sm 18:1-3; 20:13-17; 23:16-18). As leading men of society, they had much in common and developed a deep relationship that David considered more wonderful than the love of women. The text does not suggest that David had a homosexual relationship with Jonathan or that David had a poor relationship with his wives. Rather, it speaks to an unbreakable friendship bond between men that has been witnessed countless times and in countless cultures throughout history.

2:1 David inquired of the Lord as he often did to determine God's will for his life (1Sm 23:2,9-12; 30:7-8). Hebron was Judah's natural capital, located about 19 miles south of Jerusalem high in the hill country.

2:2 Ahinoam and Abigail remained with David, though Saul had given Michal, David's first wife, to another man (1Sm 25:44).

2:3 The men who were with David had come from many places (1Sm 22:2), but most were probably from Judah. Settling them in the towns near Hebron meant David would have many loyal citizens nearby.

2:4 The men of Judah recognized God's hand on David and anointed him king over the house of Judah—over his own tribe only. At this time, David heard how the men of Jabesh-gilead had buried Saul.

2:5-6 David informed the citizens of Jabesh-gilead that they had done well with their special kindness to Saul. David wanted them to know he did not count their loyalty to Saul as disloyalty to him.

2:7 David probably wanted to be sure people outside Judah heard he was now king over his own tribe. Perhaps they would then conclude the next logical step was to anoint him king over all Israel.

2:8 Abner, Saul's relative and general, had survived the battle at Gilboa. Saul's son Ish-bosheth was probably the oldest surviving son (1Sm 31:2). The exact location of Mahanaim is uncertain, but Jos 21:38 designates it as a Levitical city east of the Jordan River (Gn 32:2).

2:9 Gilead designated the north-central region of Transjordan. The territory of Asher lay along Israel's northwestern Mediterranean coastline. Jezreel probably denotes the valley rather than the city. Ephraim and Benjamin were centrally located with Ephraim above Benjamin; Benjamin was Saul's tribe (1Sm 9:1). All Israel means everything but Judah in light of verse 4.

2:10 Ish-bosheth's reign of two years provides a hint about the length of the period of transition between Saul's death and David's assumption of the kingship over all Israel.

2:11 After seven years and six months, David would move his capital to Jerusalem, where he would reign for 33 years (5:5).

2:12 Gibeon lay in the territory of Benjamin about 23 miles north of Hebron.

2:13 David's general Joab wanted to keep Ish-bosheth's army out of Judah. The pool of Gibeon probably denotes a large reservoir near the spring outside the city.

2:14 The purpose of the deadly competition between the 24 representatives of the two armies is uncertain. Some have suggested a kind of representative combat as in the David and Goliath account (1Sm 17:8-10); others believe it was to give the Lord a way to show which army He favored.

2:16 The seemingly synchronized death of all 24 soldiers at once heightened tensions between the armies and foreshadowed the toll the civil war would take on the Israelite population.

2:17 The battle referred to in this verse apparently began immediately after the stalemate of the contest in verses 14-16.

2:18 Zeruiah was David's sister (1Ch 2:16), so Joab, Abishai, and Asahel were David's nephews who served in his army.

2:19 Asahel chased Abner because he saw an opportunity to strike down the leader of the opposition forces. Both men appear to have been on foot.

2:21 Abner hoped to deter Asahel with the possibility of obtaining easy spoil from one of the young soldiers of lesser skill whom he might kill more easily.

2:22 Abner's words, Stop chasing me, suggest that Asahel was gaining on him. Abner probably was better armed and more experienced in fighting than Asahel.

2:23 The end of his spear may designate the butt end, since it may have been sharpened to stick in the ground (1Sm 26:7). Or Abner may have turned the spear around and thrust it back at Asahel.

2:24 The hill of Ammah is an unknown site east of Gibeon.

2:25 The top of a hill was more easily defended.

2:26 Abner's questions to Joab challenged him to consider the high price of a civil war in Israel. During the days of the judges, another civil war almost resulted in Benjamin's extermination (Jdg 20:46-21:3).

2:28 The blowing of a ram's horn was a signal to gather the troops—in this case, to stop fighting (18:16; 20:22).

2:29 Abner and his men then retreated across the Jordan River and northward about 30 miles to Mahanaim (v. 8).

2:30-31 The differences in the number of casualties (19 of David's soldiers . . . 360 of the Benjaminites and Abner's men) reveal the overwhelming victory David's forces achieved and suggest God's favor on David.

2:32 Bethlehem lay approximately 10 miles south of the battle site. From there to Hebron was another 14 miles along the highway.

3:1 The phrase long and drawn out suggests the struggle between David and Saul's son lasted awhile, probably at least two years (2:10).

3:2 Amnon would prove a tragic figure later (13:1-29).

3:3 Absalom would later die in an attempt to seize his father's throne (15:1-18:33). The reference to his mother as the daughter of King Talmai of Geshur, a Aramean city-state near the Sea of Galilee, suggests a marriage alliance between David and Talmai to strengthen David's position in the north.

3:4 Adonijah would later try to assume the throne, but Solomon would succeed David as king (1Kg 1:5-40).

3:6 Ish-bosheth naturally gave his leading general, Abner, a lot of authority. The text may indicate that Abner's intentions were to seize the kingship.

3:7 Having sexual relations with a woman of the harem was obviously the unique privilege of the king and could have been perceived as an attempt by Abner to usurp the kingship (2Kg 12:8; 16:20-22).

3:8 Abner's response does not indicate whether he actually was guilty. He may have been shocked by Ish-bosheth's suggestion of disloyalty after all he had done to support Ish-bosheth's kingship. On the other hand, he may have felt Ish-bosheth should have overlooked his indiscretion with Saul's concubine in light of his loyalty to Ish-bosheth in every other way.

3:9 Ironically, Abner was well aware of God's promise to David, yet he had been advancing Ish-bosheth's cause.

3:10 The two cities, Dan and Beer-sheba, essentially marked the northern and southern borders of Israel, respectively, spanning a distance of about 110 miles (24:2; 1Sm 3:20). Abner thus envisioned the entire nation unified under the throne of David.

3:12 Abner sent messengers . . . to David because he would have wanted to make sure David accepted him. He did not want to be taken prisoner or executed.

3:13 Saul's daughter Michal was David's first wife (1Sm 18:27) whom Saul took away and gave to Paltiel son of Laish after David became a fugitive (1Sm 25:44). By getting her back, David also would reestablish himself as a legitimate relative and heir to Saul's throne. David had never divorced Michal, so she rightfully belonged with him.

3:14-15 Ish-bosheth's compliance with David's demand further highlights his weakness. Perhaps with Abner having deserted to David's side, Ish-bosheth lacked any real power and was trying to ensure that David didn't kill him after becoming king (1Sm 24:20-21).

3:16 Paltiel, Michal's husband of several years, was perhaps the one who along with Michal suffered the most through this ordeal. Bahurim was located near the Benjamin-Judah border. Abner was probably an imposing military man, so when he bluntly told Paltiel to go back, Paltiel was intimidated into obeying despite his broken heart.

3:17 Abner's words, In the past you wanted David, to the elders of Israel seem to reflect earlier sentiments that may have arisen during days of discontentment with Saul's leadership.

3:18 With his words the Lord has spoken, Abner appealed to the promise of the heavenly King to confirm David as Israel's new king. The Philistines continued to be a threat to Israel during these uncertain days of civil war; the nation desperately needed unifying leadership.

3:19 Abner also informed the Benjaminites because Saul had come from them. David wanted the support of these citizens as much or more than any other, and he wanted to accomplish as much as he could through diplomacy rather than war.

3:21 Abner was ready to coordinate final plans among the northern tribes to gather all Israel to David. Once they made a covenant ratifying his rule over them, David would control the entire nation.

3:22 A raid of foreign populations living close to Judah would yield plunder that would help fund ongoing operations (see note at 4:2).

3:24 Joab expressed his shock (What have you done?) when he heard that

David had let the man who used to be his enemy's general leave in peace.

3:25 Joab was certain Abner's motives were impure. It appears Joab's motives were to protect David's interests, though he may have been protecting his own as well since Abner would have been a potential rival to Joab as David's leading general.

3:26 The well of Sirah was a site about two miles northwest of Hebron.

3:27 Joab stabbed him [Abner] in the stomach just as Abner had done to Asahel, Joab's brother (2:23). Joab may have decided he knew better than David how to handle Saul's former general. If Joab's intentions were to exact revenge for Abner's self-defense slaying of Asahel, he might have needed to submit to the decision of the elders of Hebron, which was a city of refuge (Jos 20:7).

3:28 David heard about what Joab had done, and he distanced himself from any blame for Abner's death.

3:29 With his words May it hang over Joab's head, David pronounced a series of curses that might fall on his general for his injustice. At the same time, he did not take Joab's life because many people may have felt that Joab's actions were justified, and because Joab was his nephew.

3:30 Perhaps Abishai led the delegation that summoned Abner back to Hebron, thus serving as Joab's co-conspirator. Abner had killed Asahel in legitimate battle, but Joab killed Abner in a time of peace (1Kg 2:5).

3:31-32 David's public participation in Abner's stately funeral would further distance him from blame for Abner's death. He is also called King David for the first time here. Abner's burial in Hebron may have been David's way of honoring Abner by treating him as one of David's own tribe members. The king wept aloud, something kings did not normally do.

3:33-34 David took his mourning for Abner even further when he sang a lament. He alluded to Abner's killers (Joab and Abishai) as criminals.

3:35 David determined that he would fast the rest of the day in mourning for Abner. His taking of an oath emphasized his determination to honor Abner in this way.

3:36 David's integrity with regard to Abner and with regard to his oaths pleased the people. Ironically, Saul had sought to please the people but went back on his oaths and pleased neither the people nor God (see note at 1Sm 14:45).

3:37-38 David's actions persuaded all the troops and all Israel of his innocence in Abner's death. His designation of Abner as a great leader may have been the king's way of showing he could forgive those Israelites who had challenged his kingship if they were now willing to submit to him.

3:39 Up to this point David had been anointed as king over Judah only (2:1-4);

perhaps he intended his words I am the anointed king to further ingrain this idea in the minds of others as well. At the same time, he considered his position weak in contrast to the fierce nature of Joab and Abishai, the sons of Zeruiah.

4:1 News of Abner's death reached Ish-bosheth, whose courage failed because Ish-bosheth had now lost his strongest general. Probably all Israel who had supported him were dismayed because they feared reprisal following a victory by David that now appeared certain.

4:2 As leaders of raiding parties, Baanah and Rechab performed a role for Ish-bosheth that was similar to what Abishai and Joab did for David (3:22).

4:4 Mephibosheth, a son of Jonathan, would find favor with David during David's reign (9:1-10).

4:6 These two men entered the interior of Ish-bosheth's house, something that might not have been unusual for trusted officers (v. 2).

4:7 Baanah and Rechab beheaded Ish-bosheth because they wanted proof of his death for David. By way of the Arabah took them through the Jordan Valley, the quickest and most direct route to Hebron about 50 miles southwest. They hoped they might receive a reward for eliminating David's rival.

4:8 With their words, Today the Lord has granted vengeance, Baanah and Rechab credited God with their act of murder.

4:10 David reminded the two assassins of the death of the Amalekite messenger who claimed to have killed King Saul (1:6-10).

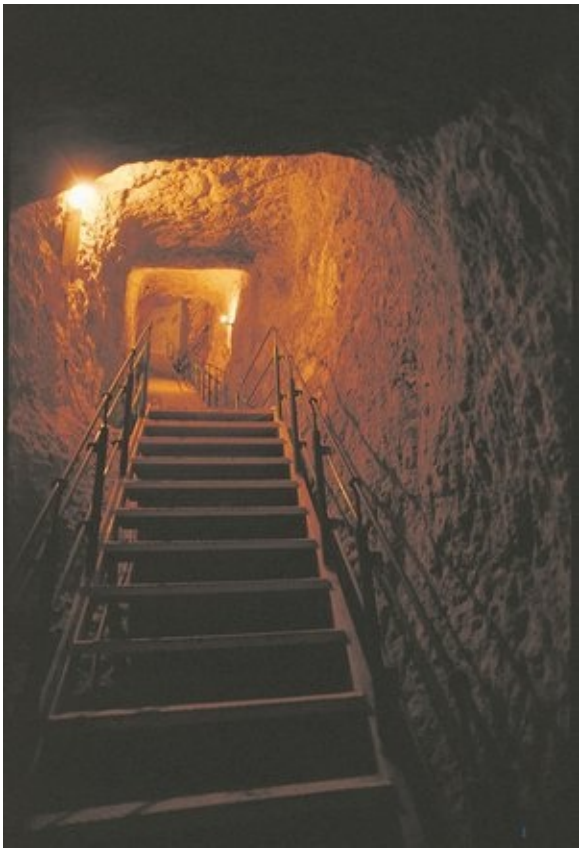
4:11 David contrasted the character of Baanah and Rechab with Ish-bosheth, whom he called a righteous man. The words in his own house on his own bed suggested they had committed a cowardly, cold-blooded act (cp. 3:26-30).

4:12 David commanded his men to cut off the hands that had committed the murder and feet that had run to bring the news of the murder to David. Ish-bosheth's head was placed in Abner's tomb in Hebron, uniting him with family in death but also perhaps subtly identifying him with Judah (3:32).

5:1 Representatives of all the tribes then came to David at Hebron. They were not his own flesh and blood as much as the Judahites were (19:41-43), but they were Israelites just like him.

5:3 In the Lord's presence (lit "before Yahweh") further confirmed God's blessing over David's reign.

5:5 The mention of Jerusalem anticipates David's conquest of the city and his making it his capital (vv. 6-9).



Some view David's moving Israel's capital from Hebron to Jerusalem as the most important geographical decision in the Bible. Shown here is Warren's Shaft, a channel through which water came into the fortified Jebusite citadel from the Gihon Spring (2Sm 5:8). This shaft was discovered in 1867 by Sir Charles Warren, a British Army officer and archaeologist.

5:6 The Jebusites had held at least a district of Jerusalem since the days of Joshua (Jos 15:63), and they thought their city was invincible.

5:7 Zion was a poetic name for Jerusalem; its exact meaning is unknown. The size of Jebusite Jerusalem was only about 12 acres (David subsequently expanded it somewhat), with a population estimated at around 1,500. Nonetheless, the city would serve the king well.

5:8 Water shaft may designate an almost 50-foot vertical shaft (today called "Warren's Shaft" after Charles Warren who discovered it) cut through rock from the Gihon Spring, Jerusalem's main water source. David's reference to the blind and the lame should be understood as a mocking taunt of the Jebusites who were not, in fact, able to defend their city.

5:9 Archaeological excavations have revealed some of David's supporting terraces on the city's eastern slope. David's choice of Jerusalem as his capital was a strategic move. It was more centrally located than Hebron, and it was located in Benjamin, the tribe of Saul. The northern tribes probably applauded this move because it promoted healing and unity among the tribes following the bitter civil war.

5:10 The phrase the Lord God of Hosts was with him shows that Yahweh was the true source of David's power and greatness.

5:11 King Hiram of Tyre, the leader of a wealthy Phoenician port city, sought to placate David through building assistance. He would later partner with David's son, Solomon, in the building of Israel's temple (1Kg 5:1-12).

5:12 David had a clear understanding that he was playing the role for which God had prepared him for the sake of . . . Israel.

5:13-16 Of the sons . . . born to David in Jerusalem, only Solomon would later play a role in the biblical account (12:24-25; 1Kg 1:33-40).

5:17 The Philistines heard about David's unification of Israel; now he stood as their enemy. They marched against him as he gathered his forces at the stronghold, Jerusalem, his new capital (vv. 7,9).

5:18 The Valley of Rephaim lay just southwest of Jerusalem.

5:19 David inquired of the Lord as he had on many other key occasions (1Sm 23:2,9-12; 30:7-8). The Philistines were a major threat to Saul and ultimately killed him; David, however, sought the Lord's guidance and received assurance of victory.

5:20 David was quick to give God the credit for his victory over the Philistines.

5:21 The Philistines abandoned their idols, and David and his men carried them off presumably to destroy them (cp. 1Ch 14:12 and note there).

5:23 God added a particular strategy to his encouragement of David to engage the Philistines again.

5:24 The sound of marching in the balsam trees was possibly produced by strong winds that typically would come up in the afternoon combined with an undisclosed act of God. When the Israelites heard this distinct sound, they would know God was marching before them, leading them to victory.

5:25 David cut off the Philistines' path of retreat and they had to flee northward down the Aijalon Valley instead of toward Gezer.

6:1 David wanted a large and representative delegation, so he assembled choice men in Israel.

6:2 Baale-judah was also known as Kiriath-jearim, located in Benjamin. The ark of God had been there since Samuel's days (1Sm 7:1). The cherubim adorned the mercy seat atop the ark, stretching their wings toward each other (Ex 25:20).

6:3 The people set the ark . . . on a new cart instead of carrying it on poles as the law prescribed (Ex 25:12-15). The people of God did no better than the pagan Philistines had done (1Sm 6:7). This decision would have disastrous consequences (2Sm 6:6-7).

6:4 On Abinadab's house on the hill, see note at 1Sm 7:1.

6:6-7 The site of Nacon's threshing floor is unknown. Uzzah meant well when he tried to steady the ark when the oxen . . . stumbled, but God struck him dead for his irreverence. Good intentions must be coupled with proper reverence when approaching God (cp. Heb 12:29).

6:8 David's anger was perhaps due to Uzzah's carelessness that led to God's anger being displayed. The king had not wanted such a joyous celebration to be marred by death. It is also possible that David's anger was directed at God, for humans often fail to comprehend God's justice.

6:9 David feared the Lord that day in a way he had never done before. His question was prompted by his own sense of sinfulness and uncleanness, and his realization of the holiness of God.

6:10 The ark of the Lord ended up at the house of Obed-edom (1Ch 15:16-18). Gittite probably does not designate someone from Gath (21:19; 1Sm 17:4), but a person who lived near an olive press or wine press (Hb gath).

6:11 David delayed his plan for three months, perhaps to ensure the time of God's wrath had passed (v. 12), or perhaps out of reverent fear (v. 9).

6:13 David's sacrifice of an ox and a fattened calf after the ark had barely moved probably reveals he still had some concerns about the Lord's anger over the previous incident with Uzzah.

6:14 A linen ephod was a fine garment, typically worn by priests or Levites (Ex 28:6; 1Sm 2:18). Although David was dancing in worship before the Lord, the text does not indicate he actually assumed a priestly role. We should not understand verse 13 as meaning David actually performed the sacrifice, though he certainly was leading his people in worship.

6:16 The text states one reason why Saul's daughter Michal . . . saw King David and despised him in her heart is that his actions seemed vulgar to her (cp. v. 20 and note there). In addition to this, perhaps she was not sincere in her faith in the Lord (1Sm 19:13), or perhaps she was angry that David had taken her back from Paltiel (2Sm 3:13-16).

6:17 Burnt offerings marked general dedication to God, while fellowship offerings were sacrificial meals shared by priests and worshipers. Fellowship offerings were often offered for special blessings, and bringing the ark to Jerusalem certainly would have qualified as a blessing.

6:20 Michal disapproved of David's dancing before the slave girls of his subjects, and she suggested his actions at least bordered on the vulgar. As a daughter of a king herself, she may have wanted King David to be more aloof from the common people.

6:21 David responded sharply. He had danced before the Lord to celebrate God's goodness on his life. God had chosen him to succeed Saul, Michal's father, as well as Saul's whole family. David mention of whole family was a subtle jab at Michal as well. Perhaps Michal was more a daughter of Saul than she was a wife of David.

6:22 Michal apparently did not think David should humble himself by celebrating as he did, but David insisted that he had acted appropriately and would continue to do so.

6:23 Some suggest Michal's childlessness was the result of God's direct judgment, but the text is not clear on this. Her childlessness may have resulted from her and David having no conjugal relations due to the obvious tension in their marriage.

7:1 David had secured his borders and subdued all his enemies, resulting in the nation's enjoyment of rest on every side. However, all of this came through God's blessing.

7:2 David's words further revealed his heart for the Lord. It made no sense to him that he had so much and the ark of God was housed only by tent curtains.

7:3 Nathan is elsewhere called "Nathan the prophet" (1Kg 1:8,10,22-23). He apparently believed he did not need to consult the Lord about whether David should build God a temple, so he gave the king his blessing.

7:6 God had brought the Israelites out of Egypt over 400 years earlier and had led them to Sinai, where He gave them His statutes. During all that time, He had chosen to make His dwelling place among His people in a tent.

7:7 God's question have I ever asked anyone implied it was His prerogative to have a temple or not. He determined how His people should worship Him.

7:8 The Lord had taken David from the pasture . . . to be ruler—from a very humble profession to the greatest position of leadership in the nation.

7:10 The Lord's promises of lasting security meant everything to people whose lives were subject to foreign invasions or raids by local tribes.

7:11 The Lord denied David's desire to build Him a house (temple), but He rewarded David's heart by building the king a house (dynasty)—composed of David's descendants.

7:12 God promised David the permanent dynasty Saul could have had (1Sm 13:13-14).

7:13 The phrase I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever did not imply that David's descendants would live forever but that his dynasty and kingdom would.

7:14 The concept of discipline implies reproof or correction, but generally with good intent (Is 2:4; Hab 2:1).

7:15 God promised David His faithful love (Hb chesed). This term is a rich word, encompassing all that would come to David's line because he belonged to God. On the other hand, the Lord had removed such love from Saul because of his misguided heart.

7:16 Ultimately God's promise to David was fulfilled in the king's most significant descendant, the Lord Jesus Christ, whose throne would be established forever (Lk 1:32-33).

7:18 David's questions, Who am I . . . what is my house, reveal his amazement at God's grace toward him and his family. The king also pondered such issues about humanity in general when he wrote Psalm 8.

7:19 David affirmed that what the Lord God had done so far did not begin to challenge His power, and it was only the beginning of what He would do through David's line. The king's words this is a revelation for mankind can also be translated "This is instruction for mankind" or "This is the instruction of mankind," suggesting David thought God's work with him could be an example for all humanity. The Lord was willing to work through a surrendered heart.

7:20-21 David was aware of God's grace on his life, and he affirmed all these great things the Lord had promised would happen only in light of God's word and will (lit "heart").

7:22 David's affirmation of the Lord's uniqueness contrasted sharply with the polytheistic views of the nations around him.

7:23 God established His covenant with Israel not only to redeem a people for Himself, but to make a name for Himself so other peoples could turn to Him (Is 45:22). His great and awesome acts included His miracles performed in Egypt and during the journey to the promised land. God's intent was to judge nations and their gods who lived in Canaan at the time Israel entered the land.

7:24 Israel's special covenant relationship with God (You established Your people . . . forever) did not preclude God using Israel to bless other nations (Gn 12:3). Nonetheless, Israel's covenant with God provided them a great blessing (Rm 3:1-2).

7:26 David wanted most of all that God's name would be exalted forever through all He did for David's house. Seeing the LORD of Hosts receive His proper glory had long been on David's heart (1Sm 17:26,36,45-47).

7:27 Like Daniel (Dn 9:2-5), David did not presume on God's promises but prayed for God to graciously fulfill them despite the unworthiness of humanity.

7:28 David knew God's words were true (the Hb word rendered "true" is related to the word "amen"). God's truth provided David a foundation for his life, just as it does for all believers (Jn 8:31-32).

7:29 Lasting blessing on David's house would naturally benefit the king and his descendants, but David seemed most concerned with God's honor. He truly was a man loyal to God (1Sm 13:14).

8:1 The Philistines were never again a serious threat to Israel after David subdued them. Metheg-ammah (lit "bridle of the cubit") is an unknown site. Some suggest the expression is figurative, indicating David took the bridle (the reins of leadership) from his enemies.

8:2 The Moabites lived on Israel's southeast border beyond the Dead Sea. David allowed one-third of the defeated army to live; many kings of that time would not have been so merciful. Further, those who remained could then maintain the Moabite economy and thus bring tribute (regular tax that subject peoples were required to pay) to David.

8:3 Zobah was one of several Aramean (Syrian) city-states northeast of Israel. Through his conquest of Hadadezer and the other Aramean rulers, David gained control as far as the Euphrates River.

8:4 David hamstrung all the horses of the Arameans probably because chariot horses were not useful for most of Israel's rugged territory. David also affirmed that victory did not depend on horses but on God's will (Ps 20:7; Hos 1:7; cp. Dt 17:16).

8:5 Aramean city-states were known to band together against a common enemy.

8:6 Israelite garrisons in Aram of Damascus would ensure continued rule over the region. It also guaranteed Israel a profit from controlling major trade routes. God's power, however, was the determining factor in David's victories and blessing.

8:7 Gold shields seem to have been a significant part of other kings' public displays as well (1Kg 14:26-27).

8:9 King Toi of Hamath, another Aramean region, sought a treaty with David since David had subdued Hadadezer, Toi's enemy (1Sm 27:2-7).

8:10 Lesser kings often sought a treaty with a superior king by sending large gifts (2Kg 16:7-9).

8:11 David dedicated these gifts to the Lord, because He had blessed him with victory over all the nations he had subdued.

8:12 David's victories are summarized here; his victory over the Ammonites is described later (10:1-14; 11:1; 12:26-31). Some manuscripts read "Aram" (Syria) instead of Edom, but Edom is more likely in light of verse 13.

8:13 Some early OT manuscripts read Edomites while others say "Arameans." The only difference between the two words in Hebrew is one slight variation in a letter. Since the Valley of Salt clearly designates a region by the Dead Sea, "Edomites" is more likely correct (see also v. 14).

8:15 The phrase So David reigned over all Israel indicates that David now controlled not only his own people's territory, but the land of all the surrounding peoples, and thus had secured his borders. David ruled with justice and righteousness, reflecting two aspects of God's character (Is 9:7; Jr 9:24).

8:16 Joab, David's nephew, is well known to the story (2:13-30; 3:22-30).

Jehoshaphat should not be confused with a descendant of David by the same name (2Ch 17-20). This Jehoshaphat served as court historian (lit "the one causing to remember"), the person who supervised the preservation of important records and who perhaps coordinated the announcement of royal edicts.

8:17 Zadok would serve David throughout his reign (20:25) and also would serve David's son Solomon (1Kg 1:38-39; 2:35). He descended from faithful Eleazar's line (Nm 25:7-13); his followers were known as the Zadokites, a term that became "Sadducees" during Jesus' day (Mt 3:7; 16:1). Abiathar son of Ahimelech had escaped from Nob when Saul slaughtered all the priests (1Sm 22:20-21); he probably named his son Ahimelech in memory of his own father. Seraiah probably assisted Jehoshaphat in his administrative duties.

8:18 Benaiah served Solomon as well as David (1Kg 2:35). The meaning of Cherethites and Pelethites is uncertain, but many believe the terms designate special units of foreign-born royal bodyguards—perhaps from Crete and Philistia. Chief officials is literally "priests"; perhaps David's sons served as palace consultants to the priesthood (1Ch 18:17). However they served, it is clear that David desired a good relationship between his kingship and the priesthood.

9:1 David was determined to fulfill his promise regarding Saul's family, particularly because of Jonathan (1Sm 20:14-15; 23:17-18).

9:3 The phrase Jonathan's son who was injured in both feet refers to Mephibosheth, Jonathan's previously mentioned son (4:4); his name also appears as Merib-baal (1Ch 8:34).

9:4 Lo-debar lay east of the Jordan River in Gilead. Machir son of Ammiel was an influential man in that region who cared for Saul's son (17:27).

9:6 Mephibosheth bowed and paid homage despite the physical challenge of doing so.

9:7 David told Mephibosheth, Don't be afraid. Any descendant of Saul might expect the new king would kill him (1Sm 24:20-22). The restoration of Saul's fields near Gibeah would provide Mephibosheth income for future years, plus the king granted him the privilege of eating regularly with him in the palace.

9:8 Mephibosheth's question was a standard way of replying humbly; he was not considering turning down David's offer (cp. 7:18).

9:9-11 Ziba was given the task of caring for Mephibosheth's restored estate, and he submitted to David's command at first. However, he later attempted to secure the estate for himself and his 15 sons (16:1-4; 19:17,24-30). The phrase Mephibosheth ate at David's table just like one of the king's sons is a touching comment in light of his father Jonathan's earlier prediction to David (1Sm 23:17)—a prediction that did not come true because Jonathan died in battle (1Sm 31:2). David thus took the son (Mephibosheth) of his brother by covenant (Jonathan) and treated him as a son.

9:12 Mica would later have four sons of his own (1Ch 8:35).

10:1 Ironically, the name Hanun means "gracious."

10:2 Nahash was the Ammonite ruler whom Saul defeated (1Sm 11:1-11). Nahash apparently honored Israel's terms of peace with the Ammonites on into David's reign.

10:3 The Ammonite leaders (lit "princes") suspected David had sent his emissaries on a spying mission. Their words suggest they feared a greater level of Israelite domination; probably their current arrangement gave them a certain amount of freedom.

10:4 Hanun shaved off half their beards, giving the men a ridiculous appearance but also making them appear to be in violation of the law of Moses (Lv 19:27) or in mourning (Is 15:2; Jr 41:5). He also cut their clothes in half at the hips, exposing their private parts.

10:5 David sent a delegation to the deeply humiliated men, advising them to stay in Jericho in the Jordan Valley about 15 miles below Jerusalem until their beards looked normal again. This would enable them to avoid further humiliation.

10:6 The Ammonites must have known their actions would make them repulsive to David, so Ammon had probably determined to try to free themselves of Israelite dominance. They also purchased (1Ch 19:6) the assistance of 33,000 additional soldiers from the Arameans. The Ammonites and Arameans thus banded together against David.

10:7 David realized his control to the north and east was in jeopardy, so he dispatched Joab and all the fighting men to counter his enemies.

10:8 The Ammonite-Aramean strategy was to force Israel to fight a war on two fronts—something Joab and his forces did not realize they would have to do until they crossed the Jordan River.

10:9 Joab divided his troops into two groups. He determined the Arameans would prove the more challenging opponent, so he chose some . . . elite troops to fight them.

10:10 Joab's brother Abishai, another seasoned warrior (2:24; 1Sm 26:6-11), led the second group against the Ammonites. Nonetheless, such a strategy was risky.

10:12 Joab knew that if Israel lost this battle, Ammon and Aram might overrun Israel's territory and cities. He challenged Abishai to be strong and asked for the Lord's will to be done (lit "May the Lord do what is good in His eyes”).

10:13 The Arameans fled before the Israelite army in defeat (1Sm 4:17; 31:1).

10:14 The Ammonites knew any hope of victory over Israel was gone when the Arameans fled. They entered the city of Rabbah (their capital) to defend it from siege. Joab withdrew, content for now to return to Jerusalem.

10:15 The Arameans probably feared an Israelite reprisal, so they regrouped.

10:16 Hadadezer, whom David had earlier subdued (8:3-4), gathered the Arameans even from the distant city-states across the Euphrates River. They gathered at Helam about 30 miles east of the Sea of Galilee.

10:17 David could not ignore this second threat, so he crossed the Jordan River to face them. He wanted to keep the battle outside Israelite territory as much as possible.

10:18 Again the Arameans fled before Israel (see v. 13). The extent of the victory is indicated by the comment that David struck down Shobach commander of their army.

10:19 Israel’s enemies realized the battle was lost, and they negotiated terms of peace with Israel—terms that probably included paying greater tribute to David than they had before.

11:1 Spring was an optimal time for kings to march out to war. The crops were growing and thus men were not needed as badly to work the fields, and the winter rains were letting up. David’s forces under Joab had already put down the Ammonite threat (10:14), but David could not leave them unchecked. Israelite forces besieged Rabbah, the Ammonite capital. The words David remained in Jerusalem do not necessarily suggest David committed sin or folly by doing so. His men may have encouraged him to stay out of the battle (21:15-17), and David had not participated fully in some other battles as well (10:7).

11:2 The roof of the palace was probably on the highest ground, providing the king a commanding view of Jerusalem. He saw a woman bathing (lit “washing”); the text does not suggest she did so intentionally to lure David into an encounter.

11:3 David discovered the woman’s identity—she was Bathsheba, daughter of Eliam (one of David’s elite warriors; 23:34) and the wife of Uriah the Hittite (another of David’s elite soldiers; 23:39). She also may have been the granddaughter of Ahithophel, one of David’s most trusted counselors (23:34). At any rate, her married status rendered her off-limits to the king.

11:4 David . . . slept with her—meaning he had intercourse with her. The narrative is silent about Bathsheba’s feelings about coming to the palace and submitting to the king’s wishes. Apparently the intent of the biblical writer was to place ultimate blame where it belonged—with Israel’s king.

11:5 The news of Bathsheba's pregnancy presented special problems for the king because her husband Uriah had been away fighting the Ammonites and thus could not be the father of the child.

11:6 David sent orders to Joab without revealing the reason he was summoning Uriah.

11:7 Uriah must have wondered why the king had summoned him—one of David's valiant warriors—when a simple messenger could bring news about the war (v. 18).

11:8 The words of the king to Uriah, wash your feet, suggested a time of gentle relaxing at Uriah's house, where Bathsheba might arrange an intimate evening with her husband to make it appear that he was the baby's father. David even sent a gift along—probably some choice food and drink.

11:10 David questioned Uriah about his refusal to go home as the king had invited him to do, while being careful not to appear overly eager to make sure Uriah went home.

11:11 Uriah answered David as a true soldier. With Israel's army engaging the enemy in battle, he would not leave the battlefield to enjoy the comforts of home. Ironically, Uriah swore by the king's own life to disobey David's command.

11:12 David delayed Uriah's return a few days while he contrived another plan.

11:13 David got Uriah drunk in an effort to get him to wander home to Bathsheba, but he did not go home. The king was becoming more desperate to cover his misdeed.

11:14 The letter to Joab ordering Uriah's death was delivered by Uriah's own hand.

11:15-16 Joab, a brilliant general, had to wonder what Uriah had done to deserve death, but he obeyed David's order.

11:18 Messengers (not elite soldiers as with Uriah; v. 6) routinely ran between battle lines and Jerusalem to provide updates on the war (18:19-23; 1Sm 4:12-17).

11:20 Joab knew that David, an experienced military man in his own right, might respond angrily if he heard a bad report that included what he considered foolish military tactics.

11:21 The account of Abimelech dying from an upper millstone that was thrown from the top of the wall was a vivid example from Israel's history (Jdg 9:50-54). The messenger must have wondered, however, why Joab's suggestion to tell the king that Uriah the Hittite was dead might appease David's anger. Now two people, besides David and Bathsheba, knew a piece of David's secret.

11:24 The messenger did not wait for the king's reply to share the news of Uriah's death.

11:25 Again, when David told the messenger an encouraging word to relay to Joab, the messenger must have wondered why the king would have received the news without even challenging Joab's strategy as Joab had anticipated he might (vv. 20-21). As is almost always the case, sin proves hard to hide for David.

11:26 The text's description of Bathsheba only as Uriah's wife is probably intentional to accent David's sin. She mourned for Uriah, probably putting on mourner's clothes (Jr 6:26), throwing dirt or ashes on her head (2Sm 1:2), sitting in the dirt (Is 47:1), fasting (1Sm 31:13), and weeping.

11:27 The time of mourning is not given. Israel mourned Moses for 30 days (Dt 34:8), but Uriah's mourning probably was not that long. David then brought Bathsheba to his house, and soon she bore him a son. The king might have escaped detection from some who might have been in a position to report him—except that the Lord had seen the entire ugly ordeal.

12:1 The Lord sent Nathan to David to reveal His message to the king. Nathan had communicated to the king God's incredible promise about David's house (7:8-17). This time, the message would not be as pleasant.

12:3 Nathan's language emphasizes how the one small ewe lamb was more a member of the family than an asset comparable to the rich man's abundant sheep and cattle.

12:4 The rich man did the unthinkable in the name of hospitality.

12:5 David was infuriated, a fact that reveals he thought Nathan's words presented a real occurrence in his kingdom. Deserves to die is literally "is a son of death."

12:6 David judged that the rich man had responded in an unjust, calloused manner. Four lambs were the standard restitution for a stolen sheep (Ex 22:1).

12:7 With his powerful words, You are the man, the prophet drove home the application of the parable. The parable laid a foundation for what was to come; the words this is what the Lord God of Israel says then introduced God's indictment against the wayward king. The Lord then began to describe all He had done for David, beginning with giving him the kingship and delivering him from the hand of Saul.

12:8 The phrase I would have given you even more demonstrated the Lord's willingness to go even further with David's blessing if the king had only asked.

12:9 David had not merely neglected the command of the Lord; he had despised it with his grievous actions. Technically, the Ammonite's sword killed Uriah, but it was as if David had done it himself. And he had done this to cover his adultery with Uriah's wife.

12:10 To despise God's command (v. 9) is to despise God; conversely, believers show their love for God by loving and keeping His commands (1Jn 5:3-4).

12:11 David's own family would be the instruments of God's judgment. The words I will take your wives and give them to another were fulfilled by David's son Absalom when Absalom tried to usurp the kingship (16:20-22).

12:13 David's response—I have sinned—contrasts sharply with that of Saul when Samuel confronted him over his sin (1Sm 15:15,20-21). Saul gave excuse after excuse, but David's heart (1Sm 13:14) would not let him do so. Nathan assured the king that his life would be spared.

12:14 The language of this verse is difficult and has been rendered different ways. The words you treated the Lord with . . . contempt emphasize David's careless treatment of God's commands (v. 9). Other manuscripts read, "You have caused the Lord's enemies to blaspheme," meaning the enemies of God treated Him with disdain because they had seen the hypocrisy of His chosen leader. In either case, God's leader had committed a very public sin, a fact that contributed to God's verdict: the son born to you will die. God would not allow this child—a reminder of David's adultery and murder—to live.

12:16 David pleaded and fasted, spending the night lying on the ground humbly before the Lord. He repented of his sin, but he would struggle with sin's consequences.

12:21 David's behavior after his child died contradicted what his servants thought might happen. Fasting normally followed the death of a loved one, but David ate food.

12:22 The king replied that he had been holding out hope that the Lord might let him live. One never knows the full extent of God's grace (Jl 2:14; Jnh 3:9).

12:23 The king's words I'll go to him, but he will never return to me may be understood as meaning David would one day join his infant child in heaven. Another possibility is that David was affirming that he would join him one day in death, but the child would never join him in this life again.

12:24 God's grace began anew in the lives of David and his wife Bathsheba. Their next child was Solomon, who would become Israel's next king. Another mark of God's grace was that the Lord loved Solomon.

12:25 Jedidiah, another name for Solomon, means "Beloved of the Lord."

12:26 The account of Joab's battle with the Ammonites that began in 11:1 now resumes. The royal fortress probably designates the part of the city where the palace stood.

12:27 Capturing a city's water supply ensured that its defeat was imminent. Cities that anticipated a siege would use extreme measures to guard their water

12:28 Joab wanted David to lay siege to the city and finish the job he had all but accomplished. The distance from Jerusalem to Rabbah was about 40 miles, but Joab was eager for the king to receive credit for the victory.

12:30 The placing of the former king's crown . . . on David's head symbolized the transfer of power from the Ammonite king to the king of Israel. David also dedicated the plunder to the Lord for the future temple's construction (1Ch 29:2-5).

12:31 David enslaved the captive Ammonite citizens and put them to work with saws, iron picks, and iron axes, and to labor at brickmaking. All these tasks were heavy labor. They suggest that David was fortifying key cities and areas throughout his territory.

13:1 David had several wives, and he fathered many children by them (3:2-5; 5:13-16). Both Absalom and Tamar had Maacah as their mother, whereas Amnon, David's firstborn son, had Ahinoam as his mother. The words was infatuated with her may also be translated as "loved her," but the present translation is better because Amnon's actions toward Tamar show that he never really loved her.

13:2 Amnon was frustrated because he wanted Tamar for his wife, but he could not marry his half sister (Lv 18:11; 20:17).

13:3 Jonadab was Amnon's friend and cousin. Shrewd is literally "wise," but Jonadab's wisdom was clearly not used for godly means.

13:4 On in love with, see note at verse 1.

13:5 Jonadab devised a plan by which Amnon could get alone with and close to Tamar.

13:9 Amnon seems to have been in a larger room of the house. When everyone left him, he retreated to the bedroom to lie down.

13:10 The bedroom was normally the innermost room of the house and the least public.

13:11 Sleep with me is literally "lie with me"—have intercourse.

13:12 Three times Tamar urged her brother not to violate her. Doing such a thing was a serious offense in the law of Moses (Dt 22:25-29).

13:13 Tamar also insisted the crime would shame both her and her brother. Tamar then suggested that Amnon speak to the king about marrying her first. Her suggestion, however, may have been a means to escape the situation; it is unlikely David would have granted Amnon's request in violation of the Mosaic law (Lv 18:11; 20:17).

13:15 The words Amnon hated Tamar show that his feelings toward his half sister had been nothing more than lust (cp. vv. 1,4).

13:16 The Torah required a man who raped a virgin to pay her father a significant bride price, and he could never divorce her (Dt 22:28-29). The law protected women by warning men of the consequences of uncontrolled sexual urges. It was also probably assumed that the young woman's brothers would be sure the man who had dishonored their sister would be a good husband to her. Amnon's attempt to send Tamar away after he had assaulted her was much worse than the rape itself since it would ensure that her shame was permanent.

13:17 This woman was a disrespectful way to speak of Amnon's half sister whom he had hoped to marry.

13:19 Tamar's actions were typical signs of mourning.

13:20 Absalom found Tamar and discovered Amnon had raped her. Be quiet for now probably meant Absalom wanted Tamar to refrain from revealing what happened until he could think of a way to help her or to take vengeance on Amnon. As a desolate woman, Tamar would probably not marry; however, Absalom cared for her in his house.

13:21 David was furious, but he apparently did nothing. The law required that Amnon and Tamar should marry since Amnon raped her (Dt 22:28-29), but it also prohibited sibling marriages (Lv 18:11). Thus this unusual case had no easy solution. David also may have feared challenging Amnon about Tamar because Amnon may have challenged him about his relationship with Bathsheba.

13:22 Absalom, Tamar's full brother, didn't say anything to Amnon, either good or bad, choosing instead to wait for an opportunity for revenge.

13:23 Two years later was a long time, but Absalom had not forgotten Amnon's sin. Sheep-shearing was a time of celebration (1Sm 25:7-8), so Absalom invited all the king's sons to Baal-hazor about 14 miles north of Jerusalem.

13:26 Absalom's request for Amnon to come may have been veiled as something David should do—send the crown prince if the king himself could not come. David challenged Absalom's request in light of the tension that probably was obvious between him and Absalom.

13:27 After much discussion, David sent Amnon and all the king's sons. Maybe David sent the others along in hopes of keeping things peaceful between Absalom and Amnon.

13:28 The narrative shifts suddenly to Baal-hazor. Absalom commanded his young men to strike Amnon. He reassured them because they probably feared reprisal from David. Amnon commissioned his hit men with words similar to those God spoke to Joshua (Jos 1:9).

13:29 The rest of the king's sons fled, perhaps fearing Absalom would kill them to eliminate rivals for the throne. A mule was the nobility's mount of choice (1Kg 1:33,38,44).

13:30 Perhaps he who reported to the king that Absalom had struck down all the king's sons was one of the first to flee Baal-hazor. Thus he was panicked and lacked full information. David must have regretted his decision to send all his sons to Baal-hazor (v. 27).

13:32 Jonadab clarified that only Amnon was dead, and he revealed that Absalom had planned Amnon's murder ever since Amnon had disgraced his sister Tamar. The text does not reveal how Jonadab knew Absalom's plans; perhaps it was only his theory, or perhaps he had overheard Absalom muttering threats.

13:34 Coming from the road west of him indicates David's sons had circled around rather than returning directly to Jerusalem.

13:37-38 Talmai was Absalom's maternal grandfather (3:3). He ruled Geshur, a small Aramean city-state along the eastern shore of the Sea of Galilee. Since Talmai was Absalom's grandfather and was on friendly terms with David, insisting on Absalom's return would have been politically difficult. Consequently, Absalom stayed three years in Geshur.

13:39 David missed Absalom, and he had finished grieving over Amnon's death. Yet he did not arrange for Absalom's homecoming. Whether from lack of fortitude or uncertainty about the right course of action, David's inaction would lead to further troubles.

14:1 Joab saw David's wounded heart, so he devised a plan to help heal the family and let David focus more on the matters of the kingdom.

14:2-3 Tekoa was approximately seven miles southwest of Jerusalem. Perhaps Joab thought Tekoa was far enough away that David would not recognize someone from there. Joab intended the clever woman to play a dramatic role that would influence the king to bring Absalom back to Jerusalem.

14:4 The clever woman (v. 2) came to the king and acted as if she were seeking David's judgment on a matter.

14:7 The woman's clan was attempting to execute justice and put her living son to death. However, if they killed the brother who killed his brother under extreme circumstances, they also would destroy the heir to the woman's estate, and her husband's family name would come to an end.

14:8 David assured the woman that he would issue a command protecting her living son, but the woman's words in verses 9-11 suggest the matter was not settled in her mind.

14:9 The woman's words suggested she had put David in a difficult position to let a murderer go free, and she asked that any blame rest on her and her family.

14:10 David further assured her that no one would trouble her any more.

14:11 The woman persisted, asking David to invoke an oath before the Lord that her son would not die. David vowed that everything would be okay.

14:12 The woman had received her judgment, but she broke protocol and requested a chance to speak a further word to the king—a request David granted.

14:13 The woman gently but precisely drew a parallel between her situation and David's. Her words the king . . . has pronounced his own guilt implied David was unwilling to give himself the same judgment he gave the woman. He was unwilling to restore Absalom, who had murdered Amnon.

14:14 The woman also appealed to God's grace. The Lord takes sin seriously, but He also tries to restore the one banished from Him.

14:15-16 The woman acted as though she was returning to the matter of her son and her inheritance.

14:17 The woman's closing words were somewhat ambiguous in their application. Would the word of . . . the king bring relief for her or for David? Her blessing, May the Lord your God be with you, may have hinted that just as the king could discern the good and the bad for others, perhaps with God's help he could discern for himself the wisest thing to do about Absalom.

14:18 David was indeed discerning, and he suspected the woman's collaboration with a member of the royal family.

14:20 The woman confessed that Joab had used her to address the issue indirectly, but David had seen through her presentation.

14:21 Despite David's recognition of Joab's ploy, he asked his nephew to bring Absalom from Geshur.

14:22 Joab appeared pleased to have played a part in beginning the reconciliation process between David and Absalom.

14:24 Ironically, David gave Absalom permission to return to his house, but he would not give Absalom an audience. David's "halfway" decision only inflamed the tension between himself and his son.

14:25 The description of Absalom's physical appearance makes him sound like a leader, and it prepares the reader for Absalom's coup attempt in chapter 15.

14:26 Five pounds is literally "200 shekels." Many manuscripts say "100 shekels." Absalom's thick hair would have made him appear strong and powerful to many people.

14:27 Absalom had a daughter named Tamar. This was his way of honoring his sister.

14:28 Both David and Absalom lived in Jerusalem, but they did not speak to each other for two years as the tension between them mounted.

14:30 Absalom knew if he set the field of Joab on fire, Joab could no longer avoid talking to him as he had done up to that point.

14:32 Absalom asked Joab to get him an audience with David. He suggested it would have been preferable for him to remain in Geshur. Absalom wanted his father to decide once and for all how he would handle his murder of Amnon.

14:33 Absalom finally met with his father, David, but this one meeting would not heal a wound that had festered for five years (v. 28; 13:38).

15:1 By gathering chariots, horses, and men, Absalom took steps to enhance his position in the eyes of the people.

15:2 The city gate was the site of the city's important business transactions.

15:3 Absalom listened to the petitions that citizens planned to take to the king. He ostensibly sympathized with them over the fact that the king did not have anyone to help them with these concerns.

15:4 Absalom used the word judge, but he really intended for the people to think of him as "king." He insisted he would dispense justice better than his overburdened father.

15:5-6 Absalom prevented people from bowing to him, and he greeted them with a kiss (almost as equals). This stole the hearts of the men of Israel, many of whom began to believe that Absalom understood their problems better than David did.

15:7 Some manuscripts read "40 years" instead of four years while others read "40 days," but the HCSB reading seems most likely.

15:8 The law urged prompt fulfillment of a vow (Dt 23:21), so the passage of four years since Absalom's vow (2Sm 15:7) could have raised questions in David's mind. On the other hand, Hebron, located 19 miles south of Jerusalem, was Absalom's birthplace.

15:10 The sound of the ram's horn across the land, combined with Absalom's messengers shouting Absalom has become king in Hebron, would enable news of Absalom's assuming the throne to spread quickly. Absalom probably hoped he could get to Jerusalem and take power before David could prepare to defend himself.

15:12 David's adviser Ahithophel was one of the king's wisest men, making the conspiracy of Absalom even more strong.

15:14 David summoned his servants with him in Jerusalem and insisted they all needed to flee at once. He knew Absalom and his forces would head straight for the capital and attack it if necessary.

15:17 David and his officials stopped at the last house (perhaps the house at the edge of Jerusalem), probably to get organized for their flight eastward.

15:18 On Cherethites and Pelethites, see note at 8:18. David's influence among the Philistines had gained him the loyalty of 600 men . . . from Gath.

15:19 Ittai the Gittite was an exile from Philistia who had cast his lot with David, perhaps during David's flight from Saul (1Sm 18-31).

15:21 David excused Ittai from accompanying him, but Ittai swore by the Lord and the king that he would stay with David whether it meant life or death for him. David's integrity still garnered respect.

15:23 The Kidron Valley skirted Jerusalem's eastern edge, separating the city from the Mount of Olives. Once David and his associates reached the top, they could travel the road that leads to the desert (lit "wilderness"), most likely the ascent of Adummim that connected Jerusalem with Jericho in the Jordan Valley.

15:24 The ark of the covenant of God was probably brought to ensure God's presence and as a mark of David's legitimate right to reign. Zadok and Abiathar (see note at 8:17) stood by the king who had endorsed their respective ministries and the ministries of the Levites (6:12-18).

15:25-26 David determined that the ark of God properly belonged in Jerusalem, God's city. It would remain there, and it was up to God to either restore David to his throne in Jerusalem or not. The king was content to leave the matter in God's hands.

15:27 David created a spy network that included Zadok, Abiathar, and their respective sons Ahimaaz and Jonathan.

15:28 The fords of the wilderness were shallow places where the Jordan River could be crossed.

15:29 Absalom would probably assume David's supporters had fled. He may not have suspected Zadok and Abiathar of siding with his father.

15:30 Covering the head and walking barefoot were signs of deep personal anguish.

15:31 The news that Ahithophel had joined the conspirators with Absalom was a blow to David's cause. The king's prayer for God to turn the counsel of Ahithophel into foolishness was a prayer of great faith because Ahithophel's advice was taken to be like a word from the Lord (16:23).

15:32 Hushai would end up being the answer to David's prayer (v. 31).

15:34-35 Hushai's role was to counteract Ahithophel's counsel (no small task in light of 16:23) and to report everything to Zadok and Abiathar.

15:36 Ahimaaz and Jonathan would then relay any information they received from their fathers directly to David.

15:37 Hushai and Absalom arrived in Jerusalem at the same time. The decisive moment when Absalom had to choose between Hushai's counsel or Ahithophel's counsel is delayed by 16:1-14 and resumes at 16:15.

16:1 A little beyond the summit on the eastern side of the Mount of Olives,

David's delegation could not be seen by Absalom or anyone else in Jerusalem. Ziba, Mephibosheth's servant, had earlier arranged for Saul's estate to be restored to his master (9:1-10). Now he brought provisions for David's group, but with a different motive.

16:3 David expressed surprise that Mephibosheth had not come with him and others from his palace. Ziba informed David that Mephibosheth was staying in Jerusalem because he was hoping to take advantage of the situation to regain Saul's kingdom.

16:4 The truth of Ziba's assertion could not be substantiated, but David, in his turbulent emotional state, decided he believed Ziba and rewarded him with Mephibosheth's estate.

16:5 Bahurim was a nearby Benjaminite village. Shimei son of Gera is unknown except for his actions related to Absalom's revolt and David's flight (19:16-23) and his sentence during Solomon's reign (1Kg 2:8-9,36-46).

16:8 The phrase blood of the house of Saul might have assumed that David participated in either Saul's death or Ish-bosheth's death. Some interpreters believe David's giving of Saul's descendants to the Gibeonites for execution (21:5-9) had happened already, and that Shimei may have been alluding to that.

16:9 Abishai was disturbed that someone would curse . . . the king (cp. 19:21), and he offered to kill Shimei as he had offered to kill Saul several years before (1Sm 26:8).

16:10 Do we agree on anything? is literally "What to me and to you?" It may be rhetorically asking what interests David and Abishai have in common (cp. 19:22; Jdg 11:12; 1Kg 17:18; 2Kg 3:13; 2Ch 35:21; Jn 2:4). This expression reveals David's exasperation with the sons of Zeruiah his sister, here more specifically focused at Abishai. The sentence that begins with He curses me this way may also be translated as "if he curses me this way" and suggests that David was unsure of the source of Shimei's words (v. 11).

16:11 David highlighted his desperate situation. He was under threat of death from his own son Absalom, so perhaps Shimei's words were also part of God's instruction to the king.

16:12 David thought that perhaps if he bore Shimei's curses with patience, the Lord would restore goodness to him.

16:14 David and his officials were exhausted from the long journey and from the stress of Shimei's cursing as they traveled, so they took a much-needed rest.

16:15 Now is probably better translated as "meanwhile" to communicate the fact that even as David was fleeing, Absalom and his supporters arrived at Jerusalem. The conspirators took the city without a fight because David's forces had fled.

16:16 The account now picks up from 15:37. Hushai and Absalom entered Jerusalem about the same time, and Hushai's greeting, Long live the king, was the beginning of his attempt to convince Absalom he was on his side.

16:17 Absalom questioned Hushai's loyalty because he knew of Hushai's faithful service to his father, David.

16:18 Hushai's reply was more vague than Absalom realized. David—not Absalom—was the one whom the Lord had chosen (1Sm 16:12).

16:19 Hushai promised Absalom that just as he had served faithfully in David's presence, he now would continue to serve in the same way at Absalom's side.

16:21 Absalom's lying with his father's concubines would be a visible sign to everyone that Absalom was taking over the kingdom (including the harem) from David (12:8,11). Doing so would also sharpen the division between Absalom and his father and encourage others to forsake David and join Absalom.

16:22 In the sight of all Israel fulfilled God's words to David through the prophet Nathan (12:11).

16:23 The advice Ahithophel gave was normally like someone asking about a word from God. This time, however, his counsel was politically wise but immoral since David was still alive (Lv 20:11).

17:2 Ahithophel believed panic would envelop David and his followers if Absalom's forces came upon them while the king was weak and weary. Rather than turning the battle into a civil war, Ahithophel would then strike down only the king.

17:3 Ahithophel thought if David could be killed quickly, all the people would accept Absalom's kingship.

17:6 Hushai probably knew Ahithophel's proposal would succeed. He had to convince Absalom to delay in pressing the attack against David.

17:7 Hushai's negative evaluation was probably surprising to his hearers in view of Ahithophel's reputation (16:23).

17:8-10 Hushai cited David's military genius. The king would anticipate Absalom's quick strike and hence would not spend the night with the people but would hide in one of the many caves (or pits or ravines) on the northern edge of the Dead Sea. Further, any news of a setback among the people who followed Absalom could lead to popular support swinging back to David again.

17:11 From Dan to Beer-sheba was a distance of 110 miles. The two cities basically served as the northern and southern points of Israel, so Hushai is calling for a nation-wide muster. Hushai's proposal was much more extensive and time-consuming, giving David and his forces time to regroup.

17:12 Hushai suggested that David and all the men with him should die—well beyond what Ahithophel had proposed. This strategy might appeal to Absalom's vengeful pride.

17:14 The Lord guided the fateful discussion to answer David's prayer (15:31).

17:15 Now that he knew Absalom's strategy, Hushai moved quickly to relay the information to Zadok and Abiathar (15:27-29).

17:16 Having received some escape time through Hushai's counsel to Absalom, David's forces needed to put distance between themselves and Absalom's forces as quickly as possible. Of course, if Absalom decided to follow Ahithophel's advice after all, Hushai's advice to David was all the more urgent.

17:17 En-rogel was a spring in the Kidron Valley about one-fourth of a mile from Jerusalem where the Kidron and Hinnom valleys met.

17:18 Bahurim was the village in Benjamin from which Shimei came (16:5).

17:19 The woman scattered grain to make it look like the cover had not been recently disturbed.

17:20 Absalom's servants must have received word that Ahimaaz and Jonathan had gone to or toward Bahurim.

17:21 The advice of Ahimaaz and Jonathan further suggested that it was still uncertain what Absalom would do (v. 16).

17:23 Ahithophel knew that since his advice had not been followed, David would regain the throne. And when David was reestablished, Ahithophel would be considered a traitor. Thus he committed suicide.

17:24 Mahanaim was more than 30 miles from Jerusalem. So David and his men may have been about 20 miles from Absalom when he crossed the Jordan.

17:25 Amasa was another of David's nephews and a cousin of Joab and Abishai (19:13; 20:8-13).

17:27 Machir had cared for Mephibosheth before David brought Mephibosheth to his palace (9:4).

17:28-29 These men of influence knew about David's quick flight from Jerusalem, and they brought him food and supplies. These provisions restored the bodies and spirits of the king's group.

18:1 The phrase commanders of hundreds and of thousands shows that David had been able to rally considerable support for his cause.

18:2 Dividing his warriors into thirds would provide David more flexibility in battling Absalom's forces.

18:3 The people considered David's suggestion to march out with them too risky, so they prevailed on him to support them from the city—to stay away from direct confrontation with Absalom's forces.

18:5 The text makes it clear that David gave specific instructions about Absalom's treatment, and it emphasizes that all the people heard the king's orders.

18:6 The forest of Ephraim lay a few miles northwest of Mahanaim.

18:7-8 David divided his troops into three groups. This allowed him to spread Absalom's forces thinly over the entire region, preventing their united stand in the open country where their superior numbers would give them the advantage. A forest presented natural obstacles or threats such as wild animals, pits, low branches, and marshes.

18:11 Joab learned about Absalom's defenseless position. David's general had once again determined to take matters into his own hands for what he believed to be the king's own good.

18:12 This soldier was not ready to disobey a charge that David had given his generals. He also repeated David's charge; the writer is making it clear that Joab knew David's command.

18:13 The warriors did not trust Joab. If they killed Absalom, they thought Joab might let the blame fall on them.

18:14-15 Now at the place where Absalom was hanging alive in the oak tree, Joab and his men surrounded him, struck him, and killed him in violation of David's order.

18:16 Joab then blew the ram's horn to assemble the troops (2:28; 20:1,22). With Absalom dead, the battle was over.

18:17 All Absalom's supporters fled, uncertain what reprisal might come from David's victorious forces. Absalom's body was taken down and thrown into a large pit in the forest and covered with a huge mound of stones, thus denying him a place in his family's tombs and dishonoring him in his death (Jos 7:26).

18:18 Absalom had claimed that he had no son. Actually, he had three sons (14:27), so they must have preceded him in death.

18:19 Ahimaaz had been David's trusted messenger throughout the ordeal, and now he wished to carry the good news of David's victory. He also may have thought he could more gently break the news of Absalom's death to his father than another messenger could.

18:20 Certain runners brought good news and others brought bad news. That way, as soon as a runner was recognized, the people knew the basic outcome (v. 27). Sometimes a solitary runner indicated good news and two runners together indicated bad news (vv. 25-26).

18:23 Ahimaaz appears to have taken the longer but easier route and thus outran the Cushite.

18:27 David's recognition of Ahimaaz brought the king hope that all was well.

18:28 Ahimaaz announced David's victory without specifically mentioning Absalom's death.

18:29 David's question revealed the focus of his concern. Ahimaaz, who knew the truth, suddenly found himself at a loss for words.

18:32 After the Cushite responded essentially as Ahimaaz had (vv. 28,31), David's further inquiry specifically about Absalom brought the reply the king did not want to hear. The kingdom was David's again, but he had lost another son.

18:33 The gate chamber over the gate provided isolation for David, though the sound of his wailing could be heard by others (19:1).

19:1 Joab returned to Mahanaim from the battle to hear about David's mourning over Absalom.

19:2 Victory was turned to mourning because victory had come through Absalom's death.

19:3 In this bittersweet moment, David's victorious troops returned to the city (lit "stole away"), acting as if they had lost the battle.

19:5-7 Joab recognized the serious public relations problem the king would face if he persisted in mourning the traitorous Absalom. David's soldiers, who had rescued David and all his family, would feel shame instead of a sense of victory because of the king's mourning. Joab told David to go out and encourage his soldiers, lest they abandon him. Joab's words in these verses are strong and blunt, but they may have saved David's kingship.

19:9-10 The tribes of Israel sensed that a public restoring of King David to his throne might help the nation heal from the wounds of its civil war.

19:11-12 Apparently because of a lack of response on the people's part, King David summoned Zadok and Abiathar to begin his restoration proceedings. He gave the elders of Judah first notice—an act of favoritism that would later cause consternation among the other tribes (vv. 41-43).

19:13 David's appointment of Amasa, who had headed Absalom's army (17:25), as commander of the army indicated that David planned to bear no animosity toward those who had sided with Absalom. Amasa was to replace Joab—a clear sign that David had heard about Joab's murder of Absalom, but the king felt it would be politically unwise to put Joab to death for killing the person who had conspired for the throne.

19:16 Now that Absalom was dead, the "prophecy" of Shimei was clearly false. Moreover, he had cursed the king. He moved quickly to make amends.

19:17 Ziba, servant of Mephibosheth, also came to welcome David. He soon would be joined by Mephibosheth, creating an interesting dilemma for David (vv. 24-30).

19:20 Shimei confessed that he had sinned. He was trying to atone for his sin by being the first one of the house of Joseph (the northern tribes; Am 5:6) to welcome David back as king.

19:21 Abishai offered for the second time to kill Shimei for his harsh words against the Lord's anointed (16:9).

19:22 On do we agree on anything, see note at 16:10. Interestingly, adversary translates the Hebrew word satan . David was reluctant to add more bloodshed to the day when his kingdom was restored.

19:23 Shimei would later die when he violated Solomon's edict (1Kg 2:42-46).

19:24 Mephibosheth now met David, showing several signs of having been in mourning from the day the king left.

19:26 Mephibosheth contended that Ziba had betrayed (lit "deceived") him and had not provided him a donkey so Mephibosheth could go with the king.

19:27-28 Mephibosheth asserted his confidence in David's discernment and recognized that he deserved none of David's grace toward him. His final question, what further right do I have to keep on making appeals to the king, anticipated what he hoped would be a favorable ruling.

19:29 David had received Ziba's support as he fled, yet Mephibosheth's testimony seemed credible. David decided on a compromise under which the two of them would divide the land.

19:30 Mephibosheth's expression let Ziba take it all should be understood as a typical Middle Eastern overstatement to honor a ruler, just as his question in verse 28 was an understatement of his own value (cp. 9:8).

19:31-32 Although Rogelim was about 50 miles northeast of David's crossing point, Barzillai, who had provided food and other supplies for the king and his men while he stayed in Mahanaim (17:27-29), accompanied David to the Jordan River.

19:33 David wanted to reward Barzillai for his show of support during the king's desperate time of need.

19:37 Barzillai considered himself too old to enjoy royal privileges and preferred to remain in his own city near his family tomb, to finish his days in the surroundings he had known all his life, but he takes the opportunity to introduce Chimham, who was apparently a close relative, to benefit from David's offer.

19:39 Though Barzillai returned to his home after David blessed him, the king did not forget him, later instructing Solomon to continue to show kindness to Barzillai's household (1Kg 2:7). Jeremiah 41:17 mentions Geruth Chimham ("dwelling of Chimham") near Bethlehem—perhaps the fulfillment of David's words.

19:40 Gilgal was Israel's base camp during the days of Joshua's conquest (Jos 4:19).

19:41 Tensions between Judah and the other tribes that were evident earlier in Israel's history (2:10; 3:10; 12:8; 1Sm 11:8; 17:52; 18:16) now boiled to the surface again as the delegation from Israel challenged the king on the protocol for restoring him to Jerusalem. Take you away secretly is literally "stole you." The northern tribes also felt they were under-represented in comparison to the leaders from Judah (v. 40).

19:42 The men of Judah answered instead of allowing David to do so. They asserted that since David was their relative (a closer relative), they had taken the lead in restoring him as king. They insisted, however, that their tribe was not treated with favoritism.

19:43 The other tribes pointed out that David also ruled their 10 shares (tribal territories) and they had been the first to speak of restoring David (vv. 9-10). The men of Judah responded even more harshly and ended the conversation, but the tension between the tribes grew stronger.

20:1 Sheba son of Bichri is not mentioned outside this account, but he was probably a leader among the Benjaminite delegation that escorted David back to Jerusalem. He blew the ram's horn and called the people of Israel to break off from David (cp. 18:16), citing the more distant relationship.

20:2 In the heat of the moment, following Sheba seemed to many people the right thing to do, so the men of Israel deserted David. Meanwhile, the men of Judah escorted David all the way to Jerusalem to guarantee his safety.

20:3 David compassionately provided for the welfare of the 10 concubines with whom Absalom had had sex during his coup attempt (16:22). However, he was not intimate with them again, perhaps because of Torah considerations (Lv 18:15) but more likely to ensure no confusion arose within the royal line.

20:4-5 Amasa, the new head of David's army (19:13), was commanded to gather the men of Judah to crush Sheba's revolt. Time was of the essence, a fact that Amasa apparently did not grasp.

20:6 Abishai was David's next choice to lead the attack against Sheba.

20:7 On Cherethites and Pelethites, see note at 8:18.

20:8 Gibeon, about four miles northwest of Jerusalem, had been the site of Joab's encounter with Abner's forces (2:12-16). The site provided a panoramic view of the central Benjamin plateau and was large enough to gather a large fighting force. Amasa's late arrival may have received a mixed response from the army; after all, he had led Absalom's forces against David (17:25). Joab was present, though he was not in charge. His sword fell out of its sheath, probably a deceptive move by Joab so Amasa would not view him as drawing his weapon.

20:9 Joab grabbed Amasa by the beard—reached out and touched his face as he might do before greeting him with a kiss.

20:10 The sword in Joab's hand did not seem a threat to Amasa because it appeared that Joab was merely picking it up after dropping it (v. 8).

20:11 One of Joab's young men rallied everyone to follow Joab as their self-proclaimed, reappointed leader. Abishai apparently acquiesced to his brother's leadership.

20:14 Sheba retreated to the far north; Abel of Beth-maacah lay about 30 miles north of the Sea of Galilee.

20:15 Besieging a city generally involved surrounding it, cutting off its food and water supply, building an assault ramp to get over the wall, and constructing battering rams to break down the city's wall.

20:16 This woman is described as wise in retrospect because of what she did in the narrative.

20:17 Joab no doubt approached the woman cautiously (Jdg 9:50-55).

20:18-19 The city of Abel, a city of long standing within the nation, had a reputation as a place where wisdom often settled disputes.

20:21 Joab responded that his fight was not with the city's inhabitants, only with Sheba, whom they were harboring.

20:22 Once Sheba was dead, the revolt was ended. On blowing the ram's horn, see note at 2:28.

20:23 Joab had become commander of the whole army of Israel again, and David may have felt that he should leave well enough alone. After all, Joab had been a factor in reuniting Israel and restoring David's kingdom. Joab's sin, however, was not forgotten, and David later instructed his son Solomon to deal with it when he became king (1Kg 2:5-6). On Benaiah and the Cherethites and Pelethites, see note at 8:18.

20:24 Forced labor appears here for the first time; during Solomon's days, only non-Israelites made up this group (1Kg 9:20). Perhaps this was added late in David's reign. On Jehoshaphat, see note at 8:16.

20:25 Jehoshaphat was now assisted by Sheva, who had apparently replaced Seraiah (8:17) as court secretary. Zadok's influence would continue into Solomon's reign (1Kg 2:35), though Abiathar would side against Solomon during the transition of power from David to Solomon and suffer banishment from the priesthood (1Kg 1:7; 2:26-27).

20:26 Ira the Jairite, otherwise unknown, was David's priest, perhaps assisting him in matters of private worship, but certainly not functioning in place of Torah-prescribed patterns (unlike Micah in Jdg 17).

21:1 During David's reign is literally "in David's days." The last four chapters of 2 Samuel contain six accounts of matters pertaining to David's life, though not tied chronologically to the rest of the book. It appears the author had additional information he wished to include about David, and he decided this was the best place to put it. In the first account, God used continuing famine to prompt David to seek the reason behind this calamity. The Lord revealed the answer: Saul and his family had killed the Gibeonites.

21:2 The Gibeonites had remained in the land since the days of Joshua. The Israelites had taken an oath not to destroy them (Jos 9:3-17); Saul, however, had not honored that oath and had killed many of them.

21:3 When David asked What should I do for you? it showed his humble attitude and his concern for justice.

21:4 Israel probably did not allow their subject peoples to put anyone to death without Israelite sanction (cp. restrictions imposed on Israel by Roman authorities: Jn 18:31).

21:6 The Gibeonites asked for the death of seven of Saul's male descendants. Saul had probably killed many more Gibeonites than this; no doubt the number requested was a symbolic representation of the Gibeonite dead. Gibeah was Saul's hometown; since Saul had killed their people at Gibeon, the Gibeonites probably wanted to reciprocate by hanging his descendants in his hometown.

21:7 Even in complying with the Gibeonites request, David spared Mephibosheth in accord with his earlier oath regarding Jonathan (9:1-10; 1Sm 18:3; 20:12-17; 23:18).

21:8 Rizpah was probably the same concubine with whom Abner had sexual relations (3:7).

21:9 The beginning of the barley harvest was normally during Nisan (March-April), the beginning of the religious year.

21:10 Rizpah performed a tragic act of love for her sons and Merab's sons, protecting their bodies from desecration by birds and wild animals. The rain mentioned normally fell in March and April between the barley and wheat harvest, so the exact length of Rizpah's vigil is unknown.

21:12-13 David heard about what Rizpah had done, and he took action to provide the dead an honored burial. The bones of Saul and his son Jonathan (and presumably those of Abinadab and Malchishua; 1Sm 31:2,12-13) were brought from Jabesh-gilead back to Benjamin. David also gathered up the bones of Saul's family.

21:14 The remains were placed in the family tomb of Saul's father Kish (see 1Sm 9:1). The exact location of Zela (other than in Benjamin) is unknown (Jos 18:28). God answered prayer means that the famine ceased (see v. 1).

21:16 Ishbi-benob is unknown outside this passage, but he may have been one of the descendants of the giant (Goliath; 1Sm 17:4), though some scholars understand the Hebrew word translated "giant" (rapha) as a proper name ("one of the descendants of Rapha"). The man intended to kill David because killing him would deal Israel a serious blow.

21:17 David's nephew Abishai saved the king's life and struck the Philistine. As they pondered how close David had come to death, they told him not to participate with them in any more battles, an admonition the king seems to have taken to heart (11:1; 18:2; 20:4,6). Through his leadership David, as the figurative lamp of Israel, provided political, military, and spiritual light to the nation.

21:18 Gob ("cistern") may be either identified with or in the close vicinity of Gezer at the mouth of the Aijalon Valley near Philistine territory (1Ch 20:4). On the giant, see note at verse 16.

21:19 This verse raises the question of who killed Goliath the Gittite. First Samuel 17:50-51 credits David, but this verse credits Elhanan. One interpretation suggests two different Goliaths, though the identical description of Goliath's spear being like a weaver's beam (cp. 1Sm 17:7) makes this option doubtful. Another explanation is to understand Elhanan as David's original name and David as David's throne name, but this is not supported elsewhere in Scripture. By far the most likely explanation is that Elhanan killed not Goliath but Goliath's brother, as 1 Chronicles 20:5 states, and that an early scribe simply miscopied the present verse. Although this verse and 1Ch 20:5 read a bit differently in English, in the Hebrew text only a minor alteration is required to change from one reading to another.

22:1 On the day is not a reference to a single day, but the general time at which David realized the Lord had given him the kingship and helped him subdue all his enemies. The song is very similar to Psalm 18, but has more emphasis on David's personal worship.

22:2 Rock denotes an immovable, jutting cliff, not a mere stone. This word commonly occurs in the Bible to describe God's support and defense of His people (1Sm 2:2; Ps 18:2; 95:1; Is 44:8).

22:3 Mary also used the expression horn of my salvation to describe God's work on her behalf (Lk 1:69). The Bible often uses the image of an animal horn to symbolize strength (1Sm 2:1). Violence (Hb chamas) denotes unjust violence (Gn 6:11; Ob 10).

22:5 Waves designates huge breakers coming in to shore. Torrents refers to canyons filled with rushing water during the rainy season.

22:6 The word Sheol often occurs in connection with death (Nm 16:33; Ps 16:10). David feared for his life as he fled from Saul.

22:7 Temple signifies the place of God's dwelling—either His heavenly temple (1Kg 8:27) or the tent where the ark of God rested (1Ch 16:1).

22:8-16 David described God's terrible fury. The imagery is intended to convey the awesomeness of His presence as He entered His world to intervene on behalf of His servant David.

22:18 David's enemies were too strong for him, but not too strong for the Lord.

22:19 The Lord was David's support, so David could lean on Him in times of trouble.

22:20 From a spacious place David could see enemy threats while they were still far away.

22:21 The Lord saw David's righteousness and blessed him for it. David's relationship with God made him want to please the Lord in the way he lived.

22:22 Kept can also be translated as "guarded."

22:23 Disregarded is literally "turned aside."

22:24 Blameless does not mean sinless, but it reflects a deep moral character (Gn 6:9; Ps 119:1).

22:26 Qualities such as faithful and blameless are characteristic of both God and His children, who become more like Him as they grow in their relationship with Him (Rm 8:29).

22:28 Humble is literally "bring low."

22:29 Both the Lord and His Word function as a lamp for His people (Ps 119:105).

22:30 David was quick to credit the Lord as the source of his power (5:12,21; 1Sm 17:45-47).

22:32 David answered his two rhetorical questions; only Yahweh was God. The Lord is our rock.

22:34 The deer David described are very sure-footed. They are a powerful picture of the firm footing on which believers stand.

22:43 The words pulverize . . . crush, and trample describe the overwhelming victories David won with God's help (Rm 8:37).

22:44 David's sovereignty extended to the nations around him (5:17-25; 8:1-14; 10:1-19).

22:46 Reports of David's strength caused his enemies to lose heart before they ever battled him.

22:47 On rock, see note at verse 2.

22:51 Loyalty can also be translated as "faithfulness" or "covenant love." It denotes all that comes to God's children from Him. Anointed (Hb mashiach) designated God's anointed king (1:14,16; 1Sm 24:6). David and his descendants would enjoy the blessings of God forever (7:16).

23:1 The heading for this chapter, These are the last words of David, is not intended chronologically; other words of David appear after this section and even in 1 Kings (1Kg 1:28-35; 2:1-9). Perhaps the section contains David's last recorded public statement or testimony to God's work through his life. Anointed (Hb mashiach) emphasizes David's dedication to God's service. God of Jacob ties David to the history of the patriarchs; God's work in David was the continuation of a work that began with Abraham (Gn 12:1-3).

23:2 David's words should be understood not as boastful, but as portraying a sense of wonder that God would use him to convey His words.

23:3 On Rock, see note at 22:2. Fear of God denotes a healthy reverence for His power and majesty; the book of Proverbs associates such an attitude with wisdom and knowledge (Pr 1:7; 9:10).

23:5 My house denotes David's family. God's everlasting covenant with David's house was ordered and secured in every detail. David was confident the Lord would bring its every aspect to fruition.

23:6-7 David's experience had taught him that the wicked had no future in God's plan. Since they were neither useful nor usable, the day of their judgment would surely come.

23:8-39 These are the names and accounts of some of David's warriors—his most valiant soldiers. God blessed David with exceptional military men. The list includes the three famous heroes who turned the tide of events in single combat and the thirty warriors who served in a special detachment. There were men from many different tribes of Israel and even a few foreigners among the men who rallied to David.

23:9 Defied is the same word used of Goliath's words against Israel (1Sm 17:10,26,36).

23:10 Eleazar displayed tenacity as he attacked the Philistines, yet the Lord brought the victory. The troops returned later to plunder the dead, a means of securing "extra payment" for their military service.

23:11 Lentils were a common food source.

23:12 The Philistines and other enemies often came up Judah's valleys to raid food supplies.

23:13 The cave of Adullam was in the Valley of Elah (1Sm 17:2) below Bethlehem. The Valley of Rephaim lay southwest of Jerusalem.

23:14 The stronghold probably designates the cave in which David was stationed. A Philistine garrison occupied Bethlehem—perhaps a move designed to draw David out of hiding.

23:15 Probably David's vocalized wish came not only from his thirst, but from his desire that his hometown would once again know the peace that allowed people to drink from the well at the city gate freely.

23:16-17 Three of the warriors under David's command took their leader's wish as a challenge and made the 25-mile round-trip journey at the risk of their lives to secure water from . . . Bethlehem. David's response revealed the depth to which he was moved by his men's loyalty and bravery. The water from Bethlehem's well was a very precious gift because of the sacrifice the men made to get it. Consequently, it was a fitting sacrifice to David's God.

23:18 Abishai, Joab's brother, played a leading role in David's rise to power and kingship (v. 18; 10:10; 18:2-3).

23:20 Benaiah was a well-known warrior (8:18; 20:23). Despite his position in a pit and severe weather that hampered both his dexterity and his mobility, he killed a lion.

23:24 Asahel was a soldier who was killed by Abner during Israel's civil war following Saul's death (2:18-23).

23:25 Harodite may designate a person from the Harod Valley that leads from the Jezreel Valley down to Beth-shan (1Sm 31:10) in the Jordan Valley.

23:26 A Tekoite was a person from Tekoa, seven miles south of Jerusalem (Am 1:1).

23:27 Anathoth, located in Benjamin, was later the prophet Jeremiah's hometown (Jr 1:1).

23:29 Gibeah of the Benjaminites was Saul's hometown and capital, a fact that shows David had some following even there.

23:34 According to 11:3, Eliam was Bathsheba's father. If this is the same Eliam, then Ahithophel, counselor to David and Absalom (15:31; 16:20-23; 17:1-3,23), would be Bathsheba's grandfather.

23:36 Zobah may have been the Aramean city-state that David conquered (8:3-6). Gadite probably designates someone from Gad's territory east of the Jordan River.

23:37 David subdued Ammon on his eastern border; at some point Zelek, another foreigner, joined David's forces.

23:39 The text intentionally ends with the mention of Uriah the Hittite. Uriah was another foreigner among David's mighty men. He gave his life for David under the most evil of circumstances (11:14-17). The fact that there were 37 members of the Thirty may be explained in one of two ways: either Thirty was a title rather than a specific figure, or the extra men were brought in to replace those who fell in battle.

24:1 The particular sin that brought about God's wrath is not given. First Chronicles 21:1 credits Satan with enticing David, but no contradiction exists. Both verses are correct; God is able to use even Satan to accomplish His purposes (Jb 1:12; 2:6). Here, God allowed Satan to entice David to count the people, an act that, while acceptable under certain circumstances (Ex 30:12), here probably revealed that David was putting trust in his military power rather than in the Lord's protection and guidance. Another possibility is that David failed to instruct his commanders to collect the half-shekel poll tax, bringing on the plague (Ex 30:12-13). In either case, God did not force David to make the wrong decision.

24:2 On from Dan to Beer-sheba, see note at 17:11.

24:3 Joab appears to have been concerned about his king's motives, though he veiled his concern with words of blessing.

24:4 The king's order prevailed is probably a reference to David telling Joab he wanted the census conducted—period.

24:5 Aroer was the southernmost part of Israel's territory east of the Jordan River. Gad and Jazer lay between the Jordan Valley and Ammon.

24:6 Some manuscripts read "Dan, Ijon" instead of Dan-jaan, referring to a second city near Dan at Israel's northern border. Sidon, a Phoenician city, nonetheless may have had an Israelite garrison there (5:11).

24:7 Tyre was also a Phoenician city. The expression cities of the Hivites and Canaanites probably designates areas that David had controlled. Joab may have counted the foreign population as well, or merely the Israelite soldiers maintaining order in those regions. The Negev of Judah at Beer-sheba completed their counterclockwise loop through the land, and Joab's delegation probably headed up the patriarchal highway through Hebron and back to Jerusalem with its census numbers.

24:9 On men from Israel . . . men from Judah, see note at 19:41. The numbers given in the parallel passage in 1Ch 21:5 differ significantly, but both authors appear to have rounded their numbers, and the Chronicler may have included Judah's number in Israel's number as well.

24:10 David's conscience troubled him, revealing again the work of God in his heart was not in vain. He confessed his sin and waited on the Lord's response.

24:11 The Lord's response came in the morning. The prophet Gad ministered during David's reign and committed certain events of David's life to writing (1Ch 29:29), though these writings have not been discovered.

24:13 David received three choices from the Lord through Gad—famine, military defeat, or plague. The seriousness of these punishments revealed the gravity of David's sin.

24:14 Again, David revealed his heart. He knew mercies might come from the Lord, but not from the human hands of his enemies. Who knew whether God's grace might avert disaster (see note at 12:22)?

24:16 When the angel whom God had sent to bring the plague extended his hand toward Jerusalem to destroy it, David's thinking proved correct. The Lord relented and spared the city. The Jebusites, part of the original Canaanite population during the days of Joshua (Jos 24:11), held Jerusalem until David conquered them (2Sm 5:6-8). Araunah apparently had continued to live in the area following David's conquest.

24:17 David asked the Lord, these sheep, what have they done? He pleaded with God to strike only him and his family, but sin often has consequences that affect others besides the person who has sinned.

24:18 This altar to the Lord would mark the point where the plague had stopped.

24:20 Araunah's threshing floor sat above Jerusalem to the north, in the area where Abraham offered Isaac as a sacrifice and where Solomon would later build the temple (2Ch 3:1). Since threshing utilized the wind, threshing floors probably were often in high parts of cities.

24:22 Araunah made David a generous offer: My lord the king may take whatever he wants. Probably his offer was sincere; besides, especially as a foreigner, he was not in a position to bargain with Israel's king. Or Araunah may have anticipated the king would respond with a price (Gn 23:7-16).

24:24 David, however, knew that all genuine sacrifice came at a price. To offer to the Lord burnt offerings that cost . . . nothing would have been to David a sign of the deepest ingratitude. In light of this, 20 ounces of silver was probably more than a fair price.

24:25 Burnt offerings typically signified the general dedication of the worshiper (Lv 1). Fellowship offerings involved a meal shared by priest and worshiper, and they could be offered to express thankfulness—in this case thankfulness that the plague on Israel, while severe, had not destroyed Jerusalem.

meshiyach Hebrew Pronunciation [meh SHEE akh]

HCSB Translation anointed
Uses in 2 Samuel 5
Uses in the OT 38
Focus Passage 2 Samuel 1:14,16

Meshiyach, from mashach (anoint; 70x) describes somebody anointed to serve God, usually kings (1Sm 10:1), prophets (1Kg 19:16), or priests (Ex 28:41). Meshiyach figuratively designates patriarchs as specially chosen (Ps 105:15). Cyrus was God's anointed because of his role in delivering Israel from Babylonian captivity (Is 45:1). All priests were anointed (Ex 29:21), but the specially anointed high priest was called the anointed priest (Lv 4:3). The king of Israel is often called the Lord's anointed (2Sm 1:14). After David, meshiyach indicates Davidic kings (Ps 18:50). Meshiyach identifies God's Anointed One, Christ, in Ps 2:2, according to Ac 4:26. Meshiyach is transliterated Messiah in Dn 9:25-26.

Focus Passage 2 Samuel 3:13

The noun and adjective tov denotes good (Gn 1:4), kind (1Kg 12:7), fair (1Kg 2:38), right (Neh 5:9), or pleasant (2Sm 19:35). Tov describes fine (2Ch 3:5) or pure (Gn 2:12) commodities. Tov connotes goodness (Ps 23:6), bounty (Jr 5:25), well-being (Ps 119:122), advantage (1Sm 19:4), or prosperity (Dt 30:9). Tov can imply well (1Sm 25:15). What is "not good" is wrong or unfair (Pr 20:23; Is 65:2). Tov encompasses better (Gn 29:19) or best (1Sm 1:23). "What is good in the eyes of" can signify whatever you want (Gn 16:6). "Seeing good" is enjoying (Ec 3:13); "being good" indicates going well (Ec 8:12). "Good day" suggests feast day (1Sm 25:8) or holiday (Est 8:17). Tov means pleasing (Ec 2:26), favorable (2Ch 18:12), gracious (Ezr 7:9), happy (2Ch 7:10), or beautiful (Dt 8:12).

shalom Hebrew Pronunciation [shah LOAM]

HCSB Translation peace
Uses in 2 Samuel 16
Uses in the OT 237
Focus Passage 2 Samuel 15:9,27

Shalom is in an important OT theological word family. The root occurs in all Semitic languages with meanings similar to Hebrew. Shalom usually means peace (Gn 15:15) and can function adverbially (peaceably) and adjectivally (peaceful). Safety (Zch 8:10) is also a frequent connotation (safe, safely). The noun indicates welfare (1Sm 17:18), assurance (1Sm 20:42), prosperity (Is 9:7), success (Is 45:7), or strength (Ps 38:3). Shalom can be a favorable answer (Gn 41:16) or allies (Ps 69:22). Other adverbial ideas are well (Gn 29:6), quietly (1Sm 29:7), completely (Jr 13:19), and all right (2Sm 18:29). Adjectivally, shalom can mean satisfied (Ex 18:23), secure (Jb 5:24), or unscathed (Jr 43:12). "Asking about shalom" is greeting (1Sm 30:21) or asking how someone is (1Sm 10:4). "Men of shalom" are people trusted (Jr 20:10) or trusted friends (Jr 38:22). "Speaking shalom" is speaking in friendly ways (Ps 28:3).

1 Kings

David’s Last Days

1 Now King David was old and getting on in years. [a] Although they covered him with bedclothes, he could not get warm. [b] 2 So his servants said to him: “Let us [A] search for a young virgin for my lord the king. [c] She is to attend the king and be his caregiver. She is to lie by your side so that my lord the king will get warm.” 3 They searched for a beautiful girl throughout the territory of Israel; they found Abishag [d] the Shunammite [e, f] and brought her to the king. 4 The girl was of unsurpassed beauty, [g] and she became the king’s caregiver. She served him, but he was not intimate with [B] her.

Adonijah’s Bid for Power 5 Adonijah son of Haggith [h] kept exalting himself, saying, “I will be king! ” He prepared chariots, cavalry, and 50 men to run ahead of him. [i, j] 6 But his father had never once reprimanded [C, k] him by saying, “Why do you act this way? ” [l] In addition, he was quite handsome [m] and was born after Absalom. [n] 7 He conspired [D] with Joab son of Zeruiah [o] and with Abiathar the priest. [p] They supported [q] Adonijah, 8 but Zadok the priest, [r] Benaiah son of Jehoiada, [s] Nathan the prophet, [t] Shimei, [u] Rei, and David’s warriors [v] did not side with Adonijah.

9 Adonijah sacrificed sheep, oxen, and fattened cattle near the stone of Zoheleth, which is next to En-rogel. [w] He invited all his royal brothers and all the men of Judah, the servants of the king, [x] 10 but he did not invite Nathan the prophet, Benaiah, the warriors, or his brother Solomon. [y]

Nathan’s and Bathsheba’s Appeals 11 Then Nathan [z] said to Bathsheba, Solomon’s mother, [a] “Have you not heard that Adonijah son of Haggith has become king [b] and our lord David does not know it? [c] 12 Now please come and let me advise [d] you. Save your life and the life of your son Solomon. [e] 13 Go, approach King David and say to him, ‘My lord the king, did you not swear to your servant: Your son Solomon is to become king after me, and he is the one who is to sit on my throne? [f] So why has Adonijah become king? ’ 14 At that moment, while you are still there speaking with the king, I’ll come in after you and confirm your words.” [g]

15 So Bathsheba went to the king in his bedroom. Since the king was very old, Abishag the Shunammite was serving him. [h] 16 Bathsheba bowed down and paid homage to the king, and he asked, “What do you want? ”

17 She replied, “My lord, you swore to your servant by the LORD your God, ‘Your son Solomon is to become king after me, and he is the one who is to sit on my throne.’ 18 Now look, Adonijah has become king. And, [i] my lord the king, you didn't know it. 19 He has lavishly sacrificed oxen, fattened cattle, and sheep. He invited all the king's sons, Abiathar the priest, and Joab the commander of the army, but he did not invite your servant Solomon. 20 Now, my lord the king, the eyes of all Israel are on you to tell them who will sit on the throne of my lord the king after him. 21 Otherwise, when my lord the king rests with his fathers, [j] I and my son Solomon will be regarded as criminals." [k]

22 At that moment, while she was still speaking with the king, Nathan the prophet arrived, [l] 23 and it was announced to the king, "Nathan the prophet is here." He came into the king's presence and bowed to him with his face to the ground.

24 "My lord the king," Nathan said, "did you say, 'Adonijah is to become king after me, and he is the one who is to sit on my throne'? 25 For today he went down and lavishly sacrificed oxen, fattened cattle, and sheep. He invited all the sons of the king, the commanders of the army, and Abiathar the priest. And look! They're eating and drinking in his presence, and they're saying, 'Long live King Adonijah! ' 26 But he did not invite me — me, your servant — or Zadok the priest or Benaiah son of Jehoiada or your servant Solomon. 27 I'm certain my lord the king would not have let this happen without letting your servant [m] know who will sit on my lord the king's throne after him."

Solomon Confirmed King 28 King David responded by saying, "Call in Bathsheba for me." So she came into the king's presence and stood before him. 29 The king swore an oath and said, "As the LORD lives, who has redeemed my life from every difficulty, [n] 30 just as I swore to you by the LORD God of Israel: Your son Solomon is to become king after me, and he is the one who is to sit on my throne in my place, [o] that is exactly what I will do this very day." [p]

31 Bathsheba bowed with her face to the ground, paying homage to the king, [q] and said, "May my lord King David live forever! " [r]

32 King David then said, "Call in Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah son of Jehoiada for me." [s] So they came into the king's presence. 33 The king said to them, "Take my servants [t] with you, have my son Solomon ride on my own mule, [u] and take him down to Gihon. [v] 34 There, Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet are to anoint him as king over Israel. [w] You are to blow the ram's horn [x] and say, 'Long live King Solomon! ' [y] 35 You are to come up after him, and he is to come in and sit on my throne. He is the one who is to become king in my place; he is the one I have commanded to be ruler [z] over Israel and Judah." [a]

36 “•Amen ,” Benaiah son of Jehoiada replied to the king. “May the Lord, the God of my lord the king, so affirm it. [b] 37 Just as the Lord was with my lord the king, [c] so may He [d] be with Solomon and make his throne greater than the throne of my lord King David.” [e] 38 Then Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, the Cherethites, and the Pelethites [f] went down, had Solomon ride on King David’s mule, and took him to Gihon. 39 Zadok the priest took the horn of oil from the tabernacle and anointed Solomon. [g] Then they blew the ram’s horn, [h] and all the people proclaimed, “Long live King Solomon! ” [i] 40 All the people followed him, playing flutes and rejoicing with such a great joy [j] that the earth split open from the sound. [k]

Adonijah Hears of Solomon’s Coronation 41 Adonijah and all the invited guests who were with him [l] heard the noise as they finished eating. Joab heard the sound of the ram’s horn and said, “Why is the town in such an uproar? ” [m] 42 He was still speaking when Jonathan son of Abiathar the priest, [n] suddenly arrived. Adonijah said, “Come in, for you are an excellent man, and you must be bringing good news.” [o] 43 “Unfortunately not,” Jonathan answered him. “Our lord King David has made Solomon king. 44 And with Solomon, the king has sent Zadok the priest, Nathan the prophet, Benaiah son of Jehoiada, the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and they have had him ride on the king’s mule. 45 Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king in Gihon. [p] They have gone from there rejoicing. The town has been in an uproar; that’s the noise you heard.
46 Solomon has even taken his seat on the royal throne. [q]
47 “The king’s servants have also gone to congratulate our lord King David, saying, ‘May your God make the name of Solomon more well known than your name, and may He make his throne greater than your throne.’ [r] Then the king bowed in worship on his bed. [s] 48 And the king went on to say this: ‘May the Lord God of Israel be praised! Today He has provided one to sit on my throne, [t] and I am a witness.’ ” E 49 Then all of Adonijah’s guests got up trembling and went their separate ways. 50 Adonijah was afraid of Solomon, so he got up and went to take hold of the horns of the altar. [u] 51 It was reported to Solomon: “Look, Adonijah fears King Solomon, and he has taken hold of the horns of the altar, saying, ‘Let King Solomon first [v] swear to me that he will not kill his servant with the sword.’ ”

52 Then Solomon said, “If he is a man of character, not a single hair of his will fall to the ground, [w] but if evil is found in him, he dies.” [x] 53 So King Solomon sent for him, and they took him down from the altar. He came and paid homage to King Solomon, and Solomon said to him, “Go to your home.”

David's Dying Instructions to Solomon

2 As the time approached for David to die, [a] he instructed his son Solomon, [2]
"As for me, I am going the way of all of the earth. [b] Be strong and be courageous like a man, [c] [3] and keep your obligation to the LORD your God to walk in His ways and to keep His statutes, commands, ordinances, and decrees.
This is written in the law of Moses, so that you will have success in everything you do [d] and wherever you turn, [4] and so that the LORD will carry out His promise that He made to me: 'If your sons are careful to walk faithfully before Me with their whole mind and heart, [e] you will never fail to have a man on the throne of Israel.' [f]

[5] "You also know what Joab son of Zeruiah did to me [g] and what he did to the two commanders of Israel's army, Abner son of Ner [h] and Amasa son of Jether. [i] He murdered them in a time of peace to avenge blood shed in war. He spilled that blood on his own waistband and on the sandals of his feet. [j] [6] Act according to your wisdom, and do not let his gray head descend to •Sheol in peace.

[7] "Show loyalty to the sons of Barzillai the Gileadite and let them be among those who eat at your table [k] because they supported me when I fled from your brother Absalom. [l]

[8] "Keep an eye on Shimei son of Gera, the Benjaminite from Bahurim who is with you. He uttered malicious curses against me the day I went to Mahanaim. [m] But he came down to meet me at the Jordan River, and I swore to him by the LORD: 'I will never kill you with the sword.' [n] [9] So don't let him go unpunished, for you are a wise man. You know how to deal with him to bring his gray head down to Sheol with blood."

[10] Then David rested with his fathers [o] and was buried in the city of David. [p] [11] The length of time David reigned over Israel was 40 years: he reigned seven years in Hebron and 33 years in Jerusalem. [q] [12] Solomon sat on the throne of his father David, and his kingship was firmly established. [r]

Adonijah's Foolish Request [13] Now Adonijah son of Haggith [s] came to Bathsheba, Solomon's mother. She asked, "Do you come peacefully?"

"Peacefully," he replied, [t] [14] and then asked, "May I talk with you?" [A]

"Go ahead," she answered.

[15] "You know the kingship was mine," [u] he said. "All Israel expected me to be king, but then the kingship was turned over to my brother, [v] for the LORD gave it to him. [w] [16] So now I have just one request of you; don't turn me down." [B]

She said to him, “Go on.”

17 He replied, “Please speak to King Solomon since he won’t turn you down.
Let him give me Abishag the Shunammite [x] as a wife.”

18 “Very well,” Bathsheba replied. “I will speak to the king for you.”

19 So Bathsheba went to King Solomon to speak to him about Adonijah. The king stood up to greet her, bowed to her, sat down on his throne, and had a throne placed for the king’s mother. [y] So she sat down at his right hand. [z]

20 Then she said, “I have just one small request of you. Don’t turn me down.”

“Go ahead and ask, mother,” the king replied, “for I won’t turn you down.”

21 So she said, “Let Abishag the Shunammite be given to your brother Adonijah as a wife.”

22 King Solomon answered his mother, “Why are you requesting Abishag the Shunammite for Adonijah? Since he is my elder brother, [a] you might as well ask the kingship for him, [b] for Abiathar the priest, and for Joab son of Zeruiah.” [c, d]

23 Then Solomon took an oath by the Lord: “May God punish me and do so severely [e] if Adonijah has not made this request at the cost of his life. 24 And now, as the Lord lives, the One who established me, seated me on the throne of my father David, and made me a dynasty as He promised [f] — I swear Adonijah will be put to death today! ” 25 Then King Solomon gave the order to Benaiah son of Jehoiada, [g] who struck down Adonijah, and he died.

Abiathar’s Banishment 26 The king said to Abiathar the priest, [h] “Go to your fields in Anathoth. [i] Even though you deserve to die, I will not put you to death today, since you carried the ark of the Lord God in the presence of my father David [j] and you suffered through all that my father suffered.” [k] 27 So Solomon banished Abiathar from being the Lord’s priest, and it fulfilled the Lord’s prophecy He had spoken at Shiloh against Eli’s family. [l]

Joab’s Execution

28 The news reached Joab. Since he had supported Adonijah [m] but not Absalom, [n] Joab fled to the Lord’s tabernacle and took hold of the horns of the altar. [o]

29 It was reported to King Solomon: “Joab has fled to the Lord’s tabernacle and is now beside the altar.” Then Solomon sent [p] Benaiah son of Jehoiada [q] and told him, “Go and strike him down! ” [r]

30 So Benaiah went to the tabernacle and said to Joab, “This is what the king says: ‘Come out! ’ ” [s]

But Joab said, “No, for I will die here.”

So Benaiah took a message back to the king, “This is what Joab said, and this is how he answered me.”

31 The king said to him, “Do just as he says. Strike him down and bury him in order to remove from me and from my father’s house the blood that Joab shed without just cause. [t] 32 The Lord will bring back his own blood on his head because he struck down two men more righteous and better than he, without my father David’s knowledge. With his sword, Joab murdered Abner [u] son of Ner, commander of Israel’s army, and Amasa [v] son of Jether, commander of Judah’s army. 33 Their blood will come back on Joab’s head and on the head of his descendants forever, but for David, his descendants, his dynasty, and his throne, there will be peace from the Lord forever.” [w]

34 Benaiah son of Jehoiada [x] went up, struck down Joab, and put him to death. He was buried at his house in the wilderness. [y] 35 Then the king appointed Benaiah son of Jehoiada in Joab’s place over the army, [z] and he appointed Zadok the priest in Abiathar’s place.

Shimei’s Banishment and Execution 36 Then the king summoned Shimei [a] and said to him, “Build a house for yourself in Jerusalem and live there, but don’t leave there and go anywhere else. 37 On the day you do leave and cross the Kidron Valley, [b] know for sure that you will certainly die. Your blood will be on your own head.” [c]

38 Shimei said to the king, “The sentence is fair; your servant will do as my lord the king has spoken.” And Shimei lived in Jerusalem for a long time.

39 But then, at the end of three years, two of Shimei’s slaves ran away to Achish [d] son of Maacah, king of Gath. [e] Shimei was informed, “Look, your slaves are in Gath.” 40 So Shimei saddled his donkey and set out to Achish at Gath to search for his slaves. He went and brought them back from Gath.

41 It was reported to Solomon that Shimei had gone from Jerusalem to Gath and had returned. 42 So the king summoned Shimei and said to him, “Didn’t I make you swear by the Lord and warn you, saying, ‘On the day you leave and go anywhere else, know for sure that you will certainly die’? And you said to me, ‘The sentence is fair; I will obey.’ 43 So why have you not kept the Lord’s oath and the command that I gave you? ” 44 The king also said, “You yourself know all the evil that you did to my father David. [f] Therefore, the Lord has brought back your evil on your head, 45 but King Solomon will be blessed, and David’s throne will remain established before the Lord forever.” [g]

46 Then the king commanded Benaiah son of Jehoiada, and he went out and struck Shimei down, and he died. So the kingdom was established in Solomon’s hand. [h]

The LORD Appears to Solomon

3 Solomon made an alliance [A] with Pharaoh king of Egypt by marrying Pharaoh's daughter. [a] Solomon brought her to live in the city of David [b] until he finished building his palace, [c] the LORD*'s temple,* [d] and the wall surrounding Jerusalem. [e] 2 However, the people were sacrificing on the •high places, [f] because until that time a temple for the LORD*'s name* [g] had not been built. 3 Solomon loved the LORD [h] by walking in the statutes of his father David, [i] but he also sacrificed and burned incense on the high places.

4 The king went to Gibeon [j] to sacrifice there because it was the most famous high place. He offered 1,000 •burnt offerings on that altar. [k] 5 At Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon [l] in a dream at night. [m] God said, "Ask. [n] What should I give you? "

6 And Solomon replied, "You have shown great and faithful love to Your servant, my father David, because he walked before You in faithfulness, righteousness, and [B] integrity. You have continued this great and faithful love for him by giving him a son to sit on his throne, [o] as it is today. [p]

7 "LORD my God, You have now made Your servant king in my father David's place. [q] Yet I am just a youth with no experience in leadership. [C,] [r] 8 Your servant is among Your people You have chosen, [s] a [D] people too numerous to be numbered or counted. [t] 9 So give Your servant an obedient heart to judge [u] Your people and to discern between good and evil. For who is able to judge this great people of Yours? " [v]

10 Now it pleased the Lord that Solomon had requested this. 11 So God said to him, "Because you have requested this and did not ask for long life [E] or riches for yourself, [w] or the death [F] of your enemies, but you asked discernment for yourself to understand justice, [x] 12 I will therefore do what you have asked. [y] I will give you a wise and understanding heart, so that there has never been anyone like you before and never will be again. [z] 13 In addition, I will give you what you did not ask for: both riches and honor, [a] so that no man in any kingdom will be your equal during your entire life. [b] 14 If you walk in My ways and keep My statutes and commands just as your father David did, I will give you a long life." [c]

15 Then Solomon woke up [d] and realized it had been a dream. [e] He went to Jerusalem, stood before the ark of the Lord's covenant, [f] and offered burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings. [g] Then he held a feast [h] for all his servants.

Solomon's Wisdom

16 Then two women who were prostitutes came to the king and stood before him. [i] 17 One woman said, “Please my lord, this woman and I live in the same house, and I had a baby while she was in the house. 18 On the third day after I gave birth, she also had a baby and we were alone. No one else [G] was with us in the house; just the two of us were there. 19 During the night this woman’s son died because she lay on him. 20 She got up in the middle of the night and took my son from my side while your servant was asleep. She laid him at her breast, and she put her dead son in my arms. 21 When I got up in the morning to nurse my son, I discovered he was dead. That morning, when I looked closely at him I realized that he was not the son I gave birth to.”

22 “No,” the other woman said. “My son is the living one; your son is the dead one.”

The first woman said, “No, your son is the dead one; my son is the living one.” So they argued before the king.

23 The king replied, “This woman says, ‘This is my son who is alive, and your son is dead,’ but that woman says, ‘No, your son is dead, and my son is alive.’ ” 24 The king continued, “Bring me a sword.” So they brought the sword to the king. 25 Solomon said, “Cut the living boy in two and give half to one and half to the other.”

26 The woman whose son was alive spoke to the king because she felt great compassion [H, j] for her son. “My lord, give her the living baby,” she said, “but please don’t have him killed! ”

But the other one said, “He will not be mine or yours. Cut him in two! ”

27 The king responded, “Give the living baby to the first woman, and don’t kill him. She is his mother.” 28 All Israel heard about the judgment the king had given, and they stood in awe of the king because they saw that God’s wisdom [k] was in him to carry out justice.

Solomon's Officials

4 King Solomon ruled over Israel, [a] 2 and these were his officials: [b]

Azariah son of Zadok, priest;
3 Elihoreph and Ahijah the sons of Shisha, secretaries;
Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud, court historian;
4 Benaiah son of Jehoiada, in charge of the army;
Zadok and Abiathar, priests;
5 Azariah son of Nathan, in charge of the deputies;
Zabud son of Nathan, a priest and adviser to the king;
6 Ahishar, in charge of the palace;
and Adoniram son of Abda, in charge of forced labor.

7 Solomon had 12 deputies for all Israel. They provided food for the king and his household; each one made provision for one month out of the year. [c] 8 These were their names:

Ben-hur, in the hill country of Ephraim;
9 Ben-deker, in Makaz, Shaalbim, Beth-shemesh, and Elon-beth-hanan;
10 Ben-hesed, in Arubboth (he had Socoh and the whole land of Hepher);
11 Ben-abinadab, in all Naphath-dor (Taphath daughter of Solomon was his wife);
12 Baana son of Ahilud, in Taanach, Megiddo, and all Beth-shean which is beside Zarethan below Jezreel, from Beth-shean to Abel-meholah, as far as the other side of Jokmeam;
13 Ben-geber, in Ramoth-gilead (he had the villages of Jair son of Manasseh, which are in Gilead, and he had the region of Argob, which is in Bashan, 60 great cities with walls and bronze bars);
14 Ahinadab son of Iddo, in Mahanaim;
15 Ahimaaz, in Naphtali (he also had married a daughter of Solomon — Basemath);
16 Baana son of Hushai, in Asher and Bealoth;
17 Jehoshaphat son of Paruah, in Issachar;
18 Shimei son of Ela, in Benjamin;
19 Geber son of Uri, in the land of Gilead, the country of Sihon king of the Amorites and of Og king of Bashan.

There was one deputy in the land of Judah. [d]

Solomon's Provisions

20 Judah and Israel were as numerous as the sand by the sea; [e] they were eating, drinking, and rejoicing. 21 [A] Solomon ruled over all the kingdoms from the Euphrates River to the land of the Philistines and as far as the border of Egypt. [f] They offered tribute and served Solomon all the days of his life. [g]
22 Solomon's provisions for one day were 150 bushels [B] of fine flour and 300 bushels [C] of meal, 23 10 fattened oxen, 20 range oxen, and 100 sheep, besides deer, gazelles, roebucks, and pen-fed poultry, [D, h] 24 for he had dominion over everything west of the Euphrates from Tiphsah to Gaza and over all the kings west of the Euphrates. He had peace on all his surrounding borders.
25 Throughout Solomon's reign, Judah and Israel lived in safety from Dan to Beer-sheba, [i] each man under his own vine and his own fig tree. [j] 26 Solomon had 40,000 [k] stalls of horses for his chariots, and 12,000 horsemen. [l] 27 Each of those deputies for a month in turn provided food for King Solomon and for everyone who came to King Solomon's table. They neglected nothing. 28 Each man brought the barley and the straw for the chariot teams and the other horses
[m] to the required place according to his assignment. [E]

Solomon's Wisdom and Literary Gifts 29 God gave Solomon wisdom, very great insight, and understanding [n] as vast as the sand on the seashore. 30 Solomon's wisdom was greater than the wisdom of all the people of the East, [o] greater than all the wisdom of Egypt. [p] 31 He was wiser than anyone [q] — wiser than Ethan the Ezrahite, [r] and Heman, Calcol, and Darda, sons of Mahol. [s] His reputation extended to all the surrounding nations. [t]

32 Solomon composed 3,000 proverbs, [u] and his songs numbered 1,005. [v] 33 He described trees, from the cedar in Lebanon to the hyssop growing out of the wall. He also taught about animals, birds, reptiles, and fish. 34 People came from everywhere, sent by every king on earth who had heard of his wisdom, to listen to Solomon's wisdom. [w]

Chapter 5 [a]

Hiram's Building Materials [1]Hiram king of Tyre [b] sent his servants to Solomon when he heard that he had been anointed king in his father's place, [c] for Hiram had always been friends with David. [d]

[2] Solomon sent this message to Hiram: [3] "You know my father David was not able to build a temple for the name of •Yahweh his God. This was because of the warfare all around him until the LORD put his enemies under his feet. [e] [4] The LORD my God has now given me rest all around; there is no enemy or crisis. [f] [5] So I plan to build a temple for the name of Yahweh my God, [g] according to what the LORD promised my father David: 'I will put your son on your throne in your place, and he will build the temple for My name.' [h]

[6] "Therefore, command that cedars from Lebanon be cut down for me. My servants will be with your servants, and I will pay your servants' wages according to whatever you say, for you know that not a man among us knows how to cut timber like the Sidonians." [i]

[7] When Hiram heard Solomon's words, he greatly rejoiced and said, "May the LORD be praised today! [j] He has given David a wise son to be over this great people! " [8] Then Hiram sent a reply to Solomon, saying, "I have heard your message; I will do everything you want regarding the cedar and cypress timber.
[9] My servants will bring the logs down from Lebanon to the sea, and I will make them into rafts to go by sea to the place you indicate. I will break them apart there, and you can take them away. You then can meet my needs by providing my household with food." [k]

[10] So Hiram provided Solomon with all the cedar and cypress timber he wanted, [11] and Solomon provided Hiram with 100,000 bushels [A] of wheat as food for his household and 110,000 gallons [l] of oil from crushed olives. [m] Solomon did this for Hiram year after year.

[12] The LORD gave Solomon wisdom, as He had promised him. [n] There was peace between Hiram and Solomon, and the two of them made a treaty. [o]

Solomon's Work Force

[13] Then King Solomon drafted forced laborers from all Israel; [p] the labor force numbered 30,000 men. [14] He sent 10,000 to Lebanon each month in shifts; one month they were in Lebanon, two months they were at home. Adoniram was in charge of the forced labor. [15] Solomon had 70,000 porters and 80,000 stonecutters in the mountains, [q] [16] not including his 3,300 [r] deputies [s] in charge of the work. They ruled over the people doing the work. 17 The king commanded them to quarry large, costly stones to lay the foundation of the temple with dressed stones. [t] 18 So Solomon's builders and Hiram's builders, [u] along with the Gebalites, [v] quarried the stone and prepared the timber and stone for the temple's construction.

Building the Temple

6 Solomon began to build the temple for the LORD in the four hundred eightieth year [a] after the Israelites came out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of his reign over Israel, in the second month, in the month of Ziv. [b, c] 2 The temple that King Solomon built for the LORD [d] was 90 feet [A] long, 30 feet [B] wide, and 45 feet [C] high. [e] 3 The portico in front of the temple sanctuary was 30 feet [D] long extending across the temple's width, and 15 feet deep [E] in front of the temple. [f] 4 He also made windows with beveled frames [F] for the temple. [g] 5 He then built a chambered structure [G] along the temple wall, encircling the walls of the temple, that is, the sanctuary and the inner sanctuary. [h] And he made side chambers [H] all around. [i] 6 The lowest chamber was 7 1/2 feet [I] wide, the middle was nine feet [J] wide, and the third was 10 1/2 feet [K] wide. He also provided offset ledges for the temple all around the outside so that nothing would be inserted into the temple walls. 7 The temple's construction used finished stones cut at the quarry so that no hammer, chisel, or any iron tool was heard in the temple while it was being built. [j] 8 The door for the lowest [k] side chamber was on the right side of the temple.
They [l] went up a stairway [L] to the middle chamber, and from the middle to the third. 9 When he finished building the temple, [m] he paneled it with boards and planks of cedar. 10 He built the chambers along the entire temple, joined to the temple with cedar beams; [n] each story was 7 1/2 feet [M] high.
11 The word of the LORD came to Solomon: [o] 12 "As for this temple you are building — if you walk in My statutes, observe My ordinances, and keep all My commands by walking in them, [p] I will fulfill My promise to you, which I made to your father David. [q] 13 I will live among the Israelites and not abandon My people Israel." [r]
14 When Solomon finished building the temple, [s, t] 15 he paneled the interior temple walls with cedar boards; from the temple floor to the surface of the ceiling he overlaid the interior with wood. He also overlaid the floor with cypress boards. [u] 16 Then he lined 30 feet [N] of the rear of the temple with cedar boards from the floor to the surface of the ceiling, [v] and he built the interior as an inner sanctuary, the most holy place. [w] 17 The temple, that is, the sanctuary in front of the most holy place, [O] was 60 feet [P] long. 18 The cedar paneling inside the temple was carved with ornamental gourds [x] and flower blossoms.
Everything was cedar; [y] not a stone could be seen.
19 He prepared the inner sanctuary [z] inside the temple to put the ark of the LORD's covenant [a] there. 20 The interior of the sanctuary was 30 feet [Q] long, 30 feet [R] wide, and 30 feet [S] high; he overlaid it with pure gold. [b] He also overlaid the cedar altar. 21 Next, Solomon overlaid the interior of the temple with pure gold, and he hung [T] gold chains [c] across the front of the inner sanctuary [d] and overlaid it with gold. 22 So he added the gold overlay to the entire temple until everything was completely finished, including the entire altar [e] that belongs to the inner sanctuary.

23 In the inner sanctuary he made two •cherubim [f] 15 feet [U] high out of olive wood. 24 One wing of the first cherub was 7 1/2 feet long, [V] and the other wing was 7 1/2 feet long. The wingspan was 15 feet [W] from tip to tip. 25 The second cherub also was 15 feet; [X] both cherubim had the same size and shape. 26 The first cherub's height was 15 feet [Y] and so was the second cherub's. 27 Then he put the cherubim inside the inner temple. Since their wings were spread out, the first one's wing touched one wall while the second cherub's wing touched the other [Z] wall, and in the middle of the temple their wings were touching wing to wing. [g] 28 He also overlaid the cherubim with gold.

29 He carved all the surrounding temple walls with carved engravings — cherubim, [h] palm trees and flower blossoms — in both the inner and outer sanctuaries. 30 He overlaid the temple floor with gold in both the inner and outer sanctuaries.

31 For the entrance of the inner sanctuary, he made olive wood doors. [i] The pillars of the doorposts were five-sided. [A] 32 The two doors were made of olive wood. He carved cherubim, palm trees, and flower blossoms on them and overlaid them with gold, hammering gold over the cherubim and palm trees. 33 In the same way, he made four-sided [B] olive wood doorposts for the sanctuary entrance. 34 The two doors [j] were made of cypress wood; the first door had two folding sides, and the second door had two folding panels. 35 He carved cherubim, palm trees, and flower blossoms on them and overlaid them with gold applied evenly over the carving. 36 He built the inner courtyard [k] with three rows of dressed stone [l] and a row of trimmed cedar beams.

37 The foundation of the LORD's temple was laid in Solomon's fourth year in the month of Ziv. 38 In his eleventh year in the eighth month, in the month of Bul, [m] the temple was completed in every detail and according to every specification. [n] So he built it in seven years. [o]

Solomon's Palace Complex

7 Solomon completed his entire palace complex after 13 years of construction.
[a] [2] He built the House of the Forest of Lebanon. [b] It was 150 feet [A] long, 75 feet [B] wide, and 45 feet [C] high on four rows of cedar pillars, with cedar beams on top of the pillars. [3] It was paneled above with cedar at the top of the chambers that rested on 45 pillars, 15 per row. [4] There were three rows of window frames, facing each other [D] in three tiers. [E,] [c] [5] All the doors and doorposts had rectangular frames, the openings facing each other [F] in three tiers. [G] [6] He made the hall of pillars 75 feet [H] long and 45 feet [I] wide. A portico was in front of the pillars, and a canopy with pillars [J] was in front of them. [7] He made the Hall of the Throne where he would judge [d] — the Hall of Judgment. It was paneled with cedar from the floor to the rafters. [e] [8] Solomon's own palace where he would live, in the other courtyard behind the hall, was of similar construction. And he made a house like this hall for Pharaoh's daughter, his wife. [K,] [f]

9 All of these buildings were of costly stones, cut to size and sawed with saws on the inner and outer surfaces, from foundation to coping and from the outside to the great courtyard. 10 The foundation was made of large, costly stones 12 and 15 feet [L] long. 11 Above were also costly stones, cut to size, as well as cedar wood. 12 Around the great courtyard, as well as the inner courtyard of the LORD's temple and the portico of the temple, were three rows of dressed stone and a row of trimmed cedar beams. [g]

13 King Solomon had Hiram [h,] [i] brought from Tyre. 14 He was a widow's son from the tribe of Naphtali, and his father was a man of Tyre, a bronze craftsman. Hiram had great skill, [j] understanding, and knowledge to do every kind of bronze work. So he came to King Solomon and carried out all his work. [k]

The Bronze Pillars

15 He cast two hollow bronze pillars: [l] each 27 feet [M] high and 18 feet [N] in circumference. [m, n] 16 He also made two capitals [o] of cast bronze to set on top of the pillars; 7 1/2 feet [O] was the height of the first capital, and 7 1/2 feet [P] was also the height of the second capital. 17 The capitals on top of the pillars had gratings of latticework, wreaths [Q] made of chainwork — seven for the first capital and seven for the second.

18 He made the pillars with two encircling rows of pomegranates on the one grating to cover the capital on top; he did the same for the second capital. 19 And the capitals on top of the pillars in the portico were shaped like lilies, six feet [R] high. 20 The capitals on the two pillars were also immediately above the rounded surface next to the grating, and 200 pomegranates [p] were in rows encircling each [S] capital. 21 He set up the pillars at the portico [q] of the sanctuary: he set up the right pillar and named it Jachin; [r] then he set up the left pillar and named it Boaz. [s, t] 22 The tops of the pillars were shaped like lilies. Then the work of the pillars was completed. [u]

The Reservoir

23 He made the cast metal reservoir, [T,] [v] 15 feet [U] from brim to brim, perfectly round. It was 7 1/2 feet [V] high and 45 feet [W] in circumference.
24 Ornamental gourds [w] encircled it below the brim, 10 every half yard, [X] completely encircling the reservoir. [x] The gourds were cast in two rows when the reservoir was cast. 25 It stood on 12 oxen, [y] three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east. The reservoir was on top of them and all their hindquarters were toward the center. 26 The reservoir was three inches [Y] thick, and its rim was fashioned like the brim of a cup or of a lily blossom. It held 11,000 gallons. [Z]

The Bronze Water Carts

27 Then he made 10 bronze water carts. [A, z] Each water cart was six feet [B] long, six feet [C] wide, and 4 1/2 feet [D] high. 28 This was the design of the carts: They had frames; the frames were between the cross-pieces, 29 and on the frames between the cross-pieces were lions, oxen, and •cherubim . [a] On the cross-pieces there was a pedestal above, and below the lions and oxen were wreaths of hanging [E] work. 30 Each cart [b] had four bronze wheels with bronze axles. Underneath the four corners of the basin were cast supports, each next to a wreath. 31 And the water cart's opening inside the crown on top was 18 inches [F] wide. The opening was round, made as a pedestal 27 inches [G] wide. On it were carvings, but their frames were square, not round. 32 There were four wheels under the frames, and the wheel axles were part of the water cart; each wheel was 27 inches [H] tall. 33 The wheels' design was similar to that of chariot wheels: their axles, rims, spokes, and hubs were all of cast metal. 34 Four supports were at the four corners of each water cart; each support was one piece with the water cart. 35 At the top of the cart was a band nine inches [I] high encircling it; also, at the top of the cart, its braces and its frames were one piece with it. 36 He engraved cherubim, lions, and palm trees [c] on the plates of its braces and on its frames, wherever each had space, with encircling wreaths. 37 In this way he made the 10 water carts using the same casting, dimensions, and shape for all of them.

Bronze Basins and Other Utensils 38 Then he made 10 bronze basins [d] — each basin holding 220 gallons [J] and each was six feet [K] wide — one basin for each of the 10 water carts. 39 He set five water carts on the right side of the temple and five on the left side. He put the reservoir near the right side of the temple toward the southeast. [e] 40 Then Hiram made [f] the basins, the shovels, and the sprinkling basins.

Completion of the Bronze Works So Hiram finished all the work that he was doing for King Solomon on the LORD's temple: 41 two pillars; [g] bowls for the capitals that were on top of the two pillars; the two gratings for covering both bowls of the capitals that were on top of the pillars; [h] 42 the 400 pomegranates for the two gratings (two rows of pomegranates for each grating covering both capitals' bowls on top of the pillars [i]); 43 the 10 water carts; [j] the 10 basins on the water carts; [k] 44 the reservoir; [l] the 12 oxen underneath the reservoir; [m] 45 and the pots, shovels, and sprinkling basins. [n] All the utensils that Hiram made for King Solomon at the LORD's temple were made of burnished bronze.

46 The king had them cast in clay molds in the Jordan Valley between Succoth [o] and Zarethan. [p] 47 Solomon left all the utensils unweighed because there were so many; the weight of the bronze was not determined. [q]

Completion of the Gold Furnishings 48 Solomon also made all the equipment in the LORD's temple: the gold altar; the gold table that the •bread of the Presence was placed on; [r] 49 the pure gold lampstands in front of the inner sanctuary, five on the right and five on the left; [s] the gold flowers, lamps, and tongs; 50 the pure gold ceremonial bowls, wick trimmers, sprinkling basins, ladles, [L] and firepans; [t] and the gold hinges for the doors of the inner temple (that is, the most holy place) and for the doors of the temple sanctuary.

51 So all the work King Solomon did in the LORD's temple was completed. [u] Then Solomon brought in the consecrated things of his father David [v] — the silver, the gold, and the utensils — and put them in the treasuries of the LORD's temple. [w]

Solomon’s Dedication of the Temple

8 At that time Solomon assembled the elders [a] of Israel, [b] all the tribal heads [c] and the ancestral leaders of the Israelites before him at Jerusalem in order to bring the ark of the LORD's covenant from the city of David, [d] that is •Zion . [e] 2
So all the men of Israel were assembled in the presence of King Solomon in the seventh month, the month of Ethanim, [f] at the festival. [g] 3 All the elders [h] of Israel came, and the priests [i] picked up the ark. [j] 4 The priests and the Levites brought the ark of the LORD, the tent of meeting, [k] and the holy utensils that were in the tent. [l] 5 King Solomon and the entire congregation of Israel, who had gathered around him and were with him in front of the ark, were sacrificing sheep and cattle that could not be counted or numbered, because there were so many. [m] 6 The priests brought the ark of the LORD's covenant to its place, into the inner sanctuary of the temple, to the most holy place [n] beneath the wings of the •cherubim . 7 For the cherubim were spreading their wings over [o] the place of the ark, so that the cherubim covered the ark and its poles from above. [p] 8 The poles were so long that their ends were seen from the holy place in front of the inner sanctuary, but they were not seen from outside the sanctuary; they are there to this day. [q] 9 Nothing was in the ark except the two stone tablets that Moses had put there at Horeb, [r,] [s] where the LORD made a covenant with the Israelites when they came out of the land of Egypt. [t] 10 When the priests came out of the holy place, the cloud filled the LORD's temple, [u] 11 and because of the cloud, the priests were not able to continue ministering, for the glory [v] of the LORD filled the temple.
12 Then Solomon said:

The LORD said that He would dwell in thick darkness. [w] 13 I have indeed built an exalted temple [x] for You, a place for Your dwelling forever. [y]

14 The king turned around and blessed [z] the entire congregation of Israel while they were standing. 15 He said:

May the LORD God of Israel be praised!
He spoke directly to my father David,
and He has fulfilled the promise [a] by His power.
He said,
16 "Since the day I brought My people Israel out of Egypt, [b]
I have not chosen a city to build a temple in among any of the tribes of Israel,

so that My name [c] would be there.
But I have chosen David to rule My people Israel." [d] 17 It was in the desire of my father David to build a temple for the name of •Yahweh , the God of Israel. [e] 18 But the LORD said to my father David,
"Since it was your desire to build a temple for My name,
you have done well to have this desire. [f] 19 Yet you are not the one to build it;
instead, your son, your own offspring, will build it for My name." [g] 20 The LORD has fulfilled what He promised.
I have taken the place of my father David, [h] and I sit on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised. [i]
I have built the temple for the name of Yahweh, the God of Israel.
21 I have provided a place there for the ark, where the LORD's covenant is that He made with our ancestors when He brought them out of the land of Egypt. [j]

Solomon's Prayer

22 Then Solomon stood [k] before the altar of the LORD in front of the entire congregation of Israel and spread out his hands toward heaven. [l] 23 He said:

LORD God of Israel,
there is no God like You in heaven above or on earth below, [m] keeping the gracious covenant with Your servants who walk before You with their whole heart. [n] 24 You have kept what You promised to Your servant, my father David.
You spoke directly to him
and You fulfilled Your promise by Your power as it is today. [o]
25 Therefore, LORD God of Israel,
keep what You promised
to Your servant, my father David:
You will never fail to have a man to sit before Me on the throne of Israel, [p]

if only your sons guard their walk before Me as you have walked before Me. [q] 26 Now LORD [r] God of Israel, please confirm what You promised to Your servant, my father David. [s] 27 But will God indeed live on earth?
Even heaven, the highest heaven, cannot contain You, much less this temple I have built. [t] 28 Listen [A] to Your servant's prayer and his petition, [u]
LORD my God,
so that You may hear the cry and the prayer that Your servant prays before You today, 29 so that Your eyes may watch over this temple night and day, [v] toward the place where You said:
My name will be there, [w]
and so that You may hear the prayer that Your servant prays toward this place.
30 Hear the petition of Your servant [x]
and Your people Israel,
which they pray toward this place. [y]
May You hear in Your dwelling place in heaven.
May You hear and forgive.
31 When a man sins against his neighbor and is forced to take an oath, [B, z]
and he comes to take an oath
before Your altar in this temple,
32 may You hear in heaven and act.
May You judge Your servants, condemning the wicked man by bringing
what he has done on his own head
and providing justice for the righteous by rewarding him according to his righteousness. [a] 33 When Your people Israel are defeated before an enemy, because they have sinned against You, [b] and they return to You and praise Your name, and they pray and plead with You for mercy in this temple, 34 may You hear in heaven

and forgive the sin of Your people Israel.
May You restore them to the land
You gave their ancestors. c
35 When the skies are shut and there is no rain, because they have sinned against You, d and they pray toward this place
and praise Your name,
and they turn from their sins
because You are afflicting them, e 36 may You hear in heaven and forgive the sin of Your servants
and Your people Israel,
so that You may teach them the good way
they should walk in. f
May You send rain on Your land that You gave Your people for an inheritance. g 37 When there is famine on the earth,
when there is pestilence,
when there is blight, mildew, locust, or grasshopper, h when their enemy besieges them in the region of their fortified cities, C when there is any plague or illness, 38 whatever prayer or petition anyone from Your people Israel might have — each man knowing his own afflictions D, i and spreading out his hands toward this temple j — 39 may You hear in heaven, Your dwelling place, and may You forgive, act, and repay the man,
according to all his ways, since You know his heart,
for You alone know every human heart, k 40 so that they may •fear l You all the days they live on the land m
You gave our ancestors.
41 Even for the foreigner who is not of Your people Israel but has come from a distant land n

because of Your name — 42 for they will hear of Your great name, mighty hand, [o] and outstretched arm, and will come [p] and pray toward this temple — 43 may You hear in heaven, Your dwelling place, and do according to all the foreigner asks You for.
Then all the people on earth will know [q] Your name,
to fear You as Your people Israel do and know that this temple I have built is called by Your name.
44 When Your people go out to fight against their enemies, [r]
wherever You send them,
and they pray to Yahweh
in the direction of the city You have chosen [s] and the temple I have built for Your name, 45 may You hear their prayer and petition in heaven and uphold their cause. [t] 46 When they sin against You — for there is no one who does not sin [u] —
and You are angry with them
and hand them over to the enemy, and their captors deport them to the enemy's country [v] — whether distant or nearby — 47 and when they come to their senses [E] in the land where they were deported
and repent and petition You in their captors' land:
"We have sinned and done wrong;
we have been wicked," [w]
48 and when they return to You with their whole mind and heart in the land of their enemies who took them captive, [x] and when they pray to You in the direction of their land that You gave their ancestors,
the city You have chosen, [y]
and the temple I have built for Your name, 49 may You hear in heaven, Your dwelling place,
their prayer and petition and uphold their cause.
50 May You forgive Your people who sinned against You

and all their rebellions [F] against You, and may You give them compassion in the eyes of their captors, so that they may be compassionate to them. [z] 51 For they are Your people and Your inheritance; [a]
You brought them out of Egypt, out of the middle of an iron furnace. [b] 52 May Your eyes be open to Your servant's petition and to the petition of Your people Israel, listening to them whenever they call to You.
53 For You, Lord God, have set them apart as Your inheritance from all the people on earth, as You spoke through Your servant Moses when You brought their ancestors out of Egypt. [c]

Solomon's Blessing

54 When Solomon finished praying this entire prayer and petition to the Lord, he got up from kneeling before the altar of the Lord, with his hands spread out toward heaven, [d] 55 and he stood and blessed the whole congregation of Israel [e] with a loud voice: 56 "May the Lord be praised! He has given rest [f] to His people Israel according to all He has said. Not one of all the good promises He made through His servant Moses has failed. [g] 57 May the Lord our God be with us as He was with our ancestors. May He not abandon us or leave us [h] 58 so that He causes us to be devoted [G] to Him, [i] to walk in all His ways, and to keep His commands, statutes, and ordinances, which He commanded our ancestors. 59 May my words I have made my petition with before the Lord be near the Lord our God day and night, so that He may uphold His servant's cause and the cause of His people Israel, as each day requires, [j] 60 and so that all the peoples of the earth may know that Yahweh is God. There is no other! [k] 61 Let your heart be completely devoted to the Lord our God [l] to walk in His statutes and to keep His commands, as it is today."

62 The king and all Israel with him were offering sacrifices in the Lord's presence. 63 Solomon offered a sacrifice of •fellowship offerings to the Lord: 22,000 cattle and 120,000 sheep. [m] In this manner the king and all the Israelites dedicated [n] the Lord's temple. [o]

64 On the same day, the king consecrated the middle of the courtyard that was in front of the LORD's temple because that was where he offered the •burnt offering, the •grain offering, and the fat of the fellowship offerings [p] since the bronze altar before the LORD was too small to accommodate the burnt offerings, the grain offerings, and the fat of the fellowship offerings. [q]

65 Solomon and all Israel with him — a great assembly, from the entrance of Hamath [H, r] to the Brook of Egypt [s] — observed the festival at that time [t] in the presence of the LORD our God, seven days, and seven more days — 14 days. [u, v]
66 On the fifteenth day [I] he sent the people away. So they blessed the king and went home to their tents rejoicing and with joyful hearts for all the goodness that the LORD had done for His servant David and for His people Israel. [w]

The LORD's Response

9 When Solomon finished building the temple of the Lord, [a] the royal palace, and all that Solomon desired to do, [b] 2 the Lord appeared to Solomon a second time just as He had appeared to him at Gibeon. [c] 3 The Lord said to him:
I have heard your prayer and petition you have made before Me. I have consecrated this temple you have built, to put My name there forever; [d] My eyes and My heart will be there at all times. [e]

4 As for you, if you walk before Me as your father David walked, with a heart of integrity and in what is right, doing everything I have commanded you, and if you keep My statutes and ordinances, [f] 5 I will establish your royal throne over Israel forever, as I promised your father David: You will never fail to have a man on the throne of Israel.
[g]

6 If you or your sons turn away from following Me and do not keep My commands — My statutes that I have set before you — and if you go and serve other gods and worship them, [h] 7 I will cut off Israel from the land I gave them, [i] and I will reject [A] the temple I have sanctified for My name. [j] Israel will become an object of scorn and ridicule among all the peoples. [k] 8 Though this temple is now exalted, [l] everyone who passes by will be appalled and will mock. [B] They will say: Why did the Lord do this to this land and this temple? [m] 9 Then they will say: Because they abandoned the Lord their God who brought their ancestors out of the land of Egypt. They clung to other gods and worshiped and served them. Because of this, the Lord brought all this ruin on them. [n]

King Hiram's 20 Towns

10 At the end of 20 years during which Solomon had built the two houses, the Lord's temple and the royal palace [o] — 11 Hiram king of Tyre [p] having supplied him with cedar and cypress logs and gold [q] for his every wish [r] — King Solomon gave Hiram 20 towns in the land of Galilee. 12 So Hiram went out from Tyre to look over the towns that Solomon had given him, but he was not pleased with them. 13 So he said, "What are these towns you've given me, my brother? " So he called them the Land of Cabul, [s] as they are still called today. [t] 14 Now Hiram had sent the king 9,000 pounds [C] of gold. [u]

Solomon's Forced Labor

15 This is the account of the forced labor [v] that King Solomon had imposed to build the LORD's temple, his own palace, the supporting terraces, [w] the wall of Jerusalem, [x] and Hazor, [y] Megiddo, [z] and Gezer. [a] 16 Pharaoh king of Egypt had attacked and captured Gezer. He then burned it down, killed the Canaanites who lived in the city, and gave it as a dowry to his daughter, Solomon's wife. [b] 17 Then Solomon rebuilt Gezer, Lower Beth-horon, [c] 18 Baalath, [d] Tamar [e, f] in the Wilderness of Judah, 19 all the storage cities that belonged to Solomon, the chariot cities, [g] the cavalry cities, [h] and whatever Solomon desired to build [i] in Jerusalem, Lebanon, or anywhere else in the land of his dominion.
20 As for all the peoples who remained of the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, who were not Israelites — 21 their descendants who remained in the land after them, those whom the Israelites were unable to •completely destroy [j] — Solomon imposed forced labor on them; it is this way until today. [k] 22 But Solomon did not consign the Israelites to slavery; [l] they were soldiers, his servants, his commanders, his captains, and commanders of his chariots and his cavalry. 23 These were the deputies [m] who were over Solomon's work: 550 who ruled over the people doing the work. [n]

Solomon's Other Activities [24] Pharaoh's daughter moved from the city of David [o] to the house that Solomon had built for her; [p] he then built the terraces. [q]
25 Three times a year Solomon offered •burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings on the altar he had built for the LORD, and he burned incense with them in the LORD's presence. [r] So he completed the temple. [s] 26 King Solomon put together a fleet of ships at Ezion-geber, [t] which is near Eloth on the shore of the •Red Sea in the land of Edom. 27 With the fleet, Hiram sent his servants, experienced seamen, along with Solomon's servants. 28 They went to Ophir [u] and acquired gold there — 16 tons [D] — and delivered it to Solomon. [v]

The Queen of Sheba

10 The queen of Sheba [a] heard about Solomon's fame [b] connected with the name of •Yahweh and came to test him with difficult questions. [c] 2 She came to Jerusalem with a very large entourage, with camels bearing [d] spices, gold in great abundance, and precious stones. [e] She came to Solomon and spoke to him about everything that was on her mind. 3 So Solomon answered all her questions; nothing was too difficult for the king to explain to her. 4 When the queen of Sheba observed all of Solomon's wisdom, the palace he had built, [f] 5 the food at his table, [g] his servants' residence, his attendants' service and their attire, his cupbearers, and the •burnt offerings he offered at the LORD's temple, it took her breath away.

6 She said to the king, "The report I heard in my own country about your words and about your wisdom is true. 7 But I didn't believe the reports until I came and saw with my own eyes. Indeed, I was not even told half. Your wisdom and prosperity far exceed the report I heard. [h] 8 How happy are your men. [i] How happy are these servants of yours, who always stand in your presence hearing your wisdom. [j] 9 May Yahweh your God be praised! He delighted in you and put you on the throne of Israel, [k] because of the LORD's eternal love for Israel. [l] He has made you king to carry out justice and righteousness." [m]

10 Then she gave the king four and a half tons [A] of gold, [n] a great quantity of spices, and precious stones. Never again did such a quantity of spices arrive as those the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon.

11 In addition, Hiram's fleet that carried gold from Ophir brought from Ophir a large quantity of almug [o] wood and precious stones. [p] 12 The king made the almug wood into steps for the LORD's temple and the king's palace and into lyres and harps for the singers. Never before had such almug wood come, and the like has not been seen again even to this very day.

13 King Solomon gave the queen of Sheba her every desire — whatever she asked — besides what he had given her out of his royal bounty. Then she, along with her servants, returned to her own country. [q]

Solomon's Wealth

14 The weight [r] of gold that came to Solomon annually was 25 tons, [B] 15 besides what came from merchants, [s] traders' merchandise, and all the Arabian kings and governors of the land. [t]

16 King Solomon made 200 large shields of hammered gold; 15 pounds [C] of gold went into each shield. 17 He made 300 small shields of hammered gold; about four pounds [D] of gold went into each shield. The king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. [u]

18 The king also made a large ivory throne and overlaid it with fine gold. 19 The throne had six steps; there was a rounded top at the back of the throne, armrests on either side of the seat, and two lions standing beside the armrests. 20 Twelve lions were standing there on the six steps, one at each end. Nothing like it had ever been made in any other kingdom.

21 All of King Solomon's drinking cups were gold, and all the utensils of the House of the Forest of Lebanon [v] were pure gold. [w] There was no silver, since it was considered as nothing in Solomon's time, 22 for the king had ships of Tarshish [x] at sea with Hiram's fleet, and once every three years the ships of Tarshish would arrive bearing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks. [E, y]

23 King Solomon surpassed all the kings of the world in riches and in wisdom. [z] 24 The whole world wanted an audience with Solomon to hear the wisdom that God had put in his heart. [a] 25 Every man would bring his annual tribute: items [F] of silver and gold, clothing, weapons, [G] spices, and horses and mules. [b]

26 Solomon accumulated 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen [c] and stationed them in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. [d] 27 The king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stones, [e] and he made cedar [f] as abundant as sycamore in the Judean foothills. 28 Solomon's horses were imported from Egypt and Kue. [g] The king's traders bought them from Kue at the going price. [h] 29 A chariot was imported from Egypt for 15 pounds [H] of silver, and a horse for about four pounds. [I] In the same way, they exported them to all the kings of the Hittites and to the kings of Aram through their agents. [i]

Solomon's Unfaithfulness to God

11 King Solomon loved many foreign women in addition to Pharaoh's daughter: [a] Moabite, Ammonite, Edomite, Sidonian, and Hittite women [b] 2 from the nations that the LORD had told the Israelites about, "Do not intermarry with them, and they must not intermarry with you, because they will turn you away from Me to their gods." [c] Solomon was deeply attached to these women and loved them. 3 He had 700 wives who were princesses and 300
concubines, [d] and they turned his heart away from the LORD. [e]

4 When Solomon was old, his wives seduced him to follow other gods. He was not completely devoted to •Yahweh his God, as his father David had been. [f] 5 Solomon followed •Ashtoreth , [g] the goddess of the Sidonians, and •Milcom , [h] the detestable idol of the Ammonites. [i] 6 Solomon did what was evil in the LORD's sight, and unlike his father David, he did not completely follow Yahweh.

7 At that time, Solomon built a •high place [j] for Chemosh, [k] the detestable idol of Moab, and for Milcom, [A, l] the detestable idol of the Ammonites, on the hill across from Jerusalem. [m] 8 He did the same for all his foreign wives, who were burning incense and offering sacrifices to their gods.

9 The LORD was angry with Solomon, because his heart had turned away from Yahweh, the God of Israel, who had appeared to him twice. [n] 10 He had commanded him about this, so that he would not follow other gods, but Solomon did not do what the LORD had commanded. [o]

11 Then the LORD said to Solomon, "Since you have done this [B] and did not keep My covenant and My statutes, which I commanded you, I will tear the kingdom away from you and give it to your servant. [p] 12 However, I will not do it during your lifetime because of your father David; [q] I will tear it out of your son's hand. 13 Yet I will not tear the entire kingdom away from him. I will give one tribe to your son [r] because of my servant David and because of Jerusalem that I chose."

Solomon's Enemies

14 So the LORD raised up [s] Hadad the Edomite as an enemy against Solomon.
He was of the royal family in Edom. 15 Earlier, when David was in Edom, Joab, the commander of the army, had gone to bury the dead and had struck down every male in Edom. 16 For Joab and all Israel had remained there six months, until he had killed every male in Edom. [t] 17 Hadad fled to Egypt, along with some Edomites from his father's servants. At the time Hadad was a small boy. 18 Hadad and his men set out from Midian and went to Paran. [u] They took men with them from Paran and went to Egypt, to Pharaoh king of Egypt, [v] who gave Hadad a house, ordered that he be given food, and gave him land. 19 Pharaoh liked Hadad so much that he gave him a wife, the sister of his own wife, Queen Tahpenes. 20 Tahpenes' sister gave birth to Hadad's son Genubath. Tahpenes herself weaned him in Pharaoh's palace, and Genubath lived there along with Pharaoh's sons.

21 When Hadad heard in Egypt that David rested with his fathers and that Joab, the commander of the army, was dead, Hadad said to Pharaoh, "Let me leave, so I can go to my own country."

22 But Pharaoh asked him, "What do you lack here with me for you to want to go back to your own country? "

"Nothing," he replied, "but please let me leave."

23 God raised up Rezon son of Eliada as an enemy [w] against Solomon. Rezon had fled from his master Hadadezer king of Zobah [x] 24 and gathered men to himself. He became captain of a raiding party when David killed the Zobaites. He [y] went to Damascus, [z] lived there, and became king in Damascus. 25 Rezon was Israel's enemy throughout Solomon's reign, adding to the trouble Hadad had caused. He ruled over Aram, [a, b] but he loathed Israel.

26 Now Solomon's servant, [c] Jeroboam son of Nebat, was an Ephraimite from Zeredah. His widowed mother's name was Zeruah. Jeroboam rebelled [d] against Solomon, 27 and this is the reason he rebelled against the king: Solomon had built the supporting terraces [e] and repaired the opening in the wall of the city of his father David. 28 Now the man Jeroboam was capable, and Solomon noticed the young man because he was getting things done. So he appointed him over the entire labor force of the house of Joseph. [f]

29 During that time, the prophet Ahijah the Shilonite [g] met Jeroboam on the road as Jeroboam came out of Jerusalem. Now Ahijah had wrapped himself with a new cloak, and the two of them were alone in the open field. 30 Then Ahijah took hold of the new cloak he had on, tore it into 12 pieces, [h] 31 and said to Jeroboam, "Take 10 pieces for yourself, for this is what the LORD God of Israel says: 'I am about to tear the kingdom out of Solomon's hand. I will give you 10 tribes, 32 but one tribe will remain his because of my servant David [i] and because of Jerusalem, the city I chose out of all the tribes of Israel. [j] 33 For they have abandoned Me; they have bowed the knee to Ashtoreth, the goddess of the Sidonians, to Chemosh, the god of Moab, and to Milcom, the god of the Ammonites. [k] They have not walked in My ways to do what is right in My eyes and to carry out My statutes and My judgments as his father David did. [l]

34 “ ‘However, I will not take the whole kingdom from his hand but will let him be ruler all the days of his life because of My servant David, whom I chose and who kept My commands and My statutes. 35 I will take 10 tribes of the kingdom from his son’s hand and give them to you. 36 I will give one tribe [m] to his son, [n] so that My servant David will always have a lamp before Me [o] in Jerusalem, the city I chose for Myself to put My name there. [p] 37 I will appoint you, [q] and you will reign as king [r] over all you want, [s] and you will be king over Israel.
38 “ ‘After that, if you obey all I command you, walk in My ways, and do what is right in My sight in order to keep My statutes and My commands as My servant David did, I will be with you. [t] I will build you a lasting dynasty just as I built for David, [u] and I will give you Israel. 39 I will humble David’s descendants, because of their unfaithfulness, but not forever.’ ” [v, w] 40 Therefore, Solomon tried to kill Jeroboam, [x] but he fled to Egypt, [y] to Shishak king of Egypt, [z] where he remained until Solomon’s death.

Solomon’s Death

41 The rest of the events of Solomon’s reign, along with all his accomplishments and his wisdom, are written in the Book of Solomon’s Events.
[a] 42 The length of Solomon’s reign in Jerusalem over all Israel totaled 40 years. [b]
43 Solomon rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of his father David.
His son Rehoboam [c] became king in his place. [d]

The Kingdom Divided

12 Then Rehoboam [a] went to Shechem, [b] for all Israel [c] had gone to Shechem to make him king. [d] 2 When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard about it, for he was still in Egypt where he had fled from King Solomon's presence, [e] Jeroboam stayed in Egypt. [f] 3 They summoned him, and Jeroboam and the whole assembly of Israel came and spoke to Rehoboam: 4 "Your father made our yoke difficult. [g]
You, therefore, lighten your father's harsh service and the heavy yoke he put on us, [h] and we will serve you."

5 Rehoboam replied, "Go home for three days and then return to me." So the people left. 6 Then King Rehoboam consulted with the elders [i] who had served his father Solomon when he was alive, asking, "How do you advise me to respond to these people? "

7 They replied, "Today if you will be a servant to these people and serve them, and if you respond to them by speaking kind words to them, they will be your servants forever." [j]

8 But he rejected the advice of the elders who had advised him [k] and consulted with the young men who had grown up with him and served him. 9 He asked them, "What message do you advise that we send back to these people who said to me, 'Lighten the yoke your father put on us'? "

10 Then the young men who had grown up with him told him, "This is what you should say to these people who said to you, 'Your father made our yoke heavy, but you, make it lighter on us! ' This is what you should tell them: 'My little finger is thicker than my father's loins! 11 Although my father burdened you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with barbed whips.' " [A, l]

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam on the third day, as the king had ordered: "Return to me on the third day." 13 Then the king answered the people harshly. He rejected the advice the elders had given him 14 and spoke to them according to the young men's advice: "My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to your yoke; my father disciplined you with whips, but I will discipline you with barbed whips." [B]

15 The king did not listen to the people, because this turn of events came from the LORD [m] to carry out His word, which the LORD had spoken through Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam son of Nebat. [n] 16 When all Israel saw that the king had not listened to them, the people answered him:

What portion do we have in David?
We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse. [o]
Israel, return to your tents;

David, now look after your own house! [p]
So Israel went to their tents, [17] but Rehoboam reigned over the Israelites living in the cities of Judah. [q]

[18] Then King Rehoboam sent Adoram, [r, s] who was in charge of forced labor, but all Israel stoned him to death. King Rehoboam managed to get into the chariot and flee to Jerusalem. [19] Israel is in rebellion against the house of David until today. [t]

Rehoboam in Jerusalem

20 When all Israel heard that Jeroboam had come back, [u] they summoned him to the assembly and made him king over all Israel. [v] No one followed the house of David except the tribe of Judah alone. [w] 21 When Rehoboam arrived in Jerusalem, [x] he mobilized 180,000 choice warriors from the entire house of Judah and the tribe of Benjamin [y] to fight against the house of Israel to restore the kingdom to Rehoboam son of Solomon. 22 But a revelation from God came to Shemaiah, [z] the man of God: 23 "Say to Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah, to the whole house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people, 24 'This is what the LORD says: You are not to march up and fight against your brothers, the Israelites. Each of you must return home, for I have done this.' " [a]

So they listened to what the LORD said and went back as He had told them.

Jeroboam's Idolatry

25 Jeroboam built Shechem [b] in the hill country of Ephraim and lived there.
From there he went out and built Penuel. [c] 26 Jeroboam said to himself, "The way things are going now, the kingdom might return to the house of David. [d] 27 If these people regularly go to offer sacrifices in the LORD's temple in Jerusalem, [e] the heart of these people will return to their lord, Rehoboam king of Judah. They will murder me and go back to the king of Judah." 28 So the king sought advice.

Then he made two golden calves, and he said to the people, "Going to Jerusalem is too difficult for you. Israel, here is your God [C] who brought you out of the land of Egypt." [f] 29 He set up one in Bethel, [g] and put the other in Dan. [h] 30 This led to sin; [i] the people walked in procession before one of the calves all the way to Dan. [j, k]

31 Jeroboam also built shrines on the •high places [l] and set up priests from every class of people who were not Levites. [m] 32 Jeroboam made a festival in the eighth month on the fifteenth day of the month, like the festival in Judah. [n]
He offered sacrifices on the altar; he made this offering in Bethel to sacrifice to the calves he had set up. He also stationed the priests in Bethel for the high places he had set up. [o] 33 He offered sacrifices on [D] the altar he had set up in Bethel on the fifteenth day of the eighth month. He chose this month on his own. [p] He made a festival for the Israelites, offered sacrifices on the altar, and burned incense. [q]

Judgment on Jeroboam

13 A man of God [a] came from Judah to Bethel by a revelation from the LORD while Jeroboam was standing beside the altar to burn incense. [b] 2 The man of God cried out against the altar by a revelation from the LORD: “Altar, altar, this is what the LORD says, ‘A son will be born to the house of David, named Josiah, and he will sacrifice on you the priests of the •high places who are burning incense on you. Human bones will be burned on you.’ ” [c] 3 He gave a sign [d] that day. He said, “This is the sign that the LORD has spoken: ‘The altar will now be ripped apart, and the ashes that are on it will be poured out.’ ” [e]

4 When the king heard the word that the man of God had cried out against the altar at Bethel, Jeroboam stretched out his hand from the altar and said, “Arrest him! ” But the hand he stretched out against him withered, and he could not pull it back to himself. 5 The altar was ripped apart, and the ashes poured from the altar, according to the sign that the man of God had given by the word of the LORD.

6 Then the king responded to the man of God, “Plead for the favor of the LORD your God and pray for me [f] so that my hand may be restored to me.” So the man of God pleaded for the favor of the LORD, and the king’s hand was restored to him and became as it had been at first.

7 Then the king declared to the man of God, “Come home with me, refresh yourself, and I’ll give you a reward.” [g]

8 But the man of God replied, “If you were to give me half your house, [h] I still wouldn’t go with you, and I wouldn’t eat bread or drink water in this place, 9 for this is what I was commanded by the word of the LORD: [i] ‘You must not eat bread or drink water or go back the way you came.’ ” 10 So he went another way; he did not go back by the way he had come to Bethel.

The Old Prophet and the Man of God 11 Now a certain old prophet was living in Bethel. [j] His son [k] came and told him all the deeds that the man of God had done that day in Bethel. His sons also told their father the words that he had spoken to the king. [l] 12 Then their father said to them, “Which way did he go? ”
His sons had seen [m] the way taken by the man of God who had come from Judah. 13 Then he said to his sons, “Saddle the donkey for me.” So they saddled the donkey for him, and he got on it. 14 He followed the man of God and found him sitting under an oak tree. He asked him, “Are you the man of God who came from Judah? ”

“I am,” he said.

15 Then he said to him, “Come home with me and eat bread.”

16 But he answered, “I cannot go back with you, eat bread, or drink water with you in this place, 17 for a message came to me by the word of the Lord: ‘You must not eat bread or drink water there [n] or go back by the way you came.’ ” 18 He said to him, “I am also a prophet [o] like you. An angel spoke to me by the word of the Lord: ‘Bring him back with you to your house so that he may eat bread and drink water.’ ” The old prophet deceived him, [p] 19 and the man of God went back with him, ate bread in his house, and drank water.
20 While they were sitting at the table, the word of the Lord came to the prophet who had brought him back, 21 and the prophet cried out to the man of God who had come from Judah, “This is what the Lord says: ‘Because you rebelled against the command of the Lord and did not keep the command that the Lord your God commanded you — 22 but you went back and ate bread and drank water in the place that He said to you, “Do not eat bread and do not drink water” — [q] your corpse will never reach the grave of your fathers.’ ” [r] 23 So after he had eaten bread and after he had drunk, the old prophet saddled the donkey for the prophet he had brought back. 24 When he left, [s] a lion attacked [A] him along the way and killed him. [t] His corpse was thrown on the road, and the donkey was standing beside it; the lion was standing beside the corpse too.
25 There were men passing by who saw the corpse thrown on the road and the lion standing beside it, and they went and spoke about it in the city where the old prophet lived. 26 When the prophet who had brought him back from his way heard about it, he said, “He is the man of God who disobeyed the command of the Lord. The Lord has given him to the lion, and it has mauled and killed him, according to the word of the Lord that He spoke to him.” 27 Then the old prophet instructed his sons, “Saddle the donkey for me.” They saddled it, [u] 28 and he went and found the corpse of the man of God thrown on the road with the donkey and the lion standing beside the corpse. The lion had not eaten the corpse or mauled the donkey. 29 So the prophet lifted the corpse of the man of God and laid it on the donkey and brought it back. The old prophet came into the city to mourn and bury him. 30 Then he laid the corpse in his own grave, [v] and they mourned over him: “Oh, my brother! ” [w] 31 After he had buried him, he said to his sons, “When I die, you must bury me in the grave where the man of God is buried; lay my bones beside his bones, 32 for the word that he cried out by a revelation from the Lord against the altar in Bethel [x] and against all the shrines of the high places [y] in the cities of Samaria [z] is certain to happen.” [a]

33 After all this [b] Jeroboam did not repent [c] of his evil way but again set up priests for the high places from every class of people. [d] He ordained whoever so desired it, and they became priests of the high places. [e] 34 This was the sin that caused the house of Jeroboam to be wiped out and annihilated from the face of the earth. [f]

Disaster on the House of Jeroboam

14 At that time Abijah son of Jeroboam became sick. [a] 2 Jeroboam said to his wife, “Go disguise yourself, [b] so they won’t know that you’re Jeroboam’s wife, and go to Shiloh. [c] Ahijah the prophet is there; it was he who told about me becoming king over this people. [d] 3 Take with you 10 loaves of bread, some cakes, and a jar of honey, [e] and go to him. He will tell you what will happen to the boy.”

4 Jeroboam’s wife did that: she went to Shiloh and arrived at Ahijah’s house. Ahijah could not see; his gaze was fixed [A] due to his age. [f] 5 But the Lord had said to Ahijah, “Jeroboam’s wife is coming soon to ask you about her son, for he is sick. You are to say such and such to her. When she arrives, she will be disguised.” [g]

6 When Ahijah heard the sound of her feet entering the door, he said, “Come in, wife of Jeroboam! Why are you disguised? [h] I have bad news for you. 7 Go tell Jeroboam, ‘This is what the Lord God of Israel says: I raised you up from among the people, appointed you ruler over My people Israel, 8 tore the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it to you. [i] But you were not like My servant David, who kept My commands and followed Me with all of his heart, doing only what is right in My eyes. 9 You behaved more wickedly than all who were before you. [j] In order to provoke Me, you have proceeded to make for yourself other gods and cast images, [k] but you have flung Me behind your back.

[l] 10 Because of all this, I am about to bring disaster on the house of Jeroboam:
I will eliminate all of Jeroboam’s males, [B]
both slave and free, [C] in Israel; I will sweep away the house of Jeroboam as one sweeps away dung until it is all gone! [m] 11 Anyone who belongs to Jeroboam and dies in the city,
the dogs will eat,
and anyone who dies in the field,
the birds of the sky will eat, [n]
for the Lord has said it! ’

12 “As for you, get up and go to your house. When your feet enter the city, the boy will die. [o] 13 All Israel will mourn for him and bury him. He alone out of Jeroboam’s house will be put in the family tomb, because out of the house of Jeroboam the Lord God of Israel found something good only in him. [p] 14 The Lord will raise up for Himself a king over Israel, who will eliminate the house of Jeroboam. [q] This is the day, yes, [D] even today! 15 For the Lord will strike

Israel and the people will shake as a reed shakes in water. He will uproot Israel from this good soil that He gave to their ancestors. [r] He will scatter them beyond the Euphrates [s] because they made their •Asherah poles, provoking the LORD. [t]
16 He will give up Israel because of Jeroboam's sins that he committed and caused Israel to commit." [u]

17 Then Jeroboam's wife got up and left and went to Tirzah. [v] As she was crossing the threshold of the house, the boy died. 18 He was buried, and all Israel mourned for him, according to the word of the LORD He had spoken through His servant Ahijah the prophet. [w]

19 As for the rest of the events of Jeroboam's reign, how he waged war [x] and how he reigned, note that they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. 20 The length of Jeroboam's reign was 22 years. He rested with his fathers, and his son Nadab became king in his place. [y]

Judah's King Rehoboam

21 Now Rehoboam, Solomon's son, reigned in Judah. [z] Rehoboam was 41 years old when he became king; he reigned 17 years in Jerusalem, the city where •Yahweh had chosen from all the tribes of Israel to put His name. [a] Rehoboam's mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. [b]

22 Judah did what was evil in the LORD's eyes. [c] They provoked Him to jealous anger [d] more than all that their ancestors had done with the sins they committed. 23 They also built for themselves •high places, [e] sacred pillars, [f] and Asherah poles on every high hill and under every green tree; 24 there were even male cult prostitutes in the land. [g] They imitated all the detestable practices of the nations the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites. [h]

25 In the fifth year of King Rehoboam, Shishak king of Egypt [i] went to war against Jerusalem. [j] 26 He seized the treasuries of the LORD's temple and the treasuries of the royal palace. He took everything. He took all the gold shields that Solomon had made. [k] 27 King Rehoboam made bronze shields in their place and committed them into the care of the captains of the royal escorts [E, l] who guarded the entrance to the king's palace. 28 Whenever the king entered the LORD's temple, the royal escorts would carry the shields, then they would take them back to the royal escorts' armory. [m]

29 The rest of the events of Rehoboam's reign, [n] along with all his accomplishments, are written about in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. 30 There was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam throughout their reigns. [o] 31 Rehoboam rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. His mother’s name was Naamah the Ammonite. [p] His son Abijam [q, r] became king in his place.

Judah’s King Abijam

15 In the eighteenth year of Israel's King Jeroboam son of Nebat, Abijam became king over Judah 2 and reigned three years in Jerusalem. [a] His mother's name was Maacah [b] daughter [c] of Abishalom.
3 Abijam walked in all the sins his father before him had committed, [d] and he was not completely devoted to the LORD his God as his ancestor David had been. [e] 4 But because of David, the LORD his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem to raise up his son after him and to establish Jerusalem. [f] 5 For David did what was right in the LORD's eyes, and he did not turn aside from anything He had commanded him all the days of his life, [g] except in the matter of Uriah [h] the Hittite.
6 There had been war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam all the days of Rehoboam's life. [i] 7 The rest of the events of Abijam's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. [j] There was also war between Abijam and Jeroboam. [k] 8 Abijam rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. [l] His son Asa became king in his place. [m]

Judah's King Asa

9 In the twentieth year of Israel's King Jeroboam, [n] Asa became king of Judah 10 and reigned 41 years in Jerusalem. His grandmother's [A] name was Maacah [o] daughter [p] of Abishalom.
11 Asa did what was right in the LORD's eyes, as his ancestor David had done.
[q] 12 He banished the male cult prostitutes [r] from the land and removed all of the idols that his fathers had made. [s] 13 He also [t] removed his grandmother [B] Maacah from being queen mother because she had made an obscene image of •Asherah . Asa chopped down her obscene image and burned it [u] in the Kidron Valley. [v] 14 The •high places were not taken away; [w] but Asa's heart was completely devoted to the LORD his entire life. [x] 15 He brought his father's consecrated gifts and his own consecrated gifts into the LORD's temple: silver, gold, and utensils. [y] 16 There was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel throughout their reigns. [z] 17 Israel's King Baasha went to war against Judah. [a] He built Ramah [b] in order to deny anyone access to Judah's King Asa. 18 So Asa withdrew all the silver and gold that remained in the treasuries of the LORD's temple [c] and the treasuries of the royal palace and put it into the hands of his servants. Then King Asa sent them to Ben-hadad [d] son of Tabrimmon son of Hezion king of Aram who lived in Damascus, [e] saying, 19 "There is a treaty between me and you, between my father and your father. [f] Look, I have sent you a gift of silver and gold. Go and break your treaty with Baasha king of Israel [g] so that he will withdraw from me.”

20 Ben-hadad listened to King Asa and sent the commanders of his armies against the cities of Israel. He attacked Ijon, [h] Dan, [i] Abel-beth-maacah, [j] all Chinnereth, [k] and the whole land of Naphtali. [l] 21 When Baasha heard about it, he quit building Ramah and stayed in Tirzah. [m] 22 Then King Asa gave a command to everyone without exception in Judah, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and the timbers Baasha had built it with. Then King Asa built Geba [n] of Benjamin and Mizpah [o] with them.

23 The rest of all the events of Asa’s reign, [p] along with all his might, all his accomplishments, and the cities he built, are written in the Historical Record of Judah’s Kings. [q] But in his old age he developed a disease in his feet. [r] 24 Then Asa rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of his ancestor David. [s] His son Jehoshaphat [t] became king in his place.

Israel’s King Nadab

25 Nadab son of Jeroboam [u] became king over Israel in the second year of Judah’s King Asa; he reigned over Israel two years. 26 Nadab did what was evil in the LORD’s sight and followed the example of his father and the sin he had caused Israel to commit. [v]

27 Then Baasha [w] son of Ahijah of the house of Issachar conspired against Nadab, and Baasha struck him down at Gibbethon [x] of the Philistines while Nadab and all Israel were besieging Gibbethon. 28 In the third year of Judah’s King Asa, [y] Baasha killed Nadab [z] and reigned in his place.

29 When Baasha became king, he struck down the entire house of Jeroboam. [a]
He did not leave Jeroboam any survivors but [C] destroyed his family according to the word of the LORD He had spoken through His servant Ahijah the Shilonite. [b] 30 This was because Jeroboam had provoked [D] the LORD God of Israel by the sins he had committed and had caused Israel to commit. [c]

31 The rest of the events of Nadab’s reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Israel’s Kings. [d] 32 There was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel throughout their reigns. [e]

Israel’s King Baasha

33 In the third year of Judah’s King Asa, Baasha son of Ahijah became king over all Israel and reigned in Tirzah [f] 24 years. 34 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight and followed the example of Jeroboam and the sin he had caused Israel to commit. [g]

16 Now the word of the LORD came to Jehu [a] son of Hanani [b] against Baasha:
2 “Because I raised you up from the dust [c] and made you ruler over My people Israel, [d] but you have walked in the way of Jeroboam and have caused My people Israel to sin, [e] provoking Me with their sins, 3 take note: I will sweep away Baasha and his house, and I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat: [f]

4 Anyone who belongs to Baasha and dies in the city,
the dogs will eat,
and anyone who is his and dies in the field,
the birds of the sky will eat.” [g]

5 The rest of the events of Baasha’s reign, along with all his accomplishments and might, are written in the Historical Record of Israel’s Kings. [h] 6 Baasha rested with his fathers and was buried in Tirzah. His son Elah became king in his place. 7 Through the prophet Jehu [i] son of Hanani the word of the LORD also came against Baasha and against his house because of all the evil he had done in the LORD’s sight, provoking Him with the work of his hands and being like the house of Jeroboam, and because Baasha had struck down the house of Jeroboam. [j]

Israel’s King Elah

8 In the twenty-sixth year of Judah’s King Asa, Elah son of Baasha became king over Israel and reigned in Tirzah [k] two years.
9 His servant Zimri, [l] commander of half his chariots, conspired against him while Elah was in Tirzah getting drunk [m] in the house of Arza, who was in charge of the household [n] at Tirzah. 10 In the twenty-seventh year of Judah’s King Asa, Zimri went in, struck Elah down, killing him. Then Zimri became king in his place. [o]
11 When he became king, as soon as he was seated on his throne, Zimri struck down the entire house of Baasha. He did not leave a single male, [A, p] including his kinsmen and his friends. 12 So Zimri destroyed the entire house of Baasha, according to the word of the LORD He had spoken against Baasha through Jehu the prophet. [q] 13 This happened because of all the sins of Baasha and those of his son Elah, which they committed and caused Israel to commit, provoking the LORD God of Israel [r] with their worthless idols. [s] 14 The rest of the events of Elah’s reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Israel’s Kings. [t]

Israel's King Zimri

15 In the twenty-seventh year of Judah's King Asa, Zimri became king for seven days in Tirzah. [u] Now the troops were encamped against Gibbethon of the Philistines. [v] 16 When these troops heard that Zimri had not only conspired but had also struck down the king, then all Israel made Omri, the army commander, king over Israel that very day in the camp. 17 Omri along with all Israel marched up from Gibbethon and besieged Tirzah. [w] 18 When Zimri saw that the city was captured, he entered the citadel of the royal palace and burned it down over himself. He died 19 because of the sin he committed by doing what was evil in the LORD's sight and by following the example of Jeroboam and the sin he caused Israel to commit. [x]

20 The rest of the events of Zimri's reign, along with the conspiracy that he instigated, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. 21 At that time the people of Israel were divided: half the people followed Tibni son of Ginath, to make him king, and half followed Omri. 22 However, the people who followed Omri proved stronger than those who followed Tibni son of Ginath. So Tibni died and Omri became king.

Israel's King Omri

23 In the thirty-first year of Judah's King Asa, Omri became king over Israel and reigned 12 years. He reigned six years in Tirzah, [y] 24 then he bought the hill of Samaria [z] from Shemer for 150 pounds [B] of silver, and he built up the hill. He named the city he built Samaria [a] based on the name Shemer, the owner of the hill.

25 Omri did what was evil in the LORD's sight; he did more evil than all who were before him. [b] 26 He followed the example of Jeroboam son of Nebat and in his sins that he caused Israel to commit, provoking the LORD God of Israel with their worthless idols. [c] 27 The rest of the events of Omri's reign, along with his accomplishments and the might he exercised, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. 28 Omri rested with his fathers and was buried in Samaria. His son Ahab became king in his place.

Israel's King Ahab

29 Ahab son of Omri became king over Israel in the thirty-eighth year of Judah's King Asa; Ahab son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria 22 years.
30 But Ahab son of Omri did what was evil in the LORD's sight more than all who were before him. [d] 31 Then, as if following the sin of Jeroboam son of Nebat were a trivial matter, he married Jezebel, [e] the daughter of Ethbaal king of the Sidonians, [f] and then proceeded to serve •Baal and worship him. [g] 32 He set up an altar for Baal in the temple of Baal [h] that he had built in Samaria. 33 Ahab also made an •Asherah pole. [i] Ahab did more to provoke the LORD God of Israel than all the kings of Israel who were before him. [j]

34 During his reign, Hiel the Bethelite built Jericho. At the cost of Abiram his firstborn, he laid its foundation, and at the cost of Segub his youngest, he set up its gates, according to the word of the LORD He had spoken through Joshua son of Nun. [k]

Elijah Announces Famine

17 Now Elijah [a] the Tishbite, from the Gilead settlers, [b, c] said to Ahab, “As the LORD God of Israel lives, [d] I stand before Him, and there will be no dew or rain during these years except by my command! ” [e]

2 Then a revelation from the LORD came to him: 3 “Leave here, turn eastward, and hide [f] yourself at the •Wadi Cherith where it enters the Jordan. 4 You are to drink from the wadi. I have commanded the ravens [g] to provide for you there.”

5 So he did what the LORD commanded. Elijah left and lived by the Wadi Cherith where it enters the Jordan. 6 The ravens kept bringing him bread and meat in the morning and in the evening, [h] and he drank from the wadi. 7 After a while, the wadi dried up because there had been no rain in the land.

Elijah and the Widow

8 Then the word of the LORD came to him: 9 “Get up, go to Zarephath [i] that belongs to Sidon and stay there. Look, I have commanded a woman who is a widow to provide for you there.” 10 So Elijah got up and went to Zarephath.
When he arrived at the city gate, there was a widow woman gathering wood.
Elijah called to her and said, “Please bring me a little water in a cup and let me drink.” [j] 11 As she went to get it, he called to her and said, “Please bring me a piece of bread in your hand.”

12 But she said, “As the LORD your God lives, [k] I don’t have anything baked — only a handful of flour in the jar and a bit of oil [l] in the jug. Just now, I am gathering a couple of sticks in order to go prepare it for myself and my son so we can eat it and die.” [m]

13 Then Elijah said to her, “Don’t be afraid; go and do as you have said. But first make me a small loaf from it and bring it out to me. Afterward, you may make some for yourself and your son, 14 for this is what the LORD God of Israel says, ‘The flour jar will not become empty and the oil jug will not run dry until the day the LORD sends rain on the surface of the land.” [n]

15 So she proceeded to do according to the word of Elijah. Then the woman, Elijah, and her household ate for many days. [o] 16 The flour jar did not become empty, and the oil jug did not run dry, according to the word of the LORD He had spoken through [A] Elijah.

The Widow’s Son Raised

17 After this, the son of the woman who owned the house became ill. His illness became very severe until no breath remained in him. [p] 18 She said to Elijah, “Man of God, [q] what do we have in common? [r] Have you come to remind me of my •guilt [s] and to kill my son? ”

19 But Elijah said to her, “Give me your son.” So he took him from her arms, brought him up to the upper room [t] where he was staying, and laid him on his own bed. 20 Then he cried out to the LORD [u] and said, “My LORD God, have You also brought tragedy on the widow I am staying with by killing her son? ” 21 Then he stretched himself out over the boy three times. [v] He cried out to the LORD and said, “My LORD God, please let this boy’s life return to him! ”

22 So the LORD listened to Elijah’s voice, and the boy’s life returned to him, and he lived. [w] 23 Then Elijah took the boy, brought him down from the upper room into the house, and gave him to his mother. [x] Elijah said, “Look, your son is alive.”

24 Then the woman said to Elijah, “Now I know you are a man of God [y] and the Lord’s word from your mouth is true.” [z]

Elijah's Message to Ahab

18 After a long time, the word of the LORD [a] came to Elijah in the third year:
[b] "Go and present yourself to Ahab. [c] I will send rain on the surface of the land." 2 So Elijah went to present himself to Ahab.

The famine was severe in Samaria. [d] 3 Ahab called for Obadiah, who was in charge of the palace. [e] Obadiah was a man who greatly •feared the LORD [f] 4 and took 100 prophets and hid them, 50 men to a cave, and provided them with food and water when Jezebel [g] slaughtered the LORD's prophets. [h] 5 Ahab said to Obadiah, "Go throughout the land to every spring of water and to every •wadi .
Perhaps we'll find grass so we can keep the horses and mules alive and not have to destroy any cattle." [i] 6 They divided the land between them in order to cover it. Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went the other way by himself.

7 While Obadiah was walking along the road, Elijah suddenly met him. [j]
When Obadiah recognized him, he fell with his face to the ground and said, "Is it you, my lord Elijah? "

8 "It is I," he replied. "Go tell your lord, 'Elijah is here! ' "

9 But Obadiah said, "What sin have I committed, [k] that you are handing your servant over to Ahab to put me to death? 10 As the LORD your God lives, there is no nation or kingdom where my lord has not sent someone to search for you.
When they said, 'He is not here,' he made that kingdom or nation swear they had not found you.

11 "Now you say, 'Go tell your lord, "Elijah is here! " ' 12 But when I leave you, the Spirit of the LORD may carry you off [l] to some place I don't know. Then when I go report to Ahab and he doesn't find you, he will kill me. But I, your servant, have feared the LORD from my youth. 13 Wasn't it reported to my lord what I did when Jezebel slaughtered the LORD's prophets? I hid 100 of the prophets of the LORD, 50 men to a cave, and I provided them with food and water. 14 Now you say, 'Go tell your lord, "Elijah is here! " ' He will kill me! "

15 Then Elijah said, "As the LORD of •Hosts lives, [m] before whom I stand, today I will present myself to Ahab."

16 Obadiah went to meet Ahab and told him. Then Ahab went to meet Elijah.
17 When Ahab saw Elijah, Ahab said to him, "Is that you, you destroyer of Israel? " [n]

18 He replied, "I have not destroyed Israel, but you and your father's house have, because you have abandoned the LORD's commands [o] and followed the •Baals . [p] 19 Now summon all Israel to meet me at Mount Carmel, [q] along with the 450 prophets of Baal and the 400 prophets of •Asherah [r] who eat at Jezebel's table."

Elijah at Mount Carmel

20 So Ahab summoned all the Israelites and gathered the prophets at Mount Carmel. 21 Then Elijah approached all the people and said, “How long will you hesitate between two opinions? [s] If •Yahweh is God, follow Him. But if Baal, follow him.” [t] But the people didn’t answer him a word.

22 Then Elijah said to the people, “I am the only remaining prophet of the LORD, [u] but Baal’s prophets are 450 men. 23 Let two bulls be given to us. They are to choose one bull for themselves, cut it in pieces, and place it on the wood but not light the fire. I will prepare the other bull and place it on the wood but not light the fire. 24 Then you call on the name of your god, and I will call on the name of Yahweh. [v] The God who answers with fire, He is God.”

All the people answered, “That sounds good.”

25 Then Elijah said to the prophets of Baal, “Since you are so numerous, choose for yourselves one bull and prepare it first. Then call on the name of your god but don’t light the fire.”

26 So they took the bull that he gave them, prepared it, and called on the name of Baal from morning until noon, saying, “Baal, answer us! ” But there was no sound; [w] no one answered. Then they danced, hobbling around the altar they had made.

27 At noon Elijah mocked them. He said, “Shout loudly, for he’s a god!
Maybe he’s thinking it over; maybe he has wandered away; [A] or maybe he’s on the road. Perhaps he’s sleeping and will wake up! ” [x] 28 They shouted loudly, and cut themselves [y] with knives and spears, according to their custom, until blood gushed over them. 29 All afternoon they kept on raving until the offering of the evening sacrifice, [z] but there was no sound; no one answered, no one paid attention. [a]

30 Then Elijah said to all the people, “Come near me.” So all the people approached him. Then he repaired the LORD’s altar that had been torn down: [b] 31 Elijah took 12 stones — according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom the word of the LORD had come, saying, “Israel will be your name” [c] — 32 and he built an altar [d] with the stones in the name of Yahweh.
Then he made a trench around the altar large enough to hold about four gallons.
[e,] [B] 33 Next, he arranged the wood, cut up the bull, and placed it on the wood.
He said, “Fill four water pots with water and pour it on the offering to be burned and on the wood.” 34 Then he said, “A second time! ” and they did it a second time. And then he said, “A third time! ” and they did it a third time. 35 So the water ran all around the altar; he even filled the trench with water.

36 At the time for offering the evening sacrifice, [f] Elijah the prophet approached the altar and said, “Yahweh, God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, [g] today let it be known [h] that You are God in Israel and I am Your servant, and that at Your word I have done all these things. 37 Answer me, LORD! Answer me so that this people will know that You, Yahweh, are God [i] and that You have turned their hearts back.”

38 Then Yahweh’s fire fell and consumed the •burnt offering, the wood, the stones, and the dust, and it licked up the water that was in the trench. 39 When all the people saw it, they fell facedown [j] and said, “Yahweh, He is God! Yahweh, He is God! ” [k]

40 Then Elijah ordered them, “Seize the prophets of Baal! [l] Do not let even one of them escape.” So they seized them, and Elijah brought them down to the Wadi Kishon [m] and slaughtered them there. [n] 41 Elijah said to Ahab, “Go up, eat and drink, for there is the sound of a rainstorm.” [o]

42 So Ahab went to eat and drink, but Elijah went up to the summit of Carmel. [p] He bowed down on the ground and put his face between his knees. [q] 43 Then he said to his servant, “Go up and look toward the sea.”

So he went up, looked, and said, “There’s nothing.”

Seven times Elijah said, “Go back.”

44 On the seventh [r] time, he reported, “There’s a cloud as small as a man’s hand coming from the sea.”

Then Elijah said, “Go and tell Ahab, ‘Get your chariot ready and go down so the rain doesn’t stop you.’ ”

45 In a little while, the sky grew dark with clouds and wind, and there was a downpour. So Ahab got in his chariot and went to Jezreel. [s] 46 The power of the LORD [t] was on Elijah, and he tucked his mantle under his belt [u] and ran ahead of Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel.

Elijah’s Journey to Horeb

19 Ahab told Jezebel [a] everything that Elijah had done [b] and how he had killed all the prophets with the sword. [c] 2 So Jezebel sent a messenger to Elijah, saying, "May the gods punish me and do so severely [d] if I don't make your life like the life of one of them by this time tomorrow! "

3 Then Elijah became afraid [e, f] and immediately ran for his life. [g] When he came to Beer-sheba [h] that belonged to Judah, he left his servant there, [i] 4 but he went on a day's journey into the wilderness. He sat down under a broom tree [j] and prayed that he might die. He said, "I have had enough! LORD, take my life, [k] for I'm no better than my fathers." 5 Then he lay down and slept under the broom tree.

Suddenly, an angel touched him. [l] The angel told him, "Get up and eat." 6 Then he looked, and there at his head was a loaf of bread baked over hot stones, and a jug of water. [m] So he ate and drank and lay down again. 7 Then the angel of the LORD [n] returned for a second time and touched him. He said, "Get up and eat, or the journey will be too much for you." 8 So he got up, ate, and drank. Then on the strength from that food, he walked 40 days and 40 nights [o] to Horeb, the mountain of God. [p] 9 He entered a cave [q] there and spent the night.

Elijah's Encounter with the LORD Then the word of the LORD came to him, and He said to him, "What are you doing here, Elijah? " [r]

10 He replied, "I have been very zealous [s] for the LORD God of •Hosts , but the Israelites have abandoned Your covenant, [t] torn down Your altars, [u] and killed Your prophets [v] with the sword. I alone am left, [w] and they are looking for me to take my life." [x]

11 Then He said, "Go out and stand on the mountain in the LORD's presence." [y]

At that moment, the LORD passed by. [z] A great and mighty wind [a] was tearing at the mountains and was shattering cliffs before the LORD, but the LORD was not in the wind. After the wind there was an earthquake, [b] but the LORD was not in the earthquake. 12 After the earthquake there was a fire, [c] but the LORD was not in the fire. And after the fire there was a voice, a soft whisper. [d] 13 When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his mantle [e] and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave.

Suddenly, a voice came to him and said, "What are you doing here, Elijah? "

14 "I have been very zealous for the LORD God of Hosts," he replied, "but the Israelites have abandoned Your covenant, torn down Your altars, and killed

Your prophets with the sword. I alone am left, and they're looking for me to take my life." [f]

15 Then the LORD said to him, "Go and return by the way you came to the Wilderness of Damascus. When you arrive, you are to anoint Hazael [g] as king over Aram. 16 You are to anoint Jehu [h] son of Nimshi as king over Israel and Elisha [i] son of Shaphat from Abel-meholah as prophet in your place. 17 Then Jehu will put to death whoever escapes the sword of Hazael, [j] and Elisha will put to death whoever escapes the sword of Jehu. [k] 18 But I will leave 7,000 in Israel [l] — every knee that has not bowed to •Baal [m] and every mouth that has not kissed him." [n]

Elisha's Appointment as Elijah's Successor 19 Elijah left there and found Elisha [o] son of Shaphat as he was plowing. Twelve teams of oxen were in front of him, and he was with the twelfth team. Elijah walked by him and threw his mantle over him. [p] 20 Elisha left the oxen, ran to follow Elijah, and said, "Please let me kiss my father and mother, and then I will follow you." [q]

"Go on back," he replied, "for what have I done to you? "

21 So he turned back from following him, took the team of oxen, and slaughtered them. With the oxen's wooden yoke and plow, [r] he cooked the meat and gave it to the people, and they ate. Then he left, followed Elijah, and served him. [s]

Victory over Ben-hadad

20 Now Ben-hadad [a] king of Aram assembled his entire army. Thirty-two kings, [b] along with horses and chariots, were with him. He marched up, besieged Samaria, [c] and fought against it. 2 He sent messengers into the city to Ahab king of Israel and said to him, "This is what Ben-hadad says: 3 'Your silver and your gold are mine! And your best wives and children are mine as well! ' " [d]

4 Then the king of Israel answered, "Just as you say, my lord the king: I am yours, along with all that I have."

5 The messengers then returned and said, "This is what Ben-hadad says: 'I have sent messengers to you, saying: You are to give me your silver, your gold, your wives, and your children. 6 But at this time tomorrow I will send my servants to you, and they will search your palace and your servants' houses. They will lay their hands on and take away whatever is precious to you.' "

7 Then the king of Israel called for all the elders of the land and said, "Think it over and you will see that this one is only looking for trouble, [e] for he demanded my wives, my children, my silver, and my gold, and I didn't turn him down."

8 All the elders and all the people said to him, "Don't listen or agree."

9 So he said to Ben-hadad's messengers, "Say to my lord the king, 'Everything you demanded of your servant the first time, I will do, but this thing I cannot do.' " So the messengers left and took word back to him.

10 Then Ben-hadad sent messengers to him and said, "May the gods punish me and do so severely [f] if Samaria's dust [g] amounts to a handful for each of the people who follow me."

11 The king of Israel answered, "Say this: 'Don't let the one who puts on his armor boast [h] like the one who takes it off.' "

12 When Ben-hadad heard this response, while he and the kings were drinking [i] in the tents, he said to his servants, "Take your positions." So they took their positions against the city.

13 A prophet came to Ahab king of Israel and said, "This is what •Yahweh says: 'Do you see this entire great army? Watch, I am handing it over to you today so that you may know that I am the LORD.' " [j]

14 Ahab asked, "By whom? "

And the prophet said, "This is what the LORD says: 'By the young men of the provincial leaders.' "

Then he asked, "Who is to start the battle? " [k]

He said, "You."

15 So Ahab counted the young men of the provincial leaders, and there were

232. After them he counted all the Israelite troops: 7,000. [l] 16 They marched out at noon while Ben-hadad and the 32 kings [m] who were helping him were getting drunk in the tents. 17 The young men of the provincial leaders marched out first.
Then Ben-hadad sent out scouts, and they reported to him, saying, “Men are marching out of Samaria.” [n]

18 So he said, “If they have marched out in peace, [o] take them alive, and if they have marched out for battle, take them alive.”

19 The young men of the provincial leaders and the army behind them marched out from the city, 20 and each one struck down his opponent. [p] So the Arameans fled and Israel pursued them, [q] but Ben-hadad king of Aram escaped on a horse with the cavalry. 21 Then the king of Israel marched out and attacked the cavalry and the chariots. He inflicted a great slaughter on Aram.

22 The prophet approached the king of Israel and said to him, “Go and strengthen yourself, then consider what you should do, for in the spring [r] the king of Aram will march against you.”

23 Now the king of Aram’s servants said to him, “Their gods are gods of the hill country. [s] That’s why they were stronger than we were. Instead, we should fight with them on the plain; then we will certainly be stronger than they will be.
24 Also do this: remove each king from his position and appoint captains in their place. 25 Raise another army for yourself like the army you lost — horse for horse, chariot for chariot — and let’s fight with them on the plain; and we will certainly be stronger than they will be.” The king listened to them and did so.

26 In the spring, Ben-hadad mobilized the Arameans and went up to Aphek [t] to battle Israel. 27 The Israelites mobilized, gathered supplies, and went to fight them. The Israelites camped in front of them like two little flocks of goats, while the Arameans filled the landscape. [u]

28 Then the man of God [v] approached and said to the king of Israel, “This is what the Lord says: ‘Because the Arameans have said: Yahweh is a god of the mountains and not a god of the valleys, [w] I will hand over all this great army to you. Then you will know that I am the Lord.’ ” [x]

29 They camped opposite each other for seven days. On the seventh day, [y] the battle took place, and the Israelites struck down the Arameans — 100,000 foot soldiers in one day. 30 The ones who remained fled into the city of Aphek, and the wall fell on those 27,000 remaining men.

Ben-hadad also fled and went into an inner room [z] in the city. 31 His servants said to him, “Consider this: we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful kings. So let's put •sackcloth around our waists [a] and ropes around our heads, and let's go out to the king of Israel. Perhaps he will spare your life."

32 So they dressed with sackcloth around their waists and ropes around their heads, went to the king of Israel, and said, "Your servant Ben-hadad says, 'Please spare my life.' "

So he said, "Is he still alive? He is my brother."

33 Now the men were looking for a sign of hope, so they quickly picked up on this [b] and responded, "Yes, it is your brother Ben-hadad."

Then he said, "Go and bring him."

So Ben-hadad came out to him, and Ahab had him come up into the chariot. 34 Then Ben-hadad said to him, "I restore to you the cities that my father took from your father, [c] and you may set up marketplaces for yourself in Damascus, like my father set up in Samaria." [d]

Ahab responded, "On the basis of this treaty, I release you." So he made a treaty with him and released him.

Ahab Rebuked by the LORD 35 One of the sons of the prophets [e] said to his fellow prophet by the word of the LORD, "Strike me! " But the man refused to strike him.

36 He told him, "Because you did not listen to the voice of the LORD, mark my words: When you leave me, a lion will kill you." [f] When he left him, a lion attacked and killed him.

37 The prophet found another man and said to him, "Strike me! " So the man struck him, inflicting a wound. 38 Then the prophet went and waited for the king on the road. He disguised [g] himself with a bandage over his eyes. 39 As the king was passing by, he cried out to the king and said, "Your servant marched out into the middle of the battle. Suddenly, a man turned aside and brought someone to me and said, 'Guard this man! If he is ever missing, it will be your life in place of his life, [h] or you will weigh out 75 pounds [A] of silver.' 40 But while your servant was busy here and there, he disappeared."

The king of Israel said to him, "That will be your sentence; you yourself have decided it." [i]

41 He quickly removed the bandage from his eyes. The king of Israel recognized that he was one of the prophets. 42 The prophet said to him, "This is what the LORD says: 'Because you released from your hand the man I had •set apart for destruction, [j] it will be your life in place of his life and your people in place of his people.' " 43 The king of Israel left for home resentful and angry, [k] and he entered Samaria.

Ahab and Naboth's Vineyard

21 Some time passed after these events. Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard; it was in Jezreel [a] next to the palace of Ahab king of Samaria. [b] 2 So Ahab spoke to Naboth, saying, “Give me your vineyard [c] so I can have it for a vegetable garden, since it is right next to my palace. I will give you a better vineyard in its place, or if you prefer, I will give you its value in silver.” 3 But Naboth said to Ahab, “I will never give my fathers’ inheritance [d] to you.”
4 So Ahab went to his palace resentful and angry, [e] because of what Naboth the Jezreelite had told him. He had said, “I will not give you my fathers’ inheritance.” He lay down on his bed, turned his face away, [f] and didn’t eat any food. [g] 5 Then his wife Jezebel came to him and said to him, “Why are you so upset that you refuse to eat? ” 6 “Because I spoke to Naboth the Jezreelite,” he replied. “I told him: Give me your vineyard for silver, or if you wish, I will give you a vineyard in its place.
But he said, ‘I won’t give you my vineyard! ’ ”
7 Then his wife Jezebel said to him, “Now, exercise your royal power over Israel. Get up, eat some food, and be happy. For I will give you the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite.” [h] 8 So she wrote letters [i] in Ahab’s name and sealed them with his seal. [j] She sent the letters to the elders [k] and nobles who lived with Naboth in his city. 9 In the letters, she wrote:

Proclaim a fast [l] and seat Naboth at the head of the people. 10 Then seat two •wicked men [m] opposite him and have them testify against him, saying, “You have cursed God and the king! ” [n] Then take him out and stone him to death.
[o]

11 The men of his city, the elders and nobles who lived in his city, did as Jezebel had commanded them, as was written in the letters she had sent them.
12 They proclaimed a fast and seated Naboth at the head of the people. 13 The two wicked men came in and sat opposite him. Then the wicked men testified against Naboth in the presence of the people, saying, “Naboth has cursed God and the king! ” So they took him outside the city and stoned him to death with stones. 14 Then they sent word to Jezebel, “Naboth has been stoned to death.” [p] 15 When Jezebel heard that Naboth had been stoned to death, she said to Ahab, “Get up and take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite who refused to give it to you for silver, [q] since Naboth isn’t alive, but dead.” 16 When Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, he got up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite to take possession of it.

The LORD's Judgment on Ahab [17] Then the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite: [r] [18] "Get up and go to meet Ahab king of Israel, [s] who is in Samaria. [t]
You'll find him in Naboth's vineyard, where he has gone to take possession of it.
[19] Tell him, 'This is what the LORD says: Have you murdered [u] and also taken possession?' [v] Then tell him, 'This is what the LORD says: In the place where the dogs licked Naboth's blood, the dogs will also lick your blood!'" [w]

[20] Ahab said to Elijah, "So, you have caught me, my enemy." [x]

He replied, "I have caught you because you devoted [y] yourself to do what is evil in the LORD's sight. [21] This is what the LORD says: [z] 'I am about to bring disaster on you and will sweep away your descendants:

I will eliminate all of Ahab's males, [A] both slave and free, in Israel; [a]

[22] I will make your house like the house of Jeroboam [b] son of Nebat and like the house of Baasha [c] son of Ahijah, because you have provoked My anger and caused Israel to sin. [d] [23] The LORD also speaks of Jezebel: The dogs will eat Jezebel in the plot of land [e] at Jezreel: [f]

[24] He who belongs to Ahab and dies in the city, the dogs will eat, and he who dies in the field, the birds of the sky will eat.'" [g]

[25] Still, there was no one like Ahab, who devoted himself to do what was evil in the LORD's sight, because his wife Jezebel incited him. [h] [26] He committed the most detestable acts by going after idols [i] as the Amorites [j] had, whom the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites.

[27] When Ahab heard these words, he tore his clothes, put •sackcloth over his body, and fasted. He lay down in sackcloth [k] and walked around subdued. [28] Then the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite: [29] "Have you seen how Ahab has humbled himself before Me? I will not bring the disaster during his lifetime, [l] because he has humbled himself before Me. I will bring the disaster on his house during his son's lifetime." [m]

Jehoshaphat's Alliance with Ahab

22 There was [a] a lull of three years [b] without war between Aram and Israel.
2 However, in the third year, Jehoshaphat [c] king of Judah went to visit the king of Israel. [d] 3 The king of Israel had said to his servants, "Don't you know that Ramoth-gilead [e] is ours, but we have failed to take it from the hand of the king of Aram? " 4 So [f] he asked Jehoshaphat, "Will you go with me to fight Ramoth-gilead? " [g]

Jehoshaphat replied to the king of Israel, "I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses." [h] 5 But Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, "First, please ask what the LORD's will is." [i]

6 So the king of Israel gathered the prophets, about 400 men, [j] and asked them, "Should I go against Ramoth-gilead for war or should I refrain? "

They replied, "March up, and the Lord will hand it over to the king." [k]

7 But Jehoshaphat asked, "Isn't there a prophet of •Yahweh here anymore? [l] Let's ask him."

8 The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "There is still one man who can ask Yahweh, but I hate him [m] because he never prophesies good about me, [n] but only disaster. He is Micaiah son of Imlah."

"The king shouldn't say that! " Jehoshaphat replied.

9 So the king of Israel called an officer and said, "Hurry and get Micaiah son of Imlah! "

10 Now the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat king of Judah, [o] clothed in royal attire, were each sitting on his own throne. They were on the threshing floor [p] at the entrance to Samaria's •gate , and all the prophets were prophesying in front of them. 11 Then Zedekiah [q] son of Chenaanah made iron horns [r] and said, "This is what the LORD says: 'You will gore the Arameans with these until they are finished off.' " 12 And all the prophets were prophesying the same: "March up to Ramoth-gilead [s] and succeed, for the LORD will hand it over to the king."

Micaiah's Message of Defeat

13 The messenger [t] who went to call Micaiah instructed him, "Look, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable for the king. So let your words be like theirs, and speak favorably."

14 But Micaiah said, "As the LORD lives, [u] I will say whatever the LORD says to me." [v]

15 So he went to the king, and the king asked him, "Micaiah, should we go to Ramoth-gilead for war, or should we refrain? "

Micaiah told him, “March up and succeed. Yahweh will hand it over to the king.”

16 But the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear not to tell me anything but the truth in the name of Yahweh? ”

17 So Micaiah said:

I saw all Israel scattered on the hills
like sheep without a shepherd. [w]
And the Lord said,
“They have no master;
let everyone return home in peace.” [x]

18 So the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Didn’t I tell you he never prophesies good about me, but only disaster? ”

19 Then Micaiah said, “Therefore, hear the word of the Lord: I saw the Lord sitting on His throne, [y] and the whole heavenly •host [z] was standing by Him at His right hand and at His left hand. 20 And the Lord said, ‘Who will entice Ahab to march up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? ’ [a] So one was saying this and another was saying that.

21 “Then a spirit came forward, stood before the Lord, and said, ‘I will entice him.’

22 “The Lord asked him, ‘How? ’

“He said, ‘I will go and become a lying spirit [b] in the mouth of all his prophets.’

“Then He said, ‘You will certainly entice him and prevail. [c] Go and do that.’

23 “You see, the Lord has put a lying spirit into the mouth of all these prophets of yours, and the Lord has pronounced disaster against you.”

24 Then Zedekiah [d] son of Chenaanah came up, hit Micaiah in the face, and demanded, “Did [A] the Spirit of the Lord leave me to speak to you? ” [e]

25 Micaiah replied, “You will soon see when you go to hide yourself in an inner chamber on that day.” [f]

26 Then the king of Israel ordered, “Take Micaiah and return him to Amon, the governor of the city, and to Joash, the king’s son, [g] 27 and say, ‘This is what the king says: Put this guy in prison [h] and feed him only bread and water [B] until I come back safely.’ ”

28 But Micaiah said, “If you ever return safely, the Lord has not spoken through me.” [i] Then he said, “Listen, all you people! ” [j, k]

Ahab's Death

29 Then [l] the king of Israel and Judah's King Jehoshaphat went up to Ramoth-gilead. [m] 30 But the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "I will disguise [n] myself and go into battle, but you wear your royal attire." So the king of Israel disguised himself and went into battle. [o]

31 Now the king of Aram had ordered his 32 chariot commanders, [p] "Do not fight with anyone at all except the king of Israel." [q]

32 When the chariot commanders saw Jehoshaphat, they shouted, "He must be the king of Israel! " So they turned to fight against him, but Jehoshaphat cried out. 33 When the chariot commanders saw that he was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him.

34 But a man drew his bow [r] without taking special aim and struck the king of Israel through the joints of his armor. So he said to his charioteer, "Turn around and take me out of the battle, [s] for I am badly wounded! " [t] 35 The battle raged throughout that day, and the king was propped up in his chariot facing the Arameans. He died that evening, [u] and blood from his wound flowed into the bottom of the chariot. 36 Then the cry rang out in the army as the sun set, declaring:

Each man to his own city,
and each man to his own land! [v]

37 So the king died and was brought to Samaria. They buried the king in Samaria. [w] 38 Then someone washed the chariot at the pool of Samaria. The dogs licked up his blood, and the prostitutes bathed in it, according to the word of the LORD that He had spoken. [x]

39 The rest of the events of Ahab's reign, along with all his accomplishments, including the ivory palace [y] he built, and all the cities he built, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. [z] 40 Ahab rested with his fathers, [a] and his son Ahaziah [b] became king in his place.

Judah's King Jehoshaphat

41 Jehoshaphat [c] son of Asa became king over Judah in the fourth year of Israel's King Ahab. 42 Jehoshaphat was 35 years old when he became king; he reigned 25 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Azubah daughter of Shilhi. 43 He walked in all the ways of his father Asa; [d] he did not turn away from them but did what was right in the LORD's sight. However, the •high places were not taken away; [e] the people still sacrificed and burned incense on the high places. [f] 44 Jehoshaphat also made peace with the king of Israel. [g]

45 The rest of the events of Jehoshaphat's reign, along with the might he exercised and how he waged war, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. [h] 46 He removed from the land the rest of the male cult prostitutes who were left from the days of his father Asa. [i] 47 There was no king in Edom; [j] a deputy served as king. 48 Jehoshaphat made ships of Tarshish [k] to go to Ophir [l] for gold, but they did not go because the ships were wrecked at Ezion-geber. [m] 49 At that time, Ahaziah [n] son of Ahab said to Jehoshaphat, "Let my servants go with your servants in the ships," but Jehoshaphat was not willing. 50 Jehoshaphat rested with his fathers and was buried with them in the city of his ancestor David. [o] His son Jehoram [p] became king in his place.

Israel's King Ahaziah

51 Ahaziah [q] son of Ahab became king over Israel in Samaria [r] in the seventeenth year of Judah's King Jehoshaphat [s] and reigned over Israel two years. 52 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. [t] He walked in the way of his father, [u] in the way of his mother, [v] and in the way of Jeroboam son of Nebat, who had caused Israel to sin. [w] 53 He served •Baal and worshiped him. [x] He provoked the LORD God of Israel just as his father had done. [y]

Introduction

A section of the Carmel mountain range with the plain of Jezreel in the foreground, one of the traditional sites of Elijah's confrontation with the prophets of Asherah and Baal (1Kg 18).

The titles of these books are certainly descriptive of their contents: the history of the kings and the kingdoms of Israel and Judah. First and Second Kings are part of a larger body of the Old Testament known as the 12 Historical Books (Joshua-Esther). Originally, the books were just one book, but were divided by the translators of the Septuagint (the Gk translation of the Old Testament).

Circumstances of Writing Author: Scholars cannot identify the authors of any portions of these books. Traditional guesses such as Samuel and Jeremiah lack evidence, although a prominent worshiper of Yahweh like Jeremiah would have been influential in the circles that produced these books. Since the books clearly incorporated many earlier documents, the complete authorship would be all writers who contributed to the source documents of this work. At some point, the Holy Spirit worked in the human authors to authenticate the inspired, inerrant books of 1 and 2 Kings. The final stage of composition or compilation had to come after the release of Jehoiachin from Babylonian imprisonment (ca 562 B.C.). That edition may have added only a postscript to a work completed years earlier, or it may have involved significant additions.

Background: The history recorded in 1 and 2 Kings covers approximately 410 years. First Kings begins around 970 B.C. with the death of King David, and 2 Kings ends around 560 B.C. with the release of King Jehoiachin from prison. During this time, the nation of Israel split into two kingdoms (930 B.C.), and both kingdoms went into exile (Israel in 722 B.C. and Judah in 587 B.C.).

Message and Purpose The theological perspective of 1 and 2 Kings is expressed in a number of themes: (1) the sinfulness of the kings and the nation; (2) the conflict between the demands of practical politics and the demands of faith; (3) the glory that God gave to the obedient covenant kings; (4) God's harshness in judgment on some occasions and leniency on others; and (5) the conflict between the worship of the Lord and the worship of other gods.

The role of the king: The Davidic covenant established the king as the moral representative of the people for covenant purposes. Therefore, up through kings Azariah (also known as Uzziah) and Jotham, the moral state of the king was treated as equaling the moral state of the people. Covenant blessings were given or withheld on the basis of the king's behavior. Thus the behavior of the king was the important covenant and moral fact for any given reign.

The role of the prophet: This was the period of development of the office of the prophet. The nature of the prophetic office passed through several nonsequential stages from the ecstatic, miracle-working prophets represented by Saul (1Sm 19:24) and Elisha (2Kg 3:14-16); then through nonmiracle-working court prophets such as Gad and Micaiah; and finally to the great writing prophets attested in Scripture.

Revival: The last two revival kings of Judah (Hezekiah and Josiah) experienced individual revivals that had few effects on either the rest of the royal house or on the nation as a whole. The nation returned to apostasy on the death of each of these good kings. Therefore these two revivals did not bring a full restoration of international political power and wealth. Rather they simply delayed the inevitable judgment.

Contribution to the Bible For the Bible writers, history could not have existed without God's purposes. This makes all history theological. The books of 1 and 2 Kings interpreted Hebrew history in light of OT covenant theology. The Babylonian exile created the need for this work of historical apologetics. The exiles needed to explain the failure of the religious program established by the sovereign God. In the Deuteronomic history—Joshua, Judges, 1 and 2 ;Samuel, and 1 and 2 Kings—this failure was consistently explained as the failures of the people to live up to their part of the covenant.

Structure The organizing principle of 1 and 2 Kings is not story or narrative. Kings is unique because its basic structural units were the formulaic royal records. Formal openers (1Kg 15:9-10) and closers (1Kg 15:23-24) usually identify the boundaries of these records. Then the writer could insert other types of literature before, between, and after the openers and closers: narratives, prayers, descriptions, etc. But the most important element was the evaluation of the ruler's faithfulness to the covenant (1Kg 15:11-15). All of these materials made up a history of covenant obedience or disobedience.

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1-53 First Kings gives the reader a survey of sweeping social and religious forces that were vying to shape the future of Israel. The book begins with a power struggle between Adonijah and David over who would succeed David. At stake, many believed, was the identity of the nation. That Adonijah had no trouble garnering support in his quest for the throne indicates the deep divisions shaping up among the Hebrews.

At least six factors pressed for change in the kingdom. (1) The ideal of the violent, plundering warrior (Pr 1:10-19) was yielding in this new era to the ideal of the wise man (1Kg 4:32-34) and the successful businessman (Pr 22:29). (2) Central authority with a royal bureaucracy (1Kg 4:1-19) suppressed the power of the local elders and clan leaders. (3) The continued policy of converting and absorbing the many peoples of Canaan was creating a new nation united by Hebrew rulers and, nominally, by faith in Yahweh. (4) The new, national, chariot army (10:26; see note at 1:38) would replace the levies (military conscriptions) of the tribes and clans, thus changing the identity and capacities of Hebrew military forces. (5) The rise of international commerce and a new business class forced drastic changes in Hebrew society (Pr 7:19-21; 31:10-31). (6) The older moral values were giving way to new ones (e.g., Pr 7:16-21). Most of these trends were underway before Solomon, but under Solomon they created a new society.

The writer of 1 Kings spoke for the Davidic dynasty and faith in Yahweh, over against Adonijah and other representatives of an alternate future. Thus it is accurate to say that a major purpose of this opening chapter and many other portions of the OT is to support the politics of David and Solomon. Some would use the term propaganda to describe this purpose, but the only proper issue is whether or not the new trends were God's will for the nation. This is the author's focus.

1:1 The reign of King David had begun the first age of godly greatness, prosperity, and power in the history of the Hebrews. After David's death, could this greatness continue? In God's plan it was to continue with Solomon, but would God's purposes survive the crisis of David's death?

1:2 The strongest Hebrew word for virgin (betulah) is used here. The word for the nuptial sheets that provided proof of the bride's virginity (Dt 22:15) is derived from this word.

1:4 The ancients believed in the curative value of pairing a warm human body with an ill body, and so the phrase was not intimate with her speaks primarily to the fact that the sole purpose the girl served was to provide warmth and care. However, even among conservative scholars, some believe that given the context the above phrase may also indirectly indicate that aged David was no longer able to be intimate with a woman. In the eyes of his detractors, this would be taken as proof that David lacked the strength and fitness to continue as king. Once known, this may have encouraged Adonijah's attempt to seize the throne.

1:5-10 In the struggle for Israel's future, neither side (those aligned with David and his designated heir nor those against them) openly appealed to the tribal elders or other leaders for support (note tribal leaders in 12:1-7). Both sides believed that if they seized power in Jerusalem, the traditional leaders would accept the outcome. Adonijah gathered his supporters and tried to seize the throne. Some of David's loyal followers, such as Joab and Abiathar, joined with Adonijah. Perhaps they had given up on David, as he seems to have become rather detached and even irresponsible (e.g., 1:6).

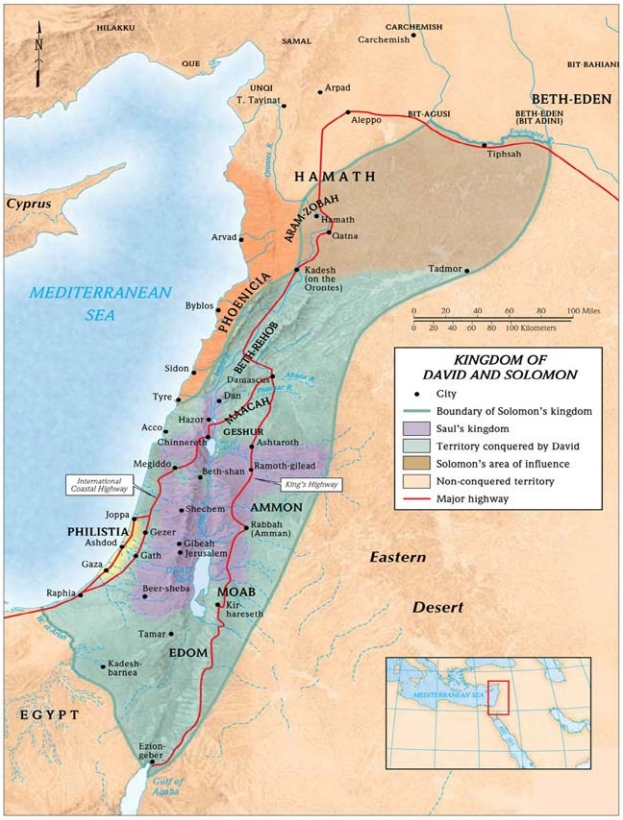
Bathsheba and Nathan, supported by some of David's remaining brave warriors and David's loyal Cherethites and the Pelethites (see note at 1:38), reacted quickly and put an end to the attempted coup. Prudent human planning helped to gain David's active support. Nathan's warning to Bathsheba to act to save her and Solomon's lives (v. 12) showed the likelihood for violence of this struggle.

While there were moral positives and weaknesses to both sides, the decisive issue was which side God supported—despite its weaknesses. God's purposes and the future fortunes of the Hebrews were bound to the new ways, to the centralized government, and to the Davidic dynasty.

1:5 Kept exalting indicates that Adonijah had already been proclaiming his future kingship and establishing his entourage for seizing the throne. Coup attempts are not birthed overnight. David had already promised Bathsheba that her son Solomon would be king and had publicly announced to the assembled nation that Solomon was his heir (1Ch 28:5). Nevertheless, Adonijah seems to have made his moves with his father's silent acquiescence so that his will for the succession became unclear. In this context, the first to act might gain the throne.

Chariots and cavalry should probably be rendered "chariots" and "charioteers" since horse-mounted warriors (cavalry) are not documented for this early period. Early in the history of chariot warfare, the terms for chariot warriors were the same as the terms later used for cavalry warriors. By the time of Ahab (16:28ff), Assyrian records recognized the existence of mounted warriors in the region. During Solomon's rule the military would become a chariot army, probably made up of foreign mercenaries since developing a local chariot force was a long, expensive process.



1:8 David's warriors (lit "great men") likely refers to (1) the remnants and/or successors of David's warriors (2Sm 23:8-39); or (2) David's loyal palace guard, the Cherethites and Pelethites (see note at 1Kg 1:38).

1:9 Adonijah's great feast amounted to an impromptu coronation, with many of the expected features: a revered setting, a military leader, a priest, pomp, and loyal followers.

1:11-12 With Adonijah's coup already in motion, someone with sufficient standing to be accepted by the people had to initiate a counter movement for Solomon or the throne would be lost. Nathan, the prophet, assumed this role. He warned Bathsheba that the penalty for inaction could be death for herself and Solomon, and probably others of David's loyalists as well. The losers in such power struggles were typically executed.

1:15-21 Bathsheba raised three issues to arouse David to action. First, by God's will David had promised the throne to Solomon. Second, Adonijah had proclaimed himself king without David's public support or knowledge. Third, she pointed out that she and Solomon would be regarded as criminals if David did not act.

1:24-25 Nathan then came and reinforced the points Bathsheba had made to the king.

1:26-28 Nathan tactfully hinted at the danger to himself, Bathsheba, and

David's loyal officials by revealing that David's inner circle had not been invited to the unofficial coronation. This cast them as outsiders, a dangerous place to be during a regime change.

Bathsheba had to be called in despite the fact that she was already in the king's bedroom with David when Nathan entered (v. 22). Readers may think the text is inconsistent here because it seems to forget that Bathsheba was already present. But we must remember that Hebrew narrative is often very spare, leaving out details that can be implied from context. In this case readers should conclude that sometime after verse 22 Bathsheba had temporarily left the king's room, appropriately giving Nathan private audience with his king.

1:32 David responded with the orders that legitimized Solomon's succession. Benaiah seemed to be the leader of the Cherethites and the Pelethites. In the absence of any tribal levies, they were the dominant military force in the city.

1:33 The mule was the traditional mount of honor for that time. In an earlier age, the donkey had played that role, a custom still remembered as late as Zch 9:9. To ride the king's mule was to claim the throne. The Gihon spring was an ancient, revered, and necessary source of water for Jerusalem. Later it was the source of water for King Hezekiah's tunnel. Choosing it for the site of Solomon's coronation indicated that it carried special significance and authority for the people of Jerusalem just as Adonijah's selection of En-rogel recognized the significance of that site (v. 9).

1:34 The proper religious personnel were to anoint Solomon. This was done by the king's command and in the presence of the king's private army. These facts were sufficient for the people of Jerusalem to choose Solomon over Adonijah.

1:38 The Cherethites and the Pelethites were, formerly, Philistine mercenaries, personally loyal to David, and by this time, presumably converted to faith in Yahweh. They formed David's personal bodyguard and were effective infantry. The probable reason why David's infantry could defeat Aramean chariots (2Sm 8:3-4), a rare skill for infantry, was the presence of these skilled Philistines.

1:40 The people who followed with rejoicing were probably the classes that benefited from several of the new ways that were emerging in the kingdom (see note at vv. 1-53). Both for good and for ill, Solomon's rule would enhance these new ways.

1:41 The conflicting coronations were occurring within 500 yards of each other, the distance between Gihon and En-rogel. Imagine the uneasiness when Adonijah's group heard the noise of Solomon's coronation.

1:44-46 All ceremonies for enthroning Solomon had been accomplished. Only major force could have reversed these actions. Adonijah's followers were not ready to battle for Jerusalem, especially since David had spoken and was still alive.

1:47-48 These two speeches were not merely friendly sentiments. First, they represented David's will. Then, repeated and recorded, they confirmed the new king in the same way that the public oath of office legitimizes an office holder in our time.

1:49 With the people of Jerusalem accepting Solomon's coronation, and Adonijah's followers having no stomach for fighting the Cherethites and the Pelethites, Adonijah's coup had failed.

1:50 Adonijah's failure was obvious when he took refuge at the altar, near the tabernacle. In popular attitudes of the day, such sanctuary may have involved magical protection rather than moral principle (see note at 2:30-33). The altar was the most sacred object outside the tabernacle proper, and over time, the horns became the most representative part of the altar.

2:2-3 David's instructions that Solomon be steadfast, firm, and obedient were the kind of covenant challenges presented to leaders and common Hebrews throughout the OT (cp. Jos 1:9). The result of obedience to the law was made explicit for Solomon: it would bring success in everything (Jos 1:6-8; Ps 1).

2:4 Obedience also assured the permanence of David's dynasty. Second Samuel 7:11-16 did not explicitly state this as the necessary condition for a permanent dynasty. This is another indication that the reader sometimes must examine several passages to get the whole picture. In terms of eternal salvation, this permanence depends on the eternal reign of the NT Messiah, the son of David. However, 1 and 2 Kings never overtly treated this permanence as anything more than the human, Davidic dynasty, though this concept is enriched and expanded in other parts of the OT.

2:5 David counseled Solomon about some real dangers to the state. David was accepted as a man after God's own heart in the old regime. Even so, as a man of blood David was not allowed to build God's temple (1Ch 22:7-9). Others, who were properly tolerated in the old days, were now a threat to the new, more peaceful society. David was perhaps warning Solomon against tolerance for men whose character made them too dangerous for this new society. In this counsel David may have recognized a profound change from the ideal of the plundering warrior and conqueror king of yesterday to the mercantile emperor of the new day. Likewise there was a change from the violent, vengeful clan warrior to a professional soldier serving the interests of the centralized state.

Joab, the double murderer, was the first to be dealt with. His first murder, killing Abner, could have been construed as revenge, although blood shed in war was not normally avenged in peace. However, the murder of Amasa could not be justified. David seemed to be unable to act against powerful members of his own clan, although he did publicly distance himself from Joab's violence (2Sm 3:28-29). The blood on his waistband and sandals graphically indicated Joab's guilt. Finally, Joab's siding with Adonijah in what could have been a violent civil conflict outweighed any gratitude David owed to Joab for his past faithfulness.

2:7 David counseled loyalty to the house of Barzillai, who supported David in Absalom's rebellion. This word loyalty is the usual word for covenant faithfulness. For Barzillai, proper covenant faithfulness meant faithfulness to the king. For David, Barzillai's faithfulness deserved reciprocal faithfulness from the king and his house. David's counsel illustrated the mutual responsibility or loyalty in covenant relationships. These mutual covenant responsibilities were binding on both kings and God.

2:8 This counsel implied that Shimei still exercised some influence. At the time of David's return, tolerating Shimei may have been beneficial for stabilizing the country. By contrast, Solomon's power was stable enough that Shimei, and any danger he represented, could be suppressed.

2:10-12 This formula statement, David rested with his fathers, provides a narrative transition from David's reign to Solomon's reign.

2:13 This incident is one of many clues (v. 19) that the queen mother was a position of great influence. The frequent listing of this position in the royal formulae of Judah also suggests its influence.

2:15 Adonijah's statement was true to someone who viewed only the human realities. However, it totally ignored the purposes of God.

2:17 One of the customs of the ancient world was for the new king to confirm his position by taking the wives of the former king (2Sm 16:22). Adonijah must have viewed Solomon as very weak to make this dangerous request.

2:18 It seems unbelievably naive for Bathsheba to intercede with Solomon in this request. Or did she see that encouraging Adonijah's foolishness was a good way to make clear to Solomon the threat Adonijah represented? If so, her decision here moved Adonijah a step closer to his demise.

2:19 The protocol and ceremony of this scene again pointed to the influence of the queen mother.

2:22 Solomon's words grouped Adonijah . . . Abiathar, and Joab together as joint leaders of the failed coup. Adonijah's foolish attempt to extract some advantage from the failure gave Solomon the opportunity to deal with all the plotters.

2:26-27 Solomon's decisive action showed that both Solomon and the Bible writer believed that Solomon was removing major threats to his rule. Abiathar knew that his priestly participation in the abortive coronation was essential to Adonijah's plot; his participation was neither innocent nor casual. Mere banishment was a gentle penalty; death would have been justified. Banishment prevented him from playing an influential role either at the tabernacle or in the temple still to be built. Removal of Abiathar from office fulfilled the earlier judgment on Eli's family (1Sm 2:30-36).

2:28-29 As the commander of the army, Joab's support of Adonijah could have mobilized the old tribal and clan levies in support of Adonijah. Such a threat was virtually treasonous, and the treasonous potentialities remained as long as Joab lived. Furthermore, judging Joab for his murders was a necessary step in repudiating the old violent ways—a step that David never took.

2:30-33 Joab understood perfectly the consequences of his deeds and sought safety at the altar, where Benaiah executed the death sentence against him. In executing the commander in chief of the tribal levies, Solomon was either carrying out a risky deed to remove a popular enemy, or he was so secure in his power that he did not fear any repercussions. Executing Joab at the altar raised other questions. The devotion to Yahweh among the masses may not have risen far above the superstition that the horns of the altar provided magical protection. Assuming that Solomon's faith was real, his disbelief in the magical protection of the horns of the altar was a rejection of popular superstition and an assertion that real moral and social values transcended such superstitious magic (see note at 1:50). Joab might have hoped for sanctuary at the altar, but the right of sanctuary only applied to those who committed accidental manslaughter (Ex 21:12-14).

2:35 Benaiah's appointment to Joab's place over the army indicated that Joab was the commander in chief up to his death. The later restructuring of government to minimize the traditional powers (chap. 4) could have indicated ongoing concerns about the loyalty of the traditional tribal authorities to Solomon.

2:36-46 Shimei's situation was the opposite of Abiathar's. Abiathar was a danger in the capital where he could meddle in centralized worship. Shimei was a danger away from Jerusalem where he could stir up trouble in distant locales. Therefore Shimei was placed under house arrest in Jerusalem. When Shimei violated his house arrest, possibly thinking Solomon's concern had diminished over the three-year period, he was executed. The Kidron Valley, just east of Jerusalem, served as one of the boundaries of Jerusalem.

3:1 Recalling Egypt's glorious past, some assume that Solomon was the junior member of this marriage alliance. Two points counter that interpretation. (1) The Egyptians did not typically send princesses even to other great kingdoms. And it was probably quite unlikely for Egypt to send a princess to an inferior ally. (2)

The fact that Pharaoh Siamun captured and burned Gezer, perhaps earlier during David's reign, but then gave it back to Solomon (see note at 9:16) speaks of Solomon's strength rather than his weakness. Pharaoh means "big house" and was a title, not a proper name, just as "the White House" serves as a popular title for the president of the United States. For such a prestigious wife, the cramped quarters of the original city of David were not suitable.

Some suggest that brides in political marriages, such as the one between Solomon and Pharaoh's daughter, conducted the business that in modern times is conducted by ambassadors. Therefore Solomon's granting his foreign wives and the representatives of their governments the right to worship their own gods while in Israel was, on the human level, a diplomatic courtesy. But the Lord regarded such courtesy toward false gods as apostasy. This was Solomon's first recorded example of conflict between prudent politics and faithfulness to Yahweh.

3:2 - 3a Archaeology shows that religious syncretism was always a part of popular Hebrew culture. The archaeological evidences for religious syncretism are as abundant for Judah as they are for Israel. The worship at the high places, or hilltop altars, might have been of three sorts: (1) the legal local worship of Yahweh before any formal recognition of a national shrine; (2) the illegal worship of Yahweh at such shrines after the recognition of a national shrine; and (3) the syncretistic worship of local Baals at local shrines. Not all scholars agree that the local worship of Yahweh was illegal before the temple was built. Further, it is not certain that God absolutely prohibited worship of Himself at the historic pagan holy sites. The two rules were (1) that the pagan equipment should be destroyed (Dt 7:5) and (2) that the site should be explicitly chosen or accepted by God (Dt 12:5; 1Kg 18:20-38), usually by an epiphany or an oracle.

Debate about the meaning of "high places" aside, the normal locations for shrines for sky gods, such as Baal and Yahweh, were on the hilltops. These were closer to the sky, and were often situated over a cave that according to ancient lore could represent the underworld. The cave under the Mosque of Omar in Jerusalem today may have been the cave under the site of Solomon's temple. It is not certain that Solomon personally offered sacrifices.

3:3b-4 Even if a pious Solomon did sacrifice at the high places for Yahweh before the temple was built, it might have been proper worship because of Solomon's better attitude. Part of King Saul's offense (1Sm 13:9-13) was a disobedient attitude. After the temple was built, worshiping the Lord at the high places was sin. The numbers of the sacrifices may indicate that Solomon authorized the offering of abundant sacrifices by other, appropriate personnel.

3:5 Gibeon was the last of the pre-temple national shrines. It was located about six miles north of Jerusalem. How did it become a sacred city since it passed into Hebrew control by deception (Jos 9)? Holy places tended to remain holy through changes in time and local population. The Hebrews acknowledged its holy status when the tabernacle and the bronze altar were put there.

3:6 Faithful love (Hb chesed) almost always refers to covenant faithfulness. David was faithful in his obedience to God; God was, in turn, faithful in giving and keeping His covenant promises to David. Covenant faithfulness is a key concept in OT theology.

3:9-11 Solomon's prayer marked a major cultural shift in Hebrew life, a shift to peaceful values involving wisdom and skill rather than military craft. Solomon reflected these new values in asking for a heart that would be obedient (to the covenant) in judging the nation. Solomon's request was a request to discern. That a ruler of a great empire would desire an obedient, wise heart signaled a major change in values. These new values are also reflected in the royal psalm, Psalm 72. The old values are reflected in the title "man of war" (1Ch 28:3), assigned to David. In the old ways, prowess in war made a political leader mighty.

3:12-13 Solomon thus got the best of both sets of values, the wisdom that marked the wise man or effective businessman, as well as the riches . . . honor, and power that marked success in the older values.

3:15 Solomon celebrated this oracle with a great sacrificial feast of fellowship offerings for his servants—perhaps for all the resident palace staff.

3:16 Though Solomon's reign involved a new, distant, imperial king, the people, at least those in Jerusalem, still had access to royal justice. The lack of such access during David's reign was used by Absalom to win the hearts of the people (2Sm 15:3-6).

3:16-27 Then marks the connection to the previous dream that Solomon had. He had asked for the ability to discern so he could judge God's people (v. 9). God answered his prayer (Jms 1:5) and gave more than he asked for. This passage is an example of the use of a God-given discerning mind. Ancient Mesopotamian kings kept records of exceptional legal decisions, which were presented to their gods to show that they had acted wisely (cp. D. J. Wiseman, TOTC, p. 87). Israel's historians evidently kept similar records.

4:1-34 This chapter gives an accurate description of Solomon's bureaucratic structure, but not for one particular time. Any person of renown, from any time in Solomon's reign, could be included since such people, by their stature and renown, showed Solomon's glory. Further, in showing Solomon's glory, they also glorified God, who gave such glory to Solomon. This structure totally bypassed the traditional tribal structures of the nation and replaced them with officials who were directly responsible to the king, with no loyalty to the ancient tribes and clans.

4:2 Azariah, the grandson of Zadok, was high priest at a later time in Solomon's rule though not at the very end of his rule (1Ch 6:8-10).

4:3 Though our knowledge of some terms is incomplete, secretaries could have been the heads of the royal scribes dealing with day-to-day matters. The historian might have been the keeper of the royal archives or chronicles.

4:4 The two competing high priests at the time of Solomon's coronation, Zadok and Abiathar, are both mentioned, though Abiathar was sent into exile almost immediately.

4:5 Deputies could have been the head officers of the military and bureaucratic forces garrisoned around the country and throughout the empire as well as the officers over forced labor levies (v. 6). Since the word adviser literally means "friend," this term probably referred to a close, intimate adviser to the king.

4:6 The official in charge of the palace (lit "the house") may have administered other properties of the king as well. On forced labor, see note at 5:13-18.

4:7 The following verses list the 12 appointed deputies, each of whom provided food for the royal household for one month of the year. There was no provision for the intercalary periods, which are days inserted into the calendar in order to compensate for the fact that the astronomical year is 12 lunar months plus a fraction of a month. These regions were not of equal size and wealth, and Judah is not included (see note at v. 19). Therefore this system probably created unfair burdens. Solomon certainly had other sources of revenue such as royally sponsored mercantile enterprises and tribute from subject nations or territories in his empire.

4:8 The hill country of Ephraim was roomy, but the settlement and economic development of Ephraim began in earnest only with the Hebrew conquest (cp. Jos 17:14-18). Therefore the large area assigned to Ben-hur might not have indicated a lighter burden since it might not have been fully productive.

4:9-10 One noted city, Beth-shemesh, plus three obscure names could indicate that Ben-deker administered a rather small region that likely found it a relatively heavy burden to provide "for the king and his household" (v. 7). The district controlled by Ben-hesed was about the same size, but it included some productive coastal plains and the fertile Shephelah region.

4:11 Ben-abinadab was one of two deputies married to daughters of Solomon (cp. v. 15). His region included some coastal plains but was dominated by southern slopes of the Carmel range.

4:12 The district of Baana included several cities on trade routes that opened into the Plain of Esdraelon. For cities of such wealth, making a one-month provision for Solomon was a relatively light burden.

4:13-14 Ben-geber's district in the northern Transjordan, with its 60 great cities, was large enough that the financial burden could have been relatively light. A second district around Mahanaim would have been relatively small and therefore more heavily burdened. A third in Transjordan (v. 19) is too vaguely defined for comment.

4:15-18 Each of these four districts consisted of the territory of one of Israel's smaller tribes; thus these were probably heavily burdened.

4:19 In the Hebrew text, Judah is not included in this burden. The HCSB follows the LXX in including a comment on Judah in this verse, although Judah was not one of the 12 districts. The Hebrew version of this comment could be construed as saying that each district had a single official. While some of the evaluations of burden given above are not proven, it is difficult to find a fair distribution of the financial burden in these districts.

4:21 The general extent of Solomon's empire included Hebrew tribal territories along with Moab and Edom, most or all of the old Philistine territories (but cp. 9:16), and most or all of the Aramean kingdoms west of the Euphrates River but not the Phoenician coastal cities. Not all of these regions were dominated to the same degree. Some authorities suggest that Philistia, except for Gezer, may actually have been under Egyptian control. This conflicts with the identification of Solomon's southern border as reaching to Gaza (4:24). But even that border indicated that Pharaoh Siamun may have moved the Egyptian boundary from the Wadi Arish north to the Wadi Besor, just south of Gaza.

4:22-23 Though our methods of analysis are proximate, the large quantities provided for Solomon's provisions for one day were far more than the expected needs of the palace in Jerusalem. Calculated at a pint of grain per day per person, the grain was sufficient for more than 20,000 persons. Likewise the meat supply easily fed 20,000 people, even when assuming that the livestock were relatively scrawny animals and each person ate an excessive figure of one pound of meat per day. In fact these quantities could be adequate not just for the needs of the palace, but also for the bureaucracy and the permanent resident military. Verses 27-28 hint that these provisions were possibly shared with the military establishment, though the link is unclear.

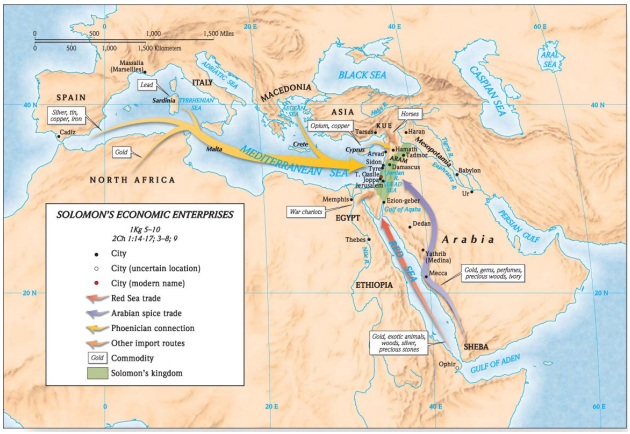
4:24-25 The north-south range of Solomon's dominion indicated here correlates with verse 21 on the north since Tiphsah was located on the Euphrates River, but in the south, Gaza was somewhat north of the Wadi Arish, the traditional border of Egypt (see note at v. 21). Solomon's control over this large region guaranteed the Israelites a degree of peace and security.

4:26 The writer then presents the major innovation of Solomon's military, a standing army of chariots. David did not use chariots. Two factors indicate that Solomon's chariot force was not a native Hebrew force. First, developing a homegrown chariot force was an expensive process involving years of training; hiring mercenaries was quicker. Second, Solomon's chariot armies disappeared in the conflict at Solomon's death, a likely clue that the charioteers returned to their native lands.

Ancient literature often used numbers symbolically, and so readers rightly ask in a given passage whether the numbers are meant to be literal. Taking the numbers as literal here and using the data from Chronicles, the following situation emerges. There were 1,400 chariots (10:26), an adequate number for a small empire with no competition from the great empires, 12,000 handlers for horses (probably including both the chariot warriors and the other support personnel for the horses), and facilities for housing and caring for 40,000 horses. The figure about the massive number of horses and the facilities for housing them is reasonable if the horses were scattered throughout the empire and in several different facilities, as would make strategic sense. No single facility in ancient times could house 40,000 horses. The Septuagint at 2Ch 9:25 gives a variant figure of 4,000, a reasonable figure for the facilities actually mobilized at any given time. First Kings 4:28 indicates that horse provisions, probably for the army at large, were also part of the levies, but not necessarily included in the listed provisions above (vv. 7-19).

4:31-34 Three of the four names listed here also appear in 1Ch 2:6, and a fourth is very close. In harmonizing these two lists, Mahol (lit "dance") may represent a professional or guild title while the Chronicles passage may present actual parentage. These may have been wise men of reputation from a different era. Solomon's reputation for wisdom transcended international and chronological boundaries.

5:1 David had traded with Tyre when collecting materials for the temple. Solomon also benefited from good relations with Hiram king of Tyre in purchasing materials. For Solomon, this cooperation was extended to joint international trade ventures. This was a wise policy since the Phoenicians were, at this time before Greek competition, continually tightening their grip on Mediterranean trade.



5:3-5 These verses state several major themes in biblical theology. (1) God had given rest to His people. Throughout the Bible this rest is given in various degrees and in various ways that finally culminated in the eternal rest described in Hebrews 4. (2) It gave a different perspective on David as a "man of war" (1Ch 28:3), since his wars were presented as defensive necessities. (3) Since no temple can contain God, this temple was to be the dwelling for the name of the Lord. And (4) this temple was built in response to the promise of a dynasty for David and his descendants.

5:6 The Israelites, as well as the Egyptians and Assyrians, used both the cedar and cypress lumber of Lebanon for their fine buildings. Phoenician artistic skills and manufactured products were also prized throughout the ancient world.

5:7 Hiram's praise for God probably did not represent real conviction or faith on his part. More likely the Bible writer was paraphrasing Hiram's diplomatic courtesies to express truth about God.

5:8-11 These were the terms of the business arrangements. Solomon bartered food for lumber and other products as well. Hiram's men would cut the lumber, bring it to the sea, and lash it into rafts. Then the rafts were floated south and beached, probably at Joppa, the port nearest Jerusalem. From there they were taken to Jerusalem by the road that passed near Gezer. The amount of grain mentioned here was somewhat more than half the amount of grain collected for Solomon's governmental structure (4:22-23). However, the book of 2 Chronicles adds an equal supply of barley to this amount (2Ch 2:10).

5:13-18 These projects were so big that Solomon sent Hebrew forced laborers to Phoenicia to help in the work. In this context thousand may be a general term with a meaning somewhat like "battalion." The Gebalites were the people of ancient Byblos. The few cedars of Lebanon that remain today are in the mountains inland from Byblos. This passage confirms that Byblos was then under Hiram's control.

6:1-38 There are three problems in understanding the technical language in this chapter and parts of the next. First, the original readers and hearers had background knowledge that we do not have; thus the author could presume a certain amount of knowledge on their part. Second, some issues touched on here are better covered in 2 Chronicles. And third, some issues raised here are better left to more detailed reference works devoted to architectural details of the temple.

6:1 Second Chronicles 3:2 dates this operation by the precise day in Solomon's reign. By contrast, 1 Kings dates it by its relationship to another great event in covenant history—the exodus from Egypt. The earlier event launched Hebrew life as a nation, and this event began Hebrew life with a permanent dwelling for God. The figure of 480 years implies a fifteenth-century exodus (ca 1440 B.C.). Those who argue for a thirteenth-century exodus take this figure as representing 12 generations reflecting a generous life expectancy for that day (12 x 40 = 480). Allowing for overlapping generations, the actual length could then have been something like 12 x 25, or 300 years. Many of the other figures in 1 and 2 Kings are confirmed remarkably well by historical research. The month Ziv (Iyyar), the second month of the religious calendar, overlaps with our modern April and May.

6:3 The word portico (Hb 'ulam) has two different meanings, translated "hall [of pillars]" and "canopy with pillars" in 7:6. From those examples, this portico also might have been a covered hall or entrance with columns, 15 feet by 30 feet by 30 feet (2Ch 3:4). Most reconstructions of the temple show a covered entry without columns.

6:4These windows pierced the walls above the height of the surrounding rooms (vv. 5-6).

6:5-6 These three levels of storage rooms surrounding the temple on the outside are omitted in Chronicles. The lower stories were narrower than the upper stories. The lowest ceiling beams pierced the outer wall of the storage room at the end away from the temple and rested on a ledge, one and one-half-feet wide, on the end toward the temple. This ledge was three feet from the temple wall. The second story beams pierced the same outer wall, but rested on another ledge, one and one-half-feet wide, that was one and one-half feet from the temple wall. The third story beams pierced the same outer wall but rested on a one and one-half-foot ledge that touched the temple wall itself but did not pierce it.

6:7 Cutting the stones to exact measure off-site and then putting them in place without further dressing with iron tools required great skill. This wording here permits a final polishing that smoothed the surfaces and equalized the surfaces at the joints between the stones.

6:8 The Hebrew language of this verse is obscure. In the LXX it is said that the bottom story was accessed through a door on the right, or south (see note at 7:39), side of the structure. With only one door, access to other stories would have been by an interior doorway and stairway, of which we have no exact information. The Hebrew text suggests an external stair or ladder to the second story instead of the outer door mentioned above.

6:9 This verse addresses only the planks of cedar and cedar beams that covered the outer surfaces of the temple and surrounding chambers (for the interior surfaces, see vv. 15-22).

6:10 The stories of the outer rooms were 7 1⁄4 feet high, apparently including the thickness of the ceilings. Thus the total height of the three stories of outer rooms was 21 3⁄4 feet, about half the height of the temple itself.

6:11-13 God blessed the temple with the promise that He would live among the Israelites if they kept His commandments.

6:15 The interior walls were paneled with cedar while the flooring was cypress wood, probably Phoenician juniper or some other evergreen. The Chronicles account (2Ch 3:5) seems to use the word "cypress" as a general name for both cedar and cypress.

6:16-17 The inner sanctuary of the temple, the most holy place, was also paneled with cedar and separated from the rest of the temple by a cedar wall. This produced the common three-part temple plan: (1) the court, (2) the sanctuary (the holy place), and (3) the inner sanctuary (the most holy place or the holy of holies).

6:18 The interior paneling was carved with gourds and flower blossoms as well as cherubim and palm trees (v. 29).

6:19-20 The height of the inner sanctuary was only 30 feet, leaving about 15 feet between its top and the ceiling of the temple. The stone was completely covered (v. 18). However, the pure gold overlay in verse 21 and in 2Ch 3:7 does not necessarily demand that the entire surface was overlaid with gold. Like the ivory inlay in ivory beds (Am 6:4) or ivory palaces (Ps 45:8), this could refer to an esthetically selective usage of gold overlay. First Kings 6:35 ("applied evenly") may reveal the nature of this gold overlay. The best way to achieve such an even covering was to use gold that had been hammered into thin foil and then gently hammered onto selected surfaces until it adhered to those surfaces. Both the precious gold and the fine, expensive cedar wood showed God's glory.

6:22 Here, in agreement with the LXX, the altar of incense was the altar that belongs to the inner sanctuary. This indicated a new location of the altar of incense. In the tabernacle it was in the holy place just outside the veil. Here it was in the inner sanctuary itself (Heb 9:3-4). However, the Hebrew language could be taken as ambiguous: “The altar that is to/for the . . .”.

6:23-28 If the craftsmanship was typical for the time, the two larger cherubim were made of pieces of olive wood fastened together, probably glued, then carved, and then covered with gold, probably hammered gold foil (see note at vv. 19-20). Some suggest that the cherubim formed the throne of God. In the apocalyptic visions, similar beings seem to represent the glory of God. In pagan contexts, they were construed as supernatural protectors of kings and gods.

6:30 Even the floor was decorated or overlaid . . . with gold, but probably by a harder gold alloy.

6:34 This verse could describe each of the sanctuary doors as involving two hinged panels, perhaps like modern bifold doors.

6:36 The courtyard was enclosed by a wall that included cedar beams. This technique was often used to bind stone walls together for earthquake protection.

6:38 The temple was completed in the month of Bul, the eighth month of the Canaanite calendar (our modern October-November).

7:1 The word palace complex accurately translates the Hebrew word for “house.” Solomon took 13 years to build his palace complex in contrast with seven years for building the temple. This difference in time does not necessarily indicate that Solomon cared more for his house than for the Lord’s temple. The shorter time spent on the temple could reflect a piously motivated rush and intensity in building. Conversely, the longer time spent on the palace complex may be explained by its greater complexity. It had to meet the many types of needs for administering an empire.

7:2-4 If verse 8 describes Solomon’s personal dwelling, where he would “live” (or “sit”; v. 8), then these verses probably describe a large building dedicated to public business. The structure described for the House of the Forest of Lebanon is difficult for modern readers to visualize. Ancient Hebrew readers would likely understand it better given their familiarity with Hebrew idioms and terms, plus many early readers would have had a visual memory of the structure, which lessened the need for the author to describe it in a way that could easily be visualized. Our understanding is further complicated by the possibility that the Israelites used the same Hebrew word for more than one foreign architectural feature (see note at v. 6) Understanding this description involves uniting the four rows of pillars that held up the central portion of the building (v. 2) with the three rows of pillars associated with three tiers of roof (vv. 3-4). If modeled after Egyptian architecture, these windows were placed in the roof where a change in ceiling height permitted the placing of windows between the columns and between the two different roof levels. The terminology for these windows is not well understood. The spaces between the two elevations and between the columns of the row left room for a row of windows. The whole row of columns left spaces for a tier of windows.

The three rows of pillars totaling 45 pillars, 15 per row, would fit in well with the three rows of window frames, arranged in three tiers. Since the building would normally be symmetrical, with two sets of three tiers facing each other, we may be discussing six tiers of facing windows, three on each side of the high central portion of the palace. These windows then would be associated with six rows of columns, three on each side of the high central portion. Each tier of windows occupied the elevation between two roof levels of different height. The structures related above still leave several features that are not clearly defined. It is possible that the word chambers refers not to rooms above these pillars but to the beams on which the actual roof panels rested.

7:5 This verse seems to describe either three sets of ground level doors that faced each other across the width of the building or three matching sets across the front of the building. It is possible that the window openings in the doors were in tiers.

7:6 This verse uses the Hebrew word translated portico (Hb 'ulam) with two different meanings. The first portico, translated hall of pillars, could be another covered court with columns (on portico, see note at 6:3). The second is sometimes translated as a pilastered wall with a roof or overhang. The HCSB communicates roughly the same idea by canopy with pillars. This context clearly indicates that the portico, whatever it was, was covered and may have had pillars.

7:7 The Hall of the Throne was another columned entrance or portico. The contextual association with the House of the Forest of Lebanon (see note at vv. 2-4) hints that this hall might have been the public entrance of the larger building, an appropriate place for the throne where people sought judgment.

7:8 The house in which Solomon would live also was another roofed structure with columns and walls paneled with cedar. Solomon's personal dwelling and the house . . . for Pharaoh's daughter were the same type of structure.

7:9-11 Since the inner, columnar supports for the roofs have been described, this verse describes the outer walls and perhaps some interior walls of these buildings. These walls were made of fine stones finished to measure—sawed with saws—on the exposed surfaces. This probably meant sawed to a close approximate shape and then finished smooth by some polishing technique (see note at 6:7). Cedar wood was also used on some upper parts of the walls.

7:12 On the construction of the temple courtyard, see note at 6:36.

7:13-14 For a devout follower of Yahweh, importing the Phoenician craftsman named Hiram (not to be confused with king Hiram) was more acceptable since his mother was Hebrew. Importing Phoenician artists was a regular practice in the ancient world.

7:15-21 The pillars were 27 feet high, with 7 1⁄4-foot-high capitals, for a total of over 34 feet. Latticework and ovoid art covered the structure of the capitals and their ornaments. The shape of the capitals, both for these pillars and for the pillars of the portico, was like an open lily blossom. Some have given these pillars a cosmic significance by translating their names as "He established/will establish/establishes [from Jachin] in strength [from Boaz]." This could be more significant if one analyzes the temple itself as a cosmic symbol of the universe, as some have done (J. Walton, Lost World of Genesis One). On the other hand, the "pillar" mentioned in 2Kg 11:14 and 23:3 could indicate that the Davidic dynasty, rather than the temple or universe, was established in strength.

7:23-26 A huge bronze vessel, containing about 11,000 gallons, served as the main reservoir for water used for cleansing. Second Chronicles 4:6 indicates that this larger reservoir was allotted to priestly cleansing, which might imply that the bronze water carts (1Kg 7:27) were allotted to the Levites. We are not sure what shape the ornamental gourds represented since gourds come in many shapes. Since a cylindrical shape, in contrast to a conical shape, is needed for the stated capacity of the reservoir, the description, fashioned like . . . a lily blossom, could refer to only the rim of the reservoir.

7:27-28 The following is one possible understanding of the structure of the bronze water carts: They were essentially boxes on wheels for mobility. Each of the four sides had two square panels (frames) with carvings. There were carved crosspieces both above and below the panels/frames. Above the top crosspieces were attached supports ("pedestal"; v. 29) presumably for the basin.

7:30 There were axles with two wheels under each end of each cart.

7:31-37 The simplest understanding of verse 31 is that it describes an internal circular structure which, together with the pedestals and the four corner supports, supported a bronze basin (v. 38) and held it in place. Real chariot wheels were made of wood.

7:38 Then the bronze basins were set into the water carts. If their shape were more like a cylinder, a depth of slightly more than one foot would give a capacity of roughly 220 gallons. A more conical lily shape would demand a greater depth, possibly as much as three feet. Either could still fit into the cart with the water level about four and one-half feet above the ground.

7:39 The right side in descriptions of the temple is to the south, as if one is standing in the door of the temple looking out to the east.

7:40-45 These were generally the new items that had to be made anew for a new context.

7:47 Since bronze was a valuable commodity, it is an indication of Solomon's wealth that he did not have to keep track of the amount of bronze used.

7:48-51 When these implements were moved into the temple, the operation was finished.

8:1-9 : 9 This dedication was rooted in covenant history, and it was a reprise of many points of covenant theology. The specific offenses mentioned in Solomon's great prayer reflected the atmosphere, if not the very words, of Leviticus 26. On the other hand, much of the terminology also reflects particularly Deuteronomic sources. The prayer also focuses on more recent covenant history, especially the recently chosen dynasty, the dynasty's city, and the new permanent home for God's presence with His people.

8:1 Solomon here operated through traditional tribal and clan structures. Either his royal bureaucracy was not yet developed or he deferred to the traditional structures as a courtesy. Moving the ark from David's private shrine on Mount Zion to the new national temple in Jerusalem restored the ark to its role as a national religious symbol.

8:2 All Israel was represented by these traditional leaders. Though the phrase the men here refers to people of both genders, to translate it in that way would be an acculturation rather than a translation. This assembly happened in Ethanim (aka Tishri, the seventh month, September-October), the month of the great Day of Atonement. The regular festival of this month was the Festival of Harvest (Ex 23:16)—Booths or Tabernacles—that was celebrated about a week after the Day of Atonement.

8:3-4 After the difficult lesson David learned concerning the proper movement of the ark (2Sm 6:7-8), all the transporting was implemented in the proper manner.

8:5 These extensive sacrifices were suitable for a pivotal point in covenant history.

8:6-7 The ark's place was under the wings of the great cherubim whose wings extended across the width of the inner sanctuary. Thus symbolically, the ark was restored to its rightful place under the symbols of God's glory and the agencies that protected that glory (see note at 6:23-28).

8:8-9 The poles had to remain since they could not be removed from the gold rings (Ex 25:15). Of the three original contents of the ark, the sample of manna and Aaron's rod had been lost so that only the stone tablets of the law remained. These highlighted the covenant relationship between the Israelites and God.

8:10-11 God's impenetrable and unbearable glory filled the new sanctuary. We must go to 2Ch 7:1 to get any indication of a visible, supernatural descent of this glory (cp. Lv 9:24).

8:12-13 This brief introduction states several significant points of history and covenant theology. First, God showed Himself in overwhelming glory and thick darkness. Both prevented human eyes from seeing God. Then, the temple was to be God's dwelling despite the fact that neither earth nor heaven could contain God. Therefore, only the name (v. 18) of God dwelt in the temple. This tension recognizes that nothing can contain God, but God can, nevertheless, be present in some special way. Several schools of scholarship see God's name as reflective of God's reputation or fame. This suggests that one implication of a dwelling place for God's name was that the fame—the knowledge of God's great works—would go forth from that dwelling.

8:14 This scene acted out the role of the Davidic dynasty as the spiritual representative of the people. Solomon first stood before God speaking for the people. Then he turned from facing God to bless the entire congregation.

8:15 God practiced covenant faithfulness in keeping His promises to David.

8:16-17 Four major steps in advancing God's covenant agenda are described here. First, by implication, God had a dwelling place among His people. Second, this dwelling was the temple built by the Davidic dynasty. Third, it was in the city chosen, providentially, by David. And fourth, this was the dynasty chosen by God. These ideas added a sense of finality to choosing the Davidic dynasty and building the temple. Psalm 78 (esp. vv. 65-72) expresses the climactic significance of the Davidic dynasty in this program.

8:19-20 Solomon identified himself as the Davidic agent who had brought this program to completion. Here, the thematic spotlight was also on God's reliability and God's keeping what He promised.

8:22 Solomon then turned around again, this time to face God as the representative of the people. At some point (see v. 54), Solomon kneeled with his hands held upwards for this prayer.

8:23-24 Solomon stated more foundational points of covenant theology. The God of the Hebrews is unique. There is no God like Yahweh, God of Israel. God, uniquely, is a covenant-keeping God. That is, God observes (Hb berith chesed) covenant faithfulness, here translated as gracious covenant. Covenant faithfulness was a mutual responsibility for both parties.

8:25 God's covenant faithfulness guaranteed the permanency of the Davidic dynasty but only if Solomon's sons guard their walk before the Lord.

8:26 Keeping His covenant promises expressed God's (Hb) chesed. Solomon asked that this gracious faithfulness would continue.

8:27-30 After acknowledging that this house could not contain God, Solomon stated the major theme of this prayer: that God would confirm His covenant by being attentive to the prayer of His people, directed to this temple for the following concerns. This attentiveness would lead to forgiveness and restoration, recurrent themes in the remainder of this prayer. In effect, this prayer argued that God's covenant response to prayer, directed to this temple, guaranteed God's interest in all aspects of Israel's life.

8:31-32 When uncorroborated testimony must be supported by a solemn oath, the oath should be taken at this temple. In broad terms God would hear prayer to validate an honest oath and to maintain justice and integrity.

8:33-34 God would hear when the Israelites were defeated in war. In Solomon's hour of greatness, this prayer acknowledged that sin could produce defeat.

8:35-50 The following statements about sin, disaster, and restoration are not repetitious, stereotypical formulae. There is much freedom and creativity in composing the statements. Yet certain elements seem to recur. The whole process can involve: (1) sinning; (2) repentance; (3) acknowledgement of truth (either as "confessing" truth, as stating the truth in praise, or as stating the truth in thanks); (4) prayer; (5) seeking favor; (6) God's hearing; (7) forgiveness; and (8) restoration.

8:37-40 Other natural disasters also were occasions for praying to God. The Lord would hear, forgive, and reward in accordance with his (the worshiper's) ways. This would result in the fear of God among His people. "Fear" is a rich word that includes a multitude of concepts, including formal worship of God, actual fear of God, and reverence for God.

8:41-43 Solomon states the theology of missions that is implicit in God's great works of witness. The foreigner should hear of God's works and then pray toward the temple to God. And God would hear that foreigner's prayer. The popular Christian misunderstanding that the OT was purely a Hebrew document, written by and for Hebrews alone, can easily miss this point. The intended result of OT revelation was the spread of the knowledge of God to all the people on earth.

8:46 Sin produces defeat in war and captivity. This truth could point to the occasional historical defeats and partial captivities of God's people, but it could also point to the two great national deportations of the people.

8:51-53 Solomon then looked to the historical basis for the covenant relationship between God and His people, particularly that He had delivered them from Egypt.

8:54-56 In his role as the spiritual representative of the people, Solomon had prayed in a posture of humble obeisance before God. This role as the spiritual intermediary between the people and God continued when Solomon stood, turned to the people, and blessed them by announcing, May the LORD be praised.

8:57-59 Solomon prayed for God's presence with His people, for he knew that God's active participation (causes us to be devoted) was required to keep the people faithful to their covenant with God. The climactic location ("the altar of the Lord," v. 54) of this request tangibly represented God's ongoing presence among His people.

8:60-61 The result of this faithfulness brings us again to the major theme of OT missions—that all the peoples of the earth may know that Yahweh is God. With these words, Solomon made a worldwide missions proclamation.

8:62-63 The large number of offerings, especially the fellowship offerings eaten by the worshipers, turned this into a huge, state-funded, national festival.

8:64 Everything that became a part of official worship had to be ritually consecrated.

8:65 This, and perhaps similar great national festivals, involved the entire empire (defined by its ideal bounds) from the entrance of Hamath on the north to the Brook of Egypt, on the south. Extrabiblical documents confirm that the Brook of Egypt was the Wadi Arish or was near this wadi.

9:1-3 At this point, about 946 B.C. in Solomon's twenty-fifth year, God again appeared to Solomon and reaffirmed the holy status of the temple. Though the human consecrations had occurred, the most important consecration was when God declared the temple fit for His residence. Three points were made. God's name would dwell there. God's eyes would be there, giving attention to the temple and in seeing out from it as well. And it would be the center of God's affections, or God's heart.

9:4-5 Turning to Solomon, God again promised him a permanent dynasty, conditioned upon his obedience.

9:6-9 If Solomon's royal descendants persistently worshiped false gods, the Lord would judge Israel. Since the kings were the spiritual representatives of the people, their disobedience was counted as the disobedience of the people. Then the greatest of the covenant punishments—loss of the land—could happen to the Israelites. Ironically, after this judgment the overthrow of Jerusalem and the ruins of the temple would cause Israel to become an object of scorn and ridicule among all the peoples , just the opposite of God's missionary purpose for Israel (see 8:60). In the OT there are two broad types of reaction to God's great works on behalf of His people, one positive and one negative. Positively, the great works of God often prompted recognition of God's holy character, which could cause a turning to Him (e.g., Rahab, Jos 2:9-10,12-13). Negatively, people could be filled with despair at the threat God posed (Jos 2:11), react with blasphemous obstinacy (e.g., Pharaoh hardening his heart; Ex 7:19-23), or be appalled or dismayed by seeing God's judgments against His own people.

9:10-25 The biblical writer then recorded, not in chronological order, several general social and economic policies loosely related to Solomon's building operations. In terms of biblical theology, these describe Solomon's God-given glory. Some of the details of Solomon's administration involved a misuse, even grossly sinful misuse, of God's good gifts. However misused, they still revealed the glory that God gave to Solomon.

9:10-14 The scenario here is of two equal rulers haggling over an international business deal. Solomon may have driven a hard bargain with Hiram—large amounts of building materials plus gold—for some unproductive border villages. E. Merrill's analysis sees Hiram as paying Solomon despite Hiram's dissatisfaction with the deal. Hiram's words my brother probably indicated the treaty relationship between the two rulers. An international treaty could be called a treaty of brotherhood (Am 1:9).

9:15 Solomon's building operations were widespread and significant for politics, for forced labor economics, and for displaying glory and magnificence. First there were the building operations in Jerusalem: the temple, the royal palace, the supporting terraces, and the wall of Jerusalem. One theory about the supporting terraces, also called the Millo, is that they were needed to keep the walls from collapsing into the unsettled "fill" (Hb millo) of an earlier valley that had been filled or partially filled. The next three names—Hazor, Megiddo, and Gezer—referred to cities that guarded vulnerable routes of attack in the highland heart of Judah and that were fortified by Solomon, using forced labor. All of these operations demonstrated Solomon's power and glory and, on close examination, the potential abuses of that power and glory. Solomon and Amos gave principles to guide situations like this. Wealth, even luxury, gained by performing a service (Pr 10:4) is acceptable. But luxury that ruins a society (Am 6:6) is sinful.

9:16 This verse explains Solomon's control over Gezer. The scholarly consensus is that David never completely subdued the Philistine cities, so Egypt felt free to invade Philistia even while David ruled. Then moving to an issue where scholarly consensus breaks down, possibly the king of Egypt realized that he had overreached in the invasion and he therefore ceded Gezer to Solomon. Gezer was strategic for Israel, permitting them to control the coastal north-south trade route and one of the approaches from the coast to Jerusalem. In addition, Pharaoh was forced into an unusual, perhaps humiliating, marriage alliance in which he gave an Egyptian princess to a foreign king.

9:17-19 These verses describe more of Solomon's military building operations together with some of the more important names involved. These operations were more extensive and expensive than this brief description indicates. They involved garrison and provision cities for a world-class chariot army. This demanded huge initial expenses, road maintenance, and facilities for feeding and caring for the chariot horses as well as living quarters for the charioteers and support personnel. Since the charioteers represented a high degree of skill, which could not be quickly developed, it is likely that Solomon's charioteers were largely made up of international mercenary warriors. Later, as early as Zimri (16:9), Israel had homegrown chariot warriors. Since this text is ambiguous concerning Tamar (in southern Judah) and Tadmor (ancient Palmyra in Aramean territories), we are not positive which location is referred to here. Second Chronicles 8:4 clearly refers to Tadmor. Solomon's building in Tadmor probably referred to Solomon's imperial fortifications there.

9:20-21 There were two categories of Canaanite survivors among the Israelites. First, there were Canaanites, like the house of Rahab, the Gibeonite league, and apparently some of the sons of Hamor (Jdg 9:28) who had survived since the time of Jacob. These had more or less converted to faith in Yahweh and were assimilated into the Israelite population. The rights of these Canaanites were protected even when they were not completely assimilated (e.g., the Gibeonites, who could demand vengeance because Saul violated their rights; 2Sm 21:1-6). Second, there were the unconquered and still openly pagan Canaanites who were yet to be either killed or assimilated into Israelite society. Solomon's forced labor brigades were probably pressed into service from this second group.

9:24 Moving Pharaoh's daughter out of Jerusalem and so away from the temple can be interpreted in two ways: as an act of piety that removed pagan pollution from the vicinity of the temple, or as an act of respect for the most prestigious of Solomon's political marriages by giving her quarters worthy of her stature.

9:26-10 : 29 We must recognize Solomon's historical role in world trade as presented in these documents. North-south trade in luxury items was already producing wealth. Southern Arabia, Africa, and points further east were sources of expensive commodities such as gold, ivory, and jewels; esoteric luxury items such as apes and baboons; and spices. These goods could move from the region of southern Arabia north. Depending on the security of sea travel, they could come north by ships on the Red Sea, or they could come north by camel caravan on the Red Sea coast of the Arabian Peninsula. If they came by sea, they could move to the Mediterranean Sea either through Egypt, via the famed Wadi Hamamat, or they could move through the region of Palestine. In either case, once the goods reached the Mediterranean Sea, they went to points further west in Phoenician ships. At this time violent repercussions of Greek-speaking invaders still hampered sea trade to the north toward the Black Sea.

Solomon's joint sea ventures with Hiram were a way of controlling this trade and channeling it through Hebrew territory so that Solomon, instead of Pharaoh, shared in the wealth of such trade. Solomon, like Herod the Great and the Athenians, built a famed temple with the profits from international trade.

9:26-28 These verses indicate that Solomon implemented regular mercantile, seafaring expeditions from Ezion-geber. Some believe it is more accurate to speak in terms of caravan trade from the south rather than seafaring commerce. The decisive argument for seafaring trade is the fact that, according to Egyptian wall inscriptions, Shishak (14:25-26) destroyed the forts in the Arabah that protected the routes from Eloth north. This effort was frivolous if it was not aimed at diverting the sea trade via the Red Sea to Egyptian territory.

10:1-29 This chapter deals with Solomon's wealth, his international reputation, and his trade practices.

10:1 The author begins with the the queen of Sheba (Sabea in the southwestern corner of Arabia) investigating Solomon's rumored wisdom. Perhaps other political and economic interests motivated her visit as well.

10:2 Since the land routes were more convenient for traveling from southern Arabia, and perhaps because Solomon's fleets had cut her off from sea travel, the queen came with a camel caravan loaded with the luxury goods that made her land wealthy and famous. She and Hiram (9:10-14), in their dealings with Solomon, demonstrated one of the models for international commerce: that international trade could be conducted as gifts between heads of state. The gifts were delivered with all the generous appearances of real gifts, but the business managers probably were there to evaluate the real value of the exchanges. And, if an exchange was not fair, one of the partners could complain, as Hiram did (9:13).

10:4-5 These verses demonstrate the moral complexity and depth of the Bible writer's vision. As a manifestation of God's good gifts to Solomon, all this luxury was God-given. However, being abused in practice, this luxury also demonstrated the sinful excess that burdened the people and helped to bring down Solomon's empire.

10:6-9 There were two sides to the queen's glowing report of Solomon's greatness and the blissfulness of his servants. On the good side, it showed both God's glory and Solomon's glory and his capacity for producing wealth. But it also showed the short-sighted, luxurious misuse of those gifts.

10:10 Sheba was famous for spice production and probably also had its own maritime trade with points further east. The gold that the queen brought was probably in payment for goods that Solomon was shipping south.

10:11-12 In the absence of firm data about the technological status of the peoples and lands from which these items were imported, one can wonder if this trade was as exploitative as the early European trade with the primitive New World. From the biblical perspective this high-yield trade pictured Solomon's glory as well as God's glory.

10:13 Again, these gifts probably involved some business-like bargaining.

10:14-15 These verses give a broader perspective on the wealth, trading partners, and tributary areas of Solomon's empire.

10:16-17 This hammered gold probably utilized a technology in which soft, nearly pure gold was hammered into thin sheets. Then this foil, because of its malleability, could be applied to almost any surface. This kind of fragile decoration was intended for purely ceremonial use. The large shields were modeled after the large rectangular shields more useful for heavy infantry lined up in formation in battle. The circular prototypes of the small shields were better suited for more mobile, light-armed infantry.

10:18 Like other luxurious trappings of glory already noted, this throne was decorated with ivory inlay and hammered gold overlay.

10:19 Lions were a common motif associated with royalty in ancient times. For instance, the palaces of pagan kings often included carved lions representing supernatural beings who were thought to guard the king and his palaces. In Hebrew apocalyptic imagery, such creatures were more symbolic of God's glory. Thus they may here symbolize the king's glory, which ultimately derived from God's glory. Two lions here are described as beside the armrests. In some similar ancient thrones, the backs of the lions were the armrests while the legs of the lions formed the legs of the throne.

10:20 This description closes with the writer's boast about the uniqueness of Solomon's throne and dais—an expression more properly taken to indicate the king's unique glory rather than the purported uniqueness of structures related to his throne.

10:21 Pure gold is too malleable to use in table utensils; some variety of gold alloy is much more practical.

10:22 That the mercantile expeditions were undertaken every three years indicates that they were far-reaching, perhaps even bypassing the seafaring interests of possible allies such as Sheba. The expeditions also imply the existence of firm alliances with distant trading partners since the fleets had to have access to friendly harbors during the annual monsoon winds. Tarshish was likely in Spain. The Hebrew word translated peacocks is difficult to interpret. In light of the close diplomatic and cultural connections between Solomon and

Egypt, the word may actually refer to a type of baboon native to Egypt.

10:26 In light of the data describing Solomon's imperial influence, this figure for a chariot army, 1,400, seems appropriate or slightly on the low side. About a century later, Assyrian documents assert that Ahab of Israel could mobilize 2,000 chariots. The 12,000 horsemen probably included the human handlers, trainers, other support personnel for the chariot horses, and the chariot warriors themselves.

10:28-29 An important part of Solomon's trade and commerce was his trade in chariots and chariot horses. The best chariots were made in Egypt. One of the major suppliers of horses was a place in northern Egypt known as Mitsri. This indicates that Solomon had established himself as the middleman for much of the north-south arms trade of his day.

11:1-43 This chapter describes Solomon's failures, which began in the early years of his rule.

11:1-2 David had also married foreign wives, but they did not change either his religious life or that of the nation. Solomon's wives, on the other hand, were known devotees of their national deities. Solomon's Hittite wives had historical ties with the old Hittite aristocracies of the preceding millennium. Ruth, the Moabitess, showed that there was no offense in marrying a foreigner who had converted (Ru 4:13).

11:3 Solomon's many political marriages demanded respect for the resident princesses and the political groups they represented, especially when he was old and needed help in controlling the empire (vv. 14-40). Princesses probably designated his political wives in contrast to his 300 ordinary harem women, or concubines.

11:4-8 These religious compromises were likely seen as politically expedient acts of courtesy to Solomon's foreign wives, comparable to extraterritorial privileges that allow embassies in our time to conduct themselves according to the laws and customs of their native land, but these common-sense principles conflicted with faith in God and God's covenant with Israel. Both Ashtoreth (Astarte, Ishtar) and Milcom (Molech) were international deities worshiped under numerous names in different countries. Chemosh, by contrast, was a god of Moab, probably a god of war.

11:9-13 Two divine visions were not enough to keep Solomon faithful. His departure from the Lord produced a sentence of judgment, the execution of which was deferred and mitigated on account of his father David's faithfulness and on account of Jerusalem's reputation as Yahweh's city (v. 32).

11:14-40 God began to weaken Solomon so that his empire and most of his kingdom would be lost at his death. This was accomplished both by providential intervention in normal trends and, in the case of Jeroboam, by direct prophetic intervention (vv. 29-33).

11:14-17 Though God tolerated many character flaws, including excessive violence, in his chosen servants of Israel, this tolerance did not prevent their evil acts from yielding evil fruit. For instance, the resentment in Edom against Joab and David for their brutality (2Sm 8:13-14) helped to weaken Solomon years later. All Israel refers only to the group under discussion—the soldiers involved in the campaign against Edom.

11:18-22 God used Pharaoh's opportunism to weaken Solomon. Pharaoh exploited both Hadad and Jeroboam to undermine Solomon. The presence of foreign threats such as these could explain why Solomon willingly compromised his faith in order to appease his wives. He hoped better relations with his Egyptian wife might prompt Egypt to enact a more favorable foreign policy toward Israel. Even while Solomon lived, control over Edom was weak enough to permit Hadad to return home. An insecure Edom threatened the caravan routes from Eloth (9:26) northward.

11:23-25 Rezon, in moving from an outlaw warrior to a legitimate king, paralleled the career of King David. With Rezon's rule, Damascus became Israel's main enemy in Aram. Again, this situation developed while Solomon ruled.

11:26 Jeroboam is introduced as a rebel in an introductory summary of his career under Solomon.

11:29-32 God intervened in governmental affairs through the prophecy of Ahijah. The fact that 10 tribes and one tribe does not account for all 12 tribes of Israel should not be taken as problematic. Levi may or may not be counted in such groupings, or Ahijah may have meant that one tribe would remain in addition to Judah (see note at 12:20).

11:33-34 God rejected Solomon because he encouraged false worship (vv. 5-8). He would be judged, but out of loyalty to David God would not completely reject Solomon's dynasty.

11:37-39 The only major idea of the Davidic covenant that was neither offered nor implied to Jeroboam was the relationship defined by the words, "I will be a father to him, and he will be a son to Me" (2Sm 7:14).

11:40 Solomon's attempt to kill Jeroboam reduced him to the same tyranny as Saul when Saul tried to kill David. By sheltering Jeroboam, Shishak king of Egypt again meddled in Solomon's affairs. The corrosion in Solomon's rule was clear.

11:41-43 The Book of . . . Events was probably the official, factual record of the king. This succession statement, like all future succession statements, ignored the traditional leaders of the tribes. This formal close to Solomon's rule was the writer's signal that he was finished with Solomon's era. Now the story moves to Solomon's successor.

12:1-33 There are two reasons for the great attention given here to the northern kings. First, because of the covenant offered to Jeroboam I (11:31,38), it was proper to record the evidence that the northern kings rejected God's covenant. Though God knew what the future would bring, Israel did not immediately disappear from the prophetic and historical picture. Being in the north, Israel was more exposed to the flow of events, both economic and political. Therefore, at its best, Israel's location guaranteed wealth and power. At its worst, Israel's location exposed it to greater danger of foreign conquest.

12:1 Shechem was strategically located on the main road north of Jerusalem near the border of Ephraim and Manasseh. Therefore it was a good location for shadowing Jerusalem on the north and for gathering the traditional northern tribal leaders. The advantages of this location were confirmed when Jeroboam made Shechem his capital. David, earlier, had made a covenant with the elders for the kingship (2Sm 5:3), but these elders were ignored when Solomon came to power (1Kg 1). They were open to David's dynasty, but they wanted to negotiate. Rehoboam had to satisfy the traditional elders in order to become king. Clearly, if it had been God's choice for Rehoboam to rule the united empire, He could have accomplished it, but the Lord had rejected Solomon, so He permitted the forces of disunity to proceed.

12:2-4 Jeroboam was summoned from Egypt to speak for the elders. After Solomon's oppressive policies they demanded that the economic burdens be lightened.

12:8-16 Rehoboam's arrogance can be explained only by his presumption that he could demand and receive Solomon's absolute power. Rehoboam wanted to operate in terms comparable to the divine right of kings but with neither the military power nor the moral authority to enforce this approach. Rehoboam's younger (fortyish) companions, who had grown up in Solomon's absolutism, supported him with two proverbial similes and overrode the better counsel of the elders.

12:18 Rehoboam's naivete and foolishness were demonstrated by his sending Adoram (the same man as Adoniram; 5:14), director of the forced labor battalions, to enforce his rule. Adoram represented one of the heavier and more degrading of the burdens Solomon had placed on the people. The northerners killed him in a particularly insulting way, and Rehoboam barely escaped with his life.

12:20 In theory, the traditional authorities had exercised their right to elect the king. However, even in the north their elective rights would quickly give way to dynastic succession and military revolution. The statement that the tribe of Judah alone followed David is another true but rhetorical statement (cp. 11:35-36). It was true that only the tribe of Judah completely followed David, but portions of Benjamin, remnants of Simeon, many Levites, and even other northerners who wished to remain true to the covenant dynasty also followed the house of David (2Ch 11:13-17).

12:22-24 The divine oracle against fighting their brothers prevented hostilities for the moment, but this was just the beginning of recurrent, generally small-scale, border warfare.

12:25 The selection of Shechem as the capital should have pleased the northerners, for whom it was a natural site for conducting intertribal business. Then Jeroboam built or fortified Penuel, almost directly east across the Jordan rift from Shechem. This gave Jeroboam a fortified foothold on each side of the Jordan River.

12:26-27 Jeroboam's astute scheming showed his doubt of God's promises. The Lord promised Jeroboam 10 tribes, but Jeroboam speculated that God might prove untrue and the people of the north might return to the house of David.

12:28 The most sobering point in this verse is that the king sought advice, and rather than being turned from error, was encouraged to make two golden calves. This act was not simply rebellion against David; it was also the rejection of the proper worship of Yahweh by the leaders and counselors of Israel who advised Jeroboam. The king then set up a new system of worship for the people to keep them from going to Jerusalem for worship. It was a shrewd innovation. Such golden images typically consisted of an image made of cheaper material, usually wood, covered with gold foil or gold plating. Possibly Jeroboam did not intend these images to represent the Lord Himself, but rather meant to imply that Yahweh was the invisible deity riding above the calves. Thus, the king may have intended to produce an alternate, nonidolatrous manner of worshiping the Lord. However, his was still a disobedient, human-made system that had its origins in unbelief and fear rather than faith and obedience.

12:29 Dan already had a history of illegal, idolatrous worship of Yahweh (Jdg 18). The calf shrine in Bethel was on the traditional border between Benjamin and Ephraim, barely 10 miles north of the national temple in Jerusalem. This was a deliberate insult to Jerusalem and the worship conducted there.

12:30-31 The Bible briefly depicts the pomp and circumstance of these consecrations: the people walked in procession before the calf installed at Dan. Jeroboam also set up other illegal shrines throughout the country which he staffed, illegally, with non-Levites. This dispossessing of the Levites from their assigned duties encouraged their emigration southward. Ironically, God may have used Jeroboam's idolatry to concentrate the Levites where their influence for good would be most effective.

12:32-33 Again, with political astuteness but religious disobedience, Jeroboam changed the calendar. He established a festival like the festival in Judah, on the fifteenth day of the eighth month. This festival apparently replaced the observances in the seventh month, Tishri, which included both the Day of Atonement and the Festival of Ingathering (Ex 23:16; also known as the Festival of Booths). The text does not clarify whether Jeroboam's illegal act of sacrifices was a one-time event when he initiated the worship or a habitual act on his part.

13:1 The distinctive introductory statement of this account is literally, "And behold, a man of God came/was coming." This formula, announcing the arrival of a man, can occur at a dramatic new turn within the plot of an episode (Nm

25:6; Jdg 19:16), but it can also open a new story (1Sm 2:27; 2Kg 4:42). Therefore this chapter could be either a dramatic turn in the preceding story or an entirely different event on a later occasion when King Jeroboam officiated at a sacrifice.

13:2-3 The prophet's curse was especially insulting. Contact with human remains was one of the most powerful ways to pollute or desecrate any sacred object. This prophecy that Josiah, centuries later, would desecrate this altar with the corpses of its priests was a powerful statement of God's rejection of this disobedient worship. As related in the later story, these were corpses of already dead priests retrieved from a local cemetery (2Kg 23:16). The truth of the prophet's curse was attested by an immediate sign, the damaging of that altar with the spilling of ashes on the ground. Some suggest that irregular disposal of sacrificial ashes invalidated a sacrifice. If so, the spilling of the ashes here is symbolic of the unacceptability of sacrifices offered on this altar.

13:4-7 God also miraculously punished Jeroboam. The immediate healing of his withered hand as a result of the prophet's intercession should have been another witness to direct Jeroboam into faith and obedience. The king's spiritual shallowness was apparent when he trivialized the miraculous sign into an occasion to beg a personal favor from the prophet. Then Jeroboam offered the prophet a reward and thus treated God like a bargaining partner.

13:8-10 This prophet's steadfastness in obedience contrasts with Saul's willingness to give in to people (1Sm 28:23-25) and Gehazi's eagerness to benefit from Naaman's generosity (2Kg 5:20-27). To eat bread with Jeroboam might be perceived as withdrawing judgment and endorsing his kingdom (1Sm 15:24-31).

13:11-19 Jeroboam's shallow perception of God's holiness would be matched by a certain old prophet who lived in Bethel. This prophet lied to the prophet from Judah. Perhaps the prophet of Bethel wanted the prophet of Judah to validate Bethel's ritual by sharing bread with him.

13:20-21 Then ironically, as they ate, God spoke His true judgment through the same prophet who had just moments earlier lied. God's judgment of the disobedient prophet from Judah is another example of His severe judgment in this book.

13:23-29 This account of the prophet's death is full of wonders. The lion did not devour the corpse or injure the donkey. The donkey stayed put instead of running away. And the lion did not threaten the old prophet when he came to retrieve the corpse—an act of nobility and bravery in contrast to his earlier deceit. To the ancient Israelites, loss of burial with one's own clan was a severe judgment.

13:30-32 The prophet from Judah was buried with honor and respect, and the old prophet reaffirmed the truth of the message by sharing his burial place with the dead prophet.

13:33-34 Jeroboam trivialized and profaned sacred ritual by assuming the right to ordain priests, and in doing so, forfeited his covenant with God. This second statement of judgment on Jeroboam (see notes at vv. 2-3 and 14:10-11) focuses on this offense (cp. 2Kg 17:7-12).

14:1-3 Jeroboam continued his erratic, inconsistent behavior. The king was double-minded or indecisive (Jms 1:8), disobeying God and trying to seek favors from Him at the same time.

14:4-5 In dealing with the query of Jeroboam's wife, God again worked in supernatural ways. God was meeting the people at their own level.

14:6-9 Under all the OT covenants, God's people earned earthly blessings from Him by obeying the stipulations of their covenants with the Lord. The king was to be the leader in obeying and enforcing obedience to the covenant. David was the model of a king who led the people in faithful commitment to loyal worship of the Lord. In their origins David and Jeroboam were similar—God had lifted both from obscurity to power (cp. 2Sm 7:8)—but Jeroboam, unlike David, failed to encourage proper worship. He led the people into false worship.

14:10-11 Therefore God pronounced a third statement of judgment on Jeroboam and his family (see notes at 13:2-3,33-34). This was a thorough judgment. It included such horrors as annihilation of the family and the disgrace of their corpses.

14:13 Since God had found something good in Jeroboam's sick son, a peaceful death and burial were his reward. The Bible does not reveal what the good thing was.

14:14-15 Jeroboam's sin resulted in God's raising up a new king who would destroy Jeroboam's dynasty. The ultimate seriousness of Jeroboam's sin and of this judgment was expressed by threatening the loss of the land (Lv 26:33). This is one of the earliest statements in 1 Kings that defined the place of exile as beyond the Euphrates. While the latter part of this prophesy would be almost 190 years in coming, God was preparing Baasha on that very day to wipe out Jeroboam's dynasty (15:29).

14:19-20 The record of Jeroboam ends with a conventional closing.

14:21-31 Rehoboam, Solomon's son, was the first of many kings for whom the Bible gives complete formal data. The typical pattern included: (1) a formal beginning; (2) an evaluation of his reign, perhaps including some relevant historical notes; and (3) a formal ending. Some of the formal elements of a king's record could be omitted or preempted by other elements.

14:21 Every element in this opening, except the description of Jerusalem as the city . . . Yahweh had chosen, is stereotypical formula. For the kings of Judah, it was common to list the mother's name.

14:22-24 This list of wicked deeds is even more degrading than the typical offenses of some northern kings. At this point, the north could claim to be worshiping Yahweh, though in a manner contrary to His instructions. Judah had sunk into degraded paganism. And the responsibility for this degradation is traceable directly to the throne. Judah's failure was Rehoboam's failure. The text notes that these were the vices of the people whom God had helped the Israelites to drive out of the promised land.

14:25 Including data from Egyptian records along with the Bible, we can see how weak the two Israelite kingdoms had become as a result of the invasion of Shishak. A briefly resurgent Egypt had a large army, and Pharaoh used this army for a devastating plundering raid into Palestine. These invaders, which Solomon's chariots at their height might have easily driven back, plundered both Judah and Israel—including the prosperous merchant cities that opened into the Plain of Esdraelon. Rehoboam's inexperienced levies, which had sounded so grand when mobilized to recapture Israel (12:21), were so helpless against Shishak's Libyan soldiers that they could not even protect Jerusalem from a siege. The Egyptian record of conquered places included a list of fortifications in the Arabah that were crucial for defending the trade route from the Red Sea. The reason for destroying these protective outposts was to divert the lucrative Red Sea maritime trade to Egypt.

14:26-28 Rehoboam's replacement of the plundered gold shields with less valuable bronze shields was a fitting symbol of the decline of the nation's glory and wealth. That they were kept ready in the armory when not in use, instead of on ceremonial display, speaks of the insecurity of the period.

14:29-31 Though not as clearly formal as the opener, the closing paragraph of Rehoboam's rule follows the typical format. It contains the formula statement that the remaining deeds of Rehoboam are recorded in Judah's Historical Record. It mentions the continual border warfare between the kingdoms. This was probably ineffective skirmishing since the military of both kingdoms seems to have been generally ineffective. The mention of Rehoboam's mother's Ammonite heritage may hint that her pagan influence (15:13) affected her son's character.

15:1 -2 The only revealing detail in the formal opening for Abijam's ("Abijah" in Chronicles) record was that his mother Maacah was from the line of Absalom, or Abishalom. This relationship might indicate that Solomon's family had to make some accommodations with the family of Absalom, Solomon's half brother, to maintain rule over Judah (see 2Sm 15-18).

15:3-5 Abijam was bad, like his father (14:22-24), with the typical negative comparison with David, but then this record has one of several statements in 1 Kings to the effect that God spared Jerusalem and a wicked king because of the good king, David.

15:6 The reference to war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam departs from the normal pattern of dealing only with the current king. Other translations follow variant texts that read "Abijam" instead of "Rehoboam." Others consider this to be a scribal error. The HCSB translates this statement as a factual flashback reference to Rehoboam's rule.

15:7-8 The only distinctive point to note in this closer is the reference to continued war between Abijam and Jeroboam, a reference that is redundant if verse 6 also refers to Abijam. At this point these were still border skirmishes.

15:9-24 With King Asa of Judah and Nadab of Israel, two parallel movements began. First, religious revival began under Asa so that God had a reason to restore blessings to the good kings of the south. This revival, led by two good kings, Asa and Jehoshaphat, lasted about 60 years. Then, early in the reign of Asa, the rule of Nadab began a bloody process of civil war and violence, which actually ended with the restoration of Hebrew economic and political power under Omri and Ahab. These two movements were inseparable because God used the renewed power of the wicked kings of the north to bring renewed blessing, power, and wealth to the good kings of the south. Chapters 15 and 16 trace the revival in the south and the resurgence of political power in the north. Asa's revival is recorded first.

15:9-10 The only unexpected point in Asa's opener is that he was a grandson of Maacah, from the line of Absalom, or Abishalom. Thus Absalom and Solomon were co-ancestors to the covenant royal line.

15:11-12 Asa, nevertheless, turned out to be a godly king. He was the first king since the division of the kingdom to do what was right in the LORD's eyes. What influenced him to choose obedience to God? From the data available, it seems that the presence of godly Levites in the south could have been a factor (2Ch 11:13-14).

15:13 As queen mother, Asa's grandmother, Maacah, was a stumbling block to faith in Yahweh. Part of cleansing the kingdom was removing her bad influence.

15:14 For all of the good kings, the high places that were not taken away were probably illegal shrines for worshiping the Lord away from the temple, not for worshiping pagan gods. Tolerating the pagan high places would have been out of character for a good king and contrary to his general behavior as recorded.

15:15 The gifts to the temple, especially the silver and gold, marked the return of prosperity among the people.

15:16-17 With Baasha, whose formal record comes later (15:33-16:7), the border skirmishes became war. His offensives involved both Judah and the Philistine plain. These military advances were probably possible because of the newly reestablished chariot armies. Apparently, Baasha penetrated Benjamite territory and began building a fortress at Ramah about six miles north of Jerusalem. This could have cut off all trade on that road. There were two locations named Ramah just north of Jerusalem. The one in the middle of Benjamin would have posed the greater threat. This would have been a serious blow to whatever limited benefit Judah was gaining from north-south trade on the road through Jerusalem. Most of the significant trade bypassed Jerusalem by moving up the coastal plain and then inland through passes that opened into the Plain of Esdraelon. From there the trade moved to points west in Phoenician ships or by land to points northeast of Palestine.

15:18-22 This was such a serious threat that Asa purchased an alliance with the Arameans of Damascus. The Chronicler rebukes Asa for not trusting in the Lord instead (2Ch 16:7-10). This alliance must have been particularly humiliating since earlier years had been marked by alliances in which the Hebrews were dominant and collected tribute. Now the king of Judah had to pay the Arameans to deliver him from the threat of Israel. The Arameans' response was devastating to Israel. The northern regions were plundered, and Baasha, despite a small resurgence of Hebrew strength, had to take refuge in his capital, Tirzah. Asa then used the building materials at Ramah to build his own defenses north of Jerusalem at Geba and Mizpah in Benjamin. Depending on the location selected for Ramah, these fortifications would have formed a defense line just north of Ramah or two miles or so south of the other Ramah.

15:25 - 16 : 28 This section chronicles the reign of five kings of Israel: Nadab, Baasha, Elah, Zimri, and Omri. Israel had a favorable location for exacting some control over local transit trade. This trade financed a limited revival of Israel's military strength. Israel's military capacity had revived sufficiently for aggressive warfare against the Philistines as early as Nadab, the son of Jeroboam. This new military was a local chariot force that included homegrown Hebrew warriors. Thus, eventually, a Hebrew chariot commander, Omri, could become king of Israel (16:16). Despite the civil wars and palace revolutions, this was a time of restoring the military power of Israel.

15:25-26 These two verses follow the typical formula. They tell of the beginning of the rule of Nadab over Israel and pass the usual negative moral judgment. Jeroboam's example was not only the measure of evil for Nadab, but for almost every other king of Israel.

15:27-29 This campaign against Gibbethon, just south of Gezer, demonstrated the resurgence of Israel's military strength. Since the most effective arm of any offensive army in that era was typically the chariots (with the exception of David's), the text is likely referring to a chariot army. Nadab died in a battlefield revolution. Baasha, Nadab's killer, fulfilled the prophecy that the house of Jeroboam would be exterminated (14:10-11,14).

15:31-32 This closing again calls attention to the more or less continual war between the two kingdoms. The note about war between Asa and Baasha normally would be more at home in the closing section about Baasha.

15:33-34 This introduction reveals nothing distinctive about the rule of Baasha. He was the first of three kings whose beginning of rule and length of rule statements are combined into a single sentence. Translated literally, this formula was: “became king . . . for 24 years.” Introductions to two other kings of this group, Elah (16:8) and Omri (16:23), show this unusual wording.

16:1-4 The preceding condemnation of Baasha’s sin (15:34) did not sufficiently communicate his evil, so Jehu’s judgment reinforced that condemnation. If Jehu’s father was the Hanani who criticized Asa (2Ch 16:7) and Jehu was the Judean chronicler (2Ch 20:34), then another southern prophet was condemning a northern king (1Kg 13:1). The oracle of judgment was similar to the second half of the judgment on Jeroboam (14:11). Ironically, we learn more about Baasha from Asa’s record (15:16-20) than we do from Baasha’s record (see note at 22:41-44).

16:5-6 Since Baasha died naturally, he receives a full formal closer.

16:7 Baasha’s wickedness was so great that even after his closing formula, a third condemnation was added, again by the prophet Jehu. In Hebrew literary style, repetition indicates emphasis.

16:8-14 Another formal opener introduces Elah. The record of the coup that deposed him reveals three facts about Israel’s new army: (1) It was a chariot army; the coup leader, Zimri, was a chariot officer. (2) Revenues were sufficient to support such an expensive army. (3) The officers of this force were Hebrews who qualified to seize the throne. Zimri’s bloody purge fulfilled the prophecy against Baasha (vv. 3-4).

16:15-22 The formal record for Zimri begins here. His revolution was formally part of the record of Elah. Omri, a capable battlefield commander, led the troops to Tirzah, captured the city, and Zimri committed suicide after ruling only seven days. Omri then fought a five-year civil war with Tibni son of Ginath. When Tibni died, Omri became king.

16:23-28 Since Omri’s power and wealth were partly based on an economic and marriage alliance with Ethbaal of Tyre, it is useful to review Phoenician mercantile power. At this time, the Phoenicians controlled Mediterranean trade. They had already established colonies as far away as North Africa and Spain, although the greatest Phoenician colony, Carthage, was yet to be founded. They produced manufactured goods for export throughout the Mediterranean. Omri’s military skill and greatness made him a worthy ally for this maritime trade empire. The Phoenician merchants enhanced Hebrew prosperity by cooperating with Israel’s trade just as they had cooperated with Solomon.

The greatest impact of Omri’s dynasty was in religion. Omri’s daughter-in-law was Jezebel. Jezebel’s Baal was not a typical Palestinian Baal. Rather, he was Baal-melkart, the King of the City (Tyre), the patron deity for more than half of the contemporaneous trade wealth of the Mediterranean. Ahab introduced this deity into Israel, creating a spiritual crisis. The next 50 years of Hebrew history and about 17 chapters of Kings (1Kg 16:23-2Kg 11:3) are devoted to this crisis; it was the occasion for the miraculous ministries of Elijah and Elisha.

16:23 The formal opener for Omri is unremarkable for such a great political figure.

16:24 The purchase of a new capital, Samaria, was Omri's outstanding achievement. Omri, like David, exercised personal ownership of his new capital.

16:25 Omri followed the pattern of Jeroboam's false cult, which led Israel into false worship. Omri's full, negative impact became clear only with the introduction of Baal-melkart (see note at vv. 23-28) into Israel. Despite his encouragement of idolatry, Omri established the power that restored wealth and empire to the two good kings of Judah.

16:26-28 These verses are Omri's closer, but again, they give an incomplete picture of Omri's spiritual importance. All the attention given to Ahab and the career of Elijah in the following chapters is an indirect reaction to Omri. Ahab and Jezebel were the rulers whom Elijah opposed, but the setting in which he opposed them and their Baalism was the product of Omri's policies. In God's economy, all of Omri's secular greatness amounted to nothing.

16:29-22:40 This section focuses on the reign of Ahab. Despite his succumbing to Jezebel's influence, Ahab was a capable warrior. His military career was marked by amazing highs and lows. At one time he was so firmly under the domination of Ben-hadad of Damascus (chap. 20) that only divine intervention delivered him from destruction, but then Assyrian records reveal that Ahab led the largest contingent of chariots against Assyria at the battle of Qarqar (853 B.C.), where the regional allies turned back a serious Assyrian invasion.

16:29-30 Ahab's opener makes two points: the date when he became king and how long he ruled. The evaluation reports that Ahab was the worst king Israel had up until that time. Jeroboam had set up an illegal cultic apparatus for serving the Lord, and this was enough to make him the archetypal representative of a bad king.

16:31-33 Ahab was even worse than Jeroboam. He not only followed Jeroboam's false worship; he, with Jezebel, went beyond Jeroboam in introducing into Israel the worship of Baal-melkart (see note at vv. 23-28). The altar for Baal and the Asherah pole, the symbol of his female consort, brought this powerful fertility cult to Israel.

16:34 Recording the rebuilding or refortifying of Jericho at this point identified it as a work of Ahab. This in turn illustrated the long reach of Ahab's foreign policy. A probable goal of this operation was to rebuild the fortifications, both of Jericho and of points further south in the Arabah, that protected the trade routes from Eloth. There is no evidence that either Omri or Ahab pushed these trade connections any further south. The deaths of the sons of Hiel could have been viewed as either the impact of an effective curse (Jos 6:26) or a human sacrifice to neutralize the curse.

17:1-19 : 21 This section describes the clash between the prophet Elijah and King Ahab of Israel. One of the greatest missionary themes in OT theology was the witness of God's miraculous signs. The best literary pattern exemplifying this theology is Jethro's visit to Moses in the wilderness (Ex 18). Jethro heard of God's great deeds of deliverance (Ex 18:1) and visited God's people and learned even more about God's great works (Ex 18:8). He praised God (Ex 18:10-11) and then joined in a fellowship meal with God's people (Ex 18:12). These were the same signs that drew Rahab to the Lord (Jos 2:8-13) and threw other Canaanites into despair.

In biblical history, there are four extended periods of witness with great signs and wonders: (1) the exodus and conquest; (2) the age of Elijah and Elisha; (3) the first coming of Christ and the growth of the early church; and (4) the end of history with the miraculous wonders of the book of Revelation. In the age of Elijah and Elisha, faith in Yahweh clashed with one of the most dangerous false deities it ever faced, Baal-melkart of Tyre (see note at 16:23-28). The power encounter between these two rival religions was the setting for the miraculous works of these great prophets.

17:1 The HCSB suggests that Elijah was one of the settlers in Gilead. This raises the possibility that he was a non-Hebrew settler, since a Hebrew was typically described in terms of his tribe and family. Elijah's rustic appearance also set him apart as someone different. He was to announce to one of the most powerful kings in the region that God would send a devastating drought against the land.

17:2-3 The location of the Wadi Cherith is not clear. Some authorities identify it with the Wadi Qelt that passes just south of Jericho. Some translations place it east of the Jordan River, apparently taking the words where it enters the Jordan (lit "which is facing/before the Jordan") as being equal to "facing the Jordan from the east." If we permit Elijah's move eastward from delivering his oracle in Israel to include a great deal of southeasterly movement, the Wadi Qelt is possible.

17:4-7 In sign theology, miracles have meaning. God's miraculous provision of food for Elijah, at a time when God had cut off food for the nation, reminded any hearer/reader that God is the true provider of human needs. Unclean carrion birds (ravens) brought this food.

17:8-9 Then God sent Elijah to the Phoenician city of Zarephath, a Gentile city under Ethbaal's control, for provision and protection. Jesus Himself gave a theologically suitable interpretation of this passage (Lk 4:26-27)—that God sent His messenger with beneficial signs and wonders to a Gentile. God's witness through signs was not given to Israelites alone.

17:12 In referring to the LORD your God, the widow seemed to show she recognized that Elijah represented Yahweh, the God of the Hebrews, yet she did not turn him over to Ethbaal, the king of the Phoenicians. Ethbaal was the father-in-law of Ahab, from whom Elijah was hiding. Either that knowledge was insufficient to specifically identify Elijah to Ethbaal, or she deliberately chose not to betray Elijah.

17:15-16 This miraculous sign illustrated that God rewards faith and obedience, even that of a Gentile.

17:17-24 This miracle teaches three lessons: (1) not all illness is the result of sin; (2) God has power over sickness and death; and (3) the purpose of the signs was to produce faith in the LORD's word.

18:1-46 This chapter describes one of history's great power encounters between God and evil; it is comparable to the encounter between the Lord and the gods of Egypt before the exodus. The prestige of Baal-melkart (see note at 16:23-28), with his association with Phoenician prosperity, was comparable to the historic prestige of the gods of Egypt. The power encounter with Egypt freed the Israelites from physical bondage. One might expect that God's confrontation with Baal-melkart freed Israel from spiritual bondage, but it is hard to find evidence for this. Neither Ahab nor Jezebel repented. The moral life of the northern kingdom was not noticeably influenced. But we cannot know how much worse things would have gone for faith in Yahweh without this encounter. Perhaps the 7,000 (19:18) who had not bowed to Baal were encouraged and strengthened, and thus kept the faith. Humanly speaking, without such manifestations of God's power as these, Hebrew faith might have perished long before the exile.

18:1 In the third year of the drought, God announced its end. This was an act of grace since neither Israel nor Israel's rulers had shown any repentance that warranted it.

18:3-5 Since these verses may have changed to a new story, verse 3 could predate the preceding verses. This would permit the translation, "Ahab had called." This scenario should be interpreted in terms of its historical conditions. It told of two high officials initiating a nationwide effort to find the resources to preserve the kingdom's chariot armies. The story's surface simplicity obscures a grave and historically realistic situation. How could they maintain the provisions for the chariot horses and baggage mules when forage and grazing were exhausted? This situation could have produced Israel's weakness in chariot forces in the first war of chapter 20.

18:6 Both Ahab and Obadiah were accompanied by soldiers and officials who purchased or confiscated the resources as needed.

18:7-8 The prophet Elijah made his approach through Obadiah as the latter was walking along, probably with his search party. Obadiah's deference to Elijah revealed Elijah's stature.

18:10 Obadiah's response made it clear that Elijah's time in Ethbaal's domains was "under cover" since Ahab had initiated a thorough search for the prophet.

18:13 This verse gives a remarkable view of the religious turmoil in Israel. With the government engaged in a bloody purge of those who worshiped the Lord, one of the king's chief political officials was protecting the minority religious party.

18:17 Despite Ahab's bravery and abilities in many areas, his accusation against Elijah showed that willful sin can blind a person to reality.

18:18-19 Elijah immediately took the conversation to the crucial issue—Ahab's disobedience of God. Then Elijah issued his challenge to set up a carefully planned and publicized power encounter pitting Elijah against the prophets of Baal and his consort, Asherah. Asherah is a generic name for any divine consort of any fertility god, but is also sometimes a title or name for a particular goddess.

18:20-21 From the course of events, we can see that some of the worshipers of Baal really believed in the power of their deity and that many who should have followed the Lord did not have much faith. Therefore, for many of the observers, this was a genuine open-ended power encounter to discover which deity was stronger.

18:22-25 Elijah then proposed the terms of the test: whichever god miraculously ignited and burned his sacrifice would prove to be the true deity who was worthy of the people's allegiance. Since Baal was the storm god, his followers believed he could answer with fire (lightning). But this encounter would show which deity really controlled the weather and provided what the people needed. At the same time, it would show who was a destroyer of Israel, rebellious Ahab or the Lord's prophet Elijah.

18:26 The priests of Baal entered into the contest with great zeal. The HCSB takes their dancing as imitating the steps of a lame person, since it uses the same Hebrew word as the one describing Mephibosheth (2Sm 4:4). Perhaps they danced this way as a result of their self-inflicted injuries (1Kg 18:28).

18:27 The Hebrew original possibly indicates that Elijah ridiculed Baal for relieving himself. Reducing deities to any level of human behavior is an insult. Therefore any suggestion that Baal was drawn away to perform a creaturely necessity was a poignant blow by Elijah.

18:28-29 The fanatical zeal of the priests of Baal led them to cut themselves. Some suggest that this self-inflicted pain may have been aimed at gaining the pity of the other gods so they would release Baal from his mythological death and thus bring rain. If this is true, these Baal worshipers were vicariously suffering pain for their god.

18:30-32 These verses draw on powerful symbols and names from the past —12 stones for the 12 tribes, and Israel, the name that Yahweh, the God of their covenant, had given them.

18:33-35 Elijah took steps to avoid any appearance of trickery or fraud. If his God could get a drenching wet sacrifice to burn, his God was God indeed.

18:36-39 Elijah's prayer was a powerful statement of the theology of God's great works. Just as the temple singers declared God's great works so the world could know God (Ps 66:3-4), Elijah prayed for a miraculous sign so this people would know that You, Yahweh, are God. The simplicity of Elijah's procedure is impressive. The prophet prayed, and the sacrifice was miraculously burned.

18:40 Elijah executed God's judgment on the false prophets that Moses commanded in Dt 13:5,13-18; 17:2-5. This was the law for the covenant community, God's holy nation.

18:41-46 Two final miraculous events on this day were (1) the coming of the rain as a result of Elijah's prayer and (2) Elijah's supernatural strength in leaving the scene and passing Ahab's chariot before the storm. Typically, the act of preceding the king's chariot could have been a friendly overture. It was an act of honor to the king and an honor to the runner to be permitted to run before the king. But if this was Elijah's intent, it was lost on Ahab and Jezebel.

19:1-21 This chapter presents facts that argue for the truth of both chapters 18 and 19. The preceding chapter was one of the best examples of a power encounter in the Bible, but chapter 19 demonstrates that God's miraculous works did not bring about repentance, at least not on a scale broad enough to be mentioned. Understandably, Elijah collapsed into an almost hysterical pessimism about what he took to be the failure of God's purposes. The clear lesson is that while power witness is both biblical and effective, sinful people can still reject the greatest of God's signs (Lk 16:31). So too, faithful disciples are wrong to suppose that they are all alone or that God's purposes have truly failed.

19:1-2 Jezebel's rejection of God's signs and the determined, defiant way in which she later faced death (2Kg 9:30-31) demonstrate her character as a person who did what she wanted, no matter the consequences. Sin breeds this self-destructive heedlessness.

19:3 Elijah's faith may have crumbled due to physical and emotional exhaustion. Although his future still included several tasks, it may be significant that his next task was to choose his successor. Beer-sheba, about 100 miles south of Mount Carmel, served as a traditional southern boundary for Israelite territory (Jdg 20:1; 2Sm 24:2).

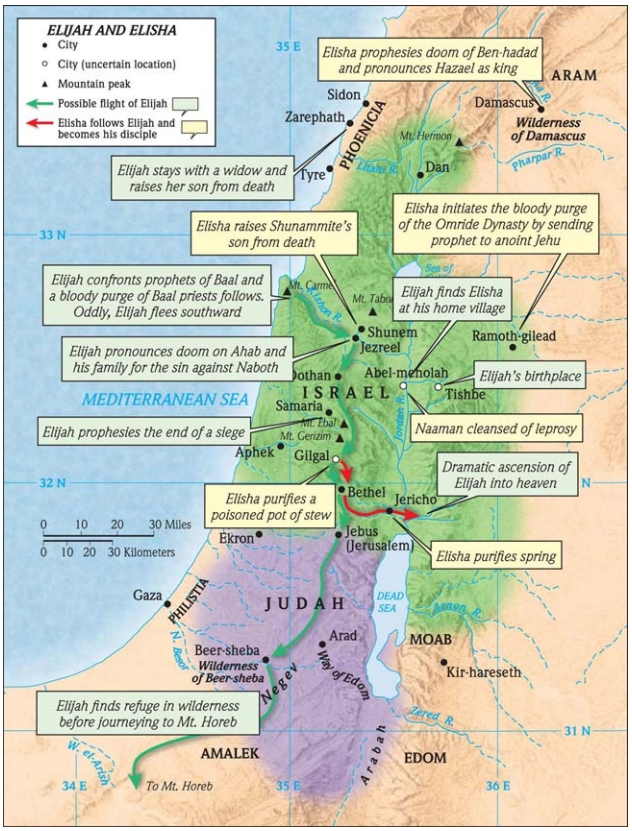
19:4 A day's journey would have taken Elijah out of Judean territory and into deeper desert. The broom tree under which the prophet sat provided shade, and its roots could be used for heat and food. Elijah was in deep depression.

19:5-8 God's miraculous provision was resumed, this time purely for the prophet. After Elijah ate and rested, he returned to the place where the covenant had been given, Mount Horeb, or Sinai. There, Elijah would have his personal faith renewed by God's presence.

19:9-10 Elijah explained his presence at Sinai by referring to his discouragement. Israel's immediate future, as hindsight shows, gave good reason for despair. Judah was to have one more period of God-given prosperity under the four good kings from Joash to Jotham, but during that time, Israel was to be deported to Assyria.

19:11-13 God first reveals His presence to Elijah in His greatness and power, but He did not speak from that position. The Lord instead spoke to Elijah in a soft whisper, showing Himself to be a God who communicates via a still, small voice as well as powerful displays.

19:15-16 God's commands first pointed to judgment. Elijah was to anoint Hazael as king over Aram, Jehu as king of Israel, and Elisha as his own successor. God was still controlling events.



19:17 This command indicated the extent of God's judgment—death at the hands of Hazael, death at the hands of Jehu, and death even at the hands of Elisha through His pronouncements of judgment.

19:18 The second part of God's response gave hope. God still had 7,000 people through whom He could work in the future.

19:19-21 Here we see an advance in agricultural technology—teams of oxen being used for deeper, more effective plowing (Pr 14:4). This showed that Elisha's family was quite prosperous. Elisha's capability to celebrate his new calling with sacrifices and feasting for the whole community also indicated his family's prosperity. The mantle or robe worn by Elijah was a symbol of his position and of Elisha's succession to that position.

20:1-3 This chapter clashes with the general pattern of Israelite strength under the dynasty of Omri. That general political strength and leadership culminated in Ahab's crucial participation in resisting the Assyrians at the battle of Qarqar. Since both the great drought and the wars with Ben-hadad occurred late in Ahab's rule, this chapter probably describes a brief weakness caused by the drought (17:1) and also sheds light on Ahab's earlier desperate search for provisions for his chariot corps (18:5).

20:4-9 Ahab tried to end the siege by a total surrender to Ben-hadad's initial demands, but Ben-hadad then increased his demands so that even a desperate, weakened Ahab resorted to resistance.

20:11 The point of the saying is that a fighter should not count his victories before battle.

20:13-16 Divine revelation gave encouragement and guidance to Ahab. Since there is no mention of Israelite chariots, Ahab's chariot army may have been disabled by the drought. A surprise attack by provincial infantry brought victory for Ahab's army. God's intervention helped in the drunken panic that marked the defeat of the Aramean army. The purpose of the divine intervention was that Ahab would recognize God's character. The lesson failed.

20:20 There are two views on the Aramean cavalry. One is that cavalry did not appear until later so that the ambiguous Hebrew word in this verse refers to charioteers. The other is that Assyrian records confirm the presence of cavalry in the region's armies at this time but the chariot was still the major strike force. So at this time Ben-hadad could have fled with the cavalry.

20:21 In this verse, the cavalry and the chariots are literally "horses and chariots," a combination that at this time would still more likely refer to chariotry. It is reasonable to conclude that much of the Israelite success came from God's blessing on the surprise infantry attack on the unprepared, unharnessed chariots of the Aramean army.

20:23-25 The Arameans then prepared for battle in the following year, most likely in the spring, the usual time for war (2Sm 11:1). They assumed that their mobile forces would be more effective in the plains instead of the mountains. But the reorganization of the Aramean chariots may have been disastrous. A feudal system in which kings provided the chariots was replaced by one in which central government officials maintained the chariots. In the long range, this was an advantage, but in the short range it may have replaced battle-tested nobility with less-experienced government officials. Their preparations included replacing the lost war machines, chariot for chariot.

20:26 The armies mobilized in the plains near Aphek in Bashan.

20:27 Ahab had rebuilt his chariot armies by the time of the battle of Qarqar (853 B.C.), probably two years after this battle with Ben-hadad. According to Assyrian records, Ahab led the largest opposing contingent of chariots, 2,000, at Qarqar. Thus it is fair to conclude that Ahab had partly rebuilt his chariot army by the time of this war with Ben-hadad. Both Ahab and Aram may have been fighting with rebuilt chariot armies, but the Aramean restructuring may have been more damaging. For a battle in the plains, the relative size of the armies was far less important than the quality of the chariot armies. Ahab's chariot force may have been superior.

20:30 The account given here is compatible with several days of destruction against Aphek by Ahab's pursuing army as well as a house-to-house search for Ben-hadad.

20:34 This quick agreement, made in Ahab's chariot, raises puzzling questions. On the surface it seems unlikely that the Arameans had seized and held Israelite cities since the time of Omri, but there is much we do not know. It is clear that Ben-hadad relinquished claim to some Israelite cities and gave Ahab trading privileges in Aramean territory. From a human point of view, with the need to create an alliance with Damascus and anyone else who would join against the Assyrians, Ahab was politically wise and prudent in dealing gently with the defeated Arameans.

20:35-43 However prudent that policy may have been, the prophetic voices, speaking for God, condemned this act of prudent mercy. Once again, prudent politics conflicted with following the Lord (see note at 3:1). As far as the prophets were concerned, Ben-hadad had been devoted to the ban, just like Jericho (Jos 6:18-19), and Ahab had violated that ban.

21:1-3 The law had legal provisions that protected the rights of Israelite land-holding families. The land could not be permanently alienated from the family, but it had to be returned either by redemption or by the free return in the Jubilee Year (Lv 25:10). There were no provisions for the selling or exchanging of land such as that which Ahab requested of Naboth. Therefore, Naboth refused to sell his father's inheritance to the king.

21:4 Ahab the mighty warrior pouted because Naboth the farmer had refused his offer.

21:7 If the descriptions of Phoenician royal tyranny given elsewhere are accurate, Jezebel brought an unbridled Phoenician tyranny to Israel.

21:8-10 Jezebel resolved Ahab's unhappiness with a scheme that involved perverting the law, perjury, and murder. First, she communicated a sense of seriousness by declaring a solemn fast. She then arranged for two wicked men to bring false accusations against Naboth. She knew Israelite law well enough to know that two witnesses were needed (Dt 17:6). Then she had Naboth accused of verbally abusing God and the king.

21:13-14 Jezebel's evil scheme had been executed. What is not related here, though it clearly happened, is that Naboth's male heirs were also killed (2Kg 9:25-26). This was necessary since as long as Naboth had surviving heirs, the land belonged to his family.

21:17-18 The prophet Elijah, who had faded into the background for a while, reenters the story.

21:19-24 The curse pronounced on Ahab came in two different statements. The first was expressed in God's words to Elijah and described the way dogs would lick Ahab's blood in the same place that they licked Naboth's blood and the blood of his sons (see note at vv. 13-14). Second, disaster would come on all the males, both slave and free (or as some translations suggest, both "weak and incapacitated"), of Ahab's house. Dogs and carrion birds would devour their corpses. The statement that dogs would lick Ahab's blood in the same place that they licked Naboth's blood did not happen exactly this way. Naboth was killed in Jezreel, and Ahab's chariot was washed out in Samaria (22:38). However, the Bible implies that this prophecy of Elijah was fulfilled when Joram, Ahab's son, was left for the dogs on Naboth's land in Jezreel (2Kg 9:24-26).

21:27-29 In a surprising acceptance of a very shallow repentance (note Ahab's continued rebellion in the next chapter), God pronounced that the prophesied destruction on Ahab's house would happen only after Ahab's death. We must accept God's sovereignty on those occasions when He seems harsh by our standards and also when He seems too merciful by our judgment.

22:1-3 For parts of three years there were no hostilities with Ben-hadad (ca 854-852 B.C.). During this time a successful defense against Assyria took place at the battle of Qarqar (853 B.C.). Then, within a year of that success, Ahab decided to retake Ramoth-gilead. This city should have already been returned under the terms of the informal treaty made in Ahab's chariot (see note at 20:34). The exact location of this city is disputed, but it had a history of serving as an important administrative center for Israelite holdings in Transjordan. The best explanation for the statement that Jehoshaphat went to visit the king of Israel was that he was reporting for duty as a loyal servant—as a vassal of Ahab.

22:4-5 Jehoshaphat's words in these two verses reflect the two different roles he was playing. In verse 4, his words show that he was a faithful vassal of Ahab, but in verse 5, Jehoshaphat, the pious king of Judah, wanted to consult a legitimate prophet of Yahweh.

22:6-7 Since these prophets came in response to Jehoshaphat's request, one might expect them to be followers of the Lord, but Jehoshaphat had to persist in asking for a real prophet of Yahweh.

22:8 Ahab's attitude toward prophets was pragmatic and agnostic, and it was determined by political expediency. He did not care what truth was. Prophets were tools for the king's political purposes.

22:11-12 Prophets could communicate their message through pantomime (see the pantomime involving Jeremiah and the false prophet Hananiah; Jr 28). Horns were symbols of power; iron horns represented an even more unbreakable and unyielding power, and they gave King Ahab exactly the message he wanted to hear. Ahab's superiority in chariot warfare supported this confidence in Israel's victory.

22:13-14 Expediency was the theme of the advice given to Micaiah by the messenger sent by the king, but Micaiah's response was a statement of faithfulness and truth.

22:15-18 Micaiah was so sarcastic that the king recognized his irony. He demanded that the prophet tell him the truth. Micaiah then gave Ahab a message from the Lord—a vision of sheep without a shepherd. This should have recalled the king's role as shepherd, but Ahab rejected this warning.

22:19-23 Some see a disconnect and an abrupt change in topic between verses 18 and 19, but the transition is consistent with the same man in the same context, engaging in rhetorical piling-on to make his point. How literally accurate is this presentation of God and His heavenly court (cp. Jb 1-2)? Probably as accurate as human language could ever be when describing eternal, heavenly realities that are beyond our customary experiences. A more difficult issue is God's usage of a lying spirit to accomplish His purposes. Similarly, God's anger "stirred up" David (2Sm 24:1) to sin by permitting Satan to incite David to sin (1Ch 21:1). Without pretending to answer all the questions about this issue, we can say that God, at the least, permitted a lying spirit to mislead Ahab for a time. Note too that the deceit was given to prophets who were already presenting false witness. In the end, the true prophet told Ahab the truth—he would die if he went to battle.

22:24-28 The remainder of this scene hardened the hostile positions toward the prophet Micaiah that had already been taken by the king.

22:29-30 Some critics find a discrepancy and a second literary source in Ahab's instructions for Jehoshaphat to put on his royal attire when he already had it on in verse 10. However, it is reasonable to suggest that Jehoshaphat had changed out of these for the trip to battle at Ramoth-gilead. Both kings probably arrived at the site of battle in war armor rather than royal clothes. It might have seemed prudent to the vassal king to accept the strategy that ordered him to go into battle in royal robes, for this would typically draw heat away from Ahab, the superior king.

22:31-36 If, as the Assyrian report of the battle of Qarqar indicated, Ahab was stronger in chariotry than Ben-hadad, it was poor strategy to meet Ahab in a direct chariot battle. Perhaps concentrating his chariots on Ahab himself was a good alternate strategy for Ben-hadad. Ahab's counter strategy, having Jehoshaphat serve as the bait for such an attack, seemed to neutralize Ben-hadad's tactics. But God accomplished what human cunning could neither bring about nor prevent by ordaining the flight of a randomly shot arrow.

22:37-38 The Bible writers, at this point, were able to live with partial fulfillment of Elijah's prophecy about Ahab's death. One part was fulfilled when the dogs licked up his blood, though Ahab did not die at the place the prophecy indicated (see note at 21:19-24). Later on dogs licked up the blood of one of Ahab's sons in Jezreel when Joram's body was dumped there (2Kg 9:24-26). Possibly this later event marks the complete fulfillment of the prophecy from 1Kg 21:19-24 since a fate pronounced over a father can be representatively fulfilled in his son and since, according to ancient understanding, the blood of a father courses through the veins of his son.

22:39 Ahab's ivory palace was probably a palace decorated with paneling containing ivory inlay.

22:40 Some interpreters argue that the statement that Ahab rested with his fathers is proof that the king died in peace and the text is a fictional recension. This conclusion is suggested by the fact that this statement is missing from the closers of other kings who died violently. However, to give this much weight to an irregularity in the formal closer opens the question of what to do with the fact that Ahab had no formulaic burial statement. Does this then prove that Ahab was never buried (see v. 37)? Of course not.

22:41-44 More is said about King Jehoshaphat in the record of Ahab than is said about him in his own record. The formal statements are ordinary. The evaluative part tells us that Jehoshaphat was a good king, but the fact that he made peace with the king of Israel may contain a veiled criticism (2Ch 19:1), particularly since making peace with Israel meant accepting a vassal role to the king of Israel.

22:45-50 Despite Asa's good intentions, his reforms left some work undone. His son Jehoshaphat had to remove the remaining male cult prostitutes. Edom seems to have been controlled by Jehoshaphat through the agency of a deputy. But the most noteworthy event may have been the failed effort to revive the sea trade to Africa for gold. After one failed attempt, Jehoshaphat compromised his loyalty to the house of Ahab in refusing to cooperate with Ahaziah in another attempt at restoring that trade. Again, we cannot realize the importance of this refusal unless we know that Jehoshaphat was a vassal king to Israel.

22:51-53 The account of Ahaziah is contained at the end of 1 Kings and the beginning of 2 Kings. The assessment of his reign is simple: He did what was evil in the L ORD 's sight in that he supported the worship of Baal (Baal-melkart; see note at 16:23-28).

Focus Passage 1 Kings 7:9-11

This root in other languages implies what is valuable, honored, or heavy. The word family occurs mostly in later Scripture. Yaqar describes costly building stones (1Kg 5:17) or precious gemstones (2Sm 12:30). Zion's people (Lm 4:2) and wisdom (Pr 3:15) are precious. God's love and the death of saints are valuable (Ps 36:7; 116:15). Yaqar indicates the precious life (Pr 6:26), or God's word as rare (1Sm 3:1). The adjective functions nominally as glory of pastures (Ps 37:20), noble words (Jr 15:19), or honored women (Ps 45:9). The moon moves in splendor (Jb 31:26). Yaqar indicates that folly outweighs wisdom (Ec 10:1). Yeqar (17x) means honor in Esther (Est 8:16), and elsewhere valuables (Jr 20:5), treasure (Jb 28:10), and price (Zch 11:13). The verb yaqar (11x) denotes be well known (1Sm 18:30), precious (2Kg 1:14), scarce, rare (Is 13:12), or valued (Zch 11:13).

Focus Passage 1 Kings 16:2,7,13,26,33

The verb ka'as occurs five times as be angry (Ezk 16:42) or become furious (Neh 4:1). Otherwise, ka'as is intensive or causative and means provoke (Ps 106:29) or provoke to anger (Dt 4:25). It implies infuriate (Dt 31:29), enrage (Dt 32:16), trouble (Ezk 32:9), or taunt (1Sm 1:6). God is generally the One provoked, and some verses assume that He is the object of ka'as without mentioning Him ("My" is supplied in 1Kg 21:22). The verb occurs five times with the noun ka'as (25x), which occurs in two slightly different spellings. The noun means provocation [to anger] (Dt 32:19), insult (Dt 32:27), aggravation (Pr 27:3), anger (Ec 7:9), displeasure (Ps 85:4), or resentment (1Sm 1:16). It implies grief (Ps 6:7), sorrow (Ec 1:18), or angry sorrow (Ps 31:9). It appears adjectivally as o*ffensive* (Ezk 20:28) and hot-tempered (Pr 21:19). Ka'as may involve a combination of anger, jealousy, and grief.

Ahaziah’s Sickness and Death

1 After the death of Ahab, Moab [a] rebelled against Israel. [b] 2 Ahaziah [c] had fallen through the latticed window of his upper room in Samaria [d] and was injured. So he sent messengers instructing them: "Go inquire of Baal-zebub, [e, f]
the god of Ekron, [g] if I will recover from this injury." [h]

3 But the angel of the LORD said to Elijah the Tishbite, [i] "Go and meet the messengers of the king of Samaria [j] and ask them, 'Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron? ' 4 Therefore, this is what the LORD says: 'You will not get up from your sickbed — you will certainly die.' " Then Elijah left.

5 The messengers returned to the king, who asked them, "Why have you come back? "

6 They replied, "A man came to meet us and said, 'Go back to the king who sent you and declare to him: This is what the LORD says: Is it because there is no God in Israel that you're sending these men to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron? Therefore, you will not get up from your sickbed — you will certainly die.' "

7 The king asked them, "What sort of man came up to meet you and spoke those words to you? "

8 They replied, "A hairy man with a leather belt around his waist." [k]

He said, "It's Elijah the Tishbite." [l]

9 So King Ahaziah sent a captain of 50 with his 50 men [m] to Elijah. When the captain went up to him, he was sitting on top of the hill. He announced, "Man of God, [n] the king declares, 'Come down! ' "

10 Elijah responded to the captain of the 50, "If I am a man of God, may fire come down from heaven and consume you and your 50 men." Then fire came down from heaven and consumed him and his 50 men. [o]

11 So the king sent another captain of 50 with his 50 men to Elijah. He took in the situation [A] and announced, "Man of God, this is what the king says: 'Come down immediately! ' "

12 Elijah responded, "If I am a man of God, may fire come down from heaven and consume you and your 50 men." So a divine fire [B] came down from heaven and consumed him and his 50 men.

13 Then the king sent a third captain of 50 with his 50 men. The third captain of 50 went up and fell on his knees in front of Elijah and begged him, "Man of God, [p] please let my life and the lives of these 50 servants of yours be precious in your sight. [q] 14 Already fire has come down from heaven and consumed the first two captains of 50 with their fifties, but this time let my life be precious in your sight.”

15 The angel of the Lord [r] said to Elijah, “Go down with him. Don’t be afraid of him.” [s] So he got up and went down with him to the king.

16 Then Elijah said to King Ahaziah, “This is what the Lord says: ‘Because you have sent messengers to inquire of Baal-zebub, the god of Ekron — is it because there is no God in Israel for you to inquire of His will? You will not get up from your sickbed — you will certainly die.’ ”

17 Ahaziah died according to the word of the Lord that Elijah had spoken. Since he had no son, Joram [C, t] became king in his place. This happened in the second year of Judah’s King Jehoram [u] son of Jehoshaphat. [v] 18 The rest of the events of Ahaziah’s reign, along with his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Israel’s Kings. [w, x]

Elijah in the Whirlwind

2 The time had come for the LORD to take Elijah up to heaven [a] in a whirlwind. [b] Elijah and Elisha [c] were traveling from Gilgal, [d] 2 and Elijah said to Elisha, [e] "Stay here; [f] the LORD is sending me on to Bethel." [g]

But Elisha replied, "As the LORD lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you." [h] So they went down to Bethel.

3 Then the sons of the prophets [i] who were at Bethel came out to Elisha and said, "Do you know that the LORD will take your master away from you today? " [j]

He said, "Yes, I know. Be quiet."

4 Elijah said to him, "Elisha, stay here; the LORD is sending me to Jericho." [k]

But Elisha said, "As the LORD lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you." So they went to Jericho.

5 Then the sons of the prophets who were in Jericho came up to Elisha and said, "Do you know that the LORD will take your master away from you today? "

He said, "Yes, I know. Be quiet."

6 Elijah said to him, "Stay here; the LORD is sending me to the Jordan." [l]

But Elisha said, "As the LORD lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you." So the two of them went on.

7 Fifty men from the sons of the prophets came and stood facing them from a distance while the two of them stood by the Jordan. 8 Elijah took his mantle, [m] rolled it up, and struck the waters, which parted to the right and left. Then the two of them crossed over on dry ground. [n] 9 After they had crossed over, Elijah said to Elisha, "Tell me what I can do for you before I am taken from you."

So Elisha answered, "Please, let me inherit two shares [o] of your spirit." [p]

10 Elijah replied, "You have asked for something difficult. If you see me being taken from you, [q] you will have it. If not, you won't."

11 As they continued walking and talking, a chariot of fire with horses of fire [r] suddenly appeared and separated the two of them. Then Elijah went up into heaven in the whirlwind. [s] 12 As Elisha watched, he kept crying out, "My father, my father, the chariots and horsemen of Israel! " [t] Then he never saw Elijah again. He took hold of his own clothes and tore them into two pieces. [u]

Elisha Succeeds Elijah 13 Elisha picked up the mantle [v] that had fallen off Elijah and went back and stood on the bank of the Jordan. 14 Then he took the mantle Elijah had dropped and struck the waters. "Where is the LORD God of Elijah? " he asked. He struck the waters himself, and they parted to the right and the left, and Elisha crossed over.

15 When the sons of the prophets from Jericho who were facing him saw him, they said, “The spirit of Elijah rests on Elisha.” They came to meet him and bowed down to the ground in front of him.
16 Then the sons of the prophets said to Elisha, “Since there are 50 strong men here with your servants, please let them go and search for your master. Maybe the Spirit of the LORD has carried him away and put him on one of the mountains or into one of the valleys.” [w]
He answered, “Don’t send them.”
17 However, they urged him to the point of embarrassment, [x] so he said, “Send them.” They sent 50 men, who looked for three days but did not find him.
18 When they returned to him in Jericho [y] where he was staying, he said to them, “Didn’t I tell you not to go? ” 19 Then the men of the city said to Elisha, “Even though our lord can see that the city’s location is good, the water is bad and the land unfruitful.” [z] 20 He replied, “Bring me a new bowl and put salt in it.” [a]
After they had brought him one, 21 Elisha went out to the spring of water, threw salt in it, [b] and said, “This is what the LORD says: ‘I have healed this water. No longer will death or unfruitfulness result from it.’ ” 22 Therefore, the water remains healthy to this very day according to the word that Elisha spoke.
23 From there Elisha went up to Bethel. [c] As he was walking up the path, some small boys came out of the city and harassed him, [d] chanting, “Go up, baldy! Go up, baldy! ” 24 He turned around, looked at them, and cursed them in the name of the LORD. [e] Then two female bears came out of the woods and mauled 42 of the children. 25 From there Elisha went to Mount Carmel, [f] and then he returned to Samaria. [g]

Israel's King Joram

3 Joram son of Ahab became king over Israel in Samaria during the eighteenth year of Judah's King Jehoshaphat and reigned 12 years. [a] 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, but not like his father and mother, [b] for he removed the sacred pillar of •Baal his father had made. 3 Nevertheless, Joram clung to the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. [c] He did not turn away from them.

Moab's Rebellion against Israel 4 King Mesha of Moab [d] was a sheep breeder.
He used to pay [e] the king of Israel 100,000 lambs and the wool of 100,000 rams, [f] 5 but when Ahab died, the king of Moab rebelled against the king of Israel. [g] 6 So King Joram marched out from Samaria at that time and mobilized all Israel. 7 Then he sent a message to King Jehoshaphat [h] of Judah: "The king of Moab has rebelled against me. [i] Will you go with me to fight against Moab? " Jehoshaphat said, "I will go. I am as you are, my people as your people, my horses as your horses." [j] 8 Then he asked, "Which route should we take? "
Joram replied, "The route of the Wilderness of Edom."
9 So the king of Israel, the king of Judah, and the king of Edom [k] set out.
After they had traveled their indirect route for seven days, they had no water for the army or their animals.
10 Then the king of Israel said, "Oh no, the LORD has summoned three kings, only to hand them over to Moab." 11 But Jehoshaphat said, "Isn't there a prophet of the LORD here? Let's inquire of •Yahweh through him." [l]
One of the servants of the king of Israel answered, "Elisha son of Shaphat, [m] who used to pour water on Elijah's hands, is here." 12 Jehoshaphat affirmed, "The LORD's words are with him." So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat and the king of Edom went to him. [n] 13 However, Elisha said to King Joram of Israel, "We have nothing in common. Go to the prophets of your father and your mother! " [o]
But the king of Israel replied, "No, because it is the LORD who has summoned these three kings to hand them over to Moab." 14 Elisha responded, "As the LORD of •Hosts lives, [p] I stand before Him. If I did not have respect for King Jehoshaphat of Judah, [q] I would not look at you; I wouldn't take notice of you. 15 Now, bring me a musician." [r] While the musician played, [s] the LORD's hand [t] came on Elisha. 16 Then he said, "This is what the LORD says: 'Dig ditch after ditch in this •wadi .' 17 For the LORD says, 'You will not see wind or rain, but the wadi will be filled with water,

[u] and you will drink — you and your cattle and your animals.’ 18 This is easy in the LORD’s sight. [v] He will also hand Moab over to you. [w] 19 Then you must attack every fortified city and every choice city. You must cut down every good tree and stop up every spring of water. You must ruin every good piece of land with stones.”

20 About the time for the •grain offering [x] the next morning, water suddenly came from the direction of Edom and filled the land.

21 All Moab had heard that the kings [y] had come up to fight against them. So all who could bear arms, from the youngest to the oldest, were summoned and took their stand at the border. 22 When they got up early in the morning, the sun was shining on the water, and the Moabites saw that the water across from them was red like blood. [z] 23 “This is blood! ” they exclaimed. “The kings [a] have clashed swords and killed each other. So, to the spoil, Moab! ”

24 However, when the Moabites came to Israel’s camp, the Israelites attacked them, and they fled from them. So Israel went into the land and struck down the Moabites. 25 They destroyed the cities, and each of them threw stones to cover every good piece of land. They stopped up every spring of water and cut down every good tree. In the end, only the buildings of Kir-hareseth [b] were left. Then men with slings surrounded the city and attacked it.

26 When the king of Moab saw that the battle was too fierce for him, he took 700 swordsmen with him to try to break through to the king of Edom, [c] but they could not do it. 27 So he took his firstborn son, [d] who was to become king in his place, and offered him as a •burnt offering on the city wall. Great wrath was on the Israelites, and they withdrew from him and returned to their land.

The Widow's Oil Multiplied

4 One of the wives of the sons of the prophets [a] cried out to Elisha, “Your servant, my husband, has died. You know that your servant •feared the LORD.
[b] Now the creditor is coming to take my two children as his slaves.” [c]

2 Elisha asked her, “What can I do for you? Tell me, what do you have in the house? ”

She said, “Your servant has nothing in the house except a jar of oil.” [d]

3 Then he said, “Go and borrow empty containers from everyone — from all your neighbors. Do not get just a few. [e] 4 Then go in and shut the door behind you and your sons, and pour oil into all these containers. Set the full ones to one side.” 5 So she left.

After she had shut the door behind her and her sons, they kept bringing her containers, and she kept pouring. [f] 6 When they were full, she said to her son, “Bring me another container.”

But he replied, “There aren’t any more.” Then the oil stopped.

7 She went and told the man of God, [g] and he said, “Go sell the oil and pay your debt; you and your sons can live on the rest.” [h]

The Shunammite Woman’s Hospitality 8 One day Elisha went to Shunem. [i] A prominent woman who lived there persuaded him to eat some food. So whenever he passed by, he stopped there to eat. [j] 9 Then she said to her husband, “I know that the one who often passes by here is a holy man of God, 10 so let’s make a small room upstairs and put a bed, a table, a chair, and a lamp there for him. Whenever he comes, he can stay there.” [k]

The Shunammite Woman’s Son 11 One day he came there and stopped and went to the room upstairs to lie down. 12 He ordered his attendant Gehazi, [l] “Call this Shunammite woman.” So he called her and she stood before him.

13 Then he said to Gehazi, “Say to her, ‘Look, you’ve gone to all this trouble for us. What can we do for you? [m] Can we speak on your behalf to the king or to the commander of the army? ’ ”

She answered, “I am living among my own people.”

14 So he asked, “Then what should be done for her? ”

Gehazi answered, “Well, she has no son, and her husband is old.”

15 “Call her,” Elisha said. So Gehazi called her, and she stood in the doorway. 16 Elisha said, “At this time next year you will have a son in your arms.” [n]

Then she said, “No, my lord. Man of God, do not deceive your servant.” [o]

17 The woman conceived and gave birth to a son at the same time the following year, as Elisha had promised her.

The Shunammite's Son Raised 18 The child grew and one day went out to his father and the harvesters. [p] 19 Suddenly he complained to his father, "My head!
My head! "

His father told his servant, "Carry him to his mother." 20 So he picked him up and took him to his mother. The child sat on her lap until noon and then died. 21 Then she went up and laid him on the bed of the man of God, shut him in, and left.

22 She summoned her husband and said, "Please send me one of the servants and one of the donkeys, so I can hurry to the man of God and then come back."

23 But he said, "Why go to him today? It's not a New Moon or a Sabbath." [q]

She replied, "Everything is all right." [r]

24 Then she saddled the donkey and said to her servant, "Hurry, don't slow the pace for me unless I tell you." 25 So she set out and went to the man of God at Mount Carmel. [s]

When the man of God saw her at a distance, he said to his attendant Gehazi, [t] "Look, there's the Shunammite woman. [u] 26 Run out to meet her and ask, 'Are you all right? Is your husband all right? Is your son all right? ' "

And she answered, "Everything's all right."

27 When she came up to the man of God at the mountain, she clung to his feet. [v] Gehazi came to push her away, but the man of God said, "Leave her alone — she is in severe anguish, [w] and the LORD has hidden it from me. He hasn't told me."

28 Then she said, "Did I ask my lord for a son? Didn't I say, 'Do not deceive me? ' " [x]

29 So Elisha said to Gehazi, "Tuck your mantle [y] under your belt, take my staff with you, and go. If you meet anyone, don't stop to greet him, and if a man greets you, don't answer him. [z] Then place my staff on the boy's face."

30 The boy's mother said to Elisha, "As the LORD lives and as you yourself live, I will not leave you." [a] So he got up and followed her.

31 Gehazi went ahead of them and placed the staff on the boy's face, but there was no sound or sign of life, so he went back to meet Elisha and told him, "The boy didn't wake up." [b]

32 When Elisha got to the house, he discovered the boy lying dead on his bed. [c] 33 So he went in, closed the door behind the two of them, and prayed to the LORD. [d] 34 Then he went up and lay on the boy: [e] he put mouth to mouth, eye to eye, hand to hand. While he bent down over him, the boy's flesh became warm.

[f] 35 Elisha got up, went into the house, and paced back and forth. Then he went up and bent down over him again. The boy sneezed seven times and opened his eyes. [g]

36 Elisha called Gehazi and said, "Call the Shunammite woman." He called her and she came. Then Elisha said, "Pick up your son." 37 She came, fell at his feet, and bowed to the ground; she picked up her son and left. [h]

The Deadly Stew

38 When Elisha returned to Gilgal, [i] there was a famine [j] in the land. The sons of the prophets [k] were sitting at his feet. [A, l] He said to his attendant, “Put on the large pot and make stew for the sons of the prophets.”

39 One went out to the field to gather herbs and found a wild vine from which he gathered as many wild gourds as his garment would hold. Then he came back and cut them up into the pot of stew, but they were unaware of what they were.

40 They served some for the men to eat, but when they ate the stew they cried out, “There’s death in the pot, [m] man of God! ” And they were unable to eat it.

41 Then Elisha said, “Get some meal.” He threw it into the pot and said, “Serve it for the people to eat.” And there was nothing bad in the pot. [n]

The Multiplied Bread

42 A man from Baal-shalishah [o] came to the man of God with his sack full of 20 loaves of barley bread from the first bread of the harvest. Elisha said, “Give it to the people to eat.” [p]

43 But Elisha’s attendant asked, “What? Am I to set 20 loaves before 100 men? ” [q]

“Give it to the people to eat,” Elisha said, “for this is what the Lord says:
‘They will eat, and they will have some left over.’ ” 44 So he gave it to them, and as the Lord had promised, they ate and had some left over. [r]

Naaman’s Disease Healed

5 Naaman, [a] commander of the army for the king of Aram, was a great man in his master's sight [A] and highly regarded [b] because through him, the LORD had given victory to Aram. The man was a brave warrior, but he had a skin disease. [c]

2 Aram had gone on raids [d] and brought back from the land of Israel a young girl who served Naaman's wife. 3 She said to her mistress, "If only my master would go to [B] the prophet who is in Samaria, he would cure him of his skin disease."

4 So Naaman went and told his master what the girl from the land of Israel had said. 5 Therefore, the king of Aram said, "Go and I will send a letter with you to the king of Israel."

So he went and took with him 750 pounds [C] of silver, 150 pounds [D] of gold, and 10 changes of clothes. [e] 6 He brought the letter to the king of Israel, and it read:

> When this letter comes to you, note that I have sent you my servant Naaman > for you to cure him of his skin disease.

7 When the king of Israel read the letter, he tore his clothes [f] and asked, "Am
I God, [g] killing and giving life that this man expects me to cure a man of his skin disease? Think it over and you will see that he is only picking a fight with [E] me." [h]

8 When Elisha the man of God heard that the king of Israel tore his clothes, he sent a message to the king, "Why have you torn your clothes? Have him come to me, and he will know there is a prophet in Israel." [i] 9 So Naaman came with his horses and chariots and stood at the door of Elisha's house.

10 Then Elisha sent him a messenger, [j] who said, "Go wash [k] seven times [l] in the Jordan and your flesh will be restored and you will be •clean ."

11 But Naaman got angry and left, saying, "I was telling myself: He will surely come out, stand and call on the name of •Yahweh his God, and will wave his hand [m] over the spot and cure the skin disease. 12 Aren't Abana and Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? [n] Could I not wash in them and be clean? " So he turned and left in a rage. [o]

13 But his servants approached and said to him, "My father, [p] if the prophet had told you to do some great thing, would you not have done it? How much more should you do it when he tells you, 'Wash and be clean'? " 14 So Naaman went down and dipped himself in the Jordan seven times, according to the command of the man of God. Then his skin was restored and became like the skin of a small boy, and he was clean. [q]

15 Then Naaman and his whole company went back to the man of God, stood before him, and declared, “I know there’s no God in the whole world except in Israel. [r] Therefore, please accept a gift [s] from your servant.”

16 But Elisha said, “As the Lord lives, [t] I stand before Him. I will not accept it.” [u] Naaman urged him to accept it, but he refused.

17 Naaman responded, “If not, please let your servant be given as much soil as a pair of mules can carry, [v] for your servant will no longer offer a •burnt offering or a sacrifice to any other god but Yahweh. [w] 18 However, in a particular matter may the Lord pardon your servant: When my master, the king of Aram, goes into the temple of Rimmon to worship and I, as his right-hand man, [F, x] bow in the temple of Rimmon — when I bow [y] in the temple of Rimmon, may the Lord pardon your servant in this matter.”

19 So he said to him, “Go in peace.” [z]

Gehazi’s Greed Punished After Naaman had traveled a short distance from Elisha, 20 Gehazi, [a] the attendant of Elisha the man of God, thought: My master has let this Aramean Naaman off lightly by not accepting from him what he brought. As the Lord lives, [b] I will run after him and get something from him.

21 So Gehazi pursued Naaman. When Naaman saw someone running after him, he got down from the chariot to meet him and asked, “Is everything all right? ”

22 Gehazi said, “It’s all right. [c] My master has sent me to say, ‘I have just now discovered that two young men from the sons of the prophets have come to me from the hill country of Ephraim. Please give them 75 pounds [G] of silver and two changes of clothes.’ ” [d]

23 But Naaman insisted, “Please, accept 150 pounds.” [H] He urged Gehazi and then packed 150 pounds [I] of silver in two bags with two changes of clothes.
Naaman gave them to two of his young men who carried them ahead of Gehazi.
24 When Gehazi came to the hill, [J, e] he took the gifts from them and stored them in the house. Then he dismissed the men, and they left.

25 Gehazi came and stood by his master. “Where did you go, Gehazi? ” Elisha asked him.

“Your servant didn’t go anywhere,” he replied.

26 But Elisha questioned him, “Wasn’t my spirit [f] there [K] when the man got down from his chariot to meet you? Is it a time to accept money and clothes, olive orchards and vineyards, sheep and oxen, and male and female slaves? 27

Therefore, Naaman’s skin disease will cling to you and your descendants forever.” So Gehazi went out from his presence diseased — white as snow. [g]

The Floating Ax Head

6 The sons of the prophets [a] said to Elisha, “Please notice that the place where we live under your supervision [A] is too small for us. 2 Please let us go to the Jordan where we can each get a log and can build ourselves a place to live there.”

“Go,” he said.

3 Then one said, “Please come with your servants.”

“I’ll come,” he answered.

4 So he went with them, and when they came to the Jordan, they cut down trees. 5 As one of them was cutting down a tree, the iron ax head fell into the water, and he cried out, “Oh, my master, it was borrowed! ” [b]

6 Then the man of God [c] asked, “Where did it fall? ”

When he showed him the place, the man of God cut a stick, threw it there, and made the iron float. [d] 7 Then he said, “Pick it up.” So he reached out and took it.

The Aramean War

8 When the king of Aram [e] was waging war against Israel, he conferred with his servants, “My camp will be at such and such a place.” 9 But the man of God [f] sent word to the king of Israel: “Be careful passing by this place, for the Arameans are going down there.” 10 Consequently, the king of Israel sent word to the place the man of God had told him about. The man of God repeatedly [B] warned the king, so the king would be on his guard.
11 The king of Aram was enraged because of this matter, and he called his servants and demanded of them, “Tell me, which one of us is for the king of Israel? ”
12 One of his servants said, “No one, my lord the king. Elisha, the prophet in Israel, tells the king of Israel even the words you speak in your bedroom.” 13 So the king said, “Go and see where he is, so I can send men to capture him.”
When he was told, “Elisha is in Dothan,” [g] 14 he sent horses, chariots, and a massive army there. They went by night and surrounded the city.
15 When the servant of the man of God got up early and went out, he discovered an army with horses and chariots surrounding the city. So he asked Elisha, “Oh, my master, what are we to do? ” 16 Elisha said, “Don’t be afraid, [h] for those who are with us outnumber those who are with them.” [i] 17 Then Elisha prayed, “LORD, please open his eyes and let him see.” So the LORD opened the servant’s eyes. He looked and saw that the mountain was covered with horses and chariots of fire [j] all around Elisha.
18 When the Arameans came against him, Elisha prayed to the LORD, “Please strike this nation with blindness.” So He struck them with blindness, [k] according to Elisha’s word. 19 Then Elisha said to them, “This is not the way, and this is not the city. Follow me, and I will take you to the man you’re looking for.” And he led them to Samaria. [l] 20 When they entered Samaria, Elisha said, “LORD, open these men’s eyes and let them see.” So the LORD opened their eyes. They looked and discovered they were in Samaria.
21 When the king of Israel saw them, he said to Elisha, “My father, [m] should I kill them? I will kill them.” 22 Elisha replied, “Don’t kill them. Do you kill those you have captured with your sword or your bow? Set food and water in front of them so they can eat and drink and go to their master.” [n]

23 So he prepared a great feast for them. When they had eaten and drunk, he sent them away, and they went to their master. The Aramean raiders [o] did not come into Israel's land again.
24 Some time later, King Ben-hadad [p] of Aram brought all his military units together and marched up to besiege Samaria. 25 So there was a great famine [q] in Samaria, and they continued the siege against it until a donkey's head sold for 80 silver •shekels , [r] and a cup [C] of dove's dung [D] sold for five silver shekels. [s, t] 26 As the king of Israel was passing by on the wall, a woman cried out to him,
"My lord the king, help! "
27 He answered, "If the LORD doesn't help you, where can I get help for you?
From the threshing floor or the winepress? " [u] 28 Then the king asked her,
"What's the matter? " [v]
She said, "This woman said to me, 'Give up your son, and we will eat him today. Then we will eat my son tomorrow.' 29 So we boiled my son and ate him, and I said to her the next day, 'Give up your son, and we will eat him,' [w] but she has hidden her son."
30 When the king heard the woman's words, he tore his clothes. [x] Then, as he was passing by on the wall, the people saw that there was •sackcloth [y] under his clothes next to his skin. 31 He announced, "May God punish me and do so severely [z] if the head of Elisha son of Shaphat remains on his shoulders today." 32 Elisha was sitting in his house, and the elders [a] were sitting with him. The king sent a man ahead of him, but before the messenger got to him, Elisha said to the elders, "Do you see how this murderer [b] has sent someone to cut off my head? Look, when the messenger comes, shut the door to keep him out. Isn't the sound of his master's feet behind him? " 33 While Elisha was still speaking with them, the messenger [c] came down to him. Then he said, "This disaster is from the LORD. Why should I wait for the LORD any longer? " [d]

Aram Defeated

7 Elisha replied, “Hear the word of the Lord! This is what the Lord says:
‘About this time tomorrow at the gate of Samaria, six quarts [A] of fine meal will sell for a •shekel [a] and 12 quarts [B] of barley will sell for a shekel.’ ” [b, c] 2 Then the captain, the king’s right-hand man, [d] responded to the man of God, [e] “Look, even if the Lord were to make windows in heaven, could this really happen? ” [f] Elisha announced, “You will in fact see it with your own eyes, but you won’t eat any of it.” [g] 3 Four men with a skin disease [h] were at the entrance to the gate. They said to each other, “Why just sit here until we die? 4 If we say, ‘Let’s go into the city,’ we will die there because the famine is in the city, but if we sit here, we will also die. So now, come on. Let’s go to the Arameans’ camp. [i] If they let us live, we will live; if they kill us, we will die.” 5 So the diseased men got up at twilight to go to the Arameans’ camp. When they came to the camp’s edge, they discovered that there was not a single man there, 6 for the Lord [j] had caused the Aramean camp to hear the sound of chariots, horses, and a great army. [k] The Arameans had said to each other, “The king of Israel must have hired the kings of the Hittites [l] and the kings of Egypt [m] to attack us.” 7 So they had gotten up and fled [n] at twilight, abandoning their tents, horses, and donkeys. The camp was intact, and they had fled for their lives.
8 When these men came to the edge of the camp, they went into a tent to eat and drink. Then they picked up the silver, gold, and clothing and went off and hid them. They came back and entered another tent, picked things up, and hid them. [o] 9 Then they said to each other, “We’re not doing what is right. Today is a day of good news. [p] If we are silent and wait until morning light, our sin will catch up with us. Let’s go tell the king’s household.”
10 The diseased men went and called to the city’s gatekeepers and told them,
“We went to the Aramean camp and no one was there — no human sounds.
There was nothing but tethered horses and donkeys, and the tents were intact.”
11 The gatekeepers called out, and the news was reported to the king’s household.
12 So the king got up in the night and said to his servants, “Let me tell you what the Arameans have done to us. They know we are starving, [q] so they have left the camp to hide in the open country, thinking, ‘When they come out of the city, we will take them alive and go into the city.’ ” [r] 13 But one of his servants responded, “Please, let messengers take five of the horses that are left in the city. Their fate is like the entire Israelite community who will die, [s] so let's send them and see."

14 The messengers took two chariots with horses, and the king sent them after the Aramean army, saying, "Go and see." 15 So they followed them as far as the Jordan. They saw that the whole way was littered with clothes and equipment the Arameans had thrown off in their haste. The messengers returned and told the king. 16 Then the people went out and plundered the Aramean camp. [t]

It was then that six quarts [C] of fine meal sold for a shekel [u] and 12 quarts [D] of barley sold for a shekel, [v] according to the word of the LORD. [w] 17 The king had appointed the captain, his right-hand man, [x] to be in charge of the gate, but the people trampled him in the gateway. He died, just as the man of God had predicted when the king came to him. 18 When the man of God had said to the king, "About this time tomorrow 12 quarts [E] of barley will sell for a shekel [y] and six quarts [F] of fine meal will sell for a shekel [z] at the gate of Samaria," 19 this captain had answered the man of God, "Look, even if the LORD were to make windows in heaven, could this really happen? " Elisha had said, "You will in fact see it with your own eyes, but you won't eat any of it." [a] 20 This is what happened to him: the people trampled him in the gateway, and he died.

The Shunammite's Land Restored

8 Elisha said to the woman whose son he had restored to life, [a] “Get ready, you and your household, and go and live as a foreigner wherever you can. For the LORD has announced a seven-year famine, [b] and it has already come to the land.”

2 So the woman got ready and did what the man of God said. She and her household lived as foreigners in the land of the Philistines for seven years. 3 When the woman returned from the land of the Philistines at the end of seven years, [c] she went to appeal to the king for her house and field. [d]

4 The king had been speaking to Gehazi, [e] the attendant of the man of God, saying, “Tell me all the great things Elisha has done.”

5 While he was telling the king how Elisha restored the dead son to life, the woman whose son he had restored to life came to appeal to the king for her house and field. So Gehazi said, “My lord the king, this is the woman and this is the son Elisha restored to life.” [f]

6 When the king asked the woman, she told him the story. So the king appointed a court official for her, saying, “Restore all that was hers, along with all the income from the field from the day she left the country until now.”

Aram’s King Hazael

7 Elisha came to Damascus [g] while Ben-hadad [h] king of Aram was sick, and the king was told, “The man of God [i] has come here.” 8 So the king said to Hazael, [j] “Take a gift [k] with you and go meet the man of God. Inquire of the LORD through him, ‘Will I recover from this sickness? ’ ” [l]

9 Hazael went to meet Elisha, taking with him a gift: 40 camel-loads of all kinds of goods from Damascus. When he came and stood before him, he said, “Your son, [m] Ben-hadad king of Aram, has sent me to ask you, ‘Will I recover from this sickness? ’ ”

10 Elisha told him, “Go say to him, ‘You are sure to [n] recover.’ But the LORD has shown me that he is sure to die.” 11 Then Elisha stared steadily at him until Hazael was ashamed. [o]

The man of God wept, [p] 12 and Hazael asked, “Why is my lord weeping? ”

He replied, “Because I know the evil you will do to the people of Israel. You will set their fortresses on fire. You will kill their young men with the sword. You will dash their little ones to pieces. You will rip open their pregnant women.” [q]

13 Hazael said, “How could your servant, a mere dog, [r] do this monstrous thing? ”

Elisha answered, “The LORD has shown me that you will be king over Aram.” [s]

[14] Hazael left Elisha and went to his master, who asked him, “What did Elisha say to you? ”

He responded, “He told me you are sure to recover.” [15] The next day Hazael took a heavy cloth, dipped it in water, and spread it over the king’s face. Ben-hadad died, and Hazael reigned instead of him.

Judah’s King Jehoram

[16] In the fifth year [t] of Israel’s King Joram [u] son of Ahab, Jehoram [v, w] son of Jehoshaphat became king of Judah, replacing his father. [A, x] [17] He was 32 years old when he became king and reigned eight years in Jerusalem. [y] [18] He walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done, for Ahab’s daughter was his wife. He did what was evil in the LORD’s sight. [z] [19] The LORD was unwilling to destroy Judah because of His servant David, since He had promised to give a lamp [a] to David and his sons forever. [b]

[20] During Jehoram’s reign, Edom rebelled against Judah’s control and appointed their own king. [c] [21] So Jehoram crossed over to Zair with all his chariots. Then at night he set out to attack the Edomites who had surrounded him and the chariot commanders, but his troops fled to their tents. [d] [22] So Edom is still in rebellion against Judah’s control today. Libnah [e] also rebelled at that time.

[23] The rest of the events of Jehoram’s reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah’s Kings. [f] [24] Jehoram rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Ahaziah became king in his place. [g]

Judah’s King Ahaziah

[25] In the twelfth year of Israel’s King Joram son of Ahab, [h] Ahaziah son of Jehoram became king of Judah. [i] [26] Ahaziah was 22 years old when he became king and reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Athaliah, granddaughter of Israel’s King Omri. [j] [27] He walked in the way of the house of Ahab and did what was evil in the LORD’s sight like the house of Ahab, [k] for he was a son-in-law to Ahab’s family.

[28] Ahaziah went with Joram son of Ahab to fight against Hazael [l] king of Aram in Ramoth-gilead, [m] and the Arameans wounded Joram. [29] So King Joram returned to Jezreel [n] to recover from the wounds that the Arameans had inflicted on him in Ramoth-gilead [B] when he fought against Aram's King Hazael. [o] Then Judah's King Ahaziah son of Jehoram went down to Jezreel to visit Joram son of Ahab since Joram was ill.

Jehu Anointed as Israel's King

9 The prophet Elisha called one of the sons of the prophets [a] and said, “Tuck your mantle [b] under your belt, take this flask of oil [c] with you, and go to Ramoth-gilead. [d] 2 When you get there, look for Jehu [e] son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi. Go in, get him away from his colleagues, and take him to an inner room. 3 Then, take the flask of oil, pour it on his head, and say, ‘This is what the Lord says: “I anoint you king over Israel.” ’ [f] Open the door and escape. Don’t wait.” 4 So the young prophet went to Ramoth-gilead.

5 When he arrived, the army commanders were sitting there, so he said, “I have a message for you, commander.”

Jehu asked, “For which one of us? ”

He answered, “For you, commander.”

6 So Jehu got up and went into the house. The young prophet poured the oil on his head and said, “This is what the Lord God of Israel says: ‘I anoint you king over the Lord’s people, Israel. 7 You are to strike down the house of your master Ahab so that I may avenge the blood shed by the hand of Jezebel — the blood of My servants the prophets and of all the servants of the Lord. [g] 8 The whole house of Ahab will perish, and I will eliminate all of Ahab’s males, [A] both slave and free, in Israel. [h] 9 I will make the house of Ahab like the house of Jeroboam son of Nebat and like the house of Baasha son of Ahijah. [i] 10 The dogs will eat Jezebel in the plot of land at Jezreel — no one will bury her.’ ” [j] Then the young prophet opened the door and escaped.

11 When Jehu came out to his master’s servants, they asked, “Is everything all right? Why did this crazy person [k] come to you? ”

Then he said to them, “You know the sort and their ranting.”

12 But they replied, “That’s a lie! Tell us! ”

So Jehu said, “He talked to me about this and that and said, ‘This is what the Lord says: I anoint you king over Israel.’ ”

13 Each man quickly took his garment and put it under Jehu on the bare steps. [B], [l] They blew the ram’s horn [m] and proclaimed, “Jehu is king! ” [n]

14 Then Jehu son of Jehoshaphat, son of Nimshi, conspired against Joram. [o] Joram and all Israel had been at Ramoth-gilead on guard against Hazael king of Aram. 15 But King Joram had returned to Jezreel to recover from the wounds that the Arameans had inflicted on him when he fought against Aram’s King Hazael. Jehu said, “If you commanders wish to make me king, then don’t let anyone escape from the city to go tell about it in Jezreel.”

Jehu Kills Joram and Ahaziah 16 Jehu got into his chariot and went to Jezreel since Joram was laid up there and Ahaziah king of Judah had gone down to visit Joram. 17 Now the watchman [p] was standing on the tower in Jezreel. He saw Jehu's troops approaching and shouted, "I see troops! "

Joram responded, "Choose a rider and send him to meet them and have him ask, 'Do you come in peace? ' " [q]

18 So a horseman went to meet Jehu and said, "This is what the king asks: 'Do you come in peace? ' "

Jehu replied, "What do you have to do with peace? [C] Fall in behind me."

The watchman reported, "The messenger reached them but hasn't started back."

19 So he sent out a second horseman, who went to them and said, "This is what the king asks: 'Do you come in peace? ' "

Jehu answered, "What do you have to do with peace? [D] Fall in behind me."

20 Again the watchman reported, "He reached them but hasn't started back. Also, the driving is like that of Jehu son of Nimshi [r] — he drives like a madman."

21 "Harness! " Joram shouted, and they harnessed his chariot. Then Joram king of Israel and Ahaziah king of Judah set out, each in his own chariot, and met Jehu at the plot of land of Naboth the Jezreelite. [s] 22 When Joram saw Jehu he asked, "Do you come in peace, Jehu? "

He answered, "What peace can there be as long as there is so much prostitution and witchcraft from your mother Jezebel? " [t]

23 Joram turned around and fled, shouting to Ahaziah, "It's treachery, [u] Ahaziah! "

24 Then Jehu drew his bow and shot Joram between the shoulders. The arrow went through his heart, and he slumped down in his chariot. [v] 25 Jehu said to Bidkar his aide, "Pick him up and throw him on the plot of ground belonging to Naboth the Jezreelite. [w] For remember when you and I were riding side by side behind his father Ahab, and the LORD uttered this •oracle against him: 26 'As surely as I saw the blood of Naboth and the blood of his sons yesterday' — this is the LORD's declaration — 'so will I repay you on this plot of land' — this is the LORD's declaration. So now, according to the word of the LORD, pick him up and throw him on the plot of land." [x]

27 When King Ahaziah of Judah saw what was happening, he fled up the road toward Beth-haggan. Jehu pursued him, shouting, "Shoot him too! " So they shot him in his chariot [y] at Gur Pass near Ibleam, [z] but he fled to Megiddo [a] and died there. [b] 28 Then his servants carried him to Jerusalem in a chariot and buried him in his fathers' tomb in the city of David. [c] 29 It was in the eleventh year of Joram son of Ahab that Ahaziah had become king over Judah. [d]

Jehu Kills Jezebel

30 When Jehu came to Jezreel, Jezebel heard about it, so she painted her eyes, [e] adorned her head, and looked down from the window. 31 As Jehu entered the gate, she said, “Do you come in peace, Zimri, [f, g] killer of your master? ” 32 He looked up toward the window and said, “Who is on my side? Who? ”
Two or three eunuchs [h] looked down at him, 33 and he said, “Throw her down! ”
So they threw her down, and some of her blood splattered on the wall and on the horses, and Jehu rode over her. [i] 34 Then he went in, ate and drank, and said, “Take care of this cursed [j] woman and bury her, since she’s a king’s daughter.” [k] 35 But when they went out to bury her, they did not find anything but her skull, her feet, and the palms of her hands.
36 So they went back and told him, and he said, “This fulfills the LORD’s word that He spoke through His servant Elijah the Tishbite: ‘In the plot of land at Jezreel, the dogs will eat Jezebel’s flesh. [l] 37 Jezebel’s corpse will be like manure [m] on the surface of the field in the plot of land at Jezreel so that no one will be able to say: This is Jezebel.’ ”

Jehu Kills the House of Ahab

10 Since Ahab had 70 sons in Samaria, [a] Jehu wrote letters and sent them to Samaria to the rulers of Jezreel, [b] to the elders, and to the guardians of Ahab's sons, [c] saying:

> 2 When this letter [d] arrives, since your master's sons are with you and you have chariots, horses, a fortified city, and weaponry, 3 select the most qualified [A] of your master's sons, set him on his father's throne, and fight for your master's house.

4 However, they were terrified and reasoned, "Look, two kings [e] couldn't stand against him; how can we? "

5 So the overseer of the palace, the overseer of the city, the elders, and the guardians sent a message to Jehu: "We are your servants, and we will do whatever you tell us. We will not make anyone king. Do whatever you think is right." [B, f]

6 Then Jehu wrote them a second letter, saying:

If you are on my side, and if you will obey me, bring me the heads of your master's sons at this time tomorrow at Jezreel.

All 70 of the king's sons were being cared for by the city's prominent men. 7 When the letter came to them, they took the king's sons and slaughtered all 70, put their heads in baskets, and sent them to Jehu at Jezreel. 8 When the messenger came and told him, "They have brought the heads of the king's sons," the king said, "Pile them in two heaps at the entrance of the gate until morning."

9 The next morning when he went out and stood at the gate, he said to all the people, "You are innocent. It was I who conspired against my master and killed him. [g] But who struck down all these? 10 Know, then, that not a word the LORD spoke against the house of Ahab will fail, [h] for the LORD has done what He promised through His servant Elijah." [i] 11 So Jehu killed all who remained of the house of Ahab in Jezreel — all his great men, close friends, and priests — leaving him no survivors.

12 Then he set out and went on his way to Samaria. On the way, while he was at Beth-eked of the Shepherds, 13 Jehu met the relatives of Ahaziah king of Judah and asked, "Who are you? "

They answered, "We're Ahaziah's [j] relatives. We've come down to greet the king's sons and the queen mother's [k] sons."

14 Then Jehu ordered, "Take them alive." So they took them alive and then slaughtered them at the pit of Beth-eked — 42 men. He didn't spare any of them. [l]

15 When he left there, he found Jehonadab son of Rechab [m] coming to meet him. He greeted him and then asked, “Is your heart one with mine? ” [C] “It is,” Jehonadab replied.
Jehu said, “If it is, [n] give me your hand.” [o]
So he gave him his hand, and Jehu pulled him up into the chariot with him.
16 Then he said, “Come with me and see my zeal [p] for the LORD! ” So he let him ride with him in his chariot. 17 When Jehu came to Samaria, he struck down all who remained from the house of Ahab in Samaria until he had annihilated his house, according to the word of the LORD spoken to Elijah. [q]

Jehu Kills the Baal Worshipers

18 Then Jehu brought all the people together and said to them, “Ahab served •Baal [r] a little, but Jehu will serve him a lot. 19 Now, therefore, summon to me all the prophets of Baal, all his servants, and all his priests. [s] None must be missing, for I have a great sacrifice for Baal. Whoever is missing will not live.” However, Jehu was acting deceptively in order to destroy the servants of Baal. 20 Jehu commanded, “Consecrate a solemn assembly [t] for Baal.” So they called one.

21 Then Jehu sent messengers throughout all Israel, and all the servants of Baal [u] came; there was not a man left who did not come. [v] They entered the temple of Baal, [w] and it was filled from one end to the other. 22 Then he said to the custodian of the wardrobe, “Bring out the garments for all the servants of Baal.” So he brought out their garments.

23 Then Jehu and Jehonadab son of Rechab entered the temple of Baal, and Jehu said to the servants of Baal, “Look carefully to see that there are no servants of the LORD here among you — only servants of Baal.” 24 Then they went in to offer sacrifices and •burnt offerings.

Now Jehu had stationed 80 men outside, and he warned them, “Whoever allows any of the men I am delivering into your hands to escape will forfeit his life for theirs.” [x] 25 When he finished offering the burnt offering, Jehu said to the guards and officers, “Go in and kill them. Don’t let anyone out.” [y] So they struck them down with the sword. Then the guards and officers threw the bodies out and went into the inner room of the temple of Baal. 26 They brought out the pillars of the temple of Baal and burned them 27 and tore down the pillar [z] of Baal. Then they tore down the temple of Baal and made it a latrine [a] — which it is to this day.

Evaluation of Jehu’s Reign

28 Jehu eliminated Baal worship from Israel, 29 but he did not turn away from the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit — worshiping the gold calves that were in Bethel and Dan. [b] 30 Nevertheless, the LORD said to Jehu, “Because you have done well in carrying out what is right in My sight and have done to the house of Ahab all that was in My heart, four generations of your sons will sit on the throne of Israel.” [c]

31 Yet Jehu was not careful to follow the instruction of the LORD God of Israel with all his heart. He did not turn from the sins that Jeroboam had caused Israel to commit.

32 In those days the LORD began to reduce the size of Israel. [d] Hazael [e] defeated the Israelites throughout their territory: 33 from the Jordan eastward, all the land of Gilead — the Gadites, the Reubenites, and the Manassites — from Aroer [f] which is by the Arnon Valley [g] through Gilead to Bashan. [D] 34 Now the rest of the events of Jehu's reign, along with all his accomplishments and all his might, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. [h] 35 Jehu rested with his fathers and was buried in Samaria. His son Jehoahaz [i] became king in his place. 36 The length of Jehu's reign over Israel in Samaria was 28 years. [j]

Athaliah Usurps the Throne

11 When Athaliah, [a] Ahaziah's mother, [b] saw that her son was dead, [c] she proceeded to annihilate all the royal heirs. 2 Jehosheba, [d] who was King Jehoram's daughter and Ahaziah's [e] sister, secretly rescued Joash son of Ahaziah from the king's sons who were being killed and put him and the one who nursed him in a bedroom. So he was hidden from Athaliah and was not killed. 3 Joash was in hiding with Jehosheba in the LORD's temple six years while Athaliah ruled over the land.

Athaliah Overthrown

4 Then [f] in the seventh year, Jehoiada [g] sent messengers and brought in the commanders of hundreds, the Carites, and the guards. [h] He had them come to him in the LORD's temple, where he made a covenant with them and put them under oath. He showed them the king's son 5 and commanded them, "This is what you are to do: a third of you who come on duty on the Sabbath [i] are to provide protection for the king's palace. 6 A third are to be at the Sur gate and a third at the gate behind the guards. You are to take turns providing protection for the palace. [A, j]

7 "Your two divisions that go off duty on the Sabbath are to provide protection for the LORD's temple. 8 You must completely surround the king with weapons in hand. Anyone who approaches the ranks is to be put to death. You must be with the king in all his daily tasks." [B, k]

9 So the commanders of hundreds did everything Jehoiada the priest commanded. They each brought their men — those coming on duty on the Sabbath and those going off duty — and went to Jehoiada the priest. [l] 10 The priest gave to the commanders of hundreds King David's spears and shields [m] that were in the LORD's temple. 11 Then the guards stood with their weapons in hand surrounding the king — from the right side of the temple to the left side, by the altar and by the temple.

12 He brought out the king's son, put the crown [n] on him, gave him the •testimony , [C, o] and made him king. They anointed [p] him and clapped their hands and cried, "Long live the king! " [q]

13 When Athaliah [r] heard the noise from the guard and the crowd, she went out to the people at the LORD's temple. [s] 14 As she looked, there was the king standing by the pillar [t] according to the custom. The commanders and the trumpeters were by the king, and all the people of the land were rejoicing and blowing trumpets. [u] Athaliah tore her clothes and screamed "Treason! Treason! " [v]

15 Then Jehoiada [w] the priest ordered the commanders of hundreds [x] in charge of the army, "Take her out between the ranks, and put to death by the sword anyone who follows her," for the priest had said, "She is not to be put to death in the LORD's temple." [y] 16 So they arrested her, and she went through the horse entrance [z] to the king's palace, where she was put to death. [a]

Jehoiada's Reforms

17 Then [b] Jehoiada made a covenant between the LORD, the king, and the people that they would be the LORD's people [c] and another covenant between the king and the people. [d, e] 18 So all the people of the land went to the temple of •Baal and tore it down. They broke its altars and images into pieces, [f] and they killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, at the altars. [g]

Then Jehoiada the priest appointed guards for the LORD's temple. [h] 19 He took the commanders of hundreds, the Carites, the guards, [i] and all the people of the land, and they brought the king from the LORD's temple. They entered the king's palace by way of the guards' gate. Then Joash [j] sat on the throne of the kings.
20 All the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet, for they had put Athaliah to death by the sword in the king's palace.

Judah's King Joash

21 [k] Joash [l, m] was seven years old when he became king. [n]

12 In the seventh year of Jehu, Joash became king and reigned 40 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zibiah, who was from Beer-sheba. [a] 2 Throughout the time Jehoiada [b] the priest instructed [c] him, Joash did what was right in the LORD's sight. [d] 3 Yet the •high places were not taken away; the people continued sacrificing and burning incense on the high places. [e]

Repairing the Temple

4 Then [f] Joash said to the priests, “All the dedicated money brought to the Lord’s temple, [g] census money, [h] money from vows, [i] and all money voluntarily given [j] for the Lord’s temple, 5 each priest is to take from his assessor [A] and repair whatever damage to the temple is found.” [B, k]

6 But by the twenty-third year [l] of the reign of King Joash, the priests had not repaired the damage [C] to the temple. [m] 7 So King Joash called Jehoiada [n] the priest and the other priests and said, “Why haven’t you repaired the temple’s damage? Since you haven’t, don’t take any money from your assessors; instead, hand it over for the repair of the temple.” 8 So the priests agreed they would not take money from the people and they would not repair the temple’s damage.

9 Then Jehoiada the priest took a chest, [o] bored a hole in its lid, and set it beside the altar on the right side as one enters the Lord’s temple; in it the priests who guarded the threshold put all the money brought into the Lord’s temple. [p] 10 Whenever they saw there was a large amount of money in the chest, the king’s secretary [q] and the high priest would go to the Lord’s temple and count the money found there and tie it up in bags. [r] 11 Then they would put the counted money into the hands of those doing the work — those who oversaw the Lord’s temple. They in turn would pay it out to those working on the Lord’s temple — the carpenters, the builders, 12 the masons, and the stonecutters — and would use it to buy timber and quarried stone to repair the damage to the Lord’s temple [s] and for all spending for temple repairs.

13 However, no silver bowls, wick trimmers, sprinkling basins, trumpets, or any articles of gold or silver [t] were made for the Lord’s temple from the money brought into the temple. 14 Instead, it was given to those doing the work, and they repaired the Lord’s temple with it. 15 No accounting was required from the men who received the money to pay those doing the work, since they worked with integrity. [u] 16 The money from the •restitution offering and the •sin offering was not brought to the Lord’s temple since it belonged to the priests. [v]

Aramean Invasion of Judah

17 At that time Hazael [w] king of Aram marched up and fought against Gath and captured it. Then he planned to attack Jerusalem. [x] 18 So King Joash of Judah took all the consecrated items that his ancestors — Judah's kings Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, and Ahaziah — had consecrated, along with his own consecrated items and all the gold found in the treasuries of the LORD's temple and in the king's palace, and he sent them to Hazael king of Aram. [y] Then Hazael withdrew from Jerusalem.

Joash Assassinated

19 The rest of the events of Joash's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. [z] 20 Joash's servants conspired against him and killed him [a] at Beth-millo [b] on the road that goes down to Silla. 21 His servants Jozabad [c] son of Shimeath and Jehozabad son of Shomer struck him down, and he died. [d] Then they buried him with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Amaziah became king in his place. [e]

Israel's King Jehoahaz

13 In the twenty-third year of Judah's King Joash [a] son of Ahaziah, Jehoahaz [b] son of Jehu became king over Israel in Samaria and reigned 17 years. 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight and followed the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit; he did not turn away from them. [c] 3 So the LORD's anger burned against Israel, [d] and He surrendered them to the power of Hazael [e] king of Aram and his son Ben-hadad [f] during their reigns.

4 Then Jehoahaz sought the LORD's favor, and the LORD heard him, for He saw the oppression the king of Aram inflicted on Israel. [g] 5 Therefore, the LORD gave Israel a deliverer, [h] and they escaped from the power of the Arameans. Then the people of Israel dwelt in their tents as before, 6 but they didn't turn away from the sins that the house of Jeroboam had caused Israel to commit. Jehoahaz walked in them, [i] and the •Asherah pole also remained standing in Samaria. 7 Jehoahaz did not have an army left, except for 50 horsemen, 10 chariots, and 10,000 foot soldiers, because the king of Aram had destroyed them, [j] making them like dust at threshing. [k]

8 The rest of the events of Jehoahaz's reign, along with all his accomplishments and his might, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. [l] 9 Jehoahaz rested with his fathers, and he was buried in Samaria. His son Jehoash [A] became king in his place.

Israel's King Jehoash

10 In the thirty-seventh year of Judah's King Joash, Jehoash son of Jehoahaz became king over Israel in Samaria and reigned 16 years. 11 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He did not turn away from all the sins that Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit, but he walked in them. [m]

12 The rest of the events of Jehoash's reign, along with all his accomplishments and the power he had to wage war against Judah's King Amaziah, [n] are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. 13 Jehoash rested with his fathers, and Jeroboam [o] sat on his throne. Jehoash was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

Elisha's Death

14 When Elisha became sick with the illness that he died from, Jehoash king of Israel went down and wept over him and said, "My father, my father, the chariots and horsemen of Israel! " [p]

15 Elisha responded, "Take a bow and arrows." So he got a bow and arrows. [q] 16 Then Elisha said to the king of Israel, "Put your hand on the bow." So the king put his hand on it, and Elisha put his hands on the king's hands. 17 Elisha said,

"Open the east window." So he opened it. Elisha said, "Shoot! " So he shot. [r]
Then Elisha said, "The LORD's arrow of victory, yes, the arrow of victory over Aram. You are to strike down the Arameans in Aphek [s] until you have put an end to them."

18 Then Elisha said, "Take the arrows! " So he took them. Then Elisha said to the king of Israel, "Strike the ground! " So he struck the ground three times and stopped. 19 The man of God [t] was angry with him and said, "You should have struck the ground five or six times. Then you would have struck down Aram until you had put an end to them, but now you will only strike down Aram three times." 20 Then Elisha died and was buried. [u]

Now Moabite raiders [v] used to come into the land in the spring of the year.
21 Once, as the Israelites were burying a man, suddenly they saw a raiding party, so they threw the man into Elisha's tomb. When he touched Elisha's bones, the man revived and stood up! [w]

God's Mercy on Israel

22 Hazael [x] king of Aram oppressed Israel throughout the reign of Jehoahaz, 23 but the LORD was gracious to them, had compassion on them, [y] and turned toward them because of His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. [z] He was not willing to destroy them. Even now He has not banished them from His presence. [a]

24 King Hazael of Aram died, and his son Ben-hadad [b] became king in his place. 25 Then Jehoash son of Jehoahaz took back from Ben-hadad son of Hazael the cities that Hazael had taken in war from Jehoash's father Jehoahaz. Jehoash defeated Ben-hadad three times and recovered the cities of Israel. [c]

Judah’s King Amaziah

14 In [a] the second year of Israel's King Jehoash [A, b] son of Jehoahaz, [B] Amaziah [c] son of Joash became king of Judah. 2 He was 25 years old when he became king and reigned 29 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jehoaddan [d] and was from Jerusalem. 3 He did what was right in the LORD's sight, but not like his ancestor David. He did everything his father Joash had done. [e] 4 Yet the •high places were not taken away, and the people continued sacrificing and burning incense on the high places. [f]

5 As soon as the kingdom was firmly in his grasp, Amaziah killed his servants who had murdered his father the king. [g] 6 However, he did not put the children of the murderers to death, as it is written in the book of the law of Moses where the LORD commanded, "Fathers must not be put to death because of children, and children must not be put to death because of fathers; instead, each one will be put to death for his own sin." [h]

7 Amaziah killed 10,000 Edomites in the Valley of Salt. [i] He took Sela [j] in battle and called it Joktheel, [k] which is its name to this very day. 8 Amaziah then sent messengers to Jehoash son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying,
"Come, let us meet face to face." [l]

9 King Jehoash of Israel sent word to Amaziah king of Judah, saying, "The thistle that was in Lebanon once sent a message to the cedar [m] that was in Lebanon, [n] saying, 'Give your daughter to my son as a wife.' Then a wild animal that was in Lebanon passed by and trampled the thistle. 10 You have indeed defeated Edom, and you have become overconfident. [o] Enjoy your glory and stay at home. Why should you stir up such trouble that you fall — you and Judah with you? "

11 But Amaziah would not listen, so King Jehoash of Israel advanced. He and King Amaziah of Judah faced off at Beth-shemesh [p] that belongs to Judah.
12 Judah was routed before Israel, and everyone fled to his own tent. [q] 13 King Jehoash of Israel captured Judah's King Amaziah son of Joash, [C] son of Ahaziah, at Beth-shemesh. Then Jehoash went to Jerusalem and broke down 200 yards [D] of Jerusalem's wall from the Ephraim Gate [r] to the Corner Gate. [s] 14 He took all the gold and silver, all the articles found in the LORD's temple and in the treasuries of the king's palace, and some hostages. [t] Then he returned to Samaria.

Jehoash's Death

15 The rest of the events of Jehoash's reign, along with his accomplishments, his might, and how he waged war against Amaziah king of Judah, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. [u] 16 Jehoash rested with his fathers, and he was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel. His son Jeroboam became king in his place.

Amaziah's Death

17 Judah's King Amaziah son of Joash lived 15 years after the death of Israel's King Jehoash son of Jehoahaz. [v] 18 The rest of the events of Amaziah's reign are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. [w] 19 A conspiracy was formed against him in Jerusalem, [x] and he fled to Lachish. [y] However, men were sent after him to Lachish, and they put him to death there. 20 They carried him back [z] on horses, and he was buried in Jerusalem with his fathers in the city of David. [a]

21 Then all the people of Judah took Azariah, [b, c] who was 16 years old, and made him king in place of his father Amaziah. 22 He rebuilt Elath [d, e] and restored it to Judah after Amaziah the king rested with his fathers.

Israel's King Jeroboam

23 In the fifteenth year of Judah's King Amaziah son of Joash, Jeroboam [f] son of Jehoash [E] became king of Israel in Samaria and reigned 41 years. 24 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He did not turn away from all the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. [g]

25 He restored Israel's border [h] from Lebo-hamath [i] as far as the Sea of the •Arabah , [j] according to the word the LORD, the God of Israel, had spoken through His servant, the prophet Jonah [k] son of Amittai from Gath-hepher. [l] 26 For the LORD saw that the affliction of Israel was very bitter. [m] There was no one to help Israel, neither bond nor free. 27 However, the LORD had not said He would blot out the name of Israel under heaven, [n] so He delivered [o] them by the hand of Jeroboam son of Jehoash. [F]

28 The rest of the events of Jeroboam's reign — along with all his accomplishments, the power he had to wage war, and how he recovered for Israel Damascus [p] and Hamath, [q] which had belonged to Judah [G] — are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. [r] 29 Jeroboam rested with his fathers, the kings of Israel. His son Zechariah became king in his place. [s]

Judah's King Azariah

15 In the twenty-seventh year of Israel's King Jeroboam, Azariah [a, b] son of Amaziah became king of Judah. [c] 2 He was 16 years old when he became king and reigned 52 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jecoliah, who was from Jerusalem. 3 Azariah did what was right in the LORD's sight [d] just as his father Amaziah had done. 4 Yet the •high places were not taken away; the people continued sacrificing and burning incense on the high places. [e] 5 The LORD afflicted the king, and he had a serious skin disease until the day of his death. [f] He lived in a separate house, [A, g] while Jotham, [h] the king's son, was over the household governing the people of the land. [i] 6 The rest of the events of Azariah's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. [j] 7 Azariah rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. His son Jotham became king in his place. [k]

Israel's King Zechariah

8 In the thirty-eighth year of Judah's King Azariah, Zechariah [l] son of Jeroboam became king over Israel in Samaria for six months. 9 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight as his fathers had done. [m] He did not turn away from the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. [n] 10 Shallum son of Jabesh conspired against Zechariah. He struck him down publicly, [o] killed him, and became king in his place. [p] 11 As for the rest of the events of Zechariah's reign, they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings. [q] 12 The word of the LORD that He spoke to Jehu was, "Four generations of your sons will sit on the throne of Israel," [r] and it was so.

Israel's King Shallum

13 In the thirty-ninth year of Judah's King Uzziah, Shallum son of Jabesh became king; he reigned in Samaria [s] a full month. 14 Then Menahem son of Gadi came up from Tirzah [t] to Samaria and struck down Shallum son of Jabesh there. He killed him and became king in his place. 15 As for the rest of the events of Shallum's reign, along with the conspiracy that he formed, they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings.

Israel's King Menahem

16 At that time, starting from Tirzah, Menahem attacked Tiphsah, [u] all who were in it, and its territory. Because they wouldn't surrender, [v] he attacked it and ripped open all the pregnant women. [w]

17 In the thirty-ninth year of Judah's King Azariah, Menahem son of Gadi became king over Israel and reigned 10 years in Samaria. 18 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. Throughout his reign, he did not turn away from the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. [x] 19 Pul [y, z] king of Assyria invaded the land, so Menahem gave Pul 75,000 pounds [B] of silver so that Pul would support him to strengthen his grip on the kingdom. [a] 20 Then Menahem exacted 20 ounces [C] of silver from each of the wealthy men of Israel to give to the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria withdrew and did not stay there in the land. [b] 21 The rest of the events of Menahem's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings.
22 Menahem rested with his fathers, and his son Pekahiah became king in his place. [c]

Israel's King Pekahiah

23 In the fiftieth year of Judah's King Azariah, Pekahiah son of Menahem became king over Israel in Samaria and reigned two years. 24 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight and did not turn away from the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit. [d] 25 Then his officer, Pekah [e] son of Remaliah, conspired against him [f] and struck him down in Samaria at the citadel of the king's palace [g] — as well as Argob and Arieh. [D] There were 50 Gileadite men with Pekah. He killed
Pekahiah and became king in his place.
26 As for the rest of the events of Pekahiah's reign, along with all his accomplishments, they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings.

Israel's King Pekah

27 In the fifty-second year of Judah's King Azariah, Pekah son of Remaliah became king over Israel in Samaria and reigned 20 years. 28 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. He did not turn away from the sins Jeroboam son of Nebat had caused Israel to commit.
29 In the days of Pekah king of Israel, Tiglath-pileser [h] king of Assyria came and captured Ijon, [i] Abel-beth-maacah, Janoah, Kedesh, Hazor, Gilead, and Galilee — all the land of Naphtali [j] — and deported the people to Assyria. [k] 30 Then Hoshea [l] son of Elah organized a conspiracy against Pekah son of Remaliah. He attacked him, killed him, [m] and became king in his place in the twentieth year of Jotham son of Uzziah.

31 As for the rest of the events of Pekah's reign, along with all his accomplishments, they are written in the Historical Record of Israel's Kings.

Judah's King Jotham

32 In the second year of Israel's King Pekah son of Remaliah, Jotham [n] son of Uzziah became king of Judah. 33 He was 25 years old when he became king [o] and reigned 16 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jerusha daughter of Zadok. 34 He did what was right in the LORD's sight just as his father Uzziah had done. [p] 35 Yet the high places were not taken away; the people continued sacrificing and burning incense on the high places.

Jotham built the Upper Gate of the LORD's temple. [q] 36 The rest [r] of the events of Jotham's reign, along with all his accomplishments, they are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. [s] 37 In those days the LORD began sending Rezin king of Aram and Pekah son of Remaliah against Judah. [t] 38 Jotham rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of his ancestor David.
[u] His son Ahaz became king in his place.

Judah’s King Ahaz

16 In the seventeenth year of Pekah son of Remaliah, [a] Ahaz [b] son of Jotham became king of Judah. 2 Ahaz was 20 years old when he became king and reigned 16 years in Jerusalem. He did not do what was right in the sight of the LORD his God like his ancestor David [c] 3 but walked in the way of the kings of Israel. [d] He even made his son pass through the fire, [e] imitating the detestable practices of the nations the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites. [f] 4 He sacrificed and burned incense [g] on the •high places, on the hills, and under every green tree. [h]

5 Then [i] Aram's King Rezin and Israel's King Pekah son of Remaliah came to wage war against Jerusalem. They besieged Ahaz but were not able to conquer him. [j] 6 At that time Rezin king of Aram recovered Elath for Aram and expelled the Judahites from Elath. [k] Then the Arameans came to Elath, and they live there until today. [l]

7 So Ahaz sent messengers [m] to Tiglath-pileser [n] king of Assyria, saying, "I am your servant and your son. March up and save me from the power of the king of Aram and of the king of Israel, who are rising up against me." 8 Ahaz also took the silver and gold found in the LORD's temple and in the treasuries of the king's palace and sent them to the king of Assyria as a gift. [o] 9 So the king of Assyria listened to him [p] and marched up to Damascus and captured it. [q] He deported its people to Kir [r] but put Rezin to death.

Ahaz's Idolatry

10 King Ahaz went to Damascus to meet Tiglath-pileser [s] king of Assyria.
When he saw the altar that was in Damascus, King Ahaz sent a model of the altar and complete plans for its construction to Uriah the priest. [t] 11 Uriah built the altar according to all the instructions King Ahaz sent from Damascus.
Therefore, by the time King Ahaz came back from Damascus, Uriah the priest had completed it. 12 When the king came back from Damascus, he saw the altar.
Then he approached the altar [u] and ascended it. 13 He offered his •burnt offering [v] and his •grain offering, poured out his drink offering, and sprinkled the blood of his •fellowship offerings [w] on the altar. 14 He took the bronze altar [x] that was before the LORD in front of the temple between his altar and the LORD's temple, and put it on the north side of his altar.

15 Then King Ahaz commanded Uriah the priest, "Offer on the great altar the morning burnt offering, the evening grain offering, and the king's burnt offering and his grain offering. Also offer the burnt offering of all the people of the land, their grain offering, and their drink offerings. Sprinkle on the altar all the blood of the burnt offering and all the blood of sacrifice. The bronze altar will be for me to seek guidance.” [A] 16 Uriah the priest did everything King Ahaz commanded.

17 Then King Ahaz cut off the frames of the water carts [B, y] and removed the bronze basin from each of them. He took the reservoir [C, z] from the bronze oxen that were under it and put it on a stone pavement. 18 To satisfy the king of Assyria, he removed from the LORD’s temple the Sabbath canopy they had built in the palace, and he closed the outer entrance for the king.

Ahaz’s Death

19 The rest [a] of the events of Ahaz’s reign, along with his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah’s Kings. [b] 20 Ahaz rested with his fathers [c] and was buried with his fathers in the city of David, and his son Hezekiah became king in his place.

Israel's King Hoshea

17 In the twelfth year of Judah's King Ahaz, Hoshea [a] son of Elah became king over Israel in Samaria and reigned nine years. 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, but not like the kings of Israel who preceded him. [b] 3 Shalmaneser [c] king of Assyria attacked him, [d] and Hoshea became his vassal and paid him tribute money. 4 But the king of Assyria discovered Hoshea's conspiracy. He had sent envoys to So king of Egypt [e] and had not paid tribute money to the king of Assyria as in previous years. [A] Therefore the king of Assyria arrested him and put him in prison. 5 Then the king of Assyria invaded the whole land, marched up to Samaria, and besieged it for three years. [f]

The Fall of Samaria

6 In the ninth year of Hoshea, [g] the king of Assyria captured Samaria. He deported [h] the Israelites to Assyria and settled them in Halah and by the Habor, Gozan's river, and in the cities of the Medes. [i]

Why Israel Fell

7 This disaster happened because the people of Israel had sinned against the LORD their God who had brought them out of the land of Egypt from the power of Pharaoh king of Egypt [j] and because they had worshiped [B] other gods. [k] 8
They had lived according to the customs of the nations that the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites [l] and the customs the kings of Israel had introduced. [m] 9 The Israelites secretly did what was not right [C] against the LORD their God. They built •high places in all their towns from watchtower [n] to fortified city. 10 They set up for themselves sacred pillars [o] and •Asherah poles [p] on every high hill and under every green tree. [q] 11 They burned incense on all the high places just like those nations that the LORD had driven out before them.
They did evil things, provoking the LORD. 12 They served idols, although the LORD had told them, "You must not do this." [r] 13 Still, the LORD warned [s] Israel and Judah through every prophet and every seer, saying, "Turn from your evil ways and keep My commands and statutes according to all the law I commanded your ancestors and sent to you through My servants the prophets." [t]

14 But they would not listen. Instead they became obstinate like [D] their ancestors who did not believe the LORD their God. [u] 15 They rejected His statutes and His covenant He had made with their ancestors [v] and the decrees He had given them. They pursued worthless idols and became worthless themselves, [w] following the surrounding nations the LORD had commanded them not to imitate. [x]

16 They abandoned all the commands of the LORD their God. They made cast images [y] for themselves, two calves, and an Asherah pole. [z] They worshiped the whole heavenly •host [a] and served •Baal . [b] 17 They made their sons and daughters pass through the fire [c] and practiced •divination and interpreted omens. [d] They devoted themselves to do what was evil in the LORD's sight and provoked Him. [e]

18 Therefore, the LORD was very angry with Israel, and He removed them from His presence. [f] Only the tribe of Judah remained. [g] 19 Even Judah did not keep the commands of the LORD their God [h] but lived according to the customs Israel had introduced. [i] 20 So the LORD rejected all the descendants of Israel, afflicted them, and handed them over to plunderers until He had banished them from His presence. [j]

Summary of Israel's History

21 When the LORD tore [k] Israel from the house of David, Israel made Jeroboam son of Nebat king. [l] Then Jeroboam led Israel away from following the LORD and caused them to commit great sin. 22 The Israelites persisted in all the sins that Jeroboam committed and did not turn away from them. [m] 23 Finally, the LORD removed Israel from His presence just as He had declared through all His servants the prophets. So Israel has been exiled to Assyria from their homeland until today. [n]

Foreign Refugees in Israel

24 Then the king of Assyria brought people from Babylon, Cuthah, Avva, Hamath, and Sepharvaim and settled them in place of the Israelites in the cities of Samaria. The settlers took possession of Samaria and lived in its cities. o 25
When they first lived there, they did not •fear •Yahweh . So the LORD sent lions among them, which killed some of them. p 26 The settlers spoke to the king of Assyria, saying, “The nations that you have deported and placed in the cities of Samaria do not know the requirements of the God of the land. Therefore He has sent lions among them that are killing them because the people don’t know the requirements of the God of the land.”

27 Then the king of Assyria issued a command: “Send back one of the priests you deported. q Have him go and live there so he can teach them the requirements of the God of the land.” 28 So one of the priests they had deported came and lived in Bethel, r and he began to teach them how they should fear Yahweh.

29 But the people of each nation were still making their own gods in the cities where they lived and putting them in the shrines of the high places that the people of Samaria had made. s 30 The men of Babylon made Succoth-benoth, the men of Cuth made Nergal, the men of Hamath made Ashima, 31 the Avvites made Nibhaz and Tartak, and the Sepharvites burned their children in the fire t to Adrammelech and Anammelech, the gods of the Sepharvaim. 32 They feared the LORD, but they also appointed from their number priests to serve them in the shrines of the high places. u 33 They feared the LORD, but they also worshiped their own gods v according to the custom of the nations where they had been deported from.

34 They are still practicing the former customs to this day. None of them fear the LORD or observe their statutes and ordinances, the law and commandments the LORD commanded the descendants of Jacob. He had renamed him Israel. w 35
The LORD made a covenant with them and commanded them, “Do not fear other gods; do not bow down to them; x do not serve them; do not sacrifice to them. y 36 Instead fear the LORD, who brought you from the land of Egypt with great power z and an outstretched arm. a You are to bow down to Him, and you are to sacrifice to Him. 37 You are to be careful always b to observe the statutes, the ordinances, the law, and the commandments He wrote for you; do not fear other gods. 38 Do not forget the covenant that I have made with you. c Do not fear other gods, 39 but fear the LORD your God, and He will deliver you from the hand of all your enemies.” [d]

40 However, they would not listen but continued practicing their former customs. 41 These nations feared the LORD but also served their idols. Their children and grandchildren continue doing as their fathers did until today. [e]

Judah’s King Hezekiah

18 In the third year of Israel's King Hoshea [a] son of Elah, Hezekiah [b] son of Ahaz became king of Judah. 2 He was 25 years old when he became king and reigned 29 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abi [c] daughter of Zechariah. 3 He did what was right in the LORD's sight just as his ancestor David had done. [d] 4 He removed the •high places, shattered the sacred pillars, and cut down the •Asherah poles. [e] He broke into pieces the bronze snake that Moses made, [f] for the Israelites burned incense to it up to that time. He called it Nehushtan. [g]

5 Hezekiah trusted in the LORD God of Israel; [h] not one of the kings of Judah was like him, either before him or after him. [i] 6 He remained faithful to •Yahweh [j] and did not turn from following Him but kept the commands the LORD had commanded Moses.

7 The LORD was with him, and wherever he went he prospered. [k] He rebelled against the king of Assyria and did not serve him. [l] 8 He defeated the Philistines as far as Gaza and its borders, [m] from watchtower [n] to fortified city.

Review of Israel's Fall

9 In the fourth year of King Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of Israel's King Hoshea son of Elah, Shalmaneser king of Assyria marched against Samaria and besieged it. [o] 10 The Assyrians captured it at the end of three years. In the sixth year of Hezekiah, which was the ninth year of Israel's King Hoshea, Samaria was captured. 11 The king of Assyria deported the Israelites to Assyria and put them in Halah and by the Habor, Gozan's river, and in the cities of the Medes, [p] 12 because they did not listen to the voice of the LORD their God but violated His covenant — all He had commanded Moses the servant of the LORD.
They did not listen, and they did not obey. [q]

Sennacherib's Invasion

13 In the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, Sennacherib king of Assyria attacked all the fortified cities of Judah and captured them. [r] 14 So Hezekiah king of Judah sent word to the king of Assyria at Lachish, [s] saying, "I have done wrong; [t] withdraw from me. Whatever you demand from me, I will pay." The king of Assyria demanded 11 tons [A] of silver and one ton [B] of gold from King Hezekiah of Judah. 15 So Hezekiah gave him all the silver found in the LORD's temple and in the treasuries of the king's palace.

16 At that time Hezekiah stripped the gold from the doors of the LORD's sanctuary and from the doorposts he had overlaid and gave it to the king of

Assyria. [u]

17 Then the king of Assyria sent the Tartan, [v] the Rab-saris, and the •Rabshakeh , along with a massive army, from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem. [w] They advanced and came to Jerusalem, and [x] they took their position by the aqueduct of the upper pool, which is by the highway to the Fuller's Field. [y] 18 Then they called for the king, but Eliakim [z] son of Hilkiah, who was in charge of the palace, Shebnah [a] the court secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the court historian, came out to them. [b]

The Rabshakeh's Speech

19 Then [c] the Rabshakeh said to them, "Tell Hezekiah this is what the great king, the king of Assyria, says: 'What are you relying on? [C, d] 20 You think mere words are strategy and strength for war. What are you now relying on so that you have rebelled against me? [e] 21 Look, you are now trusting in Egypt, that splintered reed of a staff [f] that will enter and pierce the hand of anyone who leans on it. [g] This is how Pharaoh king of Egypt is to all who trust in him. 22 Suppose you say to me: We trust in the LORD our God. Isn't He the One whose high places and altars Hezekiah has removed, [h] saying to Judah and to Jerusalem: You must worship at this altar in Jerusalem? '

23 "So now make a bargain with my master the king of Assyria. I'll give you 2,000 horses if you're able to supply riders for them! 24 How then can you drive back a single officer [i] among the least of my master's servants and trust in Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? 25 Have I attacked this place to destroy it without the LORD's approval? [j] The LORD said to me, 'Attack this land and destroy it.' "

26 Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, Shebnah, and Joah said to the Rabshakeh, "Please speak to your servants in Aramaic, [k] since we understand it. Don't speak with us in Hebrew [D] within earshot of the people on the wall."

27 But the Rabshakeh said to them, "Has my master sent me only to your master and to you to speak these words? Hasn't he also sent me to the men who sit on the wall, destined with you to eat their own excrement and drink their own urine? " [l]

28 The Rabshakeh stood and called out loudly in Hebrew. [E] Then he spoke: "Hear the word of the great king, the king of Assyria. 29 This is what the king says: 'Don't let Hezekiah deceive [m] you; he can't deliver you from my hand. [n] 30 Don't let Hezekiah persuade you to trust in the LORD by saying: Certainly the LORD will deliver us! This city will not be handed over to the king of Assyria.' [o]

31 “Don’t listen to Hezekiah, for this is what the king of Assyria says: ‘Make peace [F] with me and surrender to me. Then every one of you may eat from his own vine and his own fig tree, [p] and every one may drink water from his own cistern 32 until I come and take you away to a land like your own land — a land of grain and new wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olive trees and honey [q] — so that you may live [r] and not die. But don’t listen to Hezekiah when he misleads you, saying: The Lord will deliver us. 33 Has any of the gods of the nations ever delivered [s] his land from the power of the king of Assyria? 34 Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivvah? [t] Have they delivered Samaria from my hand? [u] 35 Who among all the gods of the lands has delivered his land from my power? So will the Lord deliver Jerusalem? ’ ” [v]

36 But the people kept silent; they didn’t say anything, for the king’s command was, “Don’t answer him.” 37 Then Eliakim son of Hilkiah, who was in charge of the palace, Shebna the court secretary, and Joah son of Asaph, the court historian, [w] came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn [x] and reported to him the words of the Rabshakeh.

Hezekiah Seeks Isaiah's Counsel

19 When King Hezekiah heard their report, he tore his clothes, covered himself with •sackcloth , [a] and went into the Lord's temple. [b] 2 Then he sent Eliakim, who was in charge of the palace, Shebna the court secretary, [c] and the leading priests, who were wearing sackcloth, [d] to the prophet Isaiah [e] son of Amoz. 3 They said to him, "This is what Hezekiah says: 'Today is a day of distress, rebuke, and disgrace, for children have come to the point of birth, [f] but there is no strength to deliver them. 4 Perhaps •Yahweh your God [g] will hear [h] all the words of the •Rabshakeh , whom his master the king of Assyria sent to mock the living God, and will rebuke [i] him for the words that Yahweh your God has heard. Therefore, offer a prayer for the surviving remnant.' " [j]

5 So the servants of King Hezekiah went to Isaiah, 6 who said to them, "Tell your master this, 'The Lord says: Don't be afraid [k] because of the words you have heard, that the king of Assyria's attendants [l] have blasphemed [m] Me with. 7 I am about to put a spirit in him, and he will hear a rumor and return to his own land [n] where I will cause him to fall by the sword.' " [o]

Sennacherib's Departing Threat 8 When [p] the Rabshakeh heard that the king of Assyria had left Lachish, [q] he returned and found him fighting against Libnah. [r] 9 The king had heard this about Tirhakah king of •Cush : "Look, he has set out to fight against you." So he again sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, 10 "Say this to Hezekiah king of Judah: 'Don't let your God, whom you trust, [s] deceive you by promising that Jerusalem will not be handed over to the king of Assyria. [t] 11 Look, you have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all the countries: they •completely destroyed them. Will you be rescued? 12 Did the gods of the nations [u] that my predecessors destroyed rescue them — nations such as Gozan, [v] Haran, [w] Rezeph, and the Edenites [x] in Telassar? 13 Where is the king of Hamath, the king of Arpad, the king of the city of Sepharvaim, Hena, or Ivvah? ' " [y]

Hezekiah's Prayer

14 Hezekiah took [z] the letter [a] from the hand of the messengers, read it, then went up to the Lord's temple, and spread it out before the Lord. [b] 15 Then Hezekiah prayed before the Lord:

Lord God of Israel who is enthroned above the •cherubim , [c] You are God — You alone — of all the kingdoms of the earth. You made the heavens and the earth. [d] 16 Listen closely, Lord, and hear; open Your eyes, Lord, and

see. [e] Hear the words that Sennacherib has sent to mock the living God. [f] 17 LORD, it is true that the kings of Assyria have devastated the nations and their lands. [g] 18 They have thrown their gods into the fire, for they were not gods but made by human hands — wood and stone. [h] So they have destroyed them. 19 Now, LORD our God, please save us from his hand so that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that You are the LORD God — You alone. [i]

God's Answer through Isaiah 20 Then [j] Isaiah son of Amoz sent a message to Hezekiah: "The LORD, the God of Israel says: 'I have heard your prayer [k] to Me about Sennacherib king of Assyria.' [l] 21 This is the word the LORD has spoken against him:

Virgin Daughter •Zion [m] despises you and scorns you:
Daughter Jerusalem
shakes her head behind your back. [A, n]
22 Who is it you mocked and blasphemed? [o]
Against whom have you raised your voice and lifted your eyes in pride?
Against the Holy One of Israel! [p]
23 You have mocked the Lord [q] through [B] your messengers. [r]
You have said:

With my many chariots [s]
I have gone up to the heights of the mountains, to the far recesses of Lebanon.
I cut down its tallest cedars, its choice cypress trees.
I came to its farthest outpost, its densest forest.
24 I dug wells,
and I drank foreign waters.
I dried up all the streams of Egypt [t]
with the soles of my feet.

25 Have you not heard? [u]
I designed it long ago;
I planned it in days gone by.
I have now brought it to pass, [v]
and you have crushed fortified cities into piles of rubble.

26 Their inhabitants have become powerless, dismayed, and ashamed.
They are plants of the field,
tender grass,
grass on the rooftops, [w]
blasted by the east wind. [x]

27 But I know your sitting down, [y, z] your going out and your coming in,
and your raging against Me.
28 Because your raging against Me and your arrogance have reached My ears, I will put My hook in your nose [a]
and My bit in your mouth;
I will make you go back
the way you came.

29 "This will be the sign [b] for you: This year you will eat what grows on its own, and in the second year what grows from that. But in the third year sow and reap, plant vineyards and eat their fruit. 30 The surviving remnant [c] of the house of Israel will again take root downward and bear fruit upward. 31 For a remnant will go out from Jerusalem and survivors, from Mount Zion. [d] The zeal of the LORD of •Hosts will accomplish this. [e]

32 Therefore, this is what the LORD says about the king of Assyria:
He will not enter this city or shoot an arrow there or come before it with a shield or build up an assault ramp against it. [f] 33 He will go back on the road that he came and he will not enter this city.

This is the LORD's declaration.

34 I will defend this city and rescue it for My sake and for the sake of My servant David." [g]

Defeat and Death of Sennacherib 35 That night the angel of the LORD went out and struck down 185,000 in the camp of the Assyrians. When the people got up the next morning — there were all the dead bodies! [h] 36 So Sennacherib king of Assyria broke camp and left. He returned home and lived in Nineveh. [i]

37 One day, while he was worshiping in the temple of his god Nisroch, his sons Adrammelech [j] and Sharezer struck him down with the sword and escaped to the land of Ararat. [k] Then his son Esar-haddon [l] became king in his place.

Hezekiah's Illness and Recovery

20 In those days [a] Hezekiah became terminally ill. [b] The prophet Isaiah [c] son of Amoz came and said to him, "This is what the LORD says: 'Put your affairs in order, [A] for you are about to die; you will not recover.' " [d]

2 Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall [e] and prayed to the LORD,
3 "Please LORD, remember [f] how I have walked before You faithfully and wholeheartedly and have done what pleases You." [B,] [g] And Hezekiah wept bitterly. [h]

4 Isaiah had not yet gone out of the inner courtyard when the word of the LORD came to him: 5 "Go back and tell Hezekiah, the leader [i] of My people, 'This is what the LORD God of your ancestor David says: I have heard your prayer; [j] I have seen your tears. Look, I will heal you. On the third day from now you will go up to the LORD's temple. 6 I will add 15 years to your life. I will deliver you and this city from the hand of the king of Assyria. I will defend this city for My sake and for the sake of My servant David.' " [k]

7 Then Isaiah said, "Bring a lump of pressed figs." So they brought it and applied it to his infected skin, and he recovered. [l]

8 Hezekiah had asked Isaiah, "What is the sign [m] that the LORD will heal me and that I will go up to the LORD's temple on the third day? "

9 Isaiah said, "This is the sign [n] to you from the LORD that He will do what He has promised: Should the shadow go ahead 10 steps or go back 10 steps? "

10 Then Hezekiah answered, "It's easy for the shadow to lengthen 10 steps. No, let the shadow go back 10 steps." 11 So Isaiah the prophet called out to the LORD, and He brought the shadow [C] back the 10 steps it had descended on Ahaz's stairway. [o,] [p]

Hezekiah's Folly

12 At that time [q] Merodach-baladan [r] son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a gift to Hezekiah since he heard that he had been sick. 13 Hezekiah gave them a hearing and showed them his whole treasure house — the silver, the gold, the spices, and the precious oil — and his armory, and everything that was found in his treasuries. There was nothing in his palace and in all his realm that Hezekiah did not show them. [s]

14 Then the prophet Isaiah came to King Hezekiah and asked him, "Where did these men come from and what did they say to you? "

Hezekiah replied, "They came from a distant country, from Babylon."

15 Isaiah asked, "What have they seen in your palace? "

Hezekiah answered, “They have seen everything in my palace. There isn’t anything in my treasuries that I didn’t show them.”

16 Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the Lord: 17 ‘The time will certainly come when everything in your palace and all that your fathers have stored up until this day will be carried off to Babylon; nothing will be left,’ [t] says the Lord. 18 ‘Some of your descendants who come from you will be taken away, [u] and they will become eunuchs [D] in the palace of the king of Babylon.’ ” [v]

19 Then Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “The word of the Lord that you have spoken is good,” [w] for he thought: Why not, if there will be peace and security during my lifetime?

Hezekiah’s Death

20 The rest of the events of Hezekiah’s reign, along with all his might and how he made the pool [x] and the tunnel and brought water into the city, [y] are written in the Historical Record of Judah’s Kings. [z] 21 Hezekiah rested with his fathers, and his son Manasseh became king in his place. [a]

Judah’s King Manasseh

21 Manasseh [a] was 12 years old when he became king and reigned 55 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hephzibah. [b] 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, [c] imitating the detestable practices of the nations that the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites. [d] 3 He rebuilt the •high places that his father Hezekiah had destroyed [e] and reestablished the altars for •Baal . He made an •Asherah , [f] as King Ahab of Israel had done; [g] he also worshiped the whole heavenly •host [h] and served them. 4 He built altars in the LORD's temple, [i] where the LORD had said, "Jerusalem is where I will put My name." [j] 5 He built altars to the whole heavenly host [k] in both courtyards of the LORD's temple. [l] 6 He made his son pass through the fire, [m] practiced witchcraft and •divination , and consulted mediums and spiritists. [n] He did a great amount of evil in the LORD's sight, provoking Him. [o]

7 Manasseh set up the carved image of Asherah, which he made, in the temple that the LORD had spoken about to David and his son Solomon, "I will establish My name forever in this temple and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel. [p] 8 I will never again cause the feet of the Israelites to wander from the land I gave to their ancestors if only they will be careful to do all I have commanded them — the whole law that My servant Moses commanded them." [q] 9 But they did not listen; Manasseh caused them to stray so that they did greater evil than the nations the LORD had destroyed before the Israelites. [r]

10 The LORD spoke through His servants the prophets, saying, 11 "Since Manasseh king of Judah has committed all these detestable things [s] — greater evil than the Amorites [t] who preceded him had done — and by means of his idols has also caused Judah to sin, 12 this is what the LORD God of Israel says: 'I am about to bring such disaster on Jerusalem and Judah that everyone who hears about it will shudder. [u] 13 I will stretch over Jerusalem the measuring line used on Samaria and the mason's level used on the house of Ahab, [v] and I will wipe [w] Jerusalem •clean as one wipes a bowl — wiping it and turning it upside down.
14 I will abandon the remnant [x] of My inheritance and hand them over to their enemies. They will become plunder and spoil to all their enemies, 15 because they have done what is evil in My sight and have provoked Me from the day their ancestors came out of Egypt until today.' " [y]

16 Manasseh also shed so much innocent blood that he filled Jerusalem with it from one end to another. [z] This was in addition to his sin that he caused Judah to commit. Consequently, they did what was evil in the LORD's sight.

Manasseh's Death

17 The rest [a] of the events of Manasseh's reign, along with all his accomplishments and the sin that he committed, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. [b] 18 Manasseh rested with his fathers and was buried in the garden of his own house, the garden of Uzza. His son Amon became king in his place.

Judah's King Amon

19 Amon was 22 years old when he became king [c] and reigned two years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Meshullemeth daughter of Haruz; she was from Jotbah. 20 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight as his father Manasseh had done. [d] 21 He walked in all the ways his father had walked; he served the idols his father had served, and he worshiped them. [e] 22 He abandoned the LORD God of his ancestors [f] and did not walk in the way of the LORD. [g]

23 Amon's servants conspired against the king and killed him in his own house. [h] 24 Then the common people [A] executed [i] all those who had conspired against King Amon and made his son Josiah [j] king in his place.

25 The rest of the events of Amon's reign, along with his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. 26 He was buried in his tomb in the garden of Uzza, and his son Josiah became king in his place.

Judah’s King Josiah

22 Josiah [a] was eight years old when he became king and reigned 31 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jedidah the daughter of Adaiah; she was from Bozkath. [b] 2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight and walked in all the ways of his ancestor David; [c] he did not turn to the right or the left. [d]

Josiah Repairs the Temple [3] In the eighteenth year of King Josiah, the king sent the court secretary Shaphan son of Azaliah, son of Meshullam, to the LORD's temple, [e] saying, [4] "Go up to Hilkiah the high priest so that he may total up the money brought into the LORD's temple — the money the doorkeepers have collected from the people. [f] [5] It is to be put into the hands of those doing the work — those who oversee the LORD's temple. They in turn are to give it to the workmen in the LORD's temple to repair the damage. [g] [6] They are to give it to the carpenters, builders, and masons to buy timber and quarried stone to repair the temple. [h] [7] But no accounting is to be required from them for the money put into their hands since they work with integrity." [i]

The Book of the Law Found [8] Hilkiah the high priest told Shaphan the court secretary, "I have found the book of the law [j] in the LORD's temple," and he gave the book to Shaphan, who read it.

[9] Then Shaphan the court secretary went to the king and reported, [A] "Your servants have emptied out the money that was found in the temple and have put it into the hand of those doing the work — those who oversee the LORD's temple." [10] Then Shaphan the court secretary told the king, "Hilkiah the priest has given me a book," and Shaphan read it in the presence of the king. [k]

[11] When the king heard the words of the book of the law, he tore his clothes. [l]
[12] Then he commanded Hilkiah the priest, Ahikam [m] son of Shaphan, Achbor [n] son of Micaiah, Shaphan the court secretary, and the king's servant Asaiah: [13] "Go and inquire of the LORD for me, the people, and all Judah about the instruction in this book that has been found. For great is the LORD's wrath that is kindled against us because our ancestors have not obeyed the words of this book in order to do everything written about us." [o]

Huldah's Prophecy of Judgment [14] So [p] Hilkiah the priest, Ahikam, Achbor, Shaphan, and Asaiah went to the prophetess [q] Huldah, wife of Shallum son of Tikvah, [r] son of Harhas, [s] keeper of the wardrobe. She lived in Jerusalem in the Second District. [t] They spoke with her.

[15] She said to them, "This is what the LORD God of Israel says, 'Say to the man who sent you to Me: [16] This is what the LORD says: I am about to bring disaster on this place and on its inhabitants, fulfilling all the words of the book that the king of Judah has read, [u] 17 because they have abandoned Me and burned incense to other gods in order to provoke Me with all the work of their hands. My wrath will be kindled against this place, and it will not be quenched.

[v] 18 Say this to the king of Judah who sent you to inquire of the LORD: This is what the LORD God of Israel says: As for the words that you heard, [w] 19 because your heart was tender and you humbled yourself before the LORD [x] when you heard what I spoke against this place and against its inhabitants, that they would become a desolation and a curse, [y] and because you have torn your clothes and wept before Me, I Myself have heard you — this is the LORD's declaration — 20 therefore, I will indeed gather you to your fathers, and you will be gathered to your grave in peace. [z] Your eyes will not see all the disaster that I am bringing on this place.' "

Then they reported [B] to the king.

Covenant Renewal

23 So the king sent messengers, [a] and they gathered all the elders [b] of Jerusalem and Judah to him. 2 Then the king went to the LORD's temple with all the men of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, as well as the priests and the prophets — all the people from the youngest to the oldest. As they listened, he read all the words of the book of the covenant [c] that had been found in the LORD's temple. [d] 3 Next, the king stood by the pillar [A, e] and made a covenant [f] in the presence of the LORD to follow the LORD and to keep His commands, His decrees, and His statutes with all his mind and with all his heart, [g] and to carry out the words of this covenant that were written in this book; all the people agreed to [B] the covenant. [h]

Josiah's Reforms

4 Then the king commanded Hilkiah [i] the high priest and the priests of the second rank [j] and the doorkeepers to bring out of the LORD's temple all the articles made for •Baal , •Asherah , and the whole heavenly •host . [k] He burned them outside Jerusalem in the fields of the Kidron and carried their ashes to Bethel. [l] 5 Then he did away with the idolatrous priests the kings of Judah had appointed to burn incense at the •high places [m] in the cities of Judah and in the areas surrounding Jerusalem. They had burned incense to Baal, and to the sun, moon, constellations, and the whole heavenly host. [n] 6 He brought out the Asherah pole [o] from the LORD's temple to the Kidron Valley outside Jerusalem.
He burned it at the Kidron Valley, [p] beat it to dust, [q] and threw its dust on the graves of the common people. [C, r] 7 He also tore down the houses of the male cult prostitutes [s] that were in the LORD's temple, in which the women were weaving tapestries [D] for Asherah. [t]

8 Then Josiah brought all the priests from the cities of Judah, and he defiled the high places [u] from Geba [v] to Beer-sheba, [w] where the priests had burned incense. He tore down the high places of the gates at the entrance of the gate of Joshua the governor of the city (on the left at the city gate). 9 The priests of the high places, however, did not come up to the altar of the LORD in Jerusalem;
instead, they ate unleavened bread with their fellow priests. [x]

10 He defiled •Topheth , [y] which is in the Valley of Hinnom, [z] so that no one could make his son or daughter pass through the fire [a] to •Molech . [b] 11 He did away with the horses that the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun. They had been at the entrance of the LORD's temple in the precincts by the chamber of Nathan-melech the court official, and he burned up the chariots of the sun. [c]

12 The king tore down the altars that were on the roof [d] — Ahaz's upper chamber [e] that the kings of Judah had made — and the altars that Manasseh had made [f] in the two courtyards of the LORD's temple. Then he smashed them [g] there and threw their dust into the Kidron Valley. 13 The king also defiled the high places that were across from Jerusalem, to the south of the Mount of Destruction, which King Solomon of Israel had built for •Ashtoreth , the detestable idol of the Sidonians; for Chemosh, the detestable idol of Moab; and for •Milcom , the abomination of the Ammonites. [h] 14 He broke the sacred pillars into pieces, [i] cut down the Asherah poles, [j] then filled their places with human bones.

15 He even tore down the altar at Bethel [k] and the high place [l] that Jeroboam son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin, had made. Then he burned the high place, crushed it to dust, and burned the Asherah. [m] 16 As Josiah turned, he saw the tombs there on the mountain. He sent someone to take the bones out of the tombs, and he burned them on the altar. [n] He defiled it according to the word of the LORD proclaimed by the man of God [o] who proclaimed these things. [p] 17 Then he said, "What is this monument I see? "

The men of the city told him, "It is the tomb of the man of God who came from Judah and proclaimed these things that you have done to the altar at Bethel." [q]

18 So he said, "Let him rest. Don't let anyone disturb his bones." So they left his bones undisturbed with the bones of the prophet who came from Samaria. [r]

19 Josiah also removed all the shrines of the high places that were in the cities of Samaria, which the kings of Israel had made to provoke the LORD. [s] Josiah did the same things to them that he had done at Bethel. 20 He slaughtered on the altars all the priests of the high places [t] who were there, and he burned human bones on the altars. [u] Then he returned to Jerusalem.

Passover Observed

21 The king commanded all the people, “Keep the •Passover of the LORD your God as written in the book of the covenant.” [v] 22 No such Passover had ever been kept from the time of the judges who judged Israel through the entire time of the kings of Israel and Judah. 23 But in the eighteenth year of King Josiah, this Passover was observed to the LORD in Jerusalem. [w]

Further Zeal for the LORD 24 In addition, Josiah removed the mediums, the spiritists, [x] household idols, [y] images, and all the detestable things [z] that were seen in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem. He did this in order to carry out the words of the law that were written in the book that Hilkiah the priest found in the LORD’s temple. [a] 25 Before him there was no king like him who turned to the LORD with all his mind and with all his heart and with all his strength [b] according to all the law of Moses, and no one like him arose after him. [c]

26 In spite of all that, the LORD did not turn from the fury of His great burning anger, which burned against Judah because of all that Manasseh had provoked Him with. [d] 27 For the LORD had said, “I will also remove Judah from My sight just as I have removed Israel. [e] I will reject this city Jerusalem, that I have chosen, and the temple about which I said, ‘My name will be there.’ ” [f]

Josiah’s Death

28 The rest of the events of Josiah’s reign, [g] along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah’s Kings. 29
During his reign, Pharaoh Neco king of Egypt [h] marched up to help the king of Assyria at the Euphrates River. King Josiah went to confront him, and at Megiddo [i] when Neco saw him he killed him. 30 From Megiddo his servants carried his dead body in a chariot, brought him into Jerusalem, and buried him in his own tomb. [j] Then the common people [E] took Jehoahaz son of Josiah, anointed him, and made him king in place of his father. [k]

Judah’s King Jehoahaz

31 Jehoahaz [l] was [m] 23 years old when he became king and reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Hamutal [n] daughter of Jeremiah, from Libnah. 32 He did what was evil in the LORD’s sight just as his ancestors had done. [o] 33 Pharaoh Neco imprisoned him at Riblah [p] in the land of Hamath [q] to keep him from reigning in Jerusalem, and he imposed on the land a fine of 7,500 pounds [F] of silver and 75 pounds [G] of gold.

Judah's King Jehoiakim

34 Then [r] Pharaoh Neco made Eliakim [s] son of Josiah king in place of his father Josiah and changed Eliakim's name to Jehoiakim. [t] But Neco took Jehoahaz and went to Egypt, and he died there. [u] 35 So Jehoiakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharaoh, but at Pharaoh's command he taxed the land to give the money. He exacted the silver and the gold from the common people, [H] each man according to his assessment, [v] to give it to Pharaoh Neco.

36 Jehoiakim was 25 years old when he became king and reigned 11 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zebidah daughter of Pedaiah, from Rumah.
37 He did what was evil [w] in the LORD's sight just as his ancestors had done.

Jehoiakim’s Rebellion and Death

24 During [a] Jehoiakim's reign, [b] Nebuchadnezzar [c] king of Babylon [d] attacked. [e] Jehoiakim became his vassal for three years, and then he turned and rebelled against him. 2 The LORD sent Chaldean, Aramean, [f] Moabite, [g] and Ammonite raiders against Jehoiakim. He sent them against Judah to destroy it, according to the word of the LORD He had spoken through His servants the prophets. [h] 3 Indeed, this happened to Judah at the LORD's command to remove them from His sight. [i] It was because of the sins of Manasseh, according to all he had done, [j] 4 and also because of all the innocent blood he had shed. He had filled Jerusalem with innocent blood, [k] and the LORD would not forgive.

5 The rest of the events of Jehoiakim's reign, along with all his accomplishments, are written in the Historical Record of Judah's Kings. [l]
6 Jehoiakim rested with his fathers, and his son Jehoiachin became king in his place. [m]

7 Now the king of Egypt did not march out of his land again, [n] for the king of Babylon took everything that belonged to the king of Egypt, [o] from the Brook of Egypt to the Euphrates River. [p]

Judah's King Jehoiachin 8 Jehoiachin was 18 years old when he became king and reigned three months in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Nehushta daughter of Elnathan, from Jerusalem. [q] 9 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight as his father had done.

Deportations to Babylon 10 At that time [r] the servants of Nebuchadnezzar [s] king of Babylon marched up to Jerusalem, and the city came under siege. 11 Then King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came to the city while his servants were besieging it. 12 Jehoiachin king of Judah, along with his mother, his servants, his commanders, and his officials, surrendered to the king of Babylon. [t]

So the king of Babylon took him captive in the eighth year of his reign. 13 He also carried off from there all the treasures of the LORD's temple and the treasures of the king's palace, and he cut into pieces all the gold articles that Solomon king of Israel had made [u] for the LORD's sanctuary, just as God had predicted. [v] 14 Then he deported all Jerusalem and all the commanders and all the fighting men, [w] 10,000 captives, [x] and all the craftsmen and metalsmiths. [y] Except for the poorest people of the land, [z] no one remained.

15 Nebuchadnezzar deported Jehoiachin to Babylon. Also, he took the king's mother, the king's wives, his officials, and the leading men of the land into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon. [a] 16 The king of Babylon also brought captive into Babylon all 7,000 fighting men and 1,000 craftsmen and metalsmiths — all strong and fit for war. 17 Then the king of Babylon made Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's [A] uncle, [b] king in his place and changed his name to Zedekiah. [c]

Judah's King Zedekiah

18 Zedekiah [d] was 21 years old when he became king [e] and reigned 11 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal [f] daughter of Jeremiah, from Libnah. 19 Zedekiah did what was evil in the LORD's sight just as Jehoiakim had done. [g] 20 Because of the LORD's anger, [h] it came to the point in Jerusalem and Judah that He finally banished them from His presence. [i] Then, Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. [j]

Nebuchadnezzar's Siege of Jerusalem

25 In the ninth year [a] of Zedekiah's reign, [b] on the tenth day of the tenth month, King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon advanced against Jerusalem with his entire army. [c] They laid siege to the city and built a siege wall against it all around. [d] 2 The city was under siege until King Zedekiah's eleventh year.

3 By the ninth day of the fourth month the famine was so severe in the city that the people of the land had no food. [e] 4 Then the city was broken into, [f] and all the warriors fled [g] by night by way of the gate between the two walls near the king's garden, [h] even though the Chaldeans surrounded the city. As the king made his way along the route to the •Arabah , [i] 5 the Chaldean army pursued him and overtook him in the plains of Jericho. Zedekiah's entire army was scattered from him. [j] 6 The Chaldeans seized the king [k] and brought him up to the king of Babylon [l] at Riblah, [m] and they passed sentence on him. 7 They slaughtered Zedekiah's sons before his eyes. Finally, the king of Babylon blinded Zedekiah, bound him in bronze chains, and took him to Babylon. [n]

Jerusalem Destroyed

8 On [o] the seventh day of the fifth month, which was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, a servant of the king of Babylon, entered Jerusalem. [p] 9 He burned the LORD's temple, [q] the king's palace, [r] and all the houses of Jerusalem; he burned down [s] all the great houses. 10 The whole Chaldean army with the commander of the guards tore down the walls [t] surrounding Jerusalem. 11 Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, deported the rest of the people who were left in the city, the deserters who had defected to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the population. [u] 12 But the commander of the guards left some of the poorest of the land to be vinedressers and farmers. [v]

13 Now [w] the Chaldeans broke into pieces the bronze pillars [x] of the LORD's temple, the water carts, and the bronze reservoir, [y] which were in the LORD's temple, and carried the bronze to Babylon. [z] 14 They also took the pots, the shovels, the wick trimmers, the dishes, and all the bronze articles used in temple service. [a] 15 The commander of the guards took away the firepans and the sprinkling basins — whatever was gold or silver. [b]

16 As for the two pillars, the one reservoir, and the water carts that Solomon had made for the LORD's temple, the weight of the bronze of all these articles was beyond measure. [c] 17 One pillar was 27 feet [A] tall and had a bronze capital on top of it. The capital, encircled by a grating and pomegranates of bronze, stood five feet [B] high. The second pillar was the same, with its own grating. [d]

18 The commander of the guards [e] also took away Seraiah [f] the chief priest, Zephaniah [g] the priest of the second rank, and the three doorkeepers. 19 He took a court official who had been appointed over the warriors from the city; five trusted royal aides [C, h] found in the city; the secretary of the commander of the army, who enlisted the people of the land for military duty; and 60 men from the common people [D] who were found within the city. 20 Nebuzaradan, the commander of the guards, took them and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. [i] 21 The king of Babylon put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. So Judah went into exile from its land. [j]

Gedaliah Made Governor

22 Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon appointed Gedaliah [k] son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, over the rest of the people he left in the land of Judah. [l] 23 When all the commanders of the armies — they and their men — heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah, they came to Gedaliah at Mizpah. [m] The commanders included Ishmael son of Nethaniah, Johanan son of Kareah, Seraiah son of Tanhumeth the Netophathite, and Jaazaniah son of the Maacathite — they and their men. [n] 24 Gedaliah swore an oath to them and their men, assuring them, “Don’t be afraid of the servants of the Chaldeans. Live in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and it will go well for you.” [o]

25 In the seventh month, however, Ishmael son of Nethaniah, son of Elishama, of the royal family, came with 10 men and struck down Gedaliah, and he died. Also, they killed the Judeans and the Chaldeans who were with him at Mizpah. [p] 26 Then all the people, from the youngest to the oldest, and the commanders of the army, left and went to Egypt, for they were afraid of the Chaldeans. [q]

Jehoiachin Pardoned

27 On [r] the twenty-seventh day of the twelfth month of the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Judah's King Jehoiachin, in the year Evil-merodach became king of Babylon, he pardoned King Jehoiachin [s] of Judah and released him from prison. [t] 28 He spoke kindly [u] to him and set his throne over the thrones of the kings who were with him in Babylon. [v] 29 So Jehoiachin changed his prison clothes, and he dined regularly in the presence of the king of Babylon for the rest of his life. [w] 30 As for his allowance, a regular allowance [x] was given to him by the king, a portion for each day, for the rest of his life.

2 KINGS

Introduction See the Introduction to 1 Kings for the introductory material.

Outline of 2 Kings I. The Divided Kingdom: From Israel's Ahaziah to the Fall of Israel (1:1-17:41) A. Ahaziah and the prophet Elijah (1:1-18) B. Elijah succeeded by Elisha (2:1-25) C. Israel's King Joram (3:1-27) D. Elisha's ministry of miracles (4:1-8:15) E. Judah's King Joram (8:16-24) F. Judah's King Ahaziah (8:25-29) G. Israel's King Jehu and the prophet Elisha (9:1-10:36) H. Queen Athaliah (11:1-16) I. Three good kings: Joash, Amaziah, Azariah (11:17-15:7) J. Five bad kings: Zechariah, Shallum, Menahem, Pekahiah, Pekah (15:8-31) K. Jotham (15:32-38) L. Ahaz (16:1-20) M. Hoshea and God's indictment against Israel (17:1-41) II. The Kingdom of Judah: From King Hezekiah to the Captivity (18:1-25:30) A. Revival under Hezekiah and apostasy (18:1-21:26) B. Revival under Josiah and apostasy (22:1-25:7) C. Jerusalem falls to the Babylonians (25:8-30) Study Notes 1:1 This brief statement about the Moabite rebellion and the later complete record of that war (3:4-27) brackets data that deals with Ahaziah, Elijah, and Joram. This bracketing indicates that all these materials should be related to the rebellion.

1:2 The first incident thus bracketed is Ahaziah's injury and subsequent query of Baal-zebub, "Lord of the Flies." Baal-zebub was the god of Ekron, one of the five cities of the Philistine pentapolis. Several scholars suggest that Baal-zebub is a mocking corruption of Baal-zebul ("Lord of Gl ory"). Turning to pagan deities was disloyalty to God and, by a slight extension of Ex 22:20, worthy of death. The bracketing hinted that one reason for losing the Moabite war was the idolatry of Israel described here.

1:3-4 The author tells us that the angel told Elijah what to say, then Elijah left, apparently after delivering the message. With an obedient prophet, compliance is implicitly simultaneous with command. Elijah condemned King Ahaziah for seeking counsel from a pagan deity. Ahaziah showed the same unbelieving pragmatism his father Ahab had when Ahab looked for a prophet who would give him the answer he wanted (1Kg 22:8). Elijah challenged King Ahaziah on this false worship. The question, Is it because there is no God in Israel, rhetorically highlighted Ahaziah's lack of faith (v. 16). Then Elijah announced that Ahaziah would die.

1:9-10 Here is an encounter reminiscent of Elijah's conflict with the priests of Baal (1Kg 18) and of Moses' conflict with Pharaoh (Ex 7-11).

1:11-12 The king foolishly trusted in his power again and sent another company of 50 men to be destroyed. Again we see the severity of God against the representatives of God's enemies.

1:13-15 The third captain had learned the lesson of God's power and appealed for mercy. At this point God, in contrast to the pattern of speaking directly through Elijah (vv. 10,12), sent an angel (cp. vv. 3-4) to instruct Elijah to go with the company.

1:16 Because of Ahaziah's rejection of God, Elijah again declared that he would not rise from his sickbed. Perhaps at this point Ahaziah recognized the power of God, but there is no evidence that it affected his attitudes and behavior.

1:17-18 Ahaziah's record ends with the statements of his death and the succession of his brother, Joram.

2:1-25 The departure of the prophet Elijah is described in this chapter. There was a literary reason for bracketing the departure of Elijah within the references to the Moabite rebellion—it related Elijah's departure to the successful Moabite rebellion. This account, with its overtones of God's miraculous presence, would have reminded the reader that royal unfaithfulness, not any absence on God's part, caused this loss of empire.

2:1 The route of travel from northerly Gilgal, through Bethel, and then to Jericho, showed that this was not the well-known Gilgal near Jericho. The exact location of this Gilgal is unknown.

2:2 In this incident Elijah repeatedly urged Elisha to remain behind, perhaps to test his determination to be formally recognized as Elijah's successor. Persistence was a key trait of faithful prophets.

2:3 The presence of godly sons of the prophets indicated that prophets of Yahweh were still tolerated around Bethel, despite Bethel's illegal worship. The conversations show that Elijah's impending departure was common knowledge.

2:4-6 Again Elisha was urged to remain behind, again he insisted on following, and again the prophets—this time the prophets of Jericho—declared that Elijah's departure was near. The repetition underscores the importance of these events.

2:7-8 God's power was demonstrated again, in a very historic and traditional way, as Elijah miraculously made a path through the Jordan River, reminiscent of God opening the Red Sea when His people left Egypt (Ex 14:21-31) and opening the Jordan as Israel prepared to take the promised land (Jos 3:14-17). An audience of prophets was there to report this miracle to the people.

2:9-10 In an age of God's miracles and power encounters, the identity of the next great miracle worker was important. The two shares was an indicator of the legitimate heir. Elisha's renewed request for that position highlighted the importance of the role and that Elisha was the person to assume the role. Since this role had already been assigned to Elisha, this request was not arrogant.

However, despite the fact that Elisha had already been designated as Elijah's heir (1Kg 19:19-21), Elisha must still observe Elijah's departure for this promise to be implemented.

2:11 Adding marvelous deed upon marvelous deed was additional evidence of God's power for those who were willing to see (Is 6:9-10).

2:12 The words chariots and horsemen of Israel show that the value of the miracle-working men of God was more than just moral or didactic. They were channels for real power. These words would be repeated at Elisha's death (13:14). In the case of Elisha, there were specifically military grounds for the phrase as in the examples of miraculous military assistance rendered by Elisha in the wars with Aram (6:8-7:20).

2:13-15 Elijah's mantle showed that Elisha was the legitimate heir to Elijah. We should not attribute magic to the mantle any more than we attribute it to Moses' staff (Ex 14:16); the mantle was a concrete symbol of God's power to the watchers. The sons of the prophets recognized Elisha's new role with proper deference.

Elisha's Spring at Jericho, which is the source for Elisha's well (2:19-22).

2:16-18 The unsuccessful search for Elijah's body confirmed that a miraculous work of God had occurred.

2:19-22 Elisha confirmed his role as a channel for God's works by performing a miracle—one that demonstrated the practical benefits of God's great acts.

2:23-24 In a context in which the destiny of the nation depended on its willingness to recognize God, and where the "man of God" (1:10) had replaced the apostate king as God's representative, it is understandable that severe penalty came to those who mocked God's chosen servant. God's severity had a purpose. The word translated as boys is often used for mature men (Boaz's "servant," Ru 2:5), but the behavior of the group suggests they were young. In all likelihood the children were preteens or younger teens. This passage is often overstated as if all the mockers were killed; mauled often connotes being wounded rather than killed.

2:25 Elisha lived at Samaria under the eye of the unfaithful kings of Israel.

3:1-3 These formal statements mark the beginning of Joram's record. Joram was bad, but not as bad as Ahab and Jezebel. He suppressed Baalism by removing Baal's sacred pillar (probably a short sacred stone rather than a column; but see 10:26), but there were still hundreds of priests of Baal when he died.

3:4-5 Finally, the text returns to the Moabite rebellion (1:1). Moab, Edom, and Judah were all subject to Israel. At this point Israel was a much smaller "empire" than what had been overseen by Solomon in the southern kingdom, although Ahab had regained some trade privileges in Damascus (1Kg 20:34). Mentioning this rebellion at 1:1 and 3:4-5 puts Ahaziah's unfaithfulness and Elijah's departure clearly in the context of this war. Chapter 2 showed that God's miraculous power was still available. When the story of this rebellion is brought into the picture, the message is clear that Moab's rebellion succeeded because of Israel's continued unfaithfulness and the people's rejection of God's great works.

3:6-7 King Joram mobilized all Israel and both of his remaining vassal kings, Jehoshaphat of Judah and the king of Edom (v. 9). Jehoshaphat used essentially the same statement of political self-subjection to Joram that he had earlier used with Ahab: my people as your people, my horses as your horses (1Kg 22:4).

3:8 The choice of the invasion route was particularly deliberate. Moab lay directly across the Dead Sea from Judah. Moab was most directly approached from the north, but the Moabite Stone indicates that Moab may have concentrated their military power in the north. The choice to attack Moab from the south through Edom thus evaded the Moabite strong points and helped to assure Edom's involvement in the campaign.

3:9-10 For all their intentionality in choosing the direction of attack, the indirect route of the invading army might be better described as "wandering around." The combined three armies faced total disaster. The circumstances (no water) seem more compatible with wandering around in the dry wadis of Edom rather than the relatively open areas of the Arabah.

3:11-12 Once again, Jehoshaphat pointed a king of Israel toward seeking counsel from the LORD (cp. 1Kg 22:5). Two surprising facts then emerged. The first was that the man of God, Elisha, was there. God providentially worked to make the miracles of Elisha available for the armies. But the familiarity between Elisha and the king's household is even more surprising. This resembles the surprise one feels when learning that one of Jesus' disciples was on close terms with the household of a hostile high priest (Jn 8:15-16). God sometimes ordains surprising relationships in order to further His purposes.

3:13 The man of God boldly stated God's attitude toward the apostate Joram. This structurally highlighted the apostasy of Israel and God's mercy in delivering the nearly helpless kings. For a king with as little faith in God as Joram, it was hubris to say, It is the LORD who has summoned these three kings.

3:14-18 God responded only because of the godly Jehoshaphat. Elisha's musician provided the setting in which he could attend to God rather than being distracted. The result was that Elisha received and communicated God's word, giving instructions for receiving God's deliverance. Once again miraculous works revealed God's character and power, but Israel continued to reject His miraculous works.

3:19 God's command to devastate Moab contrasted with His command to care for the land of Palestine (Dt 20:19). Once again, the reader is struck by the severity of God. We should not expect to easily understand or explain God's judgments.

3:21-24 Moab, fully mobilized, attacked and was defeated. The full details of how this worked are not clear, but it is no surprise that three invading armies were able to defeat Moab.

3:25 Then the combined armies devastated Moab except for the capital city, Kir-hareseth, modern Kerak. This devastation was also a blow to the north-south caravan route that passed through Transjordan and particularly through the Moabite capital.

3:26-27 Finally the devastation came to the point at which the king of Moab offered his own crown prince and heir as a human sacrifice. The lesson of these two chapters is clear: God's miraculous power could bring unfaithful Israel to the verge of victory, but God could also take that victory away. Whether from battle fatigue in foreign lands, shock at the desperate step the king of Moab took in sacrificing his son, superstitious fear of the magic power that such a sacrifice aimed to produce, or from seeing the wrath (whether of the Moabites or of God Almighty; the text is unclear), the coalition withdrew and Moab remained independent though thoroughly devastated.

4:1-7 : 20 These four chapters demonstrate two themes. First, they record more miraculous encounters between the followers of Yahweh and the paganism of the Israelites. Second, they report the work of the prophets, the new representatives of God, in correcting the pain brought on by the failure of the kings, who had forsaken their sacred responsibilities. These encounters began with Elijah.

Up to this point, the records of this conflict have been incorporated into the overall chronological structure of these books. In these four chapters the treatment of miracles changes. The writer here recorded miracles separated from the sequential structure of the book. Because of this technique some of the events involve anonymous kings whose chronological place may be unclear. The sign ministry of Elisha covered a long period. Therefore some of these events could have taken place as late as the period of weakness between the reigns of Jehu and his grandson, Jehoash (798-782 B.C.). Unless chronological sequence is explicitly indicated, these events should not be taken as chronologically arranged. The normal chronological pattern of 1 and 2 Kings resumes with the record of Jehoram, son of Jehoshaphat (8:16).

Since these chapters develop the theme of power encounters, they are best understood in terms of the lessons they taught and their strengthening of faith in Yahweh in conflict with their unfaithfulness and paganism. The data indicate that the reputation of the miracle-working men of God extended beyond Hebrew territory. Because of this reputation the prophets could, on occasion, act in an international context. This wider influence, like the influence of the Jewish synagogue in the exile and early Christian era, indicates that God was affecting the larger Gentile world.

4:1 The social evil in this incident had two causes: societal evolution that broke down the old tribal and clan responsibilities, and the moral callousness that grew out of apostasy. When people find themselves in changed societal conditions where the traditional safety nets have disappeared, godlessness can lead to the creation of destructive new norms and practices. This incident (vv. 1-7) showed the power of God to relieve the hurts and pains that were inevitable in an increasingly godless society. When the covenant laws, which specified the responsibilities of the clan and tribe, were functioning properly, enslavement for debt would not have happened. Disallowing such abuses was one responsibility of a godly, responsible relative (Hb go'el; "redeemer") or even the king himself.

4:2-7 A miraculous provision by the man of God, Elisha, compensated for the injustice and the failure of the system that God had established but that apostasy had corrupted. The provision for the woman and her children was a private act, but the canonical record of this deed was a public witness to God's provision, and the story may have been well known before it became canonical.

4:8-10 The man of God made such an impression that one prominent family wished to show special hospitality to him. In a society that had become largely pagan, a display of friendship to the man of God possibly indicated faith in God.

4:13 Apparently Elisha could have influence with an ungodly king or other authorities. This is an example for Christians living in a corrupted political system. The woman expressed contentment with her situation.

4:15-16 The woman was barren in a society in which both pagans and worshipers of the Lord thought of barrenness as one of the curses from the gods. At the same time, any act of power could be a vindication of God's truth. Therefore this special help for the woman was a witness for God. More specifically, it was a statement that God could still give blessings to those who were faithful to Him.

4:18-26 When death entered the home of the Shunammite family, there was another opportunity to show that God could miraculously bless. The OT promise of earthly blessings for keeping the law was a general promise, not an absolute promise to every faithful person. There were many people who had faith but were not rewarded with freedom and prosperity, as in the case of Naaman's Jewish servant girl (5:2). Nevertheless, any blessing is an example of God's care for His faithful ones. To common perception, for the Shunammite woman to lose her son could send a negative message about God's dispensing of blessings.

4:27 Elisha modeled both sensitivity and a recognition of his own limitations. His words the LORD has hidden it from me showed limitation to the knowledge and power God granted him.

4:28 Her ecstatic hopes are suddenly dashed, and her spirits are lower now than they had been before she was blessed with a son. Some grief is too painful to share with just anyone. Concealing her thoughts from her husband and from Gehazi, the woman wanted to deal with Elisha, the source of her blessing.

4:29-31 When sent to bring healing to the woman's son, Gehazi was to be focused on the task. Gehazi's failed attempt to bring healing also revealed the human limitations of the man of God. Elisha had seemed confident that sending Gehazi was sufficient to heal the woman's son.

4:32-35 When Elisha arrived, he carried out a more complicated procedure for healing the son. In that day and time, even some sincere worshipers of the Lord might have taken this healing act to be a result of magical power given by God.

In this way some may have mistakenly taken Elisha to be a man gifted with rare powers. Such notions are contrary to biblical revelation. We must understand that in the era of epic power encounters between the men of God and representatives of darkness, men such as Elisha performed spectacular feats only because they served as channels for God's miraculous power. There was no magic to it; nor were the powers given to the men of God in such a way as to make the powers their own. Here Elisha's success was dependent on his prayer to the L ORD .

4:38 Since the text had earlier placed Elisha and the prophets in a northern Gilgal near Bethel (see note at 2:1), this is likely that same northern Gilgal. The prophets' way of life, at least on some occasions, demanded that they forage for their food. Apparently they partly supported themselves by such foraging and partly by gifts from pious Israelites.

4:39-40 While foraging, one of the prophets gathered some poisonous gourds. This may have happened on other occasions as well, but this time the occasion gave an opportunity for a miraculous provision.

4:41 Elisha neutralized the poison with another miraculous deed. The lesson was that God's power could protect His people from careless dangers even in a serious famine.

4:42 Another opportunity for a miraculous provision occurred when a supporter brought a gift of bread to the prophets. This gift could indicate that the giver had rejected the apostate priesthood of the north since he gave this gift to the faithful prophets of the Lord. The location of Baal-shalishah is uncertain.

4:43-44 This miracle sounds remarkably similar to the feeding of the 5,000 in the NT—similar enough that one could wonder if there are deeply rooted, long-lived reasons for the similarities (Mt 14:13-21). Perhaps Jesus consciously imitated this episode as yet another indication that He was the fulfillment of the OT (Mt 5:17). Here the instructive value of the miraculous work includes elements such as questioning the sufficiency of the gift, making an insufficient gift sufficient, distributing the food, and having more than was needed. The global lesson is God's ability to provide.

5:1-27 This chapter gives an example of God's miracle-working influence reaching out to the world and impacting a pagan nation, possibly at a time when that nation was a deadly enemy of Israel. This incident could have occurred during the time of Hebrew weakness and Aramean strength that occurred between Jehu's revolution and the resurgence of Hebrew power under Jehoash.

5:1 Though Naaman was regarded as a great military leader, we cannot identify the specific victory that earned him this respect. The Hebrew word for Naaman's illness (skin disease) is the word routinely translated "leprosy," but scholars have long felt that its meaning is broader than Hansen's Disease.

5:2-3 The kidnapping of a young Hebrew girl recalls God's description, given through Amos, of this border warfare: "They threshed Gilead with iron sledges" (Am 1:3). Yet the young Hebrew captive, in an attitude of faith and resigned to the brutality of the age, seemed to have accepted her situation with a positive attitude and to have retained her personal faith in God. She was able to love her enemy, and she wished that her master could experience God's miraculous healing.

5:4-6 The willingness to seek healing from a foreign god does not necessarily indicate a high international opinion of the deity, but considering God's hand on the internal political affairs of Damascus (8:7-12), a measure of international standing existed for Yahweh, the God of the Israelites.

5:7 The reaction of the king of Israel, particularly his fear that Damascus was seeking a pretext for war, showed that this was a time of weakness for Israel.

5:8-9 These verses give the most explicit statement of the story's intent—that people might know there was a prophet in Israel. This can easily be seen as an OT missionary statement.

5:10-12 The sequence of events recorded here fits best into a time when Elisha's residence was near the Jordan River. This story suggests that the author wished to present God and His work on God's terms, not the terms that humans would expect. Naaman represents the politicians and others who seemed to feel that God should approach them on man's terms. God's sovereignty transcended showing deference to pagan politicians, but God's grace was still available for those politicians and pagans who respected God. The lesson that God demanded obedience would also have been significant for the Hebrew audience. The Abana and Pharpar rivers, flowing from the slopes of Mount Hermon and coming to an end in the desert marshes east of Damascus, probably were more attractive and cleaner than the ever muddy Jordan.

5:13-14 Naaman's servants persuaded him to give up human pride, and then he was healed.

5:15 Naaman's next words to Elisha sounded like another paradigmatic statement of the expected consequences of God's great works—the response of faith on the part of those who experience or learn of God's great works (Ex 18:9-10; Jos 2:10-11; 1Kg 8:42-43; Ps 66:5-8).

5:16 Elisha was not in his ministry for the money. Then and now, ministry is a calling rather than a career.

5:17-19 Elisha's last words to Naaman implied two concessions to Naaman's new faith. First, as a man of new faith and incomplete understanding, Naaman believed there would be benefit in having soil from Israel at hand when he worshiped Israel's God. Elisha cooperated with Naaman's superstitious belief, much as the apostle Paul encourages mature believers to do with immature believers (Rm 14). A more significant concession was to allow Naaman to participate (seemingly in body only, not mind and heart) in his king's worship of the god Rimmon. "Rimmon" could have been a local name for the god Hadd/Hadad or a local manifestation of that god. Elisha's words, go in peace, imply acceptance of Naaman's requests.

5:20 Elisha's servant Gehazi decided to exploit his religious position for money, especially since it involved taking money from a foreigner. Contrast this with Elisha's attitude (v. 16).

5:21-23 When Gehazi asked for clothing and money based on his fabricated story, Naaman gave him twice the money he asked for and sent two men to help him take the treasures back and possibly to protect him on the trip.

5:25-26 Gehazi added lying to his other deceits, but this lie conflicted with knowledge that God had supernaturally imparted to Elisha. Elisha's answer listed some of the pleasures one could expect to gain with money.

5:27 As a leper, Gehazi was no longer fit to serve as Elisha's servant. As is commonly the case in other biblical narratives, we should not assume chronological order for the events narrated in this passage unless such order is explicitly indicated in the text. Therefore there is no necessary contradiction between the fact that Gehazi is here banished from Elisha and the fact that he is presented as Elisha's servant in 8:1-6. That incident, though recorded later in the book, could have occurred before Naaman's healing.

6:1-4 Elisha lived among and worked with the prophets. The communities of the prophets were fairly mobile and could relocate whenever their homes or a neighborhood became crowded. To find room, they went to the lower Jordan River Valley to one of many places where the well-watered, lower flood plain abounded with thickets, trees, and other vegetation and also with pools and eddies of water. This well-watered strip near the river was the "pride [or 'rising,' or 'thickets'] of the Jordan" (Jr 12:5; Zch 11:3). The desert land beyond this fertile strip was generally barren.

6:5 It had been 200 years since the Israelites had relied on Philistines for iron tools (1Sm 13:19-22), but iron tools were still expensive.

6:6-7 The reaction of the man of God was almost perfunctory. He asked where the ax fell, threw a stick into the water, and miraculously recovered the ax head. The lesson was that God could do miraculous works of witness on behalf of His prophets in a time of national unfaithfulness to Yahweh.

6:8-8 : 15 This section, almost two chapters long, shows the man of God intervening in politics. Though His people had rejected Him, God did not abandon His people to their enemies or to their own rulers. A likely setting for these events was the political weakness under Jehu and his weak successor, Jehoahaz. In contrast with the severity shown to Elisha's greedy servant, God could still show mercy to Elisha's ungodly king. During this time, Elisha could live safely in Samaria, though suffering occasional personal threats (6:32). The man of God helped Israel in two ways: by sharing supernatural knowledge of the enemy, and by serving as a rallying point and source of prophetic encouragement for Samaria.

6:8-9 Perhaps during an era of border harassment, the man of God regularly revealed the secret plans of the Arameans to the king of Israel. This was not as spectacular as destroying an enemy with hailstones (Jos 10:11), but it still showed that God was supernaturally working for His people.

6:12-13 The Arameans knew about Elisha's supernatural military intelligence.

6:14-15 The Arameans sent a major expedition to surround Elisha in Dothan, about 10 miles north of Samaria. The king of Damascus, with a pragmatic attitude similar to Ahab's, showed a typical reaction to God's miraculous works —defiant opposition.

6:16-17 A supernatural view of Dothan showed the servant that, contrary to what his unaided eyes told him, military leaders were not in control of coming events. A greater force was present, unseen but potent, ready to fight on behalf of the righteous.

6:18-20 God miraculously delivered the Aramean army into the hands of the Hebrews without bloodshed.

6:21-22 Several authorities argue that killing prisoners was not a common practice (but see 1Kg 11:16). Elisha's prohibition against killing the Arameans carried the implicit message that God had given this victory. There is no contradiction between this episode and the one just following (see next note). Since God's lessons fell on hardened hearts, it was inevitable that war would be resumed. The miraculous capture and release of the Aramean army did produce a brief period of peace between the weakened Israelites and the dominant Arameans. But in terms of God's larger purpose of witnessing through miraculous works, they were ineffective for both the Israelites and the Arameans. God's great works can be effective, but the impact of God's truth is determined more by the attitude of hearts than by the wonderment of miracles.

6:24-7 : 20 This account of the siege of Samaria demonstrated the failure of the king. In broad terms, he failed because of sin, but in this context he failed because of his rejection of the message of God's miraculous works. The account shows the king's interaction with the misery of the people and his personal failure. This failure came in a context in which God had provided past victories and lessons that could have led to peace and prosperity.

6:24-25 Since neither the Israelites nor the Arameans were changed by the demonstrations of God's power, war eventually returned. Ideally, the circumstances of God's people should never have reached such a sorry state; the biblical plan was that a righteous king would defeat the enemies and save his people from such misery (Ps 20:1-2,6-7). In this time of spiritual failure, war had come with a devastating siege of Samaria and starvation among the people. The siege was so pressing that ceremonially unclean and detestable substances were being sold for exorbitant prices. This contrasted with the concept that the king was responsible to provide for his people's needs (Ps 72:12-13).

6:26-27 The people had the right to call to the king for help (Ps 72:12-13), but an unfaithful king could only make excuses and blame God.

6:28-29 The king's interview with one of the two women involved in cannibalism illustrated a depth of sin that had been prophesied much earlier (Lv 26:29).

6:30 The king was probably sincere in wearing sackcloth under his robes. He could honestly say that he felt the people's pain, and he skillfully displayed the evidences of his grief. He reacted to the woman's pain with great emotion.

6:31 The king was right to feel moral revulsion at this situation, but lack of moral wisdom led him to blame God and to pronounce an oath against God's prophet, Elisha. But this disaster was actually caused by the sin of the king and the people.

6:32 That the elders of the idolatrous city held Elisha in high respect is proven by the fact that they were in his house . . . sitting with him.

6:33 The strongest demonstration of the king's misdirected moral sensitivity came when the messenger asked why he should any longer trust a God who brought such disasters on His people. This recalled the scene when Ahab, the great destroyer of Israel, accused Elijah of being the destroyer (1Kg 18:17-18). The moral rebel often sees only what will justify his excuses. Furthermore, in blaming God, the king who should have represented the people to God instead became a blasphemer against God.

7:1 The story turns to the coming miraculous deliverance. Elisha announced that the next day at that same time, food would be available at bargain prices at the city gate. Despite the failure of the king, his lack of repentance, and no visible faith, God was still going to deliver—an act of undeserved grace.

7:2 In response to the blasphemous comment of the captain, Elisha prophesied that he would not share in the blessings.

7:3-4 Since the nation's leaders were such failures, the Lord brought knowledge of deliverance through four outcasts who were quarantined because of their skin disease. Despite their despair, they chose the least hopeless course of action and went to the Aramean camp.

7:5-7 God had already thrown the Aramean army into a supernatural panic that caused them to abandon their camp and foodstuffs to the besieged Hebrews. The Hittites referred to here were the neo-Hittites, remnants of the older Hittite Empire from the second millennium B.C. In this context, Egypt was probably the northern Egypt from which Solomon imported horses (1Kg 10:28). The contrast between the miraculous power of God and the impotence of human agents is another great lesson of this story.

7:8-9 The outcasts, after gathering food and plunder for themselves, remembered their people. The outcasts brought news of the deliverance (or "victory," Ps 20:6) that a righteous king should have accomplished.

7:12-13 The king, still reacting to God's miracles with hopeless despair (Jos 2:11), was too paralyzed by fear to act, but his servants persuaded him to examine the situation.

7:14-15 A two-chariot scout group reconnoitered as far as the Jordan River and determined that the enemy really had been frightened away.

7:16-20 Now all of Elisha's prophecy was fulfilled. These details, particularly those dealing with the death of the captain, were repeated in meticulous detail to highlight the fact that God is faithful. The unspoken lessons of God's reliable character were (1) that people, particularly the king and his officers, should obey and trust God, and (2) that God will care for His people when kings fail.

8:1-6 This incident almost certainly occurred at an earlier time and under an earlier king. Because Gehazi was serving Elisha and had an audience with the king, it is likely that this event took place before Gehazi became leprous (chap. 5). Though obviously related to the earlier incident of the healing of the Shunammite woman's son (4:32-37), this material may have been recorded here because it also dealt with issues of government and beneficial rule. Certainly beginning with 6:26, and perhaps earlier with 6:8, this section has dealt with the king's failure to perform his proper duties. This portion deals with justice for a woman who had abandoned her land in a time of distress and then had difficulty getting her land back. The prophet's influence helped her to get a just settlement of the issue. Though out of chronological order, this account is topically suited for this context.

8:7-15 Earlier (1Kg 19:15-16), God had instructed Elijah to choose his successor and to anoint two kings. Up to this time, only one of those tasks—choosing his successor—had been accomplished. The other two anointings were to be done by Elisha "in the spirit and power of Elijah" (Lk 1:17). This would have had the same validity as the appearance of John the Baptist as Elijah (Mt 11:14). Apparently, Elisha's designation of these two kings was sufficient to fulfill the Lord's original command to Elijah.

8:7-8 Once again the prophet was presented as an international celebrity. God's mighty deeds gained influence even among foreigners, though such deeds did not always lead to faith.

8:10-11 Elisha gave a devious answer to Ben-hadad's request for an oracle. If one takes Elisha's message as meaning only that Ben-hadad's current illness was not terminal, it was true, but God also used Hazael's visit to Elisha to incite Hazael to commit murder and revolution.

8:12-13 Then Elisha shared his prophetic vision that Hazael would devastate Israel. From the perspective of covenant theology, Israel and Israel's king deserved such brutal judgment. This message ended with Elisha stating unambiguously that Hazael would become king. In giving that message, God and Elisha either instigated Hazael's treason or encouraged the initiation of a treason that was already planned.

8:14-15 Hazael did, in fact, repeat the prophet's words to Ben-hadad, but then he proceeded to murder his king and take the throne.

8:16 With this record the data is again arranged chronologically.

8:18 After the formal opening, the evaluation reports that Joram was a bad king and observes that the corrupting influences of Ahab and Jezebel had reached into Judah. The way of the kings of Israel probably refers to the worship of Baal-melkart (see note at 1Kg 16:23-28). It was unlikely that the good king, Jehoshaphat, anticipated this outcome when he entered into a marriage alliance with Ahab.

8:19 Again, as in the case of the wicked king Abijam (1Kg 15:4-5), God tolerated and preserved a wicked king and his kingdom because of David's character. The example of Jeroboam I was an evil force that destroyed his successors. The faithful example of David preserved even wicked successors and a wicked kingdom from destruction.

8:20-21 During the reigns of Ahab and Jehoshaphat, both kingdoms could make claims of empire though Ahab was clearly the senior member of the alliance. These verses record the loss of Judah's last pretense to empire for this cycle as both kingdoms moved into a period of idol worship and weakness.

The brief description of the night attack against surrounding Edomites could be translated in two ways. The critical sentence could be either "at night he and his chariot officers attacked the surrounding Edomites" or "at night he attacked the surrounding Edomites and their chariot officers." The first option is more likely because, even in decline, Judah was more likely to have a small chariot division than Edom was. Then the next sentence, "The people (his troops) fled to their tents (homes),” is also ambiguous. “The people” could be the Edomites, who fled so that the rebellion was not crushed, or they could have been Jehoram’s chariots, who went home without subduing the rebellion. This time the second option is more likely. By losing control of Edom, Judah lost control of the caravan routes to the south. Judah also lost Libnah on the border of the former Philistine territory.

8:22 Today refers to the date of the writing of an earlier document that was incorporated into the canonical version of 2 Kings. The final composer of 2 Kings incorporated parts of this earlier document into his finished work.

8:23-24 The closing statements for Jehoram’s rule are completely formulaic.

8:25-27 The corrupting relationship with the house of Omri and Ahab is highlighted. The way of . . . Ahab probably alludes to bringing the worship of Baal-melkart into Judah (see note at 1Kg 16:23-28).

8:28-29 The notice about the continued conflict with Hazael of Damascus informs the reader that Israel, with Judah as an ally, could still contest control of Gilead with Hazael, the new, more aggressive ruler of Damascus. The big step in the decline of Israel’s political power would come with Jehu’s widespread massacres. There is no notice for the end of Ahaziah’s reign since his death is recorded later as part of Jehu’s massacres.

9:1-15 : 12 The theological and moral reason for this coming period of weakness was the sin of the southern kings beginning with Jehoram, son of Jehoshaphat (8:18). But the immediate, political cause was the violence and destructiveness of Jehu’s revolution against the dynasty of Omri. Decline began immediately with Jehu’s massacres and continued into the rule of Jehu’s son, Jehoahaz. This period of weakness was the most likely setting for several of the miracle events recorded in topical, non-chronological order in the general career of Elisha (see notes at chaps. 4-7).

Then, after Elisha’s deathbed intervention in politics, Jehoash, grandson of Jehu, led the north in a new round of successful warfare. This culminated in the reign of Jeroboam II, during whose rule the wealth and power of the northern kingdom was greater than it had yet been. Both the Bible and archaeology bear witness to this. In God’s providence, this restoration of power came just in time to bring material blessing to the successors of Joash of Judah.

9:1-4 The second anointing of a ruler commanded of Elijah by the Lord occurred when Elisha sent a young prophet to anoint Jehu, an experienced chariot commander, to be king of Israel. At that time Jehu was a commander of the chariots struggling with Aram for control of Ramoth-gilead. The delicacy of the situation is shown by the command to the young prophet to escape immediately.

9:6-10 In the account of Elisha commissioning the young prophet, the message is summarized in six words (v. 3). Here in the account of delivering the message, the six words are expanded to more than a hundred words (in the HCSB translation) followed by an urgent departure. This expanded statement repeated the accusation against the house of Ahab and gave a detailed presentation of the penalty to be exacted.

9:11-13 The evaluation Jehu and his master's servants gave about the prophet seems confused. At first the prophet was described as crazy and ranting, but as soon as the group realized that they actually liked the message he had brought, they allowed the prophet's oracle and anointing of Jehu to instigate the revolution that destroyed the house of Ahab. Whatever Jehu's servants may have initially thought of the messenger, they recognized that his actions implied the divine approval of Jehu as king—a conclusion they apparently reached before Jehu himself did.

9:14 The formula used here to designate Jehu could be understood as: "Jehu, the son of Jehoshaphat, of the clan of Nimshi." All Israel should not be taken as referring literally to "all Israel" but to all Israel involved in conducting the war. This idiom is similar to the idiom involved in the sacrificial blood in which all (rightly translated "the rest" in the HCSB) of the blood was poured out on the base of the altar (Lv 4:34). From context, "all of the blood" referred to all of the remainder after the other functions had used much of the blood.

9:15 Jehu plotted with his fellow officers to prevent anyone from going to Jezreel to warn the king. Then he took a group of soldiers with him to seize the throne.

9:17 The term troops used to describe the approach of Jehu's group could refer to any rushing mass or torrent. No wonder Joram sent an officer to investigate. Although the term for rider could be used for either chariot drivers or horse riders, the chariot was more likely for this task (v. 21).

9:18 The quickness with which the messenger lined up behind Jehu, signaling a switch of allegiance, showed that personal loyalty to King Joram was as shallow in Jezreel as it had been in Ramoth-gilead and that Jehu was a persuasive leader.

9:19-20 After a second messenger defected to Jehu, the lookout thought he could identify the manner of chariot driving as distinctive of Jehu.

9:21 Joram behaved like a man of bravery and character in going to face the danger himself. King Ahaziah of Judah should also be given similar credit for going with him.

9:22 Taken in its literal meaning, the prostitution mentioned by Jehu probably referred to the temple prostitutes of Baalism associated with the local Baals of Palestine and Jezebel's imported Baalism from Phoenicia. However, it could easily be stretched to apply to the metaphorical religious adultery of worshiping any god other than the Lord. Witchcraft was also a routine part of pagan cults.

9:24-26 These events happened near the second royal palace, the summer palace, the place where Naboth and his sons were murdered. Jehu, remembering the time when he and Bidkar, his aide, were witnesses to those murders, enabled the fulfillment of the prophecy by dumping Joram's corpse on Naboth's land (see notes at 1Kg 21:13-14; 21:19-24; and 22:37-38). The Hebrew word for aide, meaning "third," indicates that Bidkar was a third person in addition to the chariot driver and Jehu.

9:27-28 Judah was a junior ally of the dynasty of Ahab and was also tied to Ahab by marriage and by the cult of Baal. Though he had not been commanded to do so, Jehu may have believed there was no reason to distinguish between purging the land of the house of Ahab and purging it of the related house of David in Jerusalem—so far had the house of David sunk. Jehu's men pursued and wounded King Ahaziah at the ascent into the Gur Pass near Ibleam, although some locate this pass close to the pass that led from Taanach south. The wounded Ahaziah was permitted to flee to Megiddo where he died. Neither Joram nor Ahaziah are given formal closers to their records since Jehu's massacres rendered such records superfluous.

9:30-37 This report, written by a follower of Yahweh who considered Jezebel the incarnation of evil, described the courage and resolve of this idolatress and murderess as she faced death. She tended to her appearance with black eye paint and then boldly faced her killer. Her fate again showed that the loyalty of the people to Ahab was quite shallow. Two or three of Jezebel's eunuchized palace slaves, when challenged by Jehu, threw her to her death. Then, while Jehu ate and drank, the dogs destroyed the corpse of the Phoenician princess just as was prophesied (1Kg 21:23).

10:1-7 Having many wives and children was seen as one of the prerogatives of power, even for righteous men (Gideon in Jdg 8:30-31). Ahab's sons and grandsons were apparently distributed among the noble families to relieve the royal treasury and to provide loyal sets of eyes and ears in the homes where they lived. Jehu shrewdly offered the great families of Samaria a difficult choice—choose a king and fight for him or deliver evidence that they had killed Ahab's sons. By ordinary standards of the day, these male heirs of Ahab were legitimate targets. The surprise was that their ruling brothers had permitted them to live that long.

10:8-10 Jehu used the cooperation of the leaders of Samaria to justify his revolution and to associate his slaughters—to that point, correctly—with God's will.

10:11 But Jehu went beyond killing the house of Ahab and killed Ahab's great men (perhaps the great men loyal to Ahab) and all of Ahab's friends. In these killings he clearly went beyond God's commands into excessive slaughter. By the standards of that day, the false priests were fair targets.

10:13-14 These verses report even more unnecessary slaughter of the southern royal family.

10:15-16 Jehu aligned himself with one of the major religiously conservative leaders of the kingdom—Jehonadab son of Rechab (see note at Jr 35:2).

10:18-19 Since these verses describe Ahab's family and there was one great temple of Baal, the record deals with Baal-melkart, not some local Palestinian Baal (see note at 1Kg 16:23-28). Jehu used deception to lure the priests of Baal-melkart to their deaths. Straightforward honesty, perhaps even brutal honesty, might have been better than dealing with the Baal priesthood by deception.

10:20-22 Then Jehu went through all the hypocritical motions that would make his deception successful, even bringing out the special consecrated garments for the priests of Baal. For the sincere pagan these garments could have been as sacred as the priestly sacred garments were to the Levitical priests.

10:23 If this part of the ruse had any meaning to the priests of Baal, they likely would have seen it as an attempt to keep their sacred festival from being polluted by the presence of worshipers of Yahweh.

10:24-27 Jehu killed the priests of Baal and polluted their holy site with the corpses of its priests. This is similar to Josiah's later pollution of the site at Bethel by burning human bones on that altar (23:16). Then the temple of Baal was torn down. They entered the inner room—the holy of holies of the Baal temple—and brought out its furnishings for destruction. The plural pillars probably included both the stone pillar of Baal, which could not be burned, and the wooden post or pillar of Asherah, which could be burned. In almost all the temple architectures known to us, the innermost room, the holy of holies, was the private dwelling place of the deity or of the most sacred symbols of the deity. The final and deepest insult to the Baalist holy place was to turn it into a latrine.

10:28-31 The major point in the evaluation of Jehu was that he eliminated the worship of Baal-melkart (see note at 1Kg 16:23-28). For this he was promised four generations of heirs on the throne of Israel. However, like every other king of Israel, he did not reverse the illegal worship at the calf shrines.

10:32-33 Because of sin in both kingdoms, God used Hazael, king of Aram, not only to take away imperial holdings, but also to seize all Hebrew territories east of the Jordan River.

10:34-36 Jehu's formal closer has no noteworthy features.

11:1-15 : 38 This section covers the reigns of four good kings: Joash, Amaziah, Azariah, and Jotham. All four of these kings receive some positive appraisal. The first three started well, but ended badly. However, their collective piety brought about a third period of prosperity, power, and blessing. To the past great periods, (1) of David and Solomon and (2) of Ahab and Jehoshaphat, would be added the age of Jeroboam II and Azariah (aka Uzziah of Judah; 2Ch 26). Once again God would use the military and economic might of Israel to bring blessing to a repentant Judah. This was the last age of wealth and international power for the Israelites. The two remaining revivals led only to partial religious renewal and no serious resumption of world-class political power. While the revival had begun by Joash's twenty-third year (ca 812 B.C.) the significant resurgence of Israelite power and wealth began 20 years later with the victories of Jehoash, grandson of Jehu, over the Arameans.

11:1-21 Athaliah was first introduced in 8:26 as Omri's granddaughter and mother of Ahaziah. Three factors enabled her to seize the throne: the respect for the queen mother, the religious and moral corruption of the last two Davidic kings, and the presence of Baal worshipers in Judah. However, there were three weaknesses that could destroy her: personal loyalty to Athaliah did not extend far from Jerusalem and was weak even there; many Levites remained loyal to Yahweh; and Jehu's massacres halted support for Athaliah from the north. Athaliah murdered all the males of the royal house in an attempt to eliminate legitimate, Davidic competition. After the other disasters that had struck the royal family (9:27; 10:13-14), most of those victims were her own descendants. On a cosmic scale, this was a step in the conflict between good and evil since it attacked God's plan to bring forgiveness for sin through the line of David.

11:2-3 Jehosheba, sister of Ahaziah and wife of Jehoiada the priest (2Ch 22:11), saved one of Ahaziah's sons and his wet-nurse from the slaughter and hid them in the temple. Athaliah apparently was not secure enough to exterminate worship of Yahweh from the country or the capital.

11:4 After six years Jehoiada the priest devised and implemented a plan for mobilizing the forces loyal to David. The revolutionaries included the Carites. Since the name is foreign without any typical Hebrew extensions, they were probably foreign mercenaries. The ease of the revolution suggested that there was a large reservoir of loyalty to the Davidic dynasty. Jehoiada bound his conspirators together by a solemn oath of loyalty to the young heir to the throne, probably an oath in the name of the Lord.

11:5-9 Jehoiada gathered his forces and executed the palace coup. The Hebrew terms for the Sur gate and the Foundation Gate (2Ch 23:5) are so similar that one is almost certainly a textual error for the other. The units involved in these preparations were placed in position for protecting the young Davidic heir.

11:10-11 It is ironic, and perhaps providential, that some of the weapons that made the palace coup possible were weapons left in the temple of the Lord because Athaliah was never able to destroy that center of opposition. These weapons dated back to King David's time. Once again, the Levites and others loyal to Yahweh played a crucial role in preserving the faith.

11:12 Joash was enthroned by the conspirators. The best symbol of the royal theology behind the Davidic dynasty was the testimony, the king's personal copy of the covenant that was prepared by the Levites (Dt 17:18). However, some see this as a physical symbol of royal status, perhaps a royal armband (2Sm 1:10). The theologically proper enthronement also demanded the presence of a high priest (see the role of Abiathar with Adonijah; 1Kg 1:7) and the bestowal of the crown.

11:14a The word pillar may designate a traditional place where the king was publicly recognized or perhaps a traditional place of covenant renewal (23:3). If this portico of the temple was also a hall of pillars (1Kg 7:6; the words "portico" and "hall" used in this verse can be the same Hebrew word), then this pillar could have been one of the pillars in that area. Otherwise one of the great bronze pillars was intended.

11:14b-16 Instead of withdrawing to gather support, Athaliah tried to halt the ceremony. She was removed from the sacred precincts and executed. This clearly showed her lack of support.

11:17 The public coronation of the young king before all the people began with a covenant renewal. The nation did not just choose a king; the people renewed their covenant relationship with God. Every enthronement of a new king theoretically involved a covenant renewal since a treaty of loyalty was normally renewed every time a new king ascended the throne.

11:18 A natural step in obedience to the covenant was the destruction of the temple of Baal. Killing the priest of Baal at the altar was an insulting desecration of that altar.

11:19-20 The public coronation ended with taking the young king to the palace, where he was placed on the throne.

12:1-21 In terms of the structure of the royal records, the preceding chapter was introduction and background for the reign of Joash. The record of his reign begins here with its formal opener.

12:2-3 Joash was a good king as long as Jehoiada instructed him. Due to the restrained nature of the condemnation, the high places, both here and for the next three kings, were probably not centers for pagan worship. Instead they were likely illegal shrines for worshiping Yahweh outside of Jerusalem. These breeches did not prevent a new cycle of blessing, but they may have previewed a popular, pervasive spiritual blindness that was coming (Is 6:9-10). At some point this spiritual blindness made judgment inevitable.

12:4-5 Joash's own revival activities seem to have begun with rebuilding the temple. He directed that some of the gifts coming into the temple should be designated for temple refurbishing. The text is not clear about which temple taxes or gifts the king selected from the list given here. This list mentioned dedicated money (lit "silver of the holy things"), census money possibly from the annual census of males (Ex 30:13-14), and money from vows (voluntary gifts).

12:6-8 The words had not repaired indicates that the priests had been negligent in repairing the temple. Perhaps after some conflict between temple officials and the king over who would direct the expenditure of the revenues, the king assumed control of some temple revenues and designated them for rebuilding the temple. It is possible that Joash only took control over taxes and gifts designated for the rebuilding operations. Later data (v. 16) demonstrates that he did not seize all the temple income.

12:9-12 These designated taxes were directed into a treasury chest earmarked for the temple's rebuilding, and then, by the king's order, these funds were disbursed to rebuild or repair the temple.

12:13-15 The record is positive concerning the overseers, saying they were so honest that no accounting was necessary. Yet, at this point, funds were inadequate for replacing the utensils necessary for the temple worship. Later, funds became available for this purpose (2Ch 24:14).

12:17-18 Second Kings omits any record of Joash's late unfaithfulness to Yahweh (2Ch 24:17-22). A plundering expedition by Hazael king of Aram was judgment for early stages of Joash's unfaithfulness. This campaign demonstrated the collapse of joint Israelite power. Just two decades earlier, when Jehu seized the throne of Israel, Israel was competing with Hazael for Ramoth-gilead on nearly equal terms. Now, Hazael apparently marched freely through the territory of Israel to the coast and then south along the coast to capture Gath. With Gath captured and Judah weak, the route to Jerusalem was open. Joash sent the treasures of the palace and the temple to buy off Hazael.

From Chronicles we learn that after more years of Joash's unfaithfulness, Aram, likely under Ben-hadad, again invaded Judah, entered Jerusalem (2Ch 24:23), killed many people, and seized still more plunder. Several factual differences distinguish this actual penetration of Jerusalem from Hazael's threat to Jerusalem mentioned above. Though revival formally began with Joash, it was short-lived and shallow. This could explain why the return of prosperity, power, and blessing was delayed until later.

12:19-21 After the formula sentences about the end of Joash's reign, the text reports that he died by assassination—a tragedy almost certainly instigated by his idolatry and the plundering of Jerusalem. The assassination occurred at Beth-millo. Similarities in root meaning hint that Silla might be another word for the ramp or descending highway just southeast of Jerusalem. This possibility could give the meaning "the Beth-millo that goes down parallel to the highway."

13:1 The reign of Jehoahaz marked the low point of Hebrew fortunes between the greatness of Ahab and Jehoshaphat and the greatness of Jeroboam II and Azariah. Ironically, conditions became even worse after Joash's tepid revival. The Assyrians were inactive in Aram and Palestine, so Hazael (possibly a second king by this name) had a free hand in plundering both Israel and Judah.

13:2 Jehoahaz's father had destroyed Baalism in Israel (10:18-27), so Israel was more free from Baal than Judah was, but Jehoahaz restored the false worship that Jeroboam had instigated.

13:3 God's judgment gave a free hand to Aram during the reign of Jehoahaz and the last half of the reign of Joash of Judah.

13:4-5 The record reports that Jehoahaz prayed to God for mercy and God was merciful. Historians generally agree that the deliverer was a new king of Assyria, Adad-Nirari III, who attacked the west in 805 B.C. and diverted Aramean power from Israel. Dwelt in their tents seems to be an idiom for "lived peacefully" (1Ch 5:10).

13:6-7 This mercy had no positive moral impact. Israel remained as firmly rooted in disobedience as before, though they did not return to Baal. Therefore, this Asherah pole probably represented the fertility consort of one of the historic Palestinian Baals. The numbers—50 horsemen, 10 chariots, and 10,000 foot soldiers—showed the dismal military state of Israel. However, it is possible that God's mercy had some influence on Jehoash, Jehoahaz's son, particularly in his positive attitudes toward Elisha. Though still wicked, he was an improvement over his father.

13:10-13 This negative estimate of Jehoash gives no hint of the good relations recorded between Elisha and Jehoash or of Jehoash's successes against Aram. As already noted, early in Jehoash's reign, a halt in Assyrian pressure gave Aram freedom to attack Hebrew territory once again. This threat may have been the setting for the deathbed interview with Elisha recorded in verses 14-19. This closer for Jehoash's reign is structurally correct since the normal pattern was to conclude the current record before taking up the next record (Amaziah; 14:1-22). The repetition of this material in 14:15-16 is out of its natural place.

13:14-19 Elisha's deathbed interview with Jehoash was appended to Jehoash's official record. Despite the negative judgment against Jehoash, there was mutual affection between the king and Elisha. The prophet presented a symbolic oracle to Jehoash. Elisha designated the arrows as symbols of defeat for Aram. Then Elisha ordered the king to implement the curse by symbolically striking the ground. He then rebuked Jehoash for not striking the ground enough times, perhaps indicative of Jehoash's lack of zeal.

13:20-21 God still had one more miracle to certify His work through Elisha, and, by extension, through Elijah also. A dead man was brought to life because his corpse came into contact with the bones of Elisha. Rather than signaling that Elisha's bones held magical power, this miracle bore testimony to the power and testimony of God that was borne through His chosen prophet.

13:22-23 God in His mercy kept this promise to deliver the Israelites from Aram, though this came through a wicked king, but the reason for this unwarranted mercy was God's covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For Judah, unwarranted mercy to wicked kings was possible because of the Lord's promise to David.

13:24-25 Elisha's dying oracle called for some record of the fulfillment of Elisha's promise. Thus the record of those victories was appended here, not in the formal record.

14:1-2 The opener for Amaziah is ordinary, except that his length of rule, 29 years, obscures the fact that for all but the first four years he was co-regent with his son, Azariah.

14:3-4 The evaluation of Amaziah notes that the high places, again probably for illegal worship of Yahweh rather than pagan gods, were not shut down.

14:5-6 Amaziah obeyed the law when he punished his father's assassins since he did not also kill their children (Dt 24:16; cp. 2Kg 10:11-14).

14:7 The resurgence of Israelite power actually began with Jehoash and Amaziah. On Judah's part, this involved a successful but brutal reconquest of Edom. The Valley of Salt is not precisely identified, but it was probably in the Arabah, south of the Dead Sea. Sela was the 1,000-foot-high mountain fortress of Edom near Petra.

14:8 Although the reasons for Amaziah's presumption were more complicated, 2 Kings hints that it came from pride and arrogance from his victory over Edom. The Chronicles account attributes Amaziah's presumption to the rejection of God's will and to idolatry (2Ch 25:14,20).

14:9 Some take Jehoash's fable as indicating that Amaziah had become upset at Jehoash's rejection of a request for a marriage alliance between Amaziah and Jehoash.

14:10-14 Jehoash did not want war with Amaziah, but Amaziah was insistent, and the results were disastrous for Judah. The two gates mentioned here indicated that Jehoash tore down the western half of the northern wall of Jerusalem and then plundered the city.

14:15-16 This repetition of the formal ending of Jehoash's reign seems to be a copyist's error (13:12-13). On the other hand, some interpreters have suggested that the repetition of this data was purposeful and focused the reader's attention on the north where Jehoash was restoring Israelite fortunes.

14:19-21 A long co-regency is necessary to explain the numbers given (15:2). Therefore, the statement the people of Judah . . . made him (Azariah) king may have been a flashback reference to when the people forced this co-regency on Amaziah because of his political and military bungling (and idolatry as well, according to 2Ch 25:14). It is likely that Amaziah's death, though some years later, also was a result of such dissatisfaction.

14:22 Azariah, also called Uzziah—Amaziah's son—succeeded him as king of Judah. It is unusual to list an achievement of the new king in the closing formula of the old king. The reason may have been that Azariah was already executing much royal power during the co-regency and, although the deed was not finally completed until after Amaziah's death, the achievement represented Azariah's efforts during the co-regency.

14:23-29 A secular historian could be astounded that the Bible gives so little attention to one of the three or four greatest kings of the Hebrews. Some have concluded that the power and wealth of the two combined Hebrew kingdoms at the time of Jeroboam II approached the wealth and power of Solomon. The purpose of the text, however, was not to recognize secular greatness but greatness in terms of the royal covenants. Therefore, any secular achievements, which could not be related to God's glory, were irrelevant and thus were not given substantial coverage.

14:23-24 The formulaic opener contains the usual data, including the stereotypical condemnation that Jeroboam (Jeroboam II) of Israel had not departed from the sin of Jeroboam I.

14:25 The Bible writer recognized the territorial expansionism of Jeroboam II, whose kingdom fell short of Solomon's northern boundary at Tiphsah on the Euphrates River. Jeroboam II's boundary reached only to Lebo-hamath. In the south, his territory reached to the Sea of the Arabah, clearly the Dead Sea since this body of water was under the slopes of Pisgah (Dt 3:17). Only here do we find that Jonah, the minor prophet, joined with Elisha in prophesying this restoration of Hebrew power.

14:26-27 Again, as with Jehoash (13:23), these deliverances were because of God's mercy and grace rather than the righteousness of the king. God intervened to prevent His wayward people from being totally annihilated. The reason is arresting but simple: God had not decided to blot out the name of Israel under heaven.

14:28-29 The closing comments are typical formula except for another statement about Jeroboam's (Jeroboam II's) effectiveness in foreign affairs.

15:1-7 Once again, the record of a king—this time Azariah of Judah, also called Uzziah—does not do full justice to his stature, godliness, and significance. He was co-regent for 25 years with Amaziah (792-767 B.C.). To see his importance, one must consult the fuller records in Isaiah and Chronicles. Including the co-regency with Amaziah, his reign saw the passing of the dynasty of Jehu and the final end of Israel's imperial power. It is particularly significant that one of the best known and most significant prophetic visions in the OT is dated "in the year that king Uzziah died" (Is 6:1). His death truly did mark the end of an era.

15:1 -2 The formula data for the beginning of the reign of Azariah of Judah again could obscure both the co-regency with his father Amaziah (792-767 B.C. ) and the co-regency with his son, Jotham (750-740 B.C. ; see notes at 14:1-2 and 14:19-21).

15:3-4 This evaluation is typical for a good king, including the notice that the high places for illegal worship of the Lord were not removed.

15:5-7 Perhaps out of deference to Azariah's generally positive character, the writer omitted the reason for Azariah's skin disease. Azariah became arrogant and performed a task that only priests were allowed to do (2Ch 26:16-19). The situation was so severe that Azariah finished his life in quarantine and his son, Jotham, the successor designate, governed the land in day-to-day matters. These were probably the years of Jotham's co-regency. The formal close for Azariah's reign is typical.

15:8-9 The opening for Zechariah of Israel, son of Jeroboam II and the last king of the dynasty of Jehu, is typical formula.

15:10-12 The closer of Zechariah's rule, however, is not typical. It is the record of a palace revolution. The meaning of publicly (Hb qabal'am) is uncertain. This sudden revolution, within six months of the death of the great Jeroboam II, showed how quickly both the throne and imperial power declined after his death. But God had kept His promise that four generations of Jehu's sons would rule Israel (see 10:30). Jehu's dynasty was the longest of the northern dynasties, enduring 40 years longer than Omri's dynasty. Shallum's revolution was, formally, part of the record of Zechariah since it told how Zechariah's reign came to an end.

15:13-15 After a brief opener, the record of Shallum of Israel moves immediately to Menahem's revolution. Shallum's record ends with the note that his other deeds are recorded elsewhere in writings that are now lost to history.

15:16 Some historians see a geographical shift in the center of power in this revolution. Tirzah had once been the center of power before Omri moved the capital to Samaria. They then see Menahem as returning to an old power base—the people of Tirzah—who apparently were glad to resume a position of prestige and leadership. The location of Tiphsah is uncertain. The Tiphsah on the Euphrates River was too distant to be a part of this struggle. Some read this name as Tappuah or Tirzah. This city resisted the revolution, so Menahem destroyed it. Whether because of his power base in Tirzah or because of his terrifying brutality to Tiphsah, he gained enough authority to rule for 10 years.

15:17-18 The formal beginning of Menahem's reign in Israel is typical.

15:19-20 In 743 B.C., near the end of Menahem's reign, Tiglath-pileser III (known in the Bible by his throne name Pulu or Pul) invaded the region. This created a new political situation since Assyria was now the enemy to the north and northeast. Thus the major internal struggle for most of the small kingdoms of Palestine and Aram was between the pro-Assyrian party that advocated peace with Assyria at any price and the anti-Assyrian party that advocated wars for independence at any price. Menahem purchased his throne by taking a pro-Assyrian stance and paying a huge tribute, 75,000 pounds of silver. Menahem raised the tribute money by imposing a head tax on the wealthy men of Israel. This tax alienated the anti-Assyrian parties in Israel.

15:21-22 The only thing noteworthy about the closing notices of Menahem's reign is that he succeeded in leaving the throne to his son, Pekahiah.

15:23-26 Pekahiah ruled only two years. Subsequent history indicates that the reason for his short reign could have been the dissatisfaction of the anti-Assyrian party in Israel. The leader of the rebellion was Pekah, who became the next king. The formal close reveals nothing new about Pekahiah.

15:27-28 The formal opening statements for Pekah indicate that he ruled for 20 years, a long and successful rule for this period, though his first 12 years were probably as an independent ruler in Gilead. Then he enjoyed eight years (740-732 B.C.) of rule over Israel until the Assyrians returned.

15:29 Israel had been briefly free from Assyrian invasion because Assyria was too busy elsewhere, so Pekah broke his treaty with Assyria. But then, in 734 B.C., Tiglath-pileser returned, conquered, and annexed large portions of northern Israel. The area defined by the names in the text includes significant Transjordan Hebrew holdings and regions north of the fertile Plain of Esdraelon. This still left the king of Israel with the fertile heartland of the country and a reasonable hope of local, though not imperial, prosperity. The Hebrews in the annexed territories were deported to the east and—though not stated here—the Assyrians brought in new population to resettle the land.

15:30-31 Pekah was then deposed by a revolution led by Hoshea. It is not clear whether this was the work of a pro-Assyrian party or of an anti-Assyrian party that penalized Pekah for not being successful enough in his resistance to Assyria. Hoshea later conspired against Assyria. The closing comments for Pekah reveal nothing new.

15:32-35 The clock turns back to two kings of Judah who became king during the reign of Pekah. Again, Jotham's length-of-rule formula can be confusing. His 16 years apparently did not include the 10 years of co-regency with Azariah nor did they include the three-year co-regency with Ahaz. He was a good king, except he did not close down the worship of Yahweh at the illegal shrines on the high places. He was the last of the four good kings from Joash to Jotham, and he was the only one who, as far as the Bible reveals, did not finish badly. An addition to the temple was his outstanding achievement.

15:36-38 The closing comments about Jotham's reign cast a cloud on the future in referring to the beginning of raids against Judah by Rezin of Aram and Pekah of Israel. Historians take this harassment as trying to force Judah into an anti-Assyrian coalition. By some datings, Ahaz may have been ruling as co-regent with Jotham during the invasions of Judah described in the next chapter (16:5-6; cp. Is 7:3-6).

16:1 - 2a The opening formula for Ahaz of Judah is not remarkable. However, its interpretation offers some challenges. The seventeenth year of Pekah (735 B.C.) would have been the beginning of Ahaz's co-regency with Jotham. Ahaz's 16-year official reign began with his sole regency in 731 B.C. with Jotham's death. The data does not indicate the year in which Ahaz was 20 years old.

16:2b-4 Ahaz was the first bad king of Judah in about 100 years. The phrase way of the kings of Israel could refer to paganism in general, particularly the worship of the Baals, since hostility with Israel would have hindered enthusiasm for the golden calves. Making his son pass through the fire showed the depths of Ahaz's paganism, but some suggest that this was a different offense than sacrificing the son in Baal's fiery arms. The king's high places included those for pagan deities. In pagan cults a green tree symbolized a goddess's fertility and sometimes represented the goddess consort of the fertility deity at a high place.

16:5-6 These verses understate the military pressure from Israel and Aram during Ahaz's reign. Likely, during the co-regency of Jotham and Ahaz (ca 735-732 B.C.), both Aram and Israel invaded and devastated Judah in turn (2Ch 28:5-6) and then put Jerusalem under siege. The goal was to force Ahaz into an anti-

Assyrian alliance or to replace him with a king who would oppose Assyria. Although they seized valuable territory, including the port of Elath, they could not conquer Ahaz.

16:7-9 Ahaz then voluntarily submitted to Assyria, who would rule Judah as a vassal for the next century. The text seems to indicate that the Assyrians intervened only because Judah hired them. However, history shows that Isaiah's prophesied deliverance (Is 7:7-9) might have come without Ahaz's meddling. Tiglath-pileser III had already planned to reconquer the region. The Assyrians would have been helped if Ahaz had just withheld support from the anti-Assyrian coalition. Shortly after Jerusalem was put under siege, Tiglath-pileser launched campaigns that conquered the Philistine coast, lifted the siege of Jerusalem, destroyed Damascus (732 B.C.), and reduced the size of Israel (15:29).

16:10-11 Ahaz's subjection to Assyria renewed the struggle between political prudence and loyalty to Yahweh. Though not always enforced, the general principle was that a vassal accepted the ruler's cultic symbols as signs of obedience to the ruling country and to its god. In this pagan worldview, Yahweh was treated as a local god, who, along with His country, also had submitted to Asshur—the chief Assyrian god—and was privileged to become a part of Asshur's divine council. Yahweh could even give oracles to the Assyrians, particularly when they suited Assyrian purposes (18:25). Unlike Amaziah's voluntary idolatry with the gods of Edom (2Ch 25:14), Ahaz's idolatry was forced on him by his submission to Assyria. Ahaz's imported altar was the cultic symbol of his submission to Assyria's main god. The priest Uriah represented the complicity of some priests and Levites in this religious corruption.

16:12-13 Ahaz entered into his religious responsibilities to Assyria's chief pagan god with diligence, though he also had time for other pagan deities as well (vv. 3-4). Ahaz, representing the Hebrew people, participated in the religious rituals at Asshur's altar. This contrasted with his failure to represent the people correctly before Yahweh, and it also contrasted with Solomon's representation of the people (see note at 1Kg 8:22).

16:14 - 15a Perhaps at the suggestion of some visiting Assyrian official (cp. v. 18), Ahaz moved the original bronze altar of Yahweh to a less central place in the temple to give prominence to the altar of the Assyrian god.

16:15b Ahaz, however, remained true to Yahweh in one activity. He designated the bronze altar of Yahweh as the king's private altar where he would seek guidance, presumably from the Lord. The traditional means of guidance was through the sacred lots, the Urim and Thummim, though some suggest that Ahaz used pagan divinations.

16:17 Bronze was a valuable commodity. So, as an accommodating subject, Ahaz stripped bronze off the sacred fittings of the temple and even sent the bronze from the 12 oxen of the bronze reservoir to Assyria as tribute. However, the valuable metal of Moses' bronze serpent was not sent to Assyria since it was still there years later (18:4).

16:18 The significance of removing the Sabbath canopy and closing the special entrance for the king is not clear. The only thing certain is that something in them offended the king of Assyria.

16:19-20 Ahaz's record closes with the typical formula statement.

17:1 -2 The formulaic opener for Hoshea reveals that he was not as bad as his predecessors.

17:3-4 Hoshea was appointed king about 732 B.C. over an Israel greatly reduced by Tiglath-pileser III (15:29) . At some point when Assyria was distracted elsewhere Hoshea declared his freedom. The identity of So among known Egyptian Pharaohs is uncertain. When Hoshea withheld tribute from Assyria, the end came. Tiglath-pileser died before he could return to Samaria, but his son, Shalmaneser V, invaded Israel (725 B.C.). After a three-year siege, he captured Samaria, imprisoned Hoshea, and deported the Hebrew population to Assyria (722 B.C.). Verse 4 seems to indicate that Shalmaneser arrested Hoshea before besieging Samaria. It is unlikely that the city would have resisted after Hoshea's arrest. It is easier to take verses 4 through 6 as topically structured. The topic of verse 4 is Hoshea, whom Shalmaneser arrested (confined by siege) and then put . . . in prison after the siege ended.

17:5-6a The temporal marker, then, is missing in the Hebrew. Rather, verses 5 and 6 probably consider the same time period with respect to the nation. Shalmaneser besieged the city for three years and then deported the population to points north and east of Israel. Sargon II, the next king of Assyria, may have expedited some of the deportations.

17:6b The Assyrians deported the Hebrews to several different areas. Halah was in the general area of Gozan. Some were settled along the Habor River, a tributary of the Euphrates that flowed south from the region of Haran and Gozan to the Euphrates. This region was only about 400 miles northeast of Israel. However, other Israelites were settled in the territory of the Medes in mountain country east and northeast of the plains of Babylon and Assyria. These exiles were almost a thousand miles from home.

17:7-20 These verses contain one of the great theological statements of the OT —God's accusation against the Israelites for their covenant faithlessness and that of their kings. It also expresses the climactic moral statement of the Deuteronomic History. This condemnation covered both Judah and Israel

although Judah's doom was still about 130 years in the future. The author gave a grief-filled statement of why this tragedy happened. The notes below recognize the major themes of this theological statement.

17:7 This verse repeats three fundamental truths of Israelite life that are repeated over and over again in OT theology. First, they sinned against the LORD . Second, this was the God who, by bringing them out of . . . Egypt, had made them His possession. Third, the people had worshiped other gods.

17:8 The Hebrews were so perverse in their idolatry that they, like King Amaziah (2Ch 25:14-15), adopted the gods who were incapable of defending their people against the nations.

17:9-10 The Israelites built numerous high places, at first secretly and then openly. The typical high place installation consisted of (1) a sacred stone or pillar for the male fertility deity, usually some Baal, and (2) a sacred pole or a green tree for the female consort of the Baal. The latter often represented the consort goddess or Asherah.

17:11-12 Then the message becomes a piling-on harangue that lists the discouraging catalogue of evils committed by the people. There are both general statements—they did evil things—as well as more specific general practices—they burned incense.

17:16-17 The author presents more accusations of idolatry and cruelties. The worship of the whole heavenly host, the gods of the heavenly bodies, had not been frequently mentioned so far, but they were mentioned by contemporaneous prophets (Am 5:26). The most extreme evil—offering infants to Baal by having them pass through the fire—is mentioned, as well as divination and omens. Divination focuses more on gaining knowledge by supernatural means while omens are the magical giving of knowledge and the exercise of magic power. Such dabbling with supernatural knowledge and power was part of King Saul's sin (1Sm 28:7-9) and was condemned by Moses (Lv 20:6; Dt 18:10-11).

17:18 After all these reports of idolatry and disobedience, the LORD was very angry seems like an understatement. The final penalty for repeated idolatry was the removal of the people from God's presence by taking them from the land He had given them.

17:19-20 The context of this judgment was primarily God's judgment of Israel, but the Lord proceeded to pronounce judgment on Judah as well. From this time, Judah's exile was also decreed.

17:21-23 Jeroboam (Jeroboam I) was the archetypical figure for the sin of Israel and the roots of Israel's destruction are traced back to him. Finally, Israel was removed from God's presence.

17:24 The origins of the Assyrian colonists were the following: (1) Babylon

in lower Mesopotamia; (2) Cuthah in lower Mesopotamia just a few miles from Babylon; (3) Avva, also known as Ivva, of unknown location; (4) Hamath, north of Damascus on the Orontes River, near where the Battle of Qarqar was fought; and (5) Sepharvaim, somewhere in Aramean territory.

17:25 The word fear can carry a range of meanings, from terror to reverential worship of God. It is not easy to know what level of terror or worship the word communicated in this context.

17:26-28 These verses give an accurate picture of religious attitudes in the ancient world. In general, ancient people believed that the gods were real and powerful enough that people had to manipulate them to gain benefits. This contrasted with Hebrew theology, which held that God cannot be manipulated. The Assyrians viewed foreign gods as lesser deities to be incorporated into their system of worship. Therefore, it seemed reasonable to them to send a priest of the territorial god back to the occupied region to teach the people there, many of whom were new arrivals, how to make peace with that god (or gods). Possibly this included providing a copy of the deity's sacred writings. This priest's work may have been the origin of the Samaritan Pentateuch.

17:29-34 The result of all these efforts was a group of people with mixed religious beliefs and practices. They feared the Lord while at the same time they still worshiped their own gods, and as a result eventually they did not fear the Lord. Succoth-benoth was similar to Sarpanitu, one of Marduk's goddess consorts. Nergal, the god of pestilence and one of many consorts of Erishkigal—queen of the underworld—had a shrine in Cuth. Ashima may have appeared also in the phrase "guilt (Hb ashmath) of Samaria" (Am 8:14). This deity was probably the same as Ashim Bethel (or Eshem Bethel), who appeared as a fertility consort of Yahweh in the popular, syncretistic religion of the Jewish colony at Elephantine. Two unknown deities of the Avvites were Nibhaz and Tartak. Adrammelech and Anammelech of Sepharvaim cannot be clearly identified, though the fact that children were sacrificed to them tells something about their character. The general picture is one of typical ancient fertility religion, including major national deities and minor local deities.

17:35-39 These verses give a concluding summary of the historic mandate to the Israelites to obey the covenant.

17:40-41 If the Israelites, whom God had delivered from Egypt (vv. 34-39), would not obey God's covenant, how could the pagan idolaters that were relocated to Samaria do any better? In fact, we could argue that these pagans, eventually growing into some commitment to their own version of the Pentateuch, did deserve comparison with the Hebrews.

The Fall of Samaria and Deportation of the Israelites 18:1-20:21 This section focuses on the reign of Hezekiah of Judah. He was a godly king, but he and his nation paid a terrible price for his godliness when Sennacherib invaded Judah. From man's short-range perspective, rebellion against the Assyrian Empire was a tragedy. The Bible and Assyrian annals agree that Assyrian reprisals devastated Judah so that the immediate gains were minimal. Even in terms of Deuteronomic theology, this revival just delayed the exile until after Hezekiah's death. Likewise for his great-grandson Josiah, judgment was just delayed. In this context, the long-range benefit and blessing of Hezekiah's revival might seem hard to discern. After all, the land was devastated. Then and now, persecuted believers pay a high price for little earthly gain. But earthly gain is never the proper motive of fidelity to God.

However, one identifiable benefit of these revivals and support for covenant teaching during the reigns of Hezekiah and Josiah was the laying of the essential foundation for religious life after the exile. Speaking in human terms, the Torah and other OT Scriptures, which the Hebrews took with them into exile, may have existed and/or been available for later teaching only because of the work of people like Hezekiah and Josiah. With the support of faithful Levites and priests, they preserved the Scriptures and other parts of covenant life for the future benefit of the community. The Chronicler could make the same point but with his own interpretation of the facts. The Chronicler could assert that the Scriptures, ritual, and ritual personnel were available to rebuild the life of the Hebrews after the exile only because of the work of the priests and Levites—supported by a few good kings. Thus the discernible benefits of the present fidelity may have come only later to the postexilic community. In this sense faithful believers in any era benefit from the faithfulness of previous believers and in turn pass down benefits to future believers.

18:1 -2 The record of King Hezekiah of Judah opens with the usual formal statements. However, his dates, like Ahaz's dates, present an unusual circumstance. Some point out that the length of Hezekiah's rule is compatible with the 29 years of his sole regency (715-686 B.C.), while the date of the beginning of his rule refers to the beginning of his co-regency with his father, Ahaz. This began in the third year of Hoshea of Israel (729 B.C.).

18:3 The statement that King Hezekiah did what was right . . . just as his ancestor David had done is the standard formula for the good kings of Judah.

18:4 - 7a Hezekiah had one of the longest lists of good qualities of all the good kings. He acted appropriately (v. 4), had the right attitude of faith (v. 5), and persisted in doing good (v. 6). Because of his obedience, God prospered him in everything (v. 7). This prosperity included minor political victories (v. 8) and sufficient economic prosperity to finance the building operations and expensive military preparations for war with Assyria (2Ch 32:1-5).

18:8 In 716 B.C. Sargon II advanced victoriously to the border of Egypt but did not threaten Judah, perhaps because Ahaz, the faithful Assyrian vassal, was still alive. After Sargon left, Hezekiah had some local military success in subduing the Philistines. All of this coincided with military preparations for rebellion and Hezekiah's refusal to send tribute to Sargon of Assyria. Furthermore, these seem to have been years of local economic prosperity for Hezekiah.

18:9-12 There may be a literary reason for this duplicate record of the fall of Israel, the northern kingdom (cp. 17:3-6). It sets an ominous tone for the following account of the invasion of Judah by Sennacherib of Assyria.

18:13-16 These verses fail to portray, either factually or emotionally, the devastation of the invasion by Assyria. Assyrian records report that 46 walled cities were taken, probably in the typically brutal Assyrian fashion. They further claim that 200,150 captives and much booty were also taken. Scholars have debated whether one or two Assyrian invasions of Judah are described in chapter 18. If there were two, these present verses may describe the first, and the second may be described in the following verses. If there was only one invasion, these verses could give a preliminary summary or preview of the overall campaign and then some of its details are further described below. Or perhaps there was only one campaign in which Hezekiah surrendered, made peace, and presented a huge tribute to Assyria, but the Assyrians then reneged on that agreement and tried to destroy Hezekiah and Jerusalem anyway. Some interpreters suggest the following scenario: Hezekiah promised this huge payment; Sennacherib had to leave without receiving it; Hezekiah sent the payment anyway.

18:17-18 Whatever had happened previously, the Assyrians were now threatening Jerusalem, the last outpost of orthodox worship of Yahweh. The Tartan was a high official, next to the king. If the Assyrians followed the Mesopotamian and Persian practice of using foreign eunuchs in high governmental positions, the meaning of the Hebrew word saris indicates that the Rab-saris was associated with those Assyrian officials. The title Rabshakeh is likely an honorific title that may have had little to do with the man's actual duties (cp. the chief cupbearer of Pharaoh; Gn 41:9). Here, he was the diplomatic spokesman for Sennacherib. Some have located the Fuller's Field near En-rogel on the southern approaches to Jerusalem. It may have been frequently visited by the royal family and dignitaries (1Kg 1:9). Though this Assyrian deputation had asked for King Hezekiah, they received instead three high palace officials.

18:19-22 In human terms the Assyrian official spoke the truth: Egypt was weak; Hezekiah had torn down the shrines of Yahweh (though from the perspective of many who worshiped Yahweh, they were illegal) so that the Lord had no reason to protect the king. In fact, the Assyrian claimed that Yahweh was the deity who had sent the Assyrians to punish Hezekiah (v. 25).

18:23-24 The Rabshakeh mocked the military weakness of the Israelites.

18:25 The Rabshakeh claimed that the Lord had commissioned Assyria to attack and destroy Judah.

18:26 Aramaic was the normal language for international dealings, but the Assyrian diplomatic corps included Hebrew speakers.

18:28-30 Both the Assyrian propagandist and the author of 2 Kings continue to describe the depressing state of the Israelites and their faith in Yahweh. The Rabshakeh insisted on shouting, in Hebrew rather than Aramaic, his discouraging message to the soldiers on the wall.

18:31 - 32a The Rabshakeh offered temporary peace and then exile, which he described in rosy terms.

18:32b-35 The pessimistic appraisal continued with the accurate description of the helplessness of the gods of the other conquered nations. Even Samaria was mentioned. (On the nations mentioned here, see 19:12-13 and note at 19:10-13.)

Hezekiah's Revolt 18:36-37 The torn clothes were a formal declaration of grief.

19:1 Some have seen Hezekiah's inactivity at this point as out of character. Two responses are proper. First, his seeking God and leading in repentance are very important actions. Second, this account was not structured to show Hezekiah's activities. It instead aims to show his faith as the world around him was collapsing. By his grief Hezekiah was demonstrating how bad things were.

19:2-3 Royal officers and the leading priests were a very prestigious delegation. The writer used Hezekiah's own words to Isaiah to reinforce how bad the situation was. The metaphor of failed childbirth powerfully demonstrated the Israelites' helplessness.

19:4 The Assyrians' insulting words about Yahweh might arouse God, the only resource remaining, to action.

Hezekiah's Jerusalem 19:5-7 After more than a chapter of bad news, these verses describe the first of five steps of good news. The overall theme is that, no matter how bad circumstances appeared, God could and would deliver. Isaiah's response was that, despite the Assyrian's arrogance in insulting God, He would give the Assyrian king such a spirit*—attitude or desire—that he would want to go* to his own land where he would die.

19:8-9 Since Sennacherib left Lachish without returning, Lachish must have fallen about that time. Sennacherib was dealing with Libnah when he heard that Tirhakah of Egypt was coming. Tirhakah was the last pharaoh of the Cushite dynasty of Egypt. His power consisted of a small group of ancient Egyptian royalty and nobility united with relatively effective Sudanese soldiers. Tirhakah's army was defeated, and Egypt ceased to be a threat.

19:10-13 Rabshakeh again warned Hezekiah, and again the message dealt with overwhelming Assyrian power. The warning was supported by a list of conquered peoples whose gods had not helped them: Gozan, on the Habor tributary of the Euphrates River near Haran; Rezeph northeast of Hamath on the trade route to the Euphrates; the Edenites (sometimes identified with the Aramean kingdom, Bit Adini, conquered by Assyria ca 855 B.C.), who like Telassar are unknown; Hamath, almost directly north of Damascus; Arpad, near the site of modern Aleppo; Sepharvaim and Hena, whose locations are unknown; and finally Ivvah, probably identical with Avva (17:31), whose gods are named but whose location is unknown. All of these sites were roughly on Assyria's approach route to Palestine.

19:15-16 Hezekiah's prayer depicted God as the sole Creator God. Although the Lord had not yet acted, this prayer implied that He would act when the time was right.

19:17-19 The second step (see note at vv. 5-7) in the good news was recognizing that the gods conquered by the Assyrians were not gods. The gods of those nations were idols made by men. Hezekiah, being so close to Isaiah, must have been influenced by Isaiah's teaching about idols (Is 40:18-20; 46:1-7). The intended impact of God's deliverance was to provide a testimony to all the kingdoms of the earth.

19:20-24 God presented the third stage of good news (see note at vv. 5-7) by describing the true power structure of the universe. This recalls the revelation to Elisha's servant (see note at 6:16-17).

19:21 First, the tables were turned to just the opposite of the Assyrians' attitudes. In truth, Jerusalem, or Daughter Zion, was in a position to mock the Assyrians.

19:22 In contrast to the idols destroyed by Assyria, the Assyrians were now facing the only true God, the Holy One of Israel, whose power surpassed anything the Assyrians had experienced.

19:23-24 Then came the most amazing principle of Isaiah's oracle. He admitted that the power of the Assyrian and his conquests were real. These verses use poetic figures of conquest, marching to the mountains of Lebanon and trampling the waters of many nations. No Assyrian court poet could have more effectively described the power and glory of Assyria in so few words.

19:25-26 Assyria had her way with surrounding nations for one reason: God ordained it.

19:27-28 The Assyrians were in God's hand. This brings us to the fourth point (see note at vv. 5-7) of good news: God would lead the Assyrians back to their land by His hook in their nose just as He would handle a stubborn draft animal.

19:29 The year of Jubilee was a second consecutive Sabbath year, where fields were left fallow for two years (Lv 25:1-12). Many suspect that these commands were never consistently implemented. While possible, it is statistically unlikely that these two years under discussion would have coincided with the Jubilee. It is more likely that the author used these concepts and principles as metaphors to describe the recovery of the land from devastation. Just as in the Jubilee, it would take two years of work and living on volunteer growth (plants arising from stray seeds not planted by man) to restore the land. These words also suggest that the diminished population could survive on volunteer growth for two years. This message from Isaiah was both a sign, whose fulfillment proved God's reliability, and a promise that volunteer growth would suffice for those two years.

19:30-31 This closing metaphor had three levels of meaning. First, the remnants of the agricultural crops would take root and grow, and that growth would be an encouraging sign to God's people. Second, it promised that the remnant of the people would take root in the promised land, grow there, and survive this disaster. Third, this was a metaphor for the way in which God's people survive and recover from physical and spiritual enemies when they are fulfilling God's purposes.

19:32-33 Then God reiterated the fourth principle (vv. 27-28), adding that Jerusalem's deliverance would be so thorough that the Assyrians would not even shoot an arrow against Jerusalem.

19:35-36 The fifth and final step of good news (see note at vv. 5-7) was that God did send the Assyrians home. God miraculously damaged the Assyrian army so severely that they had to leave Judah. This apparently happened after the Assyrians had defeated the invading Egyptian army. All the events of this chapter probably took several weeks. Leaving Lachish, turning aside from Libnah, defeating the Egyptians, and then suffering a miraculous blow from God —perhaps a plague—would take some time.

19:37 Biblical Hebrew is often topically organized at the cost of chronological sequencing. The topic of these two chapters is God's triumph over Sennacherib. Though the end actually came some 10 or so years later, the Bible writer recorded the end of that account—Sennacherib's death—before going on to begin another.

20:1-21 Most of this chapter (vv. 1-19) clearly occurred before Sennacherib's invasion. The major evidence is that Merodach-baladan's significant activities in Babylon occurred before this invasion. In the absence of explicit markers of chronological sequence, episodes in Hebrew narrative are not necessarily chronologically ordered. This chapter develops two points: (1) Hezekiah was so pious that God granted his prayer for extra years of life, and (2) Hezekiah, in pride, misused those extra years.

20:1-3 In those days may be interpreted as "in this same general time frame" (cp. 10:32; 15:37; Jdg 19:1). Told of his coming death, Hezekiah faced a difficult theological choice—either accept God's will or ask for special treatment. But the question can be stated in even more difficult terms. Should Hezekiah accept the will of the loving, omnipotent, sovereign Lord, or should he ask the immutable God to change His mind (Nm 23:19)? The Bible sometimes expects us to ask (Jms 4:2), and Hezekiah asked with sorrow, appealing to his righteous behavior.

20:4-6 God was neither surprised by nor unprepared for Hezekiah's prayer. He not only granted what was asked, but He also gave a promise of deliverance from the coming Assyrian invasion. Thus, this event was to strengthen Hezekiah's faith for that ordeal.

20:7 Some have suggested that what unfolded here was a divinely prescribed medical cure, meaning that God knew the treatment with figs would cure Hezekiah. More likely it was simply a miraculous healing. But in either case, God worked in response to prayer (v. 2).

20:8 An arrogant demand for a sign from the LORD is sin (Mt 16:1-4), but God might choose to honor a humble request for a sign (Jdg 6:36-40).

20:9-11 God let Hezekiah choose the final nature of the sign. Again, the purpose of this exercise was to strengthen Hezekiah's faith for the future.

20:12 This episode with Babylon also looked forward to Sennacherib's invasion. This invasion was a response to a worldwide conspiracy against Assyrian power. Merodach-baladan wanted to gain Hezekiah's support in such a rebellion.

20:13 Was Hezekiah's pride in the wealth he had accumulated? Wealth without empire may have been a relatively new thing in Judah. David and Solomon had great wealth, but their wealth grew from imperial power—control of international trade routes and foreign tribute. Or was Hezekiah's pride based on being sought as a player in the international politics of the day?

20:14-15 Hezekiah's brief answer indicated a reluctance to discuss the issue with Isaiah, but the prophet continued his questioning until he received an answer from the king that merited comment.

20:16-18 Isaiah's prophecy concerning Hezekiah's wealth and descendants indicated the king had erred in showing all of Judah's wealth to the Babylonian embassy. The prideful sin may have included using God's blessings as bargaining points in an international political power play. This, then, could be another example of the recurrent conflict between playing a prudent role in international politics and failing to properly trust in the Lord.

20:19 Hezekiah's acceptance of God's punishment could have been either humble acceptance of God's will, or selfish rejoicing because he would experience peace and security in his day.

20:20-21 The story leaps over Sennacherib's invasion to the summary and conclusion of Hezekiah's reign. After the comment about the other records of Hezekiah's deeds, this conclusion turns the spotlight on one of Hezekiah's most important provisions for that war—the construction of a reservoir for water for a siege and of the tunnel that allowed water to come into the city of Jerusalem

(see map on p. 634). The record of Hezekiah then closes with the statements of his death and the succession of his son Manasseh to the throne.

21:1-18 These verses cover the 55-year reign of Manasseh, including a co-regency with his father, which left him a sole regency of about 43 years. (Some reigns or periods can gain or lose a year both at the beginning and ending due to changing conventions in counting parts of a year.) If Manasseh was 12 when he began his co-regency, then he was 22 to 24 years old at the beginning of his sole rule. He would have been born before God's grant of 15 extra years of life to his father, Hezekiah.

21:2 We are told Manasseh did what was evil, but this statement hardly describes the depths of his apostasy. His wickedness was certainly associated with rejecting Hezekiah's anti-Assyrian policy. Manasseh is listed as a loyal vassal king who supplied troops for Ashurbanipal's expedition against Thebes in Egypt (ca 663 B.C.; see Nah 3:8). Assyrian vassals were expected to display religious loyalty to Asshur, the chief Assyrian god (see note at 16:10-11). Manasseh's acceptance of Assyrian deities evolved even further into a tolerant acceptance of any and all pagan deities.

21:3-6 Manasseh's restored high places may have included the illegal shrines of Yahweh, which Hezekiah had suppressed, and those altars devoted to other pagan deities. They included the gods of the skies and heavens. Even worse, he desecrated the temple by worshiping these deities in the temple itself. Recent scholars have taken the word mediums as referring to a ritual pit for bringing up spirits serviced by the spiritists (1Sm 28:7).

21:7a Asherah was originally a tree or a wooden pole that represented any divine consort of the chief fertility god. Since the word here is not associated with any local Baal, it seems to refer to a particular female deity. In setting up this image, Manasseh came close to assigning Yahweh another female consort (see comments on Ashima in note at 17:29-34).

21:7b-9 The Lord had ceased His wanderings from tribe to tribe (2Sm 7:6) to dwell in the temple in Jerusalem. The covenant associated with it gave the Hebrews rest from wanderings. The corrupting of this temple would return the Israelites to wandering among the nations.

21:10-14 Just as Manasseh's list of sins is the longest of the kings of Judah, the judgment for those sins is one of the longest in the individual records.

21:13 The builder's measuring instruments symbolized God's judgment of a corrupt society.

21:15 The people's failure and rebellion dated from the day their ancestors came out of Egypt. This implied a more profound failure than the occasional transgressions of kings and people. There was a deeper, systemic problem that demanded a radically different solution, perhaps the new covenant written in their hearts (Jr 31:31-34).

21:16 The Bible gives no more specific data about Manasseh's filling Jerusalem with innocent blood, and 2 Kings mentions nothing about Manasseh's captivity, repentance, and building operations (2Ch 33:10-14).

21:20-22 Manasseh's son Amon learned nothing from God's judgment of his father.

21:23-24 Amon was assassinated by his own servants, probably a victim of the internal struggle between the pro-Assyrian and anti-Assyrian parties. The common people (lit "people of the land") emerged as the group that maintained loyalty to David's dynasty.

22:1-23 : 30 The reign of King Josiah of Judah is covered in these two chapters.

22:1 -2 The formal statements are typical for a good king: Josiah walked in all the ways of David, and he turned neither to the right or the left.

22:3-5 At 26 years old, Josiah pushed for the rebuilding of the temple. There was no argument over whose treasury was involved (see Joash; 12:4-8). The king either already had or then assumed the necessary authority for rebuilding the temple.

22:8 The Torah, or book of the law, had probably not been completely lost. Even the Samaritans had been preserving their Torah for almost a hundred years (17:28). Perhaps the copies available had been guarded from the previous idolatrous royal house.

22:11 Whatever had happened, the king had been ignorant of some provisions of the law.

22:12-13 Josiah's heart was tender toward God (v. 19). Just as he had searched for God when he was 16 years old (2Ch 34:3) and had pushed for rebuilding the temple, now he was equally willing to heed this message of sin, guilt, and judgment. He acknowledged that sin had aroused the LORD's wrath.

22:14 Despite the general false worship that was occurring throughout the land, a true prophetess was known and tolerated just as apostate Samaria had tolerated Elisha (6:32).

22:15-17 The message of the prophetess was that the sins of the nation must be judged.

22:18-20 Because of Josiah's grief over the sins of the nation, he was assured that destruction would not come until after his death.

23:1-2 All the purifying works of this chapter began quickly after the discovery of the law since, assuming chronological sequencing, these works culminated in the great Passover remembrance, still in Josiah's eighteenth year

(2Kg 22:3; 23:23).

23:3 Perhaps this pillar was the same place used by Joash (see notes at 1Kg 7:15-21; 2Kg 11:14a) for a covenant renewal. The unclear parallel passage in Chronicles probably identifies this same location by a different object. King Josiah, then, committed himself to obedience to the covenant. All the people also committed themselves to the covenant.

23:4 Apparently Josiah's earlier piety had not moved him to a complete rejection of all false gods, but at this point his devotion to Yahweh became exclusive and the cleansing of Judah from false worship began in earnest.

23:5-7 In Judah the orders of idolatrous priests, founded and perhaps also funded by earlier kings, were deposed or disbanded rather than being slaughtered as in the north (v. 20). Allowing male religious prostitutes in the temple until this point indicated extreme degradation and a surprising tolerance for paganism.

23:8-9 Defiling the high places disqualified these altars for further use, at least until they were ritually purified. The priests of the high places seemed to have been incorporated into the ranks of the regular priests, although they were not permitted to come to Jerusalem to participate in worship. This leniency might indicate that these high places were illegal shrines for Yahweh worship rather than shrines for pagan deities.

23:10 To the bullet note information about Topheth, this verse adds that this altar honored the god Molech. Again, Josiah desecrated a sacred site in order to disable it.

23:11 Apparently these horses symbolically pulled the chariots of the sun across the heavens.

23:12-14 Josiah's program continued with the desecration of every illegal altar or place of worship he could find, even those founded by Solomon. These also were defiled by human remains.

23:15-20 It is almost certain that this cleansing of the north took place in the brief period between the fall of Assyrian imperial administration of Samaria and the time when the Egyptians seized control of Judah. It is difficult to tell whether this was political expansionism, religious cleansing, or both. If this cleansing all took place in Josiah's eighteenth year, it could not have been very thorough.

This expedition must have touched the developing Samaritan Jewish community with their alternate, Torah-based tradition. Seeing the general apostasy of Judah, the Samaritans could not have been much worse than the Judeans of that time. So we should not minimize the potential good influence of their loyalty to their Torah, whenever that loyalty developed. Josiah may have impacted this community in one of two ways. If his sense of orthodoxy made the Samaritan community enemies, he could have been a threat to their growth and development. On the other hand, his suppression of gross idolatry could have weakened forces hostile to their positive development. This expedition might have increased the number of pious northerners who shared in Josiah's Passover observance (2Ch 35:17).

23:15-16 Josiah had to travel only 10 miles north to cleanse Bethel by destroying its high place and desecrating the site with human remains.

23:17-18 Then Josiah became aware of the tomb of the Judean prophet who predicted the deeds Josiah had just done. The prophet's bones were left undisturbed, but Josiah had still desecrated other graves near Bethel. In this context from Samaria may indicate only that the prophet was native to Israel, often referred to collectively as "Samaria."

23:19-20 Josiah's reforms took a more brutal turn in the north with a systematic slaughter of the illegal priests of the north. Josiah desecrated the altars by killing the priests on their own altars.

23:21-23 The events detailed above must have occurred in Josiah's eighteenth year before the observance of the Passover. The high point of Josiah's reforms was this Passover celebration. The description here does not give adequate reason for this glowing evaluation, but in the Chronicles account (2Ch 35) its importance becomes clear. Chronicles comes close to presenting this Passover as the reestablishment of the guilds and personnel for the ritual life of the Israelites.

23:24 This verse contains a rare mention of the household idols in Judah (Jdg 17:5; 18:14-21; 1Sm 19:13). Archaeology documents the presence of this sin in the south as well as the north.

23:26-27 Once again, the writer returned to the theme of failure. The national repentance fell far short of what was needed to avoid God's judgment. History shows that the people had not been reached by this revival.

23:28 A formal closer concludes Josiah's reign, except for the following record of his death.

23:29-30 Assyria had earlier suffered major defeats. A coalition of Medes and Babylonians had destroyed Nineveh in 612 B.C. and captured Haran in 610 B.C. Pharaoh Neco of Egypt then went north toward the Euphrates River to help the Assyrians recapture Haran. Josiah intercepted the Egyptian army near Megiddo. He died from wounds he received in this battle. Josiah's accomplishments confirmed his greatness. Though his reforms did not halt God's judgment, his reestablishment of ritual and the religious guilds was essential for the renewal of Israel's religious life after the exile.

23:31-33 The people made Josiah's son, Jehoahaz (also referred to as Shallum; Jr 22:11-12), king. Pharaoh Neco imprisoned Jehoahaz and put Judah under tribute. Neco's victory over Josiah apparently eliminated the Judean army as a significant fighting force.

23:34-35 Jehoahaz's brother Eliakim, renamed Jehoiakim by Neco, was made king. Renaming a vassal symbolized the ruler's power over the subject king. Jehoiakim sent tribute to Pharaoh. Jehoahaz was a political prisoner in Egypt.

23:36-37 The formal opening statements for Jehoiakim identify him as another bad king. The prophet Jeremiah condemned him for social injustice in building a huge palace while ignoring the poor (Jr 22:13-17).

24:1 The background for this verse was the Babylonian capture of Carchemish (605 B.C.) that drove Egypt from Syria and Palestine. The object of the Babylonian attack was the Egyptian armies, and Jehoiakim yielded peaceably to Nebuchadnezzar, but then, after three years, Jehoiakim rebelled because Egypt temporarily drove the Babylonians northward again (601 B.C.).

24:2 The Babylonians, as God's instruments, compensated for this setback by encouraging the other local vassals mentioned here to harass Judah.

24:3-4 As in the condemnation of Judah at the time of Manasseh (21:15), the writer of 2 Kings took a longer, backward view in accounting for God's judgment on sin. He linked God's judgment and intent to remove the Hebrews from His sight to the sins of Manasseh. The sin of the times was the continuation of a sinful national character that had already been established and judged.

24:5-6 The Babylonians counterattacked and were soon approaching Jerusalem. Jehoiakim died either soon before or during the Babylonian siege. His rebellion was discredited. The absence of any formal statement about Jehoiakim's burial could confirm Jeremiah's prediction about the shameful circumstances of his death (Jr 22:18-19).

24:7 By this time Egypt had been driven out of Palestine, and all land north of the Brook of Egypt (the Wadi Arish) belonged to Babylon.

24:10-12 After a brief siege, Jehoiachin and all his high officials surrendered to Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon. Significantly, the expression eighth year of his reign must refer to Nebuchadnezzar's eighth year. This change to a pagan dating of events marked the impending end of Judah.

24:13 The plundering of the city of Jerusalem seemed to be very thorough. It is remarkable that there was still some gold from the time of Solomon left to be plundered after more than three centuries of foreign plundering.

24:14-16 Everyone except the poorest classes of the city were taken into captivity. The able-bodied fighting men might have been conscripted into the Babylonian army.

24:18-19 The formal opening statements and evaluation of Zedekiah are routine for a wicked, faithless king.

24:20 However, the grounds for Zedekiah's poor evaluation predated the wickedness of the current king. God was already angry, and judgment was inevitable (vv. 3-4; 21:15).

25:1 In 588 B.C. the pharaoh of Egypt led a general rebellion against Babylon that included the Phoenician coast and Transjordanian territories. Just as this rebellion was a coordinated joint rebellion of the region, the resulting Babylonian reprisal was a thorough destruction of the entire region—of non-Israelite territories in Transjordan as well. According to Jr 34:7, it seems that the Babylonians reduced all the other fortifications of Judah before turning to Jerusalem and that their approach at the end came from the southwest, from the Shephelah.

25:2-3 After a siege of 18 months, the food supply of Jerusalem failed.

25:4-5 When Jerusalem's wall was breached, the warriors and King Zedekiah fled, probably down the Kidron Valley to the road to Jericho and then to the plains near Jericho.

25:6-7 Riblah was the administrative center for Babylonian control in the region. There, Zedekiah was punished. His sons were killed before his eyes, thus eliminating the threat of royal heirs to the throne. Zedekiah was blinded and taken to prison in Babylon. This fulfilled the prophecies that he would see Nebuchadnezzar (Jr 32:4) but would not see Babylon (Ezk 12:11-13).

Babylon's King Nebuchadnezzar II took thousands of Judean residents as captives to Mesopotamia in three deportations: 605, 597, and 586 B.C. The third deportation took place when Jerusalem, its walls, and the temple were destroyed.

25:8-10 The end of this historic phase of the Davidic covenant came with the total destruction of everything of significance in Jerusalem: literally, Yahweh's house, the king's house, all the houses of Jerusalem, all the great houses, and the wall of Jerusalem.

25:11-12 The poorest of the land were unlikely to have skills that could be of use in Babylon, and so they were left behind to be farmers.

25:13-17 The temple furnishings were plundered for their scrap-metal value. The list of plundered objects would have read to devout worshipers of Yahweh like an obituary list. All that was left for their faith in Yahweh was the documents that had already been taken and would be taken into captivity. The learned scholars of the time—according to current thinking, identified with the Levites—would continue to preserve and produce sacred writings.

25:18-21 Representative leaders of Judah were selected for execution by the Babylonians after being taken to Riblah. Of the two, Seraiah is otherwise unknown. However, Zephaniah, a second tier leader of the priests, was known for being given the responsibility to root out supposedly false prophets, his major target being Jeremiah (Jr 29:26-29). The Babylonians were probably aware of his anti-Babylonian stance when they executed him. Also, 60 . . . common people, probably randomly selected, were also executed.

25:22-25 A more detailed account of these events appears in Jr 40:6-41:9. Here it suffices to note that it was a story of alleged collaboration with the conquerors, wholesale murder by "freedom fighters," and the loss of any hope of civilized life for the Hebrews who remained in Palestine.

25:26 The feared repercussions after the assassination of Gedaliah resulted in a voluntary exodus from Palestine to Egypt. Though at the time there was little hope for the future, the Jewish colony at Elephantine would make their mark on history through documents (Elephantine papyri) that have survived to this day, and the Jewish community in Alexandria would become the intellectual rivals of rabbinic Judaism.

25:27-30 There was, however, one more optimistic development—Jehoiachin's release from prison and his place of honor among the captive kings. This favor probably resulted partly from his willing surrender to the Babylonians and may have been aimed at creating a better atmosphere for the exiles in Babylon. It may also have aroused hopes for restoration of the Davidic line in the person of Jehoiachin or one of his descendants. At the very least, it signaled a generally favorable Babylonian stance toward the Jewish captives—an optimistic development for God's people in Babylon.

Gevurah, related to gibbor (“strong”) and gever (“man”), describes the strength (Jdg 5:31), might (Jr 49:35), or power (Jb 41:12) of God, the sun, armies, horses, or prophets. Once it connotes victory (Ex 32:18) and military preparedness (Is 36:5). As a collective it implies warriors (Is 3:25). The plural indicates mighty acts (Ps 71:16). Gevurah derives from gavar (25x), be strong (1Ch 5:2), great (Ps 103:11), or powerful (Jb 21:7). People prevail (Ex 17:11) or gain advantage (2Sm 11:23). Waters surge (Gn 7:18), blessings excel (Gn 49:26), and iniquities overwhelm (Ps 65:3). The intensive verb means strengthen (Zch 10:6); one exerts strength (Ec 10:10). The causative means have power (Ps 12:4) or make firm (Dn 9:27). The reflexive means arrogantly oppose (Jb 15:25).

Focus Passage 2 Kings 21:3-5

This root in Semitic languages means “build” but in some languages also signifies “create.” Banah denotes build (2Sm 5:11). Sometimes banah is make (2Ch 8:12) or construct (Ezk 27:5). Banah is parallel to verbs like “prepare,” “repair,” and “set up.” It implies erect (Ezk 39:15), build up (Is 60:10), or rebuild (Nm 21:27). Banah means build a family (Gn 30:3) or have children (Gn 16:2). God builds dynasties (2Sm 7:27) and builds up people (Jr 12:16). Those who are built up prosper (Mal 3:15) or are renewed (Jb 22:23). Banah involves setting up (Ex 24:4) or establishing (1Sm 2:35). It indicates paneling or lining (1Kg 6:15-16). It can suggest complete (1Kg 7:1).

Essays The Exiles of Israel Duane A. Garrett

Two related but distinct concepts that shaped the history of Israel are “exile” and “Diaspora.” The “exile” is the forced removal of the bulk of the population, especially of the skilled and upper class people, from their homeland to another country. There were several Jewish exiles. The first was the exile of the Israelites of the northern kingdom (Samaria) carried out by the Assyrians. It occurred in two phases, first in 734 B.C. under Tiglath-pileser III (2Kg 15:29) and then, climactically, in 722 under Shalmaneser and his successor, Sargon II, when the city of Samaria was destroyed and the northern kingdom ceased to exist (2Kg 17:5-6). The next major exile involved the destruction of the southern kingdom (Judah) and the city of Jerusalem. It, too, took place in several phases, all under the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar II (Jr 52:28-30), the most terrible of which was in 586 B.C. (Jr 52:29). This was when Solomon's temple was destroyed and the dynasty of David came to an end.

The third major exile of the Jews took place under the Romans and also was in two phases. In A.D. 70 the Roman general (later emperor) Titus destroyed Jerusalem and Herod's temple. A second Jewish rebellion (called the Bar Kokhba revolt after the name of its Jewish leader) took place under Emperor Hadrian in the years A.D. 132-136. This was a bloody struggle, and at the end the victorious Romans decreed that no Jew would be allowed to live in Palestine. All of these events involved exile, the forcible deportation of Jews from the Holy Land by their conquerors.

The "Diaspora" is the scattering of Jews across the world. This process began around the time of the destruction of Samaria and it continued in the aftermath of the Babylonian exile. The story of Esther, for example, involves Jews dispersed across the Persian Empire; this dispersion persisted even though the Persians allowed the Jews to return to their traditional homeland. We know of some specific Jewish enclaves. For example, there was in the fifth century B.C. a Jewish community in Elephantine (in southern Egypt), and beginning in the third century B.C. there was another such community in Alexandria (in northern Egypt). The Jewish Diaspora has involved places as diverse as ancient Rome, medieval Spain, Yemen, Iraq, Russia, Germany, and the United States. It continues to this day even though there is now a Jewish homeland in Israel. Esther also accurately characterizes the experience of Jews in Diaspora. On the one hand, the Jews are a positive contribution to their host countries and are often highly successful, but on the other hand, they are relentlessly and often unjustly persecuted.

Exile and Diaspora are the punishments God imposed on Israel for idolatry and unbelief (Dt 28:64-68; Is 6:11-12; 39:1-7; Jr 6:1-8; 19:1-13; Ezk 5:5-12; Am 8:1-12). Perhaps the primary passage on the subject is Dt 29:24-28: "All the nations will ask, 'Why has the Lord done this to this land . . .' Then people will answer, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of the Lord . . . They began to worship other gods . . . Therefore the Lord's anger burned . . . The Lord uprooted them from their land in His anger, fury, and great wrath, and threw them into another land where they are today.' "

But this is not the whole story. The prophets also claimed that God would restore David's fallen dynasty (Hs 3:5; Am 9:11) and give Israel a New Covenant to replace the one they had broken (Jr 31:31-34). And now, while Israel is in disobedience and Diaspora, the Gentiles are brought into the New Covenant (Rm 11:25-32). The true end of exile will be when Israel turns to their Messiah, Jesus, mourning over Him whom they have pierced (Zch 12:6-14).

Israel's Sons

2 These [a] were Israel's sons:
Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Zebulun, 2 Dan, Joseph, Benjamin, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

Judah's Descendants

3 Judah's [b] sons: Er, Onan, and Shelah. [c] These three were born to him by Bath-shua the Canaanite woman. Er, Judah's firstborn, was evil in the LORD's sight, so He put him to death. 4 Judah's daughter-in-law Tamar bore Perez and Zerah to him. Judah had five sons in all.

5 Perez's sons: Hezron and Hamul.
6 Zerah's sons: Zimri, Ethan, Heman, Calcol, and Dara [d, e] — five in all.
7 Carmi's son: Achar, [f, g] who brought trouble on Israel when he was unfaithful by taking the things •set apart for destruction.
8 Ethan's son: Azariah.
9 Hezron's sons, who were born to him: Jerahmeel, Ram, and Chelubai. [h]

10 Ram fathered Amminadab, and Amminadab fathered Nahshon, a leader of Judah's descendants.
11 Nahshon fathered Salma, and Salma fathered Boaz.
12 Boaz fathered Obed, and Obed fathered Jesse.
13 Jesse fathered Eliab, his firstborn; Abinadab was born second, Shimea third, 14 Nethanel fourth, Raddai fifth, 15 Ozem sixth, and David seventh. 16 Their sisters were Zeruiah and Abigail. Zeruiah's three sons: Abishai, Joab, and Asahel. 17 Amasa's mother was Abigail, and his father was Jether the Ishmaelite.

18 Caleb son of Hezron had children by his wife Azubah and by Jerioth. These were Azubah's sons: Jesher, Shobab, and Ardon. 19 When Azubah died, Caleb married Ephrath, and she bore Hur to him. 20 Hur fathered Uri, and Uri fathered Bezalel. 21 After this, Hezron slept with the daughter of Machir the father of Gilead. [i] Hezron had married her when he was 60 years old, and she bore Segub to him. 22 Segub fathered Jair, who possessed 23 towns in the land of Gilead. 23 But Geshur and Aram captured [A] Jair's Villages [B] along with Kenath and its villages — 60 towns. All these were the sons of Machir father of Gilead. 24 After Hezron's death in Caleb-ephrathah, his wife Abijah bore Ashhur to him. He was the father of Tekoa.

25 The sons of Jerahmeel, Hezron's firstborn: Ram, his firstborn, Bunah, Oren, Ozem, and Ahijah. 26 Jerahmeel had another wife named Atarah, who was the mother of Onam.
27 The sons of Ram, Jerahmeel's firstborn: Maaz, Jamin, and Eker.
28 Onam's sons: Shammai and Jada.
Shammai's sons: Nadab and Abishur. 29 Abishur's wife was named Abihail, who bore Ahban and Molid to him.
30 Nadab's sons: Seled and Appaim. Seled died without children.
31 Appaim's son: Ishi.
Ishi's son: Sheshan.
Sheshan's descendant: Ahlai.
32 The sons of Jada, brother of Shammai: Jether and Jonathan. Jether died without children.
33 Jonathan's sons: Peleth and Zaza. These were the descendants of Jerahmeel.
34 Sheshan had no sons, only daughters, but he did have an Egyptian servant whose name was Jarha. 35 Sheshan gave his daughter in marriage to his servant Jarha, and she bore Attai to him.

36 Attai fathered Nathan, and Nathan fathered Zabad.
37 Zabad fathered Ephlal, and Ephlal fathered Obed.
38 Obed fathered Jehu, and Jehu fathered Azariah.
39 Azariah fathered Helez, and Helez fathered Elasah.
40 Elasah fathered Sismai, and Sismai fathered Shallum.
41 Shallum fathered Jekamiah, and Jekamiah fathered Elishama.

42 The sons of Caleb brother of Jerahmeel: Mesha, his firstborn, fathered Ziph, and Mareshah, his second son, [C] fathered Hebron.
43 Hebron's sons: Korah, Tappuah, Rekem, and Shema.
44 Shema fathered Raham, who fathered Jorkeam, and Rekem fathered Shammai.
45 Shammai's son was Maon, and Maon fathered Beth-zur.

46 Caleb’s concubine Ephah was the mother of Haran, Moza, and Gazez.
Haran fathered Gazez.
47 Jahdai’s sons: Regem, Jotham, Geshan, Pelet, Ephah, and Shaaph.
48 Caleb’s concubine Maacah was the mother of Sheber and Tirhanah. 49 She was also the mother of Shaaph, Madmannah’s father, and of Sheva, the father of Machbenah and Gibea. Caleb’s daughter was Achsah.
50 These were Caleb’s descendants.

The sons of Hur, Ephrathah’s firstborn:
Shobal fathered Kiriath-jearim;
51 Salma fathered Bethlehem, and Hareph fathered Beth-gader.

52 These were the descendants of Shobal the father of Kiriath-jearim:
Haroeh, half of the Manahathites, D 53 and the families of Kiriathjearim — the Ithrites, Puthites, Shumathites, and Mishraites. The Zorathites and Eshtaolites descended from these.

54 Salma’s sons: Bethlehem, the Netophathites, Atroth-beth-joab, and half of the Manahathites, the Zorites, 55 and the families of scribes who lived in Jabez — the Tirathites, Shimeathites, and Sucathites. These are the Kenites who came from Hammath, the father of Rechab’s family.

David's Descendants

3 These [a] were David's sons who were born to him in Hebron:
Amnon was the firstborn, by Ahinoam of Jezreel;
Daniel was born second, by Abigail of Carmel;
2 Absalom son of Maacah, daughter of King Talmai of Geshur, was third;
Adonijah son of Haggith was fourth;
3 Shephatiah, by Abital, was fifth;
and Ithream, by David's wife Eglah, was sixth.
4 Six sons were born to David in Hebron, where he ruled seven years and six months, and he ruled in Jerusalem 33 years. [b]
5 These [c] sons were born to him in Jerusalem:
Shimea, Shobab, Nathan, and Solomon. [d] These four were born to him by Bath-shua [e] daughter of Ammiel.
6 David's other sons: Ibhar, Elishua, [A, f] Eliphelet, 7 Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, 8 Elishama, Eliada, and Eliphelet — nine sons.
9 These were all David's sons, with their sister Tamar, [g] in addition to the sons by his concubines.

Judah's Kings

10 Solomon's son was Rehoboam; his son was Abijah, his son Asa, his son Jehoshaphat, 11 his son Jehoram, [B, h]
his son Ahaziah, his son Joash, 12 his son Amaziah, his son Azariah, his son Jotham, 13 his son Ahaz, his son Hezekiah, his son Manasseh, 14 his son Amon, and his son Josiah.
15 Josiah's sons:
Johanan was the firstborn, Jehoiakim second,
Zedekiah third, and Shallum fourth.
16 Jehoiakim's sons:
his sons Jeconiah and Zedekiah.

David's Line After the Exile

17 The sons of Jeconiah the captive:
his sons Shealtiel, 18 Malchiram, Pedaiah, Shenazzar, Jekamiah, Hoshama, and Nedabiah.

19 Pedaiah's sons: Zerubbabel and Shimei.
Zerubbabel's sons: Meshullam and Hananiah, with their sister Shelomith;
20 and five others — Hashubah, Ohel, Berechiah, Hasadiah, and Jushab-hesed.
21 Hananiah's descendants: Pelatiah, Jeshaiah, and the sons of Rephaiah, Arnan, Obadiah, and Shecaniah. [i] 22 The son [j] of Shecaniah: Shemaiah.
Shemaiah's sons: Hattush, Igal, Bariah, Neariah, and Shaphat — six.
23 Neariah's sons: Elioenai, Hizkiah, and Azrikam — three.
24 Elioenai's sons: Hodaviah, Eliashib, Pelaiah, Akkub, Johanan, Delaiah, and Anani — seven.

Judah’s Descendants

4 Judah’s sons: [a] Perez, Hezron, Carmi, Hur, and Shobal.
2 Reaiah son of Shobal fathered Jahath, and Jahath fathered Ahumai and Lahad.
These were the families of the Zorathites.
3 These were Etam’s sons: [b] Jezreel, Ishma, and Idbash, and their sister was named Hazzelelponi.
4 Penuel fathered Gedor, and Ezer fathered Hushah.
These were the sons of Hur, Ephrathah’s firstborn and the father of Bethlehem:
5 Ashhur fathered Tekoa and had two wives, Helah and Naarah.
6 Naarah bore Ahuzzam, Hepher, Temeni, and Haahashtari to him. These were Naarah’s sons.
7 Helah’s sons: Zereth, Zohar, [c] and Ethnan. 8 Koz fathered Anub, Zobebah, [A] and the families of Aharhel son of Harum.

9 Jabez [d] was more honorable than his brothers. His mother named him Jabez and said, “I gave birth to him in pain.”
10 Jabez called out to the God of Israel: “If only You would bless me, extend my border, let Your hand be with me, and keep me from harm, so that I will not cause any pain.” [e, B] And God granted his request.

11 Chelub brother of Shuhah fathered Mehir, who was the father of Eshton.
12 Eshton fathered Beth-rapha, Paseah, and Tehinnah the father of Irnahash.
These were the men of Recah.
13 Kenaz’s sons: Othniel and Seraiah.
Othniel’s sons: Hathath and Meonothai. [f]
14 Meonothai fathered Ophrah, and Seraiah fathered Joab, the ancestor of those in the Valley of Craftsmen, [C] for they were craftsmen.
15 The sons of Caleb son of Jephunneh: Iru, Elah, and Naam.
Elah’s son: Kenaz.
16 Jehallelel’s sons: Ziph, Ziphah, Tiria, and Asarel.
17 Ezrah’s sons: Jether, Mered, Epher, and Jalon. Mered’s wife Bithiah gave birth to Miriam, Shammai, and Ishbah the father of Eshtemoa. 18 These were the sons of Pharaoh’s daughter Bithiah; Mered had married her. His Judean wife gave birth to Jered the father of Gedor, Heber the father of Soco, and Jekuthiel the father of Zanoah. 19 The sons of Hodiah’s wife, the sister of Naham: the father of Keilah the Garmite and the father of Eshtemoa the Maacathite.

20 Shimon's sons: Amnon, Rinnah, Ben-hanan, and Tilon.
Ishi's sons: Zoheth and Ben-zoheth.

21 The sons of Shelah son of Judah: Er the father of Lecah, Laadah the father of Mareshah, the families of the guild [D] of linen workers at Beth-ashbea, 22 Jokim, the men of Cozeba; and Joash and Saraph, who married Moabites [E] and returned to Lehem. These names are from ancient records. 23 They were the potters and residents of Netaim and Gederah. They lived there in the service of the king.

Simeon's Descendants

24 Simeon's sons: [g] Nemuel, Jamin, Jarib, Zerah, and Shaul; 25 Shaul's sons: his son Shallum, his son Mibsam, and his son Mishma.
26 Mishma's sons: his son Hammuel, his son Zaccur, and his son Shimei.

27 Shimei had 16 sons and six daughters, but his brothers did not have many children, so their whole family did not become as numerous as the Judeans. 28 They lived in Beer-sheba, Moladah, Hazar-shual, 29 Bilhah, Ezem, Tolad, 30 Bethuel, Hormah, Ziklag, 31 Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susim, Beth-biri, and Shaaraim. These were their cities until David became king. 32 Their villages were Etam, Ain, Rimmon, Tochen, and Ashan — five cities, 33 and all their surrounding villages as far as Baal. These were their settlements, and they kept a genealogical record for themselves.

34 Meshobab, Jamlech, Joshah son of Amaziah,
35 Joel, Jehu son of Joshibiah, son of Seraiah, son of Asiel, 36 Elioenai, Jaakobah, Jeshohaiah, Asaiah, Adiel, Jesimiel, Benaiah, 37 and Ziza son of Shiphi, son of Allon, son of Jedaiah, son of Shimri, son of Shemaiah — 38 these mentioned by name were leaders in their families. Their ancestral houses increased greatly. 39 They went to the entrance of Gedor, to the east side of the valley to seek pasture for their flocks. 40 They found rich, good pasture, and the land was broad, peaceful, and quiet, [h] for some Hamites had lived there previously.

41 These [i] who were recorded by name came in the days of King Hezekiah of Judah, attacked the Hamites' tents and the Meunites who were found there, and •set them apart for destruction, [j] as they are today. Then they settled in their place because there was pasture for their flocks. 42 Now 500 men from these sons of Simeon went with Pelatiah, Neariah, Rephaiah, and Uzziel, the sons of Ishi, as their leaders to Mount Seir. [k] 43 They struck down [l] the remnant of the Amalekites who had escaped, and they still live there today.

Reuben’s Descendants

5 These were the sons of Reuben the firstborn of Israel. He was the firstborn, [a] but his birthright was given to the sons of Joseph [b] son of Israel, because Reuben defiled his father's bed. [c] He is not listed in the genealogy according to birthright. 2 Although Judah became strong among his brothers [d] and a ruler came from him, [e] the birthright was given to Joseph.

3 The sons of Reuben, Israel's firstborn: [f] Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi.
4 Joel's sons: his son Shemaiah, his son Gog, his son Shimei, 5 his son Micah, his son Reaiah, his son Baal, 6 and his son Beerah.

Beerah was a leader of the Reubenites, and Tiglath-pileser [g] king of Assyria took him into exile. 7 His relatives by their families as they are recorded in their genealogy: [h]

Jeiel the chief, Zechariah, 8 and Bela son of Azaz, son of Shema, son of Joel.

They settled in Aroer [i] as far as Nebo and Baal-meon. 9 They also settled in the east as far as the edge of the desert that extends to the Euphrates River, because their herds had increased in the land of Gilead. [j] 10 During Saul's reign they waged war against the Hagrites, [k] who were defeated by their power. And they lived in their tents throughout the region east of Gilead.

Gad's Descendants

11 The sons [l] of Gad lived next to them in the land of Bashan as far as Salecah: [m]
12 Joel the chief, Shapham the second in command, Janai, and Shaphat in Bashan.
13 Their relatives according to their ancestral houses: Michael, Meshullam, Sheba, Jorai, Jacan, Zia, and Eber — seven.
14 These were the sons of Abihail son of Huri, son of Jaroah, son of Gilead, son of Michael, son of Jeshishai, son of Jahdo, son of Buz.

15 Ahi son of Abdiel, son of Guni, was head of their ancestral houses. 16 They lived in Gilead, in Bashan and its towns, and throughout the pasturelands of Sharon. [n] 17 All of them were registered in the genealogies during the reigns of Judah's King Jotham [o] and Israel's King Jeroboam. [p]

18 The sons of Reuben and Gad and half the tribe of Manasseh had 44,760 warriors who could serve [q] in the army — men who carried shield and sword, drew the bow, and were trained for war. 19 They waged war against the Hagrites, [r] Jetur, [s] Naphish, and Nodab. 20 They received help against these enemies because they cried out to God in battle, and the Hagrites and all their allies were handed over to them. [t] He granted their request because they trusted in Him. [u] 21 They captured the Hagrites' livestock — 50,000 of their camels, 250,000 sheep, and 2,000 donkeys — as well as 100,000 people. 22 Many of the Hagrites were killed because it was God's battle. [v] And they lived there in the Hagrites' place [w] until the exile. [x]

Half the Tribe of Manasseh

23 The sons of half the tribe of Manasseh settled in the land from Bashan to Baal-hermon (that is, Senir [y] or Mount Hermon); they were numerous. 24 These were the heads of their ancestral houses: Epher, Ishi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaviah, and Jahdiel. They were brave warriors, famous men, and heads of their ancestral houses. 25 But they were unfaithful to the God of their ancestors.
They prostituted themselves [z] with the gods of the nations [A] God had destroyed before them. [a] 26 So the God of Israel put it into the mind of Pul [b] (that is, Tiglath-pileser [c]) king of Assyria to take the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh into exile. He took them to Halah, Habor, Hara, and Gozan's river, where they are until today.

Chapter 6 a

The Levites

1 Levi's [b] sons: Gershom, [c] Kohath, and Merari.
2 Kohath's sons: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.
3 Amram's children: Aaron, Moses, and Miriam.
Aaron's sons: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.
4 Eleazar fathered Phinehas; [d]
Phinehas fathered Abishua;
5 Abishua fathered Bukki;
Bukki fathered Uzzi;
6 Uzzi fathered Zerahiah;
Zerahiah fathered Meraioth;
7 Meraioth fathered Amariah;
Amariah fathered Ahitub;
8 Ahitub fathered Zadok;
Zadok fathered Ahimaaz;
9 Ahimaaz fathered Azariah;
Azariah fathered Johanan;
10 Johanan fathered Azariah, who served as priest in the temple that Solomon built in Jerusalem;
11 Azariah fathered Amariah;
Amariah fathered Ahitub;
12 Ahitub fathered Zadok;
Zadok fathered Shallum;
13 Shallum fathered Hilkiah;
Hilkiah fathered Azariah;
14 Azariah fathered Seraiah; and Seraiah fathered Jehozadak.
15 Jehozadak went into exile when the LORD sent Judah and Jerusalem into exile at the hands of Nebuchadnezzar. [e]

16 [f] Levi's [g] sons: Gershom, Kohath, and Merari.
17 These are the names of Gershom's sons: Libni and Shimei.
18 Kohath's sons: Amram, Izhar, Hebron and Uzziel.
19 Merari's sons: Mahli and Mushi.
These are the Levites' families according to their fathers:
20 Of Gershom: his son Libni,

his son Jahath, his son Zimmah,

29 Merari’s sons: Mahli, his son Libni, his son Shimei, his son Uzzah, 30 his son Shimea, his son Haggiah, and his son Asaiah.

The Musicians

31 These are the men David put in charge of the music in the LORD's temple [j] after the ark came to rest there. [k] 32 They ministered with song in front of the tabernacle, the tent of meeting, until Solomon built the LORD's temple in Jerusalem, and they performed their task according to the regulations given to them. 33 These are the men who served with their sons.

From the Kohathites: Heman the singer, son of Joel, son of Samuel, 34 son of Elkanah, son of Jeroham, son of Eliel, son of Toah, 35 son of Zuph, son of Elkanah, son of Mahath, son of Amasai, 36 son of Elkanah, son of Joel, son of Azariah, son of Zephaniah, 37 son of Tahath, son of Assir, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah, 38 son of Izhar, son of Kohath, son of Levi, son of Israel.

39 Heman's relative was •Asaph , who stood at his right hand:
Asaph son of Berechiah, son of Shimea, 40 son of Michael, son of Baaseiah, son of Malchijah, 41 son of Ethni, son of Zerah, son of Adaiah, 42 son of Ethan, son of Zimmah, son of Shimei, 43 son of Jahath, son of Gershom, son of Levi.

44 On the left, their relatives were Merari's sons:
Ethan son of Kishi, son of Abdi, son of Malluch, 45 son of Hashabiah, son of Amaziah, son of Hilkiah, 46 son of Amzi, son of Bani, son of Shemer, 47 son of Mahli, son of Mushi, son of Merari, son of Levi.

Aaron's Descendants

48 Their relatives, the Levites, were assigned to all the service of the tabernacle, God's temple. 49 But Aaron and his sons did all the work of the most holy place. They presented the offerings on the altar of •burnt offerings [l] and on the altar of incense [m] to make atonement for Israel according to all that Moses the servant of God had commanded. [n]

50 These [o] are Aaron's sons: his son Eleazar, his son Phinehas, his son Abishua, 51 his son Bukki, his son Uzzi, his son Zerahiah, 52 his son Meraioth, his son Amariah, his son Ahitub, 53 his son Zadok, and his son Ahimaaz.

The Settlements of the Levites

54 These were the places assigned to Aaron's sons from the Kohathite family for their settlements in their territory, because the first lot was for them. [p] 55
They [q] were given Hebron in the land of Judah and its surrounding pasturelands, 56 but the fields and villages around the city were given to Caleb son of Jephunneh. 57 Aaron's sons were given: [r]

> Hebron (a city of refuge), Libnah and its pasturelands, Jattir, Eshtemoa > and its pasturelands, 58 Hilen [s] and its pasturelands, Debir and its > pasturelands, 59 Ashan and its pasturelands, and Beth-shemesh and its > pasturelands. 60 From the tribe of Benjamin they were given Geba and > its pasturelands, Alemeth and its pasturelands, and Anathoth and its > pasturelands. They had 13 towns in all among their families.

61 To the rest of the Kohathites, 10 towns from half the tribe of Manasseh were assigned by lot. [t]
62 The Gershomites were assigned 13 towns from the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and Manasseh in Bashan according to their families.
63 The Merarites were assigned by lot 12 towns from the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun according to their families. [u] 64 So the Israelites gave these towns and their pasturelands to the Levites. [v] 65 They assigned by lot the towns named above [w] from the tribes of the Judahites, Simeonites, and Benjaminites.
66 Some [x] of the families of the Kohathites were given towns from the tribe of Ephraim for their territory:

> 67 Shechem (a city of refuge) with its pasturelands in the hill country of > Ephraim, Gezer and its pasturelands, 68 Jokmeam and its pasturelands, Beth> horon and its pasturelands, 69 Aijalon and its pasturelands, and Gath-rimmon > and its pasturelands. 70 From half the tribe of Manasseh, Aner and its > pasturelands, and Bileam and its pasturelands were given to the rest of the > families of the Kohathites.
> 71 The Gershomites received:
>
> Golan in Bashan and its pasturelands, and Ashtaroth and its pasturelands > from the families of half the tribe of Manasseh. 72 From the tribe of Issachar > they received Kedesh and its pasturelands, Daberath and its pasturelands, > 73 Ramoth and its pasturelands, and Anem and its pasturelands. 74 From the > tribe of Asher they received Mashal and its pasturelands, Abdon and its > pasturelands, 75 Hukok and its pasturelands, and Rehob and its pasturelands.

76 From the tribe of Naphtali they received Kedesh in Galilee and its pasturelands, Hammon and its pasturelands, and Kiriathaim and its pasturelands.
77 The rest of the Merarites received:
From the tribe of Zebulun they received Rimmono and its pasturelands and Tabor and its pasturelands. 78 From the tribe of Reuben across the Jordan at Jericho, to the east of the Jordan, they received Bezer in the desert and its pasturelands, Jahzah and its pasturelands, 79 Kedemoth and its pasturelands, and Mephaath and its pasturelands. 80 From the tribe of Gad they received Ramoth in Gilead and its pasturelands, Mahanaim and its pasturelands, 81 Heshbon and its pasturelands, and Jazer and its pasturelands.

Issachar’s Descendants

7 Issachar’s sons: [a] Tola, Puah, Jashub, and Shimron — four.
2 Tola’s sons: Uzzi, Rephaiah, Jeriel, Jahmai, Ibsam, and Shemuel, the heads of their ancestral houses. During David’s reign, 22,600 descendants of Tola were recorded as warriors in their genealogies. [b]
3 Uzzi’s son: Izrahiah.
Izrahiah’s sons: Michael, Obadiah, Joel, Isshiah. All five of them were chiefs.
4 Along with them, they had 36,000 troops for battle according to the genealogical records of their ancestral houses, for they had many wives and children. 5 Their tribesmen who were warriors belonging to all the families of Issachar totaled 87,000 in their genealogies.

Benjamin’s Descendants

Ephraim’s Descendants

20 Ephraim’s [f] sons: Shuthelah, and his son Bered, his son Tahath, his son Eleadah, his son Tahath, 21 his son Zabad, his son Shuthelah, also Ezer, and Elead.

The men of Gath, born in the land, killed them because they went down to raid their cattle. 22 Their father Ephraim mourned a long time, and his relatives [A] came to comfort him. 23 He slept with his wife, and she conceived and gave birth to a son. So he named him Beriah, because there had been misfortune in his home. [g] 24 His daughter was Sheerah, who built Lower and Upper Bethhoron [h] and Uzzen-sheerah,

25 his son Rephah, [i] his son Resheph, his son Telah, his son Tahan, 26 his son Ladan, his son Ammihud, his son Elishama, 27 his son Nun, and his son Joshua. [j]

28 Their holdings and settlements were Bethel [k] and its villages; Naaran to the east, Gezer and its villages to the west, and Shechem and its villages as far as Ayyah and its villages, 29 and along the borders of the sons of Manasseh, Beth-shean and its villages, Taanach and its villages, Megiddo and its villages, and Dor and its villages. The sons of Joseph son of Israel lived in these towns.

Asher’s Descendants

30 Asher’s [l] sons: Imnah, Ishvah, Ishvi, and Beriah, with their sister Serah.

31 Beriah’s sons: Heber, and Malchiel, who fathered Birzaith.
32 Heber fathered Japhlet, Shomer, and Hotham, with their sister Shua.
33 Japhlet’s sons: Pasach, Bimhal, and Ashvath. These were Japhlet’s sons.

38 Jether’s sons: Jephunneh, Pispa, and Ara.
39 Ulla’s sons: Arah, Hanniel, and Rizia.
40 All these were Asher’s sons. They were the heads of their ancestral houses, chosen men, warriors, and chiefs among the leaders. The number of men listed in their genealogies for military service was 26,000.

Benjamin's Descendants

8 Benjamin [a] fathered Bela, his firstborn; Ashbel was born second, Aharah third, 2 Nohah fourth, and Rapha fifth.
3 Bela's sons: Addar, Gera, Abihud, 4 Abishua, Naaman, Ahoah, 5 Gera, Shephuphan, and Huram.
6 These were Ehud's sons, who were the heads of the families living in Geba and who were deported to Manahath: 7 Naaman, Ahijah, and Gera. Gera deported them and was the father of Uzza and Ahihud.
8 Shaharaim had sons in the country of Moab after he had divorced his wives Hushim and Baara. 9 His sons by his wife Hodesh: Jobab, Zibia, Mesha, Malcam, 10 Jeuz, Sachia, and Mirmah. These were his sons, heads of families.
11 He also had sons by Hushim: Abitub and Elpaal.
12 Elpaal's sons: Eber, Misham, and Shemed who built Ono and Lod and its villages, 13 Beriah and Shema, who were the heads of families of Aijalon's residents and who drove out the residents of Gath, 14 Ahio, [b] Shashak, and Jeremoth.
15 Zebadiah, Arad, Eder, 16 Michael, Ishpah, and Joha were Beriah's sons.
17 Zebadiah, Meshullam, Hizki, Heber, 18 Ishmerai, Izliah, and Jobab were Elpaal's sons.
19 Jakim, Zichri, Zabdi, 20 Elienai, Zillethai, Eliel, 21 Adaiah, Beraiah, and Shimrath were Shimei's sons.
22 Ishpan, Eber, Eliel, 23 Abdon, Zichri, Hanan, 24 Hananiah, Elam, Anthothijah, 25 Iphdeiah, and Penuel were Shashak's sons.
26 Shamsherai, Shehariah, Athaliah, 27 Jaareshiah, Elijah, and Zichri were Jeroham's sons.
28 These [c] were heads of families, chiefs according to their genealogies, and lived in Jerusalem.

29 Jeiel [d, e] fathered Gibeon and lived in Gibeon. His wife's name was Maacah. 30 Abdon was his firstborn son, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Nadab, 31 Gedor, Ahio, Zecher, 32 and Mikloth who fathered Shimeah. These also lived opposite their relatives in Jerusalem, with their other relatives.
33 Ner fathered Kish, Kish fathered Saul, and Saul fathered Jonathan, Malchishua, Abinadab, and Esh-baal. [f]
34 Jonathan's son was Merib-baal, [g] and Merib-baal fathered Micah.
35 Micah's sons: Pithon, Melech, Tarea, and Ahaz.
36 Ahaz fathered Jehoaddah, Jehoaddah fathered Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri, and Zimri fathered Moza.

37 Moza fathered Binea. His son was Raphah, his son Elasah, and his son Azel.
38 Azel had six sons, and these were their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Sheariah, Obadiah, and Hanan. All these were Azel’s sons.
39 His brother Eshek’s sons: Ulam was his firstborn, Jeush second, and Eliphelet third.
40 Ulam’s sons were warriors and archers. A They had many sons and grandsons — 150 of them.
All these were among Benjamin’s sons.

After the Exile

9 All Israel was registered in the genealogies that are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel. But Judah was exiled [a] to Babylon because of their unfaithfulness. 2 The first [b] to live in their towns on their own property again were Israelites, priests, Levites, and temple servants. [c]

3 These people from the descendants of Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim, and Manasseh settled in Jerusalem:
4 Uthai son of Ammihud, son of Omri, son of Imri, son of Bani, a descendant
A of Perez son of Judah;
5 from the Shilonites:
Asaiah the firstborn and his sons;
6 and from the sons of Zerah:
Jeuel and 690 of their relatives.

7 The Benjaminites: Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Hodaviah, son of Hassenuah;
8 Ibneiah son of Jeroham;
Elah son of Uzzi, son of Michri;
Meshullam son of Shephatiah, son of Reuel, son of Ibnijah; 9 and 956 [d] of their relatives according to their genealogical records. All these men were heads of their ancestral houses.

10 The priests: [e] Jedaiah; Jehoiarib; Jachin; 11 Azariah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, the chief official [f] of God's temple;
12 Adaiah son of Jeroham, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah; Maasai son of Adiel, son of Jahzerah, son of Meshullam, son of Meshillemith, son of Immer;
13 and 1,760 of their relatives, the heads of households. They were capable men employed in the ministry of God's temple.

14 The Levites: Shemaiah son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah of the Merarites;
15 Bakbakkar, Heresh, Galal, and Mattaniah, son of Mica, son of Zichri, son of •Asaph ;
16 Obadiah son of Shemaiah, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun; and Berechiah son of Asa, son of Elkanah who lived in the villages of the Netophathites.

17 The gatekeepers: [g] Shallum, Akkub, Talmon, Ahiman, and their relatives.
Shallum was their chief; 18 he was previously stationed at the King's Gate on the east side. [h] These were the gatekeepers from the camp of the Levites.
19 Shallum son of Kore, son of Ebiasaph, son of Korah and his relatives from his ancestral household, the Korahites, were assigned to guard the thresholds of the tent. [i] Their ancestors had been assigned to the LORD's camp as guardians of the entrance. [j] 20 In earlier times Phinehas son of Eleazar had been their leader, and the LORD was with him. [k] 21 Zechariah son of Meshelemiah was the gatekeeper at the entrance to the tent of meeting. [l]

22 The total number of those chosen to be gatekeepers at the thresholds was 212. They were registered by genealogy in their villages. David and Samuel the seer had appointed them [m] to their trusted positions. 23 So they and their sons were assigned to the gates of the LORD's temple, which had been the tent-temple.
24 The gatekeepers were on the four sides: east, west, north, and south. 25 Their relatives came from their villages [n] at fixed times to be with them seven days, [o] 26 but the four chief gatekeepers, who were Levites, were entrusted with the rooms and the treasuries of God's temple. [p] 27 They spent the night in the vicinity of God's temple, because they had guard duty and were in charge of opening it every morning. [q]

28 Some of them were in charge of the utensils used in worship. They would count them when they brought them in and when they took them out. 29 Others were put in charge of the furnishings and all the utensils of the sanctuary, [r] as well as the fine flour, [s] wine, oil, incense, and spices. 30 Some of the priests' sons mixed the spices. [t] 31 A Levite called Mattithiah, the firstborn of Shallum the Korahite, was entrusted with baking the bread. [B] 32 Some of the Kohathites' relatives were responsible for preparing the rows of the •bread of the Presence [u] every Sabbath.

33 The singers, [v] the heads of the Levite families, stayed in the temple chambers and were exempt from other tasks because they were on duty day and night. [w] 34 These [x] were the heads of the Levite families, chiefs according to their genealogies, and lived in Jerusalem.

Saul's Family

35 Jeiel fathered Gibeon and lived in Gibeon. His wife’s name was Maacah.
36 Abdon was his firstborn son, then Zur, Kish, Baal, Ner, Nadab, 37 Gedor, Ahio, Zechariah, and Mikloth. 38 Mikloth fathered Shimeam. These also lived opposite their relatives in Jerusalem with their other relatives.
39 Ner fathered Kish, Kish fathered Saul, and Saul fathered Jonathan, Malchishua, Abinadab, and Esh-baal.
40 Jonathan’s son was Merib-baal, and Merib-baal fathered Micah.
41 Micah’s sons: Pithon, Melech, Tahrea, and Ahaz. y
42 Ahaz fathered Jarah;
Jarah fathered Alemeth, Azmaveth, and Zimri; Zimri fathered Moza.
43 Moza fathered Binea.
His son was Rephaiah, his son Elasah, and his son Azel.
44 Azel had six sons, and these were their names: Azrikam, Bocheru, Ishmael, Shearіah, Obadiah, and Hanan. These were Azel’s sons.

The Deaths of Saul and His Sons

10 The Philistines [a] fought against Israel, and Israel's men fled from them and were killed on Mount Gilboa. 2 The Philistines pursued Saul and his sons and killed Saul's sons Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malchishua. 3 When the battle intensified against Saul, the archers found him and severely wounded him.
4 Then Saul said to his armor-bearer, "Draw your sword and run me through with it, or these uncircumcised men will come and torture me! " But his armor-bearer wouldn't do it because he was terrified. Then Saul took his sword and fell on it. 5 When his armor-bearer saw that Saul was dead, he also fell on his own sword and died. 6 So Saul and his three sons died — his whole house died together.

7 When all the men of Israel in the valley saw that the army had fled and that Saul and his sons were dead, they abandoned their cities and fled. So the Philistines came and settled in them.

8 The next day when the Philistines came to strip the slain, they found Saul and his sons dead on Mount Gilboa. 9 They stripped Saul, cut off his head, took his armor, and sent messengers throughout the land of the Philistines to spread the good news to their idols and their people. 10 Then they put his armor in the temple of their gods and hung his skull in the temple of Dagon. [b]

11 When all Jabesh-gilead heard of everything the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 all their brave men set out and retrieved the body of Saul and the bodies of his sons and brought them to Jabesh. They buried their bones under the oak [A] in Jabesh [c] and fasted seven days.

13 Saul died for his unfaithfulness to the LORD because he did not keep the LORD's word. [d] He even consulted a medium for guidance, [e] 14 but he did not inquire of the LORD. So the LORD put him to death and turned the kingdom over to David son of Jesse. [f]

David's Anointing as King

11 All Israel [a] came together to David at Hebron and said, “Here we are, your own flesh and blood. [A] 2 Even when Saul was king, you led us out to battle and brought us back. The Lord your God also said to you, ‘You will shepherd My people Israel and be ruler over My people Israel.’ ” 3 So all the elders of Israel came to the king at Hebron. David made a covenant with them at Hebron in the Lord’s presence, and they anointed David king over Israel, in keeping with the Lord’s word through Samuel. [b]

David’s Capture of Jerusalem

4 David [c] and all Israel marched to Jerusalem (that is, Jebus [d]); the Jebusites who inhabited the land were there. 5 The inhabitants of Jebus said to David, “You will never get in here.” Yet David did capture the stronghold of •Zion, that is, the city of David.
6 David said, “Whoever is the first to kill a Jebusite will become chief commander.” Joab [e] son of Zeruiah went up first, so he became the chief.
7 Then David took up residence in the stronghold; therefore, it was called the city of David. 8 He built up the city all the way around, from the supporting terraces to the surrounding parts, and Joab restored the rest of the city. 9 David steadily grew more powerful, [f] and the Lord of •Hosts was with him.

Exploits of David’s Warriors

10 The following were the chiefs of David’s warriors who, together with all Israel, strongly supported him in his reign to make him king according to the Lord’s word about Israel. [g] 11 This [h] is the list of David’s warriors:
Jashobeam son of Hachmoni was chief [i] of the Thirty; [j] he wielded his spear against 300 and killed them at one time.
12 After him, Eleazar son of Dodo [k] the Ahohite was one of the three warriors.
13 He was with David at Pas-dammim when the Philistines had gathered there for battle. There was a portion of a field full of barley, where the troops had fled from the Philistines. [l] 14 But Eleazar and David [B] took their stand in the middle of the field and defended it. They killed the Philistines, and the Lord gave them a great victory.
15 Three of the 30 chief men went down to David, to the rock at the cave of Adullam, [m] while the Philistine army was encamped in the Valley of Rephaim. [n] 16 At that time David was in the stronghold, [o] and a Philistine garrison [p] was at Bethlehem. 17 David was extremely thirsty [C] and said, “If only someone would bring me water to drink from the well at the city gate of Bethlehem! ” 18 So the Three broke through the Philistine camp and drew water from the well at the gate of Bethlehem. They brought it back to David, but he refused to drink it. Instead, he poured it out to the LORD. 19 David said, “I would never do such a thing in the presence of God! How can I drink the blood of these men who risked their lives? ” For they brought it at the risk of their lives. So he would not drink it. Such were the exploits of the three warriors.

20 Abishai, [q] Joab’s brother, was the leader of the Three. [r] He raised his spear against 300 men and killed them, gaining a reputation among the Three. 21 He was more honored than the Three and became their commander even though he did not become one of the Three.

22 Benaiah son of Jehoiada [s] was the son of a brave man [D] from Kabzeel, a man of many exploits. Benaiah killed two sons of Ariel of Moab, [E] and he went down into a pit on a snowy day and killed a lion. 23 He also killed an Egyptian who was seven and a half feet tall. [F] Even though the Egyptian had a spear in his hand like a weaver’s beam, [t] Benaiah went down to him with a club, snatched the spear out of the Egyptian’s hand, and then killed him with his own spear. 24 These were the exploits of Benaiah son of Jehoiada, who had a reputation among the three warriors. 25 He was the most honored of the Thirty, but he did not become one of the Three. David put him in charge of his bodyguard.

26 The fighting men [u] were:

Joab’s brother Asahel, [v]
Elhanan son of Dodo of Bethlehem,
27 Shammoth the Harorite, Helez the Pelonite,
28 Ira son of Ikkesh the Tekoite,
Abiezer the Anathothite,

42 Adina son of Shiza the Reubenite, chief of the Reubenites, and 30 with him, 43 Hanan son of Maacah, Joshaphat the Mithnite,
44 Uzzia the Ashterathite,
Shama and Jeiel the sons of Hotham the Aroerite, 45 Jediael son of Shimri and his brother Joha the Tizite, 46 Eliel the Mahavite,
Jeribai and Joshaviah, the sons of Elnaam, Ithmah the Moabite,
47 Eliel, Obed, and Jaasiel the Mezobaite.

David's First Supporters

12 The following were the men who came to David at Ziklag while he was still banned from the presence of Saul son of Kish. [a] They were among the warriors who helped him in battle. [2] They were archers who could use either the right or left hand, both to sling stones and shoot arrows from a bow. [b] They were Saul's relatives [c] from Benjamin:

3 Their chief was Ahiezer son of Shemaah the Gibeathite.
Then there was his brother Joash;
Jeziel and Pelet sons of Azmaveth;
Beracah, Jehu the Anathothite;
4 Ishmaiah the Gibeonite, a warrior among the Thirty and a leader over the Thirty;
[d] Jeremiah, Jahaziel, Johanan, Jozabad the Gederathite;
5 Eluzai, Jerimoth, Bealiah, Shemariah, Shephatiah the Haruphite;
6 Elkanah, Isshiah, Azarel, Joezer, and Jashobeam, the Korahites;
7 and Joelah and Zebadiah, the sons of Jeroham from Gedor.

8 Some Gadites defected to David at his stronghold in the desert. They were fighting men, trained for battle, expert with shield and spear. Their faces were like the faces of lions, and they were as swift as gazelles on the mountains. [e]

9 Ezer was the chief, Obadiah second, Eliab third,
10 Mishmannah fourth, Jeremiah fifth,
11 Attai sixth, Eliel seventh,
12 Johanan eighth, Elzabad ninth,
13 Jeremiah tenth, and Machbannai eleventh.

14 These Gadites were army commanders; the least of them was a match for a hundred, and the greatest of them for a thousand. [f] 15 These are the men who crossed the Jordan in the first month [g] when it was overflowing all its banks, [h] and put to flight all those in the valleys to the east and to the west.

16 Other Benjaminites and men from Judah also went to David at the stronghold. [i] 17 David went out to meet them and said to them, "If you have come in peace to help me, my heart will be united with you, but if you have come to betray me to my enemies even though my hands have done no wrong, may the God of our ancestors look on it and judge."

18 Then the Spirit took control of A, j Amasai, k chief of the Thirty, and he said:

We are yours, David,
we are with you, son of Jesse!
Peace, peace to you, and peace to him who helps you, l
for your God helps you.

So David received them and made them leaders of his troops.

19 Some Manassites defected to David when he went with the Philistines to fight against Saul. However, they did not help the Philistines because the Philistine rulers sent David away after a discussion. They said, "It will be our heads if he defects to his master Saul." m 20 When David went to Ziklag, some men from Manasseh defected to him: Adnah, Jozabad, Jediael, Michael, Jozabad, Elihu, and Zillethai, chiefs of thousands in Manasseh. 21 They helped David against the raiders, n for they were all brave warriors and commanders in the army. 22 At that time, men came day after day to help David until there was a great army, like an army of God. B, o

David's Soldiers in Hebron 23 The numbers of the armed troops who came to David at Hebron to turn Saul's kingdom over to him, p according to the LORD*'s word,* q were as follows:

24 From the Judahites: 6,800 armed troops bearing shields and spears.
25 From the Simeonites: 7,100 brave warriors ready for war.
26 From the Levites: 4,600 27 in addition to Jehoiada, leader of the house of Aaron, with 3,700 men; 28 and Zadok, r a young brave warrior, with 22 commanders from his own ancestral house.
29 From the Benjaminites, the relatives of Saul: s 3,000 (up to that time the majority of the Benjaminites maintained their allegiance to the house of Saul).
30 From the Ephraimites: 20,800 brave warriors who were famous men in their ancestral houses.
31 From half the tribe of Manasseh: 18,000 designated by name to come and make David king.
32 From the Issacharites, who understood the times t and knew what Israel should do: 200 chiefs with all their relatives under their command.
33 From Zebulun: 50,000 who could serve in the army, trained for battle with all kinds of weapons of war, with one purpose [u] to help David. [v] 34 From Naphtali: 1,000 commanders accompanied by 37,000 men with shield and spear.

35 From the Danites: 28,600 trained for battle.
36 From Asher: 40,000 who could serve in the army, trained for battle.
37 From across the Jordan — from the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh: 120,000 men equipped with all the military weapons of war.

38 All these warriors, lined up in battle formation, came to Hebron fully determined to make David king over all Israel. All the rest of Israel was also of one mind to make David king. [w] 39 They spent three days there eating and drinking with David, for their relatives had provided for them. 40 In addition, their neighbors from as far away as Issachar, Zebulun, and Naphtali came and brought food on donkeys, camels, mules, and oxen — abundant provisions of flour, fig cakes, raisins, wine and oil, oxen, and sheep. [x] Indeed, there was joy in Israel.

David and the Ark

13 David consulted with all his leaders, the commanders of hundreds and of thousands. 2 Then he said to the whole assembly of Israel, “If it seems good to you, and if this is from the LORD our God, let us spread out and send the message to the rest of our relatives in all the districts of Israel, including the priests and Levites in their cities with pasturelands, [a] that they should gather together with us. 3 Then let us bring back the ark of our God, for we did not inquire of Him [b] in Saul’s days.” 4 Since the proposal seemed right to all the people, the whole assembly agreed to do it.

5 So David assembled all Israel, [c] from the Shihor of Egypt to the entrance of Hamath, [A, d] to bring the ark of God from Kiriath-jearim. [e] 6 David [f] and all Israel went to Baalah [g] (that is, Kiriath-jearim that belongs to Judah) to take the ark of God from there, which is called by the name of the LORD who dwells between the •cherubim . [h] 7 At Abinadab’s house [i] they set the ark of God on a new cart. Uzzah and Ahio [B] were guiding the cart.

8 David and all Israel were celebrating with all their might before God with songs and with lyres, harps, tambourines, cymbals, and trumpets. [j] 9 When they came to Chidon’s threshing floor, [k] Uzzah reached out to hold the ark because the oxen had stumbled. 10 Then the LORD’s anger burned against Uzzah, and He struck him dead because he had reached out to the ark. [l] So he died there in the presence of God. [m]

11 David was angry because of the LORD’s outburst against Uzzah, so he named that place Outburst Against Uzzah, [C] as it is still named today. 12 David feared God that day and said, “How can I ever bring the ark of God to me? ” 13 So David did not move the ark of God home [D] to the city of David; instead, he took it to the house of Obed-edom the Gittite. [n] 14 The ark of God remained with Obed-edom’s family in his house for three months, and the LORD blessed his family and all that he had.

God's Blessing on David

14 King Hiram of Tyre sent envoys to David, [a] along with cedar logs, stonemasons, and carpenters to build a palace for him. [2] Then David knew that the LORD had established him as king over Israel and that his kingdom had been exalted for the sake of His people Israel.

[3] David took more wives in Jerusalem, and he became the father of more sons and daughters. [4] These [b] are the names of the children born to him in Jerusalem:
Shammua, Shobab, Nathan, Solomon, [5] Ibhar, Elishua, Elpelet, [6] Nogah, Nepheg, Japhia, [7] Elishama, Beeliada, and Eliphelet.

[8] When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed king over all Israel, they all went in search of David; when David heard of this, he went out to face them. [9] Now the Philistines had come and raided in the Valley of Rephaim, [c 10] so David inquired of God, “Should I go to war against the Philistines? Will You hand them over to me? ”

The LORD replied, “Go, and I will hand them over to you.”

[11] So the Israelites went up to Baal-perazim, and David defeated the Philistines there. Then David said, “Like a bursting flood, God has used me to burst out against my enemies.” Therefore, they named that place the Lord Bursts Out. [A 12] The Philistines abandoned their idols there, and David ordered that they be burned in the fire.

[13] Once again the Philistines raided in the valley. [14] So David again inquired of God, and God answered him, “Do not pursue them directly. Circle around them and attack them opposite the balsam trees. [15] When you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then march out to battle, for God will have marched out ahead of you to attack the camp of the Philistines.” [16] So David did exactly as God commanded him, and they struck down the Philistine army from Gibeon to Gezer. [17] Then David’s fame spread throughout the lands, and the LORD caused all the nations to be terrified of him. [d]

The Ark Comes to Jerusalem

15 David built houses for himself in the city of David, and he prepared a place for the ark of God and pitched a tent for it. [a] 2 Then David said, “No one but the Levites may carry the ark of God, because the LORD has chosen them to carry the ark of the LORD and to minister before Him forever.” [b]

3 David assembled all Israel at Jerusalem [c] to bring the ark of the LORD to the place he had prepared for it. [d] 4 Then he gathered together the descendants of Aaron and the Levites: 5 From the Kohathites, Uriel the leader and 120 of his relatives; 6 from the Merarites, Asaiah the leader and 220 of his relatives; 7 from the Gershomites, [e] Joel the leader and 130 of his relatives; 8 from the Elizaphanites, Shemaiah the leader and 200 of his relatives; 9 from the Hebronites, Eliel the leader and 80 of his relatives; 10 from the Uzzielites, Amminadab the leader and 112 of his relatives.

11 David summoned the priests Zadok [f] and Abiathar [g] and the Levites Uriel, Asaiah, Joel, Shemaiah, Eliel, and Amminadab. 12 He said to them, “You are the heads of the Levite families. You and your relatives must consecrate yourselves [h] so that you may bring the ark of the LORD God of Israel to the place I have prepared for it. [i] 13 For the LORD our God burst out in anger against us because you Levites were not with us the first time, for we didn’t inquire of Him about the proper procedures.” [j] 14 So the priests and the Levites consecrated themselves to bring up the ark of the LORD God of Israel. 15 Then the Levites carried the ark of God the way Moses had commanded according to the word of the LORD: on their shoulders with the poles. [k]

16 Then David told the leaders of the Levites to appoint their relatives as singers and to have them raise their voices with joy accompanied by musical instruments — harps, lyres, and cymbals. [l] 17 So the Levites appointed Heman son of Joel; from his relatives, Asaph son of Berechiah; and from their relatives the Merarites, Ethan son of Kushaiah. 18 With them were their relatives second in rank: Zechariah, Jaaziel, [m] Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, and the gatekeepers Obed-edom and Jeiel. 19 The singers Heman, Asaph, and Ethan were to sound the bronze cymbals; 20 Zechariah, Aziel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maaseiah, and Benaiah were to play harps according to Alamoth ; [n] 21 and Mattithiah, Eliphelehu, Mikneiah, Obed-edom, Jeiel, and Azaziah were to lead the music with lyres according to the • Sheminith . 22 Chenaniah, the leader of the Levites in music, was to direct the music because he was skillful. 23 Berechiah and Elkanah were to be gatekeepers for the ark. 24 The priests, Shebaniah, Joshaphat, Nethanel, Amasai, Zechariah, Benaiah, and Eliezer, were to blow trumpets [o] before the ark of God. Obed-edom and Jehiah were also to be gatekeepers for the ark.

25 David, [p] the elders of Israel, and the commanders of thousands went with rejoicing to bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD from the house of Obed-edom. [q] 26 While the Levites were carrying the ark of the covenant of the LORD, with God's help, they sacrificed seven bulls and seven rams. [r]

27 Now David was dressed in a robe of fine linen, as were all the Levites who were carrying the ark, as well as the singers and Chenaniah, the music leader of the singers. David also wore a linen •ephod . 28 So all Israel brought up the ark of the covenant of the LORD with shouts, the sound of the ram's horn, trumpets, and cymbals, and the playing of harps and lyres. 29 As the ark of the covenant of the LORD was entering the city of David, Saul's daughter Michal looked down from the window and saw King David dancing [A] and celebrating, and she despised him in her heart.

16 They [a] brought the ark of God and placed it inside the tent David had pitched for it. [b] Then they offered •burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings in God's presence. 2 When David had finished offering the burnt offerings and the fellowship offerings, he blessed the people in the name of •Yahweh . 3 Then he distributed to each and every Israelite, both men and women, a loaf of bread, a date cake, and a raisin cake.

4 David appointed some of the Levites to be ministers before the ark of the LORD, to celebrate the LORD God of Israel, and to give thanks and praise to Him.
5 •Asaph was the chief and Zechariah was second to him. Jeiel, Shemiramoth, Jehiel, Mattithiah, Eliab, Benaiah, Obed-edom, and Jeiel played the harps and lyres, while Asaph sounded the cymbals 6 and the priests Benaiah and Jahaziel blew the trumpets regularly before the ark of the covenant of God.

David's Psalm of Thanksgiving

7 On that day David decreed for the first time that thanks be given to the LORD by Asaph and his relatives:

8 Give thanks [c] to Yahweh; call on His name;
proclaim His deeds among the peoples. [d] 9 Sing to Him; sing praise to Him;
tell about all His wonderful works!
10 Honor His holy name;
let the hearts of those who seek Yahweh rejoice.
11 Search for the LORD and for His strength; seek His face always. [e]
12 Remember the wonderful works He has done, [f]
His wonders, and the judgments He has pronounced, [A, g]
13 you offspring of Israel His servant,
Jacob's descendants — His chosen ones.

14 He is the LORD our God;
His judgments govern the whole earth. [h]
15 Remember His covenant forever —
the promise He ordained for a thousand generations, 16 the covenant He made with Abraham, swore [B] to Isaac, [i] 17 and confirmed to Jacob as a decree, and to Israel as an everlasting covenant: [j]

18 “I will give the land of Canaan to you as your inherited portion.” [k]

19 When they [l] were few in number, very few indeed, [m] and temporary residents in Canaan 20 wandering from nation to nation and from one kingdom to another, 21 He allowed no one to oppress them;
He rebuked kings on their behalf: [n] 22 “Do not touch My anointed ones or harm My prophets.” [o]

23 Sing [p] to the LORD, all the earth.
Proclaim His salvation from day to day.
24 Declare His glory among the nations,
His wonderful works among all peoples.

25 For the LORD is great and highly praised; [q]
He is feared above all gods. [r]
26 For all the gods of the peoples are idols, [s] but the LORD made the heavens. [t] 27 Splendor and majesty are before Him; strength and joy are in His place.
28 Ascribe to the LORD, families of the peoples, ascribe to the LORD glory and strength.
29 Ascribe to Yahweh the glory of His name;
bring an offering and come before Him.
Worship the LORD in the splendor of His holiness; [u]
30 tremble [v] before Him, all the earth.

The world is firmly established;
it cannot be shaken.
31 Let the heavens be glad and the earth rejoice, [w] and let them say among the nations, “The LORD is King! ” 32 Let the sea and everything in it resound;
let the fields and all that is in them exult. [x] 33 Then the trees of the forest will shout for joy before the LORD, for He is coming to judge the earth.

34 Give thanks to the LORD, for He is good;
His faithful love endures forever. [y] 35 And say: [z] “Save us, God of our salvation; gather us and rescue us from the nations so that we may give thanks to Your holy name and rejoice in Your praise.
36 May Yahweh, the God of Israel, be praised [a] from everlasting to everlasting.”

Then all the people said, “•Amen ” and “Praise the LORD.”

37 So David left Asaph and his relatives there before the ark of the LORD’s covenant to minister regularly [b] before the ark according to the daily requirements. [c] 38 He assigned Obed-edom [d] and his [e] 68 relatives. Obed-edom son of Jeduthun and Hosah [f] were to be gatekeepers. 39 David left Zadok the priest and his fellow priests before the tabernacle of the LORD at the •high place in Gibeon [g] 40 to offer burnt offerings regularly, morning and evening, to the LORD on the altar of burnt offerings and to do everything that was written in the law of the LORD, which He had commanded Israel to keep. [h] 41 With them were Heman, [i] Jeduthun, and the rest who were chosen and designated by name [j] to give thanks to the LORD — for His faithful love endures forever. [k] 42 Heman and Jeduthun had with them trumpets and cymbals to play and musical instruments of God. [l] Jeduthun’s sons were at the gate.

43 Then all the people left for their homes, and David returned home to bless his household. [m]

The LORD's Covenant with David

17 When David [a] had settled into his palace, he said to Nathan the prophet, "Look! I am living in a cedar house while the ark of the LORD*'s covenant is* under tent curtains." [b]

2 So Nathan told David, "Do all that is on your heart, for God is with you."

3 But that night [c] the word of God came to Nathan: 4 "Go to David My servant and say, 'This is what the LORD says: You are not the one to build Me a house to dwell in. [d] 5 From the time I brought Israel out of Egypt until today I have not lived in a house; instead, I have moved from tent to tent and from tabernacle to tabernacle. [e] 6 In all My travels throughout Israel, have I ever spoken a word to even one of the judges of Israel, whom I commanded to shepherd My people, asking: Why haven't you built Me a house of cedar? ' [f]

7 "Now this is what you will say to My servant David: 'This is what the LORD of •Hosts says: I took you from the pasture and from following the sheep to be ruler over My people Israel. [g] 8 I have been with you wherever you have gone, and I have destroyed all your enemies before you. I will make a name for you like that of the greatest in the land. 9 I will establish a place for My people Israel and plant them, [h] so that they may live there and not be disturbed again.
Evildoers will not continue to oppress them as they formerly have 10 ever since the day I ordered judges to be over My people Israel. I will also subdue all your enemies.

" 'Furthermore, I declare to you that the LORD Himself will build a house for you. 11 When your time comes to be with your fathers, I will raise up after you your descendant, who is one of your own sons, and I will establish his kingdom.
12 He will build a house for Me, [i] and I will establish his throne forever. 13 I will be a father to him, and he will be a son to Me. [j] I will not take away My faithful love from him as I took it from the one who was before you. [k] 14 I will appoint him over My house and My kingdom forever, and his throne will be established forever.' " [l]

15 Nathan reported all these words and this entire vision to David.

David's Prayer of Thanksgiving

16 Then [m] King David went in, sat in the LORD's presence, and said,

Who am I, LORD God, and what is my house that You have brought me this far? 17 This was a little thing to You, [A] God, for You have spoken about Your servant's house in the distant future. You regard me as a man of distinction, [B]
LORD God. 18 What more can David say to You for honoring Your servant?

You know Your servant. 19 LORD, You have done all this greatness, making known all these great promises because of Your servant and according to Your will. [n] 20 LORD, there is no one like You, and there is no God besides You, as all we have heard confirms. 21 And who is like Your people Israel? God, You came to one nation on earth to redeem a people for Yourself, to make a name for Yourself through great and awesome works by driving out nations before Your people You redeemed from Egypt. [o] 22 You made Your people Israel Your own people forever, and You, LORD, have become their God. [p]

23 Now, LORD, let the word that You have spoken concerning Your servant and his house be confirmed forever, and do as You have promised. 24 Let Your name be confirmed and magnified forever in the saying, "•Yahweh of Hosts, the God of Israel, is God over Israel." May the house of Your servant David be established before You. 25 Since You, my God, have revealed to [C,] [q] Your servant that You will build him a house, Your servant has found courage to pray in Your presence. 26 Yahweh, You indeed are God, and You have promised this good thing to Your servant. 27 So now, You have been pleased to bless Your servant's house that it may continue before You forever. For You, LORD, have blessed it, and it is blessed forever.

David's Military Campaigns

18 After this, [a] David defeated the Philistines, subdued them, and took Gath and its villages from Philistine control. 2 He also defeated the Moabites, and they became David's subjects and brought tribute.

3 David also defeated King Hadadezer of Zobah at Hamath when he went to establish his control at the Euphrates River. 4 David captured 1,000 chariots, 7,000 horsemen, and 20,000 foot soldiers from him, hamstrung all the horses, and kept 100 chariots. [A]

5 When the Arameans of Damascus came to assist King Hadadezer of Zobah, [b] David struck down 22,000 Aramean men. 6 Then he placed garrisons [c, d] in Aram of Damascus, and the Arameans became David's subjects and brought tribute. The LORD made David victorious wherever he went.

7 David took the gold shields carried by Hadadezer's officers and brought them to Jerusalem. 8 From Tibhath and Cun, Hadadezer's cities, David also took huge quantities of bronze, from which Solomon made the bronze reservoir, the pillars, and the bronze articles. [e]

9 When King Tou of Hamath heard that David had defeated the entire army of King Hadadezer of Zobah, 10 he sent his son Hadoram to King David to greet him and to congratulate him because David had fought against Hadadezer and defeated him, for Tou and Hadadezer had fought many wars. Hadoram brought all kinds of gold, silver, and bronze items. 11 King David also dedicated these to the LORD, along with the silver and gold he had carried off from all the nations — from Edom, Moab, the Ammonites, the Philistines, and the Amalekites.

12 Abishai son of Zeruiah struck down 18,000 Edomites in the Valley of Salt.
13 He put garrisons in Edom, and all the Edomites were subject to David. The LORD made David victorious wherever he went.

14 So David reigned over all Israel, [f] administering justice and righteousness for all his people.

15 Joab [g] son of Zeruiah was over the army;
Jehoshaphat son of Ahilud was court historian;
16 Zadok son of Ahitub
and Ahimelech [h, i] son of Abiathar were priests;
Shavsha was court secretary;
17 Benaiah son of Jehoiada [j] was over the Cherethites and the Pelethites;

and David’s sons were the chief officials at the king’s side.

War with the Ammonites

19 Some time later, [a] King Nahash of the Ammonites died, and his son became king in his place. 2 Then David said, "I'll show kindness to Hanun son of Nahash, because his father showed kindness to me."

So David sent messengers to console him concerning his father. However, when David's emissaries arrived in the land of the Ammonites to console him, 3 the Ammonite leaders said to Hanun, "Just because David has sent men with condolences for you, do you really believe he's showing respect for your father? Instead, hasn't David sent his emissaries in order to scout out, overthrow, and spy on the land? " 4 So Hanun took David's emissaries, shaved them, cut their clothes in half at the hips, and sent them away. [b]

5 It was reported to David about his men, so he sent messengers to meet them, since the men were deeply humiliated. The king said, "Stay in Jericho until your beards grow back; then return."

6 When the Ammonites realized [c] they had made themselves repulsive to David, Hanun and the Ammonites sent 38 tons [A] of silver to hire chariots and horsemen from Aram-naharaim, Aram-maacah, and Zobah. [d] 7 They hired 32,000 chariots and the king of Maacah with his army, who came and camped near Medeba. [e] The Ammonites also came together from their cities for the battle.

8 David heard about this and sent Joab and the entire army of warriors. 9 The Ammonites marched out and lined up in battle formation at the entrance of the city while the kings who had come were in the field by themselves. 10 When Joab saw that there was a battle line in front of him and another behind him, he chose some men out of all the elite troops [B,] [f] of Israel and lined up in battle formation to engage the Arameans. 11 He placed the rest of the forces under the command of his brother Abishai, and they lined up in battle formation to engage the Ammonites.

12 "If the Arameans are too strong for me," Joab said, "then you'll be my help. However, if the Ammonites are too strong for you, I'll help you. 13 Be strong! We must prove ourselves strong for our people and for the cities of our God. [g] May the LORD's will be done." [C]

14 Joab and the people with him approached the Arameans for battle, and they fled before him. 15 When the Ammonites saw that the Arameans had fled, they likewise fled before Joab's brother Abishai and entered the city. Then Joab went to Jerusalem.

16 When the Arameans realized that they had been defeated by Israel, they sent messengers to summon the Arameans who were across the Euphrates. They were led by Shophach, the commander of Hadadezer's army.

17 When this was reported to David, he gathered all Israel and crossed the Jordan. He came up to the Arameans and lined up in battle formation against them. When David lined up to engage them in battle, they fought against him. 18 But the Arameans fled before Israel, and David killed 7,000 of their charioteers and 40,000 foot soldiers. He also killed Shophach, commander of the army. 19 When Hadadezer's subjects saw that they had been defeated by Israel, they made peace with David and became his subjects. After this, the Arameans were never willing to help the Ammonites again.

Capture of the City of Rabbah

20 In the spring [A] when kings march out to war, [a] Joab led the army and destroyed the Ammonites' land. He came to Rabbah and besieged it, but David remained in Jerusalem. [b] Joab attacked Rabbah and demolished it. 2 Then David took the crown from the head of their king, [c, d] , [e] and it was placed on David's head. He found that the crown weighed 75 pounds [B] of gold, and there was a precious stone in it. In addition, David took away a large quantity of plunder from the city. 3 He brought out the people who were in it and put them to work with saws, [f] iron picks, and axes. [g, h] David did the same to all the Ammonite cities. Then he and all his troops returned to Jerusalem.

The Philistine Giants

4 After this, [i] a war broke out with the Philistines at Gezer. At that time Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Sippai, a descendant of the giants, [C] and the Philistines were subdued.

5 Once again there was a battle with the Philistines, and Elhanan son of Jair killed Lahmi the brother of Goliath the Gittite. The shaft of his spear was like a weaver's beam. [j]

6 There was still another battle at Gath where there was a man of extraordinary stature with six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot — 24 in all. He, too, was descended from the giant. [D] 7 When he taunted Israel, Jonathan son of David's brother Shimei killed him.

8 These were the descendants of the giant [E] in Gath killed by David and his soldiers.

David's Military Census

21 Satan [A,][a] stood up against Israel and incited David [b] to count the people of Israel. 2 So David said to Joab and the commanders of the troops, “Go and count Israel from Beer-sheba to Dan and bring a report to me so I can know their number.” [c]

3 Joab replied, “May the LORD multiply the number of His people a hundred times over! [d] My lord the king, aren’t they all my lord’s servants? Why does my lord want to do this? Why should he bring •guilt on Israel? ”

4 Yet the king’s order prevailed over Joab. So Joab left and traveled throughout Israel and then returned to Jerusalem. 5 Joab gave the total troop registration to David. In all Israel there were 1,100,000 swordsmen and in Judah itself 470,000 swordsmen. 6 But he did not include Levi and Benjamin in the count because the king’s command was detestable to him. 7 This command was also evil in God’s sight, so He afflicted Israel.

8 David said to God, “I have sinned greatly because I have done this thing.
Now, please take away Your servant’s guilt, for I’ve been very foolish.” [e]

David’s Punishment

9 Then [f] the LORD instructed Gad, [g] David’s seer, [h] 10 “Go and say to David, ‘This is what the LORD says: I am offering you three choices. Choose one of them for yourself, and I will do it to you.’ ”

11 So Gad went to David and said to him, “This is what the LORD says: ‘Take your choice: 12 three years of famine, or three months of devastation by your foes with the sword of your enemy overtaking you, or three days of the sword of the LORD — a plague on the land, the angel of the LORD bringing destruction to the whole territory of Israel.’ Now decide what answer I should take back to the One who sent me.”

13 David answered Gad, “I’m in anguish. Please, let me fall into the LORD’s hands because His mercies are very great, [i] but don’t let me fall into human hands.”

14 So the LORD sent a plague on Israel, and 70,000 Israelite men died. 15 Then God sent an angel to Jerusalem to destroy it, but when the angel was about to destroy the city, [B] the LORD looked, relented concerning the destruction, [j] and said to the angel who was destroying the people, “Enough, withdraw your hand now! ” The angel of the LORD was then standing at the threshing floor of Ornan [k] the Jebusite.

16 When David looked up and saw the angel of the LORD standing between earth and heaven, with his drawn sword in his hand stretched out over Jerusalem,

David and the elders, clothed in •sackcloth , [l] fell down with their faces to the ground. 17 David said to God, “Wasn’t I the one who gave the order to count the people? I am the one who has sinned and acted very wickedly. But these sheep, what have they done? My LORD God, please let Your hand be against me and against my father’s family, but don’t let the plague be against Your people.”

David’s Altar

18 So the angel of the LORD ordered Gad [m] to tell David to go and set up an altar to the LORD on the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. [n] 19 David went up at Gad’s command spoken in the name of the LORD.

20 Ornan was threshing wheat when he turned and saw the angel. His four sons, who were with him, hid themselves. 21 David came to Ornan, and when Ornan looked and saw David, he left the threshing floor and bowed to David with his face to the ground.

22 Then David said to Ornan, “Give me this threshing-floor plot so that I may build an altar to the LORD on it. Give it to me for the full price, so the plague on the people may be stopped.”

23 Ornan said to David, “Take it! My lord the king may do whatever he wants. [C] See, I give the oxen for the •burnt offerings, the threshing sledges for the wood, and the wheat for the •grain offering — I give it all.”

24 King David answered Ornan, “No, I insist on paying the full price, for I will not take for the LORD what belongs to you or offer burnt offerings that cost me nothing.”

25 So David gave Ornan 15 pounds of gold [D] for the plot. 26 He built an altar to the LORD there and offered burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings. He called on the LORD, and He answered him with fire from heaven on the altar of burnt offering. [o]

27 Then the LORD spoke to the angel, and he put his sword back into its sheath. 28 At that time, David offered sacrifices there when he saw that the LORD answered him at the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. 29 The tabernacle of the LORD, which Moses made in the desert, and the altar of burnt offering were at the •high place in Gibeon, [p] 30 but David could not go before it to inquire of God, because he was terrified of the sword of the LORD’s angel.

22 Then David said, “This is the house of the Lord God, and this is the altar of •burnt offering for Israel.” [a]

David’s Preparations for the Temple [2] So David gave orders to gather the foreigners that were in the land of Israel, [b] and he appointed stonecutters to cut finished stones for building God’s house. [c] [3] David supplied a great deal of iron to make the nails for the doors of the gateways and for the fittings, together with an immeasurable quantity of bronze, [d] [4] and innumerable cedar logs because the Sidonians and Tyrians had brought a large quantity of cedar logs to David. [e] [5] David said, “My son Solomon is young and inexperienced, and the house that is to be built for the Lord must be exceedingly great and famous and glorious in all the lands. [f] Therefore, I must make provision for it.” So David made lavish preparations for it before his death.

[6] Then he summoned his son Solomon and instructed him to build a house for the Lord God of Israel. [7] “My son,” David said to Solomon, “It was in my heart to build a house for the name of •Yahweh my God, [g] [8] but the word of the Lord came to me: ‘You have shed much blood and waged great wars. You are not to build a house for My name because you have shed so much blood on the ground before Me. [h] [9] But a son will be born to you; he will be a man of rest. I will give him rest from all his surrounding enemies, [i] for his name will be Solomon, [j, k] and I will give peace and quiet to Israel during his reign. [l] [10] He is the one who will build a house for My name. He will be My son, and I will be his father. I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel forever.’ [m]

[11] “Now, my son, may the Lord be with you, [n] and may you succeed in building the house of the Lord your God, as He said about you. [12] Above all, may the Lord give you insight and understanding when He puts you in charge of Israel so that you may keep the law of the Lord your God. [o] [13] Then you will succeed if you carefully follow the statutes and ordinances the Lord commanded Moses for Israel. [p] Be strong and courageous. Don’t be afraid or discouraged. [q]

[14] “Notice I have taken great pains to provide for the house of the Lord — 3,775 tons of gold, 37,750 tons of silver, [A, r] and bronze and iron that can’t be weighed because there is so much of it. I have also provided timber and stone, but you will need to add more to them. [15] You also have many workers: stonecutters, masons, carpenters, and people skilled in every kind of work [16] in gold, silver, bronze, and iron — beyond number. Now begin the work, and may the Lord be with you.” [s]

[17] Then David ordered all the leaders of Israel to help his son Solomon: [18]

“The LORD your God is with you, isn’t He? And hasn’t He given you rest on every side? [t] For He has handed the land’s inhabitants over to me, and the land has been subdued before the LORD and His people. 19 Now determine in your mind and heart to seek the LORD your God. [u] Get started building the LORD God’s sanctuary so that you may bring the ark of the LORD’s covenant and the holy articles of God to the temple that is to be built [v] for the name of Yahweh.” [w]

The Divisions of the Levites

23 When David was old and full of days, [a] he installed his son Solomon as king over Israel. [b] 2 Then he gathered all the leaders of Israel, the priests, and the Levites. 3 The Levites 30 years old or more were counted; [c] the total number of men was 38,000 by headcount. [d] 4 “Of these,” David said, “24,000 are to be in charge of the work on the LORD’s temple, [e] 6,000 are to be officers and judges, [f] 5 4,000 are to be gatekeepers, and 4,000 are to praise the LORD with the instruments that I have made for worship.” [g]

6 Then David divided them into divisions according to Levi’s sons: [h] Gershom, [A] Kohath, and Merari.

7 The Gershonites: Ladan and Shimei.
8 Ladan’s sons: Jehiel was the first, then Zetham, and Joel — three.
9 Shimei’s sons: Shelomoth, Haziel, and Haran — three. Those were the heads of the families of Ladan.
10 Shimei’s sons: Jahath, Zizah, [i] Jeush, and Beriah. Those were Shimei’s sons — four. 11 Jahath was the first and Zizah was the second; however, Jeush and Beriah did not have many sons, so they became an ancestral house and received a single assignment.
12 Kohath’s sons: Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel — four.
13 Amram’s sons: [j] Aaron and Moses.

Aaron, along with his descendants, [k] was set apart forever to consecrate the most holy things, to burn incense in the presence of •Yahweh , [l] to minister to Him, and to pronounce blessings in His name forever. 14 As for Moses the man of God, [m] his sons were named among the tribe of Levi.

15 Moses’ sons: Gershom and Eliezer.
16 Gershom’s sons: Shebuel was first.
17 Eliezer’s sons were Rehabiah, first; Eliezer did not have any other sons, but Rehabiah’s sons were very numerous.
18 Izhar’s sons: Shelomith was first.
19 Hebron’s sons: Jeriah was first, Amariah second, Jahaziel third, and Jekameam fourth.
20 Uzziel’s sons: Micah was first, and Isshiah second.
21 Merari’s sons: Mahli and Mushi.
Mahli’s sons: Eleazar and Kish.

22 Eleazar died having no sons, only daughters. Their cousins, the sons of Kish, married them.
23 Mushi's sons: Mahli, Eder, and Jeremoth — three.

24 These were the sons of Levi by their ancestral houses — the heads of families, according to their registration by name in the headcount — 20 years old or more, who worked in the service of the LORD's temple. [n] 25 For David said, "The LORD God of Israel has given rest to His people, [o] and He has come to stay in Jerusalem forever. 26 Also, the Levites no longer need to carry the tabernacle or any of the equipment for its service" [p] — 27 for according to the last words of David, the Levites 20 years old or more were to be counted — 28 "but their duty will be to assist the sons of Aaron with the service of the LORD's temple, being responsible for the courts and the chambers, the purification of all the holy things, and the work of the service of God's temple — 29 as well as the rows of the •bread of the Presence, [q] the fine flour for the •grain offering, [r] the wafers of unleavened bread, the baking, [B,] [s] the mixing, [t] and all measurements of volume and length. [u] 30 They are also to stand every morning to give thanks and praise to the LORD, and likewise in the evening. 31 Whenever •burnt offerings are offered to the LORD on the Sabbaths, New Moons, [v] and appointed festivals, they are to do so regularly in the LORD's presence according to the number prescribed for them. [w] 32 They are to carry out their responsibilities for the tent of meeting, for the holy place, [x] and for their relatives, the sons of Aaron, [y] in the service of the LORD's temple."

The Divisions of the Priests

24 The divisions of the descendants of Aaron were as follows: Aaron's sons were Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. [a] 2 But Nadab and Abihu died before their father, and they had no sons, so Eleazar and Ithamar served as priests. [b] 3 Together with Zadok [c] from the sons of Eleazar and Ahimelech from the sons of Ithamar, David divided them according to the assigned duties of their service. 4 Since more leaders were found among Eleazar's descendants than Ithamar's, they were divided accordingly: 16 heads of ancestral houses were from Eleazar's descendants, and eight heads of ancestral houses were from Ithamar's. 5 They [d] were assigned by lot, for there were officers of the sanctuary and officers of God among both Eleazar's and Ithamar's descendants.

6 The secretary, Shemaiah son of Nethanel, a Levite, recorded them in the presence of the king and the officers, Zadok the priest, Ahimelech [e] son of Abiathar, and the heads of families of the priests and the Levites. One ancestral house was taken for Eleazar, and then one for Ithamar.

7 The first lot fell to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah,
8 the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim,
9 the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin,
10 the seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to Abijah, [f]
11 the ninth to Jeshua, the tenth to Shecaniah, 12 the eleventh to Eliashib, the twelfth to Jakim,
13 the thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab, 14 the fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to Immer,
15 the seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Happizzez, 16 the nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezkel, 17 the twenty-first to Jachin, the twenty-second to Gamul,
18 the twenty-third to Delaiah, and the twenty-fourth to Maaziah.

19 These had their assigned duties for service when they entered the LORD's temple, according to their regulations, which they received from their ancestor Aaron, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded him.

The Rest of the Levites

20 As for the rest of Levi’s sons:
from Amram’s sons: Shubael;
from Shubael’s sons: Jehdeiah.
21 From Rehabiah:
from Rehabiah’s sons: Isshiah was the first.
22 From the Izharites: Shelomoth; from Shelomoth’s sons: Jahath.
23 Hebron’s [g], [h] sons:
Jeriah the first, Amariah the second,
Jahaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth.
24 From Uzziel’s sons: Micah;
from Micah’s sons: Shamir.
25 Micah’s brother: Isshiah; from Isshiah’s sons: Zechariah.
26 Merari’s sons: Mahli and Mushi,
and from his sons, Jaaziah his son. [A] 27 Merari’s sons, by his son Jaaziah: [B]
Shoham, Zaccur, and Ibri.
28 From Mahli: Eleazar, who had no sons.
29 From Kish, from Kish’s sons: Jerahmeel.
30 Mushi’s sons: Mahli, Eder, and Jerimoth.

Those were the sons of the Levites according to their ancestral houses. 31 They also cast lots the same way as their relatives the sons of Aaron did in the presence of King David, Zadok, Ahimelech, and the heads of the families of the priests and Levites — the family heads and their younger brothers alike. [i]

The Levitical Musicians

25 David and the officers of the army also set apart some of the sons of •Asaph , Heman, [a] and Jeduthun, who were to prophesy [b] accompanied by lyres, harps, and cymbals. [c] This is the list of the men who performed their service:

2 From Asaph's sons:
Zaccur, Joseph, Nethaniah, and Asarelah, sons of Asaph, under Asaph's authority, who prophesied under the authority of the king.
3 From Jeduthun: [d] Jeduthun's sons:
Gedaliah, Zeri, Jeshaiah, Shimei, [e] Hashabiah, and Mattithiah — six — under the authority of their father Jeduthun, prophesying to the accompaniment of lyres, giving thanks and praise to the LORD.
4 From Heman: Heman's sons:
Bukkiah, Mattaniah, Uzziel, Shebuel, Jerimoth, Hananiah, Hanani, Eliathah, Giddalti, Romamti-ezer, Joshbekashah, Mallothi, Hothir, and Mahazioth. 5 All these sons of Heman, the king's seer, [f] were given by the promises of God to exalt him, [A] for God had given Heman fourteen sons and three daughters.
6 All these men were under their own fathers' authority for the music in the LORD's temple, with cymbals, harps, and lyres for the service of God's temple. Asaph, Jeduthun, and Heman were under the king's authority. 7 They numbered 288 together with their relatives who were all trained and skillful in music for the LORD. 8 They cast lots for their duties, young and old alike, teacher as well as pupil. [g]

9 The first lot for Asaph fell to Joseph, his sons, and his brothers —	12
to Gedaliah the second: him, his brothers, and his sons —	12
10 the third to Zaccur, his sons, and his brothers —	12
11 the fourth to Izri, [B] his sons, and his brothers —	12
12 the fifth to Nethaniah, his sons, and his brothers —	12
13 the sixth to Bukkiah, his sons, and his brothers —	12
14 the seventh to Jesarelah, his sons, and his brothers —	12

15 the eighth to Jeshaiah, his sons, and his brothers — 12

16 the ninth to Mattaniah, his sons, and his brothers — 12

17 the tenth to Shimei, his sons, and his brothers — 12

18 the eleventh to Azarel, [h] his sons, and his brothers — 12

19 the twelfth to Hashabiah, his sons, and his brothers — 12

20 the thirteenth to Shubael, his sons, and his brothers — 12

21 the fourteenth to Mattithiah, his sons, and his brothers — 12

22 the fifteenth to Jeremoth, his sons, and his brothers — 12

23 the sixteenth to Hananiah, his sons, and his brothers — 12

24 the seventeenth to Joshbekashah, his sons, and his brothers — 12

25 the eighteenth to Hanani, his sons, and his brothers — 12

26 the nineteenth to Mallothi, his sons, and his brothers — 12

27 the twentieth to Eliathah, his sons, and his brothers — 12

28 the twenty-first to Hothir, his sons, and his brothers — 12

29 the twenty-second to Giddalti, his sons, and his brothers — 12

30 the twenty-third to Mahazioth, his sons, and his brothers — 12

31 and the twenty-fourth to Romamti-ezer, his sons, and his brothers — 12.

The Levitical Gatekeepers

26 The following were the divisions of the gatekeepers:

From the Korahites: Meshelemiah son of Kore, one of the sons of •Asaph .
2 Meshelemiah had sons:
Zechariah the firstborn, Jediael the second,
Zebadiah the third, Jathniel the fourth,
3 Elam the fifth, Jehohanan the sixth,
and Eliehoenai the seventh.
4 Obed-edom also had sons:
Shemaiah the firstborn, Jehozabad the second,
Joah the third, Sachar the fourth,
Nethanel the fifth, 5 Ammiel the sixth,
Issachar the seventh, and Peullethai the eighth,
for God blessed him.
6 Also, to his son Shemaiah were born sons who ruled over their ancestral houses because they were strong, capable men.
7 Shemaiah's sons: Othni, Rephael, Obed, and Elzabad; his brothers Elihu and Semachiah were also capable men. 8 All of these were among the sons of Obed-edom with their sons and brothers; they were capable men with strength for the work — 62 from Obed-edom.
9 Meshelemiah also had sons and brothers who were capable men — 18.
10 Hosah, [a] from the Merarites, also had sons: Shimri the first (although he was not the firstborn, his father had appointed him as the first), 11 Hilkiah the second, Tebaliah the third, and Zechariah the fourth. The sons and brothers of Hosah were 13 in all.

12 These divisions of the gatekeepers, under their leading men, had duties for ministering in the LORD's temple, just as their brothers did. 13 They cast lots for each gate according to their ancestral houses, young and old alike. [b]

14 The lot for the east gate fell to Shelemiah. [c] They also cast lots for his son Zechariah, an insightful counselor, and his lot came out for the north gate. 15 Obed-edom's was the south gate, and his sons' lot was for the storehouses; 16 it was the west gate and the gate of Shallecheth on the ascending highway for Shuppim and Hosah.

There were guards stationed at every watch. 17 There were six Levites each day [d] on the east, four each day on the north, four each day on the south, and two pair at the storehouses. 18 As for the court on the west, there were four at the highway and two at the court. 19 Those were the divisions of the gatekeepers from the sons of the Korahites and Merarites.

The Levitical Treasurers and Other Officials 20 From the Levites, Ahijah was in charge of the treasuries of God's temple and the treasuries of what had been dedicated. [e] 21 From the sons of Ladan, who were the sons of the Gershonites through Ladan and were the heads of families belonging to Ladan the Gershonite: Jehieli. 22 The sons of Jehieli, Zetham and his brother Joel, were in charge of the treasuries of the LORD*'s temple.*

23 From the Amramites, the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites:
24 Shebuel, a descendant of Moses' son Gershom, was the officer in charge of the treasuries. 25 His relative through Eliezer: his son Rehabiah, his son Jeshaiah, his son Joram, his son Zichri, and his son Shelomith. [A] 26 This Shelomith [B] and his brothers were in charge of all the treasuries of what had been dedicated by King David, [f] by the heads of families who were the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, and by the army commanders. 27 They dedicated part of the plunder from their battles for the repair of the LORD's temple. 28 All that Samuel the seer, Saul son of Kish, Abner son of Ner, and Joab son of Zeruiah had dedicated, along with everything else that had been dedicated, were in the care of Shelomith [C] and his brothers.

29 From the Izrahites: Chenaniah and his sons had the outside duties [g] as officers and judges [h] over Israel. 30 From the Hebronites: Hashabiah [i] and his relatives, 1,700 capable men, had assigned duties in Israel west of the Jordan for all the work of the LORD and for the service of the king. 31 From the Hebronites: Jerijah [j] was the head of the Hebronites, according to the genealogical records of his ancestors. A search was made in the fortieth year of David's reign and strong, capable men were found among them at Jazer [k] in Gilead. 32 There were among Jerijah's relatives, 2,700 capable men who were heads of families. King David appointed them over the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh as overseers in every matter relating to God and the king. [l]

David's Secular Officials

27 This is the list of the Israelites, the heads of families, the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, and their officers who served the king in every matter to do with the divisions that were on rotated military duty each month throughout [A] the year. There were 24,000 in each division:

2 Jashobeam son of Zabdiel was in charge of the first division, [a] for the first month; 24,000 were in his division. 3 He was a descendant of Perez and chief of all the army commanders for the first month.
4 Dodai the Ahohite was in charge of the division for the second month, and Mikloth was the leader; 24,000 were in his division.
5 The third army commander, as chief for the third month, was Benaiah son of Jehoiada the priest; 24,000 were in his division. 6 This Benaiah was a mighty man among the Thirty and over the Thirty, and his son Ammizabad was in charge [b] of his division.
7 The fourth commander, for the fourth month, was Joab's brother Asahel, and his son Zebadiah was commander after him; 24,000 were in his division.
8 The fifth, for the fifth month, was the commander Shamhuth the Izrahite; 24,000 were in his division.
9 The sixth, for the sixth month, was Ira son of Ikkesh the Tekoite; 24,000 were in his division.
10 The seventh, for the seventh month, was Helez the Pelonite from the sons of Ephraim; 24,000 were in his division.
11 The eighth, for the eighth month, was Sibbecai the Hushathite, a Zerahite; 24,000 were in his division.
12 The ninth, for the ninth month, was Abiezer the Anathothite, a Benjaminite; 24,000 were in his division.
13 The tenth, for the tenth month, was Maharai the Netophathite, a Zerahite; 24,000 were in his division.
14 The eleventh, for the eleventh month, was Benaiah the Pirathonite from the sons of Ephraim; 24,000 were in his division.
15 The twelfth, for the twelfth month, was Heldai the Netophathite, of Othniel's family; [B] 24,000 were in his division.

16 The following were in charge of the tribes of Israel:
For the Reubenites, Eliezer son of Zichri was the chief official;
for the Simeonites, Shephatiah son of Maacah;

17 for the Levites, Hashabiah son of Kemuel; for Aaron, Zadok;
18 for Judah, Elihu, one of David's brothers; for Issachar, Omri son of Michael;
19 for Zebulun, Ishmaiah son of Obadiah;
for Naphtali, Jerimoth son of Azriel; 20 for the Ephraimites, Hoshea son of Azaziah;
for half the tribe of Manasseh, Joel son of Pedaiah; 21 for half the tribe of Manasseh in Gilead, Iddo son of Zechariah;
for Benjamin, Jaasiel son of Abner; 22 for Dan, Azarel son of Jeroham.
Those were the leaders of the tribes of Israel. [c]
23 David didn't count the men aged 20 or under, for the LORD had said He would make Israel as numerous as the stars of heaven. [d] 24 Joab son of Zeruiah began to count them, but he didn't complete it. There was wrath against Israel because of this census, [e] and the number was not entered in the Historical Record [f] of King David.

25 Azmaveth son of Adiel was in charge of the king's storehouses.
Jonathan son of Uzziah was in charge of the storehouses in the country, in the cities, in the villages, and in the fortresses.
26 Ezri son of Chelub was in charge of those who worked in the fields tilling the soil.
27 Shimei the Ramathite was in charge of the vineyards.
Zabdi the Shiphmite was in charge of the produce of the vineyards for the wine cellars.
28 Baal-hanan the Gederite was in charge of the olive and sycamore trees [g] in the Judean foothills. [C]
Joash was in charge of the stores of olive oil.
29 Shitrai the Sharonite was in charge of the herds that grazed in Sharon, [h] while Shaphat son of Adlai was in charge of the herds in the valleys.
30 Obil the Ishmaelite was in charge of the camels.
Jehdeiah the Meronothite was in charge of the donkeys.
31 Jaziz the Hagrite [i] was in charge of the flocks.
All these were officials in charge of King David's property.

32 David's uncle Jonathan was a counselor; he was a man of understanding and a scribe. Jehiel son of Hachmoni attended [D] the king's sons. [33] Ahithophel [j] was the king's counselor. Hushai [k] the Archite was the king's friend. [34] After Ahithophel came Jehoiada son of Benaiah, [l] then Abiathar. [m] Joab was the commander of the king's army. [n]

David Commissions Solomon to Build the Temple

28 David assembled all the leaders of Israel in Jerusalem: [a] the leaders of the tribes, the leaders of the divisions in the king's service, the commanders of thousands and the commanders of hundreds, and the officials in charge of all the property and cattle of the king and his sons, along with the court officials, the fighting men, [b] and all the brave warriors. 2 Then King David rose to his feet and said, "Listen to me, my brothers and my people. It was in my heart to build a house as a resting place for the ark of the LORD*'s covenant [c] and as a footstool [d] for our God. I had made preparations to build,* 3 but God said to me, 'You are not to build a house for My name because you are a man of war and have shed blood.' [e]

4 "Yet the LORD God of Israel chose me out of all my father's household [f] to be king over Israel forever. [g] For He chose Judah as leader, [h] and from the house of Judah, my father's household, and from my father's sons, [i] He was pleased to make me king over all Israel. 5 And out of all my sons [j] — for the LORD has given me many sons — He has chosen my son Solomon to sit on the throne of the LORD's kingdom over Israel. [k] 6 He said to me, [l] 'Your son Solomon is the one who is to build My house and My courts, for I have chosen him to be My son, and I will be his father. 7 I will establish his kingdom forever if he perseveres in keeping My commands and My ordinances as he is today.' [m]

8 "So now in the sight of all Israel, the assembly of the LORD, and in the hearing of our God, observe and follow all the commands of the LORD your God so that you may possess this good land and leave it as an inheritance to your descendants forever.

9 "As for you, Solomon my son, know the God of your father, and serve Him with a whole heart and a willing mind, [n] for the LORD searches every heart and understands the intention of every thought. [o] If you seek Him, He will be found by you, but if you forsake Him, He will reject you forever. [p] 10 Realize now that the LORD has chosen you to build a house for the sanctuary. Be strong, and do it." [q]

11 Then David gave his son Solomon the plans [r] for the portico [s] of the temple and its buildings, treasuries, upper rooms, inner rooms, and a room for the •mercy seat. [t] 12 The plans contained everything he had in mind [A,] [u] for the courts of the LORD's house, all the surrounding chambers, the treasuries [v] of God's house, and the treasuries for what is dedicated. 13 Also included were plans for the divisions of the priests and the Levites; all the work of service in the LORD's house; all the articles of service of the LORD's house; 14 the weight of gold for all the articles for every kind of service; the weight of all the silver articles for every kind of service; 15 the weight of the gold lampstands [w] and their gold lamps, including the weight of each lampstand and its lamps; the weight of each silver lampstand and its lamps, according to the service of each lampstand; 16 the weight of gold for each table for the rows of the •bread of the Presence and the silver for the silver tables; 17 the pure gold for the forks, sprinkling basins, and pitchers; the weight of each gold dish; the weight of each silver bowl; 18 the weight of refined gold for the altar of incense; [x] and the plans for the chariot of [B,] [y] the gold •cherubim that spread out their wings and cover the ark of the LORD's covenant. [z]

19 David concluded, "By the LORD's hand on me, He enabled me to understand everything in writing, all the details of the plan." [C]

20 Then David said to his son Solomon, "Be strong and courageous, [a] and do the work. Don't be afraid or discouraged, for the LORD God, my God, is with you. He won't leave you or forsake you [b] until all the work for the service of the LORD's house is finished. 21 Here are the divisions of the priests and the Levites for all the service of God's house. [c] Every willing man of any skill [d] will be at your disposal for the work, and the leaders and all the people are at your every command."

Contributions for Building the Temple

29 Then King David said to all the assembly, "My son Solomon — God has chosen him alone — is young and inexperienced. The task is great [a] because the temple will not be for man but for the LORD God. [b] 2 So to the best of my ability I've made provision for the house of my God: [c] gold for the gold articles, silver for the silver, bronze for the bronze, iron for the iron, and wood for the wood, as well as onyx, stones for mounting, [A] antimony, [d, e] stones of various colors, all kinds of precious stones, and a great quantity of marble. 3 Moreover, because of my delight in the house of my God, I now give my personal treasures of gold and silver for the house of my God over and above all that I've provided for the holy house: 4 100 tons [B, f] of gold (gold of Ophir [g] ) and 250 tons [C] of refined silver for overlaying the walls of the buildings, 5 the gold for the gold work and the silver for the silver, for all the work to be done by the craftsmen. Now who will volunteer to consecrate himself to the LORD today? "

6 Then the leaders of the households, the leaders of the tribes of Israel, the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, [h] and the officials in charge of the king's work [i] gave willingly. 7 For the service of God's house they gave 185 tons [D] of gold and 10,000 gold coins, [E, j] 375 tons [F] of silver, 675 tons [G] of bronze, and 4,000 tons [H] of iron. 8 Whoever had precious stones gave them to the treasury of the LORD's house under the care of Jehiel [k] the Gershonite. 9 Then the people rejoiced because of their leaders' willingness to give, for they had given to the LORD with a whole heart. [l] King David also rejoiced greatly.

David's Prayer

10 Then David praised the LORD in the sight of all the assembly. David said,

May You be praised, LORD God of our father Israel, from eternity to eternity. 11 Yours, LORD, is the greatness and the power and the glory and the splendor and the majesty, for everything in the heavens and on earth belongs to You. Yours, LORD, is the kingdom, and You are exalted as head over all. [m] 12 Riches and honor come from You, and You are the ruler of everything. [n] Power and might are in Your hand, and it is in Your hand to make great and to give strength to all. [o] 13 Now therefore, our God, we give You thanks and praise Your glorious name.

14 But who am I, and who are my people, that we should be able to give as generously as this? For everything comes from You, and we have given You only what comes from Your own hand. [I] 15 For we live before You as foreigners and temporary residents in Your presence as were all our ancestors. [p] Our days on earth are like a shadow, without hope. [q] 16 •Yahweh our God, all this wealth that we've provided for building You a house for Your holy name comes from Your hand; everything belongs to You. 17 I know, my God, that You test the heart [r] and that You are pleased with what is right. [s] I have willingly given all these things with an upright heart, and now I have seen Your people who are present [J] here giving joyfully and [K] willingly to You. 18 LORD God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, our ancestors, keep this desire forever in the thoughts of the hearts of Your people, and confirm their hearts toward You. 19 Give my son Solomon a whole heart to keep and to carry out all Your commands, Your decrees, and Your statutes, [t] and to build the temple for which I have made provision. [u]

20 Then David said to the whole assembly, "Praise the LORD your God." So the whole assembly praised the LORD God of their ancestors. [v] They bowed down and paid homage to the LORD and the king. [w]

21 The following day they offered sacrifices to the LORD and •burnt offerings to the LORD: 1,000 bulls, 1,000 rams, and 1,000 lambs, along with their •drink offerings, and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel. [x] 22 They ate and drank with great joy in the LORD's presence that day.

The Enthronement of Solomon

Then, for a second time, [y] they made David's son Solomon king; they anointed him [z] as the LORD's ruler, [a] and Zadok as the priest. 23 Solomon sat on the LORD's throne as king in place of his father David. He prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. [b] 24 All the leaders and the mighty men, and all of King David's sons as well, pledged their allegiance to King Solomon. 25 The LORD highly exalted Solomon in the sight of all Israel [c] and bestowed on him such royal majesty as had not been bestowed on any king over Israel before him. [d]

A Summary of David's Life

26 David son of Jesse was king over all Israel. [e] 27 The length of his reign over Israel was 40 years; he reigned in Hebron for seven years and in Jerusalem for 33. [f] 28 He died at a ripe old age, [g] full of days, [h] riches, and honor, and his son Solomon became king in his place. 29 As for the events of King David's reign, from beginning to end, note that they are written in the Events of Samuel the Seer, [i] the Events of Nathan the Prophet, [j] and the Events of Gad the Seer, [k] 30 along with all his reign, his might, and the incidents that affected him and Israel and all the kingdoms of the surrounding lands.

Introduction

Eleven of Jerusalem's gates and the only one that is sealed. This gate existed during the time of Jesus but would have been destroyed in A.D. 70. The gate in the photo was built around A.D. 640. This is called the Golden Gate and is situated on the eastern side of Jerusalem just below the Temple Mount. A Jewish tradition says that the Messiah will enter Jerusalem through this gate. The Chronicler gives considerable attention to the temple and reminds his readers of God's presence in Israel's history as symbolized by the temple.

The word Chronicles in Hebrew has the meaning of an ongoing account, almost like a journal or diary or minutes taken at a meeting. They are the first and second books of a four-book series that includes Ezra and Nehemiah. Together these four books provide a priestly history of Israel from the time of Adam to the rebuilding of the house of God and the walls of Jerusalem. At one time the book of Chronicles was probably one single scroll, which was divided later for convenience by those who translated the Old Testament into Greek (the Septuagint).

Circumstances of Writing Author: An ancient tradition ascribes the authorship of Chronicles to Ezra. The author must have lived some time after the return of the Jews to Israel from the Babylonian exile. He also had a strong interest in the reimplementation of the law and the temple, and he must have had access to historical records. All of these criteria suit Ezra, and this identification is corroborated by the fact that the last verses of Chronicles are the first verses of the book of Ezra. However, since the book does not explicitly claim Ezra for its author, in these notes we will refer to him simply as the "Chronicler."

Background: The books of 1 and 2 Chronicles include extensive genealogies from the time of Adam and take the reader up to the period of the nation's exile and restoration. First Chronicles gives us the genealogies and focuses on the reign of King David. Second Chronicles focuses on all the kings who followed David up to the exile and restoration. It covers the same time period as 1 and 2 Kings, but 2 Chronicles focuses exclusively on the kings of Judah. The content of the books necessitates that they were written sometime after the return from the exile, perhaps the middle of the fifth century B.C.

Message and Purpose Having resettled in Jerusalem after the exile, the people needed to reconnect with their identity as the people of God. Chronicles met this purpose by reminding them of their heritage and by directing them back to God's presence in their midst as symbolized by the temple. The important ideas that 1 and 2 Chronicles emphasize are: (1) a direct connection to God's people in the past; (2) the continuity of the line of David on the throne of Judah; (3) the centrality of the temple and its rituals in focusing on God; (4) the importance of music in worshiping God; (5) the invincibility of God's people when they obey Him; and (6) the inevitability of punishment when God's people disobey Him.

The books of 1 and 2 Chronicles convey several key themes. These include: God's control of history: God desires to dwell among His people in a perfect relationship of holiness in which He is God and the redeemed live as His people. The tabernacle and the temple symbolize that desire, a desire that was ultimately fulfilled through Jesus Christ—the Son of David. Chronicles shows how God worked from the time of Adam but particularly in the time of David through Ezra and Nehemiah to accomplish His desire to dwell in holiness with His people.

The covenant with David: God chose David and His lineage to build His house. The final ruler in this lineage is the Son of David—the Messiah. Solomon built the temple in Jerusalem, but it is Jesus who is building and shall build to completion God's true house. Christ is the One who will reign forever. His people are those of Israel and indeed of all nations who will put their trust in Him.

The holy God is to be worshiped properly: The two books of Chronicles show us that the God who dwells in holiness must be approached according to the law that God gave to Moses. David, in seeking to unite his people around the presence of God, learned that God must be sought in the proper way. Worship by way of the altar of sacrifice as ministered by the Levitical priesthood was important, and the place of the altar of sacrifice was to be in Jerusalem at the threshing floor of Ornan (Araunah). There David erected the altar and Solomon built the temple according to God's directions.

The house of God: The books of Chronicles intended to encourage God's people to work together with God and with one another to build God's house. The people were challenged through these books to go up to Jerusalem to build God's house. Chronicles reminds the people of God's history of faithfulness to His people and to His house. God promised that He would bless their obedience to this challenge.

Contribution to the Bible Chronicles brings together many dimensions of biblical revelation, such as historical events (as recounted in Genesis through Kings), temple ritual (as prescribed in Leviticus), sin and judgment (as preached by the prophets), and even some psalms. Because a recurring theme is that God will always accept people who return to Him no matter how wicked they may have been, it has been called, perhaps a little whimsically, "The Gospel According to Ezra." The books of 1 and 2 Chronicles give us the big picture of OT history, capturing the Davidic covenant in light of Israel's history back to Adam and pointing to the eternal continuation of that covenant through the reign of the Messiah.

Structure The Hebrew Bible divides its books into three categories: the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings. In this arrangement, the books of Samuel and Kings are counted among the Prophets, whereas Chronicles belongs to the Writings. This classification may be partially due to the fact that Chronicles repeats information, such as the genealogies of Genesis and the histories of the kings of Judah from the books of Samuel and Kings. Still the Chronicler uses this repeated content to support his own point, and he also adds a lot of information that we find in Chronicles alone. He limits his discussion of the various kings almost entirely to those of Judah, the southern kingdom.

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 Even though the Chronicler was specifically writing for the Jews of his day, he began with this brief reminder that all people are creatures who are descended from the first man, Adam. Seth represented the ongoing hope after failure (Gn 4:25).

1:2-4 The line of ancient patriarchs moves quickly from Adam to Noah. Each of the men in this line had a son comparatively early in life, but he lived for many centuries afterwards. Enoch never actually died but was taken to heaven (Gn 5:24). Methuselah lived the longest with a total age of 969 years; he died after 1,650 years had elapsed since the birth of Adam. This is also the exact year in which Noah’s flood occurred. Before going on with the main line of descent, the Chronicler frequently pursued a minor or alternative branch first, such as when he detailed the descendants of Japheth and Ham before returning to Shem.

1:5 Japheth's offspring moved to a more northern region than those of his brothers.

1:8-15 Many of Ham's sons lent their names to various nations, several of which became the chief opponents of Israel in the promised land.

1:17 The line of Shem was the most important one for the Chronicler because it includes Abraham.

1:18 Some scholars conjecture that Eber's name led to the name of the "Hebrews," but this inference is not certain.

1:19 The line of Shem divides with the brothers Peleg and Joktan. "Peleg" means "division." During his time the episode of the tower of Babel took place, and the entire human race was divided by the languages they spoke.

1:20 Again following a minor branch first, we read of the descendants of Joktan.

1:24-27 Here is a quick overview of the links between Shem and Abraham, based on the descendants of Peleg.

1:28 Although Isaac is mentioned in this verse, we are still a long way from the line that will eventually lead up to Judah. Ishmael and his sons come first.

1:32 Abraham spent an entire century waiting to have a single son with Sarah. Then, after Sarah's death, Keturah endowed him with many more sons.

1:34 Again Isaac is mentioned, along with Jacob, or Israel, but for the moment the Chronicler focuses on Esau, again an alternative branch.

1:35 We only have this list of names for Esau's sons and grandsons, but we know that this clan eventually led to the emergence of several large nations such as the Edomites.

1:38 Seir could be a proper name referring to an ancestor of the Edomites. It is also the name of a mountain in Edomite territory. The Edomites lived on the eastern side of the Jordan River in the vicinity of the Dead Sea. "Seirites" and "Meunites" are sometimes used as synonyms.

1:43-51 a Little is known about these kings . . . in the land of Edom. They apparently lived around the time of the judges in Israel.

1:51b-54 The chapter concludes with a list of Edom's chiefs. The book of 1 Chronicles has now covered several minor lines in contrast to its major purpose of leading up to the kings of Judah. We have seen alternatives to Shem (Ham and Japheth), to Abraham (Ishmael and the sons of Keturah), and to Isaac (Esau and the Edomites), now we are ready for the main line of interest, the descendants of Jacob.

2:1 The Chronicler initially lists the sons of Jacob (Israel) in birth order. Judah became the most prominent, although the oldest chronologically was Reuben, who forfeited the privilege of the firstborn (5:1-2).

2:2 As the first son of Jacob's favorite wife, Joseph could have carried the honors as the tribe of the firstborn, but his descendants are divided into the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh.

2:3 We see God's grace in action as He selects the line that would lead to the kings and ultimately to the Messiah. All three of Judah's first sons had a Canaanite mother.

2:4 After Judah's first two sons were killed, he had two more sons by his daughter-in-law Tamar, another Canaanite woman, who had disguised herself as a prostitute (Gn 38). These were Perez and Zerah.

2:5 Perez continues the main line through Hezron. Hamul's line is the secondary alternative.

2:6 Zerah's sons constitute another alternative. This does not mean that they were unimportant—they may be the wise men of 1Kg 4:31 and the musicians in the titles of Psalms 88 and 89—only that they were not ancestors of the line of kings.

2:7 Carmi must be a person of a later generation. He is mentioned only because he is the father of Achar, another bearer of scandal (aka Achan; Jos 7). Thus, the alternative branch goes: Zerah to Zabdi to Carmi to Achar.

2:9 Returning to the main line: Perez had Hezron (see note at v. 5). Now the line splits three ways based on Hezron's three sons: Jerahmeel, Ram, and Chelubai. Of these, Ram's line is the main one, and this time it gets mentioned first. Chelubai is another version of the name Caleb. There are many different men named Caleb in the list that follows.

2:10-12 Ram's line of descent connects through Boaz to Jesse, the father of David.

2:13-17 In this passage we are given the names of David's six older brothers and his two much older sisters Zeruiah and Abigail. These two were probably from an earlier marriage of David's father Jesse since according to 2Sm 17:25, their father was Nahash. So presumably Jesse married Nahash's widow. Zeruiah had three sons—Abishai, Joab, and Asahel—who were roughly David's age, and who would later become leaders in David's army. Abigail married an Ishmaelite named Jether and gave birth to Amasa, who would become the leader of Absalom's army against David. These four were David's half nephews.

2:18-24 We go back to Hezron, son of Perez, who left a sizeable number of descendants—one of them even after his own death. His son Caleb (called Chelubai in v. 9) also had a number of sons.

2:25 The third line of descent coming from Hezron, joining those of Ram and Caleb, is that of Jerahmeel. His son Ram was the nephew of Hezron's brother, Ram.

2:34-35 Sheshan had been mentioned in verse 31, the sixth generation descendant of Jerahmeel. He did not have a male heir, but a daughter named Ahlai. Jarha, his Egyptian servant, provided him with a grandson named Attai to carry on the family name.

2:36-41 The list of Jerahmeel's descendants continues from Attai onward.

2:42-55 We have already had a list of the descendants of Caleb (Chelubai), the son of Perez. This time the descendants mentioned are not individual people but the populations of towns that could trace themselves back to him in direct and indirect ways.

3:1 This chapter completes the line of Judah. We find the people who are most important for Chronicles: David and his descendants. David's sons are divided into two groups—those born in Hebron where David was king for seven years and those who were born in Jerusalem, David's capital for 33 years. This is a list of tragedy. Amnon, the firstborn, raped his sister Tamar and was eventually killed by Absalom (2Sm 13).

3:2 Absalom revolted against David and lost his life in the process (2Sm 15-18). Adonijah survived David's death, but then was killed in the struggle with Solomon over the throne (1Kg 1-2).

3:5 Bath-shua is more familiar to us as Bathsheba. Solomon carried the house of David forward.

3:10-16 These verses contain a quick overview of most of 2 Chronicles, the line of descendants of David who were kings of Judah. The significance is that David's descendants retained the throne.

3:17 The line continues after the Babylonian exile, even though there was not an official king of Judah from that point on.

3:19 Zerubbabel was the leader of the Jews when they returned from the exile. Under other circumstances, he would have been king. The list ends at a time that is perfectly matched for Ezra to have been the Chronicler.

4:1 In this verse the word sons refers loosely to "descendants," as happens frequently in biblical genealogies. Skipping several generations, the Chronicler emphasizes certain individuals in Judah's line. Adding to Perez and Hezron, he focuses on Carmi, Hur, and Shobal. Carmi may be the same person as the Carmi mentioned in 2:7.

4:4 Hur has already been mentioned in 2:20. As the father of Ephrathah (Bethlehem), he was an important ancestor.

4:5 Ashhur was mentioned earlier as the son who was born to Hezron posthumously.

4:9 We are not told in which way Jabez's brothers were dishonorable. He obviously took his walk with God seriously. Jabez also labored under the stigma of a name with negative connotations because it means pain. People often thought that having a negative name would produce negative consequences for the person's life.

4:10 Jabez prayed a personal prayer, asking God for His blessing. He wanted more land, he wanted God's hand to be with him, and he wanted God to keep him from harm, which also included that he did not want to bring harm to others. Nothing in this passage indicates that we should pray these same words, let alone that we should pray them as if they represented a formula for blessing, but Jabez's prayer is an example for us in its honesty and fervency.

4:13 Othniel was the first judge (Jdg 2), and he must have been significantly younger than his uncle Caleb.

4:15 This Caleb is the spy of Numbers 13 who, along with Joshua, trusted God.

4:17-18 Once again a Gentile is part of the line, this time a daughter of a Pharaoh named Bithiah.

4:21-23 Shelah was Judah's third son (2:3). His older brothers Er and Onan had been killed, and he should have become the husband of Tamar, but Judah prevented this (Gn 38:11-14). Shelah's descendants distinguished themselves as craftsmen.

4:24-37 Because Simeon was violent and cruel, his father Jacob predicted that his tribe would be dispersed in the land (Gn 49:7). At the time of the conquest, the tribe of Simeon received a territory that was adjacent to and intermingled with Judah. The parts that belonged to Simeon alone were mostly desert. As a consequence, Simeon became increasingly absorbed into Judah and Benjamin, and its identity faded. Despite numerous offspring, particularly from Shimei, the tribe as a whole remained undistinguished.

4:39-41 Some Simeonites retained their identity into the time of Hezekiah, when they took some fertile land from a group of Hamites. This accomplishment is particularly noteworthy since they went on this military adventure to acquire further pasture land while the Assyrians were rampaging throughout the country.

4:42-43 Another group of Simeonites distinguished themselves by an excursion to Mount Seir (Edom), where they finally eliminated the Amalekites who were hiding out in that area. The Amalekites had frequently caused trouble for Israel (Ex 17; Nm 14:45; Jdg 3:13). They had been brought close to extinction by King Saul (1Sm 15:1-35) and defeated by David (1Sm 30:17), though a few escaped. These Simeonites finally finished the job.

5:1-5 The tribes that settled on the eastern side of the Jordan River (Reuben, Gad, and half of Manasseh) asked for this land when Moses and the Israelites first came to the promised land. They received this territory after their men had helped Joshua conquer the land on the river's western side. The tribes are discussed in this chapter, going south to north. Reuben was located by the Dead Sea, a rough location that suited the status of Reuben. He lost his honor as the firstborn among the 12 sons of Jacob when he committed incest with Bilhah, one of Jacob's concubines and the mother of two of Reuben's brothers (Gn 35:25).

5:6 A quick and abbreviated genealogy of the tribe of Reuben leads us to Beerah, who had the bad fortune of being tribal leader when Tiglath-pileser, king of Assyria, carried the tribe into exile. The following Assyrian kings are important for the OT: Shalmaneser III (858-824 B.C.) is not mentioned in the Bible, but he fought against the northern kingdom of Israel and subjugated King Jehu. Tiglath-pileser III (744-727 B.C.) deported the tribes east of the Jordan River and conquered much of the northern kingdom. King Ahaz of Judah paid him tribute (2Ch 28:1-27). Shalmanezer V (726-722 B.C.) began the destruction of Israel's capital, Samaria (2Kg 17:6), which was completed by Sargon II (722-705 B.C.), who then deported the northern tribes. Sennacherib (704-681 B.C.) conquered Judah but was brought up short by God during the reign of Hezekiah when he attempted to vanquish Jerusalem (2Ch 32:1-23). Esar-haddon (681-669 B.C.) counted King Manasseh of Judah among his friends and supporters but then turned against him. Ashurbanipal (668-627 B.C.) was the last major king of Assyria. Maintaining his alliance with Judah, he was successful in subduing Egypt, but toward the end of his reign the balance of power shifted from Assyria to Babylon.

5:9-10 Reuben's earlier successes had allowed this tribe to stretch all the way to the Euphrates River and to defeat the Hagrites. These were the Ishmaelites, the descendants of Hagar.

5:11-17 The tribe of Gad was located north of Reuben. The Chronicler's frequent reference to other written documents such as genealogies and historical records indicates that biblical writers had at their disposal written sources, and their use of such sources of information underscores the nature of the Bible as both human writing and the inspired Word of God. Cp. 29:29-30; Nm 21:14; Lk 1:1-4.

5:18-22 The eastern tribes combined forces in a number of military victories, and they accumulated a large amount of plunder. A constant theme in Chronicles is that when people attempt to fight in their own strength, God will not bless them, but, when He fights the war, His people see miraculous victories beyond human expectation. Thus, when they cried out to God, He rewarded them.

5:23 There was no tribe of Joseph. Instead, Joseph's sons became the ancestors of two separate tribes, Ephraim and Manasseh. The tribe of Manasseh occupied territory on both sides of the Jordan River.

5:25 This is the first reference to idolatry in Chronicles. Even though this part of the tribe of Manasseh contained some outstanding people, they deviated from God and adopted the idolatry of the nations around them.

5:26 Tiglath-pileser was a cruel and vicious king of Assyria, but God used him to punish His people for their idolatry. Long before the other tribes were captured by Assyria, the three eastern tribes fell into the hands of the Assyrians and were carried off into exile. The Chronicler leaves no doubt that this happened because of their idolatry.

6:1 We now switch to Levi's tribe, the tribe of priests. These are important for the Chronicler because after the exile, the time at which he was writing, reestablishing the proper priesthood was crucial. Anyone who wanted to serve as a priest in the rebuilt temple had to have a clear genealogy within the tribe of Levi. Levi had three sons, Gershom, Kohath, and Merari. Each of these three lines performed distinctive duties in the worship of God (Nm 4:1-33). The most crucial line was the one that led to Aaron and, thus, to the priests. This is the line that stemmed from Levi's son Kohath. But not every descendant of Kohath got to be a priest—only those who could trace their lineage back to Aaron. Everyone else went into the larger pool of people who fulfilled general temple duties.

6:2 Most genealogies in Chronicles skip some links, and frequently the time that the Israelites spent in Egypt is either shortened or skipped altogether. This is the case here.

6:3-4 The descendants of Aaron who are mentioned here were priests. Nadab and Abihu lost their lives when they violated the sanctity of their duties (Lv 10:1-3), so Eleazar became Aaron's true successor, followed by Phinehas.

6:5-15 This list of priests is not complete. It does not mention Eli, the priest who raised Samuel (1Sm 1:3).

6:16-21 The second major list in this chapter includes Levites who were not of the priestly line.

6:22-30 We return to the descendants of Kohath. This list contains four men named Elkanah. The one mentioned in verse 27 is the father of Samuel since Samuel is mentioned in the next verse. In 1Sm 1:1 Elkanah is referred to as being from Ephraim, whereas here we see him as belonging to the tribe of Levi. That verse refers to the location where he and his family had lived for many generations since Levi did not have its own territory. Chronicles gives us the actual bloodline, which places him in one of the privileged lines of Levi.

6:31 The Chronicler emphasizes the presence of music in the temple, as it was instituted by David and revived in later years.

6:33-47 There are three main musicians: Heman (Ps 88), Asaph (Pss 50; 73-83), and Ethan (also called Jeduthun at times; Ps 89). These three men represent the three branches of the sons of Levi, coming from Kohath, Gershom, and Merari, respectively. Heman was a descendant of Kohath, but not through Aaron, so he was not eligible for the priesthood.

6:48-53 Emphasizing the distinction between the descendants of Aaron and the other branches derived from Levi, the Chronicler once more lists those who were priests, but states that everyone else was also engaged in the service of the tabernacle.

6:54 The Levites worked in the tabernacle and later the temple, but they did not all live clustered around the sacred location. One reason for this is that before the building of the temple, there was no restriction on where sacrifices could be performed. Furthermore, once there was a temple and the restriction was in place, it would not have been economically feasible. At the time of the conquest, they were allocated territories and cities scattered throughout the tribes.

6:55-61 The Kohathites got a share of the important city of Hebron. The main inheritor of this location was Caleb, and it would also serve later for a time as capital city under David's monarchy.

6:62-81 A noticeable feature of this long list is that the Levites were given dwelling space among the eastern tribes of Manasseh . . . Gad, and Reuben, as well as in the main territory on the west. Even though eventually this arrangement would remove them far from the temple, it also allowed them to be distributed throughout the land so they could teach all the people.

7:1-5 The tribe of Issachar is mentioned primarily for the number of soldiers it supplied and its meticulous genealogies.

7:6-12 The first of several listings for Benjamin emphasizes the number of soldiers in this tribe. This was the tribe to which Saul, the first king of the Hebrews, belonged.

7:13 Naphtali is mentioned in only one short verse. Apparently his genealogy was not important in the Chronicler's day because after the exile there seems to be no large contingent from Naphtali among those who returned to Judah (9:3).

7:14 Manasseh's wife was Aramean, thus another Gentile was included in the lines of descent.

7:15 Zelophehad and his daughters made an important contribution to the culture of Israel. In Nm 27:1-6, Zelophehad's five daughters asked Moses to give them their inheritance in the land, and Moses granted their request. This event set a precedent that women could inherit property, something that most surrounding cultures did not allow.

7:20-29 Ephraim was one of the leading tribes, a consistent rival to Judah. When the kingdom split, Ephraim was foremost among the 10 northern tribes so that "Ephraim" is often synonymous with the entire northern kingdom. The deaths of Ezer and Elead must have happened while the Israelites were in Egypt, so that these men had ventured north to Gaza. But the Chronicler often does not mention that geographical and historical setting, even though he was clearly aware of it (2Ch 9:28). Several of the towns inhabited by the Ephraimites, such as Beth-shean and Megiddo, were important because they were heavily fortified.

7:30-40 Asher's tribe, located in the north on the coast, was of secondary importance. However, a descendant of Asher—the prophetess Anna—praised God in the temple for the birth of Jesus.

8:1-2 A second listing for the tribe of Benjamin provides more detail than the first list (7:6-12). This chapter leads up to the tragic end of Saul's kingship (chap. 10). Saul was from Benjamin, but the throne had been promised to Judah (Gn 49:10). Benjamin, the twelfth son of Jacob, had five sons who established their own large clans.

8:5 Gera was the father of Ehud, the left-handed judge who killed Eglon, king of the Amalekites (Jdg 3:15).

8:8-9 Shaharaim had at least three wives: Hushim and Baara—who presumably were Israelites—and Hodesh, who was a Moabite.

8:32 Not until David's reign as king did Jerusalem belong entirely to Israel. At the time referred to here, Benjaminites were living around Jerusalem, but the highest fortified part of the city was home to the Jebusites.

8:33 At this point the Chronicler casually mentions Saul, but without calling any special attention to him. Esh-baal (Ishbosheth) was Saul's son and a younger brother of Jonathan. In 2 Samuel 2-3 we find Esh-baal attempting to continue Saul's monarchy against David's claim. Joab eliminated virtually the entire clan.

8:34 Merib-baal (Mephibosheth), Jonathan's crippled son, was the only one who escaped the purge. Saul's line eventually did make a comeback. The tribe of Benjamin became strongly allied with David's and Solomon's unified kingdom and then with the kingdom of Judah. Jerusalem, the eventual capital, was located at the border of Judah and Benjamin.

9:1 Accurate genealogies were essential because so much was dependent on a person's tribal affiliation (Ezr 2:62). The northern kingdom of Israel was deported in 722 B.C. by the Assyrians. Judah went into exile in several stages, with the final deportation carried out by the Babylonians in 587 B.C. However, the exiles from Judah were allowed to return to their homeland approximately 40 years later.

9:2 The decree to return, issued by Cyrus of Persia, directed that they should rebuild the temple (2Ch 36:23). It was natural that most of these people would be directly associated with the temple: priests, Levites, and temple servants.

9:3 Among those returning to Judah were also some people of the northern tribes, including Ephraim and Manasseh. Not everyone from the so-called 10 lost tribes was "lost." Still, the subsequent passage does not list anyone from the northern tribes by name.

9:4 The descendants of Perez listed here could be related to the royal line, but there was no more kingdom.

9:7 A large contingent of those returning to Judah were members of the tribe of Benjamin. This tribe had remained loyal to the southern kingdom of Judah, and they escaped the earlier deportation by Assyria and profited from the edict to return to their homeland.

9:10-13 The list of priests is significant. This listing indicates the accurate continuation of the genealogies and shows that the priests must have maintained their knowledge so they could take up their duties as soon as they returned to Judah.

9:14-16 The Levites were also ready to take up their duties again.

9:17-18 Shallum was a veteran, having been in charge of a gate some 40 years earlier before the temple's destruction. Now he led the entire crew of gatekeepers.

9:19 Because of the makeshift nature of the rebuilt temple, its first appearance was not all that different from the tabernacle (cp. v. 23). Without the surrounding courtyards, guarding the entrance was similar to guarding the thresholds of the tent, a duty with a long and proud tradition.

Mount Gilboa where Saul and his sons Jonathan, Abinadab, and Malchishua died at the hands of the Philistines.

9:22 We get a brief glimpse here of Samuel as administrator of the tabernacle, setting a precedent that was resumed by David. The idea that guard duty was distributed among people from all over the country must have promoted a feeling of ownership among all Israelites.

9:28 The temple performed many functions, including many different types of sacrifices, all of which required utensils. Trustworthy people were needed to look after the utensils and other equipment.

9:30 A priest could not perform official religious duties until he turned 30 years old. The sons of many priests, while learning their profession, would also be involved in mixing the spices used in the sacrificial system.

9:31 This Shallum was the veteran gatekeeper (vv. 17-18).

9:33 The singers were expected to be ready at a moment's notice whenever a ceremony or sacrifice called for musical accompaniment.

9:35-44 The genealogy of Benjamin in these verses is the same as that in 8:29-38. In chapter 8 the emphasis was on their residence in Jerusalem (8:28,32); here the genealogy sets up the story of Saul in chapter 10.

10:1 Without going into any of the details leading up to this event, the Chronicler takes us right to the death of Saul and his sons. The Philistines had come upon Saul's army from the north, trapping Saul's men on Mount Gilboa and killing those who could not escape.

10:2 Jonathan and his two brothers were able warriors, but they could not hold out once the Israelite army had fled.

10:3 Because the battle was going so well for the Philistines, the archers were in the middle of the fight and were able to deal Saul a mortal blow.

10:4-5 Saul knew the Philistines would torture him, but this did not give him the right to take his own life, let alone to ask his armor-bearer to do it for him. Only when the boy refused did Saul kill himself, and then his armor-bearer also committed suicide.

10:6 Not every member of Saul's house died at that time, but the family unit, in the sense of Saul's dynasty (his whole house), came to a halt.

10:7 Having defeated Saul's army, the Philistines moved into the abandoned houses of the nearby villages, enjoying a false sense of security. They did not realize that David and his followers were already on their way.

10:9 The Philistines were more than willing to be a part of the celebration. They sent messengers out not only to inform the people but also to tell their idols about what had transpired. The irony of idolatry is that people entrust their lives to that which has no power. This is thoroughly satirized in Isaiah 44 and Jeremiah 10.

10:10 Saul's armor—perhaps the very armor that David once refused to wear in his confrontation with Goliath—became decoration pieces in the Philistines' temples. A special place was reserved for Saul's skull in the temple of their main god, Dagon.

10:11-12 The inhabitants of Jabesh-gilead owed their lives to Saul (1Sm 11). Now they risked their lives to protect Saul's body from further desecration.

10:13 Saul was not as evil as many of the idolatrous kings who came after him, but a king who outwardly followed God but inwardly went his own way was worse than a king who did not make any pretense of following God. Saul's apparent piety combined with his blatant disobedience (1Sm 13:7-14; 15:1-9) was unacceptable to God and served as a destructive example for onlookers.

10:14 Saul did make a show of inquiring of the Lord (1Sm 28:6), but this was purely fortune telling; he dashed off immediately to speak to the now-departed Samuel. Not even the king was allowed to treat God as though He were a daily horoscope. The Chronicler also reminds us that it was God who led things in this direction and that the goal was for David to be placed on the throne.

11:1-2 The Chronicler skips over a lengthy series of events and takes us directly to the time of David's coronation. David was not accepted immediately as king of Israel by everyone. He had opposition from Jonathan's surviving brother Esh-baal, and it took warfare and bloodshed before David emerged as the undisputed victor (2Sm 1-2). Thus, this peaceful assertion by all Israel of blood relationship with David and his entitlement to the throne was as pragmatic as it was firm. The people even quoted the Lord's approval of David, even though some of them had fought against him not too long ago.

11:3 David's initial coronation took place at Hebron, a city from which he ruled for seven years.

11:4-9 The last stronghold of the Canaanites in the promised land was the citadel of Jebus at the peak of Jerusalem. This was considered virtually impregnable. Despite the defiance declared by the Jebusites, David motivated his troops to capture this prize, and his half nephew Joab succeeded. He used the water shaft to gain entry into the compound (2Sm 5:8). Joab was rewarded by being designated chief commander of David's army, an office that he had held de facto all along. David moved the capital from Hebron to Jerusalem.

11:10-47 The list of David's major warriors and heroes covers both individual exploits and victories of larger armies. It covers several decades, from the time that David was fleeing Saul until the end of David's 40-year reign. Not everyone on this list was around all that time. For example, Asahel was killed in the civil war against Esh-baal (2Sm 2:23), and Uriah the Hittite was sent to his death by David (2Sm 11:17). For this reason the list of the Thirty (v. 11) actually includes more than 30 people. It is best to think of "the Thirty" as an elite company of warriors, the number of which was not fixed at thirty. See note at verse 47.

11:11-14 Other English Bible versions set apart a special group of "Three" in addition to the Thirty, but the manuscripts in the original language do not support this distinction. Chronicles mentions only two men in the supposed group of "Three." A parallel list in 2 Samuel 23 adds a man named Shammah.

11:15-19 This anecdote illustrates the respect that David had for his heroes. When David complained of thirst, three of his men risked their lives to break through the Philistine camp and make off with some water from the city of Bethlehem for the king. But David refused to drink it. He poured it to the ground as an offering to God, stating that if he drank it, it would be as though he were drinking the blood of these three heroes.

11:20-21 It may seem a little confusing that Abishai, Joab's brother, was the commander of the Three but was not actually one of them. Again, the manuscripts allow for greater flexibility in the translation. He may have been a commander of the "Thirty," but not a part of the most distinguished "Three." It also makes sense that the person in charge of an elite outfit would not necessarily be a participant in the mission of the group. Much the same occurs in modern militaries.

11:22-25 Another commander was Benaiah, whom David put in charge of his bodyguard. Benaiah's exploits included the killing of a giant. Victories over giants are mentioned several times in Chronicles (see 20:5 and note there), though the story of David and Goliath occurs only in 1 Samuel 17.

11:26 Asahel, brother of Joab and Abishai and half nephew of David, was also counted among the "Thirty." But he lost his life early on in the civil war against Esh-baal's supporters (2Sm 2:23).

11:34 Several sets of brothers are included in this list. We don't know how many sons of Hashem there were, but pairs of brothers are mentioned in verses 44, 45, and 46.

11:42 We see how flexible the designation of the "Thirty" was because Adina from Reuben was a part of this group, together with his own 30 supporters.

11:47 Assuming that there were only two sons of Hashem (and not counting Adina's 30 followers), the list adds up to 45 people, quite an expansive interpretation of the "Thirty." However, this is a problem only if one mistakenly takes approximations or figures of speech as exact numbers. A baseball team is called "nine," but the roster consists of 25 people, and that number would be higher still if it listed all who had been on the team over a 40-year period.

12:1 This chapter covers a long time span, encompassing the years from David's early days hiding from Saul in the desert to his coronation in Hebron. People were coming to him on their own, knowing that he would supersede the house of Saul. At the beginning of this chapter, Saul was still king. No one would have thought about Esh-baal's attempt to succeed his father because Jonathan was the obvious heir to the throne.

12:2-7 These ambidextrous archers and experts with the sling were some of Saul's own relatives from Benjamin who were already distancing themselves from him. David not only accumulated a sizeable number of supporters, but many of them were excellent warriors.

12:8-15 A group of hardened desert warriors from the tribe of Gad crossed the Jordan River to join David. They had the physical attributes and equipment necessary for being effective soldiers, and they were willing to endure hardship to join the effort.

12:16-18 David was not ready to trust all of these people, particularly those from the tribe of Benjamin. When he warned them of the dangers of betrayal, Amasai, the leader, confirmed his commitment under the inspiration of God. The Chronicler wants us to recognize divine guidance in David's cause.

12:19-22 Men from as far away as Manasseh signed up to support David. The Philistines balked at having David and his men fighting among them against Israel, fearing that David would suddenly turn on them and side with Saul.

12:23-38 Shifting now to the time of David's coronation at Hebron, an army totaling more than 300,000 gathered to follow David's command.

12:26-28 Not only did the Levites allow themselves to be conscripted, but even Zadok—soon to assume duty as high priest—let himself be counted.

12:29-30 The Benjaminites finally pledged their support to David. This was a great change of heart for them. Even though there had been some supporters from Benjamin early on (v. 16), at this point the entire tribe of Benjamin became loyal to David, though the number of their soldiers at 3,000 was still the smallest of the tribes.

12:32 The Chronicler specifically mentions the tribe of Issachar. He declares that they understood the times, showing their conviction that David should be made king over all Israel. A total of 200 chiefs would have been in charge of a large number of soldiers.

12:37 The enrollment of tribes from the eastern side of the Jordan River—Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh—underscores the unity of this army.

12:38-40 These warriors were official representatives of their tribes. The times were not yet prosperous, so David could not feed all of them. They brought their own food, provided by relatives, and others sent caravans of provisions from as far away as the most northern tribes.

13:1 David consulted with all his leaders, but not the Levites, who could have kept him from the mistake he was about to make.

13:5-8 At this point the ark was at Kiriath-jearim, a town north of Jerusalem. It had rested there for several decades after it had been returned by the Philistines. Seventy men of the town of Beth-shemesh had been killed when they looked inside it (1Sm 6:19). Since that time the ark had been largely ignored. Abinadab, the owner of the property on which the ark had settled, had prospered because of its presence (1Sm 7:1). In their eagerness to move the ark to Jerusalem, David's officials made sure that the procession was as grandiose as possible. They got a new cart, the best of oxen, and undoubtedly two of the most experienced oxen drivers in the area. With much pomp and circumstance, accompanied by an impressive band, the procession set out in high spirits.

13:9 Uzzah, fearing that the ark might slide off the cart, reached out to hold it steady.

13:10 Good intentions aside, Uzzah was violating the sacredness of the ark by touching an object that the Lord had declared untouchable. Lest there be any doubt about it, the Chronicler insists that it was the Lord who struck Uzzah dead.

13:11-12 David was angry that the Lord had interfered with his plans for giving the ark such triumphal treatment. Then his anger turned to fear. The display of the holiness and power of God made David doubt whether he was able or worthy to bring the ark to his city.

13:13-14 While David pondered what to do, the ark of God was parked at the home of Obed-edom. Obed-edom's family—just as Abinadab's in Kiriath-jearim had done—enjoyed special blessings from the Lord because they were hosting the ark.

14:1 King Hiram of Tyre is a consistent presence throughout the reigns of David and Solomon. Even if he worshiped the Phoenician gods outwardly, inwardly he worshiped nothing as fervently as profit and material wealth. He initiated a possible sale of building materials to David for a huge palace.

14:2 David saw this international recognition as confirmation from the Lord that his kingdom was approved by God.

14:3-7 The Chronicler lists further wives whom David acquired after his capital was moved to Jerusalem. First Chronicles does not recount his adulterous affair with Bathsheba, and Bathsheba is not invoked by name here, though she had been mentioned earlier (3:5), and her children are included in this list.

14:8 The Philistines had been held in check by David, but they still lived in Israelite territory, trying to maintain their power. When it became clear to them that David's kingdom was growing stronger, they joined forces to wage war against Israel. David marched out with his army for a direct confrontation.

14:9 The Valley of Rephaim, just south of Jerusalem, was a natural path up to the capital city, but it was also an easy place for an army to get locked in.

14:10-11 David must have learned his lesson from the disasters that beset Saul. He made sure that it was the Lord's will to battle the Philistines in a direct attack. The Lord gave him permission, and David caught the Philistines unawares.

14:12 The Philistines were routed so thoroughly that they left their idols on the battlefield. Many ancient kings would have picked up these idols and either desecrated them or tried to gain some spiritual strength from them. David did not play any such spiritual games; he ordered that they be burned.

14:13-16 The Philistines must have thought that attacking through the same valley was the last thing anyone would expect, but if they were caught again they would be ready. This time the Lord commanded David to use a different strategy—to come from behind. God would give David a signal when it was time to attack. By following God's orders exactly, he eliminated the threat of the Philistines for a long time to come.

14:17 At this time Mesopotamia and Egypt were suffering from internal struggles. The Phoenicians were more interested in growth by trade than by military might. The Philistines had been put in their place; even though they were not eliminated, they were in no position to reestablish their military strength. David's kingdom was the strongest empire of the day. For the time being threats would not come from the traditional superpowers but from his neighbors who were trying to take advantage of the political vacuum.

15:1-3 Three months elapsed between the time of David's first attempt to move the ark and this renewed effort. The king prepared a tent in Jerusalem as its official resting place. He followed the instructions given to him by the Levites on how the ark should be carried. Numbers 4:15 states that the ark should be carried only by Levites, and only by two long poles inserted through rings in the ark. These poles should rest on the shoulders of the transporting Levites (1Ch 14:15).

15:11 The last-minute council of the leaders among the Levites and priests included two priests, Zadok and Abiathar. The official tabernacle stood at Gibeon, with Zadok working as priest there, even though the ark had not been there for about a hundred years. Because David had no regular access to the tabernacle during Saul's reign, a Kohathite named Abiathar had become David's personal friend and priest (1Sm 22).

15:16-22 David also put the Levites in charge of the music, playing various musical instruments. The three main musicians—Heman . . . Asaph, and Ethan—took charge. Among the secondary musicians were Obed-edom, the last host of the ark, who would soon become one of the official gatekeepers.

15:23-24 The list flows on, from those who were a part of the procession to the organization that would be implemented after the ark arrived in Jerusalem. Berechiah . . . Elkanah . . . Obed-edom, and Jehiah would become gatekeepers, and permanent trumpet players would also be designated.

15:26 When the ark reached Jerusalem, the Levites performed a sacrifice consisting of seven bulls and seven rams. This number would be eclipsed by the huge sacrifices of Solomon a generation later, and it was echoed much later when King Hezekiah reopened the temple (2Ch 29:21).

15:27-29 When Michal, David's first wife, saw the king dancing before the ark in public (v. 25), she despised him in her heart. This moment finalized their estrangement. Of all David's wives, Michal never bore him any children.

16:1 This tent was a special place for the ark where priests could offer sacrifices. The company offered burnt offerings, signifying total commitment to the Lord, and fellowship offerings, indicating the covenant between God and His people.

16:2-3 David's coronation banquet had been a carryin dinner, but now when David blessed the people and sent them home, each person received a small packet of food.

16:4-6 The site of the ark was not the main place for worship, which continued to be the tabernacle in Gibeon. As a symbol of the presence of God in their midst, the ark needed to be surrounded by people who praised the Lord.

David appointed permanent musicians for this task. This group included Asaph on the cymbals, a string ensemble featuring Obed-edom, and the trumpeting priests Benaiah and Jahaziel.

16:7 Music had probably been a part of Israelite culture and worship for some time, but David made it an integral part of worship before the ark and at the tabernacle. In Jerusalem, he instructed Asaph to lead in thanksgiving songs, and he composed a psalm for the occasion. It had three parts that were later incorporated into the book of Psalms. Verses 8 through 22 constitute Ps 105:1-15; verses 23-33 are Ps 96:1-13; and verses 34-36 are Ps 106:1,47-48. The entire psalm as represented in 1 Chronicles comprises four segments exhorting the people to praise God, interspersed with three segments describing God's faithfulness, glory, and creatorship.

16:8-13 The first exhortation to praise is a call to remember what God had done and to proclaim His deeds. In the Bible the praise of God often involves recalling and proclaiming what God has done in the past.

16:14-22 The first intermediate segment of David's psalm is a reminder of God's covenant with Abraham and how God had kept the covenant by bringing His people into the promised land.

16:23-24 These verses repeat Israel's obligation to praise God. They add the dimension that this praise should be done among the nations. The people who had not directly experienced God's guidance would learn about it from the Israelites.

16:25-27 This second segment describes the difference between God and idols. Because idols are man-made they do not have the power and majesty of the LORD .

16:28-30a To ascribe something to someone is to acknowledge they have that attribute. This exhortation to praise connects praising God with worshiping Him with offerings. Just as praise of God is connected with His works, praise from the worshiper is connected with active service.

16 : 30b - 33 In this segment of the psalm, the power of God is recognized by the firmness of the world, the witness of the heavens, the proclamation of the sea, and the shouts of joy of the trees. The created order gives testimony to the Creator's glory.

16:34-36 The fourth and final exhortation to praise combines another reminder of God's glory with the need to rely on the Lord for salvation.

16:37-42 The Chronicler once more focuses on the service at the ark in Jerusalem and the service at the tabernacle in Gibeon. The ambiguity caused by having two sacred sites shows that a temple that unified worship was badly needed. Zadok, with the assistance of the musicians Heman and Jeduthun

(Ethan), continued the sacrifices that were commanded by the law at the tabernacle. Just as David had instituted a more consistent regimen surrounding the ark, he ordered similar provisions for the tabernacle.

17:1-2 Both David and Nathan the prophet were committed to the idea of building a temple. David felt that he was shortchanging the ark of the covenant by housing it in a tent. Nathan, who knew David's motives were pure, had no reason at this point to think that David should not proceed with his plans to build a temple.

17:3-14 God's message to David by way of Nathan about the temple was positive because that is how David took it. Eventually there would be a temple because God had promised Moses a central place of worship, which would become the exclusive place for sacrifices (Dt 12:5-7). David would not be allowed to build this house for God to dwell in, but God would give the king a far greater promise. The Lord declared that he would build David's house—a dynasty, a succession of kings that would last many generations (vv. 10-12). One of his sons would become the next king and would be the one to build the temple, and he would also continue the lineage of David for all eternity.

17:16 David understood the promise that his son would build the temple, even if he himself was not allowed to, as a positive affirmation from God.

17:21 In the fashion of biblical praise (16:8-36), David praised the Lord by referring to what He had done.

17:23-26 It may seem odd that David repeated what God had promised as though it were a petition directed to God, but there were three important points in this last half of David's prayer. First, he showed submission to what the Lord had planned for him. Second, he showed God that what he desired was whatever God wanted for him. Third, David tells us that it is never wrong to express our thoughts and desires to the Lord. Whether we are joyfully accepting what God has already said or struggling with trying to accept something He is making clear to us, God always knows what is on our hearts. We have the privilege of voicing our thoughts and feelings to Him.

17:27 The chapter ends with David's affirmation that God's blessing is irrevocable.

18:1 This chapter summarizes a number of military victories by David and the spoils that he collected. He defeated the Philistines, this time not by repelling their attack, but by taking control of one of the five principal cities and its outlying villages.

18:2 The same thing happened with the Moabites. Conquered by David, they contributed to his growing treasury.

18:3 The Arameans were a confederation of various kingdoms east of the Jordan River, ranging all the way from Damascus to the banks of the Euphrates River. Hadadezer of Zobah ruled over one of the most easterly regions. By taking over his territory at the Euphrates and by controlling Philistine territory to the south, David fulfilled the promise God had given to Abraham—that his descendants would eventually occupy the land all the way from the Euphrates River to the Brook of Egypt (Gn 15:8).

18:4 Today's readers may find the cutting of the tendons (hamstrung) of thousands of horses objectionable, but in David's time this was a standard method of crippling an enemy force. Without their horses, the soldiers were rendered immobile. The alternative to hamstringing the horses would have been to kill rather than immobilize the soldiers.

18:5-8 The Arameans of Damascus attempted to come to the rescue of Hadadezer, but this move led them into subjection by David. Now the rich trade city of Damascus belonged to the king. Even though he would never build the temple, David accumulated much of the materials for the building and for the utensils during his lifetime. The bronze objects mentioned here would be put to use by Solomon later on.

18:9-10 King Tou of Hamath decided that diplomacy was a better option than warfare. Because he had been at odds with Hadadezer, he considered the enemy of his enemy to be his ally, but he still needed to pay a tribute of numerous objects of precious metal.

18:11 David did not add all of these things to his personal wealth, but he placed them into a treasury that was dedicated . . . to the LORD. Later on, much of it would go into the building of the temple.

18:12-13 Abishai was Joab's brother and a general in his army. Abishai represented David in a campaign against the Edomites, and 18,000 enemy warriors were killed. Even though Abishai was the leader of the battle, David was the king, so this section reiterates David's unbroken record of victories.

18:14 A glorious time is depicted in this short verse. David looked after his people by making sure that justice and righteousness prevailed for everyone. No greater compliment can be paid to any ruler.

18:15-16 A quick overview of the most important people surrounding David starts with Joab, still his commander-in-chief. Jehoshaphat, the court historian, and Shavsha, the court secretary, kept records of what happened in the palace. There were still two high priests, Zadok and Ahimelech (who replaced his father Abiathar), because there were still two main places of worship.

18:17 The Cherethites and the Pelethites, who reported to Benaiah, apparently were Philistine groups who were loyal to David and who may have been his bodyguards (cp. 11:24-25). Why would David have Philistines as bodyguards? You don't need bodyguards against open, obvious enemies; you need bodyguards against people who work their way into the king's presence to carry out an assassination. Thus, bodyguards of a different ethnic origin were well-suited for this task.

19:1-2 King Nahash of the Ammonites was a consistent presence in the time of Saul and David. Unless this is a successor with the same name, it was he who had first given Saul the occasion to rise to the responsibilities of being king of Israel. He had besieged the town of Jabesh-gilead and agreed to a truce with the citizens of this village on the condition that he could gouge out each person's eye (1Sm 11:2). This threat had enabled Saul to rally the Israelites in a united war against the Ammonites, in which he roundly defeated them. The Bible does not disclose the details of the occasion when Nahash had treated David kindly, but when Nahash died, David sent a delegation to the new king Hanun to express his condolences.

19:3-4 Hanun's advisers persuaded him that David's ambassadors were spies looking for a way to conquer the Ammonites. Hanun gave the order that David's delegates should be humiliated and sent home. The Chronicler does not indicate why Hanun thought he could get away with this rash act.

19:5-7 The humiliated men did not return directly to David. Instead they hid in shame in Jericho, where David told them to stay. It then dawned on the Ammonites that they had made a serious mistake. Still, rather than making amends, they gathered a large army to ward off David's inevitable retribution. Hanun mobilized various people who were friendly to him and acquired a huge mercenary force of Arameans, complete with many chariots. With this impressive force, the Ammonites thought they were ready to go against the Israelite army.

19:8-9 David delegated the responsibility for taking on the Ammonites to Joab as his commander in chief. By the time Joab arrived on the field and took stock of the situation, he found himself wedged between the Ammonites, who had their backs protected by the walls of the town of Medeba, and their Aramean allies on the other side. Israel's defeat seemed inevitable.

19:10-13 Joab decided to have his army fight on two fronts at the same time. He took command of one front against the Arameans and let his brother Abishai lead the other front against the Ammonites. They pledged that if either one ran into trouble, the other would come to his aid. If Joab had any anxiety, he did not show it as he encouraged his brother and expressed reliance on the Lord.

19:14-15 Apparently the Arameans had not expected this aggressive response from Joab and his brother. When they saw the Israelite army advancing, they turned and fled. This was enough for the Ammonites to lose heart as well. When they saw the Arameans fleeing, they barricaded themselves behind the walls of Medeba.

19:16 Now it was the Arameans' turn to make an error in judgment. Even though they had already been defeated once by David, they decided to take advantage of the situation and turn back on David's forces. While Joab returned victoriously to Jerusalem (v. 15), the Arameans made another alliance, this time with their kinsman all the way on the eastern side of the Euphrates River, in order to take revenge against David.

19:17-18 This time David himself took charge of the Israelite army. With an even greater force than before, he defeated the combined Aramean army.

19:19 Being defeated by David was nothing new to Hadadezer (see 18:3 and note there). Twice now, this king's attempts to establish superiority among the Arameans had been thwarted by David. Regardless of their king's ambitions, his subjects had seen enough. They submitted to David—and blamed it all on the Ammonites.

20:1 The ideal time to march out to war in ancient times was the spring because the ground is not too wet or muddy, and the weather is not too cold or hot for soldiers to exert themselves. In addition, for food the army could plunder crops growing in the invaded territory. Joab, once again in command, crossed into the territory of Ammon to finish the job started the previous year when the Ammonites had retreated. He traveled to the town of Rabbah and laid siege to this capital of the Ammonites. David did not accompany his troops, but he remained in Jerusalem. This is the time when David had his affair with Bathsheba, and this is the military campaign in which he sent her husband, Uriah, to his death (2Sm 11:2-12:25). The Chronicler omits this entire episode.

20:2-3 After Joab had destroyed the city, David was crowned with the Ammonites' crown. His men carried away anything of value. Then he may have commanded the inhabitants of the city to destroy their own buildings. To have them destroy their houses, which could be rebuilt, was an effective way to keep them under control without taking their lives or carrying them into slavery.

20:4 Further conflict with the Philistines was inevitable. The occasions mentioned here may have happened over a longer period of time; they are brought together here by the Chronicler to report on the various Philistine giants. The first giant mentioned was Sippai, referred to as a descendant of the giants. The Hebrew word is rephaim , which refers to a race of giants, of whom we know nothing more than that they were larger than normal men. Apparently the rephaim had left a genetic heritage, even though the last pure member of their race was Og, king of Bashan, whose bed was 13 feet long and six feet wide (Dt 3:11). Earlier in 1 Chronicles we learned of an Egyptian giant who was killed by Benaiah (11:23). In the case of Sippai, his killer was Sibbecai the Hushathite.

20:5 Goliath had a brother named Lahmi, who may have been as tall as Goliath (1Sm 17:4). He was killed by Elhanan son of Jair, who is not mentioned anywhere else in the Bible.

20:6-7 Another giant, whose name is not given, copied Goliath by taunting Israel. In addition to his extraordinary stature, he had an extra finger and toe on each hand and foot. This time the killing of a giant remained in David's family when his nephew Jonathan took care of the matter.

20:8 The elimination of giants is an important aspect of how David finally took possession of the entire promised land. Assuming the spies were giving an accurate report rather than an exaggerated report born of fear and faithlessness, giants were spotted in the promised land. This report initially deterred the Israelites from invading Canaan (Nm 13:33-14:9). Those giants would have been Anakites, descended from the Nephilim who were destroyed in Noah's flood (Gn 6:4) but whose genes must have been carried recessively by Noah's son Ham or his wife, among the eight survivors of the flood. About 40 years after the aborted invasion of the promised land Caleb had the opportunity to demonstrate his faith in God by eliminating the Anakites who lived around his new hometown of Hebron (Jdg 1:20). The defeat of these giants was a sign that the land had finally been completely conquered.

21:1 Satan is not mentioned often in the OT. When he does appear, he is the adversary of someone beloved by God (Jb 1:6; 2:7; Zch 3:1-2). The parallel passage in 2 Samuel makes it clear that Satan would not have been able to cause trouble for David if God had not let him (2Sm 24:1). The census itself was not an infraction of God's law (Nm 1:2; 26:2). David succumbed to the sin of pride. This could have included thinking that the men of Israel were his to enumerate, not God's, and that he could take refuge in military strength rather than God's sovereignty. He also violated rules that God had given for carrying out a legitimate census. The law stipulated that each man who was counted had to donate a half-shekel to the temple treasury (Ex 30:11-16). God had decreed that a census taken without these provisions would be punished by a plague.

21:2 David placed Joab in charge of this project, reinforcing the idea that the purpose of the census was to evaluate military capability. The expression from Beer-sheba to Dan signifies the entire country from south to north.

21:3 Joab knew that what David was proposing would bring harm to everyone, so he objected strongly.

21:5 The number that Joab came up with was astounding—over one million swordsmen from Israel and close to half a million swordsmen from Judah. This is one of the cases in which the numbers in Chronicles are different than those in

2 Samuel 24. The argument is frequently made that the Chronicler exaggerated the numbers found in the earlier books. These numbers should not be seen as mutually exclusive. In 2 Samuel "fighting men" are counted, while Chronicles reports on the number of "swordsmen." We do not know to what extent those two descriptions overlap. If they do overlap, it would account significantly for the large numbers. Given that we do not have fuller information, it would be presumptuous to claim that the Chronicler has contradicted earlier accounts or sought to supply misleading numbers.

21:6 Joab refused to include the tribes of Levi and Benjamin. Perhaps he did not want God's judgment to fall on the tribe of priests or the tribe in whose territory the tabernacle stood.

21:7 Exactly as God had foretold in Ex 30:12, He punished this illegitimate census with a plague.

21:8 Even before the effects of the punishment were apparent, David realized he had done wrong; he pleaded with God to forgive him.

21:9-13 Gad and Nathan were the two prophets associated with David. Both of them had the unpleasant duty of announcing divine punishment on the king they served (2Sm 12:7). Gad presented David with three options for punishment: (1) three years of famine, (2) three months of devastation by his enemies, or (3) three days of . . . plague on the land. David chose the plague, reasoning that it most directly involved the hand of God and therefore had the most potential for mercy.

21:14 David had wanted to know how many men he had at his disposal. By divine retribution he wound up with 70,000 fewer than he had before the census was taken.

21:15-17 The spread of the plague is attributed to an angel from God (2Ch 32:21). The angel was about to inflict the plague on Jerusalem. He was fully visible, hovering above the threshing floor of Ornan. David and the elders of Israel saw the angel floating in a menacing posture with his sword . . . stretched out. David pleaded with God to spare the innocent people and let him suffer God's punishment.

21:20-24 Ornan and his four sons received two shocks: they saw the hovering angel, and the king himself showed up on their property. David asked Ornan to sell him this location at its full price—without receiving a king's discount—because he was afraid the Lord might not stop the plague if he did not pay the full amount.

21:25 The price for the plot of land mentioned here is 15 pounds of gold, while in 2Sm 24:24 it is said to have been 50 ounces of silver. This difference can be explained if David purchased the properties in simultaneous but distinct transactions. Perhaps the silver was the price for the threshing floor while the gold purchased the surrounding property. Ornan may very naturally have priced these items apart from one another.

21:26-27 While the setting for the sacrifice was being prepared, the angel apparently continued to hover over the scene. God signaled His acceptance of the sacrifice by sending fire from heaven. The angel stopped threatening Jerusalem.

21:28-30 At the end of this episode, the basic arrangement of sacred locations changed. The ark was still in Jerusalem, and the tabernacle continued in Gibeon, but from here on, David no longer used the tabernacle. He performed his sacrifices on this threshing floor. Perhaps he was afraid the angel might come back if he left this site.

22:1 Since the threshing floor of Ornan had become the place where David worshiped the Lord, he declared that on this exact site the temple would be built. This temporary altar would mark the location of the permanent altar.

22:2-4 The temple would require stones, metal, and wood for its construction. David conscripted the foreigners living in the land to work as slaves to do the heavy labor of cutting stones for the temple and the foundation walls.

22:5 This is the first time we learn that Solomon would succeed David and build the temple.

22:6-10 In a private conversation, David gave instructions to Solomon about the building of the temple. David's personal history of warfare and shed . . . blood disqualified him from being the temple builder. On the other hand, Solomon would enjoy peace and rest. His name meant "man of peace." He would be allowed to build the temple.

22:16 David encouraged Solomon not to delay in completing the project.

22:18-19 David emphasized that after all the wars he had fought, there would now be a period of rest. The time was right for the leaders to help Solomon build a permanent temple.

23:1 David intended for Solomon to be king after him. He had made this known to Solomon and to his advisers. Now he acted on this declaration and officially made Solomon co-regent alongside him. Despite David's public acclaim of Solomon, there would be vigorous dispute of this decision (1Kg 1-2). David reiterated his will on the matter several times (1Kg 1:38-39).

23:2-3 David called a meeting of the country's leaders and the priests and Levites. The first part of this chapter is directed to those Levites 30 years old or older who would be ready to step into their roles as soon as the temple was built. Later on (v. 24) the minimum age is lowered to 20 years old. This lower number would include those who would have been in training and were not yet eligible for actual service, but who needed to be listed in their applicable categories. A total of 38,000 men were ready to get to work. With that many people, everyone would be able to lead a normal life at home for most of the year and be required to spend just a short time in Jerusalem pursuing temple duties.

23:4-5 The Levites were divided along several lines. The largest number (24,000) consisted of those who were actually doing temple work. Six thousand men were given the job of prescreening individuals and their potential sacrifices to make sure that neither the persons nor what they brought as offerings were unclean, and that everything proceeded in accordance with the law. The 4,000 . . . gatekeepers were the guards. In keeping with David's vision for worship in the future, a large corps of musicians (4,000) would be available.

23:6 Having established the broad, professional divisions, the same large group also was allocated into the three lines of descent from Levi's sons: Gershom, Kohath, and Merari.

23:7 The Chronicler assumes his usual method with genealogies in following a specific line and then backtracking.

23:9 This Shimei must have been a fourth son of Ladan, named after his uncle, whose descendants are named according to his three sons. Ladan was also called "Libni" (6:17).

23:11 Jeush and Beriah were counted as one because they did not have many sons.

23:12 Kohath's clan included the priestly line of Aaron. Other members of this clan challenged Aaron's exclusive right to the priesthood, only to find themselves swallowed up by the earth as God's punishment (Nm 16).

23:13-14 For the Chronicler, the descendants of Aaron were far more important at this point than those of Moses.

23:21-22 The line of Eleazar continued by virtue of his daughters and the sons of Kish marrying one another. In 24:29 we learn that one of Kish's sons was Jerahmeel. The other supplementary information from 24:26-27 is that Merari had a third son, Jaaziah, who also had three sons.

23:24 The Chronicler was not obsessed with names for their own sake. Their significance lay in the fact that on the basis of this information, Levites during his own time would be reminded of where they fit in with the general program of service to the LORD's temple.

23:25 Anticipating what would not be reality until the time of Solomon, David declared that rest had come to Israel because there would now be a permanent place for the ark and for worship.

23:26-29 There was no longer any reason for the tabernacle to be carried. Those Levites who had this as their main duty would receive new assignments.

The matter of moving the ark would not come up again until hundreds of years later (2Ch 35:2).

23:30-31 The Chronicler again emphasizes David's institution of regular temple music. The musicians must perform on a daily basis as well as at the major sacrifices and on special occasions.

24:1 Among all the divisions established at this time, the most important one was for the priests, who were divided into 24 segments. These 24 groupings were based on Aaron's two surviving sons, Eleazar and Ithamar.

24:2 The Chronicler does not mention that Nadab and Abihu died prematurely because they defiled the tabernacle (Lv 10:1-2). It was more important to him that since they died without children, they had no descendants to include in the priestly divisions.

24:3 Two men were serving as high priest during the time of David: Zadok who officiated at the tabernacle, and Ahimelech who was in charge of the ark in Jerusalem. Ahimelech was the son of Abiathar and grandson of the Ahimelech who was slaughtered at the tabernacle by King Saul's troops. Both men had a legitimate claim to the priesthood, representing the lines of Eleazar and Ithamar, respectively, so both of their descendants were included in this list.

24:4 Since Eleazar's descendants outnumbered those of Ithamar by a ratio of two to one, it made sense that of the 24 divisions, Eleazar should get 16 shifts, and Ithamar only eight.

24:6 An official secretary kept a record, and there were overseers from both family lines as well as dignitaries who did not have a vested interest in how this matter was handled.

24:7-19 Since there were about 24 divisions within a pool numbering in the tens of thousands, the list of 24 divisions was not necessarily permanent, if even David envisioned it that way (Ezr 2:36-39; Neh 12:1-7). Still, some priestly divisions such as that of Abijah survived almost a thousand years (Lk 1:5).

24:20-31 The other Levites were also divided into 24 groups, though it is not easy to identify exactly 24 names in this list. The ancestral names of these 24 groups cover several generations, so their origin is uneven. It is clear that these groupings were based to a large degree on the head count of the descendants of the more prominent ancestors. The ability to supply a sufficient number of workers within their groups was a more important consideration than maintaining exact genealogical parallels.

25:1 Music was certainly a part of the worship of God before David's time, but he made it a regular part of everyday worship in the tabernacle and at the site of the ark and later in the temple. David, a man of war, was also a man of music. He placed the sons of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun (also known as Ethan) in charge of the music for the future temple. The Chronicler equates the musical ministry with prophecy.

25:2-5 This time the numbers work out smoothly. Asaph had four sons, Jeduthun had six, and Heman had 14. Thus there were 24 natural divisions, and it turned out that the larger number of their relatives came to 288, thus creating 24 divisions of exactly 12 each. Lots were drawn to draft these Levites into their groups.

25:6-31 These 288 musicians were the leaders, who had a total of 4,000 men to draw on (23:5). The men of the 24 divisions reported to the 12 sons of the three head musicians, and they in turn took their directions directly from the king. For most other temple functions, the high priest was the final authority, but since the order of music was primarily David's innovation, he did not relinquish control over this part of the ministry.

26:1 The following list of gatekeepers is limited to the two Levitical clans of Kohath and Merari. Since Asaph the musician belonged to the clan of Gershom (6:39-43), the Asaph mentioned here is a different person. Possibly "Asaph" here should read "Ebiasaph" instead, as does the LXX. Compare also "Ebiasaph" at 9:19.

26:4-8 Obed-edom was a gatekeeper by profession, though he joined the musicians during the transport of the ark to Jerusalem (15:21). Now that plans were being set up for permanent duties, he figured prominently among the guards, coming uniquely equipped with a clan of 62 family members. Shemaiah, his son, is a different person than Shemaiah the secretary whose father was Nethanel (24:6).

26:12 The Chronicler emphasizes that the service these gatekeepers performed was just as significant as the duties of those who led in worship. Without dedicated gatekeepers, the ministry of the temple could not proceed.

26:13 Rather than dividing the gatekeepers into 24 shifts, their assignments were based on which gates they were assigned to guard.

26:14-15 The selection of leaders for each gate was made in the context of family membership, but capability must have been an overriding consideration. In those cases where sons and fathers seemed to be equally qualified, they were not held back because they belonged to the same family. Both son and father were placed in command of their own gates. This was true for Shelemiah and his son Zechariah, as well as for Obed-edom and his sons.

26:16 The Shallecheth was the gate designated for disposal of refuse and materials left over from animal sacrifices.

26:17-18 Guard duty was not limited to the gates of the temple. Obviously the storehouses needed protection, and guards were also installed outside the temple grounds, specifically on the road leading to the temple. The external temple guards could deal with problems outside the temple compound, such as unacceptable sacrificial animals.

26:20-21 The gatekeepers came primarily from the clans of Merari and Kohath. The Gershonites were assigned to watch over the treasuries of the temple. This included guarding temple resources from theft or vandalism, as well as accounting for them and keeping them stored. Ahijah supervised this work. The treasuries included long-term deposits, as well as the funds needed for day-to-day operation of the temple.

26:26-27 When all of these arrangements were made, there still was no temple. David gave money for the cause, and many of his high-ranking officials and military officers also gave to the temple fund. A large share of these contributions was derived from the plunder of various military victories.

26:28 Even before there was any talk of building the temple, the leaders of Israel were dedicating treasures to the tabernacle. The accumulated items went all the way back to the prophet Samuel, King Saul, his commander in chief Abner, David's general Joab, and David himself.

26:29 One other group of Levites needed to be organized. These were the officers and judges who would enforce the divine law in Israel.

26:32 The tribes on the eastern side of the Jordan River—Reubenites . . . Gadites, and half . . . of Manasseh—were already becoming isolated from the rest of Israel. Only at the very end of his reign was David able to provide a suitable teacher for these more remote tribes.

27:1 The Chronicler spends a lot of time on the various participants in the temple service but relatively little time on the secular officials and the army. The most important category of classification here is that there were 12 divisions composed of 24,000 soldiers each. Each of those units was on duty for one month out of the year during times of peace. During times of war, obviously everyone would be mobilized. Many of the names here appear in the list of the "Thirty" in chapter 11. Since David reigned for 40 years, this list is something of an abstraction, with different personnel probably in charge at various times. In many cases two names are mentioned (e.g., 27:4). In these cases the second person may have been the first one's adjutant early on, and then later his successor.

27:2-3 As a descendant of Perez . . . Jashobeam belonged to the expanded clan within Judah to which David was linked.

27:4 This is one of those instances with two names, where Mikloth may have reported to Dodai at first, and then may have replaced him later (see note at v. 1).

27:5-6 We have seen Benaiah several times already. He was the most honored of the Thirty (11:22), and he was in charge of the Philistine mercenaries (18:17). Here we see him commanding one of the 12 units of 24,000 as well. His own son Ammizabad was second in command to him.

27:7 The idealized nature of this list is brought out by the fact that Asahel was killed during the civil war between David and Esh-baal (2Sm 2:23). So for all practical purposes, the command of this unit belonged to Zebadiah the entire time.

27:11 Sibbecai is familiar because he had killed one of the Philistine giants (19:4).

27:16 This verse begins a list of those who were in charge of each tribe. We can think of them as governors of the tribes. Gad and Asher are left out, perhaps because they were governed by the leaders of another tribe. The number of men on the list comes to 12 because each of the two halves of Manasseh is represented separately (vv. 20-21) and Levi has two representatives (v. 17).

27:17 One person was in charge of the tribe of Levi at large, but the descendants of Aaron—the priests—were represented separately by Zadok.

27:18 Elihu was one of David's brothers. He is not listed among David's six brothers in 2:13-15. This could mean that this name is a variation on Eliab, David's older brother, or that this is a seventh brother who is not mentioned earlier by the Chronicler. This second interpretation makes sense because 1Sm 16:10 refers to seven brothers of David.

27:23-24 A potential army would have been much larger than the 288,000 mentioned here, but the Chronicler reminds us that no exact total is available because the census that David had ordered was contrary to God's directions and was punished by the Lord (see chap. 21).

27:25-33 These verses tell us about David's cabinet. Azmaveth was secretary of the treasury. Under him overseeing the various treasury locations around the nation was Jonathan son of Uzziah. There were also cabinet posts for the oversight of agriculture and herding.

27:32 This verse describes the inner circle of David's advisers, though again this is not a permanent group. Jonathan, despite these accolades, makes his only appearance in the record at this point. Jehiel, who tended David's sons, must have had great skill at diplomacy and conflict resolution.

27:33 Ahithophel was so wise that his advice was considered almost like hearing from God himself (2Sm 16:23). Unfortunately, none of this wisdom prevented him from joining Absalom's rebellion and ending his life with suicide (2Sm 17:23). Hushai helped David by infiltrating Absalom's inner circle and frustrating Ahithophel's advice (2Sm 17:14).

27:34 Although this passage does not mention Ahithophel's death, it is implied by mentioning his successors. First came Jehoiada son of Benaiah (not to be confused with the hero Benaiah son of Jehoiada); then came Abiathar, who may have been either the priest who was David's friend during the king's time in the wilderness, or his grandson.

28:1 For the Chronicler, the questions of who would be the next king and who would build the temple are synonymous. David called another meeting of all the leaders of Israel (the first meeting occurred in chap. 22) in which he reiterated his answer to both questions.

28:2 This last speech by David calls to mind the time many decades earlier when representatives of the tribes came to David and declared, "Here we are, your own flesh and blood" (11:1). Now David addressed the people as my brothers. He reminded the people that he had wanted to build the temple for God's ark (17:1) and as a footstool for our God.

28:3 David disclosed to the people what he had already told Solomon—the reason he could not build the temple (22:8; see note at 22:6-10).

28:4-6 David knew he was king only because God had willed it, and that by the same sovereign will God had now chosen . . . Solomon as his successor.

28:7 David repeated the covenant that God had made with him—that through Solomon the house of David would continue on the throne (17:12). This was a blessing that Solomon should never take for granted. Having been called to be king by the Lord, Solomon must demonstrate his divine calling by keeping God's commands and ordinances.

28:8 For the first time since God had given the promise to Abraham (Gn 15:8), the people were living in the entire territory that God had set aside for them. With a faithful king on the throne and the people following him, this state of affairs could last forever. However, the people as well as the king must keep all of God's commands.

28:9 David turned to Solomon and exhorted him to single-minded devotion to the Lord. He reminded Solomon that nothing else would do because God knows our motivations and intentions (Ps 139:1-6). David directed Solomon's commitment not just to the law, but to the Lord. The covenant that God had made with David about the continuation of his house on the throne did not overrule Solomon's obligation to walk with the Lord.

28:10 David exhorted Solomon to be strong. Building the temple would bring about a revision of Israel's system of worship. For hundreds of years, sacrifices had been permitted anywhere in the country under the direction of many different priests. With the coming of the temple, sacrifices would be restricted to Jerusalem only and priests who had been specifically designated for this purpose

(Dt 12:5-7). Only a strong, powerful leader would be able to sell that idea to all 12 tribes. In fact, as soon as the leadership in Jerusalem became weak and the kingdom split, the sacrificial system fell apart as well (2Ch 13:9).

28:11-18 David made a public display of handing Solomon the information that is recorded in the previous six chapters.

28:20 The king pointed out that the LORD would be with Solomon for the entire building project and beyond. The Lord does not always guarantee success, even for those ministries to which He has called us, but He will always be present with us.

29:1 Turning again to the assembled people, David drew attention to Solomon's youth and lack of experience in the face of the immensity of the task. The temple must honor God, so it must reflect the greatness of God in its operation.

29:2 Since in verse 3 David refers to giving his own wealth, the donations mentioned in this verse must be a part of the spoils of war that David had collected.

29:3-4 After serving as king for 40 years, David had accumulated quite a personal treasure, out of which he made a large contribution, including 100 tons of gold.

29:5 b David equated making an offering with consecrating oneself to the Lord. God is never as interested in the material substance we contribute as He is in our devotion to Him, of which our offering is an expression.

29:9 Obviously, not everyone had abundance to share, but everyone shared in the joy.

29:10 David's lengthy prayer began by focusing on God. He did not minimize the gifts of the people, but he knew that their generosity was a product of God's mercy.

29:11-13 David praised the Lord by declaring who He is and what He had done.

29:14-17 As David continued to focus on God, he acknowledged some important truths. It is not possible to give anything to God because God owns everything. David also declared that it is not possible to deceive God. He knows exactly who is giving willingly out of true devotion to Him and who is giving just to be seen by others. The key is a heart that wants to please God.

29:22 After sacrifices and a feast, David made . . . Solomon king for a second time. Commentators are divided on the reference to a first coronation and how to interpret 23:1, which states that David installed Solomon as king. Some interpreters see this verse as a general summary of the events that are amplified in this chapter, but this mention of a second coronation could be an understated reference to the turmoil we read about in 1 Kings 1. This turmoil resulted in David declaring Solomon to be king as an emergency measure in opposition to Adonijah's bid for the throne. In either case, the transfer of power from David to Solomon proceeded smoothly, and he was acclaimed by all Israel.

29:25 The statement that God bestowed on Solomon such royal majesty as had not been bestowed on any king over Israel before him may sound odd since Solomon was preceded on Israel's throne by only two men: Saul and David. See also 2Ch 1:12. But the point is that God established Solomon as the standard for grandeur which had never been attained before and which never would be reached again.

29:26-30 These verses summarize David's reign and give an assessment of his success. This formula was applied to every king after David in 2 Chronicles. In each case the Chronicler gives a bottom-line evaluation of each king. For David he has nothing but praise. David lived a long life, indicative of a blessing from God, and he enjoyed riches and honor. The Chronicler also mentions several additional sources of information about David. These ancient books are likely lost, but they could be reflected in our books of 1 and 2 Samuel, which record the ministry of Samuel . . . Nathan, and Gad during the reign of David (1Sm 16:13; 2Sm 12:1; 24:11).

Word Studies rosh Hebrew Pronunciation [ROESH]

HCSB Translation head, top, leader Uses in 1 Chronicles 73
Uses in the OT 600
Focus Passage 1 Chronicles 7:2-3,7,9,11,40

Rosh basically signifies a human (Gn 3:15) or animal (Lv 8:18) head. It denotes leaders (Ex 18:25), masters (2Kg 2:3), and household heads (Nm 1:4). It suggests tops of mountains (Gn 8:5) and beginnings of time periods (Ex 12:2). Rosh appears as best (Dt 33:15), first (Pr 8:26), highest (Jb 22:12), chief (Jr 52:24), and leading (2Sm 23:13). It signifies sum (Ps 139:17) or entirety (Ps 119:160), so implying full (Lv 6:5). "Lift the head" signifies act arrogantly (Ps 83:2), pardon (2Kg 25:27), or take a census/count (Ex 30:12; Nm 31:26). Rosh can mean each (Jdg 5:30) or connote a life (Dn 1:10). It is a scepter's tip (Est 5:2) or pole's end (1Kg 8:8). It describes street corners (Lm 4:1) and forks in roads (Ezk 21:19). Heads can suggest source (Gn 2:10) and be divisions (1Sm 11:11), companies (Jdg 7:16), or units (Jdg 9:44).

chayil Hebrew Pronunciation [KHAH yeel]
HCSB Translation strength, wealth, army Uses in 1 Chronicles 28
Uses in the OT 246
Focus Passage 1 Chronicles 12:8,21,25,28,30

The basic meaning of chayil is strength (Ec 10:10), with army (2Ch 26:11) and wealth (Pr 13:22) being two kinds of strength. When distinguished from gibbor ("strong"), chayil stresses bravery (1Sm 14:52). When chayil modifies gibbor, the phrase suggests fighting men (2Kg 24:14), wealthy men (2Kg 15:20), or brave warriors (1Ch 12:21). Chayil also modifies ben ("son") and 'iysh ("man") with similar meanings. "To do chayil" denotes being capable, triumphant, or powerful (Nm 24:18; Ru 4:11; Pr 31:29), and fighting bravely (1Sm 14:48) or gaining wealth (Dt 8:18). Chayil indicates entourage (2Ch 9:1), energy (Pr 31:3), or profits (Jb 20:18). It means influential (1Sm 9:1), able-bodied (Jdg 3:29), or excellent (1Kg 1:42). It describes those of noble character (Ru 3:11). Chayil can connote fearless (Is 5:22) or best (2Sm 11:16). Adverbially it signifies valiantly (Ps 108:13). God gives chayil (Ps 18:32).

nagiyd Hebrew Pronunciation [nah GEED]
HCSB Translation leader, ruler Uses in 1 Chronicles 12
Uses in the OT 44
Focus Passage 1 Chronicles 17:7

Nagiyd relates to neged ("before, in front of") and nagad ("tell"); nagad may involve placing something before someone. Nagiyd indicates nobleman (Jb 29:10) and communicates specific leadership positions. It is a synonym for "king," designating the ruler of Tyre (Ezk 28:2) and the covenant prince Ptolemy Philometor of Egypt (Dn 11:22). Mostly it calls Israelite kings, including the Messiah (Dn 9:25), rulers (1Sm 10:1) or leaders (2Kg 20:5). Nagiyd describes national leaders (Ps 76:12). It designates the chief official of God's house (Neh 11:11) or of an Israelite tribe (1Ch 27:16). It denotes a palace governor (2Ch 28:7) and town or fortress leaders (2Ch 11:11). It is a leader of gatekeepers (1Ch 9:20) or an officer over community offerings (2Ch 31:12). Nagiyd specified leaders in Assyria's army who were one step below commanders (2Ch 32:21). Besides people, nagiyd can describe noble things (Pr 8:6).

ratsah Hebrew Pronunciation [rah TSAH]
HCSB Translation please, accept Uses in 1 Chronicles 3
Uses in the OT 48
Focus Passage 1 Chronicles 29:3,17

Ratsah may involve two root words. One involves being pleased with (Mc 6:7) things or people. Ratsah in worship indicates offerings accepted by or acceptable to God (Lv 1:4; 22:23). God also accepts certain people (Gn 33:10) and delights in them (Is 42:1). Ratsah suggests enjoy (Jb 14:6), approve (Ps 49:13), or value (Ps 147:10). It signifies being popular (Est 10:3), making friends (Ps 50:18), or becoming a friend (Jb 34:9). Ratsah means take delight (Ps 102:14), show favor (Ps 77:7), and please (2Ch 10:7). It represents taking pleasure (Ps 149:4). To regain favor (1Sm 29:4) is to make oneself acceptable. The participle can denote most favored (Dt 33:24). Ratsah involves willingness, being pleased to do something (Ps 40:13).

Another root may imply pay (Lv 26:41) or make up for (Lv 26:34). The intensive verb means beg from (Jb 20:10), and the passive-reflexive means be pardoned (Is 40:2).

Solomon’s Request for Wisdom

1 Solomon son of David strengthened his hold on his kingdom. [a] The LORD his God was with him and highly exalted him. [b] 2 Then Solomon spoke to all Israel, to the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, to the judges, and to every leader in all Israel — the heads of the families. [c] 3 Solomon and the whole assembly with him went to the •high place that was in Gibeon [d] because God's tent of meeting, which the LORD's servant Moses had made [e] in the wilderness, was there. 4 Now David had brought the ark of God from Kiriath-jearim to the place [f] he had set up for it, because he had pitched a tent for it in Jerusalem, [g] 5 but he put [h] the bronze altar, which Bezalel son of Uri, son of Hur, had made, [i] in front of the LORD's tabernacle. Solomon and the assembly inquired of Him [A] there. 6 Solomon offered sacrifices there in the LORD's presence on the bronze altar at the tent of meeting; he offered 1,000 •burnt offerings on it. [j]

7 That night [k] God appeared to Solomon and said to him: "Ask. What should I give you? "

8 And Solomon said to God: "You have shown great and faithful love to my father David, and You have made me king in his place. [l] 9 LORD God, let Your promise to my father David now come true. [m] For You have made me king over a people as numerous as the dust of the earth. [n] 10 Now grant me wisdom and knowledge so that I may lead these people, [o] for who can judge this great people of Yours? "

11 God said to Solomon, "Since this was in your heart, and you have not requested riches, wealth, or glory, or for the life of those who hate you, and you have not even requested long life, but you have requested for yourself wisdom and knowledge that you may judge My people over whom I have made you king, 12 wisdom and knowledge are given to you. I will also give you riches, wealth, and glory, unlike what was given to the kings who were before you, or will be given to those after you." [p] 13 So Solomon went to Jerusalem from [q] the high place that was in Gibeon in front of the tent of meeting, and he reigned over Israel.

Solomon's Horses and Wealth 14 Solomon [r] accumulated 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen, [s] which he stationed in the chariot cities [t] and with the king in Jerusalem. 15 The king made silver and gold as common in Jerusalem as stones, and he made cedar as abundant as sycamore in the Judean foothills. 16 Solomon's horses came from Egypt and Kue. [u] The king's traders would get them from Kue at the going price. 17 A chariot could be imported from Egypt for 15 pounds [B] of silver and a horse for about four pounds. [C] In the same way, they exported them to all the kings of the Hittites and to the kings of Aram through their agents.

Chapter 2 [a]

Solomon's Letter to Hiram [1] Solomon decided to build a temple for the name of •Yahweh and a royal palace for himself, [b] [2] [c] so he assigned 70,000 men as porters, 80,000 men as stonecutters in the mountains, and 3,600 as supervisors over them. [d]

[3] Then Solomon sent word to King Hiram [e, f] of Tyre: [g]

Do for me what you did for my father David. You sent him cedars to build him a house to live in. [h] [4] Now I am building a temple for the name of Yahweh my God in order to dedicate it to Him for burning fragrant incense before Him, [i] for displaying the rows of the •bread of the Presence continuously, [j] and for sacrificing •burnt offerings for the morning and the evening, [k] the Sabbaths [l] and the New Moons, and the appointed festivals of the LORD our God. This is ordained for Israel forever. [5] The temple that I am building will be great, for our God is greater than any of the gods. [m] [6] But who is able to build a temple for Him, since even heaven and the highest heaven cannot contain Him? [n] Who am I then that I should build a temple for Him except as a place to burn incense before Him? [7] Therefore, send me a craftsman who is skilled in engraving to work with gold, silver, bronze, and iron, and with purple, crimson, and blue yarn. He will work with the craftsmen who are with me in Judah and Jerusalem, [o] appointed by my father David. [p] [8] Also, send me cedar, cypress, and algum [q, r] logs from Lebanon, for I know that your servants know how to cut the trees of Lebanon. Note that my servants will be with your servants [s] [9] to prepare logs for me in abundance because the temple I am building will be great and wonderful. [10] I will give your servants, the woodcutters who cut the trees, 100,000 bushels [A] of wheat flour, 100,000 bushels [B] of barley, 110,000 gallons [C] of wine, and 110,000 gallons [D] of oil.

Hiram's Reply

[11] Then King Hiram of Tyre wrote a letter [E] and sent it to Solomon:

Because the LORD loves His people, He set you over them as king. [t]

[12] Hiram also said:

May the LORD God of Israel, who made the heavens and the earth, [u] be praised! He gave King David a wise son with insight and understanding, [v] who will build a temple for the LORD and a royal palace for himself. [w] 13 I have now sent Huram-abi, [F] a skillful man who has understanding. [x] 14 He is the son of a woman from the daughters of Dan. His father is a man of Tyre. He knows how to work with gold, silver, bronze, iron, stone, and wood, with purple, blue, crimson yarn, and fine linen. He knows how to do all kinds of engraving and to execute any design that may be given him. I have sent him to be with your craftsmen and the craftsmen of my lord, your father David.

15 Now, let my lord send the wheat, barley, oil, and wine to his servants as promised. [y] 16 We will cut logs from Lebanon, as many as you need, and bring them to you as rafts by sea to Joppa. You can then take them up to Jerusalem. [z]

Solomon's Work Force

17 Solomon took a census of all the foreign men in the land of Israel, after the census that his father David had conducted, [a] and the total was 153,600.
18 Solomon made 70,000 of them porters, 80,000 stonecutters in the mountains, and 3,600 supervisors to make the people work. [b]

Building the Temple

3 Then Solomon began [a] to build the LORD's temple in Jerusalem on Mount Moriah [b] where the LORD [c] had appeared to his father David, at the site David had prepared on the threshing floor of Ornan [d] the Jebusite. 2 He began to build on the second day of the second month in the fourth year of his reign. 3
These are Solomon's foundations [e] for building God's temple: the length [A] was 90 feet, [B] and the width 30 feet. [C] 4 The portico, which was across the front extending across the width of the temple, was 30 feet [D] wide; its height was 30 feet; [f,] [E] he overlaid its inner surface with pure gold. 5 The larger room [F] he paneled with cypress wood, overlaid with fine gold, and decorated with palm trees and chains. 6 He adorned the temple with precious stones for beauty, and the gold was the gold of Parvaim. 7 He overlaid the temple — the beams, the thresholds, its walls and doors — with gold, [g] and he carved •cherubim on the walls. [h]

The Most Holy Place

8 Then he made the most holy place; its length corresponded to the width of the temple, 30 feet, [G] and its width was 30 feet. [H, i] He overlaid it with 45,000 pounds [I] of fine gold. 9 The weight of the nails was 20 ounces [J] of gold, and he overlaid the ceiling with gold.

10 He made [j] two cherubim of sculptured work, for the most holy place, and he overlaid them with gold. 11 The overall length of the wings of the cherubim was 30 feet: [K] the wing of one was 7 1/2 feet, [L] touching the wall of the room; its other wing was 7 1/2 feet, [M] touching the wing of the other cherub. 12 The wing of the other [k] cherub was 7 1/2 feet, [N] touching the wall of the room; its other wing was 7 1/2 feet, [O] reaching the wing of the other cherub. 13 The wingspan of these cherubim was 30 feet. [P] They stood on their feet and faced the larger room. [Q]

14 He made the veil of blue, purple, and crimson yarn and fine linen, and he wove cherubim into it. [l]

The Bronze Pillars

15 In front of the temple [m] he made two pillars, each 27 feet [n, R] high. The capital on top of each was 7 1/2 feet [S] high. 16 He had made chainwork in the inner sanctuary and also put it on top of the pillars. [o] He made 100 pomegranates and fastened them into the chainwork. 17 Then he set up the pillars in front of the sanctuary, one on the right and one on the left. He named the one on the right Jachin [p] and the one on the left Boaz. [q]

The Altar, Reservoir, and Basins

4 He made a bronze altar [a] 30 feet [A] long, 30 feet [B] wide, and 15 feet [C] high.
2 Then he made the cast metal reservoir, [b] 15 feet [D] from brim to brim, perfectly round. It was 7 1/2 feet [E] high and 45 feet [F] in circumference. 3 The likeness of oxen [c] was below it, completely encircling it, 10 every half yard, [G] completely surrounding the reservoir. The oxen were cast in two rows when the reservoir was cast. 4 It stood on 12 oxen, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south, and three facing east. The reservoir was on top of them and all their hindquarters were toward the center. 5 The reservoir was three inches [H] thick, and its rim was fashioned like the brim of a cup or a lily blossom. It could hold 11,000 gallons. [d] 6 He made 10 basins for washing and he put five on the right and five on the left. [e] The parts of the •burnt offering were rinsed in them, [f] but the reservoir was used by the priests for washing.

The Lampstands, Tables, and Courts 7 He made the 10 gold lampstands
according to their specifications and put them in the sanctuary, five on the right and five on the left. [g] 8 He made 10 tables and placed them in the sanctuary, five on the right and five on the left. [h] He also made 100 gold bowls.
9 He made the courtyard [i] of the priests and the large court, and doors for the court. He overlaid the doors with bronze. 10 He put the reservoir on the right side, toward the southeast. [j] 11 Then Huram [k, l] made [m] the pots, the shovels, and the bowls.

Completion of the Bronze Furnishings So Huram finished doing the work that he was doing for King Solomon in God's temple: 12 two pillars; the bowls and the capitals on top of the two pillars; the two gratings for covering both bowls of the capitals that were on top of the pillars; 13 the 400 pomegranates for the two gratings (two rows of pomegranates for each grating covering both capitals' bowls on top of the pillars [n] ). 14 He also made the water carts [I, o] and the basins on the water carts. 15 The one reservoir and the 12 oxen underneath it, 16 the pots, the shovels, the forks, and all their utensils — Huram-abi [J, p] made them for King Solomon for the LORD*'s temple. All these were made of polished* bronze. 17 The king had them cast in clay molds in the Jordan Valley between Succoth and Zeredah. 18 Solomon made all these utensils in such great abundance that the weight of the bronze was not determined.

Completion of the Gold Furnishings 19 Solomon also made all the equipment in God's temple: the gold altar; the tables on which to put the •bread of the Presence; [q] 20 the lampstands and their lamps of pure gold to burn in front of the inner sanctuary according to specifications; [r] 21 the flowers, lamps, and gold tongs — of purest gold; 22 the wick trimmers, sprinkling basins, ladles, [K] and firepans — of purest gold; and the entryway to the temple, its inner doors to the most holy place, and the doors of the temple sanctuary — of gold.

5 So all the work Solomon did for the LORD's temple was completed. Then Solomon brought the consecrated things of his father David — the silver, the gold, and all the utensils — and put them in the treasuries of God's temple.

Preparations for the Temple Dedication 2 At that time [a] Solomon assembled at Jerusalem the elders of Israel — all the tribal heads, the ancestral chiefs of the Israelites — in order to bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD up from the city of David, [b] that is, •Zion . 3 So all the men of Israel were assembled in the king's presence at the festival; this was in the seventh month. [c]

4 All the elders of Israel came, and the Levites picked up the ark. 5 They brought up the ark, the tent of meeting, and the holy utensils that were in the tent. The priests and the Levites brought them up. 6 King Solomon and the entire congregation of Israel who had gathered around him were in front of the ark sacrificing sheep and cattle that could not be counted or numbered because there were so many. 7 The priests brought the ark of the LORD's covenant to its place, into the inner sanctuary of the temple, to the most holy place, beneath the wings of the •cherubim . [d] 8 And the cherubim spread their wings over the place of the ark so that the cherubim formed a cover above the ark and its poles. 9 The poles were so long that their ends were seen from the holy place [e, f] in front of the inner sanctuary, but they were not seen from outside; they are there to this very day. 10 Nothing was in the ark except the two tablets that Moses had put in it at Horeb, [g, h] where the LORD had made a covenant with the Israelites when they came out of Egypt.

11 Now all the priests who were present had consecrated themselves regardless of their divisions. [i] When the priests came out of the holy place, 12 the Levitical singers dressed in fine linen and carrying cymbals, harps, and lyres [j] were standing east of the altar, and with them were 120 priests blowing trumpets. [k] The Levitical singers were descendants of •Asaph , Heman, and Jeduthun and their sons [l] and relatives. 13 The trumpeters and singers joined together to praise and thank the LORD with one voice. They raised their voices, accompanied by trumpets, cymbals, and musical instruments, [m] in praise to the LORD:

For He is good;
His faithful love endures forever. [n]

The temple, the LORD's temple, was filled with a cloud. [o] 14 And because of the cloud, the priests were not able to continue ministering, for the glory of the LORD filled God's temple. [p]

Solomon’s Dedication of the Temple

6 Then Solomon said: [a]

The LORD said He would dwell in thick darkness, [b] 2 but I have built an exalted temple for You, a place for Your residence forever.

3 Then the king turned and blessed the entire congregation of Israel while they were standing. 4 He said:

May the LORD God of Israel be praised!
He spoke directly to my father David,
and He has fulfilled the promise by His power.
He said,
5 “Since the day I brought My people Israel out of the land of Egypt, [c]
I have not chosen a city to build a temple in among any of the tribes of Israel,
so that My name would be there, and I have not chosen a man to be ruler over My people Israel.
6 But I have chosen Jerusalem so that My name will be there, [d] and I have chosen David to be over My people Israel.” [e] 7 Now it was in the heart of my father David to build a temple for the name of •Yahweh , the God of Israel. [f] 8 However, Yahweh said to my father David,
“Since it was your desire to build a temple for My name,
you have done well to have this desire.
9 Yet, you are not the one to build the temple,
but your son, your own offspring, will build the temple for My name.”
10 So Yahweh has fulfilled what He promised.
I have taken the place of my father David and I sit on the throne of Israel, as Yahweh promised.
I have built the temple for the name of Yahweh, the God of Israel.
11 I have put the ark there, where Yahweh’s covenant is that He made with the Israelites. [g]

Solomon's Prayer

12 Then Solomon stood before the altar of the LORD in front of the entire congregation of Israel and spread out his hands. 13 For Solomon had made a bronze platform 7 1/2 feet [A] long, 7 1/2 feet [B] wide, and 4 1/2 feet [C] high and put it in the court. He stood on it, [h] knelt down in front of the entire congregation of Israel, and spread out his hands toward heaven. [i] 14 He said:

LORD God of Israel,
there is no God like You
in heaven or on earth, [j] keeping His gracious covenant with Your servants who walk before You with their whole heart. [k]
15 You have kept what You promised
to Your servant, my father David.
You spoke directly to him,
and You fulfilled Your promise by Your power,
as it is today. [l]
16 Therefore, LORD God of Israel,
keep what You promised
to Your servant, my father David:
"You will never fail to have a man to sit before Me on the throne of Israel, [m] if only your sons guard their way to walk in My Law as you have walked before Me." 17 Now, LORD God of Israel, please confirm what You promised to Your servant David.
18 But will God indeed live on earth with man?
Even heaven, the highest heaven, cannot contain You, [n] much less this temple I have built.
19 Listen [D] to Your servant's prayer and his petition,
LORD my God,
so that You may hear the cry and the prayer that Your servant prays before You, 20 so that Your eyes watch over this temple day and night,

toward the place where You said
You would put Your name; [o]
and so that You may hear the prayer
Your servant prays toward this place.
21 Hear the petitions of Your servant
and Your people Israel,
which they pray toward this place.
May You hear in Your dwelling place in heaven.
May You hear and forgive.
22 If a man sins against his neighbor and is forced to take an oath [E]
and he comes to take an oath
before Your altar in this temple,
23 may You hear in heaven and act.
May You judge Your servants,
condemning the wicked man by bringing
what he has done on his own head
and providing justice for the righteous
by rewarding him according to his righteousness.
24 If Your people Israel are defeated before an enemy,
because they have sinned against You,
and they return to You and praise Your name,
and they pray and plead for mercy before You in this temple,
25 may You hear in heaven
and forgive the sin of Your people Israel.
May You restore them to the land
You gave them and their ancestors.
26 When the skies are shut and there is no rain
because they have sinned against You,
and they pray toward this place
and praise Your name,
and they turn from their sins
because You are afflicting [p, q] them, 27 may You hear in heaven
and forgive the sin of Your servants
and Your people Israel,
so that You may teach them the good way

they should walk in.
May You send rain on Your land
that You gave Your people for an inheritance.
28 When there is famine on the earth,
when there is pestilence,
when there is blight, mildew, locust, or grasshopper, when their enemies besiege them in the region of their fortified cities, F, r
when there is any plague or illness, 29 whatever prayer or petition
anyone from your people Israel might have — each man knowing his own affliction G and suffering, and spreading out his hands toward this temple — 30 may You hear in heaven, Your dwelling place, and may You forgive and repay the man
according to all his ways, since You know his heart, for You alone know the human heart, s 31 so that they may •fear You and walk in Your ways
all the days they live on the land
You gave our ancestors.
32 Even for the foreigner who is not of Your people Israel but has come from a distant land because of Your great name and Your mighty hand and outstretched arm: t when he comes and prays toward this temple, 33 may You hear in heaven in Your dwelling place, and do all the foreigner asks You.
Then all the peoples of the earth will know Your name,
to fear You as Your people Israel do
and know that this temple I have built is called by Your name. u 34 When Your people go out to fight against their enemies, wherever You send them,
and they pray to You in the direction of this city You have chosen v and the temple that I have built for Your name,

35 may You hear their prayer and petition in heaven and uphold their cause.
36 When they sin against You — for there is no one who does not sin [w] —
and You are angry with them
and hand them over to the enemy, and their captors deport them to a distant or nearby country, 37 and when they come to their senses
in the land where they were deported
and repent and petition You in their captors' land, saying: "We have sinned and done wrong;
we have been wicked," 38 and when they return to You with their whole mind and heart in the land of their captivity where they were taken captive, and when they pray in the direction of their land
that You gave their ancestors,
and the city You have chosen,
and toward the temple I have built for Your name, 39 may You hear their prayer and petitions in heaven,
Your dwelling place,
and uphold their cause. [H]
May You forgive Your people
who sinned against You.
40 Now, my God, please let Your eyes be open and Your ears attentive to the prayer of this place. [x]
41 Now therefore: [y]

Arise, LORD God, come to Your resting place,
You and Your powerful ark.
May Your priests, LORD God, be clothed with salvation, and may Your godly people rejoice in goodness.
42 LORD God, do not reject Your anointed one; [z] remember the loyalty of Your servant David. [a]

The Dedication Ceremonies

7 When Solomon finished praying, [a] fire descended from heaven and consumed the •burnt offering and the sacrifices, [b] and the glory of the LORD filled the temple. 2 The priests were not able to enter the LORD*'s temple because the glory* of the LORD filled the temple of the LORD*.* 3 All the Israelites were watching when the fire descended and the glory of the LORD came on the temple. They bowed down on the pavement with their faces to the ground. They worshiped and praised the LORD*:*

For He is good,
for His faithful love endures forever. [c]

4 The king and all the people were offering sacrifices in the LORD's presence.
[d] 5 King Solomon offered a sacrifice of 22,000 cattle and 120,000 sheep. In this manner the king and all the people dedicated God's temple. 6 The priests and the Levites were standing at their stations. The Levites had the musical instruments of the LORD, which King David had made to praise the LORD — "for His faithful love endures forever" — when he offered praise with them. [e] Across from the Levites, the priests were blowing trumpets, and all the people were standing. 7 Since the bronze altar that Solomon had made [f] could not accommodate the burnt offering, the •grain offering, and the fat of the •fellowship offerings, Solomon first consecrated the middle of the courtyard [g] that was in front of the LORD's temple and then offered the burnt offerings and the fat of the fellowship offerings there. [h]

8 So Solomon and all Israel with him — a very great assembly, from the entrance to Hamath [A] to the Brook of Egypt — observed the festival at that time for seven days. 9 On the eighth day [i] they held a sacred assembly, [j] for the dedication of the altar lasted seven days and the festival seven days. 10 On the twenty-third day of the seventh month he sent the people away to their tents, rejoicing and with happy hearts for the goodness the LORD had done for David, for Solomon, and for His people Israel.

11 So Solomon finished the LORD's temple and the royal palace. Everything that had entered Solomon's heart to do for the LORD's temple and for his own palace succeeded. [k]

The LORD*'s Response* 12 Then the LORD appeared to Solomon at night and said to
him:

I have heard your prayer and have chosen this place for Myself as a temple of sacrifice. [l] 13 If I close the sky so there is no rain, or if I command the grasshopper to consume the land, or if I send pestilence on My people, [m] 14 and My people who are called by My name humble themselves, pray and seek My face, and turn from their evil ways, then I will hear from heaven, forgive their sin, and heal their land. [n] 15 My eyes will now be open and My ears attentive to prayer from this place. [o] 16 And I have now chosen and consecrated this temple so that My name may be there forever; My eyes and My heart will be there at all times. [p]

17 As for you, if you walk before Me as your father David walked, doing everything I have commanded you, and if you keep My statutes and ordinances, 18 I will establish your royal throne, as I promised your father David: You will never fail to have a man ruling in Israel. [q]

19 However, if you turn away and abandon My statutes and My commands that I have set before you and if you go and serve other gods and worship them, [r] 20 then I will uproot Israel from the soil that I gave them, and this temple that I have sanctified for My name I will banish from My presence; [s] I will make it an object of scorn and ridicule among all the peoples. [t] 21 As for this temple, which was exalted, everyone who passes by will be appalled and will say: [u] Why did the LORD do this to this land and this temple? 22 Then they will say:
Because they abandoned the LORD God of their ancestors who brought them out of the land of Egypt. They clung to other gods and worshiped and served them. Because of this, He brought all this ruin on them.

Solomon's Later Building Projects

8 At the end of 20 years [a] during which Solomon had built the LORD*'s temple* and his own palace — [2] Solomon had rebuilt the cities Hiram [b] gave him and settled Israelites there — [3] Solomon went to Hamath-zobah and seized it. [4]
He built Tadmor in the wilderness along with all the storage cities that he built in Hamath. [5] He built Upper Beth-horon and Lower Beth-horon [c] — fortified cities with walls, gates, and bars [d] — [6] Baalath, all the storage cities that belonged to Solomon, all the chariot cities, the cavalry cities, and everything Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, Lebanon, or anywhere else in the land of his dominion.

[7] As for all the peoples who remained of the Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, who were not from Israel [e] — [8] their descendants who remained in the land after them, those the Israelites had not completely destroyed — Solomon imposed forced labor on them; it is this way today. [f]
[9] But Solomon did not consign the Israelites to be slaves for his work; they were soldiers, commanders of his captains, and commanders of his chariots and his cavalry. [10] These were King Solomon's deputies: 250 who ruled over the people.

[11] Solomon brought the daughter of Pharaoh from the city of David to the house he had built for her, [g] for he said, "My wife must not live in the house [h] of David king of Israel because the places the ark of the LORD has come into are holy."

Public Worship Established at the Temple [12] At that time [i] Solomon offered •burnt offerings to the LORD on the LORD*'s altar he had made in front of the* portico. [j] [13] He followed the daily requirement [k] for offerings according to the commandment of Moses [l] for Sabbaths, New Moons, and the three annual appointed festivals: the Festival of Unleavened Bread, the Festival of Weeks, and the Festival of Booths. [m] [14] According to the ordinances of his father David, he appointed the divisions of the priests over their service, [n] of the Levites over their responsibilities to offer praise and to minister before the priests following the daily requirement, [o] and of the gatekeepers by their divisions with respect to each gate, [p] for this had been the command of David, the man of God. [q] [15] They did not turn aside from the king's command regarding the priests and the Levites concerning any matter or concerning the treasuries. [r] [16] All of Solomon's work was carried out from the day the foundation was laid for the LORD*'s temple until* it was finished. So the LORD*'s temple was completed.*

Solomon's Fleet

17 At that time [s] Solomon went to Ezion-geber and to Eloth [t] on the seashore in the land of Edom. 18 So Hiram [A] sent ships to him by his servants along with crews of experienced seamen. They went with Solomon's servants to Ophir, took from there 17 tons [B] of gold, and delivered it to King Solomon. [u]

The Queen of Sheba

9 The queen of Sheba heard of Solomon's fame, [a] so she came to test Solomon with difficult questions at Jerusalem with a very large entourage, with camels bearing spices, gold in abundance, and precious stones. She came to Solomon and spoke with him about everything that was on her mind. [2] So Solomon answered all her questions; nothing was too difficult for Solomon to explain to her. [3] When the queen of Sheba observed Solomon's wisdom, the palace he had built, [4] the food at his table, his servants' residence, his attendants' service and their attire, his cupbearers and their attire, and the •burnt offerings he offered at the LORD's temple, it took her breath away.

[5] She said to the king, "The report I heard in my own country about your words and about your wisdom is true. [6] But I didn't believe their reports until I came and saw with my own eyes. Indeed, I was not even told half of your great wisdom! You far exceed the report I heard. [7] How happy are your men. [b, c] How happy are these servants of yours, who always stand in your presence hearing your wisdom. [8] May the LORD your God be praised! He delighted in you and put you on His throne as king for the LORD your God. [d] Because Your God loved Israel enough to establish them forever, He has set you over them as king to carry out justice and righteousness." [e]

[9] Then she gave the king four and a half tons [A] of gold, a great quantity of spices, and precious stones. There never were such spices as those the queen of Sheba gave to King Solomon. [10] In addition, Hiram's servants and Solomon's servants who brought gold from Ophir [f] also brought algum wood and precious stones. [11] The king made the algum wood into walkways for the LORD's temple and for the king's palace and into lyres and harps for the singers. Never before had anything like them been seen in the land of Judah.

[12] King Solomon gave the queen of Sheba her every desire, whatever she asked — far more than she had brought the king. Then she, along with her servants, returned to her own country.

Solomon's Wealth

[13] The weight of gold that came to Solomon [g] annually was 25 tons, [B] [14] besides what was brought by the merchants and traders. All the Arabian kings and governors of the land also brought gold and silver to Solomon.

[15] King Solomon made 200 large shields of hammered gold; 15 pounds [C] of hammered gold went into each shield. [16] He made 300 small shields of hammered gold; about eight pounds [D] of gold went into each shield. The king put them in the House of the Forest of Lebanon. [h]

17 The king also made a large ivory throne and overlaid it with pure gold.
18 The throne had six steps; there was a footstool covered in gold for the throne, armrests on either side of the seat, and two lions standing beside the armrests.
19 Twelve lions were standing there on the six steps, one at each end. Nothing like it had ever been made in any other kingdom.
20 All of King Solomon's drinking cups were gold, and all the utensils of the House of the Forest of Lebanon were pure gold. There was no silver, since it was considered as nothing in Solomon's time, 21 for the king's ships kept going to Tarshish [i] with Hiram's servants, and once every three years the ships of Tarshish would arrive bearing gold, silver, ivory, apes, and peacocks. [E]
22 King Solomon surpassed all the kings of the world in riches and wisdom. [j] 23 All the kings of the world wanted an audience with Solomon to hear the wisdom God had put in his heart. 24 Each of them would bring his own gift — items [F] of silver and gold, clothing, weapons, [k,] [G] spices, and horses and mules — as an annual tribute.
25 Solomon [l] had 4,000 stalls for horses and chariots, and 12,000 horsemen. [m]
He stationed them in the chariot cities and with the king in Jerusalem. 26 He ruled over all the kings from the Euphrates River to the land of the Philistines and as far as the border of Egypt. [n] 27 The king made silver as common in Jerusalem as stones, and he made cedar as abundant as sycamore in the Judean foothills. 28 They were bringing horses for Solomon from Egypt and from all the countries.

Solomon's Death

29 The remaining events [o] of Solomon's reign, from beginning to end, are written in the Events of Nathan the Prophet, the Prophecy of Ahijah the Shilonite, and the Visions of Iddo the Seer concerning Jeroboam son of Nebat. [p] 30 Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel for 40 years. 31 Solomon rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of his father David. [q] His son Rehoboam became king in his place.

The Kingdom Divided

10 Then Rehoboam went to Shechem, [a] for all Israel had gone to Shechem to make him king. 2 When Jeroboam son of Nebat heard about it — for he was in Egypt where he had fled from King Solomon's presence — Jeroboam returned from Egypt. [b] 3 So they summoned him. Then Jeroboam and all Israel came and spoke to Rehoboam: 4 "Your father made our yoke difficult.
Therefore, lighten your father's harsh service and the heavy yoke he put on us, and we will serve you."

5 Rehoboam replied, "Return to me in three days." So the people left.

6 Then King Rehoboam consulted with the elders who had served his father Solomon when he was alive, asking, "How do you advise me to respond to these people? "

7 They replied, "If you will be kind to these people and please them by speaking kind words to them, they will be your servants forever."

8 But he rejected the advice of the elders who had advised him, and he consulted with the young men who had grown up with him, the ones serving him. 9 He asked them, "What message do you advise we send back to these people who said to me, 'Lighten the yoke your father put on us'? "

10 Then the young men who had grown up with him told him, "This is what you should say to the people who said to you, 'Your father made our yoke heavy, but you, make it lighter on us! ' This is what you should say to them: 'My little finger is thicker than my father's loins. [A] 11 Now therefore, my father burdened you with a heavy yoke, but I will add to your yoke; my father disciplined you with whips, but I, with barbed whips.' " [B]

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam on the third day, just as the king had ordered, saying, "Return to me on the third day." 13 Then the king answered them harshly. King Rehoboam rejected the elders' advice 14 and spoke to them according to the young men's advice, saying, "My father made your yoke heavy, [c, d] but I will add to it; my father disciplined you with whips, but I, with barbed whips." [C]

15 The king did not listen to the people because the turn of events came from God, [e] in order that the LORD might carry out His word that He had spoken through Ahijah the Shilonite to Jeroboam son of Nebat. [f]

16 When [g] all Israel saw [h, i] that the king had not listened to them, the people answered the king:

What portion do we have in David?
We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse.
Israel, each man to your tent;

David, look after your own house now!
So all Israel went to their tents. 17 But as for the Israelites living in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.
18 Then King Rehoboam sent Hadoram, j, k who was in charge of the forced labor, but the Israelites stoned him to death. However, King Rehoboam managed to get into his chariot to flee to Jerusalem. 19 Israel is in rebellion against the house of David until today.

Rehoboam in Jerusalem

11 When Rehoboam arrived in Jerusalem, [a] he mobilized the house of Judah and Benjamin — 180,000 choice warriors — to fight against Israel to restore the reign to Rehoboam. [2] But the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah, [b] the man of God: [3] "Say to Rehoboam son of Solomon, king of Judah, to all Israel in Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people: [4] 'This is what the LORD says: You are not to march up and fight against your brothers. [c] Each of you must return home, for this incident has come from Me.' " [d]

So they listened to what the LORD said and turned back from going against Jeroboam.

Judah's King Rehoboam

[5] Rehoboam stayed in Jerusalem, and he fortified cities [A, e] in Judah. [6] He built up Bethlehem, Etam, Tekoa, [7] Beth-zur, Soco, Adullam, [8] Gath, Mareshah, Ziph, [9] Adoraim, Lachish, Azekah, [10] Zorah, Aijalon, and Hebron, which are fortified cities in Judah and in Benjamin. [11] He strengthened their fortifications and put leaders in them with supplies of food, oil, and wine. [12] He also put large shields and spears in each and every city to make them very strong. So Judah and Benjamin were his.

[13] The priests and Levites from all their regions throughout Israel took their stand with Rehoboam, [14] for the Levites left their pasturelands and their possessions [f] and went to Judah and Jerusalem, because Jeroboam and his sons refused to let them serve as priests of •Yahweh . [g] [15] Jeroboam appointed his own priests for the •high places, [h] the goat-demons, [i] and the golden calves he had made. [j] [16] Those from every tribe of Israel who had determined in their hearts to seek Yahweh their God followed the Levites to Jerusalem to sacrifice to Yahweh, the God of their ancestors. [17] So they strengthened the kingdom of Judah and supported Rehoboam son of Solomon for three years, [k] because they walked in the way of David and Solomon for three years.

[18] Rehoboam married Mahalath, daughter of David's son Jerimoth and of Abihail daughter of Jesse's son Eliab. [l] [19] She bore sons to him: Jeush, Shemariah, and Zaham. [20] After her, he married Maacah daughter [B, m] of Absalom. She bore Abijah, Attai, Ziza, and Shelomith to him. [21] Rehoboam loved Maacah daughter [C] of Absalom more than all his wives and concubines.
He acquired 18 wives [n] and 60 concubines and was the father of 28 sons and 60 daughters.

[22] Rehoboam appointed Abijah son of Maacah as chief, leader among his brothers, intending to make him king. [o] [23] Rehoboam also showed discernment by dispersing some of his sons to all the regions of Judah and Benjamin and to all the fortified cities. He gave them plenty of provisions and sought many wives for them.

Shishak's Invasion

12 When Rehoboam had established his sovereignty and royal power, [a] he abandoned the law of the LORD — he and all Israel with him. 2 Because they were unfaithful to the LORD, in the fifth year of King Rehoboam, Shishak [b] king of Egypt went to war against Jerusalem [c] 3 with 1,200 chariots, 60,000 cavalrymen, and countless people who came with him from Egypt — Libyans, [d] Sukkiim, and Cushites. 4 He captured the fortified cities [e] of Judah and came as far as Jerusalem.

5 Then Shemaiah [f] the prophet went to Rehoboam and the leaders of Judah who were gathered at Jerusalem because of Shishak. He said to them: "This is what the LORD says: 'You have abandoned Me; therefore, I have abandoned you into the hand of Shishak.' " [g]

6 So the leaders of Israel and the king humbled themselves and said, "•Yahweh is righteous." [h]

7 When the LORD saw that they had humbled themselves, the LORD's message came to Shemaiah: "They have humbled themselves; I will not destroy them but will grant them a little deliverance. [i] My wrath will not be poured out on Jerusalem through Shishak. [j] 8 However, they will become his servants so that they may recognize the difference between serving Me and serving the kingdoms of other lands." [k]

9 So King Shishak of Egypt went to war [l] against Jerusalem. [m] He seized the treasuries of the LORD's temple and the treasuries of the royal palace. He took everything. He took the gold shields that Solomon had made. [n] 10 King Rehoboam made bronze shields in their place and committed them into the care of the captains of the royal escorts [A] who guarded the entrance to the king's palace. 11 Whenever the king entered the LORD's temple, the royal escorts would carry the shields and take them back to the royal escorts' armory. 12 When Rehoboam humbled himself, the LORD's anger turned away from him, and He did not destroy him completely. [o] Besides that, conditions were good in Judah. [p]

Rehoboam's Last Days

13 King Rehoboam [q] established his royal power in Jerusalem. Rehoboam was 41 years old when he became king and reigned 17 years in Jerusalem, the city the LORD had chosen from all the tribes of Israel to put His name. [r] Rehoboam's mother's name was Naamah the Ammonite. 14 Rehoboam did what was evil, because he did not determine in his heart to seek the LORD. [s]

15 The events [t] of Rehoboam's reign, from beginning to end, are written in the Events of Shemaiah [u] the Prophet and of Iddo the Seer concerning genealogies.

[v] There was war between Rehoboam and Jeroboam throughout their reigns.
16 Rehoboam rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. His son Abijah [w, x] became king in his place.

Judah’s King Abijah

13 In the eighteenth year [a] of Israel's King Jeroboam, Abijah [b] became king over Judah [2] and reigned three years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Micaiah [c, d] daughter of Uriel; she was from Gibeah.

There was war between Abijah and Jeroboam. [3] Abijah set his army of warriors in order with 400,000 choice men. Jeroboam arranged his mighty army of 800,000 choice men in battle formation against him. [4] Then Abijah stood on Mount Zemaraim, [e] which is in the hill country of Ephraim, and said, "Jeroboam and all Israel, hear me. [5] Don't you know that the LORD God of Israel gave the kingship over Israel to David and his descendants forever [f] by a covenant of salt? [g] [6] But Jeroboam son of Nebat, a servant of Solomon son of David, rose up and rebelled against his lord. [h] [7] Then worthless and •wicked men gathered around him to resist Rehoboam son of Solomon when Rehoboam was young, inexperienced, and unable to assert himself against them.

[8] "And now you are saying you can assert yourselves against the LORD's kingdom, which is in the hand of one of David's sons. You are a vast number and have with you the golden calves that Jeroboam made for you as gods. [A, i] [9] Didn't you banish the priests of •Yahweh , the descendants of Aaron and the Levites, and make your own priests like the peoples of other lands do? [j] Whoever comes to ordain himself [k] with a young bull and seven rams may become a priest [l] of what are not gods. [m]

[10] "But as for us, Yahweh is our God. We have not abandoned Him; the priests ministering to the LORD are descendants of Aaron, and the Levites serve at their tasks. [11] They offer a •burnt offering and fragrant incense to the LORD every morning and every evening, [n] and they set the rows of the •bread of the Presence on the ceremonially •clean table. [o] They light the lamps of the gold lampstand every evening. We are carrying out the requirements of Yahweh our God, while you have abandoned Him. [p] [12] Look, God and His priests are with us at our head. The trumpets are ready to sound the charge against you. Israelites, don't fight against the LORD God of your ancestors, for you will not succeed." [q]

[13] Now Jeroboam had sent an ambush [r] around to advance from behind them.
So they were in front of Judah, and the ambush was behind them. [14] Judah turned and discovered that the battle was in front of them and behind them, so they cried out to the LORD. [s] Then the priests blew the trumpets, [15] and the men of Judah raised the battle cry. When the men of Judah raised the battle cry, God routed Jeroboam and all Israel before Abijah and Judah. [t] [16] So the Israelites fled before Judah, and God handed them over to them. [u] [17] Then Abijah and his people struck them with a mighty blow, and 500,000 choice men of Israel were killed. 18 The Israelites were subdued at that time. The Judahites succeeded because they depended on the LORD, the God of their ancestors.

19 Abijah pursued Jeroboam and captured some cities from him: Bethel and its villages, Jeshanah and its villages, and Ephron [v] and its villages. 20 Jeroboam no longer retained his power [B] during Abijah's reign; ultimately, the LORD struck him [w] and he died. [x]

21 However, Abijah grew strong, acquired 14 wives, and fathered 22 sons and 16 daughters. 22 The rest of the events of Abijah's reign, along with his ways and his sayings, are written in the Writing [y] of the Prophet Iddo. [z]

14 [a] Abijah rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. His son Asa became king in his place. [b] During his reign the land experienced peace for 10 years.

Judah's King Asa

2 [c] Asa did what was good and right [d] in the sight of the LORD his God. 3 He removed the pagan altars and the •high places. He shattered their sacred pillars and chopped down their •Asherah poles. [e] 4 He told the people of Judah to seek the LORD God of their ancestors and to carry out the instruction and the commands. 5 He also removed the high places and the incense altars from all the cities of Judah, [f] and the kingdom experienced peace under him.

6 Because the land experienced peace, Asa built fortified cities in Judah. [g] No one made war with him in those days because the LORD gave him rest. [h] 7 So he said to the people of Judah, "Let's build these cities and surround them with walls and towers, with doors and bars. [i] The land is still ours because we sought the LORD our God. We sought Him and He gave us rest on every side." So they built and succeeded.

The Cushite Invasion

8 Asa had an army of 300,000 from Judah bearing large shields and spears, [j] and 280,000 from Benjamin bearing regular shields and drawing the bow. All these were brave warriors. 9 Then Zerah the •Cushite came against them with an army of one million men and 300 [k] chariots. They came as far as Mareshah.
10 So Asa marched out against him and lined up in battle formation in the Valley of Zephathah at Mareshah. [l]

11 Then Asa cried out to the LORD his God: [m] "LORD, there is no one besides You to help the mighty and those without strength. Help us, LORD our God, for we depend on You, [n] and in Your name we have come against this large army.
•Yahweh , You are our God. Do not let a mere mortal hinder You."

12 So the LORD routed the Cushites before Asa and before Judah, [o] and the Cushites fled. 13 Then Asa and the people who were with him pursued them as far as Gerar. [p] The Cushites fell until they had no survivors, for they were crushed before Yahweh and His army. So the people of Judah carried off a great supply of loot. 14 Then they attacked all the cities around Gerar because the terror of the LORD was on them. [q] They also plundered all the cities, since there was a great deal of plunder in them. 15 They also attacked the tents of the herdsmen and captured many sheep and camels. Then they returned to Jerusalem.

Revival Under Asa

15 The Spirit of God came on Azariah son of Oded. [a] 2 So he went out to meet Asa and said to him, “Asa and all Judah and Benjamin, hear me. The LORD is with you [b] when you are with Him. If you seek Him, He will be found by you, [c] but if you abandon Him, He will abandon you. [d] 3 For many years Israel has been without the true God, [e] without a teaching priest, and without instruction, [f] 4 but when they turned to the LORD God of Israel in their distress and sought Him, He was found by them. 5 In those times there was no peace for those who went about their daily activities because the residents of the lands had many conflicts. 6 Nation was crushed by nation and city by city, for God troubled them with every possible distress. 7 But as for you, be strong; don’t be discouraged, [A] for your work has a reward.” [g]

8 When Asa heard these words and the prophecy of Azariah son of Oded the prophet, he took courage and removed the detestable idols from the whole land of Judah and Benjamin and from the cities he had captured in the hill country of Ephraim. [h] He renovated the altar of the LORD that was in front of the portico of the LORD’s temple. [i] 9 Then he gathered all Judah and Benjamin, as well as those from the tribes of Ephraim, Manasseh, and Simeon who had settled among them, for they had defected to him from Israel in great numbers when they saw that •Yahweh his God was with him. [j]

10 They were gathered in Jerusalem in the third month of the fifteenth year of Asa’s reign. 11 At that time they sacrificed to the LORD 700 cattle and 7,000 sheep from all the plunder they had brought. [k] 12 Then they entered into a covenant to seek the LORD God of their ancestors with all their mind and all their heart. [l] 13 Whoever would not seek the LORD God of Israel would be put to death, young or old, [B] man or woman. [m] 14 They took an oath to the LORD in a loud voice, with shouting, with trumpets, and with rams’ horns. 15 All Judah rejoiced over the oath, for they had sworn it with all their mind. They had sought Him with all their heart, and He was found by them. [n] So the LORD gave them rest on every side. [o]

16 King Asa [p] also removed Maacah, his grandmother, [C,] [q] from being queen mother because she had made an obscene image of •Asherah . Asa chopped down her obscene image, then crushed it and burned it in the Kidron Valley. [r] 17
The •high places were not taken away from Israel; nevertheless, Asa was wholehearted his entire life. [D] 18 He brought his father’s consecrated gifts and his own consecrated gifts into God’s temple: silver, gold, and utensils.

19 There was no war until the thirty-fifth year of Asa’s reign.

Asa's Treaty with Aram

16 In the thirty-sixth year of Asa, [a] Israel's King Baasha went to war against Judah. He built Ramah in order to deny access to anyone — going or coming — to Judah's King Asa. 2 So Asa brought out the silver and gold from the treasuries of the LORD's temple and the royal palace and sent it to Aram's King Ben-hadad, who lived in Damascus, saying, 3 "There's a treaty between me and you, between my father and your father. Look, I have sent you silver and gold. Go break your treaty with Israel's King Baasha so that he will withdraw from me."
4 Ben-hadad listened to King Asa and sent the commanders of his armies to the cities of Israel. They attacked Ijon, Dan, Abel-maim, [A] and all the storage cities [b] of Naphtali. 5 When Baasha heard about it, he quit building Ramah and stopped his work. 6 Then King Asa brought all Judah, and they carried away the stones of Ramah and the timbers Baasha had built it with. Then he built Geba and Mizpah with them.

Hanani's Rebuke of Asa

7 At that time, Hanani [c] the seer came to King Asa of Judah and said to him,
"Because you depended on the king of Aram and have not depended on the LORD your God, [d] the army of the king of Aram has escaped from your hand. 8 Were not the •Cushites and Libyans a vast army with many chariots and horsemen? [e]
When you depended on •Yahweh , He handed them over to you. [f] 9 For the eyes of Yahweh roam throughout the earth [g] to show Himself strong for those whose hearts are completely His. [h] You have been foolish in this matter. Therefore, you will have wars from now on." 10 Asa was angry with the seer and put him in prison [B] because of his anger over this. And Asa mistreated some of the people at that time.

Asa's Death

11 Note that the events [i] of Asa's reign, from beginning to end, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. 12 In the thirty-ninth year of his reign, Asa developed a disease in his feet, and his disease became increasingly severe.
Yet even in his disease he didn't seek the LORD but only the physicians. 13 Asa died in the forty-first year of his reign and rested with his fathers. 14 He was buried in his own tomb that he had made for himself in the city of David. They laid him out in a coffin that was full of spices and various mixtures of prepared ointments; [j] then they made a great fire in his honor. [k]

Judah’s King Jehoshaphat

17 His son Jehoshaphat became king in his place [a] and strengthened himself against Israel. 2 He stationed troops in every fortified city of Judah [b] and set garrisons in the land of Judah and in the cities of Ephraim that his father Asa had captured. [c]
3 Now the LORD was with Jehoshaphat because he walked in the former ways of his father David. [d] He did not seek the •Baals 4 but sought the God of his father and walked by His commands, not according to the practices of Israel. [e] 5 So the LORD established the kingdom in his hand. Then all Judah brought him tribute, and he had riches and honor in abundance. [f] 6 His mind rejoiced in the LORD's ways, and he again [g] removed the •high places and •Asherah poles from Judah. [h]

Jehoshaphat's Educational Plan

7 In the third year of his reign, Jehoshaphat sent his officials — Ben-hail, [i] Obadiah, Zechariah, Nethanel, and Micaiah — to teach in the cities of Judah. [j]
8 The Levites with them were Shemaiah, Nethaniah, Zebadiah, [k] Asahel, Shemiramoth, Jehonathan, Adonijah, Tobijah, and Tob-adonijah; the priests, Elishama and Jehoram, were with these Levites. 9 They taught throughout Judah, having the book of the LORD's instruction with them. [l] They went throughout the towns of Judah and taught the people.
10 The terror of the LORD was on all the kingdoms of the lands that surrounded Judah, [m] so they didn't fight against Jehoshaphat. 11 Some of the Philistines also brought gifts and silver as tribute to Jehoshaphat, and the Arabs brought him flocks: 7,700 rams and 7,700 male goats. [n]

Jehoshaphat's Military Might

12 Jehoshaphat grew stronger and stronger. He built fortresses [o] and storage cities in Judah 13 and carried out great works in the towns of Judah. He had fighting men, brave warriors, in Jerusalem. 14 These are their numbers according to their ancestral families. For Judah, the commanders of thousands:

Adnah the commander and 300,000 brave warriors with him;
15 next to him, Jehohanan the commander and 280,000 with him;
16 next to him, Amasiah son of Zichri, the volunteer [p] of the LORD, and 200,000 brave warriors with him;
17 from Benjamin, Eliada, a brave warrior, and 200,000 with him armed with bow and shield;

18 next to him, Jehozabad and 180,000 with him equipped for war.
19 These were the ones who served the king, besides those he stationed in the fortified cities throughout all Judah. ף

Jehoshaphat's Alliance with Ahab

18 Now Jehoshaphat [a] had riches and honor in abundance, [b] and he made an alliance with Ahab through marriage. [A, c] 2 Then after some years, he went down to visit Ahab in Samaria. Ahab sacrificed many sheep and cattle for him and for the people who were with him. Then he persuaded him to march up to Ramoth-gilead, 3 for Israel's King Ahab asked Judah's King Jehoshaphat, "Will you go with me to Ramoth-gilead? "

He replied to him, "I am as you are, my people as your people; we will be with you in the battle." 4 But Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, "First, please ask what the LORD's will is."

5 So the king of Israel gathered the prophets, 400 men, and asked them, "Should we go to Ramoth-gilead for war or should I refrain? "

They replied, "March up, and God will hand it over to the king."

6 But Jehoshaphat asked, "Isn't there a prophet of •Yahweh here anymore? Let's ask him." [d]

7 The king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "There is still one man who can ask Yahweh, but I hate him because he never prophesies good about me, but only disaster. He is Micaiah son of Imlah."

"The king shouldn't say that," Jehoshaphat replied.

8 So the king of Israel called an officer and said, "Hurry and get Micaiah son of Imlah! "

9 Now the king of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah, clothed in royal attire, were each sitting on his own throne. They were sitting on the threshing floor at the entrance to Samaria's •gate , [e] and all the prophets were prophesying in front of them. 10 Then Zedekiah son of Chenaanah made iron horns and said, "This is what the LORD says: 'You will gore the Arameans with these until they are finished off.' " 11 And all the prophets were prophesying the same, saying, "March up to Ramoth-gilead and succeed, for the LORD will hand it over to the king."

Micaiah's Message of Defeat 12 The messenger who went to call Micaiah instructed him, "Look, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable for the king. So let your words be like theirs, and speak favorably."

13 But Micaiah said, "As the LORD lives, I will say whatever my God says." [f, g]

14 So he went to the king, and the king asked him, "Micaiah, should we go to Ramoth-gilead for war, or should I [h] refrain? "

Micaiah said, "March up and succeed, for they will be handed over to you."

15 But the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear not to tell me anything but the truth in the name of Yahweh? ”
16 So Micaiah said:

I saw all Israel scattered on the hills like sheep without a shepherd. [i]
And the Lord said,
“They have no master;
let each return home in peace.”

17 So the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Didn’t I tell you he never prophesies good about me, but only disaster? ” 18 Then Micaiah said, “Therefore, hear the word of the Lord. I saw the Lord sitting on His throne, and the whole heavenly •host was standing at His right hand and at His left hand. [j] 19 And the Lord said, ‘Who will entice Ahab king of Israel to march up and fall at Ramoth-gilead? ’ So one was saying this and another was saying that.
20 “Then [k] a spirit came forward, stood before the Lord, and said, ‘I will entice him.’
“The Lord asked him, ‘How? ’
21 “So he said, ‘I will go and become a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’
“Then He said, ‘You will entice him and also prevail. Go and do that.’
22 “Now, you see, the Lord has put a lying spirit into the mouth of [l] these prophets of yours, and the Lord has pronounced disaster against you.” 23 Then Zedekiah son of Chenaanah came up, hit Micaiah in the face, and demanded, “Which way did the spirit from the Lord leave me to speak to you? ” 24 Micaiah replied, “You will soon see when you go to hide yourself in an inner chamber on that day.” [m] 25 Then the king of Israel ordered, “Take Micaiah and return him [n] to Amon, the governor of the city, [o] and to Joash, the king’s son, 26 and say, ‘This is what the king says: Put this guy in prison [p] and feed him only bread and water [B] until I come back safely.’ ” 27 But Micaiah said, “If you ever return safely, the Lord has not spoken through me.” Then he said, “Listen, all you people! ” [q]

Ahab’s Death

28 Then the king of Israel and Judah’s King Jehoshaphat went up to Ramoth-gilead. 29 But the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “I will disguise myself and go into battle, but you wear your royal attire.” So the king of Israel disguised himself, and they went into battle. [r]

30 Now the king of Aram had ordered his chariot commanders, “Do not fight with anyone, small or great, except the king of Israel.”

31 When the chariot commanders saw Jehoshaphat, they shouted, “He must be the king of Israel! ” So they turned to attack him, but Jehoshaphat cried out [s] and the LORD helped him. God drew them away from him. 32 When the chariot commanders saw that he was not the king of Israel, they turned back from pursuing him.

33 But a man drew his bow without taking special aim and struck the king of Israel through the joints of his armor. So he said to the charioteer, “Turn around and take me out of the battle, [t] for I am badly wounded! ” [u] 34 The battle raged throughout that day, and the king of Israel propped himself up in his chariot facing the Arameans until evening. Then he died at sunset.

Jehu’s Rebuke of Jehoshaphat

19 Jehoshaphat king of Judah returned to his home in Jerusalem in peace.
2 Then Jehu [a] son of Hanani the seer went out to confront him [A] and said to King Jehoshaphat, “Do you help the wicked and love those who hate the Lord? [b] Because of this, the Lord’s wrath is on you. [c] 3 However, some good is found in you, for you have removed the •Asherah poles from the land and have decided to seek God.” [d]

Jehoshaphat’s Reforms

4 Jehoshaphat lived in Jerusalem, and once again he went out among the people from Beer-sheba to the hill country of Ephraim and brought them back to •Yahweh , the God of their ancestors. [e] 5 He appointed judges in all the fortified cities of the land of Judah, city by city. [f] 6 Then he said to the judges, “Consider what you are doing, for you do not judge for man, but for the Lord, who is with you in the matter of judgment. [g] 7 And now, may the terror of the Lord be on you. Watch what you do, for there is no injustice or partiality or taking bribes with the Lord our God.” [h]

8 Jehoshaphat also appointed in Jerusalem some of the Levites and priests and some of the heads of the Israelite families for deciding the Lord’s will and for settling disputes of the residents of [i] Jerusalem. 9 He commanded them, saying, “In the •fear of the Lord, with integrity, and with a whole heart, you are to do the following: 10 for every dispute that comes to you from your brothers who dwell in their cities — whether it regards differences of bloodguilt, law, commandment, statutes, or judgments [j] — you are to warn them, so they will not incur •guilt before the Lord and wrath will not come on you and your brothers. [k] Do this, and you will not incur guilt.

11 “Note that Amariah, the chief priest, is over you in all matters related to the Lord, and Zebadiah son of Ishmael, the ruler of the house of Judah, in all matters related to the king, and the Levites are officers in your presence. Be strong; may the Lord be with those who do what is good.” [l]

War against Eastern Enemies

20 After this, the Moabites and Ammonites, together with some of the Meunites, [a, b] came to fight against Jehoshaphat. 2 People came and told Jehoshaphat, “A vast number from beyond the Dead Sea and from Edom [c] has come to fight against you; they are already in Hazazon-tamar” [d] (that is, En-gedi). 3 Jehoshaphat was afraid, and he resolved [e] to seek the Lord. Then he proclaimed a fast [f] for all Judah, 4 who gathered to seek the Lord. They even came from all the cities of Judah to seek Him.

Jehoshaphat’s Prayer

5 Then Jehoshaphat stood in the assembly of Judah and Jerusalem in the Lord’s temple before the new courtyard. 6 He said:

> •Yahweh , the God of our ancestors, are You not the God who is in > heaven, [g] and do You not rule over all the kingdoms of the nations? [h]
> Power and might are in Your hand, and no one can stand against You.
> 7 Are You not our God who drove out the inhabitants of this land > before Your people Israel [i] and who gave it forever to the descendants > of Abraham [j] Your friend? 8 They have lived in the land and have built > You a sanctuary in it for Your name and have said, 9 “If disaster comes > on us — sword or judgment, pestilence or famine [k] — we will stand > before this temple and before You, for Your name is in this temple. [l]
> We will cry out to You because of our distress, and You will hear and > deliver.”
>
> 10 Now here are the Ammonites, Moabites, and the inhabitants of > Mount Seir. [m] You did not let Israel invade them when Israel came out > of the land of Egypt, but Israel turned away from them and did not > destroy them. [n] 11 Look how they repay us by coming to drive us out > of Your possession that You gave us as an inheritance. 12 Our God, > will You not judge them? [o] For we are powerless before this vast > number that comes to fight against us. We do not know what to do, but > we look to You. [A, p]

God’s Answer

13 All Judah was standing before the Lord with their infants, their wives, and their children. 14 In the middle of the congregation, the Spirit of the Lord came on [q] Jahaziel (son of Zechariah, son of Benaiah, son of Jeiel, son of Mattaniah, a Levite from •Asaph ’s descendants), 15 and he said, “Listen carefully, all Judah and you inhabitants of Jerusalem, and King Jehoshaphat. This is what the LORD says: ‘Do not be afraid or discouraged because of this vast number, [r] for the battle is not yours, but God’s. [s] 16 Tomorrow, go down against them. You will see them coming up the Ascent of Ziz, and you will find them at the end of the valley facing the Wilderness of Jeruel. 17 You do not have to fight this battle. Position yourselves, stand still, and see the salvation of the LORD. [t] He is with you, Judah and Jerusalem. Do not be afraid or discouraged. [u] Tomorrow, go out to face them, for Yahweh is with you.’ ” [v]

18 Then Jehoshaphat bowed with his face to the ground, and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell down before the LORD to worship Him. [w] 19 Then the Levites from the sons of the Kohathites and the Korahites [x] stood up to praise the LORD God of Israel shouting with a loud voice.

Victory and Plunder

20 In the morning they got up early and went out to the wilderness of Tekoa.
As they were about to go out, Jehoshaphat stood and said, “Hear me, Judah and you inhabitants of Jerusalem. Believe in Yahweh your God, and you will be established; [y] believe in His prophets, and you will succeed.” 21 Then he consulted with the people and appointed some to sing for the LORD and some to praise the splendor of His holiness. [z] When they went out in front of the armed forces, they kept singing: [B]

Give thanks to the LORD, for His faithful love endures forever. [a]

22 The moment they began their shouts and praises, the LORD set an ambush [b] against the Ammonites, Moabites, and the inhabitants of Mount Seir who came to fight against Judah, and they were defeated. 23 The Ammonites and Moabites turned against the inhabitants of Mount Seir and •completely annihilated them. [c]
When they had finished with the inhabitants of Seir, they helped destroy each other. [d]

24 When Judah came to a place overlooking the wilderness, they looked for the large army, but there were only corpses lying on the ground; nobody had escaped. 25 Then Jehoshaphat and his people went to gather the plunder. They found among them [e] an abundance of goods on the bodies [f] and valuable items.
So they stripped them until nobody could carry any more. They were gathering the plunder for three days because there was so much. 26 They assembled in the Valley of Beracah [g] on the fourth day, for there they praised the LORD.
Therefore, that place is still called the Valley of Beracah today.

27 Then all the men of Judah and Jerusalem turned back with Jehoshaphat their leader, returning joyfully to Jerusalem, for the LORD enabled them to rejoice over their enemies. 28 So they came into Jerusalem to the LORD’s temple with harps, lyres, and trumpets.

29 The terror of God [h] was on all the kingdoms of the lands when they heard that Yahweh had fought against the enemies of Israel. 30 Then Jehoshaphat’s kingdom was quiet, for his God gave him rest on every side. [i]

Summary of Jehoshaphat’s Reign

31 Jehoshaphat became king over Judah. [j] He was 35 years old when he became king and reigned 25 years in Jerusalem. His mother’s name was Azubah daughter of Shilhi. 32 He walked in the way of Asa his father; he did not turn away from it but did what was right in the LORD's sight. 33 However, the •high places were not taken away; [k] the people had not yet set their hearts on the God of their ancestors. [l]

34 The rest of the events of Jehoshaphat's reign from beginning to end are written in the Events of Jehu [m] son of Hanani, which is recorded in the Book of Israel's Kings. [n]

Jehoshaphat's Fleet of Ships

35 After this, [o] Judah's King Jehoshaphat made an alliance with Israel's King Ahaziah, who was •guilty of wrongdoing. 36 Jehoshaphat formed an alliance with him to make ships to go to Tarshish, [p] and they made the ships in Eziongeber. 37 Then Eliezer son of Dodavahu of Mareshah prophesied against Jehoshaphat, saying, "Because you formed an alliance with Ahaziah, the LORD has broken up what you have made." So the ships were wrecked and were not able to go to Tarshish.

Jehoram Becomes King Over Judah

21 Jehoshaphat rested with his fathers and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. His son Jehoram [a] became king in his place. [b] 2 He had brothers, sons of Jehoshaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zechariah, Azariah, Michael, and Shephatiah; all these were the sons of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah. [c] 3 Their father had given them many gifts of silver, gold, and valuable things, along with fortified cities [d] in Judah, but he gave the kingdom to Jehoram because he was the firstborn. 4 When Jehoram had established himself over his father's kingdom, he strengthened his position by killing with the sword all his brothers as well as some of the princes of Israel.

Judah's King Jehoram

5 Jehoram [e] was 32 years old when he became king and reigned eight years in Jerusalem. 6 He walked in the way of the kings of Israel, as the house of Ahab had done, [f] for Ahab's daughter was his wife. [g] He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, 7 but because of the covenant the LORD had made with David, He was unwilling to destroy the house of David since the LORD had promised [h] to give a lamp [i] to David and to his sons forever.

8 During Jehoram's reign, Edom rebelled against Judah's domination and appointed their own king. 9 So Jehoram crossed into Edom with his commanders and all his chariots. Then at night he set out to attack the Edomites who had surrounded him and the chariot commanders. 10 And now Edom is still in rebellion against Judah's domination today. Libnah also rebelled at that time against his domination because he had abandoned •Yahweh , the God of his ancestors. 11 Jehoram also built •high places [j] in the hills [k] of Judah, and he caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to prostitute themselves, [l] and he led Judah astray.

Elijah's Letter to Jehoram

12 Then a letter came to Jehoram from Elijah the prophet, saying:

This is what Yahweh, the God of your ancestor David says: "Because you have not walked in the ways of your father Jehoshaphat [m] or in the ways of Asa king of Judah [n] 13 but have walked in the way of the kings of Israel, [o] have caused Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to prostitute themselves like the house of Ahab [p] prostituted itself, and also have killed your brothers, [q] your father's family, who were better than you, 14 Yahweh is now about to strike your people, your sons, your wives, and all your possessions with a horrible affliction. 15 You yourself will be struck with many illnesses, including a disease of the intestines, until your intestines come out day after day because of the disease.” [r]

Jehoram’s Last Days

16 The Lord put it into the mind of the Philistines and the Arabs [s] who live near the •Cushites to attack Jehoram. [t] 17 So they went to war against Judah and invaded it. They carried off all the possessions found in the king’s palace and also his sons and wives; not a son was left to him except Jehoahaz, [u, v] his youngest son.

18 After all these things, the Lord afflicted him in his intestines with an incurable disease. 19 This continued day after day until two full years passed. Then his intestines came out because of his disease, and he died from severe [A] illnesses. But his people did not hold a fire in his honor like the fire in honor of his fathers. [w]

20 Jehoram [x] was 32 years old when he became king; he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. He died to no one’s regret [B, y] and was buried in the city of David but not in the tombs of the kings. [z]

Judah’s King Ahaziah

22 Then the inhabitants of Jerusalem made Ahaziah, his youngest son, king in his place, because the troops that had come with the Arabs [a] to the camp had killed all the older sons. [A] So Ahaziah son of Jehoram became king of Judah. 2 Ahaziah [b] was 22 [c] years old when he became king and reigned one year in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Athaliah, granddaughter [B] of Omri.
3 He walked in the ways of the house of Ahab, for his mother gave him evil advice. 4 So he did what was evil in the LORD's sight like the house of Ahab, for they were his advisers after the death of his father, to his destruction. 5 He also followed their advice and went with Joram [d] son of Israel's King Ahab to fight against Hazael, king of Aram, in Ramoth-gilead. The Arameans [C] wounded Joram, 6 so he returned to Jezreel to recover from the wounds they inflicted on him in Ramoth-gilead [D] when he fought against Aram's King Hazael. Then Judah's King Ahaziah [e] son of Jehoram went down to Jezreel to visit Joram son of Ahab since Joram was ill.
7 Ahaziah's downfall came from God when he went to Joram. [f] When Ahaziah arrived, he went out with Joram to meet Jehu son of Nimshi, [g] whom the LORD had anointed to destroy the house of Ahab. [h] 8 So when Jehu executed judgment on the house of Ahab, [i] he found the rulers of Judah and the sons of Ahaziah's brothers who were serving Ahaziah, and he killed them. 9 Then Jehu looked for Ahaziah, [j] and Jehu's soldiers captured him (he was hiding in Samaria). So they brought Ahaziah to Jehu, and they killed him. The soldiers buried him, for they said, "He is the grandson of Jehoshaphat who sought the LORD with all his heart." [k] So no one from the house of Ahaziah had the strength to rule the kingdom.

Athaliah Usurps the Throne 10 When [l] Athaliah, Ahaziah's mother, saw that her son was dead, she proceeded to annihilate all the royal heirs [E] of the house of Judah. 11 Jehoshabeath, [m] the king's daughter, rescued Joash son of Ahaziah from the king's sons who were being killed and put him and the one who nursed him in a bedroom. Now Jehoshabeath was the daughter of King Jehoram and the wife of Jehoiada the priest. Since she was Ahaziah's sister, she hid Joash from Athaliah so that she did not kill him. 12 While Athaliah ruled over the land, he was hiding with them in God's temple six years.

Athaliah Overthrown

23 Then, in the seventh year, [a] Jehoiada summoned his courage and took the commanders of hundreds into a covenant with him: Azariah son of Jeroham, Ishmael son of Jehohanan, Azariah son of Obed, Maaseiah son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat son of Zichri. 2 They made a circuit throughout Judah.
They gathered the Levites from all the cities of Judah and the heads of the families of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem.
3 Then the whole assembly made a covenant with the king in God's temple.
Jehoiada said to them, "Here is the king's son! He must reign, just as the LORD promised [b] concerning David's sons. 4 This is what you are to do: a third of you, priests and Levites who are coming on duty on the Sabbath, [c] are to be gatekeepers. 5 A third are to be at the king's palace, and a third are to be at the Foundation Gate, and all the troops will be in the courtyards of the LORD's temple. 6 No one is to enter the LORD's temple but the priests and those Levites who serve; [d] they may enter because they are holy, but all the people are to obey the requirement of the LORD. 7 You must completely surround the king with weapons in hand. Anyone who enters the temple is to be put to death. You must be with the king in all his daily tasks." [A] 8 So the commanders of hundreds did everything Jehoiada the priest commanded. They each brought their men — those coming on duty on the Sabbath and those going off duty on the Sabbath — for Jehoiada the priest did not release the divisions. [e] 9 Jehoiada the priest gave to the commanders of hundreds King David's spears, shields, and quivers [B] that were in God's temple.
10 Then he stationed all the troops with their weapons in hand surrounding the king — from the right side of the temple to the left side, by the altar and by the temple.
11 They brought out the king's son, put the crown on him, gave him the •testimony , [f] and made him king. Jehoiada and his sons anointed him and cried, "Long live the king! " [g] 12 When Athaliah heard the noise from the troops, the guards, and those praising the king, she went to the troops in the LORD's temple. 13 As she looked, there was the king standing by his pillar [h] at the entrance. The commanders and the trumpeters were by the king, and all the people of the land were rejoicing and blowing trumpets [i] while the singers with musical instruments were leading the praise. Athaliah tore her clothes and screamed, "Treason, treason! " 14 Then Jehoiada the priest sent out the commanders of hundreds, those in charge of the army, saying, "Take her out between the ranks, and put anyone who follows her to death by the sword," for the priest had said, "Don't put her to death in the LORD's temple." 15 So they arrested her, and she went by the entrance of the Horses' Gate [j] to the king's palace, where they put her to death.

Jehoiada's Reforms

16 Then Jehoiada made a covenant between himself, the king, and the people that they would be the LORD's people. 17 So all the people went to the temple of •Baal and tore it down. They broke its altars and images into pieces and killed Mattan, the priest of Baal, at the altars. [k]

18 Then Jehoiada put the oversight of the LORD's temple into the hands of the Levitical priests, [l] whom David had appointed [m] over the LORD's temple, to offer •burnt offerings to the LORD as it is written in the law of Moses, [n] with rejoicing and song ordained by [C] David. 19 He stationed gatekeepers [o] at the gates of the LORD's temple so that nothing •unclean could enter for any reason. 20 Then he took with him the commanders of hundreds, the nobles, the governors of the people, and all the people of the land and brought the king down from the LORD's temple. They entered the king's palace through the Upper Gate and seated the king on the throne of the kingdom. 21 All the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet, for they had put Athaliah to death by the sword.

Judah’s King Joash

24 Joash [a] was seven years old when he became king and reigned 40 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Zibiah; she was from Beer-sheba.
2 Throughout the time of Jehoiada the priest, Joash did what was right in the LORD's sight. [b] 3 Jehoiada acquired two wives for him, and he was the father of sons and daughters.

Repairing the Temple

4 Afterward, [c] Joash took it to heart to renovate [d] the LORD's temple. 5 So he gathered the priests and Levites and said, "Go out to the cities of Judah and collect money from all Israel to repair the temple of your God as needed year by year, [e] and do it quickly."

However, the Levites did not hurry. 6 So the king called Jehoiada the high priest and said, "Why haven't you required the Levites to bring from Judah and Jerusalem the tax imposed by the LORD's servant Moses and the assembly of Israel for the tent [f] of the testimony? 7 For the sons of that wicked Athaliah broke into the LORD's temple and even used the sacred things of the LORD's temple for the •Baals ."

8 At the king's command a chest was made and placed outside the gate of the LORD's temple. 9 Then a proclamation [g] was issued in Judah and Jerusalem that the tax God's servant Moses imposed on Israel in the wilderness be brought to the LORD. 10 All the leaders and all the people rejoiced, brought the tax, and put it in the chest until it was full. 11 Whenever the chest was brought by the Levites to the king's overseers, and when they saw that there was a large amount of money, the king's secretary and the high priest's deputy came and emptied the chest, picked it up, and returned it to its place. They did this daily and gathered the money in abundance. 12 Then the king and Jehoiada gave it to those in charge of the labor on the LORD's temple, who were hiring stonecutters and carpenters to renovate the LORD's temple, also blacksmiths and coppersmiths to repair the LORD's temple. [h]

13 The workmen did their work, and through them the repairs progressed.
They restored God's temple to its specifications and reinforced it. 14 When they finished, they presented the rest of the money to the king and Jehoiada, who made articles for the LORD's temple with it — articles for ministry and for making •burnt offerings, and ladles [A] and articles of gold and silver. They regularly offered burnt offerings in the LORD's temple throughout Jehoiada's life.

Joash's Apostasy

15 Jehoiada died when he was old and full of days; he was 130 years old at his death. 16 He was buried in the city of David with the kings [i] because he had done what was good in Israel with respect to God and His temple.

17 However, after Jehoiada died, the rulers of Judah came and paid homage to the king. Then the king listened to them, 18 and they abandoned the temple of •Yahweh , the God of their ancestors and served the •Asherah poles and the idols. [j] So there was wrath [k] against Judah and Jerusalem for this •guilt of theirs.

19 Nevertheless, He sent them prophets [l] to bring them back to the LORD; they admonished them, but the people would not listen. [m] 20 The Spirit of God took control of [B, n] Zechariah son of Jehoiada the priest.
He stood above the people and said to them, “This is what God says, ‘Why are you transgressing the LORD’s commands and you do not prosper? [o] Because you have abandoned the LORD, He has abandoned you.’ ” [p] 21 But they conspired against him and stoned him at the king’s command in the courtyard of the LORD’s temple. [q] 22 King Joash didn’t remember the kindness that Zechariah’s father Jehoiada had extended to him, but killed his son. While he was dying, he said, “May the LORD see and demand [r] an account.”

Aramean Invasion of Judah

23 At the turn of the year, an Aramean army went to war against Joash. [s] They entered Judah and Jerusalem and destroyed all the leaders of the people among them and sent all the plunder to the king of Damascus. 24 Although the Aramean army came with only a few men, the LORD handed over [t] a vast army to them because the people of Judah had abandoned [u] Yahweh, the God of their ancestors. So they executed judgment on Joash.

Joash Assassinated

25 When [v] the Arameans saw that Joash had many wounds, they left him. His servants conspired against him, and killed him on his bed, because he had shed the blood of the sons of Jehoiada the priest. So he died, and they buried him in the city of David, but they did not bury him in the tombs of the kings. [w]

26 Those who conspired against him were Zabad, son of the Ammonite woman Shimeath, and Jehozabad, son of the Moabite woman Shimrith. [x, y]
27 Concerning his sons, the many •oracles about him, and the restoration [z] of the LORD's temple, they are recorded in the Writing [a] of the Book of the Kings. His son Amaziah became king in his place.

Judah’s King Amaziah

25 Amaziah [a] became king when he was 25 years old and reigned 29 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jehoaddan; she was from Jerusalem.
2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight but not wholeheartedly. [b]
3 As soon as the kingdom was firmly in his grasp, [c] he executed his servants who had murdered his father the king. 4 However, he did not put their children to death, because — as it is written in the Law, in the book of Moses, [d] where the LORD commanded — "Fathers must not die because of children, and children must not die because of fathers, but each one will die for his own sin." [e]

Amaziah's Campaign against Edom 5 Then Amaziah gathered Judah and assembled them according to ancestral house, according to commanders of thousands, and according to commanders of hundreds. He numbered those 20 years old or more [f] for all Judah and Benjamin. He found there to be 300,000 choice men who could serve in the army, bearing spear and shield. [g] 6 Then for 7,500 pounds [A] of silver he hired 100,000 brave warriors from Israel.

7 However, a man of God [h] came to him and said, "King, do not let Israel's army go with you, for the LORD is not with Israel — all the Ephraimites. 8 But if you go with them, do it! Be strong for battle! But God will make you stumble before the enemy, [i] for God has the power to help [j] or to make one stumble." 9 Then Amaziah said to the man of God, "What should I do about the 7,500 pounds [B] of silver I gave to Israel's division? "
The man of God replied, "The LORD is able to give you much more than this."
10 So Amaziah released the division that came to him from Ephraim to go home. But they got very angry with Judah and returned home in a fierce rage.
11 Amaziah strengthened his position and led his people to the Valley of Salt.
He struck down 10,000 Seirites, [k] 12 and the Judahites captured 10,000 alive.
They took them to the top of a cliff where they threw them off, and all of them were dashed to pieces.
13 As for the men of the division that Amaziah sent back so they would not go with him into battle, they raided the cities of Judah from Samaria to Beth-horon, struck down 3,000 of their people, and took a great deal of plunder.
14 After Amaziah came from the attack on the Edomites, he brought the gods of the Seirites [l] and set them up as his gods. He worshiped before them and burned incense to them. [m] 15 So the LORD's anger was against Amaziah, and He sent a prophet to him, who said, "Why have you sought a people's gods that could not deliver their own people from your hand? " [n] 16 While he was still speaking to him, the king asked, "Have we made you the king’s counselor? Stop, why should you lose your life? ”

So the prophet stopped, but he said, “I know that God intends to destroy you, because you have done this and have not listened to my advice.”

Amaziah’s War With Israel’s King Joash 17 King Amaziah of Judah took counsel [o] and sent word to Jehoash [C] son of Jehoahaz, son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, “Come, let us meet face to face.”

18 King Jehoash of Israel sent word to King Amaziah of Judah, saying, “The thistle that was in Lebanon sent a message to the cedar that was in Lebanon, saying, ‘Give your daughter to my son as a wife.’ Then a wild animal that was in Lebanon passed by and trampled the thistle. [p] 19 You have said, ‘Look, I [q] have defeated Edom,’ and you have become overconfident [r] that you will get glory. Now stay at home. Why stir up such trouble so that you fall and Judah with you? ”

20 But Amaziah would not listen, for this turn of events was from God in order to hand them over to their enemies because they went after the gods of Edom. 21 So King Jehoash of Israel advanced. He and King Amaziah of Judah faced off at Beth-shemesh in Judah. 22 Judah was routed before Israel, and each fled to his own tent. 23 King Jehoash of Israel captured Judah’s King Amaziah son of Joash, son of Jehoahaz, [s, t] at Beth-shemesh. Then Jehoash took him to Jerusalem and broke down 200 yards [D] of Jerusalem’s wall from the Ephraim Gate to the Corner Gate. [u, v] 24 He took all the gold, silver, all the utensils that were found with Obed-edom [w] in God’s temple, the treasures of the king’s palace, and the hostages. Then he returned to Samaria.

Amaziah’s Death

25 Judah’s King Amaziah [x] son of Joash lived 15 years after the death of Israel’s King Jehoash son of Jehoahaz. 26 The rest of the events of Amaziah’s reign, from beginning to end, are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel.

27 From the time Amaziah turned from following the Lord, a conspiracy was formed against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachish. However, men were sent after him to Lachish, and they put him to death there. 28 They carried him back on horses and buried him with his fathers in the city of Judah. [y, z]

Judah’s King Uzziah

26 All the people [a] of Judah took Uzziah, [b] who was 16 years old, and made him king in place of his father Amaziah. 2 He rebuilt Eloth [c, d] and restored it to Judah after Amaziah the king rested with his fathers.
3 Uzziah was 16 years old [e] when he became king and reigned 52 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Jecoliah from Jerusalem. 4 He did what was right in the LORD's sight as his father Amaziah had done. 5 He sought God [f] throughout the lifetime of Zechariah, the teacher of the •fear [g, h] of God. During the time that he sought the LORD, God gave him success. [i]

Uzziah's Exploits

6 Uzziah went out to wage war against the Philistines, [j] and he tore down the wall of Gath, the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Ashdod. Then he built cities in the vicinity of Ashdod and among the Philistines. 7 God helped him against the Philistines, the Arabs that live in Gur-baal, and the Meunites. 8 The Ammonites [k] gave Uzziah tribute money, [l] and his fame spread as far as the entrance of Egypt, for God made him very powerful. 9 Uzziah built towers in Jerusalem at the Corner Gate, [m] the Valley Gate, [n] and the corner buttress, and he fortified them. 10 Since he had many cattle both in the Judean foothills [A] and the plain, he built towers in the desert and dug many wells. [o] And since he was a lover of the soil, he had farmers and vinedressers in the hills and in the fertile lands. [B] 11 Uzziah had an army equipped for combat that went out to war by division according to their assignments, as recorded by Jeiel the court secretary and Maaseiah the officer under the authority of Hananiah, one of the king's commanders. 12 The total number of heads of families was 2,600 brave warriors.
13 Under their authority was an army of 307,500 equipped for combat, a powerful force to help the king against the enemy. [p] 14 Uzziah provided the entire army with shields, spears, helmets, armor, bows and slingstones. 15 He made skillfully designed devices in Jerusalem to shoot arrows and catapult large stones for use on the towers and on the corners. So his fame spread even to distant places, for he was marvelously helped until he became strong.

Uzziah's Disease

16 But when he became strong, he grew arrogant [q] and it led to his own destruction. He acted unfaithfully against the LORD his God by going into the LORD's sanctuary to burn incense on the incense altar. [r] 17 Azariah [s] the priest, along with 80 brave priests of the LORD, went in after him. 18 They took their stand [t] against King Uzziah and said, "Uzziah, you have no right to offer incense to the LORD [u] — only the consecrated priests, the descendants of Aaron, have the right to offer incense. [v] Leave the sanctuary, for you have acted unfaithfully! You will not receive honor from the LORD God."

19 Uzziah, with a firepan in his hand to offer incense, was enraged. But when he became enraged with the priests, in the presence of the priests in the LORD's temple beside the altar of incense, a skin disease [w] broke out on his forehead. 20 Then Azariah the chief priest and all the priests turned to him and saw that he was diseased on his forehead. They rushed him out of there. He himself also hurried to get out because the LORD had afflicted him. 21 So King Uzziah was diseased to the time of his death. [x] He lived in quarantine [C, y] with a serious skin disease and was excluded from access to the LORD's temple, while his son Jotham was over the king's household governing the people of the land.

22 Now the prophet Isaiah [z] son of Amoz wrote about the rest of the events of Uzziah's reign, from beginning to end. 23 Uzziah rested with his fathers, and he was buried with his fathers in the burial ground of the kings' cemetery, [a] for they said, "He has a skin disease." His son Jotham became king in his place.

Judah’s King Jotham

27 Jotham was 25 years old [a] when he became king and reigned 16 years in Jerusalem. [b] His mother's name was Jerushah daughter of Zadok. 2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight as his father Uzziah had done. In addition, he didn't enter the LORD's sanctuary, [c] but the people still behaved corruptly.
3 Jotham built the Upper Gate of the LORD's temple, and he built extensively on the wall of Ophel. [d] 4 He also built cities in the hill country of Judah and fortresses and towers in the forests. [e] 5 He waged war against the king of the Ammonites. He overpowered the Ammonites, and that year they gave him 7,500 pounds [A] of silver, 50,000 bushels [B] of wheat, and 50,000 bushels [C] of barley.
They paid him the same in the second and third years. 6 So Jotham strengthened himself because he did not waver in obeying [D] the LORD his God. [f] 7 As for the rest of the events [g] of Jotham's reign, along with all his wars and his ways, note that they are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah.
8 He was 25 years old when he became king and reigned 16 years in Jerusalem.
9 Jotham rested with his fathers and was buried in the city of David. His son Ahaz became king in his place.

Judah’s King Ahaz

28 Ahaz was 20 years old [a] when he became king and reigned 16 years in Jerusalem. He did not do what was right in the LORD's sight [b] like his ancestor David, 2 for he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel [c] and made cast images of the •Baals . [d] 3 He burned incense in the Valley of Hinnom [e] and burned his children in [f, g] the fire, imitating the detestable practices of the nations the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites. [h] 4 He sacrificed and burned incense on the •high places, [i] on the hills, and under every green tree.
5 So the LORD his God handed Ahaz over [j] to the king of Aram. He attacked him and took many captives to Damascus.
Ahaz was also handed over to the king of Israel, who struck him with great force: 6 Pekah son of Remaliah killed 120,000 in Judah in one day — all brave men — because they had abandoned the LORD God of their ancestors. 7 An Ephraimite warrior named Zichri killed the king's son Maaseiah, Azrikam governor of the palace, and Elkanah who was second to the king. 8 Then the Israelites took 200,000 captives from their brothers — women, sons, and daughters. [k] They also took a great deal of plunder from them and brought it to Samaria.
9 A prophet of the LORD named Oded was there. He went out to meet the army that came to Samaria and said to them, "Look, the LORD God of your ancestors handed them over to you because of His wrath against Judah, [l] but you slaughtered them in a rage that has reached heaven. [m] 10 Now you plan to reduce the people of Judah and Jerusalem, male and female, to slavery. Are you not also •guilty before •Yahweh your God? 11 Listen to me and return the captives you took from your brothers, [n] for the LORD's burning anger is on you." 12 So some men who were leaders of the Ephraimites — Azariah son of Jehohanan, Berechiah son of Meshillemoth, Jehizkiah son of Shallum, and Amasa son of Hadlai — stood in opposition to those coming from the war.
13 They said to them, "You must not bring the captives here, for you plan to bring guilt on us from the LORD to add to our sins and our guilt. For we have much guilt, and burning anger is on Israel." 14 The army left the captives and the plunder in the presence of the officers and the congregation. 15 Then the men who were designated by name [o] took charge of the captives and provided clothes for their naked ones from the plunder. They clothed them, gave them sandals, food and drink, [p] dressed their wounds, and provided donkeys for all the feeble. The Israelites brought them to Jericho, the City of Palms, [q] among their brothers. Then they returned to Samaria.

16 At that time King Ahaz asked the king of Assyria for help. [r] 17 The Edomites came again, attacked Judah, and took captives. [s] 18 The Philistines also raided the cities of the Judean foothills [A] and the •Negev of Judah [t] and captured Beth-shemesh, Aijalon, Gederoth, Soco and its villages, Timnah and its villages, Gimzo and its villages, and they lived there. 19 For the Lord humbled Judah because of King Ahaz of Judah, [u] who threw off restraint in Judah and was unfaithful to the Lord. 20 Then Tiglath-pileser [v, w] king of Assyria came against Ahaz; he oppressed him and did not give him support. [x] 21 Although Ahaz plundered the Lord's temple and the palace of the king and of the rulers and gave the plunder to the king of Assyria, it did not help him.

22 At the time of his distress, King Ahaz himself became more unfaithful to the Lord. 23 He sacrificed to the gods of Damascus which had defeated him; he said, "Since the gods of the kings of Aram are helping them, I will sacrifice to them so that they will help me." [y] But they were the downfall of him and of all Israel.

24 Then Ahaz gathered up the utensils of God's temple, cut them into pieces, [z] shut the doors of the Lord's temple, [a] and made himself altars on every street corner in Jerusalem. [b] 25 He made high places in every city of Judah to offer incense to other gods, and he provoked the Lord, the God of his ancestors.

Ahaz's Death

26 As for the rest of his deeds [c] and all his ways, from beginning to end, they are written in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. 27 Ahaz rested with his fathers and was buried in the city, in Jerusalem, but they did not bring him into the tombs of the kings of Israel. His son Hezekiah became king in his place.

Judah’s King Hezekiah

29 Hezekiah was 25 years old [a] when he became king and reigned 29 years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Abijah [b] daughter of Zechariah. 2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight [c] just as his ancestor David had done.
3 In the first year of his reign, in the first month, he opened the doors of the LORD's temple and repaired them. [d] 4 Then he brought in the priests and Levites and gathered them in the eastern public square. [e] 5 He said to them, "Hear me, Levites. Consecrate yourselves [f] now and consecrate the temple of •Yahweh , the God of your ancestors. Remove everything impure from the holy place. 6 For our fathers were unfaithful and did what is evil in the sight of the LORD our God.
They abandoned Him, turned their faces away from the LORD's tabernacle, and turned their backs on Him. [A, g] 7 They also closed the doors of the portico, extinguished the lamps, did not burn incense, and did not offer •burnt offerings in the holy place of the God of Israel. 8 Therefore, the wrath of the LORD was on Judah and Jerusalem, and He made them an object of terror, horror, and mockery, [B, h] as you see with your own eyes. 9 Our fathers fell by the sword, and our sons, our daughters, and our wives are in captivity because of this. [i] 10 It is in my heart now to make a covenant with Yahweh, the God of Israel [j] so that His burning anger may turn away from us. 11 My sons, don't be negligent now, for the LORD has chosen you to stand in His presence, to serve Him, and to be His ministers and burners of incense." [k]

Cleansing the Temple

12 Then the Levites stood up:

Mahath [l] son of Amasai and Joel son of Azariah from the Kohathites;
Kish son of Abdi and Azariah son of Jehallelel from the Merarites; [m]
Joah son of Zimmah and Eden son of Joah from the Gershonites;
13 Shimri and Jeuel from the Elizaphanites;
Zechariah and Mattaniah from the Asaphites;
14 Jehiel [n] and Shimei from the Hemanites;
Shemaiah and Uzziel from the Jeduthunites.

15 They gathered their brothers together, consecrated themselves, [o] and went according to the king's command by the words of the LORD [p] to cleanse the LORD's temple. [q]

16 The priests went to the entrance of the LORD's temple to cleanse it. They took all the unclean things they found in the LORD's sanctuary to the courtyard of the LORD's temple. Then the Levites received them and took them outside to the Kidron Valley. [r] 17 They began the consecration on the first day of the first month, and on the eighth day of the month they came to the portico of the LORD's temple. They consecrated the LORD's temple for eight days, and on the sixteenth day of the first month they finished.

18 Then they went inside to King Hezekiah and said, "We have cleansed the whole temple of the LORD, the altar of burnt offering and all its utensils, and the table for the rows of the •bread of the Presence and all its utensils. 19 We have set up and consecrated all the utensils that King Ahaz rejected during his reign [s] when he became unfaithful. They are in front of the altar of the LORD."

Renewal of Temple Worship

20 King Hezekiah got up early, gathered the city officials, and went to the LORD's temple. 21 They brought seven bulls, seven rams, seven lambs, and seven male goats as a •sin offering for the kingdom, for the sanctuary, and for Judah. Then he told the descendants of Aaron, the priests, to offer them on the altar of the LORD. 22 So they slaughtered the bulls, and the priests received the blood and sprinkled it on the altar. [t] They slaughtered the rams and sprinkled the blood on the altar. They slaughtered the lambs and sprinkled the blood on the altar. 23 Then they brought the goats for the sin offering right into the presence of the king and the congregation, who laid their hands on them. [u] 24 The priests slaughtered the goats and put their blood on the altar for a sin offering, to make •atonement for all Israel, [v] for the king said that the burnt offering and sin offering were for all Israel.

25 Hezekiah stationed the Levites in the LORD's temple with cymbals, harps, and lyres [w] according to the command of David, [x] Gad the king's seer, [y] and Nathan the prophet. [z] For the command was from the LORD through His prophets. 26 The Levites stood with the instruments of David, [a] and the priests with the trumpets. [b]

27 Then Hezekiah ordered that the burnt offering be offered on the altar. When the burnt offerings began, the song of the LORD and the trumpets began, accompanied by the instruments of David king of Israel. 28 The whole assembly was worshiping, singing the song, and blowing the trumpets — all of this continued until the burnt offering was completed. 29 When the burnt offerings were completed, the king and all those present with him bowed down and worshiped. [c] 30 Then King Hezekiah and the officials told the Levites to sing praise to the LORD in the words of David and of •Asaph the seer. So they sang praises with rejoicing and bowed down and worshiped.

31 Hezekiah concluded, "Now you are consecrated [C] to the LORD. Come near and bring sacrifices and thank offerings to the LORD's temple." So the congregation brought sacrifices and thank offerings, and all those with willing hearts [d] brought burnt offerings. 32 The number of burnt offerings the congregation brought was 70 bulls, 100 rams, and 200 lambs; all these were for a burnt offering to the LORD. 33 Six hundred bulls and 3,000 sheep were consecrated.

34 However, since there were not enough priests, they weren't able to skin all the burnt offerings, so their Levite brothers helped them [e] until the work was finished and until the priests consecrated themselves. For the Levites were more conscientious [D, f] to consecrate themselves than the priests were. [g] 35 Furthermore, the burnt offerings were abundant, along with the fat of the •fellowship offerings [h] and with the •drink offerings [i] for the burnt offering.

So the service of the LORD's temple was established. 36 Then Hezekiah and all the people rejoiced over how God had prepared the people, for it had come about suddenly.

Celebration of the Passover

30 Then Hezekiah sent word throughout all Israel and Judah, and he also wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasseh to come to the LORD's temple in Jerusalem to observe the •Passover of •Yahweh , the God of Israel. [a] 2 For the king and his officials and the entire congregation in Jerusalem decided to observe the Passover of the LORD in the second month, [b] 3 because they were not able to observe it at the appropriate time. Not enough of the priests had consecrated themselves [c] and the people hadn't been gathered together in Jerusalem. 4 The proposal pleased the king and the congregation, 5 so they affirmed the proposal and spread the message throughout all Israel, from Beersheba to Dan, [d] to come to observe the Passover of Yahweh, the God of Israel in Jerusalem, for they hadn't observed it often, [A] as prescribed. [B] 6 So the couriers [e] went throughout Israel and Judah with letters from the hand of the king and his officials, and according to the king's command, saying,
"Israelites, return to Yahweh, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel so that He may return to those of you who remain, who have escaped from the grasp of the kings of Assyria. [f] 7 Don't be like your fathers and your brothers who were unfaithful to Yahweh, the God of their ancestors [g] so that He made them an object of horror [h] as you yourselves see. 8 Don't become obstinate [C,] [i] now like your fathers did. Give your allegiance [D] to Yahweh, and come to His sanctuary that He has consecrated forever. Serve the LORD your God so that He may turn His burning anger away from you, [j] 9 for when you return to Yahweh, your brothers and your sons will receive mercy in the presence of their captors and will return to this land. [k] For Yahweh your God is gracious and merciful; [l] He will not turn His face away from you if you return to Him." 10 The couriers traveled from city to city in the land of Ephraim and Manasseh as far as Zebulun, but the inhabitants [E] laughed at them and mocked them. [m] 11 But some from Asher, Manasseh, and Zebulun humbled themselves and came to Jerusalem. [n] 12 Also, the power of God was at work in Judah to unite them [F] to carry out the command of the king and his officials by the word of the LORD.
13 A very large assembly of people was gathered in Jerusalem to observe the Festival of Unleavened Bread in the second month. 14 They proceeded to take away the altars that were in Jerusalem, [o] and they took away the incense altars and threw them into the Kidron Valley. [p] 15 They slaughtered the Passover lamb [q] on the fourteenth day of the second month. The priests and Levites were ashamed, and they consecrated themselves and brought •burnt offerings to the LORD's temple. 16 They stood at their prescribed posts, [r] according to the law of Moses, the man of God. The priests sprinkled the blood received from the hand of the Levites, 17 for there were many in the assembly who had not consecrated themselves, and so the Levites were in charge of slaughtering the Passover lambs for every •unclean person to consecrate the lambs to the LORD. [s] 18 A large number of the people — many from Ephraim, Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun — were ritually unclean, yet they had eaten the Passover [t] contrary to what was written. [u] But Hezekiah had interceded for them, saying, "May the good LORD provide •atonement on behalf of 19 whoever sets his whole heart on seeking God, [v] Yahweh, the God of his ancestors, even though not according to the purification rules of the sanctuary." 20 So the LORD heard Hezekiah and healed the people. [w] 21 The Israelites who were present in Jerusalem observed the Festival of Unleavened Bread seven days with great joy, [x] and the Levites and the priests praised the LORD day after day with loud instruments. 22 Then Hezekiah encouraged [G, y] all the Levites who performed skillfully before the LORD. They ate at the appointed festival for seven days, sacrificing •fellowship offerings and giving thanks to Yahweh, the God of their ancestors. [z]

23 The whole congregation decided to observe [a] seven more days, so they observed seven days with joy, 24 for Hezekiah king of Judah contributed 1,000 bulls and 7,000 sheep for the congregation. Also, the officials contributed 1,000 bulls and 10,000 sheep for the congregation, [b] and many priests consecrated themselves. [c] 25 Then the whole assembly of Judah with the priests and Levites, the whole assembly that came from Israel, the foreigners who came from the land of Israel, and those who were living in Judah, rejoiced. 26 There was great rejoicing in Jerusalem, for nothing like this was known since the days of Solomon son of David, the king of Israel. [d]

27 Then the priests and the Levites [e] stood to bless the people, [f] and God heard their voice, and their prayer came into His holy dwelling place [g] in heaven.

Removal of Idolatry

31 When all this was completed, all Israel who had attended went out to the cities of Judah and broke up the sacred pillars, chopped down the •Asherah poles, and tore down the •high places and altars [a] throughout Judah and Benjamin, as well as in Ephraim and Manasseh, to the last one. [A] Then all the Israelites returned to their cities, each to his own possession.

Offerings for Levites

2 Hezekiah reestablished the divisions [b] of the priests and Levites for the •burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings, for ministry, for giving thanks, and for praise in the gates of the camp of the LORD, [c] each division corresponding to his service among the priests and Levites. 3 The king contributed [B] from his own possessions [d] for the regular morning and evening burnt offerings, the burnt offerings of the Sabbaths, of the New Moons, and of the appointed feasts, as written in the law of the LORD. [e] 4 He told the people who lived in Jerusalem to give a contribution [f] for the priests and Levites so that they could devote their energy to the law of the LORD. 5 When the word spread, the Israelites gave liberally of the best of the grain, new wine, oil, honey, and of all the produce of the field, and they brought in an abundance, a tenth [g] of everything. 6 As for the Israelites and Judahites who lived in the cities of Judah, they also brought a tenth of the cattle and sheep, and a tenth of the dedicated things that were consecrated to the LORD their God. [h] They gathered them into large piles. 7 In the third month they began building up the piles, and they finished in the seventh month. 8 When Hezekiah and his officials came and viewed the piles, they praised the LORD and His people Israel.

9 Hezekiah asked the priests and Levites about the piles. 10 Azariah, the chief priest of the household of Zadok, [i] answered him, “Since they began bringing the offering to the LORD’s temple, we eat and are satisfied and there is plenty left over because the LORD has blessed His people; this abundance is what is left over.” [j]

11 Hezekiah told them to prepare chambers [k] in the LORD’s temple, and they prepared them. 12 The offering, the tenth, and the dedicated things were brought faithfully. Conaniah the Levite was the officer in charge of them, and his brother Shimei was second. [l] 13 Jehiel, Azaziah, Nahath, Asahel, Jerimoth, Jozabad, Eliel, Ismachiah, Mahath, and Benaiah were deputies under the authority of Conaniah and his brother Shimei by appointment of King Hezekiah and of Azariah the chief official of God’s temple.

14 Kore son of Imnah the Levite, the keeper of the East Gate, was over the freewill offerings to God to distribute the contribution to the LORD and the consecrated things. [m] 15 Eden, [n] Miniamin, Jeshua, Shemaiah, Amariah, and Shecaniah in the cities of the priests [o] were to faithfully distribute it under his authority to their brothers by divisions, whether large or small. 16 In addition, they distributed it to males registered by genealogy three [C, p] years old and above; to all who would enter the LORD's temple for their daily duty, [q] for their service in their responsibilities according to their divisions. 17 They distributed also to those recorded by genealogy of the priests by their ancestral families and the Levites 20 years old and above, [r] by their responsibilities in their divisions; 18 to those registered by genealogy — with all their infants, wives, sons, and daughters — of the whole assembly (for they had faithfully consecrated themselves as holy); 19 and to the descendants of Aaron, the priests, in the common fields of their cities, [s] in each and every city. There were men who were registered by name [t] to distribute a portion to every male among the priests and to every Levite recorded by genealogy.

20 Hezekiah did this throughout all Judah. He did what was good and upright and true before the LORD his God. [u] 21 He was diligent in every deed that he began in the service of God's temple, in the instruction and the commands, in order to seek his God, and he prospered.

Sennacherib's Invasion

32 After these faithful deeds, Sennacherib king of Assyria came and entered Judah. He laid siege to the fortified cities and intended [A] to break into them. [a] 2 Hezekiah saw that Sennacherib had come and that he planned [B] war on Jerusalem, 3 so he consulted with his officials and his warriors about stopping up the waters of the springs that were outside the city, and they helped him.
4 Many people gathered and stopped up all the springs [b] and the stream that flowed through the land; [c] they said, "Why should the kings of Assyria come and find plenty of water? " 5 Then Hezekiah strengthened his position by rebuilding the entire broken-down wall [d] and heightening the towers and the other outside wall. [e] He repaired the supporting terraces [f] of the city of David, and made an abundance of weapons and shields.

6 He set military commanders over the people and gathered the people in the square of the city gate. Then he encouraged them, [C,] [g] saying, 7 "Be strong and courageous! [h] Don't be afraid or discouraged before the king of Assyria or before the large army that is with him, for there are more with us than with him.
[i] 8 He has only human strength, [D] but we have •Yahweh our God to help us and to fight our battles." [j] So the people relied on the words of King Hezekiah of Judah.

Sennacherib's Servant's Speech 9 After this, [k] while Sennacherib king of Assyria with all his armed forces besieged [E] Lachish, he sent his servants to Jerusalem against King Hezekiah of Judah and against all those of Judah who were in Jerusalem, saying, 10 "This is what King Sennacherib of Assyria says: 'What are you relying on that you remain in Jerusalem under siege? 11 Isn't Hezekiah misleading you to give you over to death by famine and thirst when he says,
"Yahweh our God will deliver us from the power of the king of Assyria"?
12 Didn't Hezekiah himself remove His •high places and His altars [l] and say to Judah and Jerusalem, "You must worship before one altar, and you must burn incense on it"?

13 " 'Don't you know [m] what I and my fathers have done to all the peoples of the lands? Have any of the national gods of the lands been able to deliver their land from my power? 14 Who among all the gods of these nations that my predecessors •completely destroyed was able to deliver his people from my power, that your God should be able to do the same for you? [n] 15 So now, [o] don't let Hezekiah deceive you, and don't let him mislead you like this. Don't believe him, for no god of any nation or kingdom has been able to deliver his people from my power or the power of my fathers. How much less will your God deliver you from my power! ’ ”

16 His servants said more against the LORD God and against His servant Hezekiah. 17 He also wrote letters to mock Yahweh, the God of Israel, saying against Him:

> Just like the national gods of the lands that did not deliver their people from my power, so Hezekiah’s God will not deliver His people from my power. [p]

18 Then they called out loudly in Hebrew [F] to the people of Jerusalem, who were on the wall, to frighten and discourage them in order that he might capture the city. 19 They spoke against the God of Jerusalem like they had spoken against the gods of the peoples of the earth, which were made by human hands.

Deliverance from Sennacherib 20 King Hezekiah and the prophet Isaiah son of Amoz prayed about this and cried out to heaven, [q] 21 and the LORD sent an angel who annihilated every brave warrior, leader, and commander in the camp of the king of Assyria. So the king of Assyria returned in disgrace to his land. He went to the temple of his god, and there some of his own children struck him down with the sword. [r]

22 So the LORD saved Hezekiah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem from the power of King Sennacherib of Assyria and from the power of all others. He gave them rest [G, s] on every side. 23 Many were bringing an offering to the LORD to Jerusalem and valuable gifts to King Hezekiah of Judah, and he was exalted in the eyes of all the nations after that. [t]

Hezekiah’s Illness and Pride 24 In those days Hezekiah became sick to the point of death, so he prayed to the LORD, and He spoke to him and gave him a miraculous sign. [u] 25 However, because his heart was proud, [v] Hezekiah didn’t respond according to the benefit that had come to him. So there was wrath on him, Judah, and Jerusalem. [w] 26 Then Hezekiah humbled himself for the pride of his heart — he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem — so the LORD’s wrath didn’t come [x] on them during Hezekiah’s lifetime. [y]

Hezekiah’s Wealth and Works 27 Hezekiah had abundant riches and glory, and he made himself treasuries for silver, gold, precious stones, spices, shields, and every desirable item. 28 He made warehouses for the harvest of grain, new wine, and oil, and stalls for all kinds of cattle, and pens for flocks. 29 He made cities for himself, and he acquired herds of sheep and cattle in abundance, for God gave him abundant possessions.

30 This same Hezekiah blocked the outlet of the water of the Upper Gihon [z]

and channeled it smoothly downward and westward to the city of David. [a] Hezekiah succeeded in everything he did. 31 When the ambassadors of Babylon's rulers [b] were sent [c] to him to inquire about the miraculous sign [d] that happened in the land, God left him to test him and discover what was in his heart. [e]

Hezekiah's Death

32 As for the rest of the events [f] of Hezekiah's reign and his deeds of faithful love, note that they are written in the Visions of the Prophet Isaiah son of Amoz, [g] and in the Book of the Kings of Judah and Israel. [h] 33 Hezekiah rested with his fathers and was buried on the ascent to the tombs of David's descendants. All Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem paid him honor at his death. His son Manasseh became king in his place.

Judah’s King Manasseh

33 Manasseh was 12 years old [a] when he became king and reigned 55 years in Jerusalem. 2 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight, imitating the detestable practices of the nations that the LORD had dispossessed before the Israelites. [b] 3 He rebuilt the •high places that his father Hezekiah had torn down [c] and reestablished the altars for the •Baals . He made •Asherah poles, and he worshiped the whole heavenly •host and served them. 4 He built altars [d] in the LORD's temple, where •Yahweh had said, "Jerusalem is where My name will remain forever." [e] 5 He built altars to the whole heavenly host in both courtyards [f] of the LORD's temple. 6 He passed his sons through the fire in the Valley of Hinnom. [g] He practiced witchcraft, •divination , and sorcery, and consulted mediums and spiritists. [h] He did a great deal of evil in the LORD's sight, provoking Him.

7 Manasseh [i] set up a carved image of the idol he had made, in God's temple, [j] about which God had said to David and his son Solomon, "I will establish My name forever [k, l] in this temple and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel. [m] 8 I will never again remove the feet of the Israelites from the land where I stationed your [n, o] ancestors, [p] if only they will be careful to do all that I have commanded them through Moses — all the law, statutes, and judgments." 9 So Manasseh caused Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to stray so that they did worse evil than the nations the LORD had destroyed before the Israelites.

Manasseh's Repentance

10 The LORD spoke to Manasseh and his people, but they didn't listen. [q] 11 So He brought against them the military commanders of the king of Assyria. They captured Manasseh with hooks, bound him with bronze shackles, and took him to Babylon. [r] 12 When he was in distress, he sought the favor of Yahweh his God and earnestly humbled himself [s] before the God of his ancestors. 13 He prayed to Him, so He heard his petition and granted his request, [t] and brought him back to Jerusalem, to his kingdom. So Manasseh came to know that Yahweh is God. [u]

14 After this, he built the outer wall of the city of David from west of Gihon [v] in the valley to the entrance of the Fish Gate; [w] he brought it around the Ophel, [x] and he heightened it considerably. He also placed military commanders in all the fortified cities of Judah.

15 He removed the foreign gods and the idol [y] from the LORD's temple, along with all the altars that he had built on the mountain of the LORD's temple and in Jerusalem, and he threw them outside the city. 16 He built [z] the altar of the LORD and offered •fellowship and thank offerings on it. Then he told Judah to serve Yahweh, the God of Israel. 17 However, the people still sacrificed at the high places, [a] but only to Yahweh their God.

Manasseh's Death

18 The rest of the events [b] of Manasseh's reign, along with his prayer [c] to his God and the words of the seers who spoke to him in the name of Yahweh, the God of Israel, are written in the Records of Israel's Kings. 19 His prayer and how God granted his request, and all his sin and unfaithfulness and the sites where he built high places and set up Asherah poles and carved images before he humbled himself, they are written in the Records of Hozai. 20 Manasseh rested with his fathers, and he was buried in his own house. His son Amon became king in his place.

Judah's King Amon

21 Amon was 22 years old when he became king and reigned two years in Jerusalem. 22 He did what was evil in the LORD's sight just as his father Manasseh had done. [d] Amon sacrificed to all the carved images that his father Manasseh had made, and he served them. 23 But he did not humble himself before the LORD like his father Manasseh humbled himself; [e] instead, Amon increased his •guilt .

24 So his servants conspired against him and put him to death [f] in his own house. 25 Then the common people [A] executed all those who conspired against King Amon and made his son Josiah king in his place.

Judah’s King Josiah

34 Josiah was eight years old [a] when he became king and reigned 31 years in Jerusalem. 2 He did what was right in the LORD's sight and walked in the ways of his ancestor David; [b] he did not turn aside to the right or the left.

Josiah's Reform

3 In the eighth year of his reign, while he was still a youth, Josiah began to seek the God of his ancestor David, [c] and in the twelfth year he began to cleanse Judah and Jerusalem of the •high places, the •Asherah poles, the carved images, [d] and the cast images. 4 Then in his presence the altars of the •Baals were torn down, and he chopped down the incense altars that were above them. He shattered the Asherah poles, the carved images, and the cast images, crushed them to dust, and scattered [e] them over the graves of those who had sacrificed to them. [f] 5 He burned the bones of the priests on their altars. [g] So he cleansed Judah and Jerusalem. 6 He did the same in the cities [h] of Manasseh, Ephraim, and Simeon, and as far as Naphtali and on their surrounding mountain shrines. [i] 7 He tore down the altars, and he smashed the Asherah poles and the carved images to powder. He chopped down all the incense altars throughout the land of Israel and returned to Jerusalem. [j]

Josiah's Repair of the Temple

8 In the eighteenth year of his reign, [k] in order to cleanse the land and the temple, Josiah sent Shaphan son of Azaliah, along with Maaseiah the governor [l] of the city and the court historian Joah son of Joahaz, to repair the temple of the LORD his God.

9 So they went to Hilkiah [m] the high priest, and gave him the money brought into God's temple. The Levites and the doorkeepers had collected money from Manasseh, Ephraim, [n] and from the entire remnant of Israel, and from all Judah, Benjamin, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 10 They put it into the hands of those doing the work — those who oversaw the LORD's temple. They gave it to the workmen who were working in the LORD's temple, to repair and restore the temple; 11 they gave it to the carpenters and builders and also used it to buy quarried stone and timbers — for joining and making beams — for the buildings that Judah's kings had destroyed.

12 The men were doing the work with integrity. Their overseers were Jahath and Obadiah, Levites from the Merarites, and Zechariah and Meshullam from the Kohathites as supervisors. The Levites were all skilled with musical instruments. [o] 13 They were also over the porters and were supervising all those doing the work task by task. Some of the Levites were secretaries, officers, and gatekeepers.

The Recovery of the Book of the Law 14 When they brought out the money that had been deposited in the LORD*'s temple, Hilkiah the priest found the book of the law of the* LORD written by the hand of Moses. [p] 15 Consequently, [q] Hilkiah told Shaphan the court secretary, "I have found the book of the law in the LORD*'s temple," and he gave the book to Shaphan.*

16 Shaphan took the book to the king, and also reported, "Your servants are doing all that was placed in their hands. 17 They have emptied out the money that was found in the LORD's temple and have put it into the hand of the overseers and the hand of those doing the work." 18 Then Shaphan the court secretary told the king, "Hilkiah the priest gave me a book," and Shaphan read from it in the presence of the king. [r]

19 When the king heard the words of the law, he tore his clothes. [s] 20 Then he commanded Hilkiah, Ahikam son of Shaphan, Abdon son of Micah, Shaphan the court secretary, and the king's servant Asaiah, 21 "Go. Ask •Yahweh for me and for those remaining in Israel and Judah, concerning the words of the book that was found. For great is the LORD's wrath that is poured out on us [t] because our fathers have not kept the word of the LORD in order to do everything written in this book."

Huldah's Prophecy of Judgment

22 So Hilkiah and those the king had designated [u] went to the prophetess Huldah, the wife of Shallum son of Tokhath, son of Hasrah, keeper of the wardrobe. She lived in Jerusalem in the Second District. They spoke with her about this.

23 She said to them, "This is what Yahweh, the God of Israel says: Say to the man who sent you to Me, 24 'This is what Yahweh says: I am about to bring disaster on this place and on its inhabitants, [v] fulfilling all the curses written in the book that they read in the presence of the king of Judah, [w] 25 because they have abandoned Me [x] and burned incense to other gods in order to provoke Me with all the works of their hands. My wrath will be poured out on this place, and it will not be quenched.' 26 Say this to the king of Judah who sent you to ask Yahweh, 'This is what Yahweh, the God of Israel says: As for the words that you heard, 27 because [y] your heart was tender and you humbled yourself before God when you heard His words against this place and against its inhabitants, and because you humbled yourself before Me, and you tore your clothes and wept before Me, I Myself have heard' — this is the LORD's declaration. 28 'I will indeed gather you to your fathers, and you will be gathered to your grave in peace. Your eyes will not see all the disaster that I am bringing on this place and on its inhabitants.’ ” [z]

Then they reported to the king.

Affirmation of the Covenant by Josiah and the People [29] So the king sent messengers and gathered all the elders of Judah and Jerusalem. [30] The king went up to the LORD*’s temple with all the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, as well as the priests and the Levites — all the people from great to small. He read in their hearing all the words of the book of the covenant that had been found in the* LORD*’s temple.* [a] [31] Then the king stood at his post [b] and made a covenant in the LORD*’s presence* [c] to follow the LORD and to keep His commands, His decrees, and His statutes with all his heart and with all his soul [d] in order to carry out the words of the covenant written in this book. [e]

[32] He had all those present in Jerusalem and Benjamin agree [A] to it. So all the inhabitants of Jerusalem carried out the covenant of God, the God of their ancestors.

[33] So Josiah removed everything that was detestable from all the lands belonging to the Israelites, [f] and he required all who were present in Israel to serve the LORD their God. Throughout his reign they did not turn aside from following Yahweh, the God of their ancestors.

Josiah's Passover Observance

35 Josiah observed the LORD's •Passover [a] and slaughtered the Passover lambs on the fourteenth day of the first month. [b] 2 He appointed the priests to their responsibilities and encouraged them to serve in the LORD's temple. [c] 3
He said to the Levites who taught all Israel [d] the holy things of the LORD, "Put the holy ark in the temple built by Solomon son of David king of Israel. Since you do not have to carry it on your shoulders, [e] now serve •Yahweh your God and His people Israel.
4 "Organize your ancestral houses by your divisions [f] according to the written instruction of David king of Israel and that of his son Solomon. [g] 5 Serve in the holy place by the divisions of the ancestral houses for your brothers, the lay people, [A] and the distribution of the tribal household of the Levites. [h] 6 Slaughter the Passover lambs, [i] consecrate yourselves, [j] and make preparations for your brothers to carry out the word of the LORD through Moses." 7 Then Josiah donated 30,000 sheep, lambs, and young goats, plus 3,000 bulls from his own possessions, for the Passover sacrifices for all the lay people [B] who were present.
8 His officials also donated willingly for the people, the priests, and the Levites. Hilkiah, Zechariah, and Jehiel, chief officials of God's temple, gave 2,600 Passover sacrifices and 300 bulls for the priests. 9 Conaniah [k] and his brothers Shemaiah and Nethanel, and Hashabiah, Jeiel, and Jozabad, officers of the Levites, donated 5,000 Passover sacrifices for the Levites, plus 500 bulls.
10 So the service was established; the priests stood at their posts and the Levites in their divisions according to the king's command. [l] 11 Then they slaughtered the Passover lambs, and while the Levites were skinning the animals, [m] the priests sprinkled the blood [n] they had been given. [C] 12 They removed the •burnt offerings so that they might be given to the divisions of the ancestral houses of the lay people [D] to offer to the LORD, according to what is written in the book of Moses; they did the same with the bulls. 13 They roasted the Passover lambs with fire according to regulation. [o] They boiled the holy sacrifices in pots, kettles, and bowls; and they quickly brought them to the lay people. [E] 14 Afterward, they made preparations for themselves and for the priests, since the priests, the descendants of Aaron, were busy offering up burnt offerings and fat until night. So the Levites made preparations for themselves and for the priests, the descendants of Aaron.
15 The singers, the descendants of •Asaph , were at their stations according to the command of David, Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun the king's seer. [p] Also, the gatekeepers were at each gate. [q] None of them left their tasks because their Levite brothers had made preparations for them.

16 So all the service of the LORD was established that day for observing the Passover and for offering burnt offerings on the altar of the LORD, according to the command of King Josiah. 17 The Israelites who were present in Judah also observed the Passover at that time and the Festival of Unleavened Bread for seven days. [r] 18 No Passover had been observed [s] like it in Israel since the days of Samuel the prophet. None of the kings of Israel ever observed a Passover like the one that Josiah observed with the priests, the Levites, all Judah, the Israelites who were present in Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. 19 In the eighteenth year of Josiah's reign, this Passover was observed.

Josiah's Last Deeds and Death

20 After all this [t] that Josiah had prepared for the temple, Neco king of Egypt [u] marched up to fight at Carchemish [v] by the Euphrates, and Josiah went out to confront him. 21 But Neco sent messengers to him, saying, "What is the issue between you and me, king of Judah? [w] I have not come against you today [x] but I am fighting another dynasty. [F] God told me to hurry. Stop opposing God who is with me; don't make Him destroy you! "

22 But Josiah did not turn away from him; instead, in order to fight with him he disguised himself. [y, z] He did not listen to Neco's words from the mouth of God, but went to the Valley of Megiddo [a] to fight. 23 The archers shot King Josiah, and he said to his servants, "Take me away, for I am severely wounded! " [b] 24 So his servants took him out of the war chariot, carried him in his second chariot, and brought him to Jerusalem. Then he died, and they buried him in the tomb of his fathers. All Judah and Jerusalem mourned [c] for Josiah. 25 Jeremiah chanted a dirge [d] over Josiah, and all the singing men and singing women still speak of Josiah in their dirges to this very day. They established them as a statute for Israel, and indeed they are written in the Dirges.

26 The rest of the events [e] of Josiah's reign, along with his deeds of faithful love according to what is written in the law of the LORD, 27 and his words, from beginning to end, are written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah.

Judah’s King Jehoahaz

36 Then [a] the common people [A] took Jehoahaz son of Josiah and made him king in Jerusalem in place of his father.
2 Jehoahaz [b] was 23 years old when he became king and reigned three months in Jerusalem. 3 The king of Egypt deposed him in Jerusalem and fined the land 7,500 pounds [B] of silver and 75 pounds [C] of gold.

Judah's King Jehoiakim

4 Then Neco king of Egypt made Jehoahaz's brother Eliakim king over Judah and Jerusalem and changed Eliakim's name to Jehoiakim. But Neco took his brother Jehoahaz [c] and brought him to Egypt. [d] 5 Jehoiakim was 25 years old when he became king and reigned 11 years in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God. [e] 6 Now Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon attacked him [f] and bound him in bronze [g] shackles to take him to Babylon. [h] 7 Also Nebuchadnezzar took some of the utensils of the LORD's temple to Babylon and put them in his temple in Babylon.
[i] 8 The rest of the deeds of Jehoiakim, [j] the detestable things he did, and what was found against him, are written in the Book of Israel's Kings. His son Jehoiachin became king in his place.

Judah's King Jehoiachin

9 Jehoiachin was 18 [k] years old [l] when he became king and reigned three months and 10 days in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the LORD's sight. 10 In the spring [D, m] Nebuchadnezzar sent for him and brought him to Babylon along with the valuable utensils of the LORD's temple. Then he made Jehoiachin's brother Zedekiah king over Judah and Jerusalem. [n]

Judah's King Zedekiah

11 Zedekiah was 21 years old [o] when he became king and reigned 11 years in Jerusalem. 12 He did what was evil in the sight of the LORD his God and did not humble himself [p] before Jeremiah the prophet at the LORD's command. [q] 13 He also rebelled against [r] King Nebuchadnezzar who had made him swear allegiance by God. He became obstinate [E, s] and hardened his heart against returning to •Yahweh , the God of Israel. 14 All the leaders of the priests and the people multiplied their unfaithful deeds, imitating all the detestable practices of the nations, and they defiled the LORD's temple that He had consecrated in Jerusalem.

The Destruction of Jerusalem 15 But Yahweh, the God of their ancestors sent word against them by the hand of His messengers, sending them time and time again, [t] for He had compassion on His people and on His dwelling place. 16 But they kept ridiculing God's messengers, [u] despising His words, [v] and scoffing at His prophets, until the LORD*'s wrath was so stirred up against His people that there was no remedy.* [w] 17 So He brought up against them the king of the Chaldeans, [x] who killed their choice young men with the sword in the house of their sanctuary. He had no pity on young men or young women, elderly or aged; He handed them all over to him. 18 He took everything to Babylon — all the articles of God's temple, large and small, the treasures of the LORD*'s temple, and the treasures of the king and his officials.* 19 Then the Chaldeans burned God's temple. [y] They tore down Jerusalem's wall, burned down all its palaces, and destroyed all its valuable articles.

20 He deported those who escaped from the sword to Babylon, and they became servants to him and his sons until the rise of the Persian [z] kingdom. [a] 21 This fulfilled the word of the LORD through Jeremiah [b] and the land enjoyed its Sabbath rest all the days of the desolation [c] until 70 years were fulfilled.

The Decree of Cyrus

22 In the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, [d] the word of the LORD spoken through [F] Jeremiah [e] was fulfilled. The LORD put it into the mind of King Cyrus [f] of Persia to issue a proclamation throughout his entire kingdom and also to put it in writing:

23 This is what King Cyrus of Persia says: The LORD, the God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth and has appointed me to build Him a temple at Jerusalem in Judah. Whoever among you of His people may go up, and may the LORD his God be with him.

Last kings of Judah (36:1-23) Study Notes 1:1 At one point 1 and 2 Chronicles were bound together as one scroll, but here we come to a meaningful breaking point. The Chronicler starts afresh with his story, beginning by reviewing a number of details in the process. If we think of Chronicles as the "Gospel According to Ezra," then what follows in the reign of Solomon must be seen as an expression of God's grace because the LORD . . . was with Solomon and highly exalted him. This story is not just about a competent king, but the God who supported him. As a consequence, Solomon strengthened his hold. Solomon, though conscious of the need for military preparation, was not a military man. He united the people in other ways, primarily by fortifying the kingdom and generating a number of building projects, not the least of which was the temple.

1:2 We are not given the text of Solomon's inauguration address, but the fact that he gave one shows his acumen as a leader. As he set out to celebrate his new reign, he made sure that representatives from the entire kingdom were involved in the celebration.

1:3-5 The Chronicler reminds us of the ambivalent situation regarding the sacred sites in Israel. The tabernacle, the central place of worship, was still in Gibeon. This included the altar made by Bezalel in the time of Moses (Ex 38:1-3). The bronze altar was actually a wooden altar covered with a bronze grate.

1:6 Solomon presented 1,000 offerings, following a practice established by David (1Ch 29:21). All of Solomon's sacrifices were burnt offerings, meaning that all the animals were consumed by fire. In order to carry out all these sacrifices within one day, dozens of animals must have been offered simultaneously.

1:10 In response to an open invitation from God (v. 7), Solomon asked for wisdom, demonstrating that he already had remarkable wisdom. Solomon was only about 20 years old. He had shown himself capable in asserting his leadership in eliminating Adonijah, his rival, and in uniting the priesthood in the person of Zadok (1Kg 1-2).

1:11-12 God was pleased with Solomon's request, and added a bonus—riches, wealth, and glory. To this day, the name of Solomon is synonymous with wisdom and wealth.

1:13 Solomon had honored the holy site that he was about to dismantle. The mention of the tent of meeting emphasizes the contrast to the new order he was about to initiate (2:1ff).

1:14 This is the first of two listings of Solomon's wealth (9:13-28). A total of 1,400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen was an extremely large amount. Pharaoh, in pursuing the Israelites at the exodus, had 600 chariots (Ex 14:7) and Sisera of Hazor had 900 (Jdg 4:3). The size of Solomon's army is particularly noteworthy since he was not known as a man of war.

1:15 Solomon's own wealth devalued some of the most precious resources of the ancient world. This state of affairs did not outlive Solomon's reign; his wealth apparently did not benefit the common people in the long run.

1:16-17 Solomon invested heavily in horses and chariots as a basis for increasing his own wealth. He bought horses from Egypt and Kue, a region in Turkey, and then sold them to the Hittites and the Arameans. Although these items are mentioned here as representative of Solomon's material success, they were also a violation of God's ordinance. The law stated that a future king should not acquire horses from Egypt or accumulate large amounts of silver (Dt 17:16-17).

2:1 David assumed that Solomon would build the temple, and he made plans for this (1Ch 17:1). Solomon not only affirmed David's assumption in his own decisions, but he planned the temple and his own palace on a much more impressive scale than David's blueprints.

2:2 In verses 17-18, where the same list is repeated, we learn that the workers conscripted by Solomon were aliens living in Israel. At this time, Solomon did not force any Israelites to work on his building projects (10:4). The first part of the project was to construct the walls out of large blocks of stone. These stones were quarried in the mountains. By shaping this work off site, the laborers had more space to work on site, plus they reduced the weight of each block to its minimum, making transportation easier.

2:3 Despite all the materials that David had accumulated, Solomon needed more, particularly cedar wood. He also needed expert advice on how to work with these materials. So he consulted his father's old trading partner, King Hiram of Tyre.

2:4 Hiram was a shrewd trader. In proposing a business deal to Hiram, Solomon made sure he was informed about the importance of this project. He put Hiram on notice that if he cut corners with the materials he supplied, he would be offending Yahweh. Solomon's letter briefly described the functions of the temple.

2:5 Solomon emphasized to Hiram that the greatness of this temple should exceed any other temple because God was greater than any other gods. If this statement was offensive to Hiram, who worshiped his own gods, his response did not show it (v. 12).

2:6 In contrast to pagan gods whose presence was limited to their temples, Yahweh was not confined to this temple. He filled all of heaven and earth.

2:7 Solomon asked Hiram for a craftsman who could work with precious metals as well as bronze and iron. In addition, he should be able to work with dyed textiles. The color purple, considered the color of royalty, was one of the chief exports of the Phoenicians. Solomon specified that this craftsman would be in charge of laborers who had been appointed by David. Solomon did not want Hiram to send a large labor force that might pose a military threat.

2:8-9 Not only did the Phoenicians have ready access to the wood that Solomon asked for, but they had more experience than the Israelites in working with it. Solomon sent Israelite servants to help with the labor and perhaps to assure the quality of the logs.

2:10 Tyre excelled in trade, but largely depended on other nations for food (Ac 12:20).

2:11-12 Hiram's response showed he understood that he was not just dealing with Solomon but with Solomon's God. Hiram's praise of the LORD should not be taken to mean that he was a true follower of God. People of that time generally believed that each nation had its own god who was effective for his people, but who would have no jurisdiction over other geographic areas (2Kg 5:17). Hiram probably sincerely applauded the God of the Israelites, though Yahweh would have had no personal value to him as a non-Israelite.

2:13-14 Hiram proposed to send Solomon a man named Huram-abi. Son of an Israelite mother and a Tyrian father, Huram-abi was competent in all the skills specified by Solomon and presumably understood Israelite religion. Solomon was in ultimate control of the building project, and Huram-abi, the Phoenician, was next in charge. A number of Israelite supervisors oversaw the large force of non-Israelites and their foremen.

2:16 The Phoenicians were among the early pioneers of seafaring. They were willing to risk the dangerous but efficient method of shipping logs as rafts along the Mediterranean coast. Then they would be transported overland to Jerusalem.

2:17-18 On Solomon's forced laborers, see note at verse 2.

3:1 Mount Moriah was the place God had designated after David saw an angel and a plague was averted (1Ch 21).

3:2 Solomon began the actual building of the temple early in the fourth year of his reign. This means he had not waited long after his coronation to start gathering building materials.

3:3-4 Even though the temple became complex in its details, the basic plan was straightforward. The outline of the temple was a rectangle, 30 feet by 90 feet. Its entryway was a 30-foot tall portal that covered the entire width of the building. The most holy place, or holy of holies, was a 30-foot cube that constituted the far end, leaving a room 30 feet wide and 60 feet long as the holy place. This seems small, considering the crowds that would visit the temple, but sacrifices would be offered in the courtyard outside the temple. Only priests would enter the holy place, and then only twice a day—in the morning and in the evening—and only the high priest could enter the most holy place, only once a year.

3:5 The decorations of the holy place included palm trees. The use of botanical motifs went back to the tabernacle (Ex 37:20). God wants us to appreciate the beauty He has instilled in His creation. Embellishment of sacred places with natural objects is wrong only when they become objects of worship or detract from the true worship of God.

3:8-9 The most holy place was covered with gold. Gold is very heavy, but it is also soft. The easiest way to maintain the gold on the ceiling would have been to apply it to the ceiling beams before they were put in place. The golden nails must have had an iron core, or they could not have sustained hammer blows or held their place given the softness of gold.

3:10-13 On the back wall of the most holy place were two cherubim, each with two wings 7½ feet long, adding up to 30 feet in width, the exact width of the wall.

3:14 The curtain or veil became the highest expression of Phoenician art, with its fabric of many colors, including blue, purple, and crimson.

3:15-17 The design of the temple followed that of the tabernacle, though the temple was constructed from more permanent material. Solomon did add two new structures—two pillars that were taller than the portico. Each of these pillars had a highly ornate capital, featuring a pomegranate motif. Pomegranates were a part of the decorative theme woven into the garments worn by priests (Ex 28:33), so the pomegranate decorations symbolized the priestly function connected to the temple. The names of the pillars, Jachin and Boaz, signified faith in God, meaning "He will establish" and "strength is in Him."

4:1 The various fixtures that Solomon installed in the temple complex were outside the building in the courtyard. The most dominant item was the bronze altar, which shared its dimensions with the most holy place, 30 feet by 30 feet. Because of its height (15 feet), it had a number of steps that priests had to climb to perform sacrifices.

4:2-4 The water reservoir was half the width of the altar in diameter. Here is where priests washed their hands and feet before performing their duties (Ex 30:18-21). Since the reservoir was 7½ feet high, there must have been steps all around it to give the priests access to the water. Perhaps that was a function of the 12 oxen decorations.

4:6 The large reservoir was reserved for the priests, but 10 smaller basins were provided in which to wash the sacrificial animals.

4:8 The 100 gold bowls were probably intended to hold incense and coals.

4:9 A number of details that must have been a part of the courtyard are not specifically mentioned here. It probably featured amenities for the priests as well as storage areas.

4:11 Finally the name of Huram, chief craftsman on the project, comes up, even though he had been in charge of the artwork and decorations (2:13-14). He left his stamp particularly on the smaller items, the various pots . . . shovels, and bowls that would be used regularly at the altar. With these accomplishments, Huram finished the work for which he had been hired.

4:12-16 This inventory of all the items that Huram-abi provided is a review of the things already mentioned, but this time with credit going to him.

4:17 The technique for making items out of bronze involved making clay molds, then filling them with hot molten metal, and removing the clay after the metal had cooled. This process required a lot of water. It was easier to create these items next to the Jordan River and transport them up to Jerusalem than to try to make them on site where water was not as abundant.

4:19-22 Most of the furnishings inside the temple were also made of gold. This altar was intended for the twice-daily burning of incense, not for animal sacrifice. Even though there was a curtain in front of the most holy place, there were also sets of golden doors in front of it and at the entrance to the actual temple building.

5:1 David might have been disappointed if he had known that many of the valuable objects he commissioned for the temple (1Ch 28:12-18; 29:2-5) were relegated to the temple treasuries by Solomon.

5:2 The temple would serve as the only place of worship for all 12 tribes (Dt 12:14). Therefore, it was appropriate for Solomon to have representatives of all the tribes present for the dedication ceremony. The most important aspect of this celebration was moving the ark of the covenant from the tent where David had stored it into the temple.

5:3 Solomon arranged for the temple dedication to occur during the festival (probably the Festival of Booths). All Israelite men were supposed to be in Jerusalem for this celebration, now that a central sanctuary had been built (Ex 23:17; Lv 23:39-43). A large crowd of worshipers would thus take ownership of the temple right from the start.

5:4-6 This procession of the ark covered only a small distance, since it was moved from one part of Jerusalem to another. Simultaneously, a much longer procession carried the entire tabernacle (tent of meeting) from Gibeon up to Jerusalem, where it became integrated into the temple structure. The ark was carried by the proper people, the Levites, and in the proper manner, by threading two poles through grommets on the ark and then hoisting it on their shoulders.

5:7-9 More than a century earlier, the ark had been in the most holy place of the tabernacle. After that it had changed locations several times, but it had never been returned to its prescribed location in the tabernacle. Now finally the ark of the covenant resumed its proper place in the holy of holies. Once the ark was in its proper place, it was situated in such a way that the cherubim (3:10-13) created the impression of guarding the ark with their wings. The poles were too long to be confined to the holy of holies, so they jutted out into the temple. In the very day the Chronicler wrote these words, the ark was no longer in the temple but the poles were, presumably as a symbol of the missing ark.

5:10 By this time only the two tablets with the commandments were in the ark, but at one time it contained two other objects—a pot of manna and Aaron’s rod that had sprouted miraculously (Heb 9:4).

5:11 Solomon followed David’s plan for the division of the priests into different shifts, but all of the priests participated in the dedication service.

5:12-13 The descendants of the three chief musicians—Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun—who had been divided between the tent of the ark in Jerusalem and the tabernacle in Gibeon were now reunited. Together with their clans, they started to make music. Everyone joined together in praising God because the temple was an expression of God's goodness and love for His people.

5:14 God approved of what the people had done, and He displayed His approval by revealing His glory through a cloud that filled the temple. There are three points of significance to the cloud and the momentary stoppage it forced on all activities. (1) It shows that God was pleased with the work the people had done. (2) It was a reminder that God's presence among His people is ultimately the focal point, not the many activities that the people carry out in worshiping God. (3) It brought the exodus to conclusion. Nearly 500 years earlier, the Israelites had followed God from point to point as they crisscrossed the desert for 40 years (1Kg 6:1). During that time, God had shown Himself as a cloud during the day and as a pillar of fire at night (Ex 13:21-22), always moving ahead of the people. Now, with the land possessed in its entirety and a temple in place, the conquest had finally been finished, and the cloud came to rest inside the sanctuary.

6:1-2 Solomon responded to the cloud by observing that the temple was an exalted place where the people could be reminded of God's presence forever.

6:3-11 As the entire congregation rose to receive Solomon's blessings, he repeated the familiar story that led up to this point so everyone would understand the grace of God. The Lord had made a promise and now He had fulfilled it. It was He who had chosen David; and it was He who had designated Solomon as the temple builder.

6:12-13 Solomon had planned this moment by having a platform erected and assuming a public, reverent stance to pray. This way the people could focus on him as he represented the people before the Lord.

6:14-17 Solomon thanked God that the first half of what the Lord had promised had taken place: the temple had been built, and the son of David was on the throne. Then he petitioned God to keep the second part of the promise: the perpetual dynasty of David's descendants as long as they remain faithful.

6:18-20 Solomon recognized that God was not confined to the temple. This was distinct from the common view in the ancient Near East that all deities were restricted to a particular location, such as a temple or a limited geographical region. In Israel's theology, the temple was a place where people could come to encounter the living God, but this living God was present everywhere.

6:21-39 There would be some needs for which the people would pray by directing themselves to the temple, and Solomon asked the Lord to listen and to respond.

6:22-23 The first scenario involved a man who had done some wrong and who needed to clear his name or to bring about the end of his punishment by taking an oath in the temple. Solomon did not ask that a guilty person would be set free, but that justice would be done.

6:24-25 The second scenario was one that is illustrated throughout the rest of 2 Chronicles. It involved the Israelites turning away from God and as a consequence being defeated before an enemy. Solomon asked that when the people came to their senses and prayed in the temple, God would forgive their sins and give them back the land they had lost.

6:26-27 The third scenario implied that a drought in the land had been caused by the Israelites' turning away from the Lord. Again, Solomon's prayer was that God would respond to sincere prayer in the temple by sending rain.

6:28-31 The fourth scenario included a number of disasters. Solomon petitioned God to listen to the prayers by people in the temple, but he stipulated that the prayers must be sincere because God knew the human heart. The temple was not an automatic forgiving machine.

6:32-33 In the fifth scenario, Solomon made his request on behalf of every foreigner who might come to the temple to seek God. His prayer was that these foreigners would find their petitions answered, so God's name would be glorified among those who lived far away. Many ancient people believed their gods were restrained by their location. The god who responded to people from far away was a God who set Himself apart from the many false gods of the surrounding nations.

6:34-35 In the sixth scenario, Solomon asked God for strength in battle. Solomon was not asking God for a blanket support of military adventurism, but for Yahweh's help during those times when He would send them into war.

6:36-39 The seventh and last scenario would have been appropriate for the Chronicler and his contemporaries as they rebuilt the nation after the exile. The nation might be deported into a distant . . . country. This possibility had already been mentioned by Moses (Dt 28:33). Solomon asked that once the people repented and started to pray in the direction of the temple that the Lord would forgive them and bring them back to their own land.

6:41-42 Solomon concluded his prayer by asking God to take over the temple so the priests, the godly people, and he—the anointed king—might rejoice in the nearness of God. He prayed that God would bless Israel for the sake of the loyalty of David, which God did indeed do for Solomon and many generations of Judah's kings (21:7; cp. 1Kg 11:11-13; 15:4; 2Kg 8:19; 19:34; 20:6).

7:1-2 Fire had descended from heaven once before on an offering at precisely the same spot where the temple stood—on David's sacrifice on the threshing floor of Ornan (1Ch 21:25). This dramatic occurrence showed that God approved of what Solomon and the people had done. The glory of the LORD was a cloud and a light so bright that no one could stand in its presence (Ezk 1:28; 10:4).

7:3 This display of God's glory was publicly visible, reminding everyone of God's reality and His faithful character. The praise of the worshipers focused on God.

7:4-6 The sacrifice of this many animals required rigorous organization. The priests had specific tasks at their designated area and the offerings were made virtually assembly-line style, while the musicians took turns providing background music, just as David had envisioned.

7:7 Sacrifices were supposed to be made on the altar of the temple, but it was not large enough to accommodate them all. Solomon consecrated the courtyard for this occasion, and the animals were sacrificed right there on the ground.

7:8-9 Since the dedication of the temple also coincided with the festival (Festival of Booths), many people were in Jerusalem for the celebration of this feast. Hamath is in the far north and the Brook of Egypt is the southern border of Israel, so people were there from the whole country. It is not often that a nation comes together in a celebration of joy, but it surely was the case here.

7:10 Finally after three weeks, Solomon declared the festivities over and sent everyone home to their tents. This expression does not mean that most Israelites were still living in tents rather than houses. This was a familiar figure of speech (10:16). In addition, during the celebration of the Feast of Booths, many people put up temporary shelters, or booths, to signify Israel's period of wandering in the wilderness.

7:11 The Chronicler conflates the completion of the temple and of Solomon's royal palace into one brief sentence. The total time for building the temple, followed by the palace, was 20 years (1Kg 6:38-7:1).

7:12 Ten years earlier, Solomon had begun his reign by visiting the tabernacle at Gibeon (1:7). Just as the Lord had done at Gibeon, He appeared to Solomon at night. This time God confirmed everything that Solomon had prayed for.

7:13-16 This promise presupposes a very specific context. It was given to God's people who are called by God's name, and it is a part of God's answer to Solomon's prayer. It refers to times when the Israelites have become faithless to God and are enduring the consequences, whether it was a famine, an invasion, or even the deportation to another country. To be humble . . . pray . . . seek God, and turn from sin are four aspects of one attitude: repentance. If Israel would repent, He would forgive them and heal their spiritual relationship with Him associated with the promised land. Furthermore, as was established earlier, the prayer mentioned is specifically intended to refer to prayer in the temple or, if that is not possible, prayer said facing in the direction of the temple. This promise is given specifically to God's covenant people, and by itself it should not be applied to other nations or to the church. However, these verses reflect God's gracious nature, and on that basis we may draw out a more fundamental principle—that any person, regardless of race or geography, can come to the Lord with a repentant heart and find forgiveness (see 6:32-33; Jl 2:32; Ac 2:21; Rm 10:13; 1Co 1:2).

7:17-22 The fact that Solomon had been allowed to build the temple showed that he was God's chosen king and the one whose offspring would continue the line of David on the throne. But if Solomon or his successors proved to be unworthy, a time might come when there was no longer a throne for David's offspring to occupy. Just as God was faithful in keeping His promise, He would also be faithful in carrying out His punishment for sin and rebellion. The Lord would not continue the kingdom if the kings refused to follow Him.

8:1 The building of the temple took seven years, and Solomon's palace took another 13, making a total of 20 years (see 1Kg 6:38-7:1).

8:2 A partial payment from Solomon to Hiram for the building materials he provided consisted of 20 cities (villages by modern standards) to add to Hiram's kingdom (1Kg 9:10-14). These locations would have been of use to Hiram only if they were affluent enough to pay taxes or could serve as military defenses. When Hiram went to visit his new acquisitions, he discovered they were worthless little hamlets, so he gave them back to the king of Judah. Solomon was willing to invest in these locations by having them rebuilt and resettled.

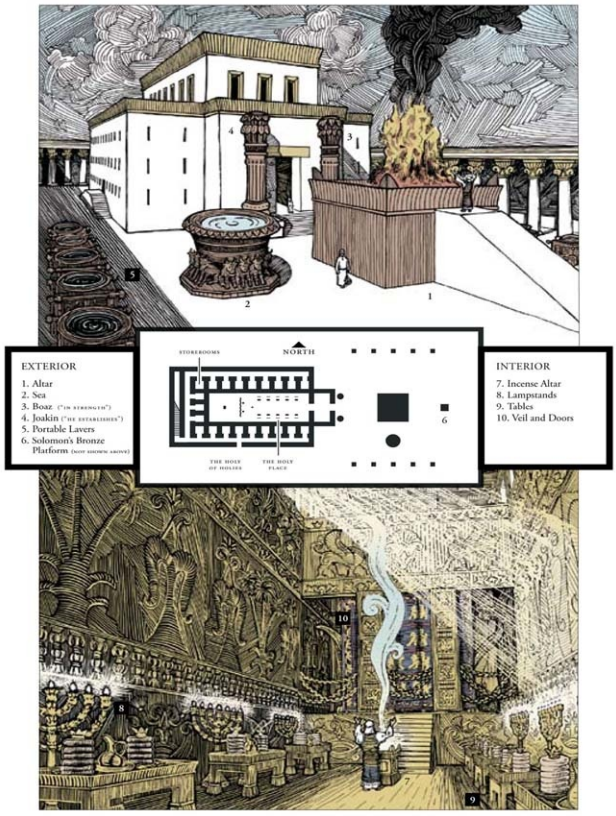
8:3 In contrast to his father David, Solomon undertook few military campaigns. One exception was his seizure of Hamath-zobah. In David's time Tou, king of Hamath, had surrendered to David and paid a tribute (1Ch 18:9-10). Apparently a new government of that city had rebelled against Israel, so Solomon took it over and erected storage facilities there. This city was on the edge of Palestine, a natural destination for caravans crossing the desert between Mesopotamia and Lebanon.

8:4 Now all Solomon needed to do to take control of the trade across the Syrian Desert was to claim an oasis located halfway along the caravan route. Tadmor was such a location. By establishing it along with Hamath, Solomon dominated all the trade to and from Mesopotamia.

8:5-6 Solomon continued with his nationwide building program by fortifying the route leading up to Jerusalem. The cities of Lower and Upper Beth-horon were garrisons intended to keep invaders from reaching the capital city.



8:7-9 God's strict command to Joshua years before was that all Canaanites were to be eliminated (Jos 6:21), but the Israelites had not completely followed through on capturing all the territory until David conquered Jerusalem, the last bit of Canaanite-owned soil. There were still survivors, and these people now made up Solomon's slave force (forced labor) for his construction projects. Israelites were not supposed to become slaves. However, they did have to work for Solomon, and his requirements grew increasingly stringent.

8:11 In contrast to the record of 1 Kings, the Chronicler does not dwell on Solomon's shortcomings or his many marriages. He does mention Solomon's wife who was the daughter of Pharaoh, though only to emphasize that out of respect for the holiness of the ark and the facilities that David had erected, Solomon moved his Egyptian wife to quarters outside Jerusalem. Although the Chronicler does not condemn Solomon at this point, it is still impossible not to realize that Solomon, while observing every part of the ceremonial law by never missing a daily sacrifice, simultaneously undercut the law by importing idolatry right into his marriage bed. In 1Kg 11:6 we learn that Solomon even went so far as to participate in pagan sacrifices in order to please his wives.

8:12-16 Solomon fulfilled all the requirements associated with the temple to the letter, including the daily . . . offerings and all the various mandatory celebrations. He strictly maintained the division of labor and the shifts that had been ordered by his father, King David, before him.

8:17-18 The cities of Ezion-geber and Eloth were located at the southernmost end of Israel on the shore of the Red Sea. These locations made it possible for Solomon to carry on trade with the people on the Arabian Peninsula and possibly beyond. But Solomon had no ships and the Israelites knew nothing about sailing. On the other hand, King Hiram was the ruler of a seafaring people who were busy carrying on trade throughout the Mediterranean Sea, but if the Phoenicians wanted to establish trade relations with Arabia, they had to sail all the way through the Mediterranean down the west coast of Africa, around the Cape of Good Hope and back up north all the way along the east coast of Africa to Arabia. In short, Solomon had convenient harbors but no ships, while Hiram had ships but no convenient harbor. They were able to work together and haul in huge amounts of gold. The location of Ophir is unknown. Solomon considered the gold his personal property, so it was stored in his palace (9:15). The people eventually revolted against the king's practices when they declared, "What portion do we have in David? We have no inheritance in the son of Jesse" (10:16). The hard labor imposed by Solomon might have been more acceptable if it had resulted in nationwide economic benefits.

9:1 Sheba is identical with the ancient kingdom of Saba, located in what is today Yemen at the southern tip of the Arabian Peninsula. This was a thriving kingdom, strategically located between the more distant parts of Asia and the Middle East, thus able to profit from the trade between the two areas. When the combined fleet of Solomon and Hiram began to commute regularly between Arabia and Israel, Saba's economy may have been affected adversely because the two kings were able to eliminate Saba's role as a middleman. The queen of Sheba had heard many stories about this king who was noted for his wealth and wisdom. She made this long, arduous journey to meet Solomon face to face, to learn his secrets of statecraft, and presumably to be on the right side of any potential conflict. She attempted to impress this king who had more wealth than he could ever use by bringing him even more riches.

9:2-4 Solomon was able to answer all her questions and to explain many things to her. By the time the queen had seen everything of Solomon's material glory, as well as the extravagance of the temple and its rituals, it took her breath away. Solomon's intent to build a temple that demonstrated God's superiority to all other gods (1:5) had been accomplished.

9:5-9 The queen acknowledged that the reports she had heard about Solomon did not come close to the reality she saw. She was unaware of the unrest among Solomon's subjects that would reach a climax in the next chapter (and which is elaborated in 1Kg 11:26-40). She only saw the glorious side of the kingdom and even gave the Lord credit for having arranged Solomon's reign. To show her appreciation for the king, she gave him gold . . . spices, and precious stones.

9:10-11 Algum, more commonly called almug, was one of several types of sandalwood known for its fragrance. It could be burned like incense. Solomon incorporated this wood into walkways for the temple and into musical instruments.

9:12 The presents of the queen of Sheba to Solomon turned out to be an investment because the king sent her home with far more wealth than she had brought.

9:13-16 Solomon, as we have seen (2:18; 8:7-8), used slave labor for his building projects and even instituted forced labor among the Israelites (10:4). He hoarded the accumulating amount of gold and devised an ingenious method of storing it by molding it into shields that covered the walls of his palace. People could admire it, but he had quick access to it if he needed it.

9:17-21 The Chronicler sees Solomon's wealth and his splendor as evidence of God's blessing (1:12). His acquisitions included ornate furniture and exotic animals, most coming to him as profit from his partnership with Hiram. Even the grandiose attitude that permeates this description was supposed to demonstrate to the Gentile world the reality of Yahweh's blessings of His king. But this does not mean that Solomon's policies, such as those that led to the devaluation of precious metals, were wise over the long haul. The overabundance of silver and gold in Jerusalem probably created a shortage in other lands, and it was only a short time before someone attempted to restore balance (12:9).

9:23-24 Even Solomon's legendary wisdom led to an increase in his wealth. Some of this wisdom has been preserved for us in the books of Proverbs and Ecclesiastes. Of particular note given Solomon's extraordinary wealth, at the end of his life that was so devoted to material acquisitions, he said: "Absolute futility. Everything is futile" (Ec 1:2).

9:25-28 On Solomon's accumulation of horses and chariots, see note at 1:16-17.

9:29-31 The Chronicler applies his standard summary of the life and rule of a king to Solomon, just as he had done for David (1Ch 29:26-30). If we compare Solomon's final notice with David's, we see that Solomon's obituary carries neither praise nor condemnation. Even though the Chronicler did not dwell on Solomon's shortcomings as the writer of 1 Kings did, he was certainly aware of them. He chose to focus on Solomon the temple builder rather than on Solomon the man. The temple that he built was of greater significance than the king himself.

10:1 Some of the kings throughout the rest of 2 Chronicles have similar names. Some of these kings appear under different names in 1 and 2 Kings. For this reason whenever a king is mentioned for the first time from this point on, we will give a quick summary of his identity.

Rehoboam: First king of Judah; son of Solomon; the king under whom the united kingdom split into the north (Israel) and the south (Judah). Initially there seemed to be little doubt in anyone's mind that Rehoboam should become the next king. He was the son of Solomon, and everyone knew that the descendants of David should occupy the throne. There seemed to be little question about Rehoboam's readiness for the kingship at 41 years old, so all Israel went to Shechem for his coronation.

10:2 Jeroboam: First king of Israel (where Israel refers only to the northern kingdom); leader in the revolt of the 10 northern tribes against Rehoboam; instituted official idol worship in the north. Jeroboam, from the tribe of Ephraim, at one time had been the leader of Solomon's labor force in Jerusalem (1Kg 11:26-40). One day when he was outside the city walls, the prophet Ahijah approached him and told him that he would be king over the 10 northern tribes (1Kg 11:29ff). Realizing that he had now been officially designated as a future traitor and that Solomon would execute him, Jeroboam fled to Egypt and remained there for the rest of Solomon's reign. As soon as Jeroboam heard about the impending coronation of Rehoboam, he made his way back from exile in Egypt to join the assembly.

10:3-4 Jeroboam's talent for leadership was known to the people, who immediately appointed him to be their spokesman and to convey to Rehoboam their desire for a reduction in forced labor.

10:5-7 King Solomon had been known for his wisdom and his ability to decide difficult questions (1Kg 3:28). His son, however, was unable to decide how to respond to this simple request. First he went to the older counselors, those who had served alongside Solomon, and asked them what he should do. They replied with the obvious answer: when you are confronted with an ultimatum from the populace and your entire kingdom is at stake, and you have it in your power to give in to the ultimatum with little difficulty, give the people what they ask for.

10:8-10 Rehoboam did not like the advice of the elders, so he consulted his peers, who are identified as young men (a comparative term, since they were roughly the same age as Rehoboam; see note at v. 1). They were in their forties, and they had been forced to wait for a long time to have any influence in the kingdom. These younger men saw the opportunity to assert themselves, and they suggested to Rehoboam that he speak sharply to the people. They coached their befuddled ruler into repeating an absurd saying that would have alienated even a person who had meant to support Rehoboam.

10:11 The HCSB correctly translates the word that is literally "scorpions" as barbed whips—a common instrument of discipline in the ancient Near East.

10:14 The king made the exact abusive speech that his younger advisers had programmed him to give (vv. 10-11).

10:15 The Chronicler makes it clear to his readers that in the final analysis Rehoboam was only carrying out what God had already prophesied through the prophet Ahijah—that Rehoboam would lose almost all of his kingdom. Thus, even though Rehoboam was responsible for his actions, he was fulfilling what God had planned as punishment for Solomon's and Israel's unfaithfulness (1Kg 11:33).

10:16 When the people (all Israel) realized that Rehoboam was not willing to listen to their reasonable request, they turned their backs on him and went home (to their tents; see note at 8:17-18).

10:17 Rehoboam did not lose all his territory, but his kingdom was restricted to the tribe of Judah. Technically, this region also encompassed the area of Simeon, but this tribe had been assimilated into Judah over the centuries (though not entirely; see 1Ch 4:41). The tribe of Benjamin, once the fiercest opponent of the house of David, was now also fully integrated into Judah.

10:18-19 Still at Shechem, Rehoboam thought he could force the rebellious people to submit to him. He assigned Hadoram, his minister of labor, to call the Israelites back to their duty. The people of the northern tribes expressed their dissatisfaction with rocks and killed their would-be supervisor. Rehoboam managed to escape, but the kingdom was split for good.

11:2-4 Since God had brought about the split of the kingdom as a punishment, He informed Rehoboam through a prophet named Shemaiah that the king should give up any thought of invading and restoring the northern tribes. This was not time for a civil war; the people of Judah and Benjamin needed to go home and settle in under the new conditions. Thus, the army was disbanded and a war was avoided. The Chronicler mentions Jeroboam as head of the north, leaving it to the reader to infer that Jeroboam had indeed been crowned as king of the 10 northern tribes.

11:5-12 Instead of carrying out an invasion, Rehoboam assumed a defensive posture and fortified cities throughout the territory of Judah and Benjamin. Solomon had created large fortifications all over his kingdom, but many of those installations now belonged to the northern kingdom. Rehoboam needed to establish a smaller circle around Jerusalem. Cities that previously had not been that important, such as Bethlehem, now became crucial defensive posts. Not only did Rehoboam see to it that they were physically reinforced, but also that each of those places had a leader, a supply of food, oil, and wine, and large shields and spears. Having started off on the wrong foot, Rehoboam attempted to make up for his blunder by making sure that what remained of his kingdom was not vulnerable to attack.

11:13-16 Meanwhile, Jeroboam in the north was faced with a serious problem of his own. The mind-set of the people over whom he was supposed to rule made it almost impossible for him to be an effective king. He had broken away from Rehoboam and Jerusalem, but the temple was in Jerusalem, and the priests and Levites were still loyal to the temple. Prior to the building of the temple by Solomon, it was permissible for priests to perform sacrifices anywhere in the country, but the priests were not willing to return to that practice, and Jeroboam did not permit priests of the Jerusalem-bound religion to officiate in his new territory. From all over the northern kingdom, they migrated to Jerusalem to participate in the true worship of the Lord. Thus, under Jeroboam's direction, the new kingdom of the north was rooted in idolatry right from the beginning. Jeroboam replaced the worship of God with the worship of goat-demons and two golden calves, one in the northern section of his kingdom at Dan, and the other in the south close to the border with Judah at Bethel. He also installed a new priesthood of those who were willing to serve these idols rather than the Lord. There were many laypersons within the northern tribes who were committed to serving the Lord, and they also relocated to Jerusalem so they could worship at the temple as the law required.

11:17 During the first three years, both kingdoms looked inward to strengthen themselves. The south rallied around the temple and the service of the Lord, while the north focused on the cult of idolatry instigated by Jeroboam.

11:18-21 Rehoboam had 18 wives, many of them from within his wider circle of blood relations. Mahalath was his half cousin, Abihail was his great aunt, unless some intervening generations have not been mentioned. His favorite wife, Maacah (also called Micaiah), was probably Absalom's granddaughter by his son or son-in-law Uriel (13:2). She would become influential in leading the people into idolatry.

11:22-23 There was one matter in which Rehoboam proved to be a wiser ruler than either David or Solomon. Both of his predecessors had left their sons in Jerusalem, where they had been given important titles but not much responsibility. Having spent the first 41 years of his life in such a limbo, Rehoboam made sure that his sons had a meaningful purpose. He put them in charge of many of the newly fortified cities and provided them with numerous wives.

12:1 All Israel in this context refers to residents of the kingdom of Judah, since the northern kingdom had already adopted Jeroboam's idolatry as the new state religion.

12:2-3 No sooner had Rehoboam fallen away into idolatry than Shishak, the new pharaoh of Egypt, mobilized his forces for an invasion of Judah (as well as Israel, as documented in his own records). Egypt had stayed in the background for a long time, having to deal with internal problems as well as several military setbacks over the last two centuries. In the thirteenth century, Ramesses II had set out on a disastrous attempt to subject the Hittites in the north to his rule, but he barely escaped with his army. This fact did not keep his subjects in Egypt from celebrating him as if he had achieved a major victory—for them it was a matter of national pride to put a positive spin on events. Egypt and the Hittites had seriously weakened each other, and Mesopotamia was gripped by a contest for power between Assyria and Babylonia. God had used these factors to enable David and Solomon to achieve great power. Furthermore, a while after Ramesses' misadventure, the Philistines had attempted to invade Egypt. Even though Egypt managed to hold them off, this episode left them weaker still. Solomon had married the daughter of a pharaoh whose entire dynasty ended with him. Now there was a new family of rulers, headed up by Shishak, known to history as Sheshonk I. Shishak was a Libyan. He was able to take control of the Egyptians as well as the adjoining people such as Libyans, Sukkiim (a nation related to the Libyans), and Cushites.

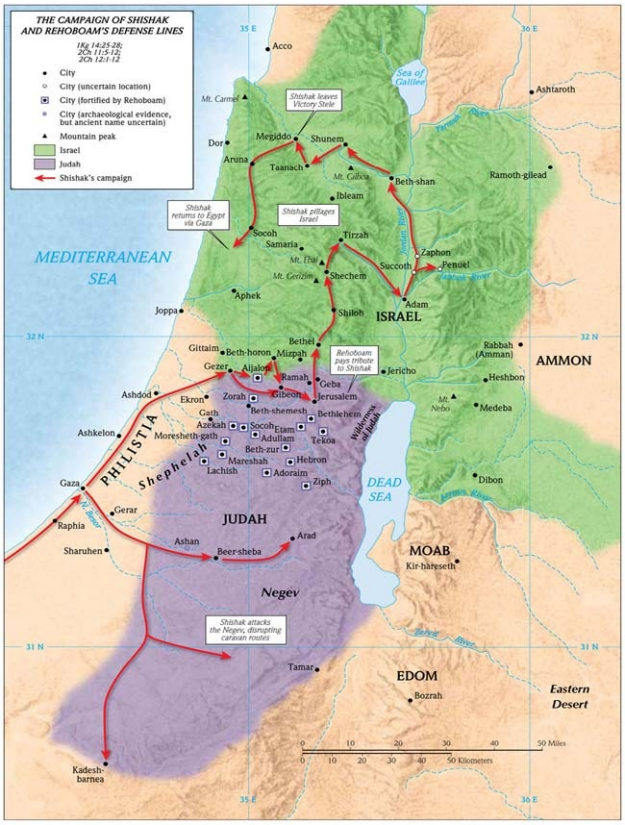
12:4 In spite of all the work that both Solomon and Rehoboam had put into fortifying the cities of Judah, these efforts did not keep away the pharaoh whom God had sent as punishment for the sins of the kingdom.

12:5-6 When the prophet Shemaiah (11:2) explained to King Rehoboam that his sin was the cause of this invasion, he and the people repented. Some subsequent kings, when confronted with their sin, did not listen to God, and thus received the full consequences of their sin.

12:9 Shishak's army arrived in Jerusalem and helped themselves to all the treasures that David and Solomon had collected. The gold shields, so conveniently stored on the walls of Solomon's palace, became easy objects for the Egyptian army to carry off (see note at 9:13-16). Yet just as Shemaiah had predicted, Shishak did not destroy Jerusalem. This unusual action fits with Shishak's own records of this military excursion. He listed in an inscription 41 cities that he captured and decimated, but Jerusalem was not among them.

12:10-11 Having lost the gold shields, Rehoboam replaced them with bronze shields and gave them more protection than he ever did to his father's legacy. He had been humiliated several times as he attempted to emulate his father. Now we see a little bit of self-assertion shining through this gesture.

12:12 Shishak's invasion was a lesson in humility. Shishak had apparently collected enough wealth to be satisfied. Despite the setback of the Egyptian invasion, on the whole life in Judah was good.



12:13-14 The customary death notice for Rehoboam is negative. On balance, despite his repentance and God's rescue, Rehoboam was considered an evil king who did not follow the law of the Lord.

13:1 Abijah: Second king of Judah, son of Rehoboam, father of Asa, miraculous victor over an army of the northern kingdom. Jeroboam was still ruler over the northern kingdom. Despite all the shortcomings of many of the kings of Judah, and even though God would take drastic measures to correct them in the future, the line of David continued on the throne until the exile. There was one brief interruption when Athaliah usurped the throne (22:10), but even then the rightful heir was alive and eventually installed. In contrast, the northern kingdom saw no dynasty longer than five kings, and in many cases there was no succession at all.

13:2 On Abijah's mother Micaiah (also called Maacah), see note at 11:18-21.

13:3 Paradoxically, the Chronicler keeps track of the size of the army for each king, but only to make the point that in the final analysis, the size of the army did not matter. Jeroboam not only had an army twice as large as Abijah's, but he was able to establish his tactical formation so the army of Judah was practically trapped. The site of this battle was in the hill country of Ephraim, an area north of Jerusalem in the area straddling the two kingdoms.

13:4 Only in the context of the parallel account in 1 Kings 15 does Abijah's action take on its full significance. In that passage we see that Abijah was an idolater who cared little for the Lord or His laws. The moment that we see depicted here in Chronicles, when Abijah briefly relied on the Lord in a time of great need, is an exception, but it illustrates the Chronicler's affirmation that God protects the people who rely on Him. This particular case in point began with Abijah standing up and publicly repudiating Jeroboam and his entire army, an action that exposed him to great danger.

13:5 Abijah reminded everyone that God had promised the kingdom to David and his descendants forever. A covenant of salt refers to a binding promise that cannot be broken (Nm 18:19); the term may be derived from the Middle Eastern practice of two parties reassuring each other of their goodwill by consuming a bit of salt together.

13:6-7 Abijah depicted Rehoboam as a helpless youngster who was deceived by the manipulative Jeroboam. This made it sound as though the split of Solomon's kingdom was brought about by Jeroboam, who had schemed to grasp the throne.

13:8 Addressing the soldiers of Jeroboam, Abijah pointed to their action as another act of rebellion against God and the descendants of David. The golden calves they were carrying with them into battle were evidence of their idolatry.

13:9 Abijah combined Jeroboam, the instigator, and his soldiers a generation later in his accusation. Both they and their usurper king shared the guilt for having banished the true priests and substituting their own priesthood. The description of how one could become a priest by paying the going price of a young bull and seven rams was intended to raise doubts in the soldier's minds about the wisdom of this practice.

13:10-12 In contrast, Abijah pointed out that he and his kingdom had retained the true priests of God, the descendants of Aaron, and that they were worshiping the true God. He mentioned the rituals of the temple, hoping that these references would induce the soldiers to understand that by having discarded their true legacy in favor of Jeroboam's contrivances, they were pursuing a lost cause.

13:13-18 While Abijah was attempting to persuade the northern army to abandon the fight, his enemies sent soldiers into the rear of his army to close the trap. The army of Judah cried out, fought with desperation, and God took it from there. They killed more than half of Jeroboam's army, but the Chronicler makes it clear that it was the LORD who was responsible for the victory.

13:19-20 Abijah and his army not only routed Jeroboam, but they also captured the town of Bethel—the southern sanctuary for Jeroboam's golden calves. For Jeroboam, this was the beginning of the end. God judged him severely, and after he died, his son Nadab was assassinated after only two years on the throne (1Kg 13-14; 15:25-28).

13:21 Abijah's reign was brief as well, but he remained powerful.

13:22 The Writing of the Prophet Iddo is not known to us.

14:1 In light of the single event of Abijah's life that the Chronicler highlights, Abijah received a neutral death notice. He was buried on Mount Zion in the vicinity of David's tomb. The line of succession passed on to his son Asa.

Asa: Third king of Judah; son of Abijah; devoted to God, but closed himself off from God at the end of his life. The years given for the kings' reigns make it clear that at times there was some overlap, when the father had already elevated his son as co-regent with him, just as David did with Solomon for a short while (1Ch 29:22). Thus, the 10 years of peace could include the latter years of Abijah's reign and the first years of Asa's reign.

14:2-3 Asa receives high praise from the Chronicler. He removed all the objects of idol worship and exhorted the people to obey God. High places were places of worship to various gods. Many, but not all, were pagan. Frequently sites for idolatry are called "high places," as in this passage (11:15), but the expression is also used for places dedicated to Yahweh, the true God. Asherah poles were dedicated to the Canaanite goddess Asherah. The Canaanites believed that Asherah was the wife of the high god El and the mother of the main god Baal. She was a goddess of sexuality, and her worship was supposed to produce fertility for crops and animals by venerating sacred poles.

14:6-7 Encouraged by the time of peace, Asa set about redoing the fortifications throughout the land. He showed greater understanding than Rehoboam of the value of these fortifications. He told the people that they still owned the land because they had sought the LORD. Without the Lord's protection, the walls would be useless.

14:8-10 Asa's army was even larger than that of Abijah; the 400,000 warriors had grown to 580,000. Unfortunately, this huge number still put him at a disadvantage when Zerah the Cushite (an Ethiopian) came calling with an army of one million men and 300 chariots. Instead of concealing himself behind his newly built fortifications, Asa and his smaller army marched out to confront Zerah in the vicinity of Mareshah, a town in western Judah.

14:11 Asa knew the odds were against him, but he had evidently learned from his father's success against Jeroboam's army. He cried out to the LORD for help. The king believed the outcome of the battle would not be determined by a mere mortal.

14:12 Once again, it was the LORD who won the battle, with Asa and his army serving as His instruments.

14:13-15 Zerah and his huge army had advanced this far because they had received support from the people of Gerar and the cattle-raising nomads in the vicinity. The army of Judah plundered all the cities around Gerar.

15:1-2 Azariah son of Oded is one of many prophets who make brief appearances in the books of 1 and 2 Chronicles. He came with a message of encouragement for Asa to continue his devotion to the Lord.

15:3-7 Azariah reminded Asa of the cycles when the people had abandoned God, were punished (particularly by means of invasions of foreign armies), returned to God, enjoyed God's blessings, and once again abandoned Him. The prophet's intent was to praise Asa and to motivate him to continue what he was doing.

15:8 It is not clear when this event occurred. It is possible that this passage is an elaboration of the introduction to Asa in 14:2, but we cannot rule out that Asa had not completely followed through on his earlier attempts at reform and that Azariah's message led him to become more aggressive in his purge of idolatry.

15:9-11 The people responded favorably to Asa's reforms, including further defections from the north (see note at 11:13-16). They held a major feast of sacrifice in the temple, which the king had renovated (15:8). The animals that were sacrificed came from the plunder of Asa's earlier victory (14:13-15).

15:12-15 Everyone took an oath of allegiance to the Lord, and they did so joyfully and voluntarily. This oath included an automatic death penalty for anyone who would not seek the LORD . The Lord rewarded their zeal and genuine repentance with rest (Dt 4:29; 1Sm 7:3); God reserves the right to ignore insincere repentance (Ps 66:18; Pr 1:28-31; 21:27; Jr 11:9-11).

15:16 One of the important acts of Asa was that he removed from power Maacah, his grandmother, because she was a supporter of idol worship.

15:17 This verse illustrates the difference between high places that were pagan sites and those that were used for worship of Yahweh (see note at 14:2-3). The high places that Asa did not remove were dedicated to the true God.

15:19 For a long time Asa did all the right things and avoided doing all the wrong things, and things went well for him and the kingdom.

16:1 Baasha: Third king of Israel; began his own dynasty; defeated by Asa of Judah. In the northern kingdom, Jeroboam's son Nadab had been replaced by Baasha, who decided to go to war against the southern kingdom. The first step in his strategy was to block access to Jerusalem by fortifying the town of Ramah. Baasha had also formed an alliance with Ben-hadad, king of Aram in Damascus.

This meant that once Asa was cut off from the outside world, it would be an easy thing to capture Jerusalem.

16:2-6 Asa emptied the treasuries of the temple and bribed Ben-hadad of Damascus to break his treaty with Baasha of Israel. The king of Damascus not only complied willingly, but even sent his soldiers into Israel to compensate themselves for the booty they missed by not attacking Jerusalem. Asa was able to destroy Baasha's blockade and assert his dominance over his northern border area again.

16:7-9 Asa made a serious misjudgment in thinking that the Lord would be pleased if he did God's work for Him. Rather than reaping praise for his diplomatic achievement, Asa was rebuked for his actions by Hanani. This prophet reminded the king that God wanted Asa to depend on Him and not on his own cleverness or on help from pagans. After Asa defeated the superior forces of the Cushites and Libyans he should have known that God rewards devotion with deliverance.

16:10 This was more than Asa could handle. His ego had been bruised, so he put the prophet Hanani in prison and abused other people. He had forgotten his earlier assertion that a mere mortal could not hinder God (14:11).

16:11-12 So the glorious reign of Asa, who had acted for God so effectively, came to a sour end. When he developed a serious disease in his feet, he avoided turning to the Lord and sought healing by physicians instead. His sin was not in turning to physicians, but in failing to ask God how he should proceed and to rely on God for the outcome (Jr 17:5).

16:14 Nevertheless, Asa received a glorious burial. The reference to ointments and spices may indicate that his death was due to diabetes, which could have brought on gangrene in his feet. The great fire was a tribute of honor from the people (cp. 21:19).

17:1 Jehoshaphat: Fourth king of Judah; son of Asa; thoroughly devoted to God, but made disastrous alliances with Ahab and Ahaziah of Israel.

17:2 Despite his dubious victory over Baasha, Asa had to endure further wars at the end of his reign (16:9). His son Jehoshaphat, who succeeded him on the throne, reworked all the fortifications and stationed troops in the older locations as well as in the newly captured cities of Ephraim.

17:3-6 Jehoshaphat was one of the outstanding kings of Judah. He stood for all the things that should characterize a king of Judah, and the Chronicler praises him almost as much as David, Solomon, and (later on) Hezekiah. Since his father Asa had lost his grip on the kingdom in his later years, Jehoshaphat had to purge the land of high places and Asherah poles.

17:7-9 An important part of David's original plan in assigning duties to the Levites was a contingent of teachers throughout the country (1Ch 26:29-32), but this proved impossible once the kingdom was divided. Jehoshaphat revived this idea and designated certain Levites as itinerant teachers. They carried copies of the law and instructed everyone in Judah how to live as God's people.

17:10-11 The Lord rewarded Jehoshaphat's single-minded commitment by causing the neighboring kingdoms to fear Judah; some even voluntarily brought tribute.

17:14-18 There was another increase in the size of the army of Judah. Rehoboam's army had numbered 180,000; Abijah had 400,000 soldiers; Asa's army numbered 580,000. The grand total for Jehoshaphat's army was 1,160,000 fighting men.

18:1 Ahab: Sixth king of Israel, son of Omri; made Baal worship the state religion of the northern kingdom (1Kg 16:31); formed an alliance with Jehoshaphat of Judah. Jehoshaphat, who needed no one's help to achieve greatness, acted as though he depended on other people for success. He contracted a marriage between his son Jehoram and Athaliah, daughter of Ahab and Jezebel.

18:2 Ahab's father, Omri, had built Samaria and made it the new capital of the northern kingdom. Jehoshaphat decided to pay Ahab a visit, and the king received him in grand style, even performing many sacrifices in Jehoshaphat's honor. Ahab's devotion to Baal was no secret, and thus Jehoshaphat was compromising his devotion to the Lord.

18:3-4 At Ahab's initiative, Jehoshaphat agreed to combine their armies to fight the Arameans. As an afterthought, Jehoshaphat asked that they consult the Lord on whether this was really the LORD's will.

18:5 Ahab had 400 prophets on his payroll. These prophets, who were servants of Baal, were well-schooled in declaring whatever King Ahab wanted to hear, so they encouraged him to go ahead with his plans.

18:6 Conferring with false prophets was not what Jehoshaphat had in mind, so he asked if a prophet of Yahweh was available. This was an astounding request because prophets of Yahweh were not welcome at the court of Ahab and Jezebel.

18:10 Word had come to the prophets of Baal that what the king of Judah wanted to hear was the word of Yahweh. One of their leaders, Zedekiah, decided to add a visual touch to his prophecy. He decorated himself with a symbol of Baal, a set of iron horns, and began to act out the Lord's supposed prediction of Ahab's success in battle.

18:12-13 The court messenger wanted to avoid controversy and did not want to offend the king, so he encouraged Micaiah to go along with the crowd. As a true prophet, Micaiah knew he must speak the message God gave him (Nm 22:18; 2Co 2:17; Gl 1:10; 1Th 2:4).

18:14-15 There may have been a sarcastic tone in Micaiah's first statement, because Ahab detected that it was not the truth.

18:16-17 Putting sarcasm aside, Micaiah stated that he saw all Israel scattered on the hills like sheep without a shepherd, implying that Ahab would be killed in the battle. Ahab said that this was precisely what he had come to expect from Micaiah.

18:18-24 Micaiah also stated that Ahab's court prophets were the instruments of a spirit sent by God with the specific intention of leading Ahab into destruction with a lie. While God does not lie, He does permit lying spirits to deceive those who will not believe the truth (2Th 2:9-12). In the end, God also sent Micaiah with the truth, so Ahab had a choice whom to believe. Zedekiah questioned Micaiah's divine authority by slapping him and accusing him of infringing on Zedekiah's right to speak for Yahweh. Micaiah replied that the matter would be settled on the day that Zedekiah, confronted by the defeat of Ahab's army, would try to protect himself by hiding in a toilet. The Chronicler did not record the precise confirmation of this prophecy.

18:27 Micaiah publicly announced he would submit to the test of a true prophet: whether his prediction came to pass (Dt 18:21-22).

18:29 Ahab, knowing that the Arameans wanted to kill him, made it look like Jehoshaphat was the only king on the battlefield. His superstition may have led him to think that a disguise could avert what was prophesied. It is hard to understand why Jehoshaphat would go along with this plan, unless he had already let Ahab have the upper hand in their relationship; see note at 1Kg 22:4-5.

18:30-32 The Arameans did, in fact, have orders to single out Ahab. Since Jehoshaphat was the only visible king, they focused on him and almost killed him. Jehoshaphat cried out to the LORD . God graciously caused the Arameans to back off by letting the Aramean chariot commanders recognize that Jehoshaphat was not Ahab, their intended target.

18:33-34 One lone Aramean archer shot a random arrow. The Hebrew could also be taken to mean that he "simply" shot or that he was merely doing what a good soldier should do. This arrow not only hit Ahab but penetrated through the joints of his armor, something even the best archer was unlikely to achieve on purpose. When Ahab died at sunset, Micaiah, the prophet of Yahweh, had been vindicated, and Zedekiah, the prophet of Baal, had been repudiated.

19:1-3 Jehoshaphat was able to return safely to Jerusalem where he had to face God's evaluation of what he had just done. Just as Asa, his father, had been greeted by the prophet Hanani, now Jehu son of Hanani scolded Jehoshaphat, king of Judah. It was wrong for Jehoshaphat to team up with a king who was not a worshiper of God. But because Jehoshaphat was a good king who had gone further than any other in purging the land of idolatry, he would not have to face serious judgment as his father did.

19:4 Another difference between Asa and Jehoshaphat is that Jehoshaphat did not turn against the prophet who had declared God's anger to him but resumed his reforms.

19:5-7 In appointing regional judges, Jehoshaphat reminded them of two things: that God would be watching them, and that God was the model for impartiality. Jehoshaphat was not merely pragmatic in his governing but led the country in spiritual matters as well.

19:8-11 Jehoshaphat also carried out judicial reform in Jerusalem. Some of these judges were Levites and priests and thus were accountable only to the Lord. Their supervisor was not the king but Amariah, the high priest. They would serve as an appeals court for the regional judges. Zebadiah . . . the ruler of the house of Judah, along with the Levites, was to be the final authority in cases that involved the king himself.

20:1 With the northern kingdom of Israel occupied in war against the Arameans, the countries east of the Jordan River and the Dead Sea decided to invade Judah. The Meunites were also referred to as the Edomites.

20:2 By the time the word of this invasion got to Jehoshaphat, the army had come as far as En-gedi, about 50 miles from Jerusalem on the west shore of the Dead Sea.

20:3-4 Jehoshaphat had learned to rely on the LORD and had taught his people the same. Earlier we saw that the total number of men in Jehoshaphat's army was 1,160,000. This was an enormous army, but Jehoshaphat was aware that neither the size of an army nor the depth of fortifications could protect him without the Lord's intervention.

20:5-9 In a public prayer in front of the temple, Jehoshaphat reaffirmed Solomon's prayer and God's response to it. This was precisely one of the scenarios that Solomon had envisioned (6:34): the kingdom was being invaded by a foreign power. On behalf of all the people, Jehoshaphat pleaded with the Lord for deliverance.

20:10-12 Jehoshaphat included in his prayer the events of long ago, when the Israelites had first come to the promised land. The Ammonites and Moabites had refused to allow the Israelites to pass through their territory (Nm 22:4). At the time the Israelites had not sought revenge against them; now Jehoshaphat appealed to God to judge them for their faithlessness.

20:14-17 God causes a priest to prophesy. Jahaziel, who came from a distinguished line of Levites reaching all the way back to Asaph—one of David's main musicians—conveyed God's approval to Jehoshaphat. He told the king to walk out to the place of confrontation with his army and to stand there and watch as God brings victory (Ex 14:13).

20:18-19 Jehoshaphat believed that Jahaziel had spoken God's message. There was nothing left to do but worship God, and a number of Levites took the lead in praising God. A meeting called to deal with a serious crisis turned into a praise and worship service.

20:21 The next day, as the army set out to march toward En-gedi, the only issue left to solve was what songs to sing and in which key. As they marched, one refrain kept coming up: Give thanks to the LORD, for His faithful love endures forever. This is the same chorus that was the theme song during the transport of the ark to Jerusalem (1Ch 16:34) and at the temple dedication (2Ch 5:13; 7:3,6).

20:22-23 There were three separate armies that did not know one another. They may have split up in order to arrive at their destination quickly. Suddenly, these armies heard what they took to be shouting—which was actually praising. In their God-ordained confusion they destroyed each other.

20:24-26 When Jehoshaphat's parade of musical soldiers arrived at the battlefield, there was nothing left to do but gaze at it in amazement, to plunder the enemy, and to praise God for this miraculous victory. Thus, this site was called the "Valley of Praise."

20:28 Music and praise continued to characterize the army under Jehoshaphat's spiritual leadership.

20:29-30 Word of the miraculous nature of this victory spread quickly. Due to Yahweh's reputation, no nation had any interest in picking a fight with Jehoshaphat or the kingdom of Judah. Thus, God's victory brought peace and prosperity.

20:32-33 The Chronicler gives Jehoshaphat high marks. No king since David had been as zealous in abolishing idolatry and false worship. But despite his exemplary spiritual leadership, not all the people's hearts had been changed, so some high places still remained.

20:35-37 Jehoshaphat again tied himself to the northern kingdom by making a contract with King Ahaziah to build ships, which they would then send to Tarshish (possibly Spain). The best place to construct these ships appeared to be Ezion-geber, at the very tip of the Red Sea, not the Mediterranean coast. Once again, God did not allow Jehoshaphat to get away with such compromise. He sent a prophet named Eliezer to condemn Jehoshaphat's sin. As punishment, a storm came up and all the ships were destroyed.

21:1 Jehoram: Fifth king of Judah; son of Jehoshaphat; promoted Baal worship; brought calamity on Judah. In the next few chapters, we speed through several generations. Because the reigns end early, the kings get younger and younger, leading up to Athaliah usurping the throne of Judah when the next rightful heir was only one year old. Jehoshaphat was about 18 years old when Jehoram was born. Jehoshaphat ascended the throne at 35 and ruled for 25 years. His son Jehoram ruled for eight years. Jehoram's son Ahaziah became king at age 22 but reigned for only one year. When Ahaziah died he left behind a one-year-old heir-apparent.

21:2-6 Jehoshaphat may have thought that by having his son Jehoram marry the daughter of Ahab and Jezebel (v. 6), Jehoram might eventually become ruler of a kingdom that was once again united, and thus perhaps return all Israel to the worship of God and obedience to the law. But rather than being a new David, Jehoram became the personification of Ahab in Judah. Together with Athaliah, his wife, Jehoram began to refashion the kingdom of Judah so it would look just like the northern kingdom, where Baal was supreme and assassination was the preferred method of changing government. As soon as Jehoram had full grasp of the southern kingdom, he proceeded to kill all his brothers and anyone else who might have some claim on the throne.

21:7 The only reason the Lord did not destroy Jehoram was that He graciously continued to fulfill His promise that a descendant of David would always be on the throne of Judah (see note at 6:41-42).

21:8-9 The Edomites had suffered defeat during the time of Jehoram's father, Jehoshaphat. When they realized that Jehoram was not worshiping the same powerful God as Jehoshaphat had done (see v. 10; cp. 20:29), they declared their independence from Judah and reestablished their own government. Jehoram set out to attack the insurgent Edomites, crossing into their territory with bulky chariots and a large force, but God was not on his side. He quickly found himself surrounded.

21:10 The report that Edom is still in rebellion . . . today shows that Jehoram's mission was unsuccessful. Also, the town of Libnah in Judah rebelled against Jehoram. The citizens of this town refused to follow Jehoram because he had abandoned Yahweh, the God of his ancestors. Not everyone turned a blind eye to the disaster into which Jehoram was taking his country.

21:11 Jehoram kept busy installing places of idol worship throughout Judah. The statement that he caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to prostitute themselves can be both literal and symbolic. In a symbolic sense, the people were committing spiritual adultery; in the literal sense, many of the pagan practices involved sexual lewdness. While it is the king's duty to provide spiritual leadership and he is held responsible when his people are led astray, ultimately the people are also responsible for their own actions. People can always refuse to follow a wicked king, as the people of Libnah proved (v. 10; cp. Ac 4:18-20).

21:12-15 Since Jehoram was Ahab's son-in-law, it is not surprising that the prophet Elijah—Ahab's long-standing opponent—chastised Jehoram for the same behavior for which he had rebuked Ahab. Elijah's letter mentioned the many sins that Jehoram had committed, including idolatry and fratricide, and promised a swift and harsh punishment. Just as Jehoram eliminated his brothers, now Jehoram's household would be eliminated.

21:16-17 It had not been long since the Philistines and their Arab neighbors had come calling on Jehoshaphat of Judah (17:11) to bring tribute. Now they came calling again, but this time they took back the tribute and everything else in the king's palace. They killed all of Jehoram's sons except Jehoahaz (who is subsequently called Ahaziah) and all his wives except Athaliah, the one who shared responsibility for this catastrophe.

21:18-20 Just as Elijah had predicted, Jehoram contracted a horrible disease in his intestines from which he eventually died. None of his subjects mourned his departure. He was not accorded a ceremonial fire of honor, and he was not buried alongside other kings of Judah.

22:1 Ahaziah: Sixth king of Judah; son of Jehoram and Athaliah; killed when Jehu annihilated the house of Ahab. Despite the people's dissatisfaction with Jehoram, when he died they acclaimed his son Ahaziah as the next king.

In order to make sense out of the events in this section, one must recognize the duplication of the names of the kings in the southern and northern kingdoms. In the northern kingdom of Israel, Ahab had two sons, Ahaziah and Jehoram. When Ahab died, his son Ahaziah succeeded him, and he in turn was succeeded by his brother, Jehoram. In the southern kingdom of Judah, Jehoshaphat was succeeded by his son Jehoram, and his successor was his son (and Jehoshaphat's grandson), Ahaziah. Thus, the successions in the north were: Ahab, Ahaziah, Jehoram; in the south the successions were: Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, Ahaziah.

22:2-4 Ahaziah of Judah was just as evil as his father Jehoram. His mother Athaliah received a large share of the blame by misleading him. Because of the family connection to the house of Ahab, Ahaziah received advice from his relatives in the northern kingdom. Ahaziah followed the practices of the northern kingdom, including idolatry and violence.

22:5-6 Just as Jehoshaphat had gone with Ahab of Israel to Ramoth-gilead to fight against the Arameans, so Ahaziah of Judah went along with Joram of Israel to the same place for the same purpose. The result was almost identical. Joram was seriously wounded.

Ahaziah: Seventh king of Israel, son of Ahab and Jezebel; made a temporary naval alliance with Jehoshaphat of Judah. Joram (also called Jehoram): Eighth king of Israel, son of Ahab, brother of Ahaziah; killed by Jehu after he and Ahaziah of Judah fought against Hazael of Aram; last king of the house of Ahab in Israel.

22:7-9 Jehu: Ninth king of Israel; began a new dynasty when he eliminated the house of Ahab; killed Ahaziah of Judah as a part of his purge. God had decided to put an end to the dynasty of Ahab, and his chosen instrument for this task was Jehu son of Nimshi who led the revolution against the clan of Ahab and became king himself. Ahaziah of Judah was caught up in this revolution and was executed along with everyone else related to the house of Ahab.

22:10 Athaliah: Usurper of the throne of Judah; daughter of Jezebel and Ahab; wife of Jehoram; executed in Jehoiada's plot to reinstall Joash as king. Who would fill the vacant throne of Judah? There were some male heirs who were toddlers, but of course they were unable to rule the country. Athaliah, Ahaziah's mother, leaped at the chance and made herself queen of Judah. She had no legitimate claim to the throne because she was not descended from David. She followed her husband's earlier practice and killed anyone who had a claim to the throne, even her own grandchildren.

22:11-12 Still, there was one heir whom Athaliah was not able to eliminate. Joash was a baby, having been born about the time of Ahaziah's accession. Ahaziah's sister Jehoshabeath and her husband Jehoiada the high priest raised Joash in seclusion in the temple for six years.

23:1-2 Jehoiada waited patiently for six years before he carried out his plan to overthrow Athaliah. Jehoiada did not act rashly, but he made sure he had the military leaders on his side as well as the Levites and the prominent families. As they gathered in Jerusalem, it was evident that Athaliah did not have much support from the people.

23:4-7 Jehoiada gathered a revolutionary force that was powerful, disciplined, and well prepared. He made it appear as though the priests and Levites were carrying on with their usual duties, with the normal one-third of the total work force serving in the temple. At the same time, the other Levites were in the immediate vicinity, half of them at the nearby king's palace and half at one of the major gates. The armed troops were in the courtyards, but Jehoiada insisted that the sanctity of the temple not be violated. The presence of the military would assure that nothing happened to Joash.

23:9 The temple contained an arsenal of weapons that had been stored there since the time of David. Thus, the soldiers were able to walk into the temple precinct unarmed, but they received weapons as soon as they entered.

23:11 Then they brought in Joash and began to acclaim the child as king. The testimony may have been a copy of the Torah, perhaps Deuteronomy, but it may also have been a copy of the agreement that Jehoiada had made with all the leaders acknowledging Joash as the rightful king.

23:13 The pillar was apparently where coronations traditionally took place (Jdg 9:6; 2Kg 11:14; 23:3). Athaliah probably would not have recognized little Joash, so she concluded that someone was committing treason.

23:14 Jehoiada did not want to desecrate the temple by killing her there.

23:16-17 Jehoiada would speak for the child king while he was too young to make decisions. On behalf of the king, he and the people agreed to return to the Lord. They went to the temple of Baal, the main center of worship during the time of Jehoram, Ahaziah, and Athaliah. They destroyed the building, the altars, the idols, and the priest of Baal, Mattan.

23:18-19 Jehoiada restored order to the temple, following the plans outlined years before by David. He made sure that sacrifices would be conducted and that the joyful music David had made a part of the daily operation of the temple would be heard once again.

23:20-21 Jehoiada and his co-conspirators escorted young Joash to the royal palace and placed him on the throne. The word quiet is the same word used in Judges when the nation was at peace, with no threats (Jdg 3:11; cp. Jb 3:26; Is 32:17; Jr 30:10). Athaliah had been a source of conflict.

24:1-2 Joash: Seventh king of Judah; son of Ahaziah; installed while still a boy by Jehoiada when he dethroned Athaliah; obeyed God as long as Jehoiada was alive, but turned to evil as soon as Jehoiada died. The 40 years of Joash's reign matched the length of David's reign, but since Joash started at such an early age, it took him only into midlife.

24:4 Upon reaching adulthood, Joash decided it was time for the LORD's temple to be repaired and renovated. It had been largely ignored for many years.

24:5 Joash commissioned the Levites to travel throughout the kingdom of Judah and to collect money for this renovation. One wonders why Levites, whose jobs depended on the temple, had not made this a greater priority before Joash became king.

24:6-7 Jehoiada, as high priest, was supervisor of the Levites. Joash called him to account for the lack of speed by those who reported to him. As Joash issued this reprimand to Jehoiada, he appealed to those things that were closest to Jehoiada's heart—compliance with the law and the purity of the temple. The king stated that the collection of the tax for the temple had been instituted through Moses (Ex 30:14) and that many of the sacred things, or furnishings of the temple, had been stolen and used for the worship of the Baals.

24:8-10 Jehoiada did not send the Levites from town to town to collect the money. Instead, he sent them out to require the people to come to Jerusalem and deposit money in a chest that Joash had placed at the gate of the . . . temple. This plan worked.

24:12-13 The money collected went exactly where it was needed—to the workmen who were carrying out the renovation.

24:14 When all the construction work was done and the workers had been paid, there was enough money left over to replace the temple utensils so sacrificial rituals could be carried out efficiently and with dignity.

24:15-16 Jehoiada the high priest, Joash's adviser, died at the age of 130 years. He was buried with honor normally accorded only to kings.

24:17-18 The people who won Joash's confidence had authority in various parts of Judah. They apparently preferred the old system, influenced by the kings of Israel. Like Rehoboam, Joash followed bad advice (10:8). They persuaded the king to abandon the Lord and to return to the idolatry that Joash along with Jehoiada had attempted to root out. The wrath of God cut into their prosperity (v. 20).

24:19 God did not give up on Joash but conveyed His will by way of prophets. Yet the king continued to support and encourage false worship.

24:20-22 Jehoiada's son Zechariah made a speech confronting the people with their idolatry. The king enlisted a number of functionaries who stoned Zechariah to death in the courtyard of the temple. Zechariah invoked God's vengeance on the faithless king. To this day, the tomb of Zechariah can be seen outside Jerusalem in the Kidron Valley. It was this Zechariah to whom Jesus referred when He accused the leaders of His day of hypocrisy (Lk 11:47-51).

24:23-24 Up to this point, Jehoshaphat and Ahaziah of Judah had participated in the northern kingdom's war against the Arameans. But there had been no direct conflict between Judah and Aram since the time Asa bought off Ben-hadad. Now this situation changed. With a weak and confused King Joash on the throne, and absent the Lord's protection, the Arameans were able to conquer Jerusalem with a small force and carry off valuables again.

24:25 The Arameans despised Joash so much that they left him to die after he was severely wounded. His servants took advantage of the situation and killed him as he was lying defenseless on his bed. Joash was buried unceremoniously outside the usual location for the tombs of the kings.

24:26 The two servants who assassinated Joash were Gentiles, sons of an Ammonite woman and a Moabite woman, respectively. Even these outsiders would not tolerate the king's evil actions.

25:1-4 Amaziah: Ninth king of Judah, son of Joash; turned from God to idol worship. Amaziah's reign was mediocre. Even though he had a basic commitment to the Lord and to God's law, he was not able to resist the lure of idolatry or the temptation to go to war unnecessarily. Amaziah executed the two men who had killed his father, but he did not follow the usual practice of executing an entire family (22:10; 2Kg 10:11), killing only the men and not . . . their children (Dt 24:16).

25:5-6 The nation of Edom had rebelled against Judah's control during the reign of Jehoram (21:8). Now Amaziah decided to bring the Edomites back in line, and he assembled an army for this purpose. This was the first serious military excursion by Judah since Jehoram's attempts to reconnect Edom. The army that Amaziah put together was also the smallest since the division of the kingdom. Even Abijah was able to muster 400,000 men, while Jehoshaphat's army numbered over one million. Amaziah could only conscript 300,000 soldiers. He felt that this was not enough, so he hired 100,000 mercenaries from the northern kingdom of Israel. Once again a king of Judah allied himself with armed forces from Israel, though this time he did it in his own cause and at the hefty cost of 7,500 pounds of silver, paid in advance.

25:7-10 A prophet appeared on the scene to issue a warning from God to the king. He told Amaziah that if he took the northern soldiers on his venture, he would ensure defeat. Amaziah was flabbergasted that the Lord expected him to waste all that silver, but when the prophet told him that this amount was tiny compared to what God could provide for him, he consented and released the soldiers, expecting them to go home since they had already been paid. The mercenaries, perhaps hoping for a large amount of plunder, did not see it that way. They grew angry. Before they returned home they attacked a number of cities of Judah. They helped themselves to plunder to compensate themselves for what they had missed by not participating in the war against Edom (v. 13).

25:11-12 As promised, Amaziah's expedition against Edom was a success. The army of Judah killed 10,000 Edomites in battle and then executed another 10,000 prisoners of war.

25:13 After being paid and released (see note at vv. 7-10), the irate mercenaries collected plunder within Judah. It is hard to understand how northern troops could plunder cities of Judah starting from Samaria. Perhaps Samaria is another name for Migron in Judah. Another possibility is that the troops were released immediately after mustering in Samaria, and they worked their way south from there into Judah. Beth-horon is northwest of Jerusalem.

25:14-15 Amaziah's next action is virtually unfathomable. A common mind-set in the ancient world was that the gods of a particular nation would help their people in battle. If they won, the gods were thought to be stronger than the gods of their enemies; but if they lost, then their gods were regarded as weak and unable to protect their own army. Amaziah had just won over the Edomites, and he did so after he had fulfilled God's ultimatum when the prophet assured him of victory on that basis. But incredibly, Amaziah took the gods of the people whom he had defeated and started to worship them. As a follower of Yahweh, he should have known that these idols were impotent and unreal because they had not protected the Edomites and therefore that it was a waste of time to worship them.

25:16 When God sent another prophet to rebuke the king, Amaziah reacted defensively and threatened to kill the prophet (cp. 32:25-26), but the prophet managed to get in the last word and told Amaziah his destruction was assured.

25:17 Jehoash: Twelfth king of Israel; son of Jehoahaz; defeated Amaziah of Judah in response to Amaziah's challenge. Once again, it is essential to keep track of the names of the kings because of the duplication of names in the northern and southern kingdoms. Jehoahaz of Israel was the son of Jehu, who had killed Ahab and made himself king of Israel. Jehoash was Jehoahaz's son. Jehoash was the king of Israel contemporary with Amaziah of Judah. When Amaziah had returned home after his campaign against Edom and had learned of the damage done by the mercenaries from the north, he called for a show-down with Jehoash (though it would be difficult to prove that he was responsible for the way these men had behaved).

25:18-20 Amaziah had acquired an inflated sense of his military prowess, so when Jehoash tried to talk him out of going to war, Amaziah persisted with his plan to invade the northern kingdom. The Chronicler once again makes it clear that in the final analysis, this foolish action by the king was a part of God's plan to bring about his downfall (cp. 10:15; Jdg 14:4; 2Sm 17:14).

25:21-24 When Jehoash realized that Amaziah was not going to let up, he marched with his army into Judah, and Amaziah got the opportunity for a military confrontation that he had wanted. Jehoash decimated the army of Judah and captured Amaziah. The Jehoahaz referred to here (v. 23) is Amaziah's grandfather, usually called Ahaziah who, again, is not identical with the northern king of the same name. Jehoash used Amaziah as a hostage to allow him to head straight to Jerusalem, where he destroyed 200 yards of the city wall and then plundered all the valuables from the palace and the temple, as well as taking hostages. Obed-edom stems from the name of the Levite on whose property the ark of the covenant was stored after David's first unsuccessful attempt to move it to Jerusalem (2Sm 6:10). Subsequently, he played in the musical ensemble when the ark was moved again, and he was made a guard of one of the gates of the temple while his sons were put in charge of the storehouse (1Ch 26:15). Apparently from that time on the storehouse was named "Obed-edom" in honor of this man, and thus it was by this name that the Chronicler referred to it as he described Jehoash's plundering.

25:25-28 Amaziah continued as king for many years, but just as his father Joash had done, he lost the confidence of his people. Eventually, because of an assassination plot against him, he had to flee Jerusalem and seek safety in the town of Lachish, but his pursuers caught up with him there and killed him. At least he was accorded a proper burial in the royal tombs in Jerusalem.

26:1 Uzziah: Tenth king of Judah; called Azariah in 2Kg 15; son of Amaziah; devoted to God, but was struck with a serious skin disease when he attempted to burn incense to God in the temple. When Uzziah became king of Judah at age 16, it was probably as a co-regent during the time when his father Amaziah was held captive by King Jehoash of Israel, and then later when Amaziah was fleeing for his life from his assassins. Uzziah learned the lessons that his predecessor had refused to accept and became a godly and righteous king. His long reign of 52 years, though limited by being a co-regent for the first part and being in seclusion with a disease in the second part, was generally a time of peace and prosperity in the land.

26:2 One of the first things Uzziah did was to rebuild the seaport of Eloth, at the northern tip of the Red Sea. This meant that Judah was once again a player among the major powers and had access to the Mediterranean Sea and the Red Sea. This move, perhaps not of grand consequence in itself, signaled that Judah was once again a force to be reckoned with.

26:5 This Zechariah, not the son of Jehoiada (24:20) or the prophet who has a book of the Bible named after him, fulfilled in some ways the same role for Uzziah as Jehoiada had done for Joash (24:2). When Zechariah died, Uzziah also weakened in his commitment to the Lord. Still, Uzziah's eventual waywardness occurred within the context of his worship of the Lord; he never strayed into idolatry.

26:6-10 For several hundred years, extending from the time of the judges through the time of Saul and David, the Philistines had been the main focus of Israel's military involvements. Then, after David had defeated them decisively, they remained in the background for a while. They appeared again during the time of Jehoshaphat when they presented tribute to the king in Jerusalem, and then again during the reign of Ahaziah when they invaded Jerusalem and carried off much treasure. Now Uzziah reasserted Judah's dominance over the Philistines by capturing their cities and destroying their walls. Uzziah was also able to bring back into line certain Arabs, the Meunites (Edomites), and the Ammonites. He not only fortified strategic corners in Jerusalem, but he also established settlements in the country, laying claim to the land not by military occupation but by agricultural development.

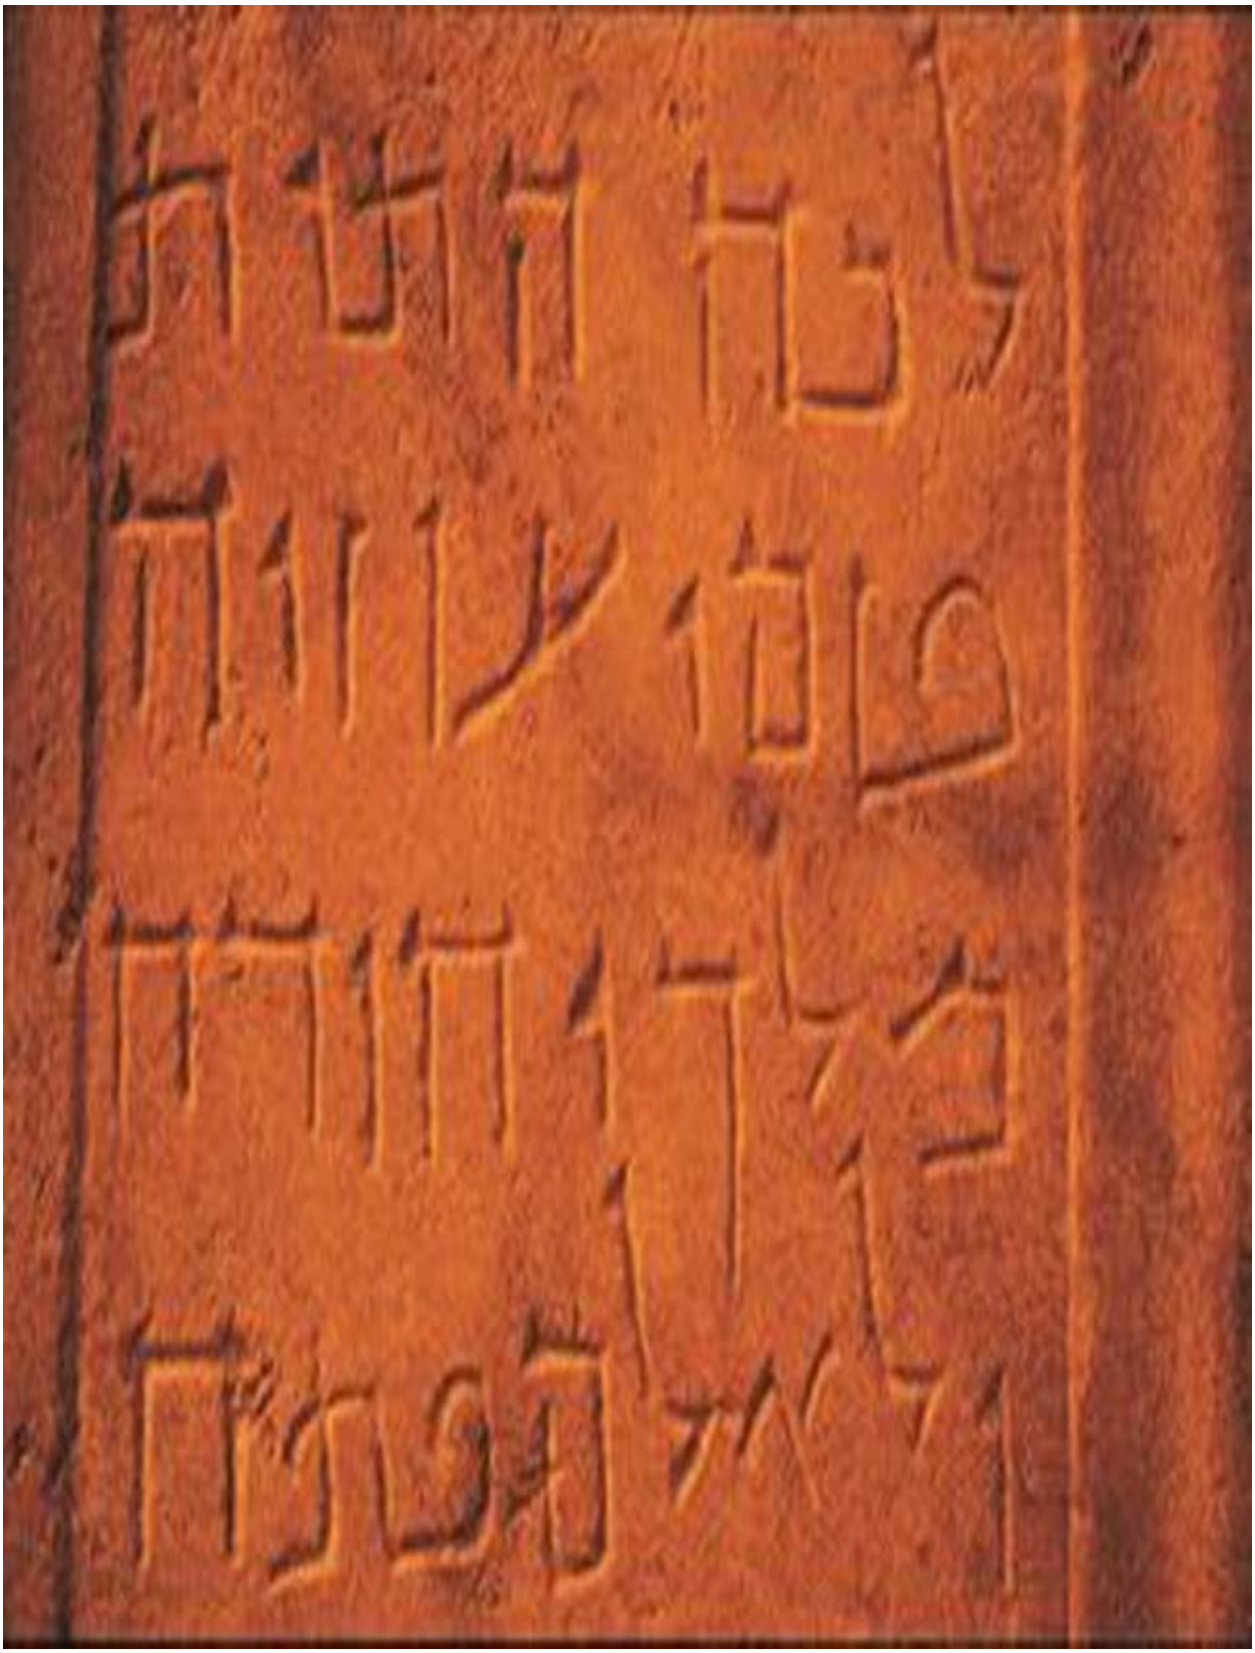
26:11-15 Uzziah had a different philosophy about the army than his predecessors. In the past, the idea had been to accumulate more and more men, so that the army of Judah grew from 180,000 under Rehoboam to over one million at the time of Jehoshaphat. Instead of drastically increasing the size of his army, Uzziah had roughly the same number of men at his disposal as his father (307,500). But he organized them into more flexible divisions, and he made sure they had effective weapons. As a result, he became well-known and strong. The Chronicler emphasizes that this was because he was marvelously helped. The Lord undergirded all his efforts.



The reinterment funerary inscription of King Uzziah discovered in the nineteenth century. The translated Aramaic writing states: "Hither were brought the bones of Uzziah, King of Judah. Do not open." The inscription dates to the first century B.C. when Herod ordered all cemeteries to be moved outside the walls of Jerusalem, except for those of the Jewish kings. King Uzziah, who had been struck by God with a skin disease (26:16-21), was reinterred under Herod in the royal tombs, and this inscription was placed to mark the grave and act as a warning to looters.

26:16 Although Uzziah did not commit idolatry, he still overstepped the authority that God had denied to any person who was not a descendant of Aaron of the tribe of Levi. He went into the holy place and burned incense, something that only a priest was allowed to do.

26:17-18 It was not an easy matter to call the king to account for his wrongdoing, but a priest, Azariah, and 80 of his colleagues did just that. They confronted the king and told him that what he was about to do was wrong. The priests declared to Uzziah that even if God did not punish him, He would not accept the king's worship, as expressed by the phrase, You will not receive honor.

26:19-21 Uzziah already had the incense firepan in his hand. Rather than listen to the priests, he became furious and continued. Immediately God punished him by having a skin disease break out on his forehead. The king dropped what he was doing and allowed himself to be led out of the temple into seclusion for the rest of his life. Though he was still officially the king, his son Jotham was placed in charge of the day-to-day duties of king.

26:23 Uzziah received a proper royal burial, though his tomb may have been separated from those of the previous kings because of the unclean condition caused by his skin disease.

27:1 Jotham: Eleventh king of Judah; son of Uzziah; devoted to God but not influential. Jotham's reign did not have a great impact on his kingdom. Much of his time on the throne overlapped with the time that his father, Uzziah, was king, though Uzziah was in isolation (see note at 26:19-21).

27:2 The Chronicler gives Jotham a good report card for his personal faith. He followed the example of his father, but he restrained himself from Uzziah's arrogance and did not violate the sanctity of the sanctuary. However, Jotham did not attempt to purify the land of idolatry or encourage the people to return to God.

27:3 Jotham took advantage of the peace that he inherited to reinforce the wall of Jerusalem and to carry out improvements on the temple.

27:5-6 Jotham continued his father's policy of controlling the Ammonites and carried out a successful military excursion against them. This garnered him a large amount of silver and grain for several years. As usual, these items are mentioned by the Chronicler not so much for their own sake but to show Jotham's obedience and God's reward for his faithfulness.

27:7-9 Jotham was a good king who came to the throne early, maintained the kingdom in good condition, was taken for granted by his people, and wound up not leaving much of a legacy. He received an appropriate royal burial, yet his reign served as a transition into a dark time for the kingdom of Judah.

28:1-4 Ahaz: Eleventh king of Judah; son of Jotham; confirmed idol worshiper; submitted voluntarily to Assyria. There was always some idolatry among the people, and there were always some people who remained true to the Lord, but in the earlier days, the decadent kings associated with the family of Ahab encountered some resistance among the people. By the time of Joash, the people were increasingly ignoring the religion of the king. By the time Ahaz took over the throne, the people and their king had become confirmed idol worshipers. Ahaz took the worship of the Baals to the point of burning his own children as an offering to Baal.

28:5-8 Pekah: Eighteenth and next-to-last king of Israel; scored a major victory over Judah, but released all of his prisoners in response to God's command. In the usual cause-and-effect sequence that characterizes the book of 2 Chronicles, Ahaz of Judah had forsaken the Lord so he was defeated by the king of Damascus, who carried away a number of hostages. Furthermore, Pekah, king of the northern kingdom of Israel, also defeated Ahaz of Judah. Again the Chronicler's assessment is that this happened because the people of Judah abandoned the LORD. Out of Judah's army, 120,000 were killed. This probably meant that Ahaz was left with less than half of his original army. Additionally, Ahaz lost his son, his chief of staff, and his prime minister. Pekah's army also took a huge number of people as hostages and transported them to the capital city of Samaria in Israel. The Chronicler reminds us that Israel and Judah were brothers, even though they were mortal enemies at this time.

28:9-11 Once again a prophet appeared, this time a man named Oded, who lived in Samaria. He confronted the returning victorious army with some basic facts about God's divine law. Their slaughter of their fellow Hebrews was not acceptable. Israelites were never to enslave other Israelites, but this is what Pekah was planning to do. Oded reminded the king of Israel that he too was guilty and could justly face similar punishment.

28:12-15 Some leaders of the northern kingdom realized the seriousness of the mistake they were about to make. The army of Israel abandoned the hostages, and some other people were put in charge of making sure they returned to Judah. These captives were given food and clothes, and some even received donkeys on which they could ride back as far as Jericho (the City of Palms), where they were left.

28:16-21 Ahaz of Judah found himself under increasing pressure. The nation had already been defeated by Aram and the northern kingdom; now the Edomites and the Philistines returned to do damage. But rather than turning to the Lord for help, Ahaz tried to solve his problems by asking Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, to protect him. He offered the Assyrian king all his possessions and everything that belonged to the temple. Tiglath-pileser did defeat Damascus (which he had planned to do anyway). Then he marched to Jerusalem and helped himself to more property.

28:22-23 Ahaz decided to pursue still another solution. Since the Arameans had defeated him earlier, the king concluded that the gods of Damascus must be strong, so he worshiped them (see note at 25:14-15). This was another futile move.

28:24-25 Ahaz seemed to become angry at God. His solution for dealing with these ineffective false gods was to empty the temple of the true God, shut its doors, and continue to proliferate idolatrous worship sites. These were utterly irrational actions, but we can understand them a little bit more by calling on the description of some of the events recorded in Isaiah 7-8. Ahaz had placed himself in a state of war against God; regardless of the consequences, he was not about to let God win. The prophet Isaiah had specifically warned Ahaz against making this unreliable alliance with the Assyrians. When Ahaz rejected the admonition, Isaiah even gave him the opportunity to ask for a sign from God, to verify that God would protect him.

In a thoroughly hypocritical display of false piety, Ahaz responded to Isaiah by saying that he would never be so presumptuous as to ask for a sign from God. But Isaiah did not leave it alone. He said to Ahaz that if he were not going to ask for a sign, one would still be provided for him. He told him of the coming of a child (Is 7:14) who would grow up in a time of famine—referring to the consequences brought about soon by Ahaz's actions, but who would also represent God's presence with His people, thereby telescoping into the far future by predicting the coming Savior (Mt 1:23). This meant to Ahaz that God was going to actively oppose his efforts. So when the supposed alliance with Assyria did not work out, just as Isaiah had predicted, Ahaz blamed Isaiah's God.

28 : 26-27 The Chronicler's obituary of Ahaz is brief; the facts have spoken for themselves.

29:1-2 Hezekiah: Twelfth king of Judah; son of Ahaz; devoted to God; protected miraculously from Sennacherib of Assyria. Just as it looked as if things were so bad they could never be set right again, Hezekiah became king and led Judah in returning to God. With the highest compliment the Chronicler could pay a king, he compared Hezekiah to David because of his pursuit of righteousness.

29:3 Soon after becoming king, Hezekiah opened the doors of the temple again and undid the damage that Ahaz had caused.

29:4 Hezekiah knew that if he wanted to undertake a reformation, he would have some willing allies whom he could count on for support—the priests and Levites—who had gone unemployed during Ahaz's last years.

29:5 Hezekiah instructed them to clean the temple physically and to cleanse it spiritually.

29:8-9 Hezekiah saw that Judah's unfaithfulness had brought on the curse that had been predicted (Dt 28:15,25; 1Kg 9:6-9).

29:10 Hezekiah intended to restore the covenantal relationship that Judah was supposed to have with their God. Yahweh is His covenantal name (Ex 3:14-15).

29:11 He appealed to their professional pride as well as the need for the nation to return to God.

29:12 The Chronicler continues to draw a parallel between Hezekiah and David by mentioning the names of the leading Levites and the various divisions of the tribe they represented, as established by David (1Ch 23:6). The Kohathites included the division of Aaron, who made up the priesthood. The Merarites and Gershonites, descended from two other sons of Levi, were the guards, workers, musicians, and assistants to priests in the various duties associated with the temple.

29:13-14 The descendants of David's three main musicians—the Asaphites . . . Hemanites, and Jeduthunites—participated in this renewal (1Ch 25:1).

29:15-19 Before the priests could do anything in the temple, they first had to cleanse themselves so they would be in a state of spiritual and ritual purity. Otherwise, they would contaminate the temple as they were trying to purify it. Once they had taken care of this, they could remove all the things that did not belong there, particularly whatever was associated with idolatry. The Kidron Valley was used as a garbage dump where trash was burned (15:16; cp. 2Kg 23:4,6). They worked methodically by starting at the gate and moving toward the holy place and the holy of holies. When they were finished, they reported on their work to the king.

29:20-24 Hezekiah began the services in the temple with a sin offering, the type of sacrifice that was intended to atone for unwitting violations of the law (Lv 4:3-34). There were seven of each animal as a symbol of completeness. He and the priests followed the rules as given by God to Moses. Hezekiah did not usurp the privileges of the priests, but he did participate in the actual ceremony by laying his hands on the heads of the sacrificial animals, signifying that as the king he was looking to the Lord for forgiveness.

29:25-26 Hezekiah followed the precedents that had been established by David. He particularly saw to it that the music that had played such an important role for David was made a part of temple worship.

29:27 Next to be offered were burnt offerings, the sacrifice that expressed a person's total devotion to the Lord (Lv 1:1-17). As soon as the offering began, the musicians joined in.

29:30 These songs of praise by David and Asaph might have been the same as some of our psalms.

29:31-33 Now that the temple and the priests were ready, Hezekiah called for a sacrificial feast by the priests and the public. The different types of sacrifices were offered to God, including thank offerings. Burnt offerings signified devotion to God. Those who had willing hearts were able to offer these sacrifices, pledging their faithfulness to the Lord.

29:34-35 Killing and sacrificing these animals was hard work. Not enough priests were in a state of purity to be able to get it all done. Levites, who did not have priestly privileges, were called upon to do everything short of actually offering the sacrifices on the altar. They were able to assist by slaughtering and skinning animals.

29:36 Hezekiah's revival started on the inside and then moved outward. He did not begin by smashing idols and then compelling the people to come to the temple, possibly against their will. He began with the restoration of the temple and a service of renewal and devotion. He made sure that right from the beginning there was music. After he had gone through the initial ceremony with the priests, he invited anyone who cared to do so to join in the joyful celebration, and the people complied. The revival became contagious. Hezekiah had not just reinstituted some ancient rules, but God had prepared the people so their hearts were changed. Just a short while before, everyone had been forced to share in the anger and misery of Ahaz. Now there was a brand new excitement, for it had come about suddenly.

30:1 The Assyrians had conquered Israel, so there was no longer any Israelite king to enforce separation from Judah. This enabled Hezekiah to invite everyone —citizens of Judah and Israel alike—to come to Jerusalem and participate in the Passover he was planning.

30:2-5 The Passover was prescribed to be observed the first month every year, but that did not allow enough time for preparations, so the Passover observance was postponed until the second month. The law had a provision that it could be held a month later if necessary (Nm 9:9-11). Beer-sheba to Dan encompasses all of Judah and Israel.

30:6-11 The invitation to people from the northern kingdom to come to Jerusalem for the Passover expressed God's gracious willingness to extend mercy to those who repent and return. It met with mixed results (see note at v. 1). Some mocked the messengers and declined the invitation, but a few people decided to make the trip to Jerusalem for the Passover.

30:14 The Kidron Valley was where garbage was dumped and burned.

30:15-17 The priests and Levites who had been reluctant to participate became ashamed and consecrated themselves in order to return to their duties. Still, there was a shortage of purified priests, so the division of responsibilities by which Levites assisted the priests continued.

30:18-20 Many people from the north did not realize that before they were allowed to eat the Passover lamb or the unleavened bread, they had to go through personal purification. When King Hezekiah prayed for the people who had accidentally contaminated the feast, God did not hold it against them, and the occasion remained joyous.

30:21-22 Once again, the Chronicler emphasizes that joyful music was an important part of the celebration.

30:23-24 Hezekiah and a number of his officials contributed numerous animals to be offered as sacrifices. This eased the economic burden on some members of the congregation, and also contributed to the joy of the celebration, so by popular acclaim it was extended for another week.

30:25 Even the foreigners—some of the people who had just been resettled into the former northern kingdom by the Assyrian conquerors—came to Jerusalem and took part in the celebration. This added an evangelistic aspect to the festival.

30:26 The Chronicler states that Hezekiah's reign represented the revival of the kingdoms of David and Solomon. Hezekiah was a righteous man who was devoted to the Lord. He was the first king since Solomon to have positive influence over all of Israel since, with the conquest of the northern kingdom by Assyria, there was no longer a divided kingdom.

30:27 When God heard them, it fulfilled the petition Solomon had made at the dedication of the temple (6:21).

31:1 After this lengthy Passover feast, the people demonstrated their renewed devotion by going throughout the area to destroy all the idols, pagan altars, and Asherah poles. They even went into the territory of the former northern kingdom —referred to as Ephraim and Manasseh—to carry out this purge.

31:2-3 When Hezekiah had finished establishing the priestly rotation, going back to the instructions laid down by David, a practical problem needed to be solved. Who would supply the animals for the sacrifices every morning and evening until this became a routine practice, with the people providing these sacrifices? The king himself contributed the sacrificial animals during this interim period.

31:4-6 Another problem was how to support the priests and Levites who had returned to Jerusalem to officiate in the temple on a regular basis. David's work schedule was based on the concept that most of these people would live in various parts of the kingdom, support themselves, and spend only one month a year in Jerusalem on temple duty. Hezekiah implemented a regular contribution from all the people for the priests and Levites so they would be able to work in the temple without having to worry about supporting themselves. Upon Hezekiah's order, everyone contributed to this fund, providing a tithe of all their crops and livestock. This effort included people from both Israel and Judah.

31:16-19 Hezekiah charged various Levites to be responsible for distributing the abundant provisions to all the priests and Levites. In order to do this, it was necessary to pay close attention to the genealogies, so all who were entitled to participate received their share.

31:20-21 What Hezekiah accomplished was more than just a superficial redirection of the people to God and the temple. He managed to get grassroots support for his program. The people took a real interest in what was going on with the temple and the worship of the Lord. Because of his good work, Hezekiah was rewarded by God, and he prospered.

32:1 Hezekiah's faith in God was put to the test when Sennacherib king of Assyria invaded Judah. Before attacking Jerusalem, Sennacherib intended to demolish all the cities of Judah and make off with whatever plunder he could seize.

32:2-5 Sennacherib's strategy gave Hezekiah a chance to prepare for the impending siege of the capital city. In addition to rebuilding and strengthening the city wall, he made sure the Assyrians would not have access to the region's water supply. He closed off all external access to the waters of the springs . . . outside the city and built a tunnel that permitted his own people to get to the water (v. 30).

32:6-8 Hezekiah organized his army thoroughly. Then he called the people together and reminded them that Assyria was no match for the strength of Yahweh. The first sign of God's supernatural intervention was seen almost immediately in that the people relied on the words of King Hezekiah.

32:9-12 Sennacherib's propaganda minister came to Jerusalem and addressed the people from outside the city walls. This spokesman brought up a clever argument based on his own perceptions. Many people of the ancient Near East believed that each city and each nation had its own gods and that these gods had the responsibility to protect their own people. Any military confrontation was construed as a battle between gods, and the winner was thought to have the stronger gods. The Assyrian speaker knew that Hezekiah had destroyed sites outside the temple devoted to worship of Hezekiah's god. He taunted the people and asked how they could expect help from a God whose worship sites had just been eliminated by the king who was now asking them to trust in that god. It seemed to the Assyrian that Hezekiah had acted against his own deity and his own country. But of course what Hezekiah had actually done was to remove the illegitimate worship sites and restore centralized worship at the temple in Jerusalem as God had ordained it.

32:13-15 The Assyrian spokesman continued his argument that the Assyrians were stronger than any of the gods of the lands they had so far encountered. It was statistically unlikely that Judah's God would deliver them.

32:16-19 Additional representatives of Assyria joined in to ridicule the notion that the people of Jerusalem could expect help from God. They spoke of God as Hezekiah's God, trying to drive a wedge between the people, the king, and the Lord. Some of the Assyrians were even able to speak directly in Hebrew to the people, conveying their propaganda about the superiority of the Assyrian gods.

32:20-22 The parallel passages of this event (2Kg 18; Is 36-37) provide a lengthier description of the verbal exchanges as well as more detailed information about the events surrounding this siege. For the Chronicler, the crucial thing was that Hezekiah, who received encouragement from the prophet Isaiah, trusted in God and received a miraculous reward. An Assyrian army of 185,000 gathered around Jerusalem, but the Lord went to work on behalf of his anointed. In one night the entire army was annihilated, and Sennacherib was forced to withdraw and return to his homeland where he was eventually assassinated by his own sons.

32:23 Hezekiah's victory at the hand of the LORD did not go unnoticed. Many people came to the temple to bring offerings. Among them were people from other nations who also brought valuable gifts for the king. This brought international respect to Hezekiah, Jerusalem, Judah, and Yahweh.

32:24 Again, 2 Chronicles provides a shorter version of this event than the reports in 2 Kings and Isaiah. Hezekiah became sick to the point of death, but God heard his plea and gave him 15 more years of life. The Lord provided confirmation of this promise by the miraculous sign of having a shadow cast by the sun move in a counter clockwise direction (2Kg 20:1-11).

32:25-26 The pride for which Hezekiah was rebuked occurred when he received visitors from Babylon and showed them all his treasures (v. 31; 2Kg 20:12-19). The king did not react defensively when he was corrected on this point (cp. 2Ch 25:16), but humbled himself before God and became obedient.

32:27-31 As the Chronicler summarizes Hezekiah's reign, we are reminded of the time of Solomon. Hezekiah was able to acquire abundant riches, he carried out building projects (specifically the reworking of Jerusalem's water supply), he received ambassadors who had heard about his success, and the country flourished.

32:32-33 Hezekiah received a good evaluation by the Chronicler, and he was mourned by all Judah. He was buried with honor among the former kings of Judah.

33:1 Manasseh: Thirteenth king of Judah; son of Hezekiah; extreme idol worshiper; repented while in exile in Assyria; promoted worship of God upon return to Jerusalem.

33:1-6 Since Manasseh was only 12 years old when he came to the throne, he would not have been alive at the time of the miraculous victory over the Assyrians. Furthermore, much of his early life was the time when Hezekiah's pride stood in the way of full devotion to the Lord, thus setting a negative example for Manasseh. Finally, when we consider that Manasseh reigned for 55 years, we can get away from the idea that the complete reversal, which we associate with his reign, occurred almost all at once. Nevertheless, this king not only undid everything good that Hezekiah had done, but he brought the entire kingdom to a new low in idolatry and disobedience. He rebuilt all the sites for idol worship; he burned his sons as pagan sacrifices; he immersed himself in the occult; and ultimately he brought the entire nation down with him.

33:7-9 Manasseh even brought idols into the temple. The summary statement that they did worse evil than the nations the LORD had destroyed before the Israelites is a horrifying assessment. When God made a covenant with David and Solomon, He made a three-way connection between His dwelling in the temple in Jerusalem, the people dwelling in the promised land, and obedience to the law. If Manasseh led the people in disobedience and displaced God from His temple, then they would be dispossessed from the promised land, just like the Canaanites before them.

33:11-13 The ultimate punishment that God had always held out as a possibility now came to pass. Manasseh was captured and carried off to Babylon by the king of Assyria. The parallel passage in 2 Kings 21 does not mention this exile and humiliation, nor does it say that he repented and returned to the Lord. It was a sincere repentance that God honored, so Manasseh was able to return to Jerusalem and take up his duties as king once again.

31:14-17 Manasseh attempted to undo all the damage he had caused. He repaired the destruction that had been wrought by the Assyrian invasion; he purified the temple; he removed the idols; he reinstituted regular sacrifices; and he instructed the people to serve Yahweh. They did restrict their worship to Yahweh, but did not return to legitimate worship at the temple.

33:18-20 Manasseh's death notice includes references to the sources for the events that are related in 2 Kings as well as for this particular record of his repentance. He was not buried in the area reserved for kings but was laid to rest in his own house.

33:21-24 Amon: Fourteenth king of Judah; son of Manasseh; idol worshiper; assassinated by his officials. Whatever repentance or reform Manasseh attempted did not carry over to his son and successor, Amon. He picked up where his father had left off before his repentance, going back into idolatry. But with Amon there was no midlife repentance. His servants assassinated him after he had reigned for two years. The people were probably outraged by the assassination, so they had Amon's killers executed.

34:1 Josiah: Fifteenth king of Judah; son of Amon; became king as a boy; carried out a thorough reform. Josiah came to the throne when he was only eight years old, but even at an early age he showed better judgment than many older kings.

34:2 Josiah received a good evaluation from the Chronicler. Like all the other good kings before him, he is compared to David.

34:3-5 Josiah did not come to faith in God immediately. In contrast to Joash, he did not have an older person to guide him in this direction. When he was 16 years old (in the eighth year of his reign), he decided to become a worshiper of God. Four years later he began to assert his will by removing the various idols from the land and abolishing all pagan places of worship. He desecrated the graves of past idolaters and defiled the pagan altars.

34:6-7 Josiah not only abolished the sites for idolatry in Judah, but he tore down those in the area of the northern tribes as well.

34:8 The Levites and priests had maintained their identity and had returned to work toward the end of Manasseh's reign. When Josiah issued orders for the repair of the temple, they were available and ready to make their contributions to Josiah's reform movement.

34:9-11 Josiah had sent emissaries to collect money for the repair of the temple. This money was allocated to Hilkiah the high priest. He distributed it among the contractors, who gave it to the workmen, who passed it on to those who were providing the raw materials. The Chronicler reminds the readers that the destruction of the temple, while often carried out by invaders, was ultimately the fault of Judah's kings.

34:12-13 Some Levites were placed in supervisory positions as overseers while others carried out clerical tasks for the construction project. The Chronicler also pointed out that some Levites apparently contributed to the effort by playing their musical instruments.

34:14 The book of the law that Hilkiah found was probably one or more scrolls containing the entire Pentateuch—the books of Moses from Genesis through Deuteronomy.

34:18-21 When Shaphan, the king's secretary, started to read what was in the book, the king was overcome with dread because he knew that Judah had not kept the word of the LORD for a long time and severe punishment was likely. Josiah wanted specific guidance from Yahweh about what he should do.

34:22 Hilkiah and other royal officials consulted a prophetess named Huldah to determine God's perspective on the situation. As is normal in Chronicles, Huldah's genealogy is given. Other female prophets in the OT include Miriam (Ex 15:20) and Deborah (Jdg 4:4).

34:24-25 Huldah told them that God's punishment was inevitable, just as the book of the law predicted. There had been too many generations of wickedness in Judah.

34:27-28 But because of Josiah's attitude of repentance and his willingness to obey God, the calamity would not happen until after his death. The prophetess inserted this is the L ORD 's declaration into her prophecy to assure her hearers she was not speaking her own thoughts, but the very words of God.

34:29-32 King Josiah called a major convocation. Leaders and Levites as well as all the common people of Jerusalem came and heard the public reading of Scripture. The king publicly made a personal covenant with God that he would follow the LORD, and he compelled the crowd to follow him in this commitment.

The Reign of Josiah 34:33 Josiah continued to purge the land of idols. He also fulfilled his royal responsibility to present a model for the people to follow in their service to God.

35:1 The revival started by the king turned into a massive celebration of the Passover (see note at 30:1). In contrast to the Passover under Hezekiah's reforms, Josiah was able to celebrate this festival on its normal day—during the first month (see note at 30:2-5).

35:3 This verse is the last time the ark of the covenant is mentioned in the OT. We do not know where it ended up after this. Josiah's explanation to the Levites that they no longer needed to carry the ark on their shoulders reflects the fact that they learned about this practice when they read the newly discovered book of the law (Ex 25:14; 1Ch 15:15), and they may have been holding it on their shoulders ever since. The other possibility is that Manasseh had made the Levites remove the ark when he desecrated the temple and made them carry it in procession on special occasions. Josiah reassured them that the ark would once again have a proper, permanent resting place in the temple.

35:4-6 Josiah implemented David's and Solomon's work schedule for the priests and Levites in the temple. He also arranged the distribution of the food so everyone could partake of the Passover properly.

35:7-9 Theoretically all families celebrating the Passover should have brought their own sacrificial animals, but the economics of the day made this impossible.

Thus the king and his officials, including the high priest Hilkiah and the Levites, supplied a large number of animals for this purpose.

35:10-14 In these verses the Chronicler documents that Josiah carried out to the letter the commandments of the Torah about sacrificial offerings. The Levites made preparations so that, even while they continued working, they and the priests received portions of the feast along with the lay people.

35:15 Josiah also implemented David's musical procedures, with the musicians from the lines of Asaph, Heman, and Jeduthun contributing to the celebration. Gatekeepers were stationed at the temple to ensure ritual purity and physical protection. As with themselves and the priests, Levites made sure that the gatekeepers on duty enjoyed their share of the feast.

35:18 The Chronicler declared this was the greatest Passover celebration since the kingship was first established in the days of Samuel. Perhaps the last good Passover celebration was when Israel first entered the promised land (Jos 5:10-11; cp. 2Kg 23:22). No king of Judah or Israel had celebrated so well. This evaluation may be a reference to the precise attention to the proper procedures, or to the joyful participation of the Levites, priests, gatekeepers, Israelites, and all the common people of Jerusalem. It was a true restoration of the ancient tradition, incorporating all the appropriate guilds and procedures.

35:20 The three superpowers of that time—Assyria, Babylonia, and Egypt—were about to fight for world supremacy. Egypt and Assyria had formed an alliance against the Babylonians. Neco, the pharaoh of Egypt, had assembled a large army and was heading to Carchemish in Mesopotamia to join the fight against Babylon.

35:21 Pharaoh Neco of Egypt was not an enemy of Judah. He had no intention of conquering Judah. Nevertheless, Josiah marched out to meet the Egyptian army in battle. Ominously, the Chronicler does not say that Josiah inquired of God whether he should fight.

35:22-24 Josiah confronted Neco on the large plain of Megiddo. To protect himself from any personal revenge by Neco, he disguised himself. But the king was mortally wounded by an arrow. He was transported to Jerusalem where he died. It is ironic that Josiah, one of the best kings of Judah, was killed in a manner remarkably similar to Ahab, perhaps the worst king of Israel (18:29-34).

35:25-27 Josiah's obituary contains many positive words, which makes his premature and unnecessary death all the more tragic.

36:1 Jehoahaz: Sixteenth king of Judah; son of Josiah; deposed and deported by Pharaoh Neco. The Chronicler states that the common people of Judah made Jehoahaz their next king. The point of this emphasis is the difference between the people's choice for a king and Neco's imposition of a king to his liking three months later.

36:2-3 The battle of Carchemish was won by Babylonia, reducing the power of both Assyria and Egypt. Thus, when Neco returned through Judah, he tried to make sure that the new king would not cause trouble as Josiah had done. He deposed Jehoahaz after he had reigned for only three months. According to 2Kg 23:32, Jehoahaz was about to perpetuate the same evil as some of the earlier kings. Although his deportation did not help the kingdom of Judah last much longer, it was no loss to the kingdom that Neco carried him off into exile and replaced him with his brother Eliakim (2Ch 36:4).

36:4 Jehoiakim: Seventeenth king of Judah; son of Josiah; installed by Pharaoh Neco of Egypt; pursued evil. After reimbursing himself for his trouble with a tribute of gold and silver (v. 2), Neco placed Eliakim on the throne. He changed his name to Jehoiakim, thereby associating his new vassal more closely with the God he supposedly served (with "Jh" being a reference to Yahweh), rather than using the more generic reference to God (El). Either version means "God raises up," an ironic name for this godless king.

36:5-8 Jehoiakim was an evil king, committing idolatry and opposing the word from God that came to him by the prophet Jeremiah (Jr 36:10-26). He was eventually carried off by Nebuchadnezzar to Babylon, along with a number of young men from leading families in Jerusalem. This was the first of three deportations, the one in which Daniel and his friends were relocated to Babylon (Dn 1:1-3).

The Cyrus Cylinder, written in cuneiform, was discovered in 1879 in Nineveh, Iraq, by Hormuzd Rassam. It is now in the British Museum. The cylinder contains inscriptions in which Cyrus gives credit to the Babylonian god Marduk for choosing him and enabling him to conquer Babylon. The inscriptions express Cyrus's policy of allowing captive peoples, such as the Jews, to return to their homelands.The biblical writers saw God's hand in these world events (36:22-23; Ezr 1:2-4; Is 44:24-28; 45:1).

36:9-10 Jehoiachin: Eighteenth and next-to-last king of Judah; son of Jehoiakim; deposed and deported by Nebuchadnezzar. Jehoiachin wound up having just 10 days longer (three months and 10 days) on the throne than Jehoahaz, but this was sufficient time for him to further aggravate Nebuchadnezzar. The king of Babylon returned to Jerusalem, collected more treasures, and carried a group back to Babylon into exile. This was the second deportation, which included the prophet Ezekiel (Ezk 1:1). The next king, Zedekiah, is called his brother; this should be interpreted as "kinsman" in this case. Zedekiah, Jehoahaz, and Eliakim/Jehoiakim were all sons of Josiah (v. 1; Jr 36:1; 37:1), and Jehoiachin was Jehoiakim's son, making Zedekiah Jehoiachin's uncle.

36:11-14 Zedekiah: Nineteenth and last king of Judah; son of Josiah; uncle of Jehoiachin; refused to submit to Nebuchadnezzar and witnessed the destruction of Jerusalem. Zedekiah thought he could get away with rebelling against Nebuchadnezzar, hoping that Egypt would come to his aid. But he was mistaken. He also brought Jerusalem and what little there was left of his kingdom to spiritual poverty, leading even the priests and Levites into false worship.

36:15-17 After God had graciously offered the people of Judah many opportunities to repent, He finally sent Nebuchadnezzar to eradicate Jerusalem and carry the people off to Babylon. When individual kings repented, God repeatedly provided a remedy (lit "healing"; 7:14; 30:20), but the accumulation of wrath against evil finally reached the tipping point. This passage is similar to the comment the Chronicler made about some of the northern tribes (1Ch 5:25-26).

36:21 The book of Jeremiah records his prophecy that, due to Judah's wickedness, the Babylonians would conquer Judah and deport its inhabitants.

36:22-23 But this story was not yet over. The Babylonians were eventually conquered by Cyrus king of Persia. Cyrus believed the gods of foreigners who were exiled in his territory could cause harm in the future. Thus, he decreed that all the foreign gods in Babylon and Persia should be transported back to their places of origin and that the people who worshiped them should return and build new temples for these deities. The Jews correctly saw Cyrus as God's instrument in issuing this command. A pagan king's orders allowed them to return to their homeland and rebuild the temple of the LORD.

Kings of Persia

PERSIAN KING	DATES (B.C.)	BIBLICAL CONNECTIONS	EVENTS AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS
Cyrus II (The Great)	559–530	Permitted return of the Jews from exile; facilitated rebuilding of the temple at Jerusalem (Ezr 1:1-4; 6:3-5); "His anointed" (Is 45:1)	King of Anshan, 559 B.C.; conquered kingdom of Media (550 B.C.) and Lydian kingdom (546 B.C.); conquered Babylon, 539 B.C.

Focus Passage 2 Chronicles 6:5-10,20,24,26,32-34

This root in various languages suggests a distinguishing mark. Shem was associated with being, character, and public standing. Names bore meanings (Ex 2:10,22), and changed names connoted changed characters (Gn 32:28). "Call the name" often appears as name (Gn 3:20) or call (Jr 20:3). One called by someone's name belonged to him (Is 4:1). God's name is synonymous with God (Ps 75:1); God's name dwells in His temple (Dt 16:2). Walking (Mc 4:5) or living (Ps 69:36) in His name is living as He instructs. "Calling on His name" is prayer (Ps 116:4) or worship (Gn 12:8). One acts in His name (Dt 18:5,22). Shem denotes fame (Is 63:12) or reputation (Jos 9:9). "Name of the day" signifies today's date (Ezk 24:2). One acts on someone's behalf (1Sm 25:9). Shem functions as famous (Zph 3:20), prominent (Nm 16:2), or notorious (Ezk 23:10). Infamous is "unclean of name" (Ezk 22:5).

Focus Passage 2 Chronicles 20:3

Seek is the basic meaning of darash, and God is what is most frequently sought (Is 55:6). The reward is finding (2Ch 15:2) or being answered (Ps 34:4); the opposite of seeking is forsaking (1Ch 28:9). Darash often occurs (14x) with biqqesh (“ask”). Darash implies inquiring of (Gn 25:22) or consulting (Ezk 20:1). It denotes ask (Dt 17:9) or inquire about (2Ch 32:31), and investigate (Dt 17:4) or study (Ps 111:2). It is looking for (Jr 30:14) or searching for (Ezk 34:8). More forcefully, it means demand (Ezk 34:10) or require (Gn 9:5). Then it indicates demand an account (2Ch 24:22), call into account (Ps 10:15), or hold accountable (Dt 18:19). It suggests come looking for (Dt 22:2) or go after (2Ch 25:20). Emotively, darash connotes care for (Is 62:12) or about (Jr 30:17). It can entail selecting (Pr 31:13) or worshiping (Ezr 4:2).

The Decree of Cyrus

1 In [a] the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, [b] the word of the LORD spoken through Jeremiah was fulfilled. [c] The LORD put it into the mind [d] of King Cyrus to issue a proclamation throughout his entire kingdom and to put it in writing:

2 This is what King Cyrus of Persia says: “The LORD, the God of heaven, has given me all the kingdoms of the earth and has appointed me to build Him a house at Jerusalem in Judah. [e] 3 Whoever is among His people, may his God be with him, and may he go to Jerusalem in Judah and build the house of the LORD, the God of Israel, [f] the God who is in Jerusalem. 4 Let every survivor, [g] wherever he lives, be assisted by the men of that region with silver, gold, goods, and livestock, along with a freewill offering for the house of God in Jerusalem.”

Return from Exile

5 So the family leaders of Judah and Benjamin, along with the priests and Levites — everyone God had motivated [A, h] — prepared to go up and rebuild the LORD's house in Jerusalem. 6 All their neighbors supported them [B, i] with silver articles, gold, goods, livestock, and valuables, in addition to all that was given as a freewill offering. 7 King Cyrus also brought out the articles of the LORD's house that Nebuchadnezzar had taken from Jerusalem and had placed in the house of his gods. [j] 8 King Cyrus of Persia had them brought out under the supervision of Mithredath the treasurer, who counted them out to Sheshbazzar the prince of Judah. [k] 9 This was the inventory:

30 gold basins, 1,000 silver basins,
29 silver knives, 10 30 gold bowls,
410 various [C] silver bowls, and 1,000 other articles.

11 The gold and silver articles totaled 5,400. Sheshbazzar brought all of them when the exiles went up from Babylon to Jerusalem.

The Exiles Who Returned

2 These [a] now are the people of the province who came from those captive exiles King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon [b] had deported to Babylon. [c] They returned to Jerusalem and Judah, each to his own town. 2 They came with Mehida's descendants, Harsha's descendants, [53] Barkos's descendants, Sisera's descendants, Temah's descendants, [54] Neziah's descendants, and Hatipha's descendants.

[55] The descendants of Solomon's servants [s] included:

Sotai's descendants, Hassophereth's descendants,

Peruda's descendants, [56] Jaalah's descendants,

Darkon's descendants, Giddel's descendants,

[57] Shephatiah's descendants, Hattil's descendants,

Pochereth-hazzebaim's descendants, and Ami's descendants.

[58] All the temple servants

and the descendants of Solomon's servants 392.

[59] The following are those who came from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addan, and Immer but were unable to prove that their families and ancestry were Israelite:

[60] Delaiah's descendants,

Tobiah's descendants,

Nekoda's descendants 652
[61] and from the descendants of the priests: the descendants of Hobaiah, the descendants of Hakkoz, the descendants of Barzillai — who had taken a wife from the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite and was called by their name. 62 These searched for their entries in the genealogical records, but they could not be found, so they were disqualified from the priesthood. 63 The governor [t] ordered them not to eat the most holy things until there was a priest who could consult the •Urim and Thummim. [u]

64 The whole combined assembly numbered 42,360

65 not including their 7,337 male and female slaves,

and their 200 male and female singers. [v]

66 They had 736 horses, 245 mules,

67 435 camels, and 6,720 donkeys.

Gifts for the Work

68 After they arrived at the LORD's house in Jerusalem, some of the family leaders gave freewill offerings [w] for the house of God in order to have it rebuilt on its original site. 69 Based on what they could give, they gave 61,000 gold coins, [B] 6,250 pounds [C] of silver, and 100 priestly garments to the treasury [x] for the project. 70 The priests, Levites, singers, gatekeepers, temple servants, and some of the people settled in their towns, and the rest of Israel settled in their towns. [y]

Sacrifice Restored

3 By the seventh month, [a] the Israelites had settled in their towns, and the people gathered together in Jerusalem. [b] 2 Jeshua son of Jozadak and his brothers the priests along with Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel [c] and his brothers began to build the altar of Israel's God in order to offer •burnt offerings on it, as it is written in the law of Moses, the man of God. [d] 3 They set up the altar on its foundation and offered burnt offerings for the morning and evening on it to the LORD even though they feared the surrounding peoples. [e] 4 They celebrated the Festival of Booths as prescribed, and offered burnt offerings each day, based on the number specified by ordinance for each festival day. [f] 5 After that, they offered the regular burnt offering and the offerings for the beginning of each month [A,] [g] and for all the LORD's appointed holy occasions, as well as the freewill offerings brought to [B] the LORD.

6 On the first day of the seventh month they began to offer burnt offerings to the LORD, [h] even though the foundation of the LORD's temple had not yet been laid. 7 They gave money to the stonecutters and artisans, and gave food, drink, and oil to the people of Sidon and Tyre, so they could bring cedar wood from Lebanon to Joppa by sea, [i] according to the authorization given them by King Cyrus of Persia. [j]

Rebuilding the Temple 8 In the second month of the second year after they arrived at God's house in Jerusalem, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, Jeshua son of Jozadak, [k] and the rest of their brothers, including the priests, the Levites, and all who had returned to Jerusalem from the captivity, began to build. They appointed the Levites who were 20 years old or more to supervise the work on the LORD's house. [l] 9 Jeshua with his sons and brothers, Kadmiel with his sons, and the sons of Judah [C] and of Henadad, with their sons and brothers, the Levites, [m] joined together to supervise those working on the house of God.

Temple Foundation Completed 10 When the builders had laid the foundation of the LORD's temple, the priests, dressed in their robes and holding trumpets, and the Levites descended from •Asaph , [n] holding cymbals, took their positions to praise the LORD, as King David of Israel had instructed. [o] 11 They sang with praise and thanksgiving to the LORD: "For He is good; His faithful love to Israel endures forever." [p] Then all the people gave a great shout of praise to the LORD because the foundation of the LORD's house had been laid. [q]

12 But many of the older priests, Levites, and family leaders, who had seen the first temple, wept loudly when they saw the foundation of this house, [r] but many others shouted joyfully. 13 The people could not distinguish the sound of the joyful shouting from that of the [D] weeping, [s] because the people were shouting so loudly. And the sound was heard far away.

Opposition to Rebuilding the Temple

4 When the enemies of Judah and Benjamin [a] heard that the returned exiles [A,] [b] were building a temple for •Yahweh , the God of Israel, [2] they approached Zerubbabel and the leaders of the families and said to them, “Let us build with you, for we also worship your God and have been sacrificing to Him [c] since the time King Esar-haddon of Assyria [d] brought us here.” [e]

[3] But Zerubbabel, Jeshua, and the other leaders of Israel’s families answered them, “You may have no part with us in building a house for our God, [f] since we alone must build it for Yahweh, the God of Israel, as King Cyrus, the king of Persia has commanded us.” [g 4] Then the people who were already in the land [B] discouraged [C] the people of Judah and made them afraid [h] to build. [5] They also bribed officials to act against them to frustrate their plans [i] throughout the reign of King Cyrus of Persia and until the reign of King Darius of Persia. [j, k]

Opposition to Rebuilding the City

6 At the beginning of the reign of Ahasuerus, [l, m] the people who were already in the land [D, n] wrote an accusation against the residents of Judah and Jerusalem. 7 During the time of King Artaxerxes of Persia, [o, p] Bishlam, Mithredath, Tabeel and the rest of his colleagues wrote to King Artaxerxes. The letter was written in Aramaic [q] and translated. [E, r]

8 Rehum the chief deputy and Shimshai the scribe [s] wrote a letter to King Artaxerxes concerning Jerusalem as follows:

9 From Rehum [F] the chief deputy, Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their colleagues — the judges and magistrates [G] from Tripolis, Persia, Erech, Babylon, Susa [t] (that is, the people of Elam), [H] 10 and the rest of the peoples whom the great and illustrious Ashurbanipal [I] deported and settled in the cities of Samaria [u] and the region west of the Euphrates River. [v]

11 This is the text of the letter they sent to him:

To King Artaxerxes from your servants, the men from the region west of the Euphrates River:

12 Let it be known to the king that the Jews who came from you have returned to us at Jerusalem. They are rebuilding that rebellious and evil city, finishing its walls, and repairing its foundations. 13 Let it now be known to the king that if that city is rebuilt and its walls are finished, [w] they will not pay tribute, duty, or land tax, [x] and the royal revenue [J] will suffer. 14 Since we have taken an oath of loyalty to the king, [K] and it is not right for us to witness his dishonor, we have sent to inform the king 15 that a search should be made in your fathers' record books. [y] In these record books you will discover and verify that the city is a rebellious city, harmful to kings and provinces. There have been revolts in it since ancient times. That is why this city was destroyed. 16 We advise the king that if this city is rebuilt and its walls are finished, you will not have any possession west of the Euphrates.

Artaxerxes' Reply

17 The king sent a reply to his chief deputy Rehum, Shimshai the scribe, and the rest of their colleagues living in Samaria and elsewhere in the region west of the Euphrates River:

Greetings.

18 The letter you sent us has been translated and read [L, z] in my presence. 19 I issued a decree and a search was conducted. It was discovered that this city has had uprisings against kings since ancient times, and there have been rebellions and revolts in it. 20 Powerful kings have also ruled over Jerusalem and exercised authority over the whole region, and tribute, duty, and land tax were paid to them.

21 Therefore, issue an order for these men to stop, so that this city will not be rebuilt until a further decree has been pronounced by me. [a] 22 See that you not neglect this matter. Otherwise, the damage will increase and the royal interests [M] will suffer.

23 As soon as the text of King Artaxerxes' letter was read to Rehum, Shimshai the scribe, and their colleagues, [b] they immediately went to the Jews in Jerusalem and forcibly stopped them.

Rebuilding of the Temple Resumed

24 Now the construction of God's house in Jerusalem had stopped and remained at a standstill until the second year of the reign of King Darius of Persia. [c]

5 But when the prophets Haggai and Zechariah son of Iddo [a] prophesied to the Jews who were in Judah and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel who was over them, 2 Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak [b] began to rebuild God's house in Jerusalem. The prophets of God [c] were with them, helping them.
3 At that time Tattenai the governor of the region west of the Euphrates River, Shethar-bozenai, and their colleagues [d] came to the Jews and asked, "Who gave you the order to rebuild this temple and finish this structure? " [A, e] 4 They also asked them, "What are the names of the workers [f] who are constructing this building? " 5 But God was watching [B] over [g] the Jewish elders. These men wouldn't stop them until a report was sent to Darius, so that they could receive written instructions about this matter.

The Letter to Darius

6 This is the text of the letter that Tattenai the governor of the region west of the Euphrates River, Shethar-bozenai, and their colleagues, the officials in the region, sent to King Darius. 7 They sent him a report, written as follows:

To King Darius:
All greetings.

8 Let it be known to the king that we went to the house of the great God in the province of Judah. It is being built with cut [C] stones, and its beams are being set in the walls. This work is being done diligently and succeeding through the people's efforts. [h] 9 So we questioned the elders and asked, "Who gave you the order to rebuild this temple and finish this structure? " [D] 10 We also asked them for their names, so that we could write down the names of their leaders for your information.

11 This is the reply they gave us:

We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth and are rebuilding the temple that was built many years ago, which a great king of Israel built and finished. [i] 12 But since our fathers angered the God of heaven, He handed them over to King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this temple and deported the people to Babylon. [j] 13 However, in the first year of Cyrus king of Babylon, he issued a decree to rebuild the house of God. [k] 14 He also took from the temple in Babylon the gold and silver articles of God's house that Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the temple in Jerusalem and carried them to the temple in Babylon. [l] He released them from the temple in Babylon to a man named Sheshbazzar, the governor by the appointment of King Cyrus. [m] 15 Cyrus told him, "Take these articles, put them in the temple in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be rebuilt on its original site." [n] 16 Then this same Sheshbazzar came and laid the foundation of God's house in Jerusalem. [o] It has been under construction from that time until now, [p] yet it has not been completed.

17 So if it pleases the king, let a search of the royal archives [E] in Babylon be conducted to see if it is true that a decree was issued by King Cyrus to rebuild the house of God in Jerusalem. [q] Let the king's decision regarding this matter be sent to us. [r]

Darius's Search

6 King Darius gave the order, and they searched [a] in the library of Babylon in the archives. [A, b] 2 But it was in the fortress of Ecbatana in the province of Media [c] that a scroll was found with this record written on it:

3 In the first year of King Cyrus, he issued a decree [d] concerning the house of God in Jerusalem:

> Let the house be rebuilt as a place for offering sacrifices, and let its > original foundations be retained. [B] Its height is to be 90 feet [C] and its > width 90 feet, [D, e], [f] 4 with three layers of cut [E] stones and one of > timber. [g] The cost is to be paid from the royal treasury. [h] 5 The gold > and silver articles of God's house that Nebuchadnezzar took from the > temple in Jerusalem and carried to Babylon must also be returned.
> They are to be brought to the temple in Jerusalem where they belong [F] > and put into the house of God. [i]

Darius's Decree

> 6 Therefore, you must stay away from that place, Tattenai governor of > the region west of the Euphrates River, Shethar-bozenai, and your [G] > colleagues, the officials in the region. [j] 7 Leave the construction of the > house of God alone. Let the governor [k] and elders of the Jews rebuild > this house of God on its original site.
> 8 I hereby issue a decree concerning what you must do, so that the > elders of the Jews can rebuild the house of God:
> The cost is to be paid in full to these men out of the royal revenues [l] > from the taxes of the region west of the Euphrates River, so that the > work will not stop. 9 Whatever is needed — young bulls, rams, and > lambs for •burnt offerings to the God of heaven, or wheat, salt, wine, > and oil, as requested by the priests in Jerusalem — let it be given to > them every day without fail, [m] 10 so that they can offer sacrifices of > pleasing aroma to the God of heaven and pray for the life of the king > and his sons. [n]
>
> 11 I also issue a decree concerning any man who interferes with this > directive:
> Let a beam be torn from his house and raised up; he will be impaled on > it, and his house will be made into a garbage dump because of this > offense. [o] 12 May the God who caused His name to dwell there [p] overthrow any king or people who dares [H] to harm or interfere with this house of God in Jerusalem. I, Darius, have issued the decree. Let it be carried out diligently.

13 Then Tattenai governor of the region west of the Euphrates River, Shethar-bozenai, and their colleagues [q] diligently carried out what King Darius had decreed. 14 So the Jewish elders continued successfully with the building under the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah son of Iddo. [r] They finished the building according to the command of the God of Israel and the decrees of Cyrus, [s] Darius, and King Artaxerxes [t] of Persia. 15 This house was completed on the third day of the month of Adar [u,] [v] in the sixth year of the reign of King Darius.

Temple Dedication and the Passover 16 Then the Israelites, including the priests, the Levites, and the rest of the exiles, celebrated the dedication of the house of God with joy. 17 For the dedication of God's house they offered 100 bulls, 200 rams, and 400 lambs, as well as 12 male goats [w] as a •sin offering for all Israel — one for each Israelite tribe. 18 They also appointed the priests by their divisions and the Levites by their groups to the service of God in Jerusalem, according to what is written in the book of Moses. [x]

19 The exiles [y] observed the •Passover [z] on the fourteenth day of the first month. 20 All of the priests and Levites were ceremonially •clean , because they had purified themselves. They killed the Passover lamb for themselves, their priestly brothers, and all the exiles. [a] 21 The Israelites who had returned from exile [b] ate it, together with all who had separated themselves from the uncleanness of the Gentiles of the land [I,] [c] in order to worship •Yahweh , the God of Israel. 22 They observed the Festival of Unleavened Bread for seven days [d] with joy, because the LORD had made them joyful, having changed the Assyrian king's attitude toward them, so that he supported them [J] in the work on the house of the God of Israel. [e]

Ezra's Arrival

7 After these events, during the reign of King Artaxerxes [a] of Persia, Ezra —

Seraiah's [b] son, Azariah's son, Hilkiah's [c] son, 2 Shallum's son,
Zadok's [d] son, Ahitub's son,
3 Amariah's son, Azariah's son,
Meraioth's son, 4 Zerahiah's son,
Uzzi's son, Bukki's son,
5 Abishua's son, Phinehas's son,
Eleazar's son, Aaron the chief priest's son [e]

6 — came up from Babylon. He was a scribe skilled in the law of Moses, [f] which •Yahweh , the God of Israel, had given. The king had granted him everything he requested [g] because the hand of Yahweh his God was on him. [h] 7 Some of the Israelites, priests, Levites, singers, gatekeepers, and temple servants [i] accompanied him to Jerusalem in the seventh year of King Artaxerxes.

8 Ezra [j] came to Jerusalem in the fifth month, during the seventh year of the king. 9 He began the journey from Babylon on the first day of the first month [k] and arrived in Jerusalem on the first day of the fifth month [l] since the gracious hand of his God was on him. [m] 10 Now Ezra had determined in his heart to study the law of the LORD, obey it, and teach [n] its statutes and ordinances in Israel.

Letter from Artaxerxes

11 This is the text of the letter King Artaxerxes gave to Ezra the priest and scribe, an expert in matters of the LORD's commands and statutes for Israel: [o]

12 Artaxerxes, king of kings, [p] to Ezra the priest, an expert in the law of the God of heaven:
Greetings.

13 I issue a decree that any of the Israelites in my kingdom, including their priests and Levites, who want to go to Jerusalem, may go with you. [q] 14 You are sent by the king and his seven counselors [r] to evaluate Judah and Jerusalem according to the law of your God, which is in your possession. 15 You are also to bring the silver and gold the king and his counselors have willingly given to the God of Israel, [s] whose dwelling is in Jerusalem, [t] 16 and all the silver and gold you receive throughout the province of Babylon, together with the freewill offerings given by the people and the priests to the house of their God in Jerusalem. [u] 17 Then you are to buy with this money as many bulls, rams, and lambs as needed, along with their •grain and •drink offerings, and offer them on the altar at the house of your God in Jerusalem. [v] 18 You may do whatever seems best to you and your brothers with the rest of the silver and gold, according to the will of your God. 19 You must deliver to the God of Jerusalem all the articles given to you for the service of the house of your God. [w] 20 You may use the royal treasury to pay for anything else needed for the house of your God. [x]

21 I, King Artaxerxes, issue a decree to all the treasurers in the region west of the Euphrates River: [y]

Whatever Ezra the priest, an expert in the law of the God of heaven, asks of you must be provided promptly, [z] 22 up to 7,500 pounds [A] of silver, 500 bushels [B] of wheat, 550 gallons [C] of wine, 550 gallons [D] of oil, and salt without limit. [E] 23 Whatever is commanded by the God of heaven must be done diligently for the house of the God of heaven, so that wrath will not fall on the realm of the king and his sons. [a] 24 Be advised that tribute, duty, and land tax must not be imposed on any priests, Levites, singers, doorkeepers, temple servants, or other servants of this house of God.

25 And you, Ezra, according to [F] God’s wisdom that you possess, appoint magistrates and judges to judge all the people in the region west of the Euphrates who know the laws of your God and to teach anyone who does not know them. [b] 26 Anyone who does not keep the law of your God and the law of the king, let a fair judgment be executed against him, whether death, banishment, confiscation of property, or imprisonment. [c]

27 Praise Yahweh the God of our fathers, who has put it into the king’s mind [d] to glorify the house of the LORD in Jerusalem, [e] 28 and who has shown favor to me before the king, [f] his counselors, and all his powerful officers. So I took courage because I was strengthened by Yahweh my God, [G,] [g] and I gathered Israelite leaders to return with me. [h]

Those Returning with Ezra

8 These are the family leaders and the genealogical records of those who returned with me from Babylon during the reign of King Artaxerxes: [a]

2 Gershom, from Phinehas's descendants;
Daniel, from Ithamar's descendants;
Hattush, from David's descendants,
3 who was of Shecaniah's descendants; [b] Zechariah, from Parosh's [c] descendants, and 150 men [A] with him who were registered by genealogy;
4 Eliehoenai son of Zerahiah from Pahath-moab's descendants, [d]
and 200 men with him;
5 Shecaniah [e] son of Jahaziel from Zattu's descendants,
and 300 men with him;
6 Ebed son of Jonathan from Adin's descendants, [f]
and 50 men with him;
7 Jeshaiah son of Athaliah from Elam's descendants,
and 70 men with him;
8 Zebadiah son of Michael from Shephatiah's descendants,
and 80 men with him;
9 Obadiah son of Jehiel from Joab's descendants,
and 218 men with him;
10 Shelomith [g] son of Josiphiah from Bani's descendants,
and 160 men with him;
11 Zechariah son of Bebai from Bebai's descendants,
and 28 men with him;
12 Johanan son of Hakkatan from Azgad's descendants,
and 110 men with him;

13 these are the last ones, from Adonikam's descendants, [h] and their names are:
Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah,
and 60 men with them;
14 Uthai and Zaccur [i] from Bigvai's descendants,
and 70 men with them.

15 I gathered them at the river [B] that flows to Ahava, [j] and we camped there for three days. I searched among the people and priests, but found no Levites [k] there. 16 Then I summoned the leaders: Eliezer, Ariel, Shemaiah, Elnathan, Jarib, Elnathan, Nathan, Zechariah, and Meshullam, [l] as well as the teachers Joiarib and Elnathan. 17 I sent them to Iddo, the leader at Casiphia, with a message for [C] him and his brothers, the temple servants [m] at Casiphia, that they should bring us ministers for the house of our God. 18 Since the gracious hand of our God was on us, [n] they brought us Sherebiah [o] — a man of insight from the descendants of Mahli, a descendant of Levi son of Israel — along with his sons and brothers, 18 men, 19 plus Hashabiah, [p] along with Jeshaiah, from the descendants of Merari, and his brothers and their sons, 20 men. 20 There were also 220 of the temple servants, [q] who had been appointed by David and the leaders for the work of the Levites. All were identified by name.

Preparing to Return

21 I proclaimed a fast [r] by the Ahava River, [D] so that we might humble ourselves before our God and ask Him for a safe journey for us, our children, and all our possessions. 22 I did this because I was ashamed to ask the king for infantry and cavalry to protect us from enemies during the journey, since we had told him, “The hand of our God is gracious to all who seek Him, but His great anger is against all who abandon Him.” [s] 23 So we fasted and pleaded with our God about this, and He granted our request.

24 I selected 12 of the leading priests, along with Sherebiah, [t] Hashabiah, and 10 of their brothers. 25 I weighed out to them the silver, the gold, and the articles — the contribution for the house of our God that the king, his counselors, his leaders, and all the Israelites who were present had offered. 26 I weighed out to them 24 tons [E] of silver, silver articles weighing 7,500 pounds, [F] 7,500 pounds [G] of gold, 27 20 gold bowls worth 1,000 gold coins, [H] and two articles of fine gleaming bronze, as valuable as gold. [u] 28 Then I said to them, “You are holy to the LORD, and the articles are holy. The silver and gold are a freewill offering [v] to the LORD God of your fathers. 29 Guard them carefully until you weigh them out in the chambers of the LORD’s house before the leading priests, Levites, and heads of the Israelite families in Jerusalem.” 30 So the priests and Levites took charge of the silver, the gold, and the articles that had been weighed out, to bring them to the house of our God in Jerusalem. [w]

Arrival in Jerusalem

31 We set out from the Ahava River [I] on the twelfth day of the first month to go to Jerusalem. We were strengthened by our God, [J, x] and He protected us from the power of the enemy and from ambush along the way. [y] 32 So we arrived at Jerusalem and rested there for three days. [z] 33 On the fourth day the silver, the gold, and the articles were weighed out in the house of our God into the care of Meremoth the priest, son of Uriah. Eleazar son of Phinehas was with him. The Levites Jozabad [a] son of Jeshua and Noadiah son of Binnui were also with them. 34 Everything was verified by number and weight, and the total weight was recorded at that time.

35 The exiles who had returned from the captivity [b] offered •burnt offerings to the God of Israel: 12 bulls for all Israel, 96 rams, and 77 lambs, along with 12 male goats as a •sin offering. All this was a burnt offering for the LORD. [c] 36 They also delivered the king's edicts to the royal satraps and governors of the region west of the Euphrates, [d] so that they would support the people and the house of God. [e]

Israel's Intermarriage with Pagans

9 After these things had been done, the leaders approached me and said: “The people of Israel, the priests, and the Levites have not separated themselves [a] from the surrounding peoples whose detestable practices [b] are like those of the Canaanites, Hittites, Perizzites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians, and Amorites. [c] 2 Indeed, the Israelite men [A] have taken some of their daughters as wives for themselves and their sons, so that the holy •seed [d] has become mixed with the surrounding peoples. [e] The leaders [B] and officials have taken the lead in this unfaithfulness! ” [f] 3 When I heard this report, I tore my tunic and robe, pulled out some of the hair from my head and beard, and sat down devastated. [g]

Ezra’s Confession

4 Everyone who trembled at the words of the God of Israel [h] gathered around me, because of the unfaithfulness of the exiles, [i] while I sat devastated until the evening offering. [j] 5 At the evening offering, I got up from my humiliation, with my tunic and robe torn. Then I fell on my knees and spread out my hands to •Yahweh my God. [k] 6 And I said: [l]

> My God, I am ashamed and embarrassed to lift my face toward You, my God, because our iniquities are higher than our heads and our •guilt is as high as the heavens. [m] 7 Our guilt has been terrible from the days of our fathers until the present. Because of our iniquities we have been handed over, along with our kings and priests, to the surrounding kings, and to the sword, captivity, plundering, and open shame, [n] as it is today. 8 But now, for a brief moment, grace has come from Yahweh our God to preserve a remnant [o] for us and give us a stake [p] in His holy place. Even in our slavery, God has given us new life and light to our eyes. [q] 9 Though we are slaves, [r] our God has not abandoned us in our slavery. He has extended grace to us in the presence of the Persian kings, [s] giving us new life, so that we can rebuild the house of our God and repair its ruins, [t] to give us a wall in Judah and Jerusalem.
> 10 Now, our God, what can we say in light of [C] this? For we have abandoned the commands 11 You gave through Your servants the prophets, saying: “The land you are entering to possess is an impure land. The surrounding peoples have filled it from end to end with their uncleanness by their impurity and detestable practices. [u] 12 So do not give your daughters to their sons in marriage or take their daughters for your sons. [v] Never seek their peace or prosperity, [w] so that you will be strong, eat the good things of the land, and leave it as an inheritance to your sons forever.” 13 After all that has happened to us because of our evil deeds and terrible guilt — though You, our God, have punished us less than our sins deserve and have allowed us to survive D, x — 14 should we break Your commands again and intermarry with the peoples who commit these detestable practices? y Wouldn’t You become so angry with us that You would destroy us, leaving no survivors? z 15 LORD God of Israel, You are righteous, for we survive as a remnant a today. Here we are before You with our guilt, though no one can stand in Your presence because of this. b

Sending Away Foreign Wives

10 While Ezra prayed and confessed, weeping and falling facedown [a] before the house of God, an extremely large assembly of Israelite men, women, and children gathered around him. The people also wept bitterly. [b] 2 Then Shecaniah son of Jehiel, [c] an Elamite, responded to Ezra: “We have been unfaithful to our God by marrying foreign women from the surrounding peoples, [d] but there is still hope for Israel in spite of this. 3 Let us therefore make a covenant before our God [e] to send away all the foreign wives and their children, according to the counsel of my lord and of those who tremble at the command of our God. [f] Let it be done according to the law. 4 Get up, for this matter is your responsibility, [g] and we support you. Be strong and take action! ” [h]

5 Then Ezra got up and made the leading priests, Levites, and all Israel take an oath to do what had been said; so they took the oath. [i] 6 Ezra then went from the house of God and walked to the chamber of Jehohanan son of Eliashib, where he spent the night. [j] He did not eat food or drink water, because he was mourning over the unfaithfulness of the exiles. [k]

7 They circulated a proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem that all the exiles should gather at Jerusalem. 8 Whoever did not come within three days would forfeit all his possessions, [A] according to the decision of the leaders and elders, and would be excluded [l] from the assembly of the exiles.

9 So all the men of Judah and Benjamin gathered in Jerusalem within the three days. On the twentieth day of the ninth month, all the people sat in the square at the house of God, [m] trembling because of this matter and because of the heavy rain. 10 Then Ezra the priest stood up and said to them, “You have been unfaithful by marrying foreign women, adding to Israel’s •guilt . [n] 11 Therefore, make a confession to •Yahweh the God of your fathers and do His will. Separate yourselves from the surrounding peoples and your foreign wives.”

12 Then all the assembly responded with a loud voice: “Yes, we will do as you say! 13 But there are many people, and it is the rainy season. We don’t have the stamina to stay out in the open. This isn’t something that can be done in a day or two, for we have rebelled terribly in this matter. 14 Let our leaders represent the entire assembly. Then let all those in our towns who have married foreign women come at appointed times, together with the elders and judges of each town, in order to avert the fierce anger of our God [o] concerning [p] this matter.” 15 Only Jonathan son of Asahel and Jahzeiah son of Tikvah opposed this, with Meshullam [q] and Shabbethai the Levite supporting them.

16 The exiles did what had been proposed. Ezra the priest selected men [r] who were family leaders, all identified by name, to represent [B] their ancestral houses.

They convened on the first day of the tenth month to investigate the matter, [17] and by the first day of the first month they had dealt with all the men who had married foreign women.

Those Married to Foreign Wives

18 The following were found to have married foreign women from the descendants of the priests:

from the descendants of Jeshua son of Jozadak and his brothers: Maaseiah, Eliezer, Jarib, and Gedaliah. 19 They pledged [C] to send their wives away, and being guilty, they offered a ram from the flock for their guilt; [s]

20 Hanani and Zebadiah from Immer's [t] descendants;
21 Maaseiah, Elijah, Shemaiah, Jehiel, and Uzziah from Harim's [u] descendants; 22 Elioenai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, Nethanel, Jozabad, and Elasah from Pashhur's [v] descendants.
23 The Levites: [w]

Jozabad, Shimei, Kelaiah (that is Kelita), Pethahiah, Judah, and Eliezer.

24 The singers: [x]

Eliashib.

The gatekeepers: [y]

Shallum, Telem, and Uri.

25 The Israelites: [z]

Parosh's descendants: [a] Ramiah, Izziah, Malchijah, Mijamin, Eleazar, Malchijah, [b] and Benaiah; 26 Elam's descendants: [c] Mattaniah, Zechariah, Jehiel, Abdi, Jeremoth, and Elijah;
27 Zattu's descendants: [d] Elioenai, Eliashib, Mattaniah, Jeremoth, Zabad, and Aziza;
28 Bebai's descendants: [e] Jehohanan, Hananiah, Zabbai, and Athlai;
29 Bani's descendants: [f] Meshullam, Malluch, Adaiah, Jashub, Sheal, and Jeremoth;

30 Pahath-moab’s descendants: [g] Adna, Chelal, Benaiah, Maaseiah, Mattaniah, Bezalel, Binnui, and Manasseh;
31 Harim’s descendants: [h] Eliezer, Isshijah, Malchijah, Shemaiah, Shimeon, 32 Benjamin, Malluch, and Shemariah;
33 Hashum’s descendants: [i] Mattenai, Mattattah, Zabad, Eliphelet, Jeremai, Manasseh, and Shimei;

34 Bani’s descendants: [j] Maadai, Amram, Uel, 35 Benaiah, Bedeiah, Cheluhi, 36 Vaniah, Meremoth, Eliashib, 37 Mattaniah, Mattenai, Jaasu, 38 Bani, Binnui, Shimei, 39 Shelemiah, Nathan, Adaiah, 40 Machnadebai, Shashai, Sharai, 41 Azarel, Shelemiah, Shemariah, 42 Shallum, Amariah, and Joseph;

43 Nebo’s descendants: [k] Jeiel, Mattithiah, Zabad, Zebina, Jaddai, Joel, and Benaiah.

44 All of these [l] had married foreign women, and some of the wives had given birth to children. [m]

Introduction

The Euphrates River at Dura Europas. The difficult journey from exile back to Judah was a thousand miles and likely proceeded along the trade route that ran parallel to the Euphrates River to Aleppo. Sheshbazzar led the first groups between 537 and 522 B.C. and Ezra the second group, 458 B.C.

The books of Ezra and Nehemiah bear the names of the key person in each of the books. Until the third century A.D., though, the books of Ezra and Nehemiah were regarded as a single book. Both books contain material found in the other, and they complete each other. The separation of the book in the Christian community took place through the influence of the Vulgate, the Latin translation prepared by Jerome who, following Origen before him, separated Ezra-Nehemiah into two distinct books. In the Jewish community, Ezra and Nehemiah were not separated into two distinct books until the fifteenth-century printing of the Hebrew Bible. In the Hebrew Bible, Ezra-Nehemiah is part of the third division of the canon, called the Writings (Hb ketuvim).

Circumstances of Writing Author: Ezra and Nehemiah are anonymous. Ancient Jewish sources usually credit Ezra as the author of Ezra-Nehemiah. More likely Ezra-Nehemiah was written by the "Chronicler," the person (or persons) responsible for 1 and 2 Chronicles. Not only is Ezra-Nehemiah linked to Chronicles at its introduction (Ezr 1:1-2 = 2Ch 36:22-23), it also shares many similarities in language, terminology, themes, and perspective.

Background: It is probably safe to assume that Ezra-Nehemiah was written soon after the conclusion of Nehemiah's ministry. Most likely the book was written no later than 400 B.C.

In Ezra-Nehemiah it is clear that Ezra came to Jerusalem first, probably in 458 B.C., and that Nehemiah followed him 13 years later, probably in 445 B.C. Nehemiah made no mention of Ezra, his ministry, or his reforms. Ezra and Nehemiah appear together in only two texts (Neh 8:9; 12:36). The two events in which Ezra and Nehemiah were together were significant. In Nehemiah 8, the context is the reading of the law to the people, while in Nehemiah 12 the two joyous processions walking around the city walls in the dedication ceremony include Ezra (Neh 12:36) and Nehemiah (Neh 12:38).

Message and Purpose Ezra continues where 2 Chronicles left off. While it provides us with key historical insights, it is rich in messages for God's people.

The continuity of God's people: The events in Ezra-Nehemiah connect the Israelites with the preexilic community. The returning exiles experienced a new exodus and remained a part of God's redemptive plan. God even used pagan leaders like Cyrus and Artaxerxes to restore His people.

Holiness: For the people to continue the covenant relationship with God, it was important for them to separate and remain pure in matters of doctrine, ethics, and customs. Prior to the exile, the people experienced judgment because of their inability to remain faithful single-mindedly in their relationship to their covenant God. Ezra-Nehemiah shows us a renewed interest in remaining separated unto God.

Scripture: Ezra and Nehemiah reaffirm the centrality of the law to the life and practice of the Israelite community. They knew the authority of Scripture, but they were called back from their neglect of its teachings. Multiple times they showed that the people worked and behaved in accordance with what Moses had written (Ezr 3:2; 6:18; Neh 8:14-15; 13:1-3). Ezra and Nehemiah may give us the best example of the power of God at work through the written Word.

Worship: The returning exiles built an altar to sacrifice to God before they rebuilt the temple. Only after the place of worship was finished did they rebuild the walls. They got the projects in proper order, because worship and a proper relationship with God precede everything else.

Prayer: Alongside worship is an abundance of prayer in these books. Two extensive prayers are recorded (Ezr 9; Neh 9). Prayer and fasting are mentioned multiple times as they set out on tasks, and the whole rebuilding of the wall was bathed in prayer. Prayer is combined with action throughout Nehemiah, and both books underscore the need to approach God constantly in prayer.

Contribution to the Bible The events which occurred in Ezra and Nehemiah, the rebuilt temple, the stabilizing of Jerusalem, and the Jewish community that developed, all played key roles in the life and ministry of Jesus recorded in the Gospels. The rebuilt temple may have paled in comparison to Solomon's temple, but it would serve the Jews for centuries until Christ removed the need for a physical temple.

Structure Ezra-Nehemiah was written in two related but distinct languages—Hebrew and Aramaic. The Hebrew sections generally reflect the style of the postexilic era with some evidence of the impact of Aramaic on the language. Aramaic, a Semitic language similar to Hebrew, occurs in two sections in the book of Ezra (Ezr 4:8-6:18; 7:12-26). During the Persian period (ca 540 to 330 B.C.), Aramaic was the official language of diplomacy and commerce.

Ezra-Nehemiah is similar to Samuel and Kings, and especially Chronicles, in that many sources were utilized in its composition. These include two major types of sources. Much of Ezra-Nehemiah consists of material from the Ezra Memoir and the Nehemiah Memoir. The Ezra Memoir, usually written in the first person, includes Ezra 7-10, along with Nehemiah 8 and probably chapter 9 as well, but embedded in this memoir are lists and records from other sources used by Ezra. The composition of the Nehemiah Memoir is regarded as including Nehemiah 1-7 as well as 11-13. But here also Nehemiah incorporated lists and records in his memoir. Ezra-Nehemiah also contains many lists, genealogies, inventories, letters, and census records throughout the book. For a community attempting to reestablish itself after the disaster of 586 B.C. and the subsequent exile to Babylon, this material was crucial in reordering their life as a community.

Study Notes 1:1 The first year of Cyrus refers to the first year of his rule over Babylonia (538 B.C. ) and not the first year of his reign in Persia that began in 559 B.C. and continued until 530 B.C. Spoken through Jeremiah may allude to Jeremiah’s prophecy of the 70 years of captivity (Jr 29:10-14). More likely it is a reference to Jr 51:11, “The Lord has put it into the mind of the kings of the Medes.” The same vocabulary occurs here in Ezr 1:1 where the LORD put it into the mind (lit “stirred up the spirit”; cp. Jr 51:1) of King Cyrus.

1:2-3 The “proclamation” (v. 1), often referred to as the “Edict of Cyrus,” reflects Cyrus’s policy to allow the exiles to return to their homeland. The edict, from the closing words of 2 Chronicles (2Ch 36:23), appears in two versions in the book of Ezra: here in Hebrew, reflecting a strong Jewish perspective, and in

6:3-5 written in Aramaic (the language of diplomacy in the Persian Empire), which appears to be an official court memorandum. Some scholars question whether a Persian king would refer to God as The LORD, the God of heaven. Possibly this reflects a paraphrase provided by the Jewish leaders in Babylon. One of Cyrus's tasks was to build a house at Jerusalem in Judah. House (Hb beth) often refers to the temple, the house of the Lord. The Babylonians had destroyed Solomon's temple in 586 B.C.

1:4 It is not clear if the men of that region refer to Jewish men or the entire population. If it refers to all the people, there may be a parallel here to the "spoiling of the Egyptians" (Ex 3; 11; 12). As the birth of the nation began with the spoils of the Gentiles, so the new beginning of God's people began with the silver and gold of their former oppressors.

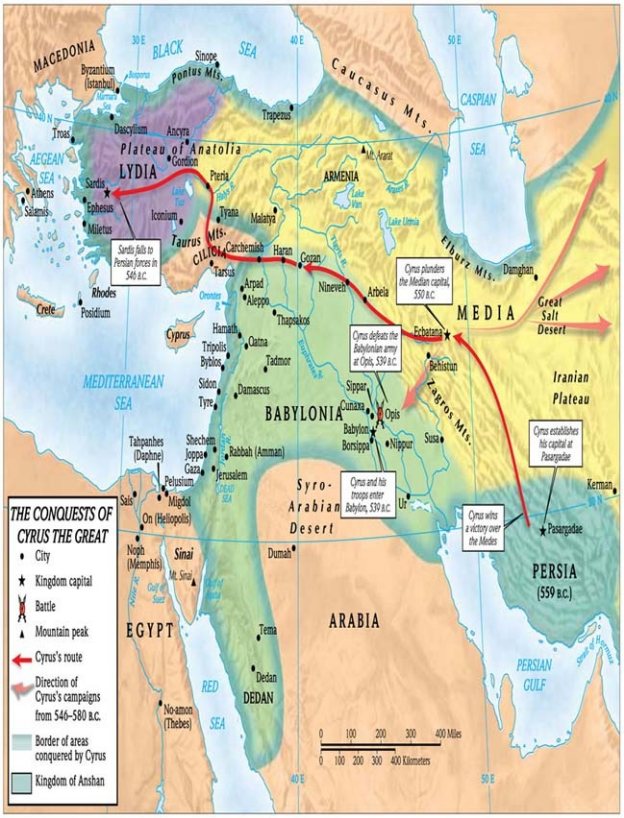
1:5 The kingdom of Judah, conquered by the Babylonians in 586 B.C., consisted primarily of the region of Judah and Benjamin. Thus the exiles who returned represented three tribal groups: Judah, Benjamin, and Levi (the priests and Levites).

1:7 The articles . . . that Nebuchadnezzar had taken when the Babylonians sacked the temple were not only extremely valuable but were of priceless spiritual worth to the returning exiles. Though plundered from Solomon's temple, they would again be used in worship in the second temple and would be an additional link to the worshiping community that existed before the great catastrophe of 586 B.C.

1:8 Both the name and title of Mithredath are Persian. This is the first mention of the enigmatic Sheshbazzar (vv. 8,11; 5:14,16). His name is Babylonian ("May Shamash [the sun god] protect the father"). His title, "prince of Judah," occurs nowhere else in the OT.

1:9-10 The variation in English translations of this passage reflects the difficulty in determining the exact identity of the items mentioned. Particularly uncertain is the reference to 29 silver knives (Hb machalaphim). This rare term may instead refer to duplicate bowls (LXX) or possibly another type of bowl.

1:11 The figure of 5,400 is over twice the total of the figures given in verses 9-10. Possibly the items mentioned in the inventory (vv. 9-10) were only a portion of the material returned to Sheshbazzar. A textual corruption, more commonly occurring in lists of numbers, may also account for the disparity. The term exiles (Hb golah) can refer to either the exile to Babylon or the people of the exile. All but one of the 12 occurrences of the term in Ezra (6:21) refer to the people of the exile.



2:1 The list of returnees probably reflects not the return from Babylon led by Sheshbazzar, but multiple waves of exiles over several decades. While it is possible that the people of the province refers to the region in Babylon where the exiles had lived, it more likely refers to the province of Judah to which they returned. The province, called Yehud by the Persians, was probably much smaller than the hereditary territory of Judah (see note at 10:7-8). Nebuchadnezzar's series of deportations (597-582 B.C.) were now being reversed by God's power. Each returnee came back to his own town, emphasizing the continuity between the preexilic nation and the postexilic nation.

2:2 The names of the Jewish leaders who returned reflect the history of their nation. One name is Persian (Bigvai) while three others are Babylonian (Zerubbabel . . . Mordecai, and Bilshan). Zerubbabel probably served as the second governor of Yehud (Judah) after Sheshbazzar. As a grandson of king Jehoiachin, he was a crucial link with the Davidic dynasty. In the biblical books from the postexilic era, Zerubbabel is nearly always mentioned along with Jeshua, a grandson of Jozadak, Israel's last high priest before the destruction of the temple in 586 B.C. Thus Zerubbabel and Jeshua together link the reborn community in Yehud with the royal and priestly lines of preexilic Israel.

Nehemiah in this verse does not refer to the central figure in the book of Nehemiah, who arrived in Jerusalem almost 80 years later. Another person named Nehemiah is also mentioned in Neh 3:16, referring to a ruler over the region of Beth-Zur. Neither does the name Mordecai refer to the Mordecai in the book of Esther, who appeared a half-century after the Mordecai in Ezra 2.

2:3-60 These lists appear to be based on the nearly identical version in Neh 7:8-60. The divergences between the two are mostly inconsequential, consisting of alternative spellings of proper names and minor textual corruptions of the numbers. Because numbers were written in this era with small lines or marks, they were particularly prone to errors in copying. The primary purpose of these lists was to ensure that those who returned to Judah were authentic Israelites. In both Ezra and Nehemiah, the purity of the people is emphasized.

2:3-35 The first list consists of Israelite laymen. In verses 3-20 they are listed by the names of their family patriarchs, and in verses 21-35 according to locality of origin. In verses 3-21 the returnees are referred to as the descendants of these family leaders (lit "sons"; Hb beney). In verses 22-35 they are more commonly called the men (Hb anshey) of the family leader. The variation is probably only stylistic.

2:20 The parallel list of Gibbar's descendants (Neh 7:25) reads "Gibeon," the town northwest of Jerusalem. It is difficult to decide which is original since the names that precede the verse are personal names while those that follow are place names.

2:21-35 All these places are in the immediate area surrounding Jerusalem. It reflects the greatly reduced size of Judah in the years before 586 B.C. Many of the towns were from the tribal area of Benjamin, north of Jerusalem. The only towns mentioned south of Jerusalem are Bethlehem and Netophah.

2:36-39 Priests make up about 10 percent of the returnees. Other priests returned later, because 8:2 mentions priestly families of Phinehas (Ex 6:23; Nm 25:1-11) and Ithamar, Aaron's fourth son (Ex 6:23).

2:40 Compared to the priests, the return of only 74 Levites seems very low. Possibly the nature of their work and their lowly status either kept them from being captured and deported in the first place, or it did not motivate many of them to return home. Many years later when Ezra was preparing to return (8:15), his recruitment efforts resulted in only 38 Levite volunteers.

2:41 The presence of singers was important in establishing the continuity of worship as it existed before the exile. The term translated "singers" (Hb meshorrim) may be too narrow, as 1Ch 15:16-20 suggests that it included instrumentalists and worship leaders. Perhaps "musicians" better fits the context. Asaph was from the tribe of Levi.

2:42 Like the singers, the gatekeeper's position was established by King David (1Ch 9:18-27) and was regarded as part of the tribe of Levi (1Ch 6), although these gatekeepers are mentioned separately.

2:43-58 The temple servants were the fifth group of temple personnel (priests, Levites, singers, gatekeepers), and they had the lowest status. The Hebrew term for "temple servants" is nethinim, from the Hebrew verb ntn, "to give." They are the "given" ones, or "devoted" ones, designated to serve in the temple and its worship. Solomon's servants were part of this same group. A majority of the names are either foreign or are nicknames, reflecting their lowly status.

2:59-64 The final groups are of questionable status: three clans of laymen who could not verify their genealogy (vv. 59-60) and three clans of priestly families who could not prove their priestly lineage (vv. 61-64). The laymen, identified according their former residences in Babylon, presumably were allowed to remain in the Jewish community. The situation of the priests was more difficult. Because the purity of the priesthood and the temple was at stake, priests who could not prove their lineage were disqualified from their posts. This was not only a loss of status but of livelihood as well since priests were not allotted land and were dependent on the gifts given to the temple.

No mention of the use of the mysterious Urim and Thummim is found in the postexilic era. The term governor is an uncommon word for this position, appearing only five times in the OT, all in Ezra-Nehemiah. The word is tirshat'a , probably derived from the Old Persian language meaning "excellency." The term is later used to describe "Nehemiah the governor" (Neh 8:9; 10:1). Here it probably refers to Zerubbabel, although some scholars prefer Sheshbazzar.

2:64-65 The assembly (Hb qahal) described the entire worshiping community, including both men and women. The sum of the returnees in the above list is only 29,818; probably the discrepancy reflects the number of women who also returned. While some commentators regard the presence of only 12,542 women as unlikely, it may suggest that most of those who returned were unattached, single men. The 42,360 returnees did not include the slaves who were regarded as property. The singers listed here are not those who participated in the temple worship but entertainers employed by wealthy families.

2:66-67 Since horses were more expensive than donkeys, it is not surprising that far more donkeys (6,720) than horses (736) were involved in the return to the land.

2:68-70 Just as Israelites gave gold and silver toward the construction of the tabernacle in Moses' time (Ex 35:21-29), so once again some of the people gave freewill offerings for the reconstruction of the temple. These coins (Hb darkemonim) probably refer to the Greek drachma. Verse 70 is awkward, as reflected in the Septuagint and in 1 Esdras, but its essential point is clear: both temple personnel and laymen had now returned to their cities and towns from which they or their forefathers had been exiled.

3:1-13 Neither Haggai nor Zechariah, who prophesied about the temple during this time, ever mentioned an early attempt to lay the foundation of the temple in the time of Cyrus as described in this chapter. They only recounted the laying of the foundation and the building of the temple during the time of Darius, with the completion of the temple in 515 B.C. The chronological indicators in the passage (vv. 6,8; 4:5,24; 5:1-2) attest to a short-lived attempt to rebuild in the time of Cyrus (3:1-4:3) followed by a second, ultimately successful attempt during the time of Darius (chaps. 5-6).

3:1-2 The seventh month was September-October 537 B.C. Taking the lead in reviving the proper sacrificial system was Jeshua son of Jozadak (see note at 2:2). In Haggai he is always referred to as "Joshua," an alternative spelling, and nearly always called the "high priest," though never in Ezra-Nehemiah. Just as Joshua built an altar to the Lord when the people entered the promised land "according to what is written in the book of the law of Moses" (Jos 8:30-31), so those returning to the promised land built theirs the same way, with uncut stones that no iron tool had touched (Dt 27:5-6).

3:3 The morning and evening burnt offerings, called the (Hb) Tamid, were the basic daily sacrifices in which the entire lamb was burned up. The "burnt offerings" were part of the consecration of the new altar. Twice before in Israel's history the daily burnt offerings had ceased under godless kings and were reinstated, first by Joash (2Ch 24:14) and later by Hezekiah (2Ch 29:7,27-29). The term surrounding peoples (lit "the people of the lands") often has a pejorative sense. Here it probably refers to those with no desire to see a reconstituted Jewish population in the land.

3:4 The seventh month was also the time for the celebration of the Festival of Booths (also referred to as "Tabernacles," or by its Hebrew name Succoth), a harvest festival in which Israel remembered their sojourn in the wilderness and God's provision. The sacrifices during the seven-day festival were offered in accordance with the law of Moses as written in Nm 29:12-38, and would include 71 bulls, 15 rams, 105 lambs as well as seven goats—a major financial sacrifice for the small postexilic community.

3:5 The mention of regular burnt offering (Hb 'olat tamid) is to show how the normal daily sacrificial schedule of offerings, as compared to the burnt offering at the dedication of the altar (v. 3), was reestablished. Offerings for the beginning of each month translates a single Hebrew word (chodashim) meaning "new moons." New moon celebrations were prescribed in the Mosaic law (Nm 28:11-15). They included the blowing of trumpets (Nm 10:10) along with the sacrifice of two bulls, a ram, and seven one-year-old male lambs, plus a male goat as a sin offering.

3:6 The first day of the seventh month would most likely have been September 17, 538 B.C.

3:7 As soon as the sacrificial system was in place, the next order of business was the acquisition of building material. Payment was made to the people of Sidon and Tyre who cut down the famous cedars of Lebanon and floated the logs down the coast to Joppa, just south of present day Tel-Aviv, for transit overland to Jerusalem. While stonecutters were also hired, they were not as numerous as Solomon's 80,000 who worked on the first temple (2Ch 2:18) since some of the stones from the rubble of the first temple could be reused.

3:8 During the seven months preceding the second month of the second year, enough of the temple site had been cleared that work on the foundation could begin. Zerubbabel and Jeshua the priest led laymen as well as priests and Levites in the joint effort. In 5:16 Sheshbazzar is mentioned as laying the foundation of the temple. As the official governor, maybe he was credited with this event even though Zerubbabel carried on most of the work and would later succeed Sheshbazzar as governor.

3:10 The continuity of the people with their preexilic forefathers is again emphasized in the phrase as King David of Israel had instructed. When David brought the ark of the covenant into Jerusalem (1Ch 16:4-6), the Levites were to "give thanks and praise" while the priests blew the trumpets and Asaph "sounded the cymbals." Here the descendants of Asaph used the cymbals and the current priests blew their trumpets.

3:11 The Levites' antiphonal refrain, For He is good; His faithful love to Israel endures forever, is found in slightly varying forms in the Psalms (Ps 100:4-5; 106:1; 107:1, 118:1; 136:1). The shout (Hb teru'ah) was commonly used in battle but also for other significant events, such as the shout of the people when the ark of the covenant was brought into Jerusalem by King David (1Ch 15:28).

3:12-13 The episode described here is not the same event as that described in Hg 2:1-5 which occurred almost 20 years later when the building of the temple finally resumed. Here the author prepares the way for chapter 4 with the opposition of enemies. Not only did the Lord's people hear the sound but so did their adversaries, who tried to thwart their plans.

4:1-2 The author's description of those who offered to help with the construction as enemies shows that their offer was not what it seemed. Their identity is clarified in that they had been brought . . . here by King Esar-haddon of Assyria. Second Kings 17 describes the policy of the Assyrian kings who deported many of the people in the northern kingdom of Israel and replaced them with people from Babylon and beyond. These events (2Kg 17) occurred half a century before Esar-haddon, and no report is given of deportations or resettlements during his reign (681-669 B.C.). But as the present verse indicates, he carried on the practice of resettlement.

The claim of these enemies that they also worshiped your God was probably true. The problem was that they worshiped the God of Israel along with the false gods of their homeland (2Kg 17:3-22). If Zerubbabel allowed these people to help in the construction, it would be impossible to prevent them from worshiping there as well. Zerubbabel and the other returnees knew well the terrible price their nation had paid for their syncretistic practices and could never allow such a practice again.

4:3 In refusing their help, Zerubbabel did not cite their religious syncretism as the issue but focused on the legal decree of Cyrus that they were to build the temple (1:2-3). You may have no part with us is a variation on a Hebrew idiom that means "we have no common interests."

4:4-5 These verses highlight one aspect of the opposition from the people who were already in the land (lit "the peoples of the land," see note at 3:3): they . . . bribed officials to act against them (lit "they hired counselors against them"). In the vast Persian Empire, bribery of government officials was commonplace.

4:6-23 This unusual passage has confused and challenged interpreters. It is bracketed by statements (vv. 4-5,24) describing the cessation of building until the time of Darius. Chapter 5 continues with the renewed work in building the temple during the time of Darius. Yet in 4:6-23 the events described take place during the reigns of Ahasuerus (Xerxes) and Artaxerxes, successive kings in Darius's dynasty. Some critical scholars have charged that the author of Ezra-Nehemiah was chronologically confused. Such an assertion is unwarranted and unnecessary when one realizes that the author is not writing a chronological but a thematic account. Authors in the ancient world commonly ordered their material thematically rather than chronologically.

4:6 While earlier scholars identified Ahasuerus with various individuals, nearly all today identify him as Xerxes, the son of Darius. Ahasuerus (Xerxes) is mentioned nowhere else in the OT except for the book of Esther where he plays a central role.

4:7 Another letter was written to thwart the plans of the returned exiles, this time to Artaxerxes who took the throne following the death of his father Xerxes. His reign lasted over 40 years (465-425 B.C.). The ministry of Ezra and Nehemiah occurred during his reign, as well as the last writing prophet, Malachi. The Persian name Mithredath suggests he may have been a Persian official. The Hebrew name Tabeel ("God is good") finds its equivalent in the Aramaic name

Tobiah, but it is unlikely the Tabeel mentioned in this verse is Tobiah, the Ammonite official who opposed Nehemiah (Neh 2:10,19).

4:8-6:18 With this verse begins the first of two sections written not in Hebrew but in Aramaic (4:8-6:18; 7:12-26). Aramaic, like Hebrew, is a Semitic language. It originated in Syria in the second millennium B.C. The Aramaic sections in the OT (here and in Dn 2:4-7:28) are written in "Official Aramaic" (or "Royal Aramaic"), a standardized language of government and diplomacy used throughout the Persian Empire. By the time of Jesus, Aramaic was the "mother tongue" of the Jewish people in Palestine. The Gospel of Mark records several quotes in Aramaic by Jesus. The first occurred as Jesus brought Jairus's daughter back to life (Mk 5:41) with the command Talitha koum ("Little girl, I say to you, get up"). Jesus later opened the ears of a deaf man (Mk 7:34) with the command Ephphatha ("Be opened"). Several Aramaic words and phrases are preserved in Paul's writings, such as "Abba" (Rm 8:15) and "Marana tha" (1Co 16:22).

4:8 The title chief deputy is literally "master of orders" (Aram be'el-te'em), a high-ranking official. Some scholars translate his title as "chancellor" or "high commissioner."

A pottery figure of a foreigner who came to Judea while the Jews were in captivity in Babylon. A Mediterranean background is suggested by the Aramaic writing on the base of the figure.

4:9-10 The difficult Aramaic in verse 9b prohibits certainty in translation. After the mention of judges and magistrates, it is not clear if the next two terms refer to other officials or other locations. Erech, Babylon, and Susa are the homelands from which their forefathers had been deported by Ashurbanipal (a rendering borrowed from extra-biblical sources; the OT text calls him Osnappar), who followed Esar-haddon (see note at vv. 1-2) as king of Assyria (668-627 B.C.).

4:11 The authors of the letter specified their residences as the region west of the Euphrates River (lit "beyond [the] River"), which became the standard administrative and political designation in the Persian Empire for the vast area from the Euphrates River to the Mediterranean Sea. This region is also referred to as the "Trans-Euphrates."

4:12 This is the first occurrence of the word Jews in Ezra-Nehemiah. "Jew" (Aram yehuday; Hb yehudi) was derived from the word "Judah" (Hb yehudah). The Hebrew word yehudi appears in 2Kg 16:6 where it is translated "Judahites," referring to those who lived in the kingdom of Judah. During the postexilic era the term became the standard designation of the entire religious community of Israel, whether located in the land of Israel or elsewhere.

4:13 Xerxes' battles with the Greeks were a financial drain on the empire. Later, Artaxerxes' suppression of the revolt in Egypt was an additional financial burden. Rehum knew that Artaxerxes could not afford the loss of tribute, duty, or land tax.

4:14-17 We have taken an oath of loyalty to the king translates an obscure Aramaic phrase (lit "We have salted the salt of the king"). On the suspicion that a scribal error has altered the original sentence, some scholars note that a minor change of the Aramaic verb would yield a more understandable rendering: "We have eaten the salt of the king." In the OT law, there are several references to the "salt of the covenant" (Lv 2:13; Nm 18:19), suggesting that salt, a valuable commodity in the ancient world, was used in the ritual of making a covenant. In a letter (Ezr 4:11-16) marked by exaggeration aimed at inciting suppression of the Jews, the concluding warning (v. 16) reached its crescendo: failure to stop the Jews from rebuilding would cause Artaxerxes to lose "Beyond the River"—the region west of the Euphrates River.

4:20 Powerful kings is likely a reference to foreign kings, such as Assyrian and Babylonian kings who once controlled the entire Jewish region and collected tribute. However, the context gives no indication of a change in subject. This most naturally suggests that Israelite kings were these "powerful kings." If this is correct, it is possibly another aspect of exaggerating the threat posed by the Jews and Jerusalem.

4:23 Literally this text reads, "they made them cease by force and might." This must have been a painful and humiliating experience for the Jewish people.

4:24 The verse begins with an Aramaic preposition, be'dayin, that is usually translated "then," which suggests that verse 24 temporally follows verse 23. But as pointed out above, verses 6-23 form a parenthesis in which letters written to the Persian kings illustrate opposition to the Jews. Thus verse 5 and verse 24 serve as parallel bookends that bracket the lengthy parenthesis of verses 6-23.

5:1-6 : 22 After the thematic presentation of local opposition in chapter 4, the author returns to the situation in Darius's day when construction was resumed and completed (chaps. 5-6). The rebuilt temple and the fully restored sacrificial system not only demonstrated their continuity with the people of God before the exile but also served as a visible sign of God's restoration of what had been lost.

5:1 The impetus for a renewed attempt at construction began when Haggai and Zechariah brought their prophetic oracles to the Jews. In his first oracle, God asked the Jewish community, "Is it a time for you yourselves to live in your paneled houses, while this house lies in ruins?" (Hg 1:4). That same year

Zechariah son of Iddo encouraged the people to respond to God's promise of future glory for Jerusalem. In this present verse Zechariah is said to be the "son of Iddo" while in Zch 1:1 he is the "son of Berechiah, son of Iddo." This is no contradiction. The term "son" (Aram bar) and its Hebrew equivalent (ben) can refer to a descendant such as "grandson." Thus Zch 1:1 and Ezr 5:1 are both correct.

5:2 Haggai and Zechariah also pointed to Zerubbabel and Jeshua the priest as those who led the people (2:2; 3:2,8; 4:3) in the renewed construction. Helping them did not imply manual labor but encouragement and moral support for those doing the work.

5:3-5 Tattenai is called governor (Aram pechah) of "Beyond the River," the Trans-Euphrates region, even though he probably served as "sub-governor" under Ushtanu, a new governor appointed by Darius in 520 B.C., the year when construction on the temple resumed. Zerubbabel is also called "governor" (Hb pechah; Hg 1:14; 2:2,21), although he answered to Tattenai and was responsible solely for the region of Yehud (Judah).

Tattenai's question who gave you the order to rebuild this temple may have been a genuine concern for the legal authorization of the construction. The word structure translates an Aramaic term ('usharna) that could refer to wood used in the furnishings or, more probably, to the wood used in the construction of the walls (v. 8) and the roof. While Tattenai wanted to confirm the legality of the construction, he did not forbid it while waiting for written instructions.

5:5 The phrase God was watching is literally "the eye of their God was on" the elders. The idiom "the eye(s) of the LORD " occurs elsewhere in the OT (Jb 36:7; Ps 33:18; 34:15). In Ezra's Memoir (see "Structure" in the Introduction) a common idiom for God's providential care is "the hand of the Lord was with us" (Ezr 7:6,9; 8:18). This verse contains the first mention of the Jewish elders in the postexilic era. In the Persian period, real power was in the hands of the Persian-appointed authorities, while the elders more often were called together to witness important events and judicial decisions.

5:7 All greetings means literally "all peace."

5:8 Previously some scholars dismissed as implausible the use of the description house of the great God by a Persian official. However, the same term has been found in inscriptions at Persepolis, the great city of Darius and Xerxes.

5:11 While the title "God of heaven" is used 12 times in Ezra-Nehemiah, this is the only use of the title God of heaven and earth in the Bible. The apostle Paul used a similar description in Athens, referring to God as "Lord of heaven and earth" (Ac 17:24). Solomon's name is not used here, only an oblique reference to a great king of Israel.

5:12 The phrase our fathers angered the God of heaven makes it clear that the cause of their nation's destruction and exile was their forefathers' failure to keep the covenant (2Ch 36:15-21; Neh 1:5-11; 9:5-37; Jr 4-6).

5:13 Although Cyrus was king of Persia, he also referred to himself as "King of Babylon" after he conquered Babylon in 539 B.C. Here the central claim of the Jewish leaders is put forth: Cyrus issued a decree to rebuild the house of God. This decree, if found, would verify their right to rebuild the temple.

5:15 The Neo-Babylonian kings who preceded Darius also showed great concern that fallen temples should be restored exactly on their original locations, strengthening the sense of continuity and legitimacy of the rebuilt temples.

5:16 The Jewish elders' claim that Sheshbazzar . . . laid the foundation of God's house has been the subject of debate (see note at 3:8). The claim that it had been under construction from that time until now is also difficult since both Haggai and Zechariah, as well as Ezra (4:5,23), say that construction had ceased for nearly 20 years. The claim about ceaseless building appears to be a prevarication on the part of the Jewish elders, borne out of fear that any mention of a long halt of construction would weaken their case that their rebuilding efforts were sanctioned.

5:17 Tattenai suggested that a search be undertaken of the royal archives (lit "treasure house") in Babylon for Cyrus's decree allowing the Jewish exiles to return to their homeland. The record of the decree in fact was found in the Persian summer capital of Ecbatana (7:2). It appears that neither Sheshbazzar nor Zerubbabel had an official copy, since none was shown to their early opponents (4:1-5) or to Tattenai.

6:1-5 The first version of the Edict of Cyrus (1:2-4) was written in Hebrew and reflected a strong Jewish perspective. The second version given here, in Aramaic, explicitly decreed that funding for the temple would be paid from the royal treasury. Some scholars have dismissed this version as a literary fiction because they assume a Persian king would have no interest in paying to rebuild a temple in Jerusalem. Yet archaeological evidence shows that Persian kings, including Darius, were involved in state-supported reconstruction of temples outside Persia. Presumably, subjects are easier to govern when they are allowed to worship as they please.

6:3 The phrase let its original foundations be retained translates a difficult and uncertain Aramaic phrase. Other translations assume the text is corrupted and change the term "foundations" (Aram 'ushohe) to "fire-offerings" (Aram 'eshohe), thus reading "and where the fire-offerings are brought."

The dimensions of the temple listed here are problematic. Only its width and height are mentioned, suggesting a cube that would be far larger than Solomon's glorious temple, which was “90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high” (1Kg 6:2). The text in Ezr 6:3 might reflect an ancient scribal error. It is most likely that the second temple would either be identical in size to Solomon’s or smaller due to economic necessity.

6:4 The construction technique of three layers of cut stones and one of timber was based on the construction of Solomon’s temple (1Kg 6:36). This translation reflects a slight change of the Aramaic text from “new (Aram chadath) timber” to “one (Aram chad) of timber.” Unseasoned wood would not be used for such important construction.

6:6-7 Just as God was watching over His people (5:5) while they waited for Darius’s decision, so His care for them was seen in Darius’s decision that prohibited Tattenai and the other Persian officials from hindering the construction of the temple.

6:9-10 Darius’s decree not only provided funds for reconstruction but for the daily sacrificial offerings as well. His motivation was not wholly altruistic, but that the people would pray for . . . the king and his sons. While Darius was a devotee of Ahuramazda, he was willing to take spiritual support from any source.

6:11 The unusual terms in this Aramaic phrase (raised up; he will be impaled on it) have led some to translate it as “he will be set upon it (the beam) and struck,” that is, flogged. However, “impaled” is probably correct. The Greek historian Herodotus claimed that Darius impaled 3,000 rebellious Babylonians when he recaptured the city.

6:13-15 Tattenai and his Persian colleagues knew how dangerous it was to disobey the king of Persia. The construction of the temple was done according to the decrees of Cyrus, Darius, and King Artaxerxes of Persia. The mention of Artaxerxes is odd since he became king a half-century after the temple was completed. Chapters 1-6 were probably the last chapters of Ezra-Nehemiah to be written. The author of this section, well aware both of Artaxerxes’ opposition (4:6-22) and his support (7:11-26), included Artaxerxes in the list of those whose decrees involved the construction of the temple, even though his support came long after the events described in 6:13-15. Construction was most likely completed on March 12, 515 B.C.

6:16 In the OT law, the people were commanded to worship and celebrate their festivals with joy (Dt 12:7,12,18; 16:11,14). Just as the dedication of the first temple filled the people with joy (1Kg 8:66), and as the rededication of the temple and the restoration of Passover in Hezekiah’s day brought joy (2Ch 30:21), so now with the second temple the people responded with great joy.

6:19-20 The author had used Aramaic from 4:8-6:18 since he was working with official Persian correspondence written in Aramaic. With that correspondence completed, he returned to Hebrew. The new temple allowed the full implementation of the sacrificial system that existed before the disaster of 586 B.C. when the first temple was destroyed. This celebration of Passover (Hb pesach)—probably April 21, 515 B.C.—would have been a momentous occasion for God's people to remember their forefathers' deliverance from Egypt as well as their own deliverance from exile.

6:21 The OT law allowed even foreigners to celebrate Passover (Ex 12:48-49) as long as they were circumcised. Those who had separated themselves at least included proselytes. Likely it also included Israelites who had never been exiled but had remained in the land and continued to worship the God of Israel.

6:22 The Festival of Unleavened Bread began the day after Passover (Ex 12:14-20). The reference to King Darius of Persia as the Assyrian king seems unusual since the Assyrian Empire had collapsed more than a century earlier, but just as the Babylonians saw themselves as the successors of the Assyrians, so the Persian kings regarded themselves as the successors of the Assyrians and the Babylonians.

7:1-10:44 The second major part of Ezra consists primarily of the Ezra Memoir (see "Structure" in the Introduction) which tells of the ministry of Ezra the scribe in bringing spiritual renewal to the Jewish people. The final verses of chapter 6 take place in April 515 B.C. while the opening verses of chapter 7 begin with Ezra's journey to Jerusalem in 458 B.C., a gap of over 50 years. This section is written in Hebrew, except for the copy of Artaxerxes' letter (7:12-26) in Aramaic.

7:1 Ezra's name is a short form of the common Hebrew name Azariah, meaning "Yahweh has helped," and is often followed by various titles, such as "Ezra the priest" (v. 12; 10:10,16; Neh 8:2), "Ezra the scribe" (Neh 8:4,13, 12:36), "Ezra the priest and scribe" (Ezr 7:11; Neh 8:1,4,9), and "Ezra the priest and expert in the law" (Ezr 7:21). The genealogy given for Ezra is representative and not complete, as a comparison with 1Ch 6:3-15 demonstrates.

7:6 Ezra was a scribe (Hb sopher), which in this context means more than reading, writing, and keeping records; it identifies a Torah expert who could read and interpret the law. Some scholars understand the term here and in verse 11 as designating Ezra as a Persian government official. However, it probably more accurately refers to his role in the Jewish community as a teacher and interpreter of the law.

7:7 Those returning to the land with Ezra are listed in the same order as in the return under Zerubbabel and Jeshua almost 80 years before (2:2-53).

7:8-9 Ezra's journey toward Jerusalem probably began on April 8, 458 B.C., but 8:15-31 tells of an immediate delay when it was discovered that no Levites were present. Taking the shortest route, this would be a journey of about 500 miles. However, such a route across the desert would be unlikely in summer, particularly during a time of political upheaval that made travel even more dangerous. The more common route covered about 900 miles. After a fourteen-week pilgrimage, they probably arrived in Jerusalem on August 4, 458 B.C.

7:10 Ezra's greatness is seen is his resolve to study . . . obey, and teach God's law to God's people.

7:11-28 Ezra came to Jerusalem bearing a letter from King Artaxerxes authorizing him and everyone who wanted to come with him to go to Jerusalem (v. 13). Some scholars in the past have dismissed this letter (vv. 12-26) as literary fiction. However, most now recognize its essential integrity. The letter was written in Aramaic (4:8) that was common to its era and in a format common throughout the Persian period. It is possible that Ezra himself composed the letter and submitted it to Artaxerxes for royal approval.

7:11 This verse, written in Hebrew, provides an introduction to Artaxerxes' letter that was written in Aramaic (vv. 12-26).

7:12 Artaxerxes used the common royal Persian title king of kings, used in the NT in reference to God (1Tm 6:15; Rv 19:16). The word law here is not the common Hebrew word torah but the word dath, a Persian loanword (data) found in both postexilic biblical Hebrew and Aramaic.

7:14 The Greek historian Herodotus described the practice of a Persian king having seven trusted advisers. Esther 1:13-14 names Xerxes' seven trusted counselors and states that they had personal access to the king.

7:15-17 Funds for Ezra's journey to Jerusalem and the purchase of sacrificial animals there came from the royal treasury and from gifts gathered from the Jewish exiles in Babylon.

7:19 It is not clear what the royal articles (Aram ma'n) were. In 5:14 the same term is used to describe the gold and silver articles looted from the temple by Nebuchadnezzar in 586 B.C. and returned by King Cyrus (1:7).

7:21-22 The provisions that Ezra was entitled to were used daily in the sacrifices at the temple. The quantities listed here would be sufficient for approximately two years. The 7,500 pounds (lit "100 talents") of silver seems out of proportion to the other items. The entire annual tax for the "Beyond the River" region was 350 talents. A textual corruption, common when scribes were copying numbers, may explain the seemingly implausible amount of silver. A gift of even 10 talents of silver (750 pounds) would have been generous.

7:23 King Darius had asked the Jewish community to pray for the king and his sons (6:10). Now Artaxerxes commanded that the regular sacrifices and worship be properly maintained.

7:24 Persian texts and Greek writings about Persian practice confirm that exemption from taxes was granted to temples and the sacred personnel who served there.

7:25 The charge given to Ezra here is not clear. He was to appoint magistrates and judges, but it is not certain how their roles related to those of the regular Persian judges and officials. Probably these judges and magistrates dealt only with cases specific to the OT law.

7:26 Those who refused to keep the law were subject to typical Persian punishments. Imprisonment was not stipulated in OT law, but it did occur in preexilic Israel, for example, in the case of Jeremiah the prophet (Jr 37-38).

7:27-28 With the completion of the official letter written in Aramaic (vv. 12-26), the author reverts to Hebrew. Here in verse 27 begins the first words of Ezra in the Ezra Memoir (see "Structure" in the Introduction).

8:1-14 Almost 80 years before Ezra came to Jerusalem, Zerubbabel and Jeshua led the first return of the Babylonian exiles to the land of their forefathers (chap. 2). The list of returnees at that time (2:2-61) numbered over 40,000 men (2:64) while the list here involves only about 1,500 men. In chapter 2 the list records the laity, the priests, and then the Levites. In chapter 8 the priests are mentioned first (v. 2a) followed by those of royal lineage (vv. 2b-3a) and then the listing of the laity (vv. 3b-14).

8:2 a Gershom and Daniel represented the two branches of the Aaronic priesthood. Gershom traced his ancestry through Phinehas (Ex 6:25), the son of Eleazar, son of Aaron. Ezra himself was from this priestly lineage.

8:2b-3 Hattush's royal lineage from King David would certainly have been important to the postexilic community in Jerusalem. First Chronicles 3:19-22 gives his genealogy as: Zerubbabel/Hananiah/Shecaniah/Shemaiah/Hattush.

8:14 Mentioning two names (Uthai and Zaccur) for a family leader is unusual. The Hebrew text describes 70 men literally "with him" (sg), suggesting some minor textual confusion. Probably the original text read "Uthai son of Zaccur," a reading supported by the apocryphal 1 Esdras 8:40.

8:15 The term river (Hb nahar) can mean either "river" or "canal." It appears there were not enough priests to carry the gold and silver donated to the temple (vv. 24-30) and that the Levites were needed for this task. Ezra also wanted his group of returnees to be representative of the nation as a whole, where each major group took part in the return to the land of their ancestors.

8:16 The list of leaders and teachers is unusual in that it mentions three individuals named Elnathan who are not differentiated by a genealogical description, such as "son of X." The term "teacher" (Hb mevinim) can be understood as a title (“teacher,” “instructor”) or as a descriptor (“who were wise,” “men of understanding”).

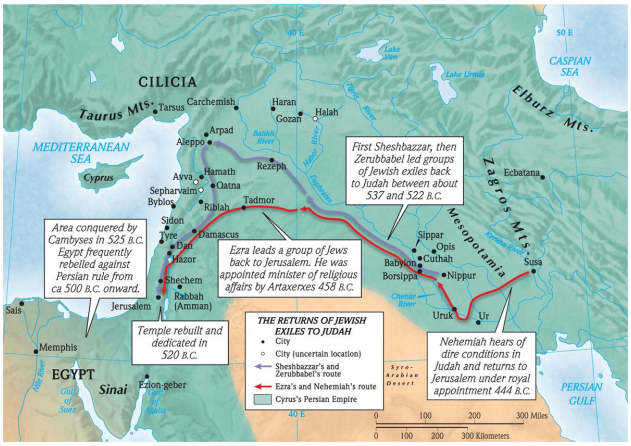
8:17 The distinguished entourage was sent to ask Iddo for Levites to join the exiles in their return to the land. Their request was significant, asking people to leave their homes and family on short notice for a difficult 900-mile journey.



8:21 The term children is not the normal Hebrew term but one (Hb taph) that indicates those unable to walk on the journey, such as the elderly, the infirm, and young children.

8:24-25 Ezra appointed 12 priests and 12 Levites to bring their treasure to Jerusalem, both the gifts from those joining Ezra on the journey and those given by King Artaxerxes and his officials.

8:28-29 Ezra charged the 12 priests and 12 Levites entrusted with the treasure to recognize their status before God and the community. Both they and the offerings had been made holy, or set apart to God, dedicated to Yahweh and His worship.

8:31 The actual departure for Jerusalem took place on the twelfth day of the first month, not the first day of the first month (probably April 8, 538 B.C.) as originally planned because of the need to find Levites to join the returnees (vv. 15-20).

8:33-34 Meremoth is probably the same person mentioned in Neh 3:4 where he is referred to as “Meremoth son of Uriah, son of Hakkoz” (also Neh 3:21). In verse 34 Ezra notes that everything was verified by number and weight. Because Ezra came to Jerusalem bearing huge financial gifts from the king, he would need to provide verification to Artaxerxes that these gifts arrived at the temple.

8:35-36 The first-person narrative by Ezra is interrupted by these two verses in which the author or editor describes the response of the returnees to God’s goodness. The emphasis on the number 12 and its multiples probably reflects the theological emphasis of all Israel being represented in the return to the land.

9:1-3 The phrase after these things had been done links this section with the worship of Ezra and the people (8:35) and the distribution of Artaxerxes' edicts to the local Persian authorities (8:36). However, many scholars suggest that between the end of chapter 8 and the beginning of chapter 9 there originally stood the account of Ezra's reading of the law to the people now found in Nehemiah 8 (or possibly Neh 8-9). There is no reason why Ezra could not have read the law on multiple occasions.

9:1 Ezra had not long returned from delivering the king's edicts (8:36) when some leaders presented him with a genuine threat to the postexilic Jewish community—intermarriage between Jews and pagans. Probably the early groups returning from Babylon had included more men than women, making it more difficult to find a wife. Moreover, marrying a foreign wife was not always forbidden. Joseph and Moses each had a foreign wife. But intermarriage with local Canaanite groups was forbidden "so that they won't teach you to do all the detestable things they do for their gods" (Dt 20:18). King Solomon's example certainly was remembered, as his numerous foreign wives "seduced him to follow other gods" (1Kg 11:4). The extent of the problem is shown in that all three major groups of the community were involved—the laity (the people of Israel) as well as priests and Levities.

9:2 The situation was made even worse because the leaders and officials had taken the lead in this unfaithfulness. The issue was not racial but religious. God had chosen Israel to be His "own possession" and His "holy nation" (Ex 19:5-6). His plan to bring blessing and life to all the peoples of the earth meant that His chosen people should maintain their identity. From them would come God's servant who would be "a light to the nations" (Is 42:6) and would bear the "iniquity of us all" (Is 53:6).

9:3 Ezra identified personally with the sins of his people, responding with actions associated with repentance and mourning.

9:4-5 Those who gathered around Ezra trembled at the words of the God of Israel—a phrase that occurs in three other OT passages (10:3; Is 66:2,5). It identified them as people fully committed to keeping God's law. Ezra got up from his humiliation (Hb ta'anet), a term that occurs only here in the Hebrew Bible but does occur in postbiblical Hebrew and in Aramaic. It probably implies a penitential act in this context.

9:6-15 Ezra's penitential prayer of confession, written in late biblical Hebrew, is similar to others from the postexilic era in content, style, and theological perspective (Neh 1:5-11; 9:6-38; Dn 9:4-19). It differs from them in that there is no petition or request to God. Its focus is confession.

9:6-7 Ezra began his prayer with his own shame and embarrassment but quickly shifted to a corporate confession of the nation's sins. In referring to fathers, he may have been looking back several generations to those who sinned before the destruction of the temple and the exile (5:12), but it is more likely that he used the term to go all the way back to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (Dt 6:10; 8:1; 2Ch 34:21). Thus Israel's entire history was a story of failure and guilt.

9:8-9 The term stake (Hb yathed) literally is "peg," a metaphor for the idea of permanence (Is 33:20) and stability (Is 22:23-25). That the postexilic community existed and had a temple was a sign of God's undeserved mercy. The reference to slavery may be misconstrued when read through the lens of American history. The postexilic people did not experience racially based servitude. Yet without question, they understood that they were not a free people. Except for a brief period during the time of the Maccabees (163-60 B.C.), they would remain under the control of foreign powers throughout the rest of biblical history.

9:10-12 Ezra's mention of the prophets reflects usage common in later OT texts that certainly includes Moses as well as others who spoke for God. The commands that the people had abandoned are spelled out in verses 11-12. The focus is the necessity of avoiding defilement of themselves and their nation through association with pagan people.

9:13-15 Ezra warned God's people that to intermarry with pagans once again could lead God to destroy them all. God had been merciful before when they sinned in this way because they survived as a remnant today, but they should not presume upon His grace. They needed to repent, specifically in the necessary but heart-breaking task of sending away their foreign wives and children (chap. 10).

10:1 The term confessed is from a Hebrew verb (yadah) that usually means "to praise, to give thanks." But in this verbal root (Hb hithpael), it has the connotation of "confessing" (Lv 5:5), as God is praised when His people acknowledge their sin and guilt before Him.

10:2-4 Shecaniah's radical solution of sending away the foreign wives and their children was not an expression of racial prejudice but an act to insure the survival of God's covenant people (9:14). The translation here follows most modern translations in reading "my lord" (Hb 'adoni) rather than the Masoretic Text "Lord" (Hb 'adonay). The context suggests that Shecaniah was referring to Ezra and not to God.

10:7-8 J. Blenkinsopp suggests the size of the Persian province of Yehud (Judah) was "no more than about thirty-five miles north to south and twenty-five miles east to west." Thus the three-day notice was sufficient time to notify the entire populace and for them to travel to Jerusalem. The term "forfeit" (Hb charam) is the word used in the OT to put something under the "ban," as were cities during the time of Joshua that were totally destroyed. It can also refer to things that were totally consecrated to divine use, as in the case of Achan (Jos 6-7), who stole items under the ban.

10:9 The threats for noncompliance with the proclamation had their desired effect. All the men of Judah and Benjamin met on the twentieth day of the ninth month—December 458 B.C.

10:12-15 It is significant that the people asked that individual cases of foreign marriage be handled by leaders (Hb sar) and not by priests who would seem to be the most likely ones to deal with these decisions. Since many priests were some of the worst offenders (vv. 18-22; 9:1), this disqualified them in the eyes of the people, who preferred to have respected family leaders (10:16) deal with this issue.

10:16-17 The family leaders selected by Ezra probably met from December 29, 458 to March 27, 457 B.C.

10:18-44 The list of offenders, which concludes the book of Ezra, reflects a "top down" progression that begins with the high priest's own family (vv. 18-19). If the population of Judah at that time was over 30,000 people and only 113 people were identified as involved in the sin of intermarriage, this would be only one-third of one percent of the population. A number of suggestions have been offered for the surprising brevity of the list, among them: (1) only a partial list has been preserved; (2) only those found guilty of the charge of intermarriage are listed; and (3) only those who were found guilty and followed through by putting away their foreign wives and children are listed.

While there is no certainty on the exact nature of the list, it is clear that Ezra's ministry did not end the problem of intermarriage. Over 20 years later Nehemiah confronted it once again (Neh 13:23-29). The list in Ezra 10, like other OT lists, has variant names and variant spellings of some names.

10:18-19 The first four offenders were of the priestly family of Jedaiah (2:36). These priests vowed to put away their foreign wives and offered a ram from the flock for their guilt. While this action is recorded only here in reference to the priests, it is probable that this was the pattern for all who were found guilty.

10:20-22 Offenders from the three other priestly families (Immer, Pashhur, and Harim) represented in the return (2:37-39) are listed.

10:34 The second mention (v. 29) of the family name Bani is unusual since family names were usually unique and served as identifiers for their descendants. Some scholars suggest that the text originally read "Bigvai," a person mentioned in the return (2:14) and later in 8:14. The name Uel does not occur anywhere else in the OT. A variant of Uel is Joel .

10:40 The name Machnadebai is probably not a Hebrew name and is found nowhere else in the OT. Its position in the verse may suggest that it originally designated a family group, possibly “Zaccai’s descendants” (2:9).

10:44 The abrupt ending of the book of Ezra, with no summations or conclusions, is attributable to the fact that Ezra was originally joined with Nehemiah. Thus this was not originally a closing to a book, but merely a closing to the section on Ezra’s early ministry. The focus then shifted to Nehemiah, who, like Ezra, faithfully served God.

Word Studies tsom Hebrew Pronunciation [TSOAM]

HCSB Translation fast Uses in Ezra 1
Uses in the OT 26
Focus Passage Ezra 8:21

The noun tsom means fast, as does the verb tsum (21x; Ezr 8:23). Fasting was associated with grieving and often included wearing sackcloth and confessing sins (Neh 9:1-2). David fasted for defeated Israel (1Sm 31:13) partly because defeat signaled prior national sin (Dt 28:25). Fasting marked recognition of sin and attended the forsaking of idols (1Sm 7:2-6). People also fasted to plead with God for some request (Est 4:16), humbling themselves to pursue His mercy (1Kg 21:27-29), protection (Ezr 8:21), or healing (Ps 35:13). Yet self-humbling people anticipated divine responsiveness to petition, but fasting was needed to further His purposes (Is 58:4-6), being done for Him (Zch 7:5). God’s refusal to respond signaled judgment (Jr 14:12). God (Jl 2:12) and kings (2Ch 20:3) called for fast days, and recurring official fast days followed the exile (Zch 8:19).

Nehemiah

1 The words of Nehemiah [a] son of Hacaliah:

News from Jerusalem

During the month of Chislev [b, c] in the twentieth year, [d, e] when I was in the fortress city of Susa, [f] 2 Hanani, [g] one of my brothers, arrived with men from Judah, and I questioned them about Jerusalem and the Jewish remnant [h] that had survived the exile. [i] 3 They said to me, “The remnant in the province, [j] who survived the exile, are in great trouble and disgrace. Jerusalem’s wall has been broken down, and its gates have been burned down.” [k]

Nehemiah’s Prayer

4 When I heard these words, I sat down and wept. I mourned for a number of days, fasting and praying [l] before the God of heaven. [m] 5 I said, [n]

> •Yahweh , the God of heaven, the great and awe-inspiring God who keeps His gracious covenant with those who love Him [o] and keep His commands, [p] 6 let Your eyes be open and Your ears be attentive [q] to hear Your servant’s prayer that I now pray to You day and night [r] for Your servants, the Israelites. I confess the sins [A] we have committed against You. Both I and my father’s house have sinned. [s] 7 We have acted corruptly toward You and have not kept the commands, statutes, and ordinances You gave Your servant Moses. [t] 8 Please remember what You commanded Your servant Moses: “If you are unfaithful, I will scatter you among the peoples. [u] 9 But if you return to Me and carefully observe My commands, even though your exiles were banished to the ends of the earth, [B] I will gather them from there and bring them to the place where I chose to have My name dwell.” [v] 10 They are Your servants and Your people. You redeemed them by Your great power and strong hand. [w] 11 Please, Lord, let Your ear be attentive [x] to the prayer of Your servant and to that of Your servants who delight to revere Your name. Give Your servant success today, [y] and have compassion on him in the presence of this man. [z, a]

At the time, I was the king’s cupbearer. [b]

Nehemiah Sent to Jerusalem

2 During the month of Nisan [a] in the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes, [b] when wine was set before him, I took the wine and gave it to the king. I had never been sad in his presence, [2] so the king said to me, "Why are you [A] sad, when you aren't sick? This is nothing but depression." [B, c]

I was overwhelmed with fear [3] and replied to the king, "May the king live forever! Why should I [C] not be sad when the city where my ancestors are buried lies in ruins and its gates have been destroyed by fire? " [d]

[4] Then the king asked me, "What is your request? "

So I prayed to the God of heaven [e] [5] and answered the king, "If it pleases the king, and if your servant has found favor with you, send me to Judah and to the city where my ancestors are buried, [D, f] so that I may rebuild it." [g]

[6] The king, with the queen seated beside him, asked me, "How long will your journey take, and when will you return? " So I gave him a definite time, [h] and it pleased the king to send me.

[7] I also said to the king: "If it pleases the king, let me have letters written to the governors of the region west of the Euphrates River, [i] so that they will grant me safe passage until I reach Judah. [j] [8] And let me have a letter written to Asaph, keeper of the king's forest, so that he will give me timber to rebuild the gates of the temple's fortress, [k] the city wall, and the home where I will live." [E, l] The king granted my requests, for I was graciously strengthened by my God. [F, m]

[9] I went to the governors of the region west of the Euphrates and gave them the king's letters. [n] The king had also sent officers of the infantry and cavalry with me. [10] When Sanballat the Horonite [o] and Tobiah the Ammonite official heard that someone had come to seek the well-being of the Israelites, they were greatly displeased. [p]

Preparing to Rebuild the Walls [11] After I arrived in Jerusalem and had been there three days, [q] [12] I got up at night and took a few men with me. I didn't tell anyone what my God had laid on my heart to do for Jerusalem. The only animal I took [G] was the one I was riding. [13] I went out at night through the Valley Gate toward the Serpent's [H] Well and the Dung Gate, [r] and I inspected the walls of Jerusalem that had been broken down and its gates that had been destroyed by fire. [s] [14] I went on to the Fountain Gate [t] and the King's Pool, [u] but farther down it became too narrow for my animal to go through. [15] So I went up at night by way of the valley and inspected the wall. Then heading back, I entered through the Valley Gate [v] and returned. [16] The officials did not know where I had gone or what I was doing, for I had not yet told the Jews, priests, nobles, officials, or the rest of those who would be doing the work. [17] So I said to them, "You see the trouble we are in. Jerusalem lies in ruins and its gates have been burned down. [w] Come, let's rebuild Jerusalem's wall, [x] so that we will no longer be a disgrace." [18] I told them how the gracious hand of my God had been on me, [y] and what the king had said to me.

They said, "Let's start rebuilding," and they were encouraged [I] to do this good work.

[19] When Sanballat the Horonite, Tobiah the Ammonite official, [z] and Geshem the Arab [a] heard about this, they mocked and despised us, and said, "What is this you're doing? Are you rebelling against the king? "

[20] I gave them this reply, "The God of heaven is the One who will grant us success. We, His servants, will start building, but you have no share, right, or historic claim in Jerusalem." [b]

Rebuilding the Walls

3 Eliashib the high priest [a] and his fellow priests began rebuilding the Sheep Gate. [b] They dedicated it and installed its doors. After building the wall to the Tower of the Hundred and the Tower of Hananel, [c] they dedicated it. 2 The men of Jericho [d] built next to Eliashib, [e] and next to them Zaccur son of Imri built.

Fish Gate

3 The sons of Hassenaah built the Fish Gate. [f] They built it with beams and installed its doors, bolts, and bars. [g] 4 Next to them Meremoth [h] son of Uriah, son of Hakkoz, made repairs. Beside them Meshullam [i] son of Berechiah, son of Meshezabel, made repairs. Next to them Zadok son of Baana made repairs.
5 Beside them the Tekoites [j] made repairs, but their nobles did not lift a finger to help [A] their supervisors.

Old Gate, Broad Wall, and Tower of the Ovens 6 Joiada son of Paseah and Meshullam son of Besodeiah repaired the Old [B] Gate. [k] They built it with beams and installed its doors, bolts, and bars. 7 Next to them the repairs were done by Melatiah the Gibeonite, Jadon the Meronothite, and the men of Gibeon [l] and Mizpah, who were under the authority [C, m] of the governor [n] of the region west of the Euphrates River. [o] 8 After him Uzziel son of Harhaiah, the goldsmith, [p] made repairs, and next to him Hananiah son of the perfumer made repairs. They restored Jerusalem as far as the Broad Wall. [q]

9 Next to them Rephaiah son of Hur, ruler over half the district of Jerusalem, made repairs. 10 After them Jedaiah son of Harumaph made repairs across from his house. [r] Next to him Hattush the son of Hashabneiah made repairs.
11 Malchijah son of Harim and Hasshub son of Pahath-moab made repairs to another section, as well as to the Tower of the Ovens. [s] 12 Beside him Shallum son of Hallohesh, ruler over half the district of Jerusalem, made repairs — he and his daughters.

Valley Gate, Dung Gate, and Fountain Gate 13 Hanun and the inhabitants of Zanoah repaired the Valley Gate. They rebuilt it and installed its doors, bolts, and bars, and repaired 500 yards [D] of the wall to the Dung Gate. [t] 14 Malchijah son of Rechab, ruler over the district of Beth-haccherem, [u] repaired the Dung Gate. [v] He rebuilt it and installed its doors, bolts, and bars.

15 Shallun [w] son of Col-hozeh, ruler over the district of Mizpah, repaired the Fountain Gate. [x] He rebuilt it and roofed it. Then he installed its doors, bolts, and bars. He also made repairs to the wall of the Pool of Shelah [y] near the king's garden, [z] as far as the stairs that descend from the city of David. [a]

16 After him Nehemiah son of Azbuk, ruler over half the district of Beth-zur, [b] made repairs up to a point opposite the tombs of David, [c] as far as the artificial pool [d] and the House of the Warriors. [e] 17 Next to him the Levites [f] made repairs under Rehum son of Bani. Beside him Hashabiah, ruler over half the district of Keilah, [g] made repairs for his district. 18 After him their fellow Levites made repairs under Binnui [h] son of Henadad, ruler over half the district of Keilah. 19 Next to him Ezer son of Jeshua, ruler over Mizpah, made repairs to another section opposite the ascent to the armory at the Angle. [i]

The Angle, Water Gate, and Tower on the Ophel 20 After him Baruch son of Zabbai [j] diligently repaired another section, from the Angle to the door of the house of Eliashib the high priest. [k] 21 Beside him Meremoth [l] son of Uriah, son of Hakkoz, made repairs to another section, from the door of Eliashib's [m] house to the end of his house. 22 And next to him the priests from the surrounding area made repairs.

23 After them Benjamin and Hasshub made repairs opposite their house. Beside them Azariah son of Maaseiah, son of Ananiah, made repairs beside his house. 24 After him Binnui [n] son of Henadad made repairs to another section, from the house of Azariah to the Angle and the corner. 25 Palal son of Uzai made repairs opposite the Angle and tower that juts out from the upper palace [E] of the king, [o] by the courtyard of the guard. [p] Beside him Pedaiah son of Parosh, 26 and the temple servants [q] living on Ophel [r, s] made repairs opposite the Water Gate [t] toward the east and the tower that juts out. 27 Next to him the Tekoites [u] made repairs to another section from a point opposite the great tower that juts out, as far as the wall of Ophel. [v]

Horse Gate, Inspection Gate, and Sheep Gate 28 Each of the priests made repairs above the Horse Gate, [w] each opposite his own house. 29 After them Zadok son of Immer made repairs opposite his house. And beside him Shemaiah son of Shecaniah, guard of the East Gate, made repairs. 30 Next to him Hananiah son of Shelemiah and Hanun the sixth son of Zalaph made repairs to another section.

After them Meshullam son of Berechiah made repairs opposite his room. 31 Next to him Malchijah, one of the goldsmiths, [x] made repairs to the house of the temple servants [y] and the merchants, opposite the Inspection [F] Gate, and as far as the upper room of the corner. 32 The goldsmiths [z] and merchants made repairs between the upper room of the corner and the Sheep Gate. [a]

Chapter 4 [a]

Progress in Spite of Opposition [1] When Sanballat [b] heard that we were rebuilding the wall, [c] he became furious. He mocked the Jews [d] [2] before his colleagues and the powerful men [A] of Samaria, [e] and said, "What are these pathetic Jews doing? Can they restore it by themselves? Will they offer sacrifices? Will they ever finish it? Can they bring these burnt stones [f] back to life from the mounds of rubble?" [g] [3] Then Tobiah the Ammonite, [h] who was beside him, said, "Indeed, even if a fox [i] climbed up what they are building, he would break down their stone wall!"

[4] Listen, our God, for we are despised. Make their insults return on their own heads and let them be taken as plunder to a land of captivity. [5] Do not cover their •guilt or let their sin be erased from Your sight, because they have provoked [B]
the builders. [j]

[6] So we rebuilt the wall until the entire wall was joined together up to half its height, for the people had the will to keep working. [k]

[7] [l] When Sanballat, Tobiah, and the Arabs, [m] Ammonites, and Ashdodites heard that the repair to the walls of Jerusalem was progressing and that the gaps were being closed, [n] they became furious. [o] [8] They all plotted together to come and fight against Jerusalem and throw it into confusion. [9] So we prayed to our God and stationed a guard because of them day and night.

[10] In Judah, it was said: [C]

The strength of the laborer fails, since there is so much rubble.
We will never be able to rebuild the wall.

[11] And our enemies said, "They won't know or see anything until we're among them and can kill them and stop the work." [12] When the Jews who lived nearby arrived, they said to us time and again, [D] "Everywhere you turn, they attack [E] us." [13] So I stationed people behind the lowest sections of the wall, at the vulnerable areas. I stationed them by families with their swords, spears, and bows. [14] After I made an inspection, I stood up and said to the nobles, the officials, and the rest of the people, [p] "Don't be afraid of them. [q] Remember the great and awe-inspiring Lord, and fight for your countrymen, your sons and daughters, your wives and homes." [r]

Sword and Trowel

15 When our enemies heard that we knew their scheme and that God had frustrated it, every one of us returned to his own work on the wall. 16 From that day on, half of my men did the work while the other half held spears, shields, bows, and armor. [s] The officers supported all the people of Judah, 17 who were rebuilding the wall. The laborers who carried the loads worked with one hand and held a weapon with the other. 18 Each of the builders had his sword strapped around his waist while he was building, and the trumpeter was beside me.
19 Then I said to the nobles, the officials, and the rest of the people: [t] "The work is enormous and spread out, and we are separated far from one another along the wall. [u] 20 Wherever you hear the trumpet sound, rally to us there. Our God will fight for us! " [v] 21 So we continued the work, while half of the men were holding spears from daybreak until the stars came out. 22 At that time, I also said to the people, "Let everyone and his servant spend the night inside Jerusalem, so that they can stand guard by night and work by day." 23 And I, my brothers, my men, and the guards with me never took off our clothes. Each carried his weapon, even when washing. [F]

Social Injustice

5 There was a widespread outcry from the people and their wives against their Jewish countrymen. 2 Some were saying, “We, our sons, and our daughters are numerous. Let us get grain so that we can eat and live.” 3 Others were saying, “We are mortgaging our fields, vineyards, and homes to get grain during the famine.” [a] 4 Still others were saying, “We have borrowed money to pay the king’s tax [b] on our fields and vineyards. [c] 5 We and our children are just like our countrymen and their children, yet we are subjecting our sons and daughters to slavery. [d] Some of our daughters are already enslaved, [e] but we are powerless [A] because our fields and vineyards belong to others.”

6 I became extremely angry [f] when I heard their outcry and these complaints. 7
After seriously considering the matter, I accused the nobles and officials, saying to them, “Each of you is charging his countrymen interest.” [g] So I called a large assembly against them 8 and said, “We have done our best to buy back our Jewish countrymen who were sold to foreigners, but now you sell your own countrymen, and we have to buy them back.” [h] They remained silent and could not say a word. [i] 9 Then I said, “What you are doing isn’t right. Shouldn’t you walk in the •fear of our God [j] and not invite the reproach of our foreign enemies? [k] 10 Even I, as well as my brothers and my servants, have been lending them money and grain. Please, let us stop charging this interest. [B] 11 Return their fields, vineyards, olive groves, and houses to them immediately, along with the percentage [C] of the money, grain, new wine, and olive oil [l] that you have been assessing them.”

12 They responded: “We will return these things and require nothing more from them. [m] We will do as you say.”

So I summoned the priests and made everyone take an oath [n] to do this. [13] I also shook the folds of my robe and said, “May God likewise shake from his house and property everyone who doesn’t keep this promise. May he be shaken out [o] and have nothing! ”

The whole assembly said, “•Amen ,” and they praised the LORD. Then the people did as they had promised. [p]

Good and Bad Governors 14 Furthermore, from the day King Artaxerxes [q] appointed me to be their governor in the land of Judah — from the twentieth year until his thirty-second year, 12 years [r] — I and my associates never ate from the food allotted to the governor. 15 The governors [s] who preceded me had heavily burdened the people, taking food and wine from them, as well as a pound [D] of silver. Their subordinates also oppressed the people, but I didn’t do this, because of the fear of God. [t] 16 Instead, I devoted myself to the construction of the wall, [u] and all my subordinates were gathered there for the work. We didn't buy any land. [v]

17 There were 150 Jews and officials, as well as guests from the surrounding nations at my table. [w] 18 Each [E] day, one ox, six choice sheep, and some fowl were prepared for me. An abundance of all kinds of wine was provided every 10 days. [x] But I didn't demand the food allotted to the governor, because the burden on the people was so heavy.

19 Remember me favorably, my God, for all that I have done for this people. [y]

Attempts to Discourage the Builders

6 When Sanballat, Tobiah, Geshem the Arab, and the rest of our enemies [a] heard that I had rebuilt the wall and that no gap was left in it [b] — though at that time I had not installed the doors in the gates [c] — 2 Sanballat and Geshem [d] sent me a message: “Come, let’s meet together in the villages of [A] the Ono Valley.” [e] But they were planning to harm me.

3 So I sent messengers to them, saying, “I am doing a great work and cannot come down. Why should the work cease while I leave it and go down to you? ”
4 Four times they sent me the same proposal, and I gave them the same reply.

5 Sanballat [f] sent me this same message a fifth time by his aide, who had an open letter in his hand. 6 In it was written:

> It is reported among the nations — and Geshem [B, g] agrees — that you and the Jews plan to rebel. This is the reason you are building the wall. According to these reports, you are to become their king 7 and have even set up the prophets in Jerusalem to proclaim on your behalf: “There is a king in Judah.” [h] These rumors will be heard by the king. So come, let’s confer together.

8 Then I replied to him, “There is nothing to these rumors you are spreading; you are inventing them in your own mind.” [i] 9 For they were all trying to intimidate [j] us, saying, “They will become discouraged [C] in the work, [k] and it will never be finished.”

But now, my God, strengthen me. [D, l]

Attempts to Intimidate Nehemiah 10 I went to the house of Shemaiah son of Delaiah, son of Mehetabel, who was restricted to his house. He said:

Let us meet at the house of God inside the temple.
Let us shut the temple doors
because they are coming to kill you.
They are coming to kill you tonight! [E]

11 But I said, “Should a man like me run away? How can I enter the temple and live? [m] I will not go.” 12 I realized that God had not sent him, because of the prophecy he spoke against me. Tobiah and Sanballat [n] had hired him. 13 He was hired, so that I would be intimidated, [o] do as he suggested, sin, and get a bad reputation, in order that they could discredit me.

14 My God, remember [p] Tobiah and Sanballat for what they have done, and also Noadiah the prophetess [q] and the other prophets who wanted to intimidate me.

The Wall Completed

15 The wall was completed [r] in 52 days, on the twenty-fifth day of the month Elul. [s] 16 When all our enemies [t] heard this, all the surrounding nations were intimidated [u] and lost their confidence, [F] for they realized that this task had been accomplished by our God. [v]

17 During those days, the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah, [w] and Tobiah's letters came to them. 18 For many in Judah were bound by oath [x] to him, since he was a son-in-law of Shecaniah son of Arah, and his son Jehohanan had married the daughter of Meshullam [y] son of Berechiah. 19 These nobles kept mentioning Tobiah's good deeds to me, and they reported my words to him. And Tobiah sent letters to intimidate [z] me.

The Exiles Return

7 When the wall had been rebuilt and I had the doors installed, [a] the gatekeepers, [b] singers, and Levites were appointed. 2 Then I put my brother Hanani [c] in charge of Jerusalem, [d] along with Hananiah, [e] commander of the fortress, [f] because he was a faithful man who •feared God [g] more than most. 3 I said to them, “Do not open the gates of Jerusalem until the sun is hot, and let the doors be shut and securely fastened while the guards are on duty. Station the citizens of Jerusalem as guards, some at their posts and some at their homes.” [h]

4 The city was large and spacious, but there were few people in it, and no houses had been built yet. [i] 5 Then my God put it into my mind [j] to assemble the nobles, the officials, and the people to be registered by genealogy. I found the genealogical record of those who came back first, and I found the following written in it: [k]

6 These are the people of the province who went up among the captive exiles deported by King Nebuchadnezzar [l] of Babylon. Each of them returned to Jerusalem and Judah, to his own town. [m] 7 They came with Zerubbabel, [n] Jeshua, [o] Nehemiah, Azariah, Raamiah, Nahamani, Mordecai, Bilshan, Mispereth, Bigvai, Nehum, and Baanah.

The number of the Israelite men included:

8 Parosh’s descendants [p]	2,172
9 Shephatiah’s descendants	372
10 Arah’s descendants	652
11 Pahath-moab’s descendants:
Jeshua’s and Joab’s descendants	2,818
12 Elam’s descendants	1,254
13 Zattu’s descendants	845
14 Zaccai’s descendants	760
15 Binnui’s descendants	648
628

16 Bebai’s descendants	628
17 Azgad’s descendants	2,322
18 Adonikam’s descendants [q]	667
19 Bigvai’s descendants	2,067
20 Adin’s descendants [r]	655
21 Ater’s descendants: of Hezekiah	98
22 Hashum’s descendants	328
23 Bezai’s descendants	324
24 Hariph’s descendants	112
25 Gibeon’s [s] descendants	95
26 Bethlehem’s [t] and Netophah’s [u] men	188
27 Anathoth’s [v] men	128
28 Beth-azmaveth’s men	42
29 Kiriath-jearim’s, Chephirah’s, and Beeroth’s men	743
30 Ramah’s and Geba’s men	621
31 Michmas’s men	122
32 Bethel’s and Ai’s men [w]	123
33 the other Nebo’s men	52
34 the other Elam’s people	1,254

35 Harim’s people 320

36 Jericho’s people [x] 345

37 Lod’s, [y] Hadid’s, and Ono’s people 721

38 Senaah’s people 3,930.

39 The priests included:

Jedaiah’s [z] descendants of the house of Jeshua 973

40 Immer’s descendants 1,052

41 Pashhur’s descendants 1,247

42 Harim’s descendants 1,017.

43 The Levites [a] included:

Jeshua’s descendants: of Kadmiel

Hodevah’s descendants 74.

44 The singers [b] included:

•Asaph ’s descendants 148.

45 The gatekeepers [c] included:

Shallum’s descendants, Ater’s descendants,

Talmon’s descendants, Akkub’s descendants,

Hatita’s descendants, Shobai’s descendants 138.

46 The temple servants [d] included:

Ziha’s descendants, Hasupha’s descendants,
Tabbaoth’s descendants, 47 Keros’s descendants,
Sia’s descendants, Padon’s descendants,
48 Lebanah’s descendants, Hagabah’s descendants, Shalmai’s descendants, 49 Hanan’s descendants,
Giddel’s descendants, Gahar’s descendants,
50 Reaiah’s descendants, Rezin’s descendants,
Nekoda’s descendants, 51 Gazzam’s descendants,
Uzza’s descendants, Paseah’s descendants,
52 Besai’s descendants, Meunim’s descendants,
Nephishesim’s [e] descendants, 53 Bakbuk’s descendants,
Hakupha’s descendants, Harhur’s descendants,
54 Bazlith’s descendants, Mehida’s descendants, Harsha’s descendants, 55 Barkos’s descendants,
Sisera’s descendants, Temah’s descendants,
56 Neziah’s descendants, Hatipha’s descendants.

57 The descendants of Solomon’s servants [f] included:

Sotai’s descendants, Sophereth’s descendants,
Perida’s descendants, 58 Jaala’s descendants,
Darkon’s descendants, Giddel’s descendants,
59 Shephatiah’s descendants, Hattil’s descendants,
Pochereth-hazzebaim’s descendants, Amon’s descendants.

60 All the temple servants

and the descendants of Solomon’s servants [g] 392.

61 The following [h] are those who came from Tel-melah, Tel-harsha, Cherub, Addon, and Immer, but were unable to prove that their families and ancestors were Israelite:

62 Delaiah’s descendants,

Tobiah’s descendants,

and Nekoda’s descendants 642

63 and from the priests: the descendants of Hobaiah, the descendants of Hakkoz, and the descendants of Barzillai — who had taken a wife from the daughters of Barzillai the Gileadite and was called by their name. 64 These searched for their entries in the genealogical records, but they could not be found, so they were disqualified from the priesthood. 65 The governor [i] ordered them not to eat the most holy things until there was a priest who could consult the •Urim and Thummim. [j]

66 The whole combined assembly numbered 42,360

67 not including their 7,337 male and female slaves,

as well as their 245 male and female singers.

68 They had 736 horses, 245 mules, [k]

69 435 camels, and 6,720 donkeys. [l]

70 Some of the family leaders gave to the project. The governor gave 1,000 gold coins, [A] 50 bowls, and 530 priestly garments to the treasury. 71 Some of the family leaders gave 20,000 gold coins and 2,200 silver minas [m] to the treasury for the project. 72 The rest of the people gave 20,000 gold coins, 2,000 silver minas, and 67 priestly garments. 73 So the priests, Levites, gatekeepers, temple singers, some of the people, temple servants, and all Israel settled in their towns.
[n], [o]

Public Reading of the Law

When the seventh month [p] came and the Israelites had settled in their towns,

8 all the people gathered together [a] at the square in front of the Water Gate. [b]
They asked Ezra the scribe [c] to bring the book of the law of Moses [d] that the LORD had given Israel. 2 On the first day of the seventh month, [e] Ezra the priest [f] brought the law [g] before the assembly of men, women, and all who could listen with understanding. 3 While he was facing the square in front of the Water Gate, [h] he read out of it from daybreak until noon before the men, the women, and those who could understand. All the people listened attentively [A] to the book of the law. [i] 4 Ezra the scribe stood on a high wooden platform [j] made for this purpose. Mattithiah, Shema, Anaiah, Uriah, Hilkiah, and Maaseiah stood beside him on his right; to his left were Pedaiah, Mishael, Malchijah, Hashum, Hash-baddanah, Zechariah, and Meshullam. 5 Ezra opened the book in full view of all the people, since he was elevated above everyone. As he opened it, all the people stood up. 6 Ezra praised the LORD, the great God, and with their hands uplifted [k] all the people said, "•Amen , Amen! " [l] Then they bowed down and worshiped the LORD with their faces to the ground. [m]
7 Jeshua, Bani, Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, and Pelaiah, [n] who were Levites, [o, p] explained the law [q] to the people as they stood in their places. 8 They read out of the book of the law of God, translating and giving the meaning so that the people could understand what was read. 9 Nehemiah the governor, [r] Ezra the priest and scribe, [s] and the Levites who were instructing the people said to all of them,
"This day [t] is holy to the LORD your God. Do not mourn or weep." [u] For all the people were weeping as they heard the words of the law. 10 Then he said to them, "Go and eat what is rich, drink what is sweet, and send portions to those who have nothing prepared, [v] since today [w] is holy to our Lord. Do not grieve, because the joy of the LORD is your stronghold." [x] 11 And the Levites quieted all the people, saying, "Be still, [y] since today [z] is holy. Do not grieve." 12 Then all the people began to eat and drink, send portions, and have a great celebration, [a] because they had understood the words that were explained to them.

Festival of Booths Observed 13 On the second day, the family leaders of all the people, along with the priests and Levites, [b] assembled before Ezra the scribe [c] to study the words of the law. 14 They found written in the law how the LORD had commanded through Moses that the Israelites should dwell in booths during the festival of the seventh month. [d] 15 So they proclaimed and spread this news throughout their towns and in Jerusalem, saying, "Go out to the hill country and bring back branches of olive, wild olive, myrtle, palm, and other leafy trees to make booths, just as it is written.” [e] 16 The people went out, brought back branches, and made booths for themselves on each of their rooftops, [f] and courtyards, the court of the house of God, the square by the Water Gate, [g] and the square by the Gate of Ephraim. [h] 17 The whole community that had returned from exile [i] made booths and lived in them. They had not celebrated like this from the days of Joshua son of Nun until that day. [j] And there was tremendous joy. [k] 18 Ezra [l] read out of the book of the law of God [m] every day, from the first day to the last. The Israelites celebrated the festival for seven days, and on the eighth day there was an assembly, according to the ordinance. [n]

National Confession of Sin

9 On the twenty-fourth day of this month [a] the Israelites assembled; they were fasting, wearing •sackcloth , and had put dust on their heads. [b] 2 Those of Israelite descent separated themselves from all foreigners, [c] and they stood [d] and confessed their sins and the •guilt of their fathers. [e] 3 While they stood in their places, [f] they read from the book of the law of the LORD their God for a fourth of the day and spent another fourth of the day [g] in confession [h] and worship of the LORD their God. 4 Jeshua, Bani, Kadmiel, Shebaniah, Bunni, Sherebiah, Bani, and Chenani stood on the raised platform built for the Levites [i] and cried out loudly to the LORD their God. 5 Then the Levites — Jeshua, Kadmiel, Bani, Hashabneiah, Sherebiah, Hodiah, Shebaniah, and Pethahiah [j] — said, “Stand up. Praise •Yahweh your God from everlasting to everlasting.” [k]

Praise Your glorious name, [l] and may it be exalted above all blessing and praise.
6 You [m] alone are Yahweh. [n]
You created the heavens,
the highest heavens with all their host,
the earth and all that is on it,
the seas and all that is in them.
You give life to all of them, [o]
and the heavenly host worships You. [p] 7 You are Yahweh, the God who chose Abram and brought him out of Ur of the Chaldeans, [q] and changed his name to Abraham. [r] 8 You found his heart faithful in Your sight, [s] and made a covenant with him to give the land of the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Jebusites, and Girgashites — to give it to his descendants. [t]
You have kept Your promise, for You are righteous.

9 You saw the oppression of our ancestors in Egypt [u] and heard their cry at the •Red Sea.
10 You performed signs and wonders against Pharaoh, all his officials, and all the people of his land, [v]

for You knew how arrogantly they treated our ancestors.
You made a name for Yourself that endures to this day.
11 You divided the sea before them, and they crossed through it on dry ground. [w]
You hurled their pursuers into the depths like a stone into churning waters. [x] 12 You led them with a pillar of cloud by day, and with a pillar of fire by night,
to illuminate the way they should go. [y] 13 You came down on Mount Sinai, [z] and spoke to them from heaven.
You gave them impartial ordinances, reliable instructions, and good statutes and commands.
14 You revealed Your holy Sabbath to them, and gave them commands, statutes, and instruction through Your servant Moses. [a] 15 You provided bread from heaven [b] for their hunger;
You brought them water from the rock [c] for their thirst.
You told them to go in and possess the land
You had sworn [A] to give them. [d]

16 But our ancestors acted arrogantly;
they became stiff-necked and did not listen to Your commands.
17 They refused to listen and did not remember Your wonders
You performed among them. [e]
They became stiff-necked and appointed a leader to return to their slavery in Egypt. [f, g]
But You are a forgiving God, gracious and compassionate, slow to anger and rich in faithful love, [h] and You did not abandon them.
18 Even after they had cast an image of a calf for themselves and said,
“This is your God who brought you out of Egypt,” [i] and they had committed terrible blasphemies, 19 You did not abandon them in the wilderness

because of Your great compassion.
During the day the pillar of cloud never turned away from them, guiding them on their journey.
And during the night the pillar of fire illuminated the way they should go. [j]
20 You sent Your good Spirit [k] to instruct them.
You did not withhold Your manna [l] from their mouths, and You gave them water for their thirst. [m] 21 You provided for them in the wilderness 40 years [n]
and they lacked nothing.
Their clothes did not wear out,
and their feet did not swell. [o]

22 You gave them kingdoms and peoples and assigned them to be a boundary.
They took possession of the land of Sihon [p] king of Heshbon and of the land of Og king of Bashan. [q] 23 You multiplied their descendants like the stars of heaven [r] and brought them to the land
You told their ancestors to go in and take possession of it.
24 So their descendants went in and possessed the land:
You subdued the Canaanites who inhabited the land before them and handed their kings and the surrounding peoples over to them, [s] to do as they pleased with them.
25 They captured fortified cities and fertile land and took possession of well-supplied houses, cisterns cut out of rock, vineyards, olive groves, and fruit trees in abundance. [t]
They ate, were filled, became prosperous, and delighted in Your great goodness.

26 But they were disobedient and rebelled against You.
They flung Your law behind their backs [u] and killed Your prophets [v] who warned them

in order to turn them back to You.
They committed terrible blasphemies.
27 So You handed them over to their enemies, who oppressed them.
In their time of distress, they cried out to You, and You heard from heaven.
In Your abundant compassion
You gave them deliverers, who rescued them from the power of their enemies.
28 But as soon as they had relief,
they again did what was evil in Your sight.
So You abandoned them to the power of their enemies, who dominated them.
When they cried out to You again,
You heard from heaven and rescued them
many times in Your compassion. [w] 29 You warned them to turn back to Your law, but they acted arrogantly and would not obey Your commands.
They sinned against Your ordinances, which a person will live by if he does them. [x]
They stubbornly resisted, [B] stiffened their necks, and would not obey.
30 You were patient with them for many years, and Your Spirit warned them through Your prophets, [y]
but they would not listen.
Therefore, You handed them over to the surrounding peoples. [z]
31 However, in Your abundant compassion,
You did not destroy them or abandon them, [a] for You are a gracious and compassionate God. [b]

32 So now, our God — the great, mighty, and awe-inspiring God who keeps His gracious covenant [c] — do not view lightly all the hardships that have afflicted us, our kings and leaders,
our priests and prophets,
our ancestors and all Your people, from the days of the Assyrian kings [d] until today.

33 You are righteous concerning all that has come on us, because You have acted faithfully, while we have acted wickedly. [e] 34 Our kings, leaders, priests, and ancestors did not obey Your law or listen to Your commands and warnings You gave them.
35 When they were in their kingdom, with Your abundant goodness that You gave them, and in the spacious and fertile land You set before them, [f]
they would not serve You or turn from their wicked ways.

36 Here we are today, slaves in the land You gave our ancestors
so that they could enjoy its fruit and its goodness.
Here we are — slaves in it! [g]
37 Its abundant harvest goes to the kings
You have set over us, because of our sins.
They rule over our bodies and our livestock as they please. [h]
We are in great distress.

Israel's Vow of Faithfulness

38 [i] In view of all this, we are making a binding agreement [j] in writing on a sealed document containing the names of our leaders, Levites, and priests. [k]

10 Those whose seals were on the document were:

Nehemiah the governor, [a] son of Hacaliah, and Zedekiah,
2 Seraiah, [b] Azariah, Jeremiah,
3 Pashhur, [c] Amariah, Malchijah,
4 Hattush, Shebaniah, Malluch,
5 Harim, Meremoth, Obadiah,
6 Daniel, Ginnethon, Baruch,
7 Meshullam, Abijah, Mijamin,
8 Maaziah, Bilgai, and Shemaiah.
These were the priests.

9 The Levites [d] were:
Jeshua son of Azaniah,
Binnui of the sons of Henadad, Kadmiel,
10 and their brothers
Shebaniah, Hodiah, Kelita, Pelaiah, Hanan,
11 Mica, Rehob, Hashabiah,
12 Zaccur, Sherebiah, Shebaniah,
13 Hodiah, Bani, and Beninu.

14 The leaders of the people [e] were:
Parosh, Pahath-moab, Elam, Zattu, Bani,
15 Bunni, Azgad, Bebai,
16 Adonijah, Bigvai, Adin, [f]
17 Ater, Hezekiah, Azzur,
18 Hodiah, Hashum, Bezai,
19 Hariph, Anathoth, Nebai,
20 Magpiash, Meshullam, Hezir,
21 Meshezabel, Zadok, Jaddua,
22 Pelatiah, Hanan, Anaiah,
23 Hoshea, Hananiah, [g] Hasshub,
24 Hallohesh, Pilha, Shobek, 25 Rehum, Hashabnah, Maaseiah,
26 Ahijah, Hanan, Anan,
27 Malluch, Harim, Baanah.

28 The rest of the people — the priests, Levites, gatekeepers, singers, and temple servants, along with their wives, sons, and daughters, everyone who is able to understand [h] and who has separated themselves from the surrounding peoples [i] to obey the law of God — 29 join with their noble brothers and commit themselves with a sworn oath [A, j] to follow the law of God given through God's servant Moses [k] and to carefully obey all the commands, ordinances, and statutes of •Yahweh our Lord.

Details of the Vow

30 We will not give our daughters in marriage to the surrounding peoples and will not take their daughters as wives for our sons. [l]

31 When the surrounding peoples bring merchandise or any kind of grain to sell on the Sabbath day, we will not buy from them on the Sabbath or a holy day. [m] We will also leave the land uncultivated in the seventh year [n] and will cancel every debt. [o]

32 We will impose the following commands on ourselves:
To give an eighth of an ounce of silver [B] yearly for the service of the house of our God: [p] 33 the bread displayed before the LORD, [C,] [q] the daily •grain offering, the regular •burnt offering, the Sabbath and New Moon offerings, [r] the appointed festivals, the holy things, the •sin offerings to •atone for Israel, [s] and for all the work of the house of our God.

34 We have cast lots [t] among the priests, Levites, and people for the donation of wood by our ancestral houses at the appointed times each year. They are to bring the wood to our God's house to burn on the altar of the LORD our God, [u] as it is written in the law.

35 We will bring the •firstfruits of our land and of every fruit tree to the LORD's house year by year. [v] 36 We will also bring the firstborn of our sons and our livestock, as prescribed by the law, and will bring the firstborn of our herds and flocks to the house of our God, [w] to the priests who serve in our God's house. 37 We will bring a loaf from our first batch of dough [x] to the priests at the storerooms of the house of our God. We will also bring the firstfruits of our grain offerings, of every fruit tree, and of the new wine and oil. [y] A tenth of our land's produce belongs to the Levites, for the Levites are to collect the one-tenth offering in all our agricultural towns. [z] 38 A priest of Aaronic descent must accompany the Levites when they collect the tenth, [a] and the Levites must take a tenth of this offering to the storerooms of the treasury in the house of our God. [b] 39 For the Israelites and the Levites are to bring the contributions of grain, new wine, and oil to the storerooms where the articles of the sanctuary are kept [c] and where the priests who minister are, along with the gatekeepers and singers. We will not neglect the house of our God. [d]

Resettling Jerusalem

11 Now the leaders of the people stayed in Jerusalem, [a] and the rest of the people cast lots [b] for one out of ten to come and live in Jerusalem, the holy city, [c] while the other nine-tenths remained in their towns. [d] 2 The people praised all the men who volunteered [e] to live in Jerusalem.
3 These are the heads of the province who stayed in Jerusalem [f] (but in the villages of Judah each lived on his own property in their towns [g] — the Israelites, priests, Levites, temple servants, and descendants of Solomon's servants [h] — 4 while some of the descendants of Judah and Benjamin settled in Jerusalem):
Judah's [i] descendants:

Athaiah son of Uzziah, son of Zechariah, son of Amariah, son of Shephatiah, son of Mahalalel, of Perez's descendants; 5 and Maaseiah son of Baruch, son of Col-hozeh, son of Hazaiah, son of Adaiah, son of Joiarib, son of Zechariah, a descendant of the Shilonite. 6 The total number of Perez's descendants, who settled in Jerusalem, was 468 capable men.

7 These were Benjamin's descendants:
Sallu son of Meshullam, son of Joed, son of Pedaiah, son of Kolaiah, son of Maaseiah, son of Ithiel, son of Jeshaiah, 8 and after him Gabbai and Sallai: 928. 9 Joel son of Zichri was the officer over them, and Judah son of Hassenuah was second in command over the city.

10 The priests:

Jedaiah son of Joiarib, Jachin, and 11 Seraiah son of Hilkiah, son of Meshullam, son of Zadok, son of Meraioth, son of Ahitub, the chief official of God's temple, 12 and their relatives who did the work at the temple: 822. Adaiah son of Jeroham, son of Pelaliah, son of Amzi, son of Zechariah, son of Pashhur, son of Malchijah 13 and his relatives, the leaders of families: 242. Amashsai son of Azarel, son of Ahzai, son of Meshillemoth, son of Immer, 14 and their relatives, capable men: 128.
Zabdiel son of Haggedolim, was their chief.

15 The Levites:

Shemaiah son of Hasshub, son of Azrikam, son of Hashabiah, son of Bunni; 16 and Shabbethai and Jozabad, from the leaders of the Levites, who supervised the work outside the house of God; 17 Mattaniah son of Mica, son of Zabdi, son of •Asaph , the leader who began the thanksgiving in prayer; [j] Bakbukiah, second among his relatives; and Abda son of Shammua, son of Galal, son of Jeduthun. [k] 18 All the Levites in the holy city: [l] 284.

19 The gatekeepers:

Akkub, Talmon, and their relatives, who guarded the gates: 172.

20 The rest of Israel, the priests, and the Levites were in all the villages of Judah, each on his own inherited property. [m] 21 The temple servants lived on Ophel; [n, o] Ziha and Gishpa supervised the temple servants.

The Levites and Priests

22 The leader of the Levites in Jerusalem was Uzzi son of Bani, son of Hashabiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Mica, of the descendants of Asaph, who were singers for the service of God's house. 23 There was, in fact, a command of the king regarding them, and an ordinance regulating [A] the singers' [p] daily tasks. 24 Pethahiah son of Meshezabel, of the descendants of Zerah [q] son of Judah, was the king's [r] agent [B] in every matter concerning the people.
25 As for the farming settlements with their fields:

Some of Judah's descendants lived in Kiriath-arba [s] and its villages, Dibon [t] and its villages, and Jekabzeel and its villages;
26 in Jeshua, Moladah, [u] Beth-pelet,
27 Hazar-shual, and Beer-sheba [v] and its villages;
28 in Ziklag [w] and Meconah and its villages;
29 in En-rimmon, Zorah, [x] Jarmuth, [y] and 30 Zanoah [z] and Adullam with their villages; in Lachish [a] with its fields and Azekah [b] and its villages.
So they settled from Beer-sheba [c] to the Valley of Hinnom. [d]

31 Benjamin's descendants:
from Geba, [C,] [e] Michmash, [f] Aija, and Bethel [g] — and its villages,
32 Anathoth, [h] Nob, [i] Ananiah,
33 Hazor, [j] Ramah, [k] Gittaim, [l]
34 Hadid, Zeboim, [m] Neballat,
35 Lod, and Ono, [n] the Valley of Craftsmen.
36 Some of the Judean divisions of Levites were in Benjamin.

12 These [a] are the priests and Levites [b] who went up with Zerubbabel [c] son of Shealtiel and with Jeshua:

Seraiah, Jeremiah, Ezra,
2 Amariah, Malluch, Hattush,
3 Shecaniah, Rehum, Meremoth,
4 Iddo, [d] Ginnethoi, Abijah, [e]
5 Mijamin, Maadiah, Bilgah,
6 Shemaiah, Joiarib, Jedaiah, [f]
7 Sallu, Amok, Hilkiah, Jedaiah.
These were the leaders of the priests and their relatives in the days of Jeshua. [g]
8 The Levites:

Jeshua, Binnui, Kadmiel, Sherebiah, Judah, and Mattaniah [h] — he and his relatives were in charge of the praise songs.
9 Bakbukiah, Unni, [i] and their relatives stood opposite them in the services.
10 Jeshua fathered Joiakim, Joiakim fathered Eliashib,
Eliashib [j] fathered Joiada, 11 Joiada fathered Jonathan, and Jonathan fathered Jaddua. [k]

12 In the days of Joiakim, the leaders of the priestly families were:

Meraiah	of Seraiah,
Hananiah	of Jeremiah,
13 Meshullam	of Ezra,
Jehohanan	of Amariah,
14 Jonathan	of Malluchi,
Joseph	of Shebaniah,
15 Adna	of Harim,
Helkai	of Meraioth,
16 Zechariah	of Iddo,
Meshullam	of Ginnethon,
17 Zichri	of Abijah,
Piltai	of Moadiah, of Miniamin,
18 Shammua	of Bilgah,

Jehonathan of Shemaiah,
19 Mattenai of Joiarib, Uzzi of Jedaiah,
20 Kallai of Sallai,
Eber of Amok,
21 Hashabiah of Hilkiah, and Nethanel of Jedaiah.

22 In the days of Eliashib, Joiada, Johanan, and Jaddua, the leaders of the families of the Levites and priests were recorded while Darius the Persian ruled. 23 Levi's descendants, the leaders of families, were recorded in the Book of the Historical Records [l] during the days of Johanan son of Eliashib. 24 The leaders of the Levites — Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua son of Kadmiel, along with their relatives opposite them — gave praise and thanks, division by division, as David the man of God had prescribed. [m] 25 This included Mattaniah, [n] Bakbukiah, and Obadiah. Meshullam, Talmon, and Akkub were gatekeepers who guarded the storerooms at the gates. [o] 26 These served in the days of Joiakim son of Jeshua, son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governor [p] and Ezra the priest and scribe. [q]

Dedication of the Wall

27 At the dedication of the wall [r] of Jerusalem, they sent for the Levites wherever they lived and brought them to Jerusalem to celebrate the joyous dedication with thanksgiving and singing accompanied by cymbals, harps, and lyres. [s] 28 The singers gathered from the region around Jerusalem, from the villages of the Netophathites, [t] 29 from Beth-gilgal, and from the fields of Geba and Azmaveth, for they had built villages for themselves around Jerusalem. 30 After the priests and Levites had purified themselves, they purified the people, the gates, and the wall. [u]

31 Then I brought the leaders of Judah up on top of the wall, and I appointed two large processions that gave thanks. One went to the right on the wall, toward the Dung Gate. [v] 32 Hoshaiah and half the leaders of Judah followed, 33 along with Azariah, Ezra, Meshullam, 34 Judah, Benjamin, Shemaiah, Jeremiah, 35 and some of the priests' sons with trumpets, and Zechariah son of Jonathan, son of Shemaiah, son of Mattaniah, son of Micaiah, son of Zaccur, son of •Asaph followed 36 as well as his relatives — Shemaiah, Azarel, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethanel, Judah, and Hanani, with the musical instruments of David, the man of God. [w] Ezra the scribe [x] went in front of them. 37 At the Fountain Gate [y] they climbed the steps of the city of David [z] on the ascent of the wall and went above the house of David to the Water Gate [a] on the east.

38 The second thanksgiving procession went to the left, and I followed it with half the people along the top of the wall, past the Tower of the Ovens [b] to the Broad Wall, [c] 39 above the Gate of Ephraim, [d] and by the Old Gate, [e] the Fish Gate, [f] the Tower of Hananel, and the Tower of the Hundred, to the Sheep Gate. [g] They stopped at the Gate of the Guard. [h] 40 The two thanksgiving processions stood in the house of God. So did I and half of the officials accompanying me, 41 as well as the priests:

Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Micaiah, Elioenai, Zechariah, and Hananiah, with trumpets;
42 and Maaseiah, Shemaiah, Eleazar, Uzzi, Jehohanan, Malchijah, Elam, and Ezer.

Then the singers sang, with Jezrahiah as the leader. 43 On that day they offered great sacrifices and rejoiced because God had given them great joy. [i] The women and children also celebrated, and Jerusalem's rejoicing was heard far away. [j]

Support of the Levites' Ministry 44 On that same day men were placed in charge of the rooms [k] that housed the supplies, contributions, •firstfruits , and tenths. [l] The legally required portions for the priests and Levites [m] were gathered from the village fields, because Judah was grateful to the priests and Levites who were serving. [n] 45 They performed the service of their God and the service of purification, along with the singers and gatekeepers, [o] as David and his son Solomon had prescribed. [p] 46 For long ago, in the days of David and Asaph, [q] there were leaders [r] of the singers and songs of praise and thanksgiving to God. [s] 47 So in the days of Zerubbabel [t] and Nehemiah, [u] all Israel contributed the daily portions [v] for the singers and gatekeepers. They also set aside daily portions for the Levites, and the Levites set aside daily portions [w] for the descendants of Aaron.

Nehemiah's Further Reforms

13 At that time [a] the book of Moses [b] was read publicly to [A] the people. [c]
The command was found written in it that no Ammonite or Moabite [d] should ever enter the assembly of God, [e] 2 because they did not meet the Israelites with food and water. Instead, they hired Balaam against them to curse them, [f] but our God turned the curse into a blessing. [g] 3 When they heard the law, they separated all those of mixed descent [h] from Israel.

4 Now before this, Eliashib the priest [i] had been put in charge of the storerooms of the house of our God. [j] He was a relative [B] of Tobiah [k] 5 and had prepared a large room for him where they had previously stored the •grain offerings, the frankincense, the articles, and the tenths of grain, new wine, and oil [l] prescribed for the Levites, singers, and gatekeepers, along with the contributions for the priests. [m]

6 While all this was happening, I was not in Jerusalem, because I had returned to King Artaxerxes [n] of Babylon [o] in the thirty-second year of his reign. [p] It was only later that I asked the king for a leave of absence [q] 7 so I could return to Jerusalem. Then I discovered the evil that Eliashib had done on behalf of Tobiah by providing him a room in the courts of God's house. 8 I was greatly displeased and threw all of Tobiah's household possessions out of the room. 9 I ordered that the rooms be purified, [r] and I had the articles of the house of God restored there, along with the grain offering and frankincense. [s] 10 I also found out that because the portions for the Levites had not been given, [t] each of the Levites and the singers performing the service had gone back to his own field. [u] 11 Therefore, I rebuked the officials, saying, "Why has the house of God been neglected? " [v] I gathered the Levites and singers together and stationed them at their posts. [w] 12 Then all Judah brought a tenth of the grain, new wine, and oil into the storehouses. [x] 13 I appointed as treasurers over the storehouses Shelemiah the priest, Zadok the scribe, and Pedaiah of the Levites, with Hanan son of Zaccur, son of Mattaniah to assist them, because they were considered trustworthy. [y]
They were responsible for the distribution to their colleagues. [z]

14 Remember me for this, my God, and don't erase the deeds of faithful love I have done for the house of my God and for its services. [a] 15 At that time I saw people in Judah treading wine presses on the Sabbath.

They were also bringing in stores of grain and loading them on donkeys, along with wine, grapes, and figs. All kinds of goods were being brought to Jerusalem on the Sabbath day. So I warned them against selling food on that day. [b] 16 The Tyrians living there were importing fish and all kinds of merchandise and selling them on the Sabbath to the people of Judah in Jerusalem. [c]

17 I rebuked the nobles of Judah and said to them: “What is this evil you are doing — profaning the Sabbath day? [d] 18 Didn’t your ancestors do the same, so that our God brought all this disaster on us and on this city? [e] And now you are rekindling His anger against Israel by profaning the Sabbath! ”

19 When shadows began to fall on the gates of Jerusalem just before the Sabbath, I gave orders that the gates be closed and not opened until after the Sabbath. [f] I posted some of my men at the gates, so that no goods could enter during the Sabbath day. [g] 20 Once or twice the merchants and those who sell all kinds of goods camped outside Jerusalem, 21 but I warned them, “Why are you camping in front of the wall? If you do it again, I’ll use force [C] against you.” After that they did not come again on the Sabbath. 22 Then I instructed the Levites to purify themselves [h] and guard the gates in order to keep the Sabbath day holy. [i]

Remember me for this also, my God, [j] and look on me with compassion in keeping with Your abundant, faithful love. [k]

23 In those days I also saw Jews who had married women from Ashdod, Ammon, and Moab. [l] 24 Half of their children spoke the language of Ashdod or the language of one of the other peoples but could not speak Hebrew. [D, m] 25 I rebuked them, cursed them, beat some of their men, and pulled out their hair. [n] I forced them to take an oath [o] before God and said: “You must not give your daughters in marriage to their sons or take their daughters as wives for your sons or yourselves! [p] 26 Didn’t King Solomon of Israel sin in matters like this? There was not a king like him among many nations. He was loved by his God and God made him king over all Israel, yet foreign women drew him into sin. [q] 27 Why then should we hear about you doing all this terrible evil and acting unfaithfully against our God by marrying foreign women? ” [r]

28 Even one of the sons of Jehoiada, son of Eliashib the high priest, [s] had become a son-in-law to Sanballat the Horonite. [t] So I drove him away from me. [u]

29 Remember them, my God, for defiling the priesthood as well as the covenant of the priesthood and the Levites. [v]

30 So I purified them from everything foreign [w] and assigned specific duties to each of the priests and Levites. [x] 31 I also arranged for the donation of wood at the appointed times and for the •firstfruits . [y]

Remember me, my God, with favor. [z]

NEHEMIAH

Introduction See the Introduction to Ezra for the introductory material.

Outline of Nehemiah I. Rebuilding the Walls (1:1-6:19) A. Jerusalem's plight and Nehemiah's prayer (1:1-11) B. Nehemiah's mission (2:1-10) C. Surveying the walls (2:11-20) D. Rebuilding begun (3:1-32) E. Opposition and oppression (4:1-6:19) II. Restoration of the Community (7:1-13:31) A. Repopulating Jerusalem (7:1-73a) B. The covenant renewed (7:73b-10:39) C. Repopulating Jerusalem [continued] (11:1-21) D. Essential records (11:22-36) E. Temple personnel (12:1-26) F. Dedication of the wall (12:27-47) G. Nehemiah's further reforms (13:1-31) Study Notes 1:1 In both the Hebrew and the Greek OT, the books of Ezra and Nehemiah were originally a single book. Yet the connection between them is rather abrupt and without any real transition (see note at Ezr 10:44). Nehemiah, whose name means “Yahweh has comforted,” is identified as son of Hacaliah, to distinguish him from other people named Nehemiah (3:16; 7:7; Ezr 2:2) in the same era. The prophet Nahum’s name is a shorter form of Nehemiah’s.

The text does not identify the twentieth year, but the context from Ezra 10 along with the statement of Neh 2:1 identifies it as the twentieth year of King Artaxerxes of Persia (445 B.C.). The mention of the month of Chislev is difficult because 2:1 describes a later event occurring in the month of Nisan, also in the twentieth year. Chislev was parallel to our late November to early December, while Nisan was in the spring. Since Nehemiah served in the royal Persian court, it is possible that he used the official regnal calendar in which the year began in the month a king came to power. In such a calendar Nisan could follow Chislev. Susa, in southwestern Iran, became the capital of Persia during the time of Darius. Later kings such as Xerxes and Artaxerxes used it as their winter palace.

1:2 Hanani is described by Nehemiah as one of my brothers. While this could be used loosely to refer to his Jewish companions, it probably means his literal brother due to the mention of Hanani in 7:2.

1:3 The people in the province of Judah (v. 2), which the Persians called (Hb) Yehud, were suffering because their city was in such terrible condition. Many scholars maintain that Nehemiah’s response (v. 4) suggests this was a recent development, possibly referring to Rehum’s opposition (Ezr 4:9-16). The HCSB translation of the verbs here, has been broken down . . . have been burned, reinforces this understanding of the passage.

1:4 Nehemiah’s response was like that of his predecessor, Ezra (Ezr 9:3-5), who humbled himself before God.

1:5-11 Nehemiah’s prayer, while shorter than Ezra’s (see note at Ezr 9:6-15), is also written in late biblical Hebrew style found in other penitential prayers of that era (Neh 9:5-37; Dn 9:4-19). Like them it reflects the language of Deuteronomy, acknowledging that Israel’s adversities had resulted from the nation's covenant unfaithfulness and that their present survival was due solely to God's abundant mercy.

1:5-6 Addressing God as Yahweh, the God of heaven is not common in the OT, but it does occur several other times (Gn 24:7; 2Ch 36:23; Jnh 1:9). This description of God is similar to the opening verse of Daniel's prayer: "the great and awe-inspiring God who keeps His gracious covenant with those who love Him and keep His commands" (Dn 9:4). Like Ezra (Ezr 9:6), Nehemiah also identified with the sin of his people, confessing that both I and my father's house have sinned.

1:8-9 Nehemiah alluded to Moses' warning (Dt 4:27; 28:64) that God would scatter Israel among the peoples if they were unfaithful to the covenant, and then he summarized God's promise through Moses (Dt 30:1-5) that repentance would bring restoration (Neh 1:9). Repentance is described as return to Me, using the primary OT term (Hb shuv) for repentance that depicts a turning from sin toward God.

1:10 Just as Moses had interceded for his sinful people, reminding God that Israel was His people whom He had brought out of Egypt (Ex 32:11), so too Nehemiah reminded God that they were His servants and His people whom He had redeemed.

1:11 The reference to this man has led some scholars to suggest impropriety on Nehemiah's part for referring to King Artaxerxes in such a way. But the context here is a private prayer addressed to God who knew very well who "this man" was and that Nehemiah would need divine help in dealing with him. The Persian rulers were famous for the irrevocability of their laws, as Daniel discovered when the "law of the Medes and Persians" (Dn 6:8,12,15) was brought against him. Nehemiah faced the daunting task of asking Artaxerxes to reverse his previous proclamation (Ezr 4:23) stopping all construction in Jerusalem. Only at the end of the prayer does it become clear why a Jewish man like Nehemiah thought he would ever get to address the Persian king: I was the king's cupbearer. The cupbearer was not only responsible for choosing appropriate wines for the king, but he tasted them himself to assure they were not poisoned.

2:1-3 It is not clear why Nehemiah waited nearly four months to bring his request to King Artaxerxes (see note at 1:1 for the month of Nisan). It is possible that the king spent the winter in Babylon rather than in Susa. Ancient records attest to this happening occasionally. It is also possible that Nehemiah waited for the (Hb) tukta , a Persian feast in which the king would often grant the requests of his supplicants. Nehemiah's explanation for his sadness was carefully expressed. He did not mention Jerusalem by name, since it may have carried negative connotations from the past (Ezr 4:12), but he referred to it as the city where my ancestors are buried. The Persian rulers went to great expense building tombs for their ancestors. Nehemiah's concern for the condition of his ancestors' tombs would certainly strike a sympathetic chord with the Persian king.

The Return from Exile

PHASE	DATE	SCRIPTURE REFERENCE	JEWISH LEADER	PERSIAN RULER	EXTENT OF THE RETURN	EVENTS OF THE RETURN
First	538 B.C.	Ezra 1–6	Zerubbabel Jeshua	Cyrus	1) Anyone who wanted to return could go 2) The temple in Jerusalem was to be rebuilt 3) Royal treasury provided funding of the temple rebuilding 4) Gold and silver worship articles taken from temple by Nebuchadnezzar were returned	1) Burnt offerings were made 2) Festival of Booths was celebrated 3) The rebuilding of the temple was begun 4) Persian ruler ordered rebuilding to be ceased 5) Darius, King of Persia, ordered rebuilding to be resumed in 520 B.C. 6) Temple was completed and dedicated in 516 B.C.
Second	458 B.C.	Ezra 7–10	Ezra	Artaxerxes Longimas	1) Anyone who wanted to return could go 2) Royal treasury provided funding 3) Jewish civil magistrates and judges were allowed	Men of Israel intermarried with foreign women
Third	444 B.C.	Nehemiah 1–13	Nehemiah	Artaxerxes Longimas	Rebuilding of Jerusalem was allowed	1) Rebuilding of wall of Jerusalem was opposed by Sanballat the Horonite, Tobiah the Ammonite, and Gesham the Arab 2) Rebuilding of wall was completed in 52 days 3) Walls were dedicated 4) Ezra read the book of the law to the people 5) Nehemiah initiated reforms

2:5 Nehemiah's request to rebuild Jerusalem was bold in light of the king's earlier decision (Ezr 4:12-16) to stop all construction on the project.

2:6 The word queen here is a rare term (Hb shagel) that occurs only here and in Ps 45:9. Both ancient and modern commentators suggest that this term identified this woman as a concubine or a sexual favorite of the king. This is suggested because the term derives from a verb (Hb shagal) that often indicates illicit sexual activity.

2:7-8 Nehemiah needed not only time away from Artaxerxes' court, but also official royal documents for the governors . . . west of the Euphrates River (lit "Beyond the River") who were opposed to any building in Jerusalem (v. 10). His request for timber for the gates of the temple's fortress probably refers to a military structure north of the temple that provided protection for the temple and its worshipers, and probably included the two towers mentioned in 3:1.

2:9 Some have criticized Nehemiah for accepting military protection, which Ezra refused (Ezr 8:22-23). Nehemiah's decision did not reflect a lack of faith on his part, but rather his trust that this was part of God's provision for him.

2:10 This verse introduces opposition as a recurring theme throughout the book and mentions two of Nehemiah's three primary opponents. Sanballat, whose name is Babylonian (sin-uballat, "the god Sin has given life"), may have descended from a family displaced by the Assyrians and resettled in the region of Samaria (2Kg 17:24-33). He may have worshiped Yahweh, since his children Shelemiah and Delaiah both have names compounded with the divine name.

Sanballat likely was serving already as governor of Samaria, the hill country region north of Judah (Hb Yehud). The description of Sanballat as the Horonite probably refers to his origin from either Upper or Lower Beth-horon northwest of Jerusalem (Jos 18:13). Some scholars contend that he was a high official working for Sanballat and that his description as the Ammonite reflects his ancestry. Others maintain that Tobiah was from a Jewish family living east of the Jordan River in the Ammonite region and that Tobiah was the governor of this province. Clearly both Sanballat and Tobiah were committed to thwarting Nehemiah's plans.

Golden drinking cup. Nehemiah was cupbearer for Artaxerxes I, king of Persia. Nehemiah 4:3

2:12 Nehemiah probably limited the number of men and animals during his night-time reconnaissance of Jerusalem to avoid detection by those who were sympathetic to Sanballat and Tobiah.

2:13-15 Nehemiah's description of his inspection of the city in this passage, along with the more detailed account of rebuilding in chapter 3, provide the best written information for reconstructing the dimensions of Jerusalem in the fifth century B.C. One school of thought argues that the walls rebuilt by Nehemiah included only the City of David and the temple area. Another maintains that the rebuilt walls followed the eighth-century walls, including the southwestern hill area that was within the walls of preexilic Jerusalem. Furthermore, some archaeologists maintain that Nehemiah abandoned the eastern wall because of the extensive rubble and built a new, more defensible wall on the crest of the hill. Others insist that he rebuilt the remains of the preexilic wall further down the slope. Nehemiah's inspection tour began on the western side of Jerusalem and proceeded counter-clockwise around the city.

2:13 Nehemiah and his men headed south from the Valley Gate toward the Serpent's Well (Hb 'en hattannin), which could be translated as "Dragon's

Well" or as "Serpent's/Dragon's Eye." Nehemiah continued south to the Dung Gate at the lower tip of the city. This gate led to the Valley of Hinnom where garbage was dumped and burned. The term "Gehenna" is derived from the Hebrew term ge-hinnom (Valley of Hinnom).

2:14 Nehemiah followed the ruins of the wall north to the Fountain Gate and the King's Pool (probably the same place as the "Pool of Shelah" mentioned in 3:15). With the ruined walls on his left and the steep Kidron Valley on his right, his way was blocked and he dismounted. Archaeological investigations have shown that preexilic Jerusalem extended down this slope (called the Millo) toward the Kidron Valley. This area of rubble, still visible today, is 15 feet thick in some places.

2:16 While some assume the officials here (Hb segen) were Persian officials, it probably refers to the various leaders mentioned among the Jews, priests, nobles, and officials.

2:17 The word disgrace (Hb cherpah), often translated "shame" or "reproach," is the same word used to describe the state of the people in Jerusalem when Nehemiah's brother and his friends gave their report (1:3). The present sad state of the city was a "disgrace" to the city, its people, and above all, its God.

2:19 Nehemiah's third primary opponent appears in this verse: Geshem the Arab. Arabs are mentioned in the Bible from the ninth century B.C. on, sometimes aiding the Israelites, as at the battle of Qarqar in 853, and sometimes attacking them, as in the time of King Jehoram of Judah (2Ch 21:16). During Nehemiah's time the Arabs were led by Geshem, whose vast domain stretched from the Negev south of Judah all the way to Lower Egypt. Together with Sanballat and Tobiah, he mocked Nehemiah and his followers, even accusing them of sedition against their Persian overlord.

2:20 Nehemiah did not try to refute his enemy's claims, but he stated his trust in the God of heaven. The meaning of the phrase historic claim is not certain in this context. The Hebrew term it is based on (zikkaron) normally means "remembrance." It is used to describe the Passover as a spiritual memorial for the people of Israel (Ex 12:14). This may mean that Nehemiah's enemies not only had no legal right to the land, but also no right to participate in the worship of the community.

3:1-32 With the conclusion of chapter 2, the first-person narrative of Nehemiah ends and does not resume until 4:1. Chapter 3, possibly written by someone other than Nehemiah, is a third-person account of the completion of the construction and the installation of the doors. Yet 6:1 and 7:1 explicitly state that the doors in the gates had not yet been hung. This chapter may have been an official archive that was kept in the temple and was incorporated into the book of Nehemiah, at a later date and out of sequence, because of its detailed description of the reconstruction.

3:1 Only here in this chapter is the dedication of the gate or the walls mentioned, a significant event because Eliashib the high priest led it. This marked the beginning of the endeavor and emphasized the priests' dependence on God for the successful completion of the project.

3:4-5 In verses 1-3 the workers are described as "building" the wall and gates (Hb banah) while in most of the chapter the builders made repairs (Hb chazaq; lit "to strengthen"). This may suggest that the wall in the northern section near the Sheep Gate was so devastated that they had to start from scratch.

3:6 The mention of the Old (Hb hayeshanah) Gate is problematic. The Hebrew text reads "the Jeshanah Gate," an unlikely name, since the gate leading to Jeshanah (2Ch 13:19) should be on the north wall. This translation, like most others, reads the word not as a proper name but as an adjective meaning "old," thus the "Old Gate." Another option is to understand it as the Mishnah Gate or the "Second Gate" that led to the second district of the city mentioned in 2Kg 22:14.

3:8 The word restored (Hb 'azav) normally means "to abandon." Most translations assume this verse and 4:2 use a rare homonymic verb meaning "to restore." It is not clear why the author would depart from his normal term for "restore" (Hb chazaq) and use a verb found only twice in the Hebrew Bible. Thus, some scholars and translations read this phrase as "they abandoned Jerusalem," that is, they did not attempt to follow the eighth-century walls but left out the western hill section of the city (see note at 2:13-15).

3:12 The work crew of Shallum son of Hallohesh was unique. Possibly he had no sons, but his family still joined in the work through the labor of his daughters.

3:15 This verse details reconstruction of the southeast corner of the city. The Pool of Shelah is probably the same as the King's Pool (2:14).

3:16 The text continues to describe construction from south to north along the eastern side of the city. The fact that the descriptions are not of gates and prominent places along the wall but locations within the city may be indirect evidence that Nehemiah abandoned the eighth-century wall lower down the valley and established a new wall closer to the summit (2:14).

3:19 The Angle (Hb miqtso'a) may refer to a prominent place where the wall changed direction. However, the term appears again (vv. 24-25) in what would seem to be another location. Possibly the "Angle" was a natural feature such as a hillside or escarpment.

3:26-27 The term Ophel means "swelling" and is used here to describe a hill. It can refer to the entire southeastern hill of the ancient City of David or, as in this verse, to the area where the palace and the temple were situated. The Water Gate presumably provided access to the spring of Gihon. It was by the "Water Gate" that Nehemiah later gathered the people for a public reading of the Torah (8:1).

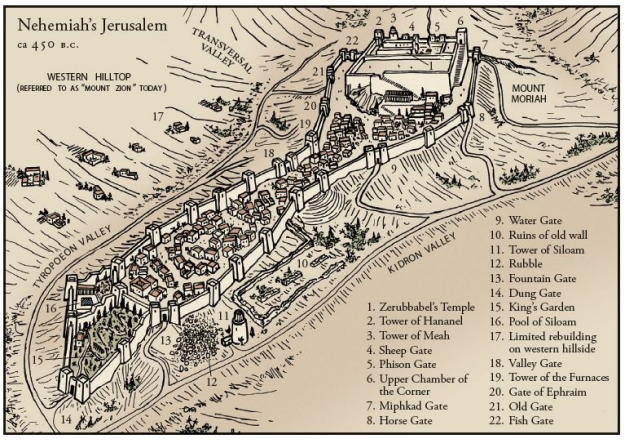
3:28 The prophet Jeremiah's reference to the Horse Gate (Jr 31:40) might suggest it was a gate on the eastern wall of the city, but the "Horses Gate" mentioned in 2Ch 23:15 was the gate at the entrance to the palace/temple complex within the city.

3:29 The East Gate was not in the outer city wall but led into the temple complex (Ezk 40:6). Shemaiah repaired the section of the wall near where he served.

3:31 The Inspection Gate (or the "Muster Gate" or the "Parade Gate") was probably on the northeast corner of the city wall. It may be identical to the Benjamin Gate where the prophet Jeremiah was arrested (Jr 37:13).

3:32 The goldsmiths and merchants "closed the loop" as they worked on repairing the walls up to where the work began at the Sheep Gate (v. 1) at the northeastern end of the city. D. J. Clines estimates the length of the wall around its perimeter to be about a mile and a half (p. 158). If Nehemiah's wall also included the western hill area of Jerusalem (v. 8), the distance was considerably greater.

4:1-6 These verses in the Hebrew Bible are a continuation of chapter 3 (3:33-38).



4:1-2 The Nehemiah Memoir (see "Structure" in the Introduction to Ezra) resumes again with the renewed opposition of Sanballat. He became furious and mocked the Jews. "Mocked" is a strong word (Hb la'ag) that means "to jeer, to deride." The first of his derisive rhetorical questions, Can they restore it by themselves? involves reading a rare (and debated) Hebrew verb (see note at 3:8). Another possibility is to accept a minor textual change (from Hb lahem "to them," to le'lohim "to God") and understand the question as, "Will they leave it all to God?" The meaning of the second question is also not certain: Will they offer sacrifices? Perhaps the sense was that the Jews would offer enough sacrifices to God to persuade Him to help them rebuild the city. The jest regarding bringing back to life the burnt stones was a recognition that the Jewish people had no time to quarry new stones but had to make do with the rubble left over from the destruction of 586 B.C.

4:4-5 The book of Nehemiah contains two lengthy prayers, one private (1:4-11) and one public (the prayer/confession of chap. 9). This is the first of seven brief prayers in which Nehemiah either petitions God's help or asks God to take note of his efforts to fulfill God's purposes for His people (5:19; 6:9,14; 13:14,22). The sentiment here is that of the imprecatory prayers of the Psalms that calls for God's judgments on the enemy (Pss 69; 83; 137; 139). While such a prayer seems out of place in light of Jesus' teaching (Mt 5:43-47), it must be remembered that Nehemiah was writing before the cross in the context of the old covenant. While we cannot pray a prayer like Nehemiah's, we can emulate his passion for God to bring justice to an unjust world.

4:7-9 After Sanballat and his allies failed to discourage Nehemiah and the people, they virtually surrounded Jerusalem. Sanballat led the force from Samaria, north of Jerusalem, while Tobiah and the Ammonites were east of Jerusalem. The Arabs, probably led by Geshem (2:19), were south/southeast of Jerusalem, with the Ashdodites, from the former region of Philistia, southwest of Jerusalem. The response of those in Jerusalem reflected their trust in God as well as their understanding that faith did not preclude action but demanded it (v. 9).

4:10 Nehemiah's problems were internal as well as external. Whether the slogan in this verse was an oft-repeated jingle or a song sung by the workers, it clearly reflected the discouragement and pessimism within the city.

4:12 Another possible translation of the second half of the verse is, "they said to us repeatedly from all [their] places, 'You must return to us,'" suggesting that the Jewish people outside Jerusalem were encouraging the workers from their towns laboring in Jerusalem to leave before the city was attacked.

4:13-14 Nehemiah's skill as a leader is exemplified in these verses. Although enemies surrounded him and the people were discouraged, he took action.

4:15-17 As the work resumed, Nehemiah took precautions against a surprise attack. He divided the group he called my men (Hb ne'aray; lit "my youths"), which may have been a militia that supported Nehemiah's role as governor. Half of them joined in the work while the other half were on guard duty.

4:18-22 Because the defenders were spread so thinly around the city, Nehemiah had the trumpeter beside him, so they could concentrate their forces quickly in case of attack. Having everyone spend the night inside Jerusalem not only bolstered the defenses of the city but also kept the discouraged or the fearful from deserting during the night.

4:23 Nehemiah and his military entourage set the example for diligence in the face of danger: [we] never took off our clothes. Another possibility for understanding the final phrase of the verse is to read the last word of the Hebrew text (hammayim; "the water") as "the right hand" (Hb hayyamin), making the phrase, "each his weapon in his right hand." Nehemiah and his people in this chapter exemplify the Benedictine credo, (Lat) ora et labora ("pray and work"). They sought God's blessing and His protection while working with the strength He gave them to accomplish the task for which they prayed.

5:1-19 Nehemiah's effort in rebuilding the walls was a crucial step in securing the safety and prosperity of Jerusalem and Judah, but the need for workers inside Jerusalem made an already bad economic situation for the poor even worse. The postexilic prophets attest to the difficult economic conditions during this era, with crop failures and Persian taxes adding to their troubles (Hg 1:6-11; Mal 3:7-15). As in the eighth century B.C. (Am 2:6-8; 4:1-5), so once again the gap between rich and poor grew worse—the very situation the OT law discouraged by assuring property rights and the Year of Jubilee.

5:1 The first group of people and their wives complaining were the landless poor, who depended on their husband's work as day laborers for their daily food. Their absence from the home to work in Jerusalem was causing real distress.

5:3 The second group consisted of those who were forced to mortgage their property in order to survive. These loans would normally be paid back at harvest time in the fall, but with the men working in Jerusalem during August and early September, many were facing foreclosure.

5:4 The third group that brought their complaints had borrowed money to pay the king's tax. Documents from Babylonia and Egypt during this period attest to families unable to pay their taxes and thus forced to sell their children into servitude. Many finally lost their land and became part of the landless working poor. During this period the interest rate for borrowing money to pay taxes was often between 40 and 50 percent.

5:5 For all three groups (vv. 2-4) the result was the same: parents were selling their children into slavery. This was allowed under the OT law (Ex 21:2-11) but with some important qualifications (Lv 25:39-46). Often parents would sell their children before selling their property, because the sale of property precluded the possibility of earning the money to buy the children back. The situation was even more critical for daughters sold into servitude, because their master or his son could pressure them into marriage. Moreover, they were also more susceptible to sexual exploitation. Their daughters are described as enslaved, which is from a Hebrew term (kavash) that generally means "subdue," sometimes used in the OT with sexual connotations ("violate" in Est 7:8).

5:7 The translation of Nehemiah's accusation here assumes the issue was usury: Each of you is charging his countrymen interest. But the terms used in this context may suggest instead that the issue was acting as a creditor and seizing the properties of those in default—"pressing claims" or "seizing collateral." If this was the case, the actions of the "nobles and officials" were not illegal, but nevertheless unconscionable in light of the dire state of the people.

5:8 Most likely Nehemiah was not referring to buying back slaves while living in Babylonia, but recently having to buy back Israelites sold to neighboring nations. The nobles and officials were perpetuating the problem.

5:10 It is unlikely that Nehemiah was confessing sin about these issues. It was considered an act of kindness to lend to the poor (Ps 37:26; 112:5; Pr 19:17). What was wrong was taking advantage of the poor (Dt 15:7-11; 24:10-13) and demanding payment in light of the severe economic situation. As in Neh 5:7, there is a translation issue in this verse. Nehemiah's exhortation could be translated, "Let's stop pressing our claims on these loans."

5:12-13 The officials' agreement to Nehemiah's demands was followed by a solemn oath, the seriousness of which was reinforced by Nehemiah's ritual act of shaking the folds of his robe while reciting a curse on those who failed to keep it. The folds of the robe were used as pockets. Nehemiah was comparing his pockets to the rooms of a house and bidding God to evict the disobedient from their houses. The people had ample reason to say Amen (which means "so be it" or "surely"). This issue of social injustice could have splintered the community and brought about the same consequences their enemies had failed to achieve, but by God's grace Nehemiah produced a fair conclusion that allowed construction to continue.

5:14 This is the first mention of Nehemiah's appointment as governor (Hb pechah) of the province. Moreover, his duration as governor is given—probably from 445 to 432 B.C. Nehemiah distinguished his governance from his predecessors in that he declined to eat "the bread of the governor," or the food allotted to the governor. Such a refusal was at great personal cost to him, as verses 17-18 demonstrate.

5:15-16 The gap between Zerubbabel and Nehemiah was probably more than 60 years. Some scholars have argued that the governors whom Nehemiah criticized were the governors of Samaria, arguing that Judah (Hb Yehud) did not become a separate province until Nehemiah restored the city and its walls. Yet the historical evidence as well as the biblical record argues that Yehud had been a distinct political entity since the beginning of the Persian period. Archaeological finds have identified the names of some of the governors between Zerubbabel and Nehemiah on seals and coins, including Yehoʻezer, Ahzai, several named Elnatan, and Yehezqiyah.

Unlike his predecessors, Nehemiah wanted to fulfill his mission from God in restoring Jerusalem without adding to the burdens of the people who were already hard pressed. Nehemiah and his subordinates (lit "my youths"; 4:10) instead devoted themselves to their task of rebuilding. His assertion that they didn't buy any land is significant. Those at the center of power often use their power to get "sweetheart deals" to enrich themselves and their friends, but Nehemiah and his men did not take advantage of their power, especially when desperate people were willing to sell their properties for food.

5:17-18 On the food allotted to the governor, see note at verse 14.

5:19 Nehemiah's succinct prayer has often been criticized as selfish or as "works righteousness." But as J. G. McConville writes, "The invocation of God's favour is not so much a plea for a reward as an emphatic way of claiming that he has acted in good faith and from right motives. It is a statement of confidence that God is judge, and judges favourably those who sincerely seek to do his will" (McConville, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther; 102).

6:1-19 In chapter 6 the focus returns to construction of the wall and three attempts to thwart it by "intimidating" (vv. 9,14,19; Hb piel of yara'; "make afraid") Nehemiah and the workers.

6:1-4 News that the wall was completed (but not the gates) brought on a new attempt by Sanballat, Tobiah, and Geshem the Arab to stop construction, this time by focusing on Nehemiah himself. This translation follows the ancient versions in reading the Hebrew text as kepharim (villages) and not the Masoretic Text, which has kephirim (Kephirim). The versions leave us wondering which village was the proposed meeting place—perhaps it was different each of the four times. The MT specifies a location but it is not known to us. The Ono Valley, on the far northwest corner of Judah, may have been a neutral area between Judah and Samaria. Nehemiah recognized the offer to meet as a trap.

6:5-7 After four rejected invitations, Sanballat increased the pressure by trying to blackmail Nehemiah. The open letter in the hand of his aide made it clear that Sanballat's accusations against Nehemiah were for everyone to read. The letter charged Nehemiah with treason against King Artaxerxes, a charge that Sanballat knew had worked before to stop construction in Jerusalem (Ezr 4:7-16).

6:8-9 Nehemiah was not cowed by their slander. This translation of the end of verse 9, like most English translations, takes Nehemiah's words to be a brief prayer. However, the phrase "my God" (Hb 'elohay) does not appear here as it does in the other brief prayers of Nehemiah (v. 14; 5:19; 13:14,22). Also, none of the early ancient versions (Gk, Lat, Syr) understood the closing phrase to be a prayer. With this in mind, a possible translation would be, "So now I increased my efforts."

6:10 Shemaiah ("Yahweh has heard") is a common OT name shared by over 20 different people. Why Shemaiah was restricted or restrained is not clear. While he is not referred to as a prophet in this verse, his message to Nehemiah is called a prophecy in verse 12. Shemaiah tried a religious approach to trap Nehemiah, urging him to flee to the temple to save himself from assassination.

6:11-13 Nehemiah saw through this religious ruse intended to intimidate and discredit him. Moreover, had he entered the temple he could have been executed since by law only the priests could enter the temple (Nm 18:7).

6:14 Nehemiah knew that behind Shemaiah's "prophecy" were Tobiah and Sanballat, who evidently had persuaded others to do their bidding. Noadiah is mentioned only here in the OT.

6:15-16 In spite of myriad problems, the wall was completed in 52 days. The date of the twenty-fifth day of the month of Elul probably was October 2, 445 B.C. In less than six months, Nehemiah had traveled from Susa in Persia (modern-day Iran) to Jerusalem and had completed his mission of restoring the wall around the city. While Nehemiah's enemies had tried to intimidate him (vv. 9,14,19), they themselves were intimidated. They reluctantly understood that the completion of such a formidable task was due to God's help.

6:17-19 During those days suggests that this third attempt to intimidate Nehemiah may have been parallel to the other actions of intimidation. Verse 17 also explains why Nehemiah's enemies were so well informed of conditions within Jerusalem, because the nobles of Judah sent many letters to Tobiah. The term "letters" (Hb 'iggereth, from Akk egirtu) occurs only a dozen times in the OT, all in postexilic texts. These "nobles" were bound by oath (Hb ba'alay-shevu'ah; lit "masters of the oath") to Tobiah through marriage. Those aligned with Tobiah tried to convince Nehemiah of Tobiah's good deeds, yet his letters still were an attempt to intimidate Nehemiah.

7:1-3 Though the wall had been rebuilt, the danger was not over. Nehemiah's transfer of the gatekeepers from their positions in the temple to protection of the city is understandable. The walled city is in effect an extension of the temple courtyard. The mention of the singers and Levites suggests that Nehemiah needed these well-organized groups to take part in the city's defense. And with Tobiah's associates well entrenched in the city, he needed people he could trust such as Hanani and Hananiah.

No explanation is given on why the gates should remain closed until the sun was hot, a time when activity slowed. It may imply mid-morning rather than early morning, in order to give plenty of time for all the guards to come on duty. Another possibility is to understand the word "until" (Hb 'ad) as "during," a less common meaning (Jdg 3:26; 2Kg 9:22; Jb 20:5; Jnh 4:2). This reading would suggest that the instruction was to not keep the gates open during the "siesta" period of the day, when the guards might become lethargic.

7:4-5 Most of the inhabitants of Jerusalem before the exile had been killed, deported, or scattered because of the catastrophe of 586 B.C. During the previous 80 years, thousands had returned from Babylonia, but the city's population still was small. Nehemiah was aware of the difficulty of trying to defend a sparsely populated city. The solution came when God put it into Nehemiah's mind (lit "heart") to gather the people to deal with the problem. Before Nehemiah could put his plan into action (11:1-2) he needed accurate census records of those who had returned from exile.

7:6-73a On the census of these returnees, see various notes at Ezra 2.

7:73 b - 10 : 39 The narrative about the repopulating of Jerusalem breaks off in 7:73a and does not resume until 11:1. Thus chapters 8-10 seem to be a parenthetical break that was actually part of the Ezra Memoir and originally stood chronologically between Ezra 8 and 9. Many scholars argue that this narrative was moved to its present position to link the ministries of Ezra and Nehemiah.

While it is likely that Ezra 8 (and probably Ezr 9) is part of the Ezra Memoir (see "Structure" in the Introduction to Ezra), this does not necessarily mean that the material has been displaced. While biblical writers sometimes present their material thematically and not chronologically (Ezr 4:6-24; Luke), there are no compelling reasons why Ezra could not be present for this reading of the law (Ezr 8) during the time of Nehemiah. It is not without biblical precedent (though it is odd) that Ezra and Nehemiah rarely mention each other even though their ministries overlapped. Thus it is suggested that the author of Ezra-Nehemiah turned from the Nehemiah Memoir he had used for Neh 1:1-7:73a and began drawing on the later section of the Ezra Memoir for Nehemiah 8 and possibly part of Nehemiah 9.
